PREFACE

THERE is no proof that Shakespeare personally superintended the printing of any of his plays. Although sixteen came separately from the press in small quarto volumes during his lifetime, many, if not all, of these were published without the consent or supervision of the author from copies often surreptitiously obtained from the playhouse. At the time of Shakespeare's death in 1616, no less than twenty-one plays remained in manuscript. Six years later, in 1622, one of these, 'Othello', was issued to the public in quarto. It was not until 1623 that Shakespeare's actor friends, John Hemming and Henry Condell, brought together the previously printed and unprinted dramas of which they knew him to be the author, and published them in a folio volume in order 'to keep' (as they wrote) 'the memory of so worthy a friend and fellow alive'. Thirty-six plays were thus claimed for Shakespeare. The thirty-seventh, 'Pericles', had been first printed separately in quarto in 1609, but was not added to the collection until the third folio appeared in 1664.

The text alike of the first folio and the quartos was doubtless supplied by playhouse copies which often embodied the ill-conditioned interpolations and alterations of actors and theatrical managers. As a rule the editors of 1623 followed where they could the text of the quartos, but in a few cases they unwisely had recourse to less correct copies. Moreover, the printers of both Elizabeth's and James I's reigns were very liable to typographical error, and they introduced much that is unintelligible into the original editions of Shakespeare's works. But in the absence of Shakespeare's manuscripts, the seventeen early quartos and the folio of 1623 jointly present, despite defect of copyist and printer, the sole authorized version of the Shakespearian text. From that version I have only ventured to deviate where it seemed to me that the carelessness of either copyist or printer deprived a word or sentence wholly of meaning. Editors of Shakespeare have sometimes denounced as corrupt and have partially altered passages which owe their difficulty of interpretation to the presence of some word or phrase rare in Shakespeare's day and long since obsolete. It has been my endeavour to avoid this danger. I have only adopted a change after convincing myself that the characteristics of Shakespeare's vocabulary or literary style failed to justify the original reading.

For the uncertain orthography of the old editions I have substituted the recognized orthography of the present day. But metrical considerations occasionally render the retention of the older spelling necessary, and I have deemed it desirable to adhere to the older forms of a few words which modern orthography has practically shaped anew The punctuation has been thoroughly revised, and, to increase facilities of reference, I have numbered the lines at shorter intervals than have been adopted hitherto

In seeking to emend corrupt passages I have carefully considered the suggestions of my many predecessors, and from few of those who have already laboured in the field of textual criticism have I failed to derive some enlightenment Of the older editors, Theobald, whose edition of Shakespeare appeared in 1733, and Capell, whose edition appeared in 1768, have proved most helpful Among more modern editions I am chiefly indebted to the work of Delius Dyce, and the Cambridge editors A very few of the emendations which I have adopted are now introduced into the text for the first time My thanks are due to my friend Mr P A Daniel for many useful suggestions

I have appended a short glossary which I trust will adequately explain the meaning of the obsolete words which Shakespeare employed

SCENE — The Sea, with a Ship, afterwards an Island

ACT I

Re-enter Boatswain.

SCENE I — On a Ship at Sea A tempestuous noise of thunder and lightning heard

Enter a Shipmaster and a Boatswain severally Boatswain!

Boats Here, master what cheer?

Master Good, speak to the mariners fall to't yarely, or we run ourselves aground bestir, bestir [Exit

Enter Mariners

Boats Heigh, my hearts! cheerly, cheerly, my hearts! yare, yare! Take in the topsail Tend to the master's whistle — Blow, till thou burst thy wind, if room enough! 9

Enter ALONSO, SEBASTIAN, ANTONIO, FERDINAND, GONZALO, and others

Alon Good boatswain, have care Where's the master? Play the men

Boats I pray now, keep below 12

Ant. Where is the master, boson?

Boats Do you not hear him? You mar our labour keep your cabins you do assist the storm. 16

Gon. Nay, good, be patient.

Boats When the sea is Hence! What cares these roarers for the name of king? To cabin silence! trouble us not 20

Gon Good, yet remember whom thou hast aboard 22

Boats None that I more love than myself You are a counsellor if you can command these elements to silence, and work the peace of the present, we will not hand a rope more, use your authority if you cannot, give thanks you have lived so long, and make yourself ready in your cabin for the muschance of the hour, if it so hap — Cheerly, good hearts! — Out of our way, I say [Exit

Gon I have great comfort from this fellow methinks he hath no drowning mark upon him, his complexion is perfect gallows Stand fast, good Fate, to his hanging! make the rope of his destiny our cable, for our own doth little advantage! If he be not born to be hanged, our case is miserable. [Exeunt

Boats Down with the topmast! yare! lower, lower! Bring her to try with main-course [A cry within] A plague upon this howling! they are louder than the weather, or our office — 42

Re-enter SEBASTIAN, ANTONIO, and GONZALO
 Yet again? what do you here? Shall we give o'er, and drown? Have you a mind to sink?

Seb A pox o' your throat, you bawling, blasphemous, incharitable dog!

Boats Work you, then 47

Ant Hang, cur, hang! you whoreson, insolent noisemaker, we are less afraid to be drowned than thou art

Gon I'll warrant him for drowning, though the ship were no stronger than a nutshell, and as leaky as an unstanch'd wench 53

Boats Lay her a-hold, a-hold! Set her two courses, off to sea again, lay her off

Enter Mariners, wet

Mar All lost! to prayers, to prayers! all! lost! [Exeunt

Boats What, must our mouths be cold? 58
Gon The king and prince at prayers! let us assist them,

For our case is as theirs.

Seb I am out of patience 60
Ant We are merely cheated of our lives by drunkards —

This wide-chapp'd rascal, — would thou might'st he drowning,

The washing of ten tides!

Gon He'll be hang'd yet, Though every drop of water swear against it, 64 And gape at wid'st to glut him

[A confused noise within, — 'Mercy on us!'] — 'We split, we split! — Farewell, my wife and children! —'

'Farewell, brother! —' 'We split, we split, we split! —'

Ant Let's all sink wi' the king [Exit. 67
Seb Let's take leave of him. [Exit.

Gon Now would I give a thousand furlongs of sea for an acre of barren ground, long heath, brown furze, any thing The walls above be done! but I would fain die a dry death. [Exit

SCENE II The Island before the Cell of PROSPEROEnter PROSPERO and MIRANDA

Mira If by your art, my dearest father, you have Put the wild waters in this roar, allay them
The sky, it seems, would pour down stinking pitch,

But that the sea, mounting to th' welkin's cheek, Dashes the fire out O! I have suffer'd
With those that I saw suffer a brave vessel,
Who had, no doubt, some noble creatures in her,
Dash'd all to pieces O! the cry did knock Against my very heart Poor souls, they perish'd Had I been any god of power, I would Have sunk the sea within the earth, or e'er
It should the good ship so have swallow'd and The fraughting souls within her

Pro Be collected
No more amazement Tell your piteous heart There's no harm done

Mira O, woe the day!
Pro No harm
I have done nothing but in care of thee,— Of thee, my dear one! thee, my daughter!—who Art ignorant of what thou art, nought knowing Of whence I am nor that I am more better Than Prospero, master of a full poor cell, 20
And thy no greater father

Mira More to know
Did never meddle with my thoughts

Pro 'Tis time
I should inform thee further Lend thy hand,
And pluck my magic garment from me —So 24 [Lays down his mantle] Lie there, my art —Wipe thou thine eyes, have comfort

The direful spectacle of the wrack, which touch'd
The very virtue of compassion in thee,
I have with such provision in mine art 28
So safely order'd, that there is no soul—
No, not so much perdition as an hair, Betid to any creature in the vessel Which thou heard'st cry, which thou saw'st sink Sit down, 32

For thou must now know further Mira You have often Begun to tell me what I am, but stopp'd,
And left me to a bootless inquisition, Concluding, 'Stay, not yet'

Pro The hour's now come, 36
The very minute bids thee open thine ear, Obey and be attentive Canst thou remember
A time before we came unto this cell?
I do not think thou canst, for then thou wast
not 40

Out three years old.
Mira Certainly, sir, I can
Pro By what? by any other house or person?
Of anything the image tell me, that Hath kept with thy remembrance.

Mira 'Tis far off, 44
And rather like a dream than an assurance That my remembrance warrants Had I not Four or five women once that tended me?

Pro Thou hadst, and more, Miranda But how is it 48
That this lives in thy mind? What seest thou else
In the dark backward and abysm of time?
If thou remember'st aught ere thou cam'st here,
How thou cam'st here, thou may'st

Mira But that I do not 52 Pro Twelve year since, Miranda, twelve year since,

Thy father was the Duke of Milan and A prince of power

Mira Sir, are not you my father?
Pro Thy mother was a piece of virtue, and She said thou wast my daughter, and thy father Was Duke of Milan, and his only heir 58
A princess,—no worse issued

Mira O, the heavens!
What foul play had we that we came from thence? 60

Or blessed was't we did?
Pro Both, both, my girl
By foul play, as thou say'st, were we heav'd thence,
But blessedly help hither

Mira O! my heart bleeds
To think o' the teen that I have turn'd you to,
Which is from my remembrance Please you, further 65

Pro My brother and thy uncle, call'd Antonio,—

I pray thee, mark me,—that a brother should Be so perfidious!—he whom next thyself, 68

Of all the world I lov'd, and to him put
The manage of my state, as at that time,

Through all the signories it was the first
And Prospero the prime duke, being so reputed In dignity, and for the liberal arts,

Without a parallel those being all my study,
The government I cast upon my brother,

And to my state grew stranger, being transported 70

And rapt in secret studies Thy false uncle—Dost thou attend me?

Mira Sir, most heedfully

Pro Being once perfected how to grant suits
How to deny them, who t'advance, and who 80
To trash for over-topping new created
The creatures that were mine, I say, or chang'd
'em,

Or else new form'd 'em having both the key
Of officer and office, set all hearts i' the state 84

To what tune pleas'd his ear, that now he was The ivy which had hid my princely trunk,

And suck'd my verdure out on't—Thou at-tend'st not

Mira O, good sir! I do

Pro I pray thee, mark me 88
I, thus neglecting worldly ends, all dedicated To closeness and the bettering of my mind

With that, which, but by being so retir'd, 91
O'erpriz'd all popular rate, in my false brother Awak'd an evil nature, and my trust,

Like a good parent, did beget of him
A falsehood in its contrary as great 95

As my trust was, which had, indeed no limit,
A confidence sans bound He being thus lorded,

Not only with what my revenue yielded,
But what my power might else exact,—like one,
Who having, into truth, by telling of it, 100
Made such a sinner of his memory,
To credit his own lie,—he did believe
He was indeed the duke, out o' the substitution,
And executing th' outward face of royalty, 104
With all prerogative—Hence his ambition growing,—

Dost thou hear?

Mira Your tale, sir, would cure deafness

Pro To have no screen between this part he play'd

And him he play'd it for, he needs will be 108 Absolute Milan. Me, poor man,—my hoary Was dukedom large enough of temporal royalties

He thinks me now incapable, confederates,—
So dry he was for sway,—w' the lung of Naples
To give him annual tribute, do him homage, Subject his coronet to his crown, and bend
The dukedom, yet in bow'd,—alas, poor Milan!—
To most ignoble stooping

Mira O the heavens! 115

Pro Mark his conclusion and the event, then tell me

If this might be a brother

Mira I should sin

To think but nool, of my grandmother
Good wombs have borne bad sons

Pro Now the condition 120

This King of Naples, being an enemy
To me inveterate, hearkens to my brother's suit,
Which was, that he, in lieu of the premises
Of homage and I know not how much tribute, Should presently extirpate me and mine 125
Out of the dukedom, and confer fair Milan,
With all the honours on my brother whereon,
A treacherous army levied one midnight 128
Fated to the purpose did Antonio open
The gates of Milan, and in the dead of darkness, The ministers for the purpose hurried thence Me and thy crying self

Mira Alack, for pity! 132

I, not remem'ring how I cri'd out then,
Will cry it o'er again it is a hint,
That wrings mine eyes to't

Pro Hear a little further,

And then I'll bring thee to the present business Which now's upon us, without the which this story 137

Were most impertinent

Mira Wherefore did they not

That hour destroy us?

Pro Well demanded, wench

My tale provokes that question. Dear, they durst not, 140

So dear the love my people bore me, nor set A mark so bloody on the business, but With colours fairer painted their foul ends

In few, they hurried us aboard a bark, 144
Bore us some leagues to sea, where they prepar'd

A rotten carcass of a boat, not rigg'd,

Nor tackle, sail, nor mast, the very rats

Instinctively have quit it there they hoist us,

To cry to the sea that roar'd to us, to sigh 149

To the winds whose pity, sighing back again, Did us but loving wrong

Mira Alack! what trouble
Was I then to you?

Pro O, a cherubin 152

Thou wast, that did preserve me! Thou didst smile,

Infused with a fortitude from heaven,

When I have deck'd the sea with drops full salt,

Under my burden groan'd, which rais'd in me

An undergoing stomach, to bear up 157

Against what should ensue

Mira How came we ashore?

Pro By Providence divine 159

Some food we had and some fresh water that

A noble Neapolitan Gonzanio,

Out of his charity,—who being then appointed

Master of this design,—did give us, with 163

Rich garments, linnen stuffs, and necessaries

Which since have steaded much, so, of his generousness,

Knowing I lov'd my books, he furnish'd me,

From mine own library with volumes that I prize above my dukedom

Mira Would I might 165

But ever see that man!

Pro Now I arise —

[Resumes his mantle]

Sit still, and fear the last of our sea-sorrow

Here in this island we arriv'd, and here

Have I, thy schoolmaster, made thee more profit

Than other princes can, that have more time

For vain hours and tutors not so careful

Mira Heavens thank you for't! And now, I pray you, sir,—

For still 'tis beating in my mind,—your reason 166

For raising this sea-storm?

Pro Know thus far forth

By accident most strange, bountiful Fortune,

Now my dear lady, hath mine enemies

Brought to this shore, and by my prescience 180

I find my zenith doth depend upon

A most auspicious star, whose influence

If now I court not but omit, my fortunes

Will ever after droop. Here cease more questions, 184

Thou art inclin'd to sleep, 'tis a good dulness,

And give it way,—I know thou canst not choose — [MIRANDA SLEEPS]

Come away, servant, come! I'm ready now Approach, my Ariel, come! 188

Enter ARIEL

Ari All hail, great master! grave sir, hail!

I come

To answer thy best pleasure, be't to fly,

To swim, to dive into the fire, to ride 191

On the curl'd clouds to thy strong bidding task

Ariel and all his quality

Pro Hast thou spirit,

Perform'd to point the tempest that I bade

thee?

Ari To every article

I boarded the king's ship, now on the beak, 196

Now in the waist, the deck, in every cabin,

I flamm'd amazement sometime I'd divide
And burn in many places, on the topmast,
The yards, and boresprit, would I flame distinctly, Then meet, and join Jove's lightnings, the precursors
O' the dreadful thunder-claps, more momentary And sight-outrunning were not the fire and cracks

Ofsulphurous roaring the most mighty Neptune Seem to besiege and make his bold waves tremble,

Yea, his dread trident shake

Pro My brave spirit!
Who was so firm, so constant, that this coil
Would not infect his reason?

Art Not a soul
But felt a fever of the mad and play'd
Some tricks of desperation. All but mariners, Plunged in the foaming brine and quit the vessel,

Then all a-fire with me the king's son, Ferdinand,

With hair up-staring,—then like reeds, not hair,—

Was the first man that leap'd, cried, 'Hell is empty,

And all the devils are here'

Pro Why, that's my spirit!
But was not thus nigh shore?

Art Close by, my master

Pro But are they, Ariel, safe?

Art Not a hair perish'd,
On their sustaining garments not a blemish,
But fresher than before and, as thou bad'st
me,

In troops I have dispers'd them 'bout the isle
The king's son have I landed by himself,
Whom I left cooling of the air with sighs
In an odd angle of the isle and sitting,
His arms in this sad knot

Pro Of the king's ship

The mariners, say how thou hast dispos'd,
And all the rest o' the fleet

Art Safely in harbour
Is the king's ship, in the deep nook, where once Thou call'dst me up at midnight to fetch dew From the still-vex'd Bermoothes, there she's hid

The mariners all under hatches stow'd, Who, with a charm join'd to their suffer'd labour,

I have left asleep and for the rest o' the fleet
Which I dispers'd, they all have met again,
And are upon the Mediterranean flote,
Bound sadly home for Naples, Supposing that they saw the king's ship wrack'd,

And his great person perish

Pro Ariel, thy charge
Exactly is perform'd but there's more work
What is the time o' th' day?

Art Past the mid season

Pro At least two glasses. The time 'twixt six and now

Must by us both be spent most precious.

Art Is there more toil? Since thou dost give me pains,
Let me remember thee what thou hast promis'd
Which is not yet perform'd me

Pro How now! moody? 244
What is't thou canst demand?

Art My liberty

Pro Before the time be out? no more!

Art I prithee

Remember, I have done thee worthy service,

Told thee no lies, made no mistakings, serv'd

Without or grudge or grumblings thou didst promise 249

To bate me a full year

Pro Dost thou forget

From what a torment I did free thee?

Art No

Pro Thou dost, and think'st it much to tread the ooze 252

Of the salt deep,

To run upon the sharp wind of the north,

To do me business in the veins o' th' earth

When it is bak'd with frost.

Art I do not, sir 256

Pro Thou heest, malignant thing! Hast thou forgot

The foul witch Sycorax, who with age and envy
Was grown into a hoop? hast thou forgot her?

Art No, sir

Pro Thou hast. Where was she born? speak, tell me 260

Art Sir, in Argier

Pro O! was she so? I must,

Once in a month, recount what thou hast been,

Which thou forget'st. This damn'd witch,

Sycorax, 263

For mischiefs manifold and sorceries terrible

To enter human hearing, from Argier,

Thou know'st, was banish'd for one thing she did

They would not take her life Is not this true?

Art Ay, sir 268

Pro This blue-ey'd hag was hither brought with child

And here was left by the sailors Thou, my slave,

As thou report'st thyself, wast then her servant

And, for thou wast a spirit too delicate 272

To act her earthy and abhorr'd commands,

Refusing her grand hests, she did confine thee,

By help of her more potent ministers,

And in her most unmitigable rage, 276

Into a cloven pine, within which rift

Imprison'd, thou didst painfully remain

A dozen years, within which space she died

And left thee there, where thou didst vent thy groans 280

As fast as mill-wheels strike. Then was this island,—

Save for the son that she did litter here,

A freckled whelp hag-born,—noth honour'd with

Art Yes, Caliban her son. 284

Pro Dull thing, I say so, he that Caliban,

Whom now I keep in service Thou best know'st

What torment I did find thee in, thy groans

Did make wolves howl and pene'rate the breasts
Of ever-angry bears it was a torment 289
To lay upon the damn'd, which Sycorax
Could not again undo, it was mine art,
When I arriv'd and heard thee, that made gape
The pine, and let thee out

Ari I thank thee, master

Pro If thou more murmur st, I will rend an oak

And peg thee in his knotty entrails till Thou hast howl'd away twelve winters

Ari Pardon, master, 296
I will be correspondent to command,
And do my spiriting gently

Pro Do so, and after two days
I will discharge thee

Ari That's my noble master!
What shall I do? say what? what shall I do?

Pro Go make thyself like a nymph of the sea be subject 301

To no sight but thine and mine, invisible
To every eyeball else Go, take this shape,
And hither come in't go, hence with diligence!

[Exit ARIEL]
Awake, dear heart, awake! thou hast slept well, Awake!

Mira [Waking] The strangeness of your story put Heaviness in me.

Pro Shake it off Come on,
We'll visit Caliban my slave, who never 308 Yields us kind answer

Mira 'Tis a villain, sir,
I do not love to look on

Pro But, as 'tis,
We cannot miss him he does make our fire,
Fetch in our wood, and serves in offices 312
That profit us—What ho! slave! Caliban!
Thou earth, thou! speak

Cal [Within] There's wood enough with n

Pro Come forth, I say, there's other business for thee Come, thou tortoise! when? 316

Re-enter ARIEL, like a water-nymph

Fine apparition! My quaint Ariel,

Hark in thine ear

Ari My lord, it shall be done. [Exit]

Pro Thou poisonous slave, got by the devil himself Upon thy wicked dam, come forth! 320

Enter CALIBAN

Cal As wicked dew as e'er my mother brush'd

With raven's feather from unwholesome fen Drop on you both! a south-west blow on ye,
And blister you all o'er! 324

Pro For this, be sure, to-night thou shalt have cramps

Side-stitches that shall pen thy breath up, urchins

Shall forth at vart of night, that they may work

All exercise on thee thou shalt be pinch'd 328

As thick as honeycomb, each pinch more stinging

Than bees that made them.

Cal I must eat my dinner

This island's mine, by Sycorax my mother, Which thou tak'st from me When thou camest first, 332

Thou strok'dst me, and mad'st much of me, wouldst give me

Water with berries in 't, and teach me how To name the bigger light, and how the less,

That burn by day and night and then I lov'd
thee 336

And show'd thee all the qualities o' th' isle, The fresh springs, brine-pits, barren place, and fertile

Cursed be I that did so!—All the charms
Of Sycorax, toads, beetles, bats, light on you!

For I am all the subjects that you have, 341 Which first was mine own king, and here you sty me

In this hard rock, whiles you do keep from me
The rest o' th' island

Pro Thou most lying slave, 344 Whom stripes may move, not kindness! I have us'd thee,

Filth as thou art, with human care, and lodg'd
thee

In mine own cell, till thou didst seek to violate
The honour of my child 348

Cal Oh ho! Oh ho!—would it had been done!
Thou didst prevent me, I had peopled else

This isle with Calibans

Pro Abhorred slave,
Which any print of goodness will not take, 352

Being capable of all ill! I pitied thee, Took pains to make thee speak, taught thee each hour

One thing or other when thou didst not, savage, Know thine own meaning, but wouldst gabble like 356

A thing most brutish, I endow'd thy purposes With words that made them known but thy vile race,

Though thou didst learn, had that in 't which good natures

Could not abide to be with, therefore wast thou Deservedly confin'd into this rock, 361

Who hadst deserv'd more than a prison

Cal You taught me language, and my profit on 't 363

Is, I know how to curse the red plague rid you,
For learning me your language!

Pro Hag-seed, hence!
Fetch us in fuel, and be quick, thou 'rt best,

To answer other business Shrug'st thou, malice?

If thou neglect'st, or dost unwillingly 368
What I command, I'll rack thee with old cramps,

Fill all thy bones with aches, make thee roar,
That beasts shall tremble at thy din

Cal No, pray thee!—
[Aside] I must obey his art is of such power,

It would control my dam's god, Setebos, 373
And make a vassal of him.

Pro So, slave; hence!
[Exit CALIBAN]

Re-enter ARIEL invisible, playing and singing, FERDINAND following

ARIEL'S SONG

Come unto these yellow sands,
And then take hands
Curtsied when you have, and kiss'd,—
The wild waves whist—
Foot it feately here and there,
And sweet sprites, the burden bear Hark, hark!
[Burden Bow, wow, dispersedly
The watch-dogs bark [Burden Bow wow dispersedly
Hark hark! I hear
The strain of strutting Chanticleer [Cry, Cock a-diddle-dow

Fer Where should this music be? i' th' air, or th' earth?

It sounds no more,—and sure, it waits upon Some god o' th' island Sitting on a bank, Weeping again the king my father's wrack, 388
This music crept by me upon the waters,
Allaying both their fury, and my passion,
With its sweet air thence I have follow'd it,— Or it hath drawn me rather,—but 'tis gone 392
No, it begins again.

ARIEL sings

Full fathom five thy father lies,
Of his bones are coral made
Those are pearls that were his eyes
Nothing of him that doth fade,
But doth suffer a sea-change
Into something rich and strange Sea nymphs hourly ring his knell

[Burden ding-dong.
Hark! now I hear them,—ding-dong, bell.

Fer The ditty does remember my drown'd
father

This is no mortal business, nor no sound
That the earth owes —I hear it now above me Pro The fringed curtains of thine eye advance, 405

And say what thou seest yond.

Mira What is't? a spirit?
Lord, how it looks about! Believe me, sir,
It carries a brave form—but 'tis a spirit 408

Pro No, wench, it eats and sleeps, and hath such senses

As we have, such, this gallant which thou see'st,

Was in the wrack, and, but he's something stain'd

With grief,—that's beauty's canker,—thou might'st call him 412

A goodly person he hath lost his fellows
And strays about to find 'em.

Mira I might call him
A thing divine, for nothing natural

I ever saw so noble

Pro [Aside] It goes on, I see, 416 As my soul prompts it—Spirit, fine spirit! I'll free thee

Within two days for this

Fer Most sure, the goddess On whom these airs attend!—Vouchsafe, my prayer

May know if you remain upon this island, 420

And that you will some good instruction give How I may bear me here my prime request, Which I do last pronounce, is,—O you wonder!—

376 If you be maid or no?

Mira No wonder, sir, 424

But certainly a maid

380 Fer My language! heavens!—
I am the best of them that speak this speech,
Were I but where 'tis spoken

Pro How! the best?
What wert thou, if the King of Naples heard
thee? 428

384 Fer A single thing, as I am now, that wonders

To hear thee speak of Naples He does hear me,
And, that he does, I weep myself am Naples, Who with mine eyes,—ne'er since at ebb,—beheld

The king, my father wrack'd

Mira Alack, for mercy!

Fer Yes, faith, and all his lords, the Duke of Milan, 434

And his brave son being twain.

Pro [Aside] The Duke of Milan,
And his more braver daughter could control
thee,

If now 'twere fit to do't —At the first sight 437

396 They have changed eyes —delicate Ariel, I'll set thee free for this!—[To FER.] A word, good sir,

400 I fear you have done yourself some wrong a word 440

Mira. [Aside] Why speaks my father so ungently? This

Is the third man that e'er I saw, the first That e'er I sigh'd for pity move my father
To be inclin'd my way!

Fer [Aside] O! if a virgin, 444
And your affection not gone forth, I'll make you
The Queen of Naples

Pro Soft, sir one word more—[Aside] They are both in either's powers but this swift business

I must uneasy make, lest too light winning 448
Make the prize light—[To FER.] One word more I charge thee

That thou attend me Thou dost here usurp
The name thou ow'st not, and hast put thyself Upon this island as a spy, to win it 452

From me, the lord on't.

Fer No, as I am a man

Mira There's nothing ill can dwell in such a temple

If the ill spirit have so fair a house,
Good things will strive to dwell with't

Pro [To FER.] Follow me — 456 [To MIRA] Speak not you for him, he's a traitor —[To FER.] Come,

I'll manacle thy neck and feet together Sea-water shalt thou drink, thy food shall be

The fresh-brook muscles, wather'd roots and hunks 460

Wherein the acorn cradled Follow

Fer No,

I will resist such entertainment till

Mine enemy has more power

[He draws, and is charmed from moving]

Mira O dear father!

Make not too rash a trial of him, for 464

He's gentle, and not fearful.

Pro What! I say,

My foot my tutor?—Put thy sword up, traitor;

Who mak'st a show, but dar'st not strike, thy conscience

Is so possess'd with guilt come from thy ward,

For I can here disarm thee with this stick 469

And make thy weapon drop

Mira Beseech you, father!

Pro Hence! hang not on my garments

Mira Sir, have pity

I'll be his surety

Pro Silence! one word more 472

Shall make me chide thee, if not hate thee

What!

An advocate for an impostor? hush!

Thou think'st there is no more such shapes as he,

Having seen but him and Caliban foolish 476

wench!

To the most of men this is a Caliban

And they to him are angels

Mira My affection's

Are then most humble, I have no ambition

To see a goodlier man

Pro [To FER.] Come on, obey 480

Thy nerves are in their infancy again,

And have no vigour in them

Fer

So they are

My spirits, as in a dream, are all bound up

My father's loss, the weakness which I feel, 484

The wrack of all my friends, or this man's threats,

To whom I am subdued, are but light to me,

Might I but through my prison once a day

Behold this maid all corners else o' th' earth

Let liberty make use of, space enough 489

Have I in such a prison.

Pro [Aside.] It works.—[To FER.] Come on!—

Thou hast done well, fine Ariel!—[To FER.]

Follow me—

[To ARIEL.] Hark, what thou else shalt do me.

Mira Be of comfort, 492

My father's of a better nature, sir,

Than he appears by speech this is unwonted,

Which now came from him

Pro Thou shalt be as free

As mountain winds, but then exactly do 496

All points of my command

Ari To the syllable

Pro [To FER.] Come, follow—Speak not for him. [Exeunt]

ACT II

SCENE I—Another Part of the Island.

Enter ALONSO, SEBASTIAN, ANTONIO, GONZALO, ADRIAN, FRANCISCO, and others

Gon Beseech you, sir, be merry you have cause,

So have we all, of joy, for our escape

Is much beyond our loss. Our hint of woe

Is common every day some sailor's wife, 4
The masters of some merchant and the merchant,

Have just our theme of woe, but for the miracle,

I mean our preservation, few in millions

Can speak like us then wisely, good sir, weigh

Our sorrow with our comfort

Alon Prithee, peace 9

Seb He receives comfort like cold porridge

Ant The visitor will not give him o'er so

Seb Look, he's winding up the watch of his wit, by and by it will strike 13

Gon Sir,—

Seb One tell

Gon When every grief is entertain'd that's offer'd, 16

Comes to the entertainer—

Seb A dollar

Gon Dolour comes to him, indeed you have spoken truer than you purposed 20

Seb You have taken it wiser than I meant

you should

Gon Therefore, my lord,—

Ant Fie, what a spendthrift is he of his tongue! 25

Alon I prithee, spare

Gon Well, I have done but yet—

Seb He will be talking

Ant Which, of he or Adrian, for a good wager, first begins to crow?

Seb The old cock.

Ant The cockerel 32

Seb Done The wager?

Ant A laughter

Seb A match!

Adr Though this island seem to be desert,—

Seb Ha, ha, ha! So you're paid

Adr Uninhabitable, and almost inaccessible,—

Seb Yet—

Adr Yet—

Ant He could not miss it.

Adr It must needs be of subtle, tender, and delicate temperance.

Ant Temperance was a delicate wench 45

Seb Ay, and a subtle, as he most learnedly delivered

Adr The air breathes upon us here most sweetly 49

Seb As if it had lungs, and rotten ones

Ant Or as 'twere perfumed by a fen.

Gon Here is everything advantageous to life.

Ant True, save means to live. 53

Seb Of that there's none, or little

Gon How lush and lusty the grass looks!

how green! 56

Ant The ground indeed is tawny.

Seb With an eye of green in't.

Ant He misses not much.

Seb No, he doth but mistake the truth totally 61

Gon But the rarity of it is,—which is indeed almost beyond credit,—

Seb As many vouch'd rarities are 64

Gon That our garments, being, as they were, drenched in the sea, hold notwithstanding their freshness and glosses, being rather new-dyed than stain'd with salt water 68

Ant If but one of his pockets could speak, would it not say he lies?

Seb Ay, or very falsely pocket up his report

Gon Methinks, our garments are now as fresh as when we put them on first in Afric, at the marriage of the king's fair daughter Clamibel to the King of Tunis 75

Seb 'Twas a sweet marriage, and we prosper well in our return.

Adr Tunis was never graced before with such a paragon to their queen

Gon Not since widow Dido's time 80

Ant Widow! a pox o' that! How came that widow in? Widow Dido!

Seb What if he had said, widower Æneas too? Good Lord, how you take it! 84

Adr Widow Dido, said you? you make me study of that she was of Carthage, not of Tunis

Gon This Tunis, sir, was Carthage

Adr Carthage? 88

Gon I assure you, Carthage

Ant His word is more than the miraculous harp

Seb He hath rais'd the wall, and houses too Ant What impossible matter will he make easy next?

Seb I think he will carry this island home in his pocket, and give it his son for an apple 96

Ant And, sowing the kernels of it in the sea, bring forth more islands

Alon Ay?

Ant Why, in good time 100

Gon [To ALON] Sir, we were talking that our garments seem now as fresh as when we were at Tunis at the marriage of your daughter, who is now queen 104

Ant And the rarest that e'er came there

Seb Bate, I beseech you, widow Dido

Ant O' widow Dido, 'av, widow Dido

Gon Is not, sir, my doublet as fresh as the first day I wore it? I mean, in a sort 109

Ant That sort was well fish'd for Gon When I wore it at your daughter's marriage? 112

Alon You cram these words into mine ears, against

The stomach of my sense Would I had never Married my daughter there! for, coming thence,

My son is lost, and, in my rate, she too, 116

Who is so far from Italy remov'd,
I ne'er again shall see her O thou, mine heir

Of Naples and of Milan! what strange fish Hath made his meal on thee?

Fran Sir, he may live 120

I saw him beat the surges under him,
And ride upon their backs he trod the water,

Whose enmity he flung aside, and breast'd
The surge most swollen that met him his bold
head 124

'Bove the contentious waves he kept, and oar'd Himself with his good arms in lusty stroke

To the shore, that o'er his wave-worn basis bow'd
As stooping to relieve him. I not doubt 128

He came alive to land.

Alon

Seb Sir, you may thank yourself for this great loss,

That would not bless our Europe with your daughter,

But rather lose her to an African, 132

Where she at least is banish'd from your eye,
Who hath cause to wet the grief on't.

Alon Prithee, peace

Seb You were kneel'd to and importun'd otherwise

By all of us, and the fair soul herself 136

Weigh'd between loathness and obedience, at Which end o' the beam should bow We have lost your son,

I fear, for ever Milan and Naples have More widows in them of this business' making, Than we bring men to comfort them the fault's 141

Your own

Alon So is the dearest of the loss

Gon My lord Sebastian,
The truth you speak doth lack some gentleness

And time to speak it in, you rub the sore, 145

When you should bring the plaster

Seb Very well

Ant And most chirurgically

Gon It is foul weather in us all, good sir 148

When you are cloudy

Seb Foul weather?

Ant Very foul

Gon Had I plantation of this isle, my lord,—

Ant He'd sow't with nettle-seed

Seb Or docks, or mallows

Gon And were the king on't, what would I do?

Seb 'Scape being drunk for want of wine 153

Gon I' the commonwealth I would by contraries

Execute all things, for no kind of traffic
Would I admit, no name of magistrate, 156

Letters should not be known, riches, poverty,
And use of service, none, contract, succession,

Bourn, bound of land, tithe, vineyard, none, 160

No use of metal, corn, or wine, or oil,

No occupation, all men idle, all,

And women too, but innocent and pure,
No sovereignty,—

Seb Yet he would be king on't

Ant The latter end of his commonwealth forgets the beginning 165

Gon All things in common nature should produce

Without sweat or endeavour treason, felony, Sword, pike, knife, gun, or need of any engine,

Would I not have, but nature should bring forth, 169

Of its own kind, all foison, all abundance,
To feed my innocent people

Seb No marrying 'mong his subjects? 172

Ant None, man, all idle, whores and knaves

Gon I would with such perfection govern, sir,
To excel the golden age

Seb Save his majesty!

Ant Long live Gonzalo!

Gon. And,—do you mark me, sir? 176
Alon Prithce, no more thou dost talk nothing to me

Gon I do well believe your highness, and did it to minister occasion to these gentlemen, who are of such sensible and nimble lungs that they always use to laugh at nothing

Ant 'Twas you we laugh'd at 183
Gon. Who in this kind of merry fooling am nothing to you, so you may continue and laugh at nothing still Ant What a blow was there given!

Seb An it had not fallen flat-long 188
Gon You are gentlemen of brave mettle you would lift the moon out of her sphere, if she would continue in it five weeks without changing 192

Enter ARIEL, invisible, playing solemn music

Seb We would so, and then go a-bat-fowling Ant Nay, good my lord, be not angry
Gon No, I warrant you, I will not adventure my discretion so weakly Will you laugh me asleep, for I am very heavy? 197

Ant Go sleep, and hear us
[All sleep but ALON, SEB, and ANT]
Alon What! all so soon asleep! I wish mine eyes

Would, with themselves, shut up my thoughts
 I find 200
 They are inclin'd to do so

Seb Please you, sir,
 Do not omit the heavy offer of it
 It seldom visits sorrow, when it doth
 It is a comforter

Ant We two, my lord, 204
 Will guard your person while you take your rest,
 And watch your safety

Alon. Thank you Wondrous heavy [ALONSO sleeps Exit ARIEL]
Seb What a strange drowsiness possesses them!

Ant It is the quality o' the climate Seb Why 208
 Doth it not then our eyelids sink? I find not Myself dispos'd to sleep

Ant Nor I my spirits are nimble
 They fell together all, as by consent, They dropp'd, as by a thunder-stroke What might, 212

Worthy Sebastian? O! what might?—No more —
 And yet methinks I see it in thy face, What thou should'st be The occasion speaks thee, and

My strong imagination sees a crown 216 Dropping upon thy head

Seb What! art thou waking?
Ant Do you not hear me speak?

Seb I do, and surely,
 It is a sleepy language, and thou speak'st
 Out of thy sleep What is it thou didst say? 220
 This is a strange repose, to be asleep
 With eyes wide open, standing, speaking, moving,
 And yet so fast asleep.

Ant. Noble Sebastian, 223

Thou let'st thy fortunes sleep—dierather, wink'st Whiles thou art waking

Seb Thou dost snore distinctly There's meaning in thy snores

Ant I am more serious than my custom you Must be so too, if heed me, which to do 228 Trebles thee o'er

Seb Well, I am standing water
Ant I'll teach you how to flow

Seb Do so to ebb, Hereditary sloth instructs me

Ant O! 231
 If you but knew how you the purpose cherish
 Whiles thus you mock it! how, in stripping it,
 You more invest it! Ebbing men, indeed,
 Most often do so near the bottom run
 By their own fear or sloth

Seb Prithce, say on 236
 The setting of thine eye and cheek proclaim
 A matter from thee, and a birth indeed
 Which throes thee much to yield.

Ant Thus, sir:
 Although this lord of weak remembrance, thus
 Who shall be of as little memory 241
 When he is earth'd, hath here almost persuaded,—

For he's a spirit of persuasion, only Professes to persuade,—the king, his son's alive,
 'Tis as impossible that he's undrown'd 245
 As he that sleeps here swims

Seb I have no hope
 That he's undrown'd

Ant O! out of that 'no hope'
 What great hope have you! no hope that way is Another way so high a hope that even 249
 Ambition cannot pierce a wink beyond, But doubts discovery there Will you grant

with me

That Ferdinand is drown'd?

Seb He's gone.
Ant Then tell me 252
 Who's the next heir of Naples?

Seb Claribel.
Ant She that is Queen of Tunis, she that dwells

Ten leagues beyond man's life, she that from Naples

Can have no note, unless the sun were post— 256
 The man i' th' moon's too slow—till new-born chins

Be rough and razorable she that, from whom?
 We all were sea-swallow'd, though some cast
 again,

And by that destiny to perform an act 260
 Whereof what's past is prologue, what to come In yours and my discharge

Seb What stuff is this!—How say you?
 'Tis true my brother's daughter's Queen of Tunis;
 So is she heir of Naples, 'twixt which regions
 There is some space

Ant A space whose every cubit
 Seems to cry out, 'How shall that Claribel 266 Measure us back to Naples?—Keep in Tunis,
 And let Sebastian wake!—Say, this were death That now hath seiz'd them, why, they were no worse

Than now they are There be that can rule
 Naples
 As well as he that sleeps, lords that can prate
 As amply and unnecessarily 272
 As this Gonzalo, I myself could make A chough of as deep chat O, that you bore
 The mind that I do! what a sleep were this For your advancement! Do you understand me?

Seb Methinks I do
Ant And how does your content Tender your own good fortune?

Seb I remember 278
 You did supplant your brother Prospero

Ant True
 And look how well my garments sit upon me,
 Much feater than before, my brother's servants
 Were then my fellows, now they are my men

Seb But, for your conscience,— 283
Ant Ay, sir, where lies that? if it were a kibe,

'Twould put me to my slipper, but I feel not
 This deity in my bosom twenty consciences, That stand 'twixt me and Milan, candied be they,
 And melt ere they molest! Here lies your brother, 288

No better than the earth he lies upon,
 If he were that which now he's like, that's dead, Whom I, with this obedient steel,—three inches of it,—

Can lay to bed for ever, whiles you, doing thus,
 To the perpetual wink for aye might put 293
 This ancient morsel, this Sir Prudence, who Should not upbraid our course For all the rest, They'll take suggestion as a cat laps milk, 296 They'll tell the clock to any business that We say befits the hour

Seb Thy case, dear friend,
 Shall be my precedent as thou got'st Milan, I'll come by Naples. Draw thy sword one stroke Shall free thee from the tribute which thou pay'st,
 And I the king shall love thee.

Ant Draw together,
 And when I rear my hand, do you the like, 303
 To fall it on Gonzalo

Seb O! but one word. [They converse apart]

Music Re-enter ARIEL, invisible

Ari My master through his art foresees the danger

That you, his friend, are in, and sends me forth—
 For else his project dies—to keep thee living

[Sings in GONZALO'S ear]

While you here do snoring lie, Open-eyed Conspiracy 308

His time doth take,
 If of life you keep a care,
 Shake off slumber, and beware
 Awake! awake! 312

Ant Then let us both be sudden.
Gon Now, good angels Preserve the king! [They wake]

Alon Why, how now! ho, awake! Why are you drawn? 316

Wherefore this ghastly looking?

Gon What's the matter?

Seb Whiles we stood here securing your repose,

Even now, we heard a hollow burst of bellowing
 Like bulls, or rather lions, did't not wake you?
 It struck mine ear most terribly

Alon I heard nothing
Ant O! 'twas a din to fright a monster's ear,
 To make an earthquake sure it was the roar
 Of a whole herd of lions

Alon Heard you thus, Gonzalo? 324 Gon Upon mine honour, sir, I heard a humming,

And that a strange one too, which did awake me
 I shak'd you, sir, and cry'd, as mine eyes open'd,
 I saw their weapons drawn—there was a noise,
 That's verily 'Tis best we stand upon our guard, Or that we quit this place let's draw our weapons

Alon Lead off this ground, and let's make further search

For my poor son 332
Gon Heavens keep him from these beasts!

For he is, sure, i' the island

Alon Lead away [Exit with the others] Ari Prospero my lord shall know what I have done

So, king, go safely on to seek thy son. [Exit]

SCENE II—Another Part of the Island

Enter CALIBAN, with a burden of wood
 A noise of thunder heard

Cal All the infections that the sun sucks up From bogs, fens, flats, on Prosper fall, and make him

By inch-meal a disease! His spirits hear me, And yet I needs must curse But they'll nor pinch,

Fright me with urchin-shows, pitch me i' the mire,

Nor lead me, like a firebrand, in the dark
 Out of my way, unless he bid 'em, but 8

For every trifle are they set upon me
 Sometime like apes, that mow and chatter at me And after bite me, then like hedge-hogs, which Lie tumbling in my bare-foot way and mount Their pricks at my foot-fall, sometime am I 12

All wound with adders, who with cloven tongues
 Do hiss me into madness—

Enter TRINCULO

Lo now! lo!

Here comes a spirit of his, and to torment me
 For bringing wood in slowly I'll fall flat, 16
 Perchance he will not mune me

Trin Here's neither bush nor shrub to bear off any weather at all, and another storm brewing, I hear it sing i' the wind yond same black cloud, yond huge one, looks like a foul bombard that would shed his liquor. If it should thunder as it did before, I know not where to hide my head yond same cloud cannot choose but fall by painfuls—What have we here? a man or a fish? Dead or alive? A fish! he smells like a fish, a very ancient and fish-like smell, a kind of not of the newest Poor-John. A strange fish!
 Were I in England now,—as once I was,—and had but this fish painted, not a holiday fool there but would give a piece of silver there would this monster make a man, any strange beast there makes a man. When they will not give a dolt to relieve a lame beggar, they will lay out ten to see a dead Indian. Legg'd like a man! and his fins like arms! Warm, o' my troth! I do now let loose my opinion, hold it no longer, this is no fish, but an islander, that hath lately suffered by a thunderbolt [Thunder] Alas! the storm is come again my best way is to creep under his gaberdine, there is no other shelter hereabout misery acquaints a man with strange bedfellows I will here shroud till the dregs of the storm be past 44

Enter STEPHANO, singing, a bottle in his hand

Ste I shall no more to sea, to sea,

Here shall I die a shore —

This is a very scurvy tune to sing at a man's funeral

Well, here's my comfort

[Drinks]

The master, the swabber the boatswain and I, 49

The gunner and his mate,

Lov'd Mall, Meg, and Marian and Margery 52

But none of us car'd for Kate,

For she had a tongue with a tang,

Would cry to a sailor 'Go hang!

She lov'd not the savour of tar nor of pitch,

Yet a tailor might scratch her where-e'er she did itch 57

Then to sea, boys and let her go hang.

This is a scurvy tune too but here's my comfort. [Drinks]

Cal Do not torment me O!

Ste What's the matter? Have we devils here? Do you put tricks upon us with savages and men of Ind? Ha! I have not 'scaped drowning, to be afraid now of your four legs, for it hath been said, As proper a man as ever went on four legs cannot make him give ground and it shall be said so again while Stephano breathes at's nostrils

Cal The spirit torments me O! 68

Ste This is some monster of the isle with four legs, who hath got, as I take it, an ague. Where the devil should he learn our language? I will give him some relief, if it be but for that if I can recover him and keep him tame and get to Naples with him, he's a present for any emperor that ever trod on neat's-leather 75

Cal Do not torment me, prithee I'll bring my wood home faster Ste He's in his fit now and does not talk after the wisest. He shall taste of my bottle if he have never drunk wine afore it will go near to remove his fit If I can recover him, and keep him tame, I will not take too much for him he shall pay for him that hath him, and that soundly 84

Cal Thou dost me yet but little hurt, thou wilt anon, I know it by thy trembling now Prosper works upon thee 87

Ste Come on your ways open your mouth, here is that which will give language to you, cat Open your mouth this will shake your shaking, I can tell you, and that soundly [gives CALIBAN drink] you cannot tell who's your friend, open your chaps again

Trin I should know that voice it should be—but he is drowned, and these are devils O! defend me 96

Ste Four legs and two voices, a most delicate monster! His forward voice now is to speak well of his friend, his backward voice is to utter foul speeches, and to detract. If all the wine in my bottle will recover him, I will help his ague Come Amen! I will pour some in thy other mouth

Trin Stephano! 104

Ste Doth thy other mouth call me? Mercy! mercy! This is a devil, and no monster I will leave him I have no long spoon.

Trin Stephano!—if thou beest Stephano, touch me, and speak to me, for I am Trinculo —be not afraid—thy good friend Trinculo 110

Ste If thou beest Trinculo, come forth I'll pull thee by the lesser legs if any be Trinculo's legs, these are they Thou art very Trinculo indeed! How cam'st thou to be the siege of this moon-calf? Can he vent Trinculos? 115

Trin I took him to be killed with a thunder-stroke. But art thou not drowned, Stephano? I hope now thou art not drowned Is the storm overblown? I hid me under the dead moon-calf's gaberdine for fear of the storm And art thou living, Stephano? O Stephano! two Neapolitans 'scaped! 122

Ste Prithee, do not turn me about my stomach is not constant

Cal [Aside] These be fine things an if they be not sprites

That's a brave god and bears celestial liquor I will kneel to him 127

Ste How didst thou 'scape? How cam'st thou hither? swear by this bottle, how thou cam'st hither I escaped upon a butt of sack, which the sailors heaved overboard, by this bottle! which I made of the bark of a tree with mine own hands, since I was cast ashore 133

Cal I'll swear upon that bottle, to be thy true subject, for the liquor is not earthly Ste Here swear then, how thou escapedst.

Trin Swam ashore, man, like a duck I can swim like a duck, I'll be sworn 138

Ste Here, kiss the book [gives TRINCULO drink] Though thou canst swim like a duck, thou art made like a goose 141

Trin O Stephano! hast any more of this?

Ste The whole butt, man my cellar is in a rock by the seaside, where my wine is hid. How now, moon-calf! how does thine ague? 146

Cal Hast thou not dropped from heaven?

Ste Out o' the moon, I do assure thee, I was the man in the moon, when time was

Cal I have seen thee in her, and I do adore thee, my mistress showed me thee, and thy dog, and thy bush. 152

Ste Come, swear to that, kiss the book, I will furnish it anon with new contents, swear

Trin By this good light, this is a very shallow monster—I am afraid of him!—a very weak monster —The man i' the moon! a most poor credulous monster! —Well drawn, monster, in good sooth.

Cal I'll show thee every fertile inch o' the island, 160

And I will kiss thy foot I prithee, be my god

Trin By this light, a most perfidious and drunken monster when his god's asleep, he'll rob his bottle 164

Cal I'll kiss thy foot I'll swear myself thy subject

Ste Come on then, down, and swear

Trin I shall laugh myself to death at this puppy-headed monster A most scurvy monster! I could find in my heart to beat him, — 169

Ste Come, kiss

Trin But that the poor monster's in drink an abominable monster! 172

Cal I'll shew thee the best springs, I'll pluck thee berries, I'll fish for thee, and get thee wood enough. A plague upon the tyrant that I serve!

I'll bear him no more sticks, but follow thee, Thou wondrous man 177

Trin A most ridiculous monster, to make a wonder of a poor drunkard!

Cal I prithee, let me bring thee where crabs grow, 180

And I with my long nails will dig thee pig-nuts, Show thee a jay's nest and instruct thee how

To snare the numble marmozet, I'll bring thee To clust'ring filberts, and sometimes I'll get thee

Young scameles from the rock. Wilt thou go with me? 185

Ste I prithee now, lead the way, without any more talking —Trinculo, the king and all our company else being drowned, we will inherit here —Here, bear my bottle —Fellow Trinculo, we'll fill him by and by again 190

Cal Farewell master, farewell farewell, [Sings drunkenly]

Trin A howling monster, a drunken monster

Cal No more dams I'll make for fish; Nor fetch in firing

At requiring Nor scrape trenchering, nor wash dish, 196

Ban, 'Ban, Ca—Caliban, Has a new master—Get a new man.

Freedom, high-day! high-day, freedom! freedom! high-day, freedom! 200

Ste O brave monster! lead the way [Exeunt]

ACT III

SCENE I —Before PROSPERO's Cell

Enter FERDINAND, bearing a log

Fer There be some sports are painful, and their labour

Delight in them sets off some kinds of baseness Are nobly undergone, and most poor matters

Point to rich ends This my mean task 4

Would be as heavy to me as odious, but The mistress which I serve quickens what's dead

And makes my labours pleasures O! she is 7

Ten times more gentle than her father's crabbed,

And he's compos'd of harshness I must remove Some thousands of these logs and pile them up,

Upon a sore injunction my sweet mistress Weeps when she sees me work, and says such baseness 12

Had never like executor I forget But these sweet thoughts do even refresh my labours, Most busiest when I do it

Enter MIRANDA, and PROSPERO behind

Mira Alas! now, pray you, Work not so hard I would the lightning had 16

Burnt up those logs that you are enjoin'd to pile!

Pray, set it down and rest you when this burns, 'Twill weep for having wearied you My father

Is hard at study, pray now, rest yourself 20

He's safe for these three hours

Fer O most dear mistress, The sun will set, before I shall discharge

What I must strive to do

Mira If you'll sit down, I'll bear your logs the while Pray, give me

that, 24

I'll carry it to the pile

Fer No, precious creature I had rather crack my sinews, break my back,

Than you should such dishonour undergo, While I sit lazy by Mira It would become me 28

As well as it does you and I should do it With much more ease, for my good will is to it,

And yours it is against Pro [Aside] Poor worm! thou art infected This visitation shows it.

Mira You look wearily 32

Fer No, noble mistress, 'tis fresh morning with me

When you are by at night I do beseech you— Chiefly that I might set it in my prayers—

What is your name?

Mira Miranda.—O my father! 36

I have broke your hest to say so

Fer Admir'd Miranda! Indeed, the top of admiration, worth

What's dearest to the world! Full many a lady I have ey'd with best regard, and many a time 40

The harmony of their tongues hath into bondage Brought my too diligent ear for several virtues

Have I lik'd several women, never any With so full soul but some defect in her 44

Did quarrel with the noblest grace she ow'd, And put it to the foil but you, O you!

So perfect and so peerless, are created Of every creature's best,

Mira I do not know 48

One of my sex, no woman's face remember, Save, from my glass, mine own, nor have I seen

More that I may call men than you, good friend, And my dear father how features are abroad, 52

I am skill-less of, but, by my modesty,— The jewel in my dower,—I would not wish

Any companion in the world but you, Nor can imagination form a shape, 56

Besides yourself, to like of But I prattle

Something too wildly and my father's precepts
I therein do forget

Fer I am in my condition
A prince, Miranda, I do think, a king,— 60
I would not so!—and would no more endure

This wooden slavery than to suffer
The flesh-fly blow my mouth—Hear my soul speak—

The very instant that I saw you did 64
My heart fly to your service, there resides,
To make me slave to it, and for your sake
Am I this patient log-man.

Mira Do you love me?

Fer O heaven! O earth! bear witness to this sound, 68

And crown what I profess with kind event
If I speak true if hollowly, invert
What best is boded me to mischief! I, Beyond all limit of what else I' the world, 72
Do love, prize, honour you

Mira I am a fool
To weep at what I am glad of

Pro [Aside] Fair encounter
Of two most rare affections! Heavens rain grace

On that which breeds between them!

Fer Wherefore weep you? 76

Mira At mine unworthiness, that dare not offer

What I desire to give, and much less take What I shall die to want But this is trifling,
And all the more it seeks to hide itself 80
The bigger bulk it shows Hence, bashful cunning!

And prompt me, plam and holy innocence!
I am your wife, if you will marry me,
If not, I'll die your maid to be your fellow 84
You may deny me, but I'll be your servant
Whether you will or no

Fer My mistress, dearest,
And I thus humble ever

Mira My husband then? 88

Fer Ay, with a heart as willing As bondage e'er of freedom here's my hand Mira And mine, with my heart in't and now farewell

Till half an hour hence.

Fer A thousand thousand!

[Exeunt FER and MIR severally]

Pro So glad of this as they, I cannot be, 92
Who are surpris'd withal, but my rejoicing
At nothing can be more I'll to my book,
For yet, ere supper time, must I perform Much business appertaining [Exit]

SCENE II—Another Part of the Island

Enter CALIBAN, with a bottle, STEPHANO, and TRINCULO

Ste Tell not me—when the butt is out, we will drink water, not a drop before therefore bear up, and board 'em.—Servant-monster, drink to me 4

Trin Servant-monster! the folly of this island! They say there's but five upon this isle we are three of them, if th' other two be brained like us, the state totters 8

Ste Drink, servant-monster, when I bid thee thy eyes are almost set in thy head

Trin Where should they be set else? he were a brave monster indeed, if they were set in his tail 13

Ste My man-monster hath drowned his tongue in sack for my part, the sea cannot drown me, I swam, ere I could recover the shore, five-and-thirty leagues, off and on, by this light.
Thou shalt be my lieutenant, monster, or my standard 19

Trin Your lieutenant, if you list, he's no standard

Ste We'll not run, Monsieur monster

Trin Nor go neither but you'll lie, like dogs, and yet say nothing neither 24

Ste Moon-calf, speak once in thy life, if thou beest a good moon-calf

Cal How does thy honour? Let me lick thy shoe I'll not serve him, he is not valiant. 28

Trin Thou heest, most ignorant monster
I am in case to juggle a constable Why, thou deboshed fish thou, was there ever a man a coward that hath drunk so much sack as I to-day? Wilt thou tell a monstrous lie, being but half a fish and half a monster?

Cal Lo, how he mocks me! wilt thou let him, my lord? 36

Trin 'Lord' quoth he!—that a monster should be such a natural!

Cal Lo, lo, again! bite him to death, I prythee 40

Ste Trinculo, keep a good tongue in your head if you prove a mutineer, the next tree!
The poor monster's my subject, and he shall not suffer indignity 44

Cal I thank my noble lord Wilt thou be pleas'd

To hearken once again the suit I made thee?

Ste Marry, will I, kneel, and repeat it I will stand, and so shall Trinculo 48

Enter ARIEL, invisible

Cal As I told thee before, I am subject to a tyrant, a sorcerer, that by his cunning hath cheated me of the island

Ari Thou heest. 52

Cal Thou heest, thou jesting monkey thou;
I would my valiant master would destroy thee,
I do not lie

Ste Trinculo, if you trouble him any more in his tale, by this hand, I will supplant some of your teeth 58

Trin Why, I said nothing

Ste Mum then and no more.—[To CALI-BAN] Proceed

Cal I say, by sorcery he got this isle, From me he got it if thy greatness will,
Revenge it on him,—for, I know, thou dar'st,
But this thing dare not,— 63

Ste That's most certain

Cal Thou shalt be lord of it and I'll serv
thee

Ste How now shall this be compassed? Canst thou bring me to the party? 69

Cal Yea, yea, my lord I'll yield him thee asleep,

Where thou may'st knock a nail into his head

Ari Thou heest, thou canst not 72

Cal What a pied nunny's this! Thou scurvy patch!

I do beseech thy greatness, give him blows, And take his bottle from him when that's gone

He shall drink nought but brine, for I'll not show him 76

Where the quick freshes are Ste Trinculo, run into no further danger interrupt the monster one word further, and, by this hand, I'll turn my mercy out o' doors and make a stock-fish of thee 81

Trin Why what did I? I did nothing I'll go further off

Ste Didst thou not say he hed? 84

Ari Thou heest.

Ste Do I so? take thou that [Strikes TRIN] As you like this, give me the he another time

Trin I did not give thee the lie—Out o' your wits and hearing too?—A pox o' your bottle! this can sack and drinking do—A murmur on your monster, and the devil take your fingers! 92

Cal Ha, ha, ha!

Ste Now, forward with your tale—Prithce stand further off

Cal Beat him enough after a little time 96 I'll beat him too

Ste Stand further—Come, proceed

Cal Why, as I told thee, 'tis a custom with him

I' the afternoon to sleep there thou may'st brain him,

Having first seiz'd his books, or with a log 100 Batter his skull, or paunch him with a stake,

Or cut his wezand with thy knife Remember First to possess his books, for without them

He's but a sot, as I am, nor hath not 104

One spirit to command they all do hate him

As rootedly as I. Burn but his books,

He has brave utensils,—for so he calls them,—

Which, when he has a house, he'll deck withal

And that most deeply to consider is 109

The beauty of his daughter, he himself

Calls her a nonpareil I never saw a woman,

But only Sycorax my dam and she, 112

But she as far surpasseth Sycorax

As great'st does least.

Ste Is it so brave a lass?

Cal Ay, lord, she will become thy bed, I warrant,

And bring thee forth brave brood 116

Ste Monster, I will kill this man his daughter and I will be king and queen,—save our graces! and Trinculo and thyself shall be viceroys Dost thou like the plot, Trinculo? 120

Trin Excellent.

Ste Give me thy hand I am sorry I beat thee, but, while thou livest, keep a good tongue in thy head 124

Cal Within this half hour will he be asleep, Wilt thou destroy him then?

Ste Ay, on mine honour

Ari This will I tell my master

Cal Thou mak'st me merry I am full of pleasure 128

Let us be jocund will you troll the catch You taught me but while-ere?

Ste At thy request, monster, I will do reason, any reason Come on, Trinculo, let us sing 132

[Sings

Flout 'em and scout 'em, and scout 'em, and flout 'em

Thought is free

Cal That's not the tune

[ARIEL plays the tune on a Tabor and Pipe

Ste What is this same? 136

Trin This is the tune of our catch, played by the picture of Nobody

Ste If thou beest a man, show thyself in thy likeness if thou beest a devil, take't as thou list. 141

Trin O, forgive me my sins!

Ste He that dies pays all debts I defy thee —Mercy upon us! 144

Cal Art thou afraid?

Ste No, monster, not I

Cal Be not afraid the isle is full of noises, Sounds and sweet airs, that give delight, and hurt not 148

Sometimes a thousand twangling instruments Will hum about mine ears, and sometime voices,

That, if I then had wak'd after long sleep, Will make me sleep again and then, in dreaming

The clouds methought would open and show riches 153

Ready to drop upon me, that, when I wak'd I cried to dream again

Ste This will prove a brave kingdom to me, where I shall have my music for nothing

Cal When Prospero is destroyed

Ste That shall be by and by I remember the story 160

Trin The sound is going away let's follow it, and after do our work.

Ste Lead, monster, we'll follow—I would I could see this taborer! he lays it on. Wilt come?

Trin I'll follow, Stephano [Exeunt

SCENE III—Another Part of the Island

Enter ALONSO, SEBASTIAN, ANTONIO, GONZALO, ADRIAN, FRANCISCO, and others

Gon By'r lakin, I can go no further, sir, My old bones ache here's a maze trod indeed,

Through forth-rights, and meanders! by your patience,

I needs must rest me

Alon Old lord, I cannot blame thee, 4

Who am myself attach'd with weariness,

To the dulling of my spirits sit down, and rest.

Even here I will put off my hope, and keep it

No longer for my flatterer he is drown'd 8

Whom thus we stray to find, and the sea mocks

Our frustrate search on land Well, let him go

Ant [Aside to SEB] I am right glad that he's so out of hope
Do not, for one repulse, forego the purpose 12
That you resolv'd to effect

Seb [Aside to ANT] The next advantage
Will we take thoroughly

Ant [Aside to SEB] Let it be to-night,
For, now they are oppress'd with travel, they Will not, nor cannot, use such vigilance 16
As when they are fresh

Seb [Aside to ANT] I say to-night no more Solemn and strange music, and PROSPERO above, invisible Enter below several strange Shapes, bringing in a banquet they dance about it with gentle actions of salutation and, inviting the King, &c., to eat, they depart

Alon What harmony is this? my good friends, hark!

Gon Marvellous sweet music!
Alon Give us kind keepers, heavens! What were these? 20

Seb A living drollery Now I will believe
That there are unicorns, that in Arabia
There is one tree, the phoenix' throne, one phoenix
At this hour reigning there

Ant I'll believe both, 24
And what does else want credit, come to me,
And I'll besworn 'tis true travellers ne'er did lie, Though fools at home condemn them.

Gon If in Naples
I should report this now, would they believe me?
If I should say I saw such islanders,— 29
For, certes, these are people of the island,—
Who, though they are of monstrous shape, yet, note,

Their manners are more gentle-kind than of 32
Our human generation you shall find Many, nay, almost any

Pro [Aside] Honest lord, Thou hast said well, for some of you there present
Are worse than devils

Alon I cannot too much muse, 36
Such shapes, such gesture, and such sound, expressing,—

Although they want the use of tongue,—a kind Of excellent dumb discourse

Pro [Aside] Fraise in departing Fran They vanish'd strangely

Seb No matter, since 40
They have left their viands behind, for we have stomachs—

Will't please you to taste of what is here?
Alon Not I

Gon Faith, sir, you need not fear When we were boys,
Who would believe that there were mountaineers 44

Dew lapp'd like bulls, whose throats had hanging at them

Wallets of flesh? or that there were such men Whose heads stood in their breasts? which now we find

Each putter-out of five for one will bring us 48 Good warrant of

Alon I will stand to and feed, Although my last, no matter, since I feel
The best is past—Brother, my lord the duke, Stand to and do as we 52

Thunder and lightning Enter ARIEL like a harpy, claps his wings upon the table and, with a quaint device, the banquet vanishes

Ari You are three men of sin, whom Destiny—
That hath to instrument this lower world
And what is in't,—the never-surfeited sea 55
Hath caused to belch up you, and on this island Where man doth not inhabit, you 'mongst men Being most unfit to live I have made you mad, [Seeing ALON, SEB, &c., draw their swords

And even with such-like valour men hang and drown Their proper selves You fools! I and my fellows 60

Are ministers of fate the elements
Of whom your swords are temper'd, may as well Wound the loud winds, or with bemock'd-at stabs

Kill the still-closing waters, as diminish 64
One drowl that's in my plume, my fellow-ministers

Are like invulnerable If you could hurt,
Your swords are now too massy for your strengths,
And will not be uplifted But, remember,— 68
For that's my business to you,—that you three From Milan did supplant good Prospero, Expos'd unto the sea, which hath requit it, Hum and his innocent child for which foul deed 72

The powers, delaying, not forgetting, have Incens'd the seas and shores, yea, all the creatures,

Against your peace Thee of thy son, Alonso,
They have bereft, and do pronounce, by me, 76
Lingering perdition,—worse than any death
Can be at once,—shall step by step attend
You and your ways, whose wraths to guard you from— 79

Which here in this most desolate isle, else falls Upon your heads,—is nothing but heart-sorrow
And a clear life ensuing

He vanishes in thunder then, to soft music, enter the Shapes again, and dance with mocks and mows, and carry out the table

Pro [Aside] Bravely the figure of this harpy hast thou

Perform'd, my Ariel, a grace it had, devouring
Of my instruction hast thou nothing bated 85
In what thou hadst to say so, with good life
And observation strange, my meaner ministers Their several kinds have done My high charms
work, 88

And these mine enemies are all knit up
In their distractions they now are in my power,
And in these fits I leave them, while I visit Young Ferdinand,—whom they suppose 18 drown'd,—
And his and mine lov'd darling [Exit above] 92

Gon. 'T the name of something holy, sir, why stand you
In this strange stare?

Alon. O, it is monstrous! monstrous!
Methought the billows spoke and told me of it,
The winds did sing it to me, and the thunder,
That deep and dreadful organ-pipe, pronounc'd
The name of Prosper: it did bass my trespass Therefore my son i' th' ooze is bedded, and I I'll seek him deeper than e'er plummet sounded,
And with him there lie mudded. [Exit

Seb. But one fiend at a time,
I'll fight their legions o'er

Ant. I'll be thy second [Exeunt SEB and ANT

Gon. All three of them are desperate, their great guilt,

Like poison given to work a great time after,
Now 'gins to bite the spirits—I do beseech you That are of suppler joints, follow them swiftly
And hinder them from what this ecstasy May now v provoke them to

Adr. Follow, I pray you [Exeunt

ACT IV

SCENE I—Before PROSPERO'S Cell

Enter PROSPERO, FERDINAND, and MIRANDA

Pro. If I have too austere punish'd you,
Your compensation makes amends, for I Have given you here a third of mine own life,
Or that for which I live, whom once again
I tender to thy hand all thy vexations
Were but my trials of thy love, and thou Hast strangely stood the test here, afore Heaven,

I ratify this my rich gift O Ferdinand!
Do not smile at me that I boast her off,
For thou shalt find she will outstrip all praise,
And make it halt behind her

Fer. I do believe it Against an oracle

Pro. Then, as my gift and thine own acquisition Worthily purchas'd, take my daughter but
If thou dost break her virgin knot before
All sanctimonious ceremonies may
With full and holy rite be minister'd,
No sweet aspersion shall the heavens let fall
To make this contract grow, but barren hate,
Sour-ey'd disdain and discord shall bestrew
The union of your bed with weeds so loathly
That you shall hate it both therefore take heed,
As Hymen's lamps shall light you

Fer. As I hope
For quiet days, fair issue and long life,
With such love as 'tis now, the murkiest den,
The most opportune place, the strong'st suggestion
Our worser genius can, shall never melt
Mine honour into lust, to take away
The edge of that day's celebration
When I shall think, or Phœbus' steeds are founder'd,
Or Night kept chand below.

Pro. Then, as my gift and thine own acquisition Worthily purchas'd, take my daughter but
If thou dost break her virgin knot before
All sanctimonious ceremonies may
With full and holy rite be minister'd,
No sweet aspersion shall the heavens let fall
To make this contract grow, but barren hate,
Sour-ey'd disdain and discord shall bestrew
The union of your bed with weeds so loathly
That you shall hate it both therefore take heed,
As Hymen's lamps shall light you

Fer. As I hope
For quiet days, fair issue and long life,
With such love as 'tis now, the murkiest den,
The most opportune place, the strong'st suggestion
Our worser genius can, shall never melt
Mine honour into lust, to take away
The edge of that day's celebration
When I shall think, or Phœbus' steeds are founder'd,
Or Night kept chand below.

Pro. Fairly spoke
Sit then, and talk with her, she is thine own What, Ariel! my industrious servant Ariel! 33

Enter ARIEL

Ari. What would my potent master? here
I am

Pro. Thou and thy meaner fellows your last service

Did worthily perform, and I must use you
In such another trick Go bring the rabble, O'er whom I give thee power, here to this place Incite them to quick motion, for I must Bestow upon the eyes of this young couple
Some vanity of mine art it is my promise,
And they expect it from me

Ari. Presently?

Pro. Ay, with a twink

Ari. Before you can say, 'Come,' and 'Go,'
And breathe twice, and cry, 'so, so,'
Each one, tripping on his toe,
Will be here with mop and mow
Do you love me, master? no?

Pro. Dearly, my delicate Ariel. Do not approach Till thou dost hear me call.

Ari. Well, I conceive
Pro. Look, thou be true, do not give dalliance Too much the rein the strongest oaths are straw

To the fire i' the blood be more abstemious,
Or else good night your vow!

Fer. I warrant you, sir,
The white-cold virgin snow upon my heart
Abates the ardour of my liver

Pro. Well—
Now come, my Ariel! bring a corollary,
Rather than want a spirit appear, and pertly
No tongue! all eyes! be silent [Soft music

A Masque Enter IRIS

Iris. Ceres, most bounteous lady, thy rich leas

Of wheat, rye, barley, vetches, oats, and peas, Thy turfy mountains, where live nudding sheep,
And flat meads thatch'd with stover, them to keep,

Thy banks with pioned and twilled brims,
Which spongy April at thy best betrimms,
To make cold nymphs chaste crowns, and thy broom groves,

Whose shadow the dismissed bachelor loves,
Being lass-lorn, thy pole-clipt vineyard,
And thy sea-marge, sterile and rocky-hard,
Where thou thyself dost air the queen o' the sky,
Whose watery arch and messenger am I, Bids thee leave these, and with her sovereign
grace,

Here on this grass-plot, in this very place,
To come and sport, her peacocks fly amain!
Approach, rich Ceres, her to entertain.

Enter CERES

Cer. Hail, many-colour'd messenger, that ne'er

Dost disobey the wife of Jupiter,

Who with thy saffron wings upon my flowers
Diffusest honey-drops, refreshing showers
And with each end of thy blue bow dost crown
My bosky acres, and my unshrubb'd down, 81 Rich scarf to my proud earth, why hath thy queen Summon'd me hither, to this short-grass'd green?

Iris A contract of true love to celebrate, 84
And some donation freely to estate
On the bless'd levers.

Cer Tell me, heavenly bow,
If Venus or her son, as thou dost know,
Do now attend the queen? since they did plot
The means that dusky Dis my daughter got, 89
Her and her blind boy's scandal'd company
I have forsworn.

Iris Of her society
Be not afraid I met her deity 92
Cutting the clouds towards Paphos and her son Dove-drawn with her Here thought they to have done

Some wanton charm upon this man and maid, Whose vows are, that no bed rite shall be paid
Till Hymen's torch be lighted, but in vain 97
Mars's hot munion is return'd again,
Her waspish-headed son has broke his arrows, Swears he will shoot no more, but play with sparrows, 100

And be a boy right out Cer Highest queen of state, Great Juno comes, I know her by her gait

Enter JUNO

Jun How does my bounteous sister? Go with me
To bless this twain, that they may prosperous
be, 104
And honour'd in their issue

SONG

Jun Honour, riches, marriage blessing, Long continuance and increasing,
Hourly joys be still upon you!
Juno sings her blessings on you 108

Cer Earth's increase fison plenty Barns and garners never empty
Vines, with clust'ring bunches growing,
Plants with goodly burden bowing, 112
Spring come to you at the farthest
In the very end of harvest!
Scarcity and want shall shun you;
Ceres' blessing so is on you. 116

Fer This is a most majestic vision, and Harmonious charmingly May I be bold
To think these spirits?

Pro Spirits, which by mine art 120
I have from their confines call'd to enact My present fancies

Fer Let me live here ever.
So rare a wonder'd father and a wise,
Makes this place Paradise

[JUNO AND CERES whisper, and send IRIS on employment

Pro Sweet, now, silence! 124
Juno and Ceres whisper seriously,

There's something else to do hush, and be mute,
Or else our spell is marr'd Iris You nymphs, call'd Naiades, of the winding brooks, 128

With your sedg'd crowns, and ever-harmless looks,
Leave your crisp channels, and on this green land

Answer your summons Juno does command
Come, temperate nymphs, and help to celebrate
A contract of true love be not too late 133

Enter certain Nymphs

You sun-burn'd sucklemen, of August weary, Come hither from the furrow, and be merry Make holiday your rye-straw hats put on, 136
And these fresh nymphs encounter every one In country footing

Enter certain Reapers, properly habited they join with the Nymphs in a graceful dance towards the end whereof PROSPERO starts suddenly, and speaks after which, to a strange, hollow, and confused noise, they heavily vanish

Pro [Aside] I had forgot that foul conspiracy
Of the beast Caliban, and his confederates 140
Against my life the minute of their plot Is almost come,—[To the Spirits] Well done!
avoid, no more!
Fer This is strange your father's in some passion

That works him strongly

Mira Never till this day 144
Saw I him touch'd with anger so distemper'd Pro You do look, my son, in a mov'd sort,
As if you were dismay'd be cheerful, sir
Our revels now are ended These our actors, 148
As I foretold you, were all spirits and Are melted into air, into thin air

And, like the baseless fabric of this vision,
The cloud-capp'd towers, the gorgeous palaces,
The solemn temples, the great globe itself, 152
Yea, all which it inherit, shall dissolve
And, like this insubstantial pageant faded,
Leave not a rack behind We are such stuff 156
As dreams are made on, and our little life
Is rounded with a sleep—Sir, I am vex'd Bear with my weakness, my old brain is troubled Be not disturb'd with my infirmity 160
If you be pleas'd, retire into my cell
And there repose a turn or two I'll walk,
To still my beating mind

Fer Mira We wish your peace
[Exeunt]
Pro Come with a thought!—[To them] I thank thee Ariel, come! 164

Enter ARIEL

Ari Thy thoughts I cleave to What's thy pleasure?

Pro Spirit,

We must prepare to meet with Caliban Ari Ay, my commander, when I presented Ceres,

I thought to have told thee of it, but I fear'd 168
Lest I might anger thee

Pro Say again, where didst thou leave these varlets?

Ari I told you, sir, they were red-hot with drinking,

So full of valour that they smote the air 172

For breathing in their faces, beat the ground

For kissing of their feet, yet always bending

Towards their project Then I beat my tabor,

At which, like unback'd colts, they prick'd their ears, 176

Advanc'd their eyelids, lifted up their noses

As they smelt music so I charm'd their ears

That, calf-like, they my lowing follow'd through Toot'n d briars, sharp furzes, pricking goss and thorns, 180

Which enter'd their frail shins at last I left them

I' the filthy-mantled pool beyond your cell,

There dancing up to the chins, that the foul lake

O'erstunk their feet

Pro This was well done, my bird 184

Thy shape invisible retain thou still

The trumpety in my house, go bring it hither,

For stale to catch these thieves

Ari I go, I go [Exit]

Pro A devil, a born devil, on whose nature

Nurture can never stick, on whom my pains, 189

Humanely taken, are all lost, quite lost,

And as with age his body uglier grows,

So his mind cankers I will plague them all, 192

Even to roaring

Re-enter ARIEL, loaden with glistering apparel, &c

Come, hang them on this line

PROSPERO and ARIEL remain invisible Enter CALIBAN, STEPHANO, and TRINCULO, all wet

Cal Pray you, tread softly, that the blind mole may not

Hear a foot fall we now are near his cell 195

Ste Monster, your fairy, which you say is a harmless fairy, has done little better than played the Jack with us

Trin Monster, I do smell all horse-piss, at which my nose is in great indignation 200

Ste So is mine —Do you hear, monster? If I should take a displeasure against you, look you,—

Trin Thou wert but a lost monster

Cal Good my lord, give me thy favour still

Be patient, for the prize I'll bring thee to 205

Shall hoodwink this mischance therefore speak softly,

All's hush'd as midnight yet

Trin Ay, but to lose our bottles in the pool,— 209

Ste There is not only disgrace and dishonour in that, monster, but an infinite loss

Trin That's more to me than my wetting yet this is your harmless fairy, monster 213

Ste I will fetch off my bottle, though I be o'er ears for my labour

Cal Prithce, my king, be quiet Seest thou
here, 216

This is the mouth o' the cell. no noise, and enter

Do that good mischief, which may make this island

Thine own for ever, and I, thy Caliban,

For aye thy foot-licker 220

Ste Give me thy hand I do begin to have bloody thoughts

Trin O king Stephano! O peer! O worthy Stephano! look, what a wardrobe here is for
thee! 225

Cal Let it alone, thou fool, it is but trash

Trin O, ho, monster! we know what belongs to a frippery —O king Stephano! 228

Ste Put off that gown, Trinculo, by this hand, I'll have that gown

Trin Thy grace shall have it.

Cal The dropsy drown this fool! what do you mean 232

To dote thus on such luggage? Let's along,

And do the murder first if he awake,

From toe to crown he'll fill our skins with pinches, 236

Make us strange stuff

Ste Be you quiet, monster —Mistress line, is not this my jerkin? Now is the jerkin under the line now, jerkin, you are like to lose your hair and prove a bald jerkin 240

Trin Do, do we steal by line and level, an't like your grace

Ste I thank thee for that jest; here's a garment for't wit shall not go unrewarded while I am king of this country 'Steal by line and level,' is an excellent pass of pate, there's another garment for't 247

Trin Monster, come, put some line upon your fingers, and away with the rest

Cal I will have none on't we shall lose our time, 252

And all be turn'd to barnacles, or to apes

With foreheads villanous low

Ste Monster, lay-to your fingers help to bear this away where my hogshead of wine is, or I'll turn you out of my kingdom Go to, carry this Trin And this 256

Ste Ay, and this

A noise of hunters heard Enter divers Spirits, in shape of hounds, and hunt them about PROSPERO and ARIEL setting them on Pro Hey, Mountain, hey!

Ari Silver! there it goes, Silver!

Pro Fury, Fury! there, Tyrant, there! hark, hark! 260

[CAL, STE, and TRIN are driven out Go, charge my goblins that they grind their joints

With dry convulsions, shorten up their sinews

With aged cramps, and more pinch spotted make them

Then pard, or cat o' mountain

Ari Hark! they roar 264

Pro Let them be hunted soundly. At this hour

Lie at my mercy all mine enemies
 Shortly shall all my labours end, and thou Shalt have the air at freedom for a little, 268 Follow, and do me service [Exeunt

ACT V

SCENE I—Before the Cell of PROSPERO

Enter PROSPERO in his magic robes, and ARIEL

Pro Now does my project gather to a head
 My charms crack not, my spirits obey, and time Goes upright with his carriage How's the day?

Ari On the sixth hour, at which time, my lord, 4

You said our work should cease

Pro I did say so,
 When first I rais'd the tempest Say, my spirit,
 How fares the king and 's followers?

Ari Confin'd together
 In the same fashion as you gave in charge, 8
 Just as you left them all prisoners, sir,
 In the line-grove which weather-fends your cell,
 They cannot budge till your release The king,
 His brother, and yours, abide all three distracted, 12

And the remainder mourning over them, Brimful of sorrow and dismay, but chiefly Him, that you term'd, sir, 'The good old lord Gonzalo'

His tears run down his beard, like winter's drops From eaves of reeds, your charm so strongly works them, 17

That if you now beheld them, your affections
 Would become tender

Pro Dost thou think so, spirit?

Ari Mine would, sir, were I human

Pro And mine shall. 20

Hast thou, which art but air, a touch, a feeling Of their afflictions, and shall not myself,
 One of their kind, that relish all as sharply, Passion as they, be kindlier mov'd than thou art? 24

Though with their high wrongs I am struck to the quick,

Yet with my nobler reason 'gainst my fury Do I take part the rarer action is In virtue than in vengeance they being penitent, 28

The sole drift of my purpose doth extend Not a frown further Go, release them, Ariel My charms I'll break, their senses I'll restore,
 And they shall be themselves

Ari I'll fetch them, sir [Exit

Pro Ye elves of hills, brooks, standing lakes, and groves, 33

And ye, that on the sands with printless foot
 Do chase the ebbing Neptune and do fly him
 When he comes back, you demi-puppets, that 36
 By moonshine do the green sour ringlets make Whereof the ewe not bites, and you, whose pastime

Is to make midnight mushrooms, that rejoice
 To hear the solemn curfew, by whose aid,— 40
 Weak masters though ye be—I have bedimm'd

The noontide sun, call'd forth the mutinous winds,

And 'twixt the green sea and the azur'd vault
 Set roaring war to the dread-rattling thunder 44
 Have I given fire and rifted Jove's stout oak With his own bolt the strong-bas'd promontory Have I made shake, and by the spurs pluck'd up

The pine and cedar graves at my command 48
 Have wak'd their sleepers, op'd, and let them
 forth

By my so potent art But this rough magic I here abjure, and, when I have requir'd
 Some heavenly music,—which even now I do,—

To work mine end upon their senses that 53
 This airy charm is for, I'll break my staff,

Bury it certain fathoms in the earth,
 And, deeper than did ever plummet sound, 56
 I'll drown my book. [Solemn music

Re-enter ARIEL after him, ALONSO, with a frantic gesture, attended by GONZALO, SEBAS-TIAN and ANTONIO in like manner, attended by ADRIAN and FRANCISCO they all enter the circle which PROSPERO had made, and there stand charmed, which PROSPERO observing, speaks

A solemn air and the best comforter
 To an unsettled fancy, cure thy brains, Now useless, boil'd within thy skull! There stand, 60

For you are spell-stopp'd Holy Gonzalo, honourable man,

Mine eyes, even sociable to the show of thine,
 Fall fellowly drops The charm dissolves apace,
 And as the morning steals upon the night, 65

Melting the darkness, so their rising senses
 Begin to chase the ignorant fumes that mantle
 Their clearer reason—O good Gonzalo! 68

My true preserver, and a loyal sir
 To him thou follow'st, I will pay thy graces Home, both in word and deed—Most cruelly

Didst thou, Alonso, use me and my daughter 72
 Thy brother was a furtherer in the act,—

Thou'rt pinch'd for't now, Sebastian—Flesh and blood,

You, brother mine, that entertain'd ambition, Expell'd remorse and nature, who, with Sebastian,— 76

Whose inward pinches therefore are most strong,—

Would here have kill'd your king, I do forgive
 thee,

Unnatural though thou art!—Their understanding

Begins to swell, and the approaching tide 80
 Will shortly fill the reasonable shores

That now lie foul and muddy Not one of them

That yet looks on me, or would know me—
 Ariel,

Fetch me the hat and rapier in my cell— 84
 [Exit ARIEL.

I will discase me, and myself present,
 As I was sometime Milan—Quickly, spirit,

Thou shalt ere long be free

ARIEL re-enters, singing, and helps to attire PROSPERO

Ari Where the bee sucks, there suck I
In a cowslip's bell I lie
There I couch when owls do cry
On the bat's back I do fly
After summer merrily
Merrily, merrily shall I live now
Under the blossom that hangs on the bough

Pro Why, that's my dainty Ariel! I shall miss thee, But yet thou shalt have freedom,—so, so, so —
To the king's ship, invisible as thou art
There shalt thou find the manners asleep
Under the hatches, the master and the boat-swain

Being awake, enforce them to this place, 100
And presently, I prithee

Ari I drink the air before me, and return
Or e'er your pulse twice beat [Exit
Gon All torment, trouble, wonder, and amazement 104

Inhabits here some heavenly power guide us
Out of this fearful country!

Pro Behold, sir king,
The wronged Duke of Milan, Prospero
For more assurance that a living prince 108
Does now speak to thee, I embrace thy body,
And to thee and thy company I bid
A hearty welcome

Alon Where's thou beest he or no,
Or some enchanted trifle to abuse me, 112
As late I have been I not know thy pulse Beats, as of flesh and blood, and, since I saw thee,

Th' affliction of my mind amends, with which,
I fear a madness hold me thus must crave,—
An if this be at all—a most strange story 117
Thy dukedom I resign and do entreat Thou pardon me my wrongs —But how should Prospero

Be living, and be here?

Pro First, noble friend, 120 Let me embrace thine age, whose honour cannot

Be measur'd, or confin'd Gon Whether this be,
Or be not, I'll not swear

Pro You do yet taste
Some subtilties o' the isle, that will not let you Believe things certain —Welcome! my friends
all — 125

[Aside to SEB and ANT] But you, my brace of lords, were I so minded,

I here could pluck his highness' frown upon you,

And justify you traitors at this time 128
I will tell no tales

Seb [Aside] The devil speaks in him
Pro No

For you, most wicked sir, whom to call brother
Would even infect my mouth, I do forgive Thy rankest fault, all of them, and require 132
My dukedom of thee, which, perforce, I know, Thou must restore

Alon, If thou beest Prospero,

Give us particulars of thy preservation, How thou hast met us here, who three hours
since 136
Were wrack'd upon this shore, where I have lost,—

How sharp the point of this remembrance is!— My dear son Ferdinand

Pro I am woe for't, sir
Alon Irreparable is the loss, and patience Says it is past her cure

Pro I rather think 141
You have not sought her help, of whose soft
grace,

For the like loss I have her sovereign aid,
And rest myself content

Alon You the like loss! 144

Pro As great to me, as late, and, supportable To make the dear loss, have I means much weaker

Than you may call to comfort you, for I Have lost my daughter

Alon A daughter? 148

O heavens! that they were living both in Naples,
The king and queen there! that they were, I wish Myself were mudded in that oozy bed

Where my son lies When did you lose your daughter? 152

Pro In this last tempest I perceive, these lords

At this encounter do so much admire
That they devour their reason, and scarce think

Their eyes do offices of truth, their words 156 Are natural breath but, howsoever you have Been justled from your senses, know for certain

That I am Prospero and that very duke Which was thrust forth of Milan, who most strangely 160

Upon this shore, where you were wrack'd, was landed,

To be the lord on't No more yet of this,
For 'tis a chronicle of day by day,

Not a relation for a breakfast nor 164
Befitting this first meeting Welcome, sir,
This cell's my court here have I few attendants

And subjects none abroad pray you, look in My dukedom since you have given me again, 168

I will requite you with as good a thing,
At least bring forth a wonder, to content ye
As much as me my dukedom

The entrance of the Cell opens, and discovers FERDINAND and MIRANDA playing at chess

Mira Sweet lord, you play me false Fer No, my dearest love, 172

I would not for the world Mira Yes, for a score of kingdoms you should wrangle,

And I would call it fair play
Alon If this prove 176

A vision of the island, one dear son Shall I twice lose

Seb A most high miracle!
Fer Though these seas threaten, they are merciful

I have curs'd them without cause [Kneels to ALON]

Alon Now, all the blessings
Of a glad father compass thee about! 180
Arise, and say how thou cam'st here

Mira O, wonder!
How many goodly creatures are there here!
How beauteous mankind is! O brave new world,
That has such people in't!

Pro 'Tis new to thee 184 Alon What is this maid, with whom thou wast at play?

Your eld'st acquaintance cannot be three hours
Is she the goddess that hath sever'd us,
And brought us thus together?

Fer Sir, she is mortal, 188
But by immortal Providence she's mine,
I chose her when I could not ask my father For his advice, nor thought I had one. She Is daughter to this famous Duke of Milan, 192
Of whom so often I have heard renown, But never saw before, of whom I have Receiv'd a second life, and second father
This lady makes him to me.

Alon I am hers 196
But O! how oddly will it sound that I Must ask my child forgiveness!

Pro There, sir, stop
Let us not burden our remembrances
With a heaviness that's gone

Gon I have only wept, 200 Or should have spoke ere this. Look down, you gods,

And on this couple drop a blessed crown,
For it is you that have chalk'd forth the way
Which brought us hither!

Alon I say, Amen, Gonzalo! 204 Gon Was Milan thrust from Milan, that his issue

Should become kings of Naples? O, rejoice Beyond a common joy, and set it down
With gold on lasting pillars. In one voyage 208 Did Claribel her husband find at Tunis,
And Ferdinand, her brother, found a wife Where he himself was lost, Prospero his dukedom

In a poor isle, and all of us ourselves, 212
When no man was his own

Alon [To FER. and MIRA] Give me your hands

Let grief and sorrow still embrace his heart
That doth not wish you joy!

Gon Be it so. Amen!
Re-enter ARIEL, with the Master and Boatswain amazedly following

O look, sir! look, sir! here are more of us. 216
I prophesied, if a gallows were on land, This fellow could not drown.—Now, blasphemy,

That swear'st grace o'erboard, not an oath on shore?

Hast thou no mouth by land? What is the news?
Boats The best news is that we have safely found 221

Our king and company the next, our ship,— Which but three glasses since we gave out split,—

Is tight and yare and bravely rigg'd as when We first put out to sea

Ari [Aside to PRO] Sir, all this service 225
Have I done since I went

Pro [Aside to ARI] My tricky spirit!
Alon These are not natural events, they strengthen

From strange to stranger—Say, how came you hither? 228

Boats If I did think, sir, I were well awake, I'd strive to tell you. We were dead of sleep,
And,—how we know not,—all clapp'd under hatches,

Where, but even now, with strange and several noises 232

Of roaring, shrieking, howling, jingling chains,
And mo diversity of sounds, all horrible,
We were awak'd, straightway, at liberty

Where we, in all her trim, freshly beheld 236
Our royal, good, and gallant ship, our master Capering to eye her on a trice, so please you, Even in a dream, were we divided from them,
And were brought moping hither

Ari [Aside to PRO] Was't well done? 240
Pro [Aside to ARI] Bravely, my diligence!
Thou shalt be free

Alon This is as strange a maze as e'er mertrod,
And there is in this business more than nature
Was ever conduct of some oracle 244

Must rectify our knowledge Pro Sir, my liege,
Do not infest your mind with beating on The strangeness of this business at pick'd leisure

Which shall be shortly, single I'll resolve you,— Which to you shall seem probable,—of every These happen'd accidents till when, be cheerful,
And think of each thing well.—[Aside to ARI]

Come hither, spirit,
Set Caliban and his companions free, 252 Untie the spell [Exit ARI] How fares my gracious sir?

There are yet missing of your company
Some few odd lads that you remember not.

Re-enter ARIEL, driving in CALIBAN, STEPHANO, and TRINCULO, in their stolen apparel

Ste Every man shift for all the rest, and let no man take care for himself, for all is but fortune.—Coragio! bully-monster, Coragio!

Trin If these be true spies which I wear in my head, here's a goodly sight. 260

Cal O Setebos! these be brave spirits, indeed How fine my master is! I am afraid
He will chastise me

Seb Ha, ha!
What things are these, my lord Antonio? 264
Will money buy them?

Ant Very like, one of them
Is a plain fish, and, no doubt, marketable.

Pro Mark but the badges of these men, my
lords,

Then say, if they be true.—This mis-shapen
knave— 268
His mother was a witch, and one so strong

That could control the moon, make flows and ebbs,
 And deal in her command without her power
 These three have robb'd me, and this demi-devil,—
 For he's a bastard one,—had plotted with them
 To take my life two of these fellows you Must know and own, this thing of darkness I Acknowledge mine

Cal I shall be pinch'd to death 276
Alon Is not this Stephano, my drunken butler?

Seb He is drunk now where had he wine?

Alon And Trinculo is reeling-ripe where should they Find this grand liquor that hath gilded them?
 How cam'st thou in this pickle? 281

Trin I have been in such a pickle since I saw you last that, I fear me, will never out of my bones I shall not fear fly-blowing 284

Seb Why, how now, Stephano!

Ste O' touch me not I am not Stephano, but a cramp

Pro You'd be king of the isle, sirrah?

Ste I should have been a sore one then 288

Alon This is a strange thing as e'er I look'd on

Pro He is as disproportion'd in his manners As in his shape—Go, sirrah, to my cell, Take with you your companions as you look
 To have my pardon, trim it handsomely 293

Cal Ay that I will, and I'll be wise hereafter,

And seek for grace What a thrice-double ass Was I, to take this drunkard for a god, 296
 And worship thus dull fool!

Pro Go to, away!

Alon Hence, and bestow your luggage where you found it

Seb Or stole it, rather

[Exeunt CAL, STE, and TRIN]
Pro Sir, I invite your highness and your train 300

To my poor cell, where you shall take your rest
 For this one night, which—part of it—I'll waste
 With such discourse as, I not doubt, shall make it Go quick away, the story of my life 304
 And the particular accidents gone by Since I came to this isle and in the morn I'll bring you to your ship, and so to Naples,
 Where I have hope to see the nuptial 308
 Of these our dear-beloved solemniz'd,
 And thence retire me to my Milan, where Every third thought shall be my grave

[Alon I long
 To hear the story of your life, which must 312
 Take the ear strangely]

Pro I'll deliver all,
 And promise you calm seas, auspicious gales
 And sail so expeditious that shall catch Your royal fleet far off—[Aside to ARI] My Ariel, chuck, 316

That is thy charge then to the elements Be free, and fare thou well!—Please you, draw near [Exeunt]

EPILOGUE

Spoken by PROSPERO

Now my charms are all o'erthrown,
 And what strength I have is mine own
 Which is most faint now 'tis true,
 I must be here confin'd by you 4
 Or sent to Naples Let me not,
 Since I have my dukedom got
 And pardon'd the deceiver dwell 8
 In this bare island by your spell,
 But release me from my bands
 With the help of your good hands.
 Gentle breath of yours my sails 12
 Must fill or else my project fails,
 Which was to please Now I want Spirits to enforce art to enchant,
 And my ending is despair 16
 Unless I be reliev'd by prayer
 Which pierces so that it assaults Mercy itself and frees all faults
 As you from crimes would pardon'd be,
 Let your indulgence set me free 20

SCENE I — Verona An open place

Enter VALENTINE and PROTEUS

Val Cease to persuade, my loving Proteus Home-keeping youth have ever homely wits Were't not affection chains thy tender days
 To the sweet glances of thy honour'd love, 4
 I rather would entreat thy company
 To see the wonders of the world abroad
 Than, living dully sluggardiz'd at home,
 Wear out thy youth with shapeless idleness 8
 But since thou lov'st, love still, and thrive therein,

 Even as I would when I to love begin Pro Wilt thou be gone? Sweet Valentine, adieu!

Think on thy Proteus, when thou haply seest 12
 Some rare note-worthy object in thy travel Wish me partaker in thy happiness

When thou dost meet good hap, and in thy danger,

If ever darger do environ thee, 16

Commend thy grievance to my holy prayers,
 For I will be thy beadsman, Valentine

Val And on a love-book pray for my success Pro Upon some book I love I'll pray for
 thee 20

Val That's on some shallow story of deep
 love,

How young Leander cross'd the Hellespont

Pro That's a deep story of a deeper love, 24
 For he was more than over shoes in love

Val 'Tis true, for you are over boots in love,
 And yet you never swum the Hellespont

Pro Over the boots? nay, give me not the boots

Val No, I will not, for it boots thee not

Pro What? 28

Val To be in love, where scorn is bought with groans,

Coy looks with heart-sore sighs, one fading moment's mirth

With twenty watchful, weary, tedious nights
 If haply won, perhaps a hapless gain, 37

If lost, why then a grievous labour won However, but a folly bought with wit,

Or else a wit by folly vanquished

Pro So, by your circumstance, you call me fool. 36

Val So, by your circumstance, I fear you'll prove

Pro 'Tis love you cavil at I am not Love

Val Love is your master, for he masters you,
 And he that is so yoked by a fool, 40

Methinks, should not be chronicle'd for wise
 Pro Yet writers say as in the sweetest bud

The eating canker dwells, so eating love
 Inhabits in the finest wits of all. 44

Val And writers say, as the most forward bud

Is eaten by the canker ere it blow,
 Even so by love the young and tender wit

Is turned to folly, blasting in the bud, 48 Losing his verdure even in the prime,

And all the fair effects of future hopes
 But wherefore waste I time to counsel thee

That art a votary to fond desire? 52
 Once more adieu! my father at the road

Expects my coming, there to see me shipp'd Pro And thither will I bring thee, Valentine

Val Sweet Proteus, no, now let us take our leave 56

To Milan let me hear from thee by letters
 Of thy success in love, and what news else

Betideth here in absence of thy friend,
 And I likewise will visit thee with mine 60

Pro All happiness bechance to thee in Milan!

Val As much to you at home! and so, farewell. [Exit

Pro He after honour hunts, I after love
 He leaves his friends to dignify them more, 64

I leave myself, my friends and all, for love
 Thou, Julia, thou hast metamorphos'd me,—

Made me neglect my studies, lose my time,
 War with good counsel, set the world at nought,

Made wit with musing weak, heart sick with thought. 69

Enter SPEED

Speed Sir Proteus, save you! Saw you my master?

Pro But now he parted hence, to embark for Milan

Speed Twenty to one, then, he is shipp'd already. 72

And I have play'd the sheep, in losing him
 Pro Indeed, a sheep doth very often stray,

As if the shepherd be a while away

Speed You conclude that my master is a shepherd, then, and I a sheep? 77

Pro I do

Speed Why then my horns are his horns, whether I wake or sleep 80

Pro A silly answer, and fitting well a sheep

Speed This proves me still a sheep

Pro True, and thy master a shepherd

Speed Nay, that I can deny by a circumstance 85

Pro It shall go hard but I'll prove it by another

Speed The shepherd seeks the sheep, and not the sheep the shepherd, but I seek my master, and my master seeks not me therefore I am no sheep 91

Pro The sheep for fodder follow the shepherd, the shepherd for food follows not the sheep, thou 'or wages followest thy master, thy master for wages follows not thee therefore thou art a sheep 96

Speed Such another proof will make me cry 'baa'

Pro But, dost thou hear? gavest thou my letter to Julia? 100

Speed Ay, sir I, a lost mutton, gave your letter to her, a laced mutton, and she, a laced mutton, gave me, a lost mutton, nothing for my labour 104

Pro Here's too small a pasture for such store of muttons

Speed If the ground be overcharged, you were best stick her 108

Pro Nay, in that you are astray, 'twere best pound you

Speed Nay, sir, less than a pound shall serve me for carrying your letter 112

Pro You mistake I mean the pound,—a pinfold

Speed From a pound to a pin? fold it over and over,

'Tis threefold too little for carrying a letter to your lover 116

Pro But what said she? [SPEED nods] Did she nod?

Speed Ay

Pro Nod, ay? why, that's noddy 120

Speed You mistook, sir I say she did nod, and you ask me if she did nod, and I say, Ay

Pro And that set together is—noddy

Speed Now you have taken the pains to set it together, take it for your pains 125

Pro No, no, you shall have it for bearing the letter

Speed Well, I perceive I must be fain to bear with you 129

Pro Why, sir, how do you bear with me?

Speed Marry, sir, the letter very orderly, having nothing but the word 'noddy' for my pains 133

Pro Beshrew me, but you have a quick wit

Speed And yet it cannot overtake your slow purse 136

Pro Come, come, open the matter in brief what said she?

Speed Open your purse, that the money and the matter may be both at once delivered 140

Pro Well, sir, here is for your pains [giving him money] What said she?

Speed Truly, sir, I think you'll hardly win her from her? 145

Speed Sir, I could perceive nothing at all from her, no, not so much as a ducat for delivering your letter And being so hard to me that brought your mind, I fear she'll prove as hard to you in telling your mind Give her no token but stones, for she's as hard as steel

Pro What! said she nothing? 152

Speed No, not so much as 'Take this for thy pains' To testify your bounty, I thank you you have testerned me, in requital whereof, henceforth carry your letters yourself And so, sir, I'll commend you to my master 157

Pro Go, go, be gone, to save your ship from wrack,

Which cannot perish, having thee aboard, Being destin'd to a drier death on shore — 160

[Exit SPEED]

I must go send some better messenger

I fear my Julia would not deign my lines, Receiving them from such a worthless post 163

[Exit]

SCENE II.—The Same The Garden of JULIA'S House

Enter JULIA and LUCETTA.

Jul But say, Lucetta, now we are alone, Wouldst thou then counsel me to fall in love?

Luc Ay, madam, so you stumble not unheedfully

Jul Of all the fair resort of gentlemen That every day with parle encounter me, In thy opinion which is worthiest love? 4

Luc Please you repeat their names, I'll show my mind

According to my shallow simple skill 8

Jul What think'st thou of the fair Sir Eglamour?

Luc As of a knight well-spoken, neat and fine,

But, were I you, he never should be mine 11

Jul What think'st thou of the rich Mercatio?

Luc Well of his wealth, but of himself, so so

Jul What think'st thou of the gentle Proteus?

Luc Lord, Lord! to see what folly reigns in us!

Jul How now! what means this passion at his name? 16

Luc Pardon, dear madam, 'tis a passing shame

That I, unworthy body as I am, Should censure thus on lovely gentlemen Jul Why not on Proteus, as of all the rest?

Luc Then thus,—of many good I think him best 21

Jul Your reason?

Luc I have no other but a woman's reason I think him so because I think him so 24

Jul And wouldst thou have me cast my love on him?
Luc Ay, if you thought your love not cast away
Jul Why, he, of all the rest hath never mov'd me Luc Yet he of all the rest, I think, best loves ye 28 Jul His little speaking shows his love but small Luc Fire that's closest kept burns most of all Jul They do not love that do not show their love
Luc O! they love least that let men know their love 32
Jul I would I knew his mind
Luc Peruse this paper, madam. [Gives a letter]
Jul 'To Julia'—Say from whom?
Luc That the contents will show
Jul Say, say, who gave it thee?
Luc Sir Valentine's page, and sent, I think, from Proteus 36
He would have given it you, but I, being in the way, Did in your name receive it, pardon the fault, I pray Jul Now, by my modesty, a goodly broker! Dare you presume to harbour wanton lines? 40
To whisper and conspire against my youth?
Now, trust me, 'tis an office of great worth
And you an officer fit for the place
There, take the paper see it be return'd, 44
Or else return no more into my sight.
Luc To plead for love deserves more fee than hate Jul Will ye be gone?
Luc That you may ruminate. [Exit]
Jul And yet I would I had o'erlook'd the letter 48
It were a shame to call her back again
And pray her to a fault for which I chid her.
What fool is she, that knows I am a maid,
And would not force the letter to my view! 52 Since maids, in modesty, say 'No' to that Which they would have the profferer construe 'Ay' Fie, fie! how wayward is this foolish love
That, like a testy babe, will scratch the nurse 56
And presently all humbled kiss the rod!
How churlishly I chid Lucetta hence,
When willingly I would have had her here
How angrily I taught my brow to frown, 60
When inward joy enforc'd my heart to smile
My penance is, to call Lucetta back
And ask remission for my folly past.
What ho! Lucetta!

Re-enter LUCETTA.

Luc What would your ladyship? 64
Jul Is it near dinner-time?
Luc I would it were,
That you might kill your stomach on your meat
And not upon your maid.

Jul What is't that you took up so gingerly?
Luc Nothing 69
Jul Why didst thou stoop, then?
Luc To take a paper up
That I let fall
Jul And is that paper nothing?
Luc Nothing concerning me 72
Jul Then let it lie for those that it concerns
Luc Madam, it will not lie where it concerns, Unless it have a false interpreter
Jul Some love of yours hath writ to you in rime 76
Luc That I might sing it, madam, to a tune Give me a note your ladyship can set Jul As little by such toys as may be possible, Best sing it to the tune of 'Light o' Love' 80
Luc It is too heavy for so light a tune Jul Heavy! belike it hath some burden, then?
Luc Ay, and melodious were it, would you sing it Jul And why not you?
Luc I cannot reach so high 84
Jul Let's see your song [Taking the letter]
How now, minion!
Luc Keep tune there still, so you will sing it out
And yet methinks, I do not like this tune Jul You do not?
Luc No, madam, it is too sharp 88
Jul You, minion, are too saucy
Luc Nay, now you are too flat
And mar the concord with too harsh a descant
There wanteth but a mean to fill your song 92
Jul The mean is drown'd with your unruly bass Luc Indeed, I bid the base for Proteus
Jul This babble shall not henceforth trouble me Here is a coil with protestation!— 96 [Tears the letter]
Go, get you gone, and let the papers lie
You would be fingering them, to anger me
Luc She makes it strange, but she would be best pleas'd
To be so anger'd with another letter. [Exit]
Jul Nay, would I were so anger'd with the same! 102
O hateful hands, to tear such loving words!
Injurious wasps, to feed on such sweet honey
And kill the bees that yield it with your stings!
I'll kiss each several paper for amends 105
Look, here is writ 'kind Julia' unkind Julia!
As in revenge of thy ingratitude,
I throw thy name against the bruising stones,
Trampling contemptuously on thy disdain 109
And here is writ 'love-wounded Proteus' Poor wounded name! my bosom, as a bed
Shall lodge thee till thy wound be thoroughly heal'd, 112
And thus I search it with a sovereign kiss
But twice or thrice was 'Proteus' written down
Be calm, good wind, blow not a word away
Till I have found each letter in the letter, 116 Except mine own name, that some whirlwind bear
Unto a ragged, fearful-hanging rock,

And throw it thence into the raging sea!
 Lo! here in one line is his name twice writ, 120
 'Poor forlorn Proteus, passionate Proteus,
 To the sweet Julia' —that I'll tear away,
 And yet I will not, sith so prettily
 He couples it to his complaining names 124
 Thus will I fold them one upon another Now kiss, embrace, contend, do what you will

Re-enter LUCETTA

Luc Madam,
 Dinner is ready, and your father stays 128
Jul Well, let us go Luc What! shall these papers lie like tell-tales here?
Jul If you respect them, best to take them up Luc Nay, I was taken up for laying them
 down, 132
 Yet here they shall not lie, for catching cold
Jul I see you have a month's mind to them Luc Ay, madam, you may say what sights you see,
 I see things too, although you judge I wink 136
Jul Come, come, will't please you go?
[Exeunt]

SCENE III — The Same A Room in ANTONIO'S House

Enter ANTONIO and PANTHINO

Ant Tell me, Panthino, what sad talk was
 that Wherewith my brother held you in the cloister?
Pant 'Twas of his nephew Proteus, your son.
Ant Why, what of him?
Pant He wonder'd that your lordship 4
 Would suffer him to spend his youth at home, While other men, of slender reputation,
 Put forth their sons to seek preferment out Some to the wars, to try their fortune there, 8
 Some to discover islands far away,
 Some to the studious universities.
 For any or for all these exercises
 He said that Proteus your son was meet, 12
 And did request me to importune you
 To let him spend his time no more at home,
 Which would be great impeachment to his age,
 In having known no travel in his youth. 16 Ant Nor need'st thou much importune me to that Whereon this month I have been hammering
 I have consider'd well his loss of time,
 And how he cannot be a perfect man,
 Not being tried and tutor'd in the world Experience is by industry achiev'd 20
 And perfected by the swift course of time
 Then tell me, whither were I best to send him?
Pant I think your lordship is not ignorant
 How his companion, youthful Valentine, 26 Attends the emperor in his royal court
Ant I know it well Pant 'Twere good, I think, your lordship sent him thither
 There shall he practise tilts and tournaments, Hear sweet discourse, converse with noblemen,
 And be in eye of every exercise 32
 Worning his youth and nobleness of birth

Ant I like thy counsel, well hast thou advis'd
 And that thou mayst perceive how well I like it
 The execution of it shall make known 36
 Even with the speediest expedition
 I will dispatch him to the emperor's court Pant To-morrow, may it please you, Don Alphonso
 With other gentlemen of good esteem, 40
 Are journeying to salute the emperor
 And to commend their service to his will Ant Good company, with them shall Proteus go 43
 And in good time — now will we break with him

Enter PROTEUS

Pro Sweet love! sweet lines! sweet life!
 Here is her hand, the agent of her heart,
 Here is her oath for love, her honour's pawn
 O! that our fathers would applaud our loves, 48
 To seal our happiness with their consents!
 O heavenly Julia!
Ant How now! what letter are you reading
 there?
Pro May't please your lordship, 'tis a word or two 52
 Of commendations sent from Valentine, Deliver'd by a friend that came from him Ant Lend me the letter, let me see what news Pro There is no news, my lord, but that he writes 56
 How happily he lives, how well belov'd
 And daily graced by the emperor Wishing me with him, partner of his fortune
Ant And how stand you affected to his wish?
Pro As one relying on your lordship's will 61
 And not depending on his friendly wish Ant My will is something sorted with his wish Muse not that I thus suddenly proceed, 64
 For what I will, I will, and there an end
 I am resolv'd that thou shalt spend some time
 With Valentine in the emperor's court
 What maintenance he from his friends receives,
 Like exhibition thou shalt have from me 69
 To-morrow be in readiness to go Excuse it not, for I am peremptory Pro My lord, I cannot be so soon provided Please you, deliberate a day or two 73 Ant Look, what thou want'st shall be sent after thee
 No more of stay, to-morrow thou must go
 Come on, Panthino you shall be employ'd 76
 To hasten on his expedition [Exeunt ANTONIO and PANTHINO] Pro Thus have I shunn'd the fire for fear of burning,
 And drench'd me in the sea, where I am drown'd
 I fear'd to show my father Julia's letter, 80
 Lest he should take exceptions to my love,
 And with the vantage of mine own excuse Hath he excepted most against my love
 O! how this spring of love resembleth 84
 The uncertain glory of an April day,
 Which now shows all the beauty of the sun,
 And by and by a cloud takes all away!

Re-enter FANTHINO

Pant Sir Proteus, your father calls for you
 He is in haste, therefore, I pray you, go 89
Pro Why, this it is my heart accords thereto,
 And yet a thousand times it answers, 'no'
 [Exeunt]

ACT II

SCENE I—Milan A Room in the DUKE'S Palace

Enter VALENTINE and SPEED

Speed Sir, your glove [Offering a glove Val Not mine, my gloves are on.
Speed Why, then this may be yours, for this is but one

Val Ha! let me see ay, give it me, it's mine, Sweet ornament that decks a thing divine! 4 Ah Silvia! Silvia!

Speed [Calling] Madam Silvia! Madam Silvia!

Val How now, sirrah?
Speed She is not within hearing, sir
Val Why, sir, who bade you call her?

Speed Your worship, sir, or else I mistook.
Val Well, you'll still be too forward 12

Speed And yet I was last chidden for being too slow

Val Go to, sir Tell me, do you know
 Madam Silvia? 16

Speed She that your worship loves?
Val Why, how know you that I am in love?

Speed Marry, by these special marks first, you have learned, like Sir Proteus, to wreath your arms, like a malecontent, to relish a love-song, like a robin-redbreast, to walk alone, like one that had the pestilence, to sigh, like a schoolboy that had lost his A B C, to weep, like a young wench that had burned her grandam, to fast, like one that takes diet, to watch, like one that fears robbing, to speak puling, like a beggar at Hallowmas You were wont, when you laughed, to crow like a cock, when you walked, to walk like one of the lions, when you fasted, it was presently after dinner, when you looked sadly, it was for want of money and now you are metamorphosed with a mistress, that, when I look on you, I can hardly think you my master

Val Are all these things perceived in me? 36
Speed They are all perceived without ye Val Without me? they cannot Speed Without you? nay, that's certain, for, without you were so simple, none else would but you are so without these follies, that these follies are within you and shine through you like the water in an urnal, that not an eye that sees you but is a physician to comment on your malady 45

Val But tell me, dost thou know my lady Silvia?

Speed She that you gaze on so as she sits at supper? 49

Val Hast thou observed that? even she, I mean.

Speed Why, sir, I know her not. 52 Val Dost thou know her by my gazing on her, and yet knowest her not?

Speed Is she not hard-favoured, sir?

Val Not so fair, boy, as well-favoured 56

Speed Sir, I know that well enough

Val What dost thou know?

Speed That she is not so fair, as, of you, well-favoured. 60

Val I mean that her beauty is exquisite, but her favour infinite

Speed That's because the one is painted and the other out of all count 64

Val How painted? and how out of count?

Speed Marry, sir, so painted to make her fair, that no man counts of her beauty

Val How esteemest thou me? I account of her beauty 69

Speed You never saw her since she was deformed

Val How long hath she been deformed? 72

Speed Ever since you loved her

Val I have loved her ever since I saw her, and still I see her beautiful

Speed If you love her you cannot see her 76

Val Why?

Speed Because Love is blind O! that you had mine eyes, or your own eyes had the lights they were wont to have when you chid at Sir Proteus for going ungartered! 81

Val What should I see then?

Speed Your own present folly and her passing deformity for he, being in love, could not see to garter his hose, and you, being in love, cannot see to put on your hose 86

Val Belike, boy, then, you are in love, for last morning you could not see to wipe my shoes

Speed True, sir, I was in love with my bed. I thank you, you swinged me for my love, which makes me the bolder to chide you for yours 93

Val In conclusion, I stand affected to her

Speed I would you were set, so your affection would cease 96

Val Last night she enjoined me to write some lines to one she loves.

Speed And have you? 100

Val I have

Speed Are they not lamely writ?

Val No, boy, but as well as I can do them.
 Peace! here she comes

Enter SILVIA.

Speed [Aside] O excellent motion! O exceeding puppet! now will he interpret to her

Val Madam and mistress, a thousand good morrows 107

Speed [Aside] O! give ye good even here's a million of manners

Sil Sir Valentine and servant, to you two thousand.

Speed [Aside] He should give her interest, and she gives it him

Val As you enjoin'd me, I have writ your letter

Unto the secret nameless friend of yours,
Which I was much unwilling to proceed in 116
But for my duty to your ladyship [Gives a letter Sil I thank you, gentle servant. 'Tis very clearly done

Val Now, trust me, madam, it came hardly off, 120

For, being ignorant to whom it goes
I writ at random, very doubtfully

Sil Perchance you think too much of so much pains?

Val No, madam, so it stead you, I will write, Please you command, a thousand times as much
And yet— 126

Sil A pretty period! Well, I guess the sequel,
And yet I will not name it, and yet I care not,
And yet take this again, and yet I thank you,
Meaning henceforth to trouble you no more 130

Speed [Aside] And yet you will, and yet another yet

Val What means your ladyship? do you not like it? 132

Sil Yes, yes the lines are very quaintly writ,
But since unwillingly, take them again

Nay, take them [Gives back the letter
Val Madam, they are for you

Sil Ay, ay, you writ them, sir, at my request,
But I will none of them, they are for you 137
I would have had them writ more movingly

Val Please you, I'll write your ladyship another

Sil And when it's writ, for my sake read it over 140

And if it please you, so, if not, why, so Val If it please me, madam, what then?

Sil Why, if it please you, take it for your labour 143

And so, good morrow, servant [Exit

Speed O jest unseen, inscrutable, invisible, As a nose on a man's face, or a weathercock on a steeple!

My master sues to her, and she hath taught her sutor,

He being her pupil, to become her tutor 148
O excellent device! was there ever heard a better,

That my master, being scribe, to himself should write the letter?

Val How now, sir! what are you reasoning with yourself?

Speed Nay, I was riming 'tis you that have the reason 152

Val To do what?

Speed To be a spokesman from Madam Silvia

Val To whom?

Speed To yourself. Why, she woos you by a figure 156

Val What figure?

Speed By a letter, I should say

Val Why, she hath not writ to me?

Speed What need she, when she hath made you write to yourself? Why, do you not perceive the jest? 162

Val No, believe me

Speed No believing you, indeed sir But did you perceive her earnest?

Val She gave me none, except an angry word.

Speed Why, she hath given you a letter

Val That's the letter I writ to her friend 168

Speed And that letter hath she delivered, and there an end

Val I would it were no worse

Speed I'll warrant you, 'tis as well 172

'For often have you writ to her, and she, in modesty,

Or else for want of idle time, could not again reply,

Or fearing else some messenger that might her mind discover,

Herself hath taught her love himself to write unto her lover' 176

All this I speak in print, for in print I found it Why muse you, sir? 'tis dinner-time

Val I have dined 179

Speed Ay, but hearken, sir though the chameleon Love can feed on the air, I am one that am nourished by my victuals and would fain have meat O! be not like your mistress, be moved, be moved [Exeunt

SCENE II — Verona A Room in JULIA'S House

Enter PROTEUS and JULIA.

Pro Have patience, gentle Julia

Jul I must, where is no remedy

Pro When possibly I can, I will return

Jul If you turn not, you will return the sooner 4

Keep this remembrance for thy Julia's sake [Gives him a ring

Pro Why, then, we'll make exchange here, take you this [Gives her another

Jul And seal the bargain with a holy kiss

Pro Here is my hand for my true constancy,
And when that hour o'erslips me in the day 9

Wherein I sigh not, Julia, for thy sake,
The next ensuing hour some foul mischance

Torment me for my love's forgetfulness! 12
My father stays my coming, answer not

The tide is now nay, not thy tide of tears, That tide will stay me longer than I should Julia farewell [Exit JULIA

What! gone without a word? 16

Ay, so true love should do it cannot speak, For truth hath better deeds than words to grace it.

Enter PANTHINO

Pant Sir Proteus, you are stay'd for

Pro Go, I come, I come

Alas! this parting strikes poor lovers dumb 20
[Exeunt

SCENE III — The Same A Street.

Enter LAUNCE, leading a dog

Launce Nay, 'twill be this hour ere I have done weeping all the kind of the Launces have this very fault I have received my proportion, like the prodigious son, and am going with Sir Proteus to the imperial's court I think Crab my dog be the sourest-natured dog that lives my mother weeping, my father wailing, my sister crying, our maid howling, our cat wringing her hands, and all our house in a great perplexity, yet did not this cruel-hearted cur shed one tear He is a stone, a very pebble stone, and has no more pity in him than a dog, a Jew would have wept to have seen our parting why, my grandam, having no eyes, look you, wept herself blind at my parting Nay, I'll show you the manner of it. This shoe is my father, no, this left shoe is my father no, no, this left shoe is my mother, nay, that cannot be so neither —yes, it is so, it is so, it hath the worser sole This shoe, with the hole in, is my mother, and thus my father A vengeance on't! there 'tis now, sir, this staff is my sister, for, look you, she is as white as a lily and as small as a wand this hat is Nan, our maid I am the dog, no, the dog is himself, and I am the dog,—O! the dog is me, and I am myself ay, so, so Now come I to my father, 'Father, your blessing,' now should not the shoe speak a word for weeping now should I kiss my father, well, he weeps on Now come I to my mother,—O, that she could speak now like a wood woman! Well, I kiss her, why, there 'tis, here's my mother's breath up and down Now come I to my sister, mark the moan she makes Now the dog all this while sheds not a tear nor speaks a word, but see how I lay the dust with my tears 36

Enter PANTHINO

Pant Launce, away, away, aboard! thy master is shipped, and thou art to post after with oars What's the matter? why weepest thou, man? Away, ass! you'll lose the tide if you tarry any longer 41

Launce It is no matter if the tied were lost, for it is the unkindest tied that ever any man tied 44

Pant What's the unkindest tied?
Launce Why, he that's tied here, Crab, my dog 47

Pant Tut, man, I mean thou'lt lose the flood, and, in losing the flood, lose thy voyage, and, in losing thy voyage, lose thy master, and, in losing thy master, lose thy service, and, in losing thy service,—Why dost thou stop my mouth? 52

Launce For fear thou shouldst lose thy tongue. 56

Pant Where should I lose my tongue?

Launce In thy tale. 56

Pant In thy tail!

Launce Lose the tide, and the voyage, and the master, and the service, and the tied! Why, man, if the river were dry, I am able to fill it with my tears, if the wind were down, I could drive the boat with my sighs. 64

Pant Come, come away, man, I was sent to call thee 64

Launce Sir, call me what thou darest.

Pant Wilt thou go?

Launce. Well, I will go

[Exeunt

SCENE IV — Milan. A Room in the DUKE'S Palace

Enter VALENTINE, SILVIA, THURIO, and SPEED

Sil Servant!

Val Mistress?

Speed Master, Sir Thurio frowns on you.

Val Ay, boy, it's for love

Speed Not of you

Val Of my mistress, then

Speed. 'Twere good you knock'd him.

Sil Servant, you are sad

Val Indeed, madam, I seem so

Thu Seem you that you are not?

Val Haply I do

Thu So do counterfeiters.

Val So do you

Thu What seem I that I am not?

Val Wise

Thu What instance of the contrary?

Val Your folly

Thu And how quote you my folly?

Val I quote it in your jerkin.

Thu My jerkin is a doublet

Val Well, then, I'll double your folly

Thu How?

Sil What, angry, Sir Thurio! do you change colour?

Val Give him leave, madam, he is a kind of chameleon

Thu That hath more mind to feed on your blood than live in your air

Val You have said, sir

Thu Ay, sir, and done too, for this time.

Val I know it well, sir you always end ere you begin

Sil A fine volley of words, gentlemen, and quickly shot off

Val 'Tis indeed, madam, we thank the giver

Sil Who is that, servant?

Val Yourself, sweet lady, for you gave the fire Sir Thurio borrows his wit from your ladyship's looks, and spends what he borrows kindly in your company

Thu Sir, if you spend word for word with me, I shall make your wit bankrupt.

Val I know it well, sir you have an exchange of words, and, I think, no other treasure to give your followers, for it appears by their bare liveries that they live by your bare words

Sil No more, gentlemen, no more Here comes my father

Enter DUKE.

Duke Now, daughter Silvia, you are hard beset.

Sil Valentine, your father's in good health What say you to a letter from your friends Of much good news?

Val My lord, I will be thankful To any happy messenger from thence.

Duke Knew ye Don Antonio, your countryman?

Val Ay, my good lord, I know the gentleman

To be of worth and worthy estimation,
And not without desert so well reputed.

Duke Hath he not a son?

Val Ay, my good lord, a son that well deserves 60

The honour and regard of such a father

Duke You know him well?

Val I know him as myself, for from our infancy

We have convers'd and spent our hours together 64

And though myself have been an idle truant,

Omitting the sweet benefit of time

To clothe mine age with angel-like perfection,

Yet hath Sir Proteus,—for that's his name,— 68

Made use and fair advantage of his days

His years but young, but his experience old,

His head unmellow'd, but his judgment ripe,

And, in a word,—for far behind his worth 72

Come all the praises that I now bestow,—

He is complete in feature and in mind

With all good grace to grace a gentleman.

Duke Beshrew me, sir, but if he make this 76

good,

He is as worthy for an empress' love

As meet to be an emperor's counsellor

Well, sir, this gentleman is come to me

With commendation from great potentates, 80

And here he means to spend his time awhile

I think, 'tis no unwelcome news to you

Val Should I have wish'd a thing, it had 84 been he

Duke Welcome him then according to his 84

worth

Silvia I speak to you, and you, Sir Thurio —

For Valentine, I need not cite him to it

I'll send him hither to you presently [Exit 88

Val This is the gentleman I told your lady-ship

Had come along with me, but that his mistress

Did hold his eyes lock'd in her crystal looks

Sil Behke that now she hath enfranchis'd 88

them

Upon some other pawn for fealty 92

Val Nay, sure, I think she holds them prisoners still

Sil Nay, then he should be blind, and, being 92 blind,

How could he see his way to seek out you?

Val Why, lady, Love hath twenty pairs of 94

eyes

Thur They say that Love hath not an eye 97

at all

Val To see such lovers, Thurio, as yourself

Upon a homely object Love can wink

Sil Have done, have done Here comes the 100

gentleman

Enter PROTEUS

Val Welcome, dear Proteus! Mistress, I beseech you,

Confirm his welcome with some special favour

Sil His worth is warrant for his welcome 103

hither,

If this be he you oft have wish'd to hear from.

Val Mistress, it is sweet lady, entertain him

To be my fellow-servant to your ladyship

Sil Too low a mistress for so high a servant

Pro Not so, sweet lady, but too mean a 108 servant

To have a look of such a worthy mistress

Val Leave off discourse of disability

Sweet lady, entertain him for your servant

Pro My duty will I boast of, nothing else 112

Sil And duty neve. yet did want his need

Servant, you are welcome to a worthless mistress

Pro I'll die on him that says so but yourself

Sil That you are welcome?

Pro That you are worthless 116

Enter a Servant

Ser Madam, my lord your father would speak with you

Sil I wait upon his pleasure [Exit Servant]

Come, Sir Thurio,

Go with me Once more, new servant, welcome

I'll leave you to confer of home-affairs, 120

When you have done, we look to hear from you

Pro We'll both attend upon your ladyship

[Exeunt SILVIA, THURIO, and SPEED]

Val Now, tell me, how do all from whence you came?

Pro Your friends are well and have them 124 much commended

Val And how do yours?

Pro

I left them all in health

Val How does your lady and how thrives 128 your love?

Pro My tales of love were wont to weary you,

I know you joy not in a love-discourse

Val Ay, Proteus, but that life is alter'd now 132

I have done penance for contemning love,

Whose high imperious thoughts have punish'd 136

me

With bitter fasts, with penitential groans, 132

With nightly tears and daily heart-sore sighs,

For, in revenge of my contempt of love,

Love hath chas'd sleep from my enthralled eyes,

And made them watchers of mine own heart's 140

sorrow

O, gentle Proteus! Love's a mighty lord,

And hath so humbled me as I confess,

There is no woe to his correction,

Nor to his service no such joy on earth 144

Now no discourse, except it be of love,

Now can I break my fast, dine, sup and sleep,

Upon the very naked name of love

Pro Enough, I read your fortune in your eye

Was this the idol that you worship so? 148

Val Even she, and is she not a heavenly 152

saint?

Pro No, but she is an earthly paragon

Val Call her divine.

Pro

I will not flatter her 148

Val O! flatter me, for love delights in 152

praises

Pro When I was sick you gave me bitter pills,

And I must minister the like to you

Val Then speak the truth by her, if not 152

divine,

Yet let her be a principality,
Sovereign to all the creatures on the earth.

Pro Except my mistress

Val Sweet, except not any,
Except thou wilt except against my love 156

Pro Have I not reason to prefer mine own?

Val And I will help thee to prefer her too

She shall be dignified with this high honour,—

To bear my lady's train, lest the base earth 160

Should from her vesture chance to steal a kiss,

And, of so great a favour growing proud,

Disdain to root the summer-swelling flower,

And make rough winter everlastingly 164

Pro Why, Valentine, what braggardism is

this?

Val Pardon me, Proteus all I can is nothing

To her whose worth makes other worthies

nothing

She is alone

Pro Then, let her alone 168

Val Not for the world why, man, she is mine own,

And I as rich in having such a jewel

As twenty seas, if all their sand were pearl,

The water nectar, and the rocks pure gold 172

Forgive me that I do not dream on thee,

Because thou see'st me dote upon my love

My foolish rival, that her father likes

Only for his possessions are so huge, 176

Is gone with her along, and I must after,

For love, thou know'st, is full of jealousy

Pro But she loves you?

Val Ay, and we are betroth'd nay, more,

our marriage-hour, 180

With all the cunning manner of our flight,

Determin'd of how I must climb her window,

The ladder made of cords, and all the means

Plotted and 'greed on for my happiness 184

Good Proteus, go with me to my chamber,

In these affairs to aid me with thy counsel

Pro Go on before, I shall inquire you forth

I must unto the road, to disembark 188

Some necessities that I needs must use,

And then I'll presently attend you

Val Will you make haste?

Pro I will [Exit VALENTINE

Even as one heat another heat expels, 193

Or as one nail by strength drives out another,

So the remembrance of my former love

Is by a newer object quite forgotten 196

Is it mine eye, or Valentine's praise,

Her true perfection, or my false transgression,

That makes me reasonless to reason thus?

She's fair, and so is Julia that I love,— 200

That I did love, for now my love is thaw'd,

Which, like a waxen image 'gainst a fire,

Bears no impression of the thing it was Methinks my zeal to Valentine is cold, 204

And that I love him not as I was wont

O! but I love his lady too-too much,

And that's the reason I love him so little

How shall I dote on her with more advice, 208

That thus without advice begin to love her?

'Tis but her picture I have yet beheld,

And that hath dazzled my reason's light,

But when I look on her perfections, 212

There is no reason but I shall be blind

If I can check my erring love, I will,

If not, to compass her I'll use my skill [Exit

SCENE V —The Same A Street

Enter SPEED and LAUNCE

Speed Launce! by mine honesty, welcome to Milan!

Launce Forswear not thyself, sweet youth, for I am not welcome I reckon this always that a man is never undone till he be hanged, nor never welcome to a place till some certain shot be paid and the hostess say, 'Welcome!' 7

Speed Come on, you madcap, I'll to the alehouse with you presently, where, for one shot of five pence, thou shalt have five thousand welcomes But, sirrah, how did thy master part with Madam Julia? 12

Launce Marry, after they closed in earnest, they parted very fairly in jest

Speed But shall she marry him?

Launce No 16

Speed How then? Shall he marry her?

Launce No, neither

Speed What, are they broken?

Launce No, they are both as whole as a fish

Speed Why then, how stands the matter with them?

Launce Marry, thus, when it stands well with him, it stands well with her 24

Speed What an ass art thou! I understand thee not

Launce What a block art thou, that thou canst not! My staff understands me 28

Speed What thou sayest?

Launce Ay, and what I do too look thee,

I'll but lean, and my staff understands me

Speed It stands under thee, indeed 32

Launce Why, stand-under and under-stand is all one

Speed But tell me true, will't be a match?

Launce Ask my dog if he say ay, it will, if he say no, it will, if he shake his tail and say nothing, it will

Speed The conclusion is, then, that it will

Launce Thou shalt never get such a secret from me but by a parable 41

Speed 'Tis well that I get it so But, Launce, how sayest thou, that my master is become a notable lover? 44

Launce I never knew him otherwise.

Speed Than how?

Launce A notable lubber, as thou reportest him to be 48

Speed Why, thou whoreson ass, thou must take me

Launce Why, fool, I meant not thee, I meant thy master 52

Speed I tell thee, my master is become a hot lover

Launce Why, I tell thee, I care not though he burn himself in love If thou wilt go with me to the alehouse so, if not, thou art a

Hebrew, a Jew, and not worth the name of a Christian.

Speed Why?
Launce Because thou hast not so much charity in thee as to go to the ale with a Chrisnan Wilt thou go?
Speed At thy service

[Exeunt]

SCENE VI—The Same A Room in the DUKE'S PalaceEnter PROTEUS

Pro To leave my Julia, shall I be forsworn,
 To love fair Silvia, shall I be forsworn,
 To wrong my friend, I shall be much forsworn, And even that power which gave me first my oath
 Provokes me to this threefold perjury Love bade me swear, and Love bids me for-swear
 O sweet-suggesting Love! if thou hast sinn'd, Teach me, thy tempted subject, to excuse it
 At first I did adore a twinkling star,
 But now I worship a celestial sun
 Unheedful vows may heedfully be broken,
 And he wants wit that wants resolved will
 To learn his wit to exchange the bad for better Fie, fie, unreverend tongue! to call her bad, Whose sovereignty so oft thou hast preferr'd
 With twenty thousand soul-confirming oaths
 I cannot leave to love, and yet I do,
 But there I leave to love where I should love Julia I lose and Valentine I lose
 If I keep them, I needs must lose myself,
 If I lose them, thus find I by their loss,
 For Valentine, myself, for Julia, Silvia
 I to myself am dearer than a friend,
 For love is still most precious in itself,
 And Silvia—witness heaven that made her fair!—
 Shows Julia but a swarthy Ethiope
 I will forget that Julia is alive,
 Remembering that my love to her is dead,
 And Valentine I'll hold an enemy,
 Aiming at Silvia as a sweeter friend.
 I cannot now prove constant to myself
 Without some treachery us'd to Valentine
 This night he meaneth with a corded ladder
 To climb celestial Silvia's chamber-window, Myself in counsel, his competitor
 Now presently, I'll give her father notice
 Of their disguising and pretended flight,
 Who, all enrag'd, will banish Valentine,
 For Thurio, he intends, shall wed his daughter,
 But, Valentine being gone, I'll quickly cross,
 By some sly trick blunt Thurio's dull proceeding
 Love, lend me wings to make my purpose swift,
 As thou hast lent me wit to plot this drift!

[Exit]

SCENE VII—Verona A Room in JULIA'S HouseEnter JULIA and LUCETTA

Jul Counsel, Lucetta, gentle girl, assist me
 And e'en in kind love I do conjure thee,
 Who art the table whereon all my thoughts

Are visibly character'd and engrav'd,
 To lesson me and tell me some good mean How, with my honour, I may undertake A journey to my loving Proteus Luc Alas! the way is wearisome and long Jul A true-devoted pilgrim is not weary
 To measure kingdoms with his feeble steps, Much less shall she that hath Love's wings to fly
 And when the flight is made to one so dear,
 Of such divine perfection, as Sir Proteus Luc Better forbear till Proteus make return Jul O! know'st thou not his looks are my soul's food?
 Pity the dearth that I have pined in,
 By longing for that food so long a time
 Didst thou but know the only touch of love, Thou wouldst as soon go kindle fire with snow
 As seek to quench the fire of love with words Luc I do not seek to quench your love's hot fire,
 But qualify the fire's extreme rage,
 Lest it should burn above the bounds of reason Jul The more thou damm'st it up, the more it burns
 The current that with gentle murmur glides, Thou know'st, being stopp'd, impatiently doth rage,
 But when his fair course is not hindered,
 He makes sweet music with th' enamell'd stones Giving a gentle kiss to every sedge
 He overtaketh in his pilgrimage,
 And so by many winding nooks he strays
 With willing sport, to the wild ocean
 Then let me go and hinder not my course
 I'll be as patient as a gentle stream
 And make a pastime of each weary step,
 Till the last step have brought me to my love,
 And there I'll rest, as after much turmoil
 A blessed soul doth in Elysium Luc But in what habit will you go along?
Jul Not like a woman, for I would prevent The loose encounters of lascivious men Gentle Lucetta, fit me with such weeds
 As may beseeem some well-reputed page Luc Why, then, your ladyship must cut your hair
Jul No, girl, I'll knit it up in silken strings With twenty odd-conceited true-love knots
 To be fantastic may become a youth Of greater time than I shall show to be Luc What fashion, madam, shall I make your breeches?
Jul That fits as well as 'Tell me, good my lord,
 What compass will you wear your farthingale?'
 Why, even what fashion thou best lik'st, Lu-cetta.
Luc You must needs have them with a cod-piece, madam
Jul Out, out, Lucetta! that will be illfavour'd
Luc A round hose, madam, now's not worth a pin,
 Unless you have a cod-piece to stick pins on Jul Lucetta, as thou lov'st me, let me have What thou think'st meet and is most mannerly
 But tell me, wench, how will the world repute me

For undertaking so unstead a journey? 60
I fear me, it will make me scandaliz'd

Luc If you think so, then stay at home and go not

Jul Nay, that I will not

Luc Then never dream on infamy, but go 64
If Proteus like your journey when you come,
No matter who's displeas'd when you are gone
I fear me, he will scarce be pleas'd withal

Jul That is the least, Lucetta, of my fear 68
A thousand oaths, an ocean of his tears,
And instances of infinite of love
Warrant me welcome to my Proteus 71

Luc All these are servants to deceitful men Jul Base men, that use them to so base effect
But truer stars did govern Proteus' birth
His words are bonds, his oaths are oracles,
His love sincere, his thoughts immaculate, 76
His tears pure messengers sent from his heart,
His heart as far from fraud as heaven from earth

Luc Pray heaven he prove so when you come to him!

Jul Now, as thou lov'st me, do him not that wrong 80

To bear a hard opinion of his truth—
Only deserve my love by loving him,
And presently go with me to my chamber,
To take a note of what I stand in need of 84
To furnish me upon my longing journey
All that is mine I leave at thy dispose,
My goods, my lands, my reputation,
Only, in lieu thereof, dispatch me hence 88
Come answer not, but to it presently!
I am impatient of my tarrance. [Exeunt.

ACT III

SCENE I—Milan An anteroom in the Duke's Palace

Enter DUKE, THURIO, and PROTEUS.

Duke Sir Thurio, give us leave, I pray, awhile,

We have some secrets to confer about [Exit THURIO.

Now tell me, Proteus, what's your will with me?
Pro My gracious lord, that which I would discover 4

The law of friendship bids me to conceal,
But when I call to mind your gracious favours Done to me, undeserving as I am,
My duty pricks me on to utter that 8
Which else no worldly good should draw from me

Know, worthy prince, Sir Valentine, my friend,
This night intends to steal away your daughter Myself am one made privy to the plot. 12

I know you have determin'd to bestow her
On Thurio, whom your gentle daughter hates,
And should she thus be stol'n away from you
It would be much vexation to your age 16

Thus, for my duty's sake, I rather chose To cross my friend in his intended drift,
Than, by concealing it, heap on your head
A pack of sorrows which would press you down,
Being unprevented, to your timeless grave. 21

Duke Proteus, I thank thee for thine honest care,

Which to requite, command me while I live
This love of theirs myself have often seen, 24
Haply, when they have judg'd me fast asleep,
And oftentimes have purpos'd to forbid

Sir Valentine her company and my court,
But fearing lest my jealous arm might err 28
And so unworthily disgrace the man,—
A rashness that I ever yet have shunn'd,—

I gave him gentle looks thereby to find That which thyself hast now disclos'd to me 32
And, that thou mayst perceive my fear of this,
Knowing that tender youth is soon suggested,
I nightly lodge her in an upper tower,

The key whereof myself have ever kept, 36
And thence she cannot be convey'd away
Pro Know, noble lord, they have devis'd a mean

How he her chamber-window will ascend
And with a cord'd ladder fetch her down, 40

For which the youthful lover now is gone
And thus way comes he with it presently,

Where, if it please you, you may intercept him
But, good my lord, do it so cunningly 44

That my discovery be not aimed at,
For love of you, not hate unto my friend,

Hath made me publisher of this pretence
Duke Upon mine honour, he shall never know 48

That I had any light from thee of this Pro Adieu, my lord Sir Valentine is coming [Exit

Enter VALENTINE

Duke Sir Valentine, whither away so fast?

Val Please it your Grace, there is a messenger 52

That stays to bear my letters to my friends,
And I am going to deliver them

Duke Be they of much import?

Val The tenour of them doth but signify 56
My health and happy being at your court

Duke Nay then, no matter stay with me awhile,

I am to break with thee of some affairs
That touch me near, wherein thou must be secret 60

'Tis not unknown to thee that I have sought To match my friend Sir Thurio to my daughter

Val I know it well, my lord and sure, the match

Were rich and honourable, besides, the gentleman 64

Is full of virtue, bounty, worth, and qualities Beseeming such a wife as your fair daughter

Cannot your Grace win her to fancy him?
Duke No, trust me she is peevish, sullen, 68

froward,
Proud, disobedient, stubborn, lacking duty;
Neither regarding that she is my child,

Nor fearing me as if I were her father
And, may I say to thee, this pride of hers, 72

Upon advice, hath drawn my love from her,
And, where I thought the remnant of mine age

Should have been cherish'd by her child-like duty,

I now am full resolv'd to take a wife And turn her out to who will take her in Then let her beauty be her wedding-dowry,
For me and my possessions she esteems not

Val What would your Grace have me to do in this?

Duke There is a lady of Verona here, Whom I affect, but she is nice and coy And nought esteems my aged eloquence Now therefore, would I have thee to my tutor, For long ago I have forgot to court,
Besides, the fashion of the time is chang'd,
How and which way I may bestow myself
To be regarded in her sun-bright eye

Val Win her with gifts, if she respect not words Dumb jewels often in their silent kind
More than quick words do move a woman's mind

Duke But she did scorn a present that I sent her

Val A woman sometime scorns what best contents her

Send her another, never give her o'er,
For scorn at first makes after-love the more
If she do frown, 'tis not in hate of you,
But rather to beget more love in you,
If she do chide, 'tis not to have you gone,
For why the fools are mad if left alone
Take no repulse, whatever she doth say,
For, 'get you gone,' she doth not mean, 'away!'
Flatter and praise, commend, extol their graces, Though ne'er so black, say they have angels' faces

That man that hath a tongue, I say, is no man,

If with his tongue he cannot win a woman
Duke But she I mean is promis'd by her friends

Unto a youthful gentleman of worth,
And kept severely from resort of men,
That no man hath access by day to her

Val Why then, I would resort to her by night

Duke Ay, but the doors be lock'd and keys kept safe,
That no man hath recourse to her by night.

Val What lets but one may enter at her window?

Duke Her chamber is aloft, far from the ground,
And built so shelving that one cannot climb it Without apparent hazard of his life

Val Why then, a ladder quantly made of cords,

To cast up, with a pair of anchoring hooks,
Would serve to scale another Hero's tower,
So bold Leander would adventure it.

Duke Now, as thou art a gentleman of blood, Advise me where I may have such a ladder.

Val When would you use it? pray, sir, tell me that

Duke This very night, for Love is like a child,

That longs for every thing that he can come by Val By seven o'clock I'll get you such a ladder

Duke But hark thee, I will go to her alone
How shall I best convey the ladder thither?

Val It will be light, my lord, that you may bear it

Under a cloak that is of any length

Duke A cloak as long as thine will serve the turn?

Val Ay, my good lord

Duke Then let me see thy cloak I'll get me one of such another length

Val Why, any cloak will serve the turn, my lord

Duke How shall I fashion me to wear a cloak?

I pray thee, let me feel thy cloak upon me [Pulls open VALENTINE'S cloak]

What letter is this same? What's here?—To Silvia!

And here an engine fit for my proceeding!
I'll be so bold to break the seal for once

My thoughts do harbour with my Silvia nightly
And slaves they are to me that send them flying

O! could their master come and go as lightly Himself would lodge where senseless they are lying!

My herald thoughts in thy pure bosom rest them While I, their king, that thither them importune

Do curse the grace that with such grace hath bless'd them, Because myself do want my servants' fortune

I curse myself for they are sent by me
That they should harbour where their lord would be

What's here?

Silvia, this night I will enfranchise thee

'Tis so, and here's the ladder for the purpose
Why, Phaethon,—for thou art Merops' son,—

Wilt thou aspire to guide the heavenly car
And with thy daring folly burn the world?

Wilt thou reach stars, because they shine on thee?

Go, base intruder! overweening slave!
Bestow thy fawning smiles on equal mates,

And think my patience, more than thy desert,
Is privilege for thy departure hence

Thank me for this more than for all the favours
Which all too much I have bestow'd on thee

But if thou linger in my territories
Longer than swiftest expedition

Will give thee time to leave our royal court,
By heaven! my wrath shall far exceed the love

I ever bore my daughter or thyself
Be gone! I will not hear thy vain excuse,

But, as thou lov'st thy life, make speed from hence
[Exit]

Val And why not death rather than living torment?

To die is to be banish'd from myself;
And Silvia is myself banish'd from her

Is self from self,—a deadly banishment!
What light is light, if Silvia be not seen?

What joy is joy, if Silvia be not by?
Unless it be to think that she is by

And feed upon the shadow of perfection.
Except I be by Silvia in the night,

There is no music in the nightingale,
Unless I look on Silvia in the day,
There is no day for me to look upon
She is my essence, and I leave to be,
If I be not by her fair influence Foster'd, illumin'd, cherish'd, kept alive
I fly not death, to fly his deadly doom Tarry I here, I but attend on death,
But, fly I hence, I fly away from life

Enter PROTEUS and LAUNCE

Pro Run, boy, run, run, and seek him out Launce Soho! soho! 189
Pro What seest thou?
Launce Him we go to find there's not a hair on's head but 'tis a Valentine 192 Pro Valentine?
Val No
Pro Who then? his spirit?
Val Neither 196
Pro What then?
Val Nothing
Launce Can nothing speak? Master, shall I strike? 200

Pro Who would'st thou strike?
Launce Nothing
Pro Villain, forbear Launce Why, sir, I'll strike nothing I pray
you,— 204
Pro Surrah, I say, forbear—Friend Valentine, a word
Val My ears are stopp'd and cannot hear good news,

So much of bad already hath possess'd them
Pro Then in dumb silence will I bury mine,
For they are harsh, untuneable and bad 209
Val Is Silvia dead?
Pro No, Valentine
Val No Valentine, indeed, for sacred Silvia!
Hath she forsworn me? 213
Pro No, Valentine
Val No Valentine, if Silvia have forsworn
me!

What is your news? 216
Launce Sir, there is a proclamation that you are vanished
Pro That thou art banished, O, that's the
news,
From hence, from Silvia, and from me thy friend
Val O, I have fed upon this woe already, 220
And now excess of it will make me surfeit Doth Silvia know that I am banished?

Pro Ay, ay, and she hath offer'd to the doom— 223
Which, unrevers'd, stands in effectual force—
A sea of melting pearl, which some call tears
Those at her father's churlish feet she tender'd, With them, upon her knees, her humble self, Wringing her hands, whose whiteness so became them 228

As if but now they waxed pale for woe
But neither bended knees, pure hands held up,
Sad sighs, deep groans, nor silver-shedding tears,
Could penetrate her uncompassionate ears, 232
But Valentine, if he be ta'en, must die

Besides, her intercession chaf'd him so,
When she for thy repeal was suppliant, 180
That to close prison he commanded her, 236
With many bitter threats of bidding there Val No more, unless the next word that thou speak'st

Have some malignant power upon my life
If so, I pray thee, breathe it in mine ear, 240
As ending anthem of my endless dolour

Pro Cease to lament for that thou canst not help,

And study help for that which thou lament'st
Time is the nurse and breeder of all good 244
Here if thou stay, thou canst not see thy love, Besides, thy staying will abridge thy life Hope is a lover's staff, walk hence with that
And manage it against despairing thoughts 248
Thy letters may be here, though thou art hence, Which, being writ to me, shall be deliver'd
Even in the milk-white bosom of thy love
The time now serves not to expostulate 252
Come, I'll convey thee through the city-gate,
And, ere I part with thee, confer at large
Of all that may concern thy love-affairs
As thou lov'st Silvia, though not for thyself, 256 Regard thy danger, and along with me!

Val I pray thee, Launce, and if thou seest my boy,

Bid him make haste and meet me at the North-gate

Pro Go, sirrah, find him out Come, Valentine 260

Val O my dear Silvia! hapless Valentine!
[Exeunt VALENTINE and PROTEUS]

Launce I am but a fool, look you, and yet I have the wit to think my master is a kind of a knave but that's all one, if he be but one knave He lives not now that knows me to be in love yet I am in love, but a team of horse shall not pluck that from me, nor who 'tis I love, and yet 'tis a woman, but what woman, I will not tell myself, and yet 'tis a milkmaid, yet 'tis not a maid, for she hath had gossips, yet 'tis a maid, for she is her master's maid, and serves for wages She hath more qualities than a water-spaniel—which is much in a bare Christian [Pulling out a paper] Here is the catalog of her condition Imprimis, She can fetch and carry Why, a horse can do no more nay, a horse cannot fetch, but only carry, therefore, is she better than a jade Item, She can milk look you, a sweet virtue in a maid with clean hands 280

Enter SPEED

Speed How now, Signior Launce! what news with your mastership?

Launce With my master's ship? why, it is at sea 284

Speed Well, your old vice still, mistake the word What news, then, in your paper?

Launce The blackest news that ever thou heardst 288

Speed Why, man, how black?

Launce Why, as black as ink.

Speed Let me read them.

Launce Fie on thee, jolthead! thou canst not read. 293

Speed Thou liest, I can

Launce I will try thee Tell me this who begot thee? 296

Speed Marry, the son of my grandfather

Launce O, illiterate loiterer! it was the son of thy grandmother This proves that thou canst not read 300

Speed Come, fool, come try me in thy paper

Launce There, and Saint Nicholas be thy speed! 304

Speed Imprimis, She can milk

Launce Ay, that she can

Speed Item, She brews good ale

Launce And thereof comes the proverb, 'Blessing of your heart, you brew good ale' 309

Speed Item, She can sew

Launce That's as much as to say, Can she so? 312

Speed Item, She can knit

Launce What need a man care for a stock with a wench, when she can knit him a stock?

Speed Item, She can wash and scour 316

Launce A special virtue, for then she need not be washed and scoured

Speed Item, She can spin

Launce Then may I set the world on wheels, when she can spin for her living 321

Speed Item, She hath many nameless virtues

Launce That's as much as to say, bastard virtues, that, indeed, know not their fathers, and therefore have no names

Speed Here follow her vices

Launce Close at the heels of her virtues 328

Speed Item, She is not to be kissed fasting, in respect of her breath

Launce Well, that fault may be mended with a breakfast Read on 332

Speed Item, She hath a sweet mouth

Launce That makes amends for her sour breath

Speed Item, She doth talk in her sleep 336

Launce It's no matter for that, so she sleep not in her talk

Speed Item, She is slow in words

Launce O villain, that set this down among her vices! To be slow in words is a woman's only virtue I pray thee, out with't, and place it for her chief virtue

Speed Item, She is proud 344

Launce Out with that too it was Eve's legacy, and cannot be ta'en from her

Speed Item, She hath no teeth

Launce I care not for that neither, because I love crusts 349

Speed Item, She is curst

Launce Well, the best is, she hath no teeth to bite 352

Speed Item, She will often praise her liquor

Launce If her liquor be good, she shall if she will not, I will, for good things should be praised 356

Speed Item, She is too liberal.

Launce Of her tongue she cannot, for that's writ down she is slow of of her purse she shall not, for that I'll keep shut now, of another thing she may, and that cannot I help Well, proceed

Speed Item, She hath more hair than wit, and more faults than hairs, and more wealth than faults 365

Launce Stop there, I'll have her she was mine, and not mine, twice or thrice in that last article Rehearse that once more 368

Speed Item, She hath more hair than wit—

Launce More hair than wit it may be, I'll prove it the cover of the salt hides the salt, and therefore it is more than the salt, the hair that covers the wit is more than the wit, for the greater hides the less What's next?

Speed And more faults than hairs— 376

Launce That's monstrous! O, that that were out!

Speed And more wealth than faults

Launce Why, that word makes the faults gracious Well, I'll have her, and if it be a match, as nothing is impossible,— Speed What then?

Launce Why, then will I tell thee,—that thy master stays for thee at the North-gate 385

Speed For me?

Launce For thee! ay, who art thou? he hath stayed for a better man than thee 388

Speed And must I go to him?

Launce Thou must run to him, for thou hast stayed so long that going will scarce serve the turn. 392

Speed Why didst not tell me sooner? pox of your love-letters! [Exit]

Launce Now will he be swing'd for reading my letter An unmannerly slave, that will thrust himself into secrets I'll after, to rejoice in the boy's correction. [Exit]

SCENE II—The Same A Room in the DUKE'S Palace

Enter DUKE and THURIO

Duke Sir Thurio, fear not but that she will love you,

Now Valentine is banish'd from her sight.

Thu Since his exile she hath despis'd me most,

Forsworn my company and rail'd at me, 4

That I am desperate of obtaining her

Duke This weak impress of love is as a figure Trenched in ice, which with an hour's heat

Dissolves to water and doth lose his form. 5

A little time will melt her frozen thoughts,

And worthless Valentine shall be forgot.

Enter PROTEUS

How now, Sir Proteus! Is your countryman According to our proclamation gone? 12

Pro Gone, my good lord

Duke My daughter takes his going grievously

Pro A little time, my lord, will kill that grief

Duke So I believe, but Thurio thinks not so Proteus, the good conceit I hold of thee,— 17
For thou hast shown some sign of good desert,— Makes me the better to confer with thee

Pro Longer than I prove loyal to your Grace
Let me not live to look upon your Grace 21

Duke Thou knowst how willingly I would effect

The match between Sir Thurio and my daughter

Pro I do, my lord 24

Duke And also, I think, thou art not ignorant

How she opposes her against my will Pro She did, my lord, when Valentine was

here

Duke Ay, and perversely she perseveres so 28
What might we do to make the girl forget
The love of Valentine, and love Sir Thurio?

Pro The best way is to slander Valentine
With falsehood, cowardice, and poor descent,
Three things that women highly hold in hate

Duke Ay, but she'll think that it is spoke in hate

Pro Ay, if his enemy deliver it Therefore it must with circumstance be spoken
By one whom she esteemeth as his friend 37

Duke Then you must undertake to slander
him.

Pro And that, my lord, I shall be loath to do
'Tis an ill office for a gentleman, 40

Especially against his very friend Duke Where your good word cannot advance
him,

Your slander never can endamage him
Therefore the office is indifferent, 44

Being entreated to it by your friend Pro You have prevail'd, my lord If I can do it,

By aught that I can speak in his dispraise,
She shall not long continue love to him 48

But say this weed her love from Valentine,
It follows not that she will love Sir Thurio Thurio Therefore, as you unwind her love from

him,

Lest it should ravel and be good to none, 52
You must provide to bottom it on me,
Which must be done by praising me as much
As you in worth dispraise Sir Valentine

Duke And, Proteus, we dare trust you in this kind, 56

Because we know, on Valentine's report,
You are already Love's firm votary
And cannot soon revolt and change your mind
Upon this warrant shall you have access 60

Where you with Silvia may confer at large,
For she is lumpish, heavy, melancholy,
And, for your friend's sake, will be glad of you,
Where you may temper her, by your persuasion
To hate young Valentine and love my friend 65

Pro As much as I can do I will effect
But you, Sir Thurio, are not sharp enough,
You must lay lime to tangle her desires 68

By waulful sonnets, whose composed rimes
Should be full-fraught with serviceable vows

Duke Ay,
Much is the force of heaven-bred poesy 72

Pro Say that upon the altar of her beauty
You sacrifice your tears, your sighs, your heart Write till your ink be dry, and with your tears
Moist it again, and frame some feeling line 76
That may discover such integrity
For Orpheus lute was strung with poets' sinews, Whose golden touch could soften steel and stones,

Make tigers tame and huge leviathans 80
Forsake unsounded deeps to dance on sands
After your dire-lamenting elegies,
Visit by night your lady's chamber-window
With some sweet consort to their instruments
Tune a deploring dump, the night's dead silence Will well become such sweet-complaining grievance

This, or else nothing, will inherit her Duke This discipline shows thou hast been in love 86

Thurio And thy advice this night I'll put in practice

Therefore, sweet Proteus, my direction-giver, Let us into the city presently
To sort some gentlemen well skill'd in music 92
I have a sonnet that will serve the turn
To give the onset to thy good advice.

Duke About it, gentlemen!
Pro We'll wait upon your grace till after-supper, 96

And afterward determine our proceedings Duke Even now about it! I will pardon
you. [Exeunt

ACT IV

SCENE I.—A Forest between Milan and Verona

Enter certain Outlaws.

First Out. Fellows, stand fast, I see a passenger

Sec Out If there be ten, shrink not, but down with 'em

Enter VALENTINE and SPEED

Thrd Out Stand, sir, and throw us that you have about ye,

If not, we'll make you sit and rifle you. 4 Speed Sir, we are undone these are the villains

That all the travellers do fear so much.
Val. My friends,—

First Out That's not so, sir, we are your enemies 8

Sec Out Peace! we'll hear him.
Thrd Out Ay, by my beard, will we, for he is a proper man

Val Then know, that I have little wealth to lose

A man I am cross'd with adversity 12
My riches are these poor habiliments,
Of which if you should here disfigure me,
You take the sum and substance that I have

Sec Out Whither travel you? 16
Val To Verona
First Out Whence came you?
Val From Milan

Thurd Out Have you long sojourn'd there?

Val Some sixteen months, and longer might have stay'd 21

If crooked fortune had not thwarted me

Sec Out What! were you banish'd thence? 21

Val I was 24

Sec Out For what offence?

Val For that which now torments me to rehearse

I kill'd a man, whose death I much repent,

But yet I slew him manfully, in fight, 28

Without false vantage or base treachery

First Out Why, ne'er repent it, if it were done so

But were you banish'd for so small a fault?

Val I was, and held me glad of such a doom

Sec Out Have you the tongues? 33

Val My youthful travel therein made me happy,

Or else I often had been miserable

Thurd Out By the bare scalp of Robin Hood's fat friar, 36

This fellow were a king for our wild faction!

First Out We'll have him Sirs, a word

Speed Master, be one of them,

It is an honourable kind of thevery 40

Val Peace, villain!

Sec Out Tell us this have you anything to take to?

Val Nothing, but my fortune

Thurd Out Know then, that some of us are gentlemen, 44

Such as the fury of ungovern'd youth

Thrust from the company of awful men

Myself was from Verona banished

For practising to steal away a lady, 48

An heir, and near allied unto the duke

Sec Out And I from Mantua, for a gentleman,

Who, in my mood, I stabb'd unto the heart

First Out And I for such like petty crimes as these 52

But to the purpose, for we cite our faults,

That they may hold excus'd our lawless lives,

And, partly, seeming you are beautified

With goodly shape, and by your own report 56

A linguist, and a man of such perfection

As we do in our quality much want—

Sec Out Indeed, because you are a banish'd man,

Therefore, above the rest, we parley to you 60

Are you content to be our general?

To make a virtue of necessity

And live, as we do, in this wilderness?

Thurd Out What say'st thou? wilt thou be of our consort? 64

Say 'ay,' and be the captain of us all

We'll do thee homage and be rul'd by thee,

Love thee as our commander and our king

First Out But if thou scorn our courtesy, thou diest 68

Sec Out Thou shalt not live to brag what we have offer'd

Val I take your offer and will live with you,

Provided that you do no outrages

On silly women, or poor passengers 72

Thurd Out No, we detest such vile, base practices

Come, go with us, we'll bring thee to our crews,

And show thee all the treasure we have got,

Which, with ourselves, all rest at thy dispose 76

[Exeunt]

SCENE II — Milan The Court of the DUKE'S Palace

Enter PROTEUS

Pro Already have I been false to Valentine,

And now I must be as unjust to Thurio

Under the colour of commending him, 4

I have access my own love to prefer

But Silvia is too fair, too true, too holy,

To be corrupted with my worthless gifts

When I protest true loyalty to her,

She twits me with my falsehood to my friend,

When to her beauty I commend my vows, 9

She bids me think how I have been forsworn

In breaking faith with Julia whom I lov'd

And notwithstanding all her sudden quips, 12

The least whereof would quell a lover's hope,

Yet, samuel-like, the more she spurns my love,

The more it grows, and fawneth on her still

But here comes Thurio now must we to her window, 16

And give some evening music to her ear

Enter THURIO, and Musicians

Thu How now, Sir Proteus! are you crept before us?

Pro Ay, gentle Thurio, for you know that love

Will creep in service where it cannot go 20

Thu Ay, but I hope, sir, that you love not here

Pro Sir, but I do, or else I would be hence

Thu Who? Silvia?

Pro Ay, Silvia, for your sake 24

Thu I thank you for your own Now, gentlemen,

Let's tune, and to it lustily a while

Enter Host and JULIA behind JULIA in boy's clothes

Host Now, my young guest, methinks you're allycholly I pray you, why is it? 28

Jul Marry, mine host, because I cannot be merry

Host Come, we'll have you merry I'll bring you where you shall hear music and see the gentleman that you asked for 33

Jul But shall I hear him speak?

Host Ay, that you shall.

Jul That will be music [Music plays

Host Hark! hark! 37

Jul Is he among these?

Host Ay, but peace! let's hear 'em.

SONG

Who is Silvia? what is she, 40

That all our swains commend her?

Holy fair and wise is she

The heaven such grace did lend her

That she might admired be 44

Is she kind as she is fair?
 For beauty lives with kindness
 Love doth to her eyes repair
 To help him of his blindness
 And being help'd inhabits there Then to Silvia let us sing,
 That Silvia is excelling,
 She excels each mortal thing
 Upon the dull earth dwelling,
 To her let us garlands bring.

Host How now! are you sadder than you were before? How do you, man? the musician likes you not Jul You mistake, the musician likes me not.

Host Why, my pretty youth?

Jul He plays false, father

Host How? out of tune on the strings?

Jul Not so, but yet so false that he grieves my very heart-strings

Host You have a quick ear

Jul Ay, I would I were deaf, it makes me have a slow heart.

Host I perceive you delight not in music

Jul Not a whit,—when it jars so

Host Hark! what fine change is in the music!

Jul Ay, that change is the spite

Host You would have them always play but one thing?

Jul I would always have one play but one thing

But, host, doth this Sir Proteus that we talk on often resort unto this gentlewoman?

Host I will tell you what Launce, his man, told me he lov'd her out of all rick.

Jul Where is Launce?

Host Gone to seek his dog, which, to-morrow, by his master's command, he must carry for a present to his lady

Jul Peace! stand aside the company parts

Pro Sir Thurio, fear not you I will so plead that you shall say my cunning drift excels Jul Where meet we?

Pro At Saint Gregory's well.

Thu Farewell

[Exeunt THURIO and Musicians]

Enter SILVIA above, at her window

Pro Madam, good even to your ladyship

Sil I thank you for your music, gentlemen. Who is that that spake?

Pro One, lady, if you knew his pure heart's truth, you would quickly learn to know him by his voice

Sil Sir Proteus, as I take it

Pro Sir Proteus, gentle lady, and your servant.

Sil What is your will?

Pro That I may compass yours

Sil You have your wish, my will is even this that presently you bid me come to bed

Thou subtle, perjur'd, false, disloyal man! Think'st thou I am so shallow, so conceited,

To be seduced by thy flattery,

That hast deceiv'd so many with thy yows? Return, return, and make thy love amends.

For me, by this pale queen of night I swear, I am so far from granting thy request That I despise thee for thy wrongful suit,
 And by and by intend to chide myself
 Even for this time I spend in talking to thee Pro I grant, sweet love, that I did love a lady,
 But she is dead.

Jul [Aside] 'Twere false, if I should speak it,
 For I am sure she is not buried

Sil Say that she be, yet Valentine thy friend survives, to whom, thyself art witness
 I am betroth'd and art thou not ashamed
 To wrong him with thy importunity?

Pro I likewise hear that Valentine is dead
Sil And so suppose am I, for in his grave, assure thyself my love is buried

Pro Sweet lady, let me rake it from the earth Sil Go to thy lady's grave and call her thence,
 Or, at the least, in hers sepulchre thine

Jul [Aside] He heard not that Pro Madam, if your heart be so obdurate, Vouchsafe me yet your picture for my love,
 The picture that is hanging in your chamber
 To that I'll speak, to that I'll sigh and weep, For since the substance of your perfect self Is else devoted, I am but a shadow,
 And to your shadow will I make true love

Jul [Aside] If 'twere a substance, you would, sure, deceive it,
 And make it but a shadow, as I am

Sil I am very loath to be your idol, sir,
 But, since your falsehood shall become you well
 To worship shadows and adore false shapes, Send to me in the morning and I'll send it
 And so, good rest

Pro As wretches have o'er night
 That wait for execution in the morn

[Exeunt PROTEUS, and SILVIA, above]
Jul Host, will you go?

Host By my halidom, I was fast asleep
Jul Pray you, where lies Sir Proteus?

Host Marry, at my house Trust me, I think 'tis almost day

Jul Not so, but it hath been the longest night That e'er I watch'd and the most heaviest

[Exeunt]

SCENE III.—The Same.

Enter EGLAMOUR

Egl This is the hour that Madam Silvia entreated me to call, and know her mind There's some great matter she'd employ me in.
 Madam, Madam!

Enter SILVIA above, at her window

Sil Who calls?

Egl Your servant, and your friend,
 One that attends your ladyship's command.

Sil Sir Eglamour, a thousand times good morrow

Egl As many, worthy lady, to yourself
 According to your ladyship's impose,
 I am thus early come to know what service
 It is your pleasure to command me in

Sil O Eglamour, thou art a gentleman—

Think not I flatter, for I swear I do not—Valiant, wise, remorseful, well-accomplish'd Thou art not ignorant what dear good will I bear unto the banish'd Valentine,
 Now how my father would enforce me marry Vain Thurio, whom my very soul abhors Thyself hast lov'd, and I have heard thee say No grief did ever come so near thy heart
 As when thy lov'd and thy true love died, Upon whose grave thou vow'dst pure chastity
 Sir Eglamour, I would to Valentine,
 To Mantua, where, I hear he makes abode,
 And, for the ways are dangerous to pass,
 I do desire thy worthy company,
 Upon whose faith and honour I repose Urge not my father's anger, Eglamour,
 But think upon my grief, a lady's grief,
 And on the justice of my flying hence,
 To keep me from a most unholly match, Which heaven and fortune still rewards with plagues

I do desire thee, even from a heart
 As full of sorrows as the sea of sands,
 To bear me company and go with me
 If not, to hide what I have said to thee,
 That I may venture to depart alone
Egl Madam, I pity much your grievances,
 Which since I know they virtuously are plac'd,
 I give consent to go along with you,
 Recking as little what betideth me
 As much I wish all good befortune you.
 When will you go?

Sil This evening coming

Egl Where shall I meet you?

Sil At Friar Patrick's cell,
 Where I intend holy confession

Egl I will not fail your ladyship

Good morrow, gentle lady

Sil Good morrow, kind Sir Eglamour

[Exeunt severally]

SCENE IV—The Same

Enter LAUNCE with his dog

Launce When a man's servant shall play the cur with him, look you, it goes hard, one that I brought up of a puppy, one that I saved from drowning, when three or four of his blind brothers and sisters went to it. I have taught him, even as one would say precisely, 'Thus would I teach a dog.' I was sent to deliver him as a present to Mistress Silvia from my master, and I came no sooner into the dining-chamber but he steps me to her trencher and steals her capon's leg. O! 'tis a foul thing when a cur cannot keep himself in all companies. I would have, as one should say, one that takes upon him to be a dog indeed, to be, as it were, a dog at all things. If I had not had more wit than he, to take a fault upon me that he did, I think verily he had been hanged for't. Sure as I live, he had suffered for't. You shall judge. He thrusts me himself into the company of three or four gentleman-like dogs under the duke's table. He had not been there—bless the mark—a pissingwhile, but all the chamber smelt him. 'Out with the dog!' says one, 'What cur is that?' says another, 'Whip him out,' says the third, 'Hang him up,' says the duke. I, having been acquainted with the smell before, knew it was Crab, and goes me to the fellow that whips the dogs.

 'Friend,' quoth I, 'you mean to whip the dog?'
 'Ay, marry, do I,' quoth he. 'You do him the more wrong,' quoth I, 'twas I did the thing you wot of.' He makes me no more ado, but whips me out of the chamber. How many masters would do this for his servant? Nay, I'll be sworn I have sat in the stocks for puddings he hath stolen, otherwise he had been executed, I have stood on the pillory for geese he hath killed, otherwise he had suffered for't, thou thinkest not of this now. Nay, I remember the trick you served me when I took my leave of Madam Silvia. Did not I bid thee still mark me and do as I do? When didst thou see me heave up my leg and make water against a gentle-woman's farthingale? Didst thou ever see me do such a trick?

Enter PROTEUS, and JULIA in boy's clothes

Pro Sebastian is thy name? I like thee well
 And will employ thee in some service presently

Jul In what you please. I will do what I can

Pro I hope thou wilt. [To LAUNCE] How now, you whoreson peasant!

Where have you been these two days loitering?
Launce Marry, sir, I carried Mistress Silvia the dog you bade me

Pro And what says she to my little jewel?
Launce Marry, she says, your dog was a cur, and tells you, currish thanks is good enough for such a present.

Pro But she received my dog?
Launce No, indeed, did she not. Here have I brought him back again

Pro What! didst thou offer her this from me?

Launce Ay, sir. The other squirrel was stolen from me by the hangman boys in the marketplace, and then I offered her mine own, who is a dog as big as ten of yours, and therefore the gift the greater

Pro Go, get thee hence, and find my dog
 again.

Or ne'er return again into my sight.

Away, I say! Stay'st thou to vex me here?

A slave that still an end turns me to shame
 [Exit LAUNCE]

Sebastian, I have entertained thee
 Partly, that I have need of such a youth,
 That can with some discretion do my business,
 For 't is no trusting to yond foolish lout,
 But chiefly for thy face and thy behaviour,
 Which, if my augury deceive me not,
 Witness good bringing up, fortune, and truth
 Therefore, know thou, for this I entertain thee Go presently, and take this ring with thee Deliver it to Madam Silvia

She lov'd me well. Deliver'd it to me

Jul It seems, you lov'd not her, to leave her token.

She's dead, belike?

Pro Not so I think, she lives

Jul Alas!

Pro Why dost thou cry 'alas?'

Jul I cannot choose
But pity her 84

Pro Wherefore should'st thou pity her?

Jul Because methinks that she lov'd you as well

As you do love your lady Silvia

She dreams on him that has forgot her love, 88

You dote on her, that cares not for your love

'Tis pity, love should be so contrary,

And thinking on it makes me cry, 'alas!'

Pro Well, well, give her that ring and therewithal 97

This letter that's her chamber Tell my lady

I claim the promise for her heavenly picture

Your message done, hie home unto my chamber,

Where thou shalt find me sad and solitary [Exit]

Jul How many women would do such a message? 97

Alas, poor Proteus! thou hast entertain'd

A fox to be the shepherd of thy lambs

Alas, poor fool! why do I pity him

That with his very heart despiseth me? 100

Because he loves her, he despiseth me,

Because I love him, I must pity him

This ring I gave him when he parted from me,

To bind him to remember my good will,

And now am I—unhappy messenger— 105

To plead for that which I would not obtain,

To carry that which I would have refus'd, 108

To praise his faith which I would have disprais'd.

I am my master's true-confirmed love,

But cannot be true servant to my master,

Unless I prove false traitor to myself 112

Yet will I woo for him, but yet so coldly

As heaven it knows, I would not have him speed.

Enter SILVIA, attended

Gentlewoman, good day! I pray you, be my mean

To bring me where to speak with Madam Silvia

Sil What would you with her, if that I beshe?

Jul If you be she, I do entreat your patience

To hear me speak the message I am sent on.

Sil From whom? 120

Jul From my master, Sir Proteus, madam.

Sil O! he sends you for a picture?

Jul Ay, madam

Sil Ursula, bring my picture there 124

[A picture brought]

Go, give your master this tell him from me,

One Julia, that his changing thoughts forget,

Would better fit his chamber than this shadow

Jul Madam, please you peruse this letter—

Pardon me, madam, I have unadvis'd 129

Deliver'd you a paper that I should not

This is the letter to your ladyship

Sil I pray thee, let me look on that again

Jul It may not be good madam, pardon me

Sil There, hold

I will not look upon your master's lines—

I know, they are stuff'd with protestations 136

And full of new-found oaths, which he will break

As easily as I do tear his paper

Jul Madam, he sends your ladyship this ring

Sil The more shame for him that he sends it me, 140

For, I have heard him say a thousand times,

His Julia gave it him at his departure

Though his false finger have profan'd the ring,

Mine shall not do his Julia so much wrong 144

Jul She thanks you

Sil What say'st thou?

Jul I thank you, madam, that you tender her

Poor gentlewoman! my master wrongs her much 148

Sil Dost thou know her?

Jul Almost as well as I do know myself.

To think upon her woes, I do protest

That I have wept a hundred several times 152

Sil Belike, she thinks, that Proteus hath forsok her

Jul I think she doth, and that's her cause of sorrow

Sil Is she not passing fair? 155

Jul She hath been fairer, madam, than she is.

When she did think my master lov'd her well,

She, in my judgment, was as fair as you,

But since she did neglect her looking-glass

And threw her sun-expelling mask away, 160

The air hath starv'd the roses in her cheeks

And pinch'd the lily-tincture of her face,

That now she is become as black as I

Sil How tall was she? 164

Jul About my stature, for, at Pentecost,

When all our pageants of delight were play'd,

Our youth got me to play the woman's part,

And I was trimm'd in Madam Julia's gown, 168

Which served me as fit, by all men's judgments,

As if the garment had been made for me

Therefore I know she is about my height

And at that time I made her weep agood 172

For I did play a lamentable part.

Madam, 'twas Ariadne passioning

For Theseus' perjury and unjust flight,

Which I so lively acted with my tears 176

That my poor mistress, moved therewithal,

Wept bitterly, and would I might be dead

If I in thought felt not her very sorrow!

Sil She is beholding to thee, gentle youth—

Alas, poor lady, desolate and left! 181

I weep myself to think upon thy words

Here, youth, there is my purse I give thee this

For thy sweet mistress' sake, because thou lov'st her 184

Farewell.

Jul And she shall thank you for't, if e'er you know her—[Exit SILVIA, with Attendants]

A virtuous gentlewoman, mild and beautiful.

I hope my master's suit will be but cold, 188

Since she respects my mistress' love so much.

Alas, how love can trifle with itself!

Here is her picture let me see, I think,

If I had such a tire, this face of mine 192

Were full as lovely as is this of hers;

And yet the painter flatter'd her a little,

Unless I flatter with myself too much

Her hair is auburn, mine is perfect yellow 196

If that be all the difference in his love
 I'll get me such a colour'd perwig
 Her eyes are grey as glass, and so are mine
 Ay, but her forehead's low, and mine's as high
 What should it be that he respects in her 200
 But I can make respective in myself,
 If this fond Love were not a blinded god?
 Come, shadow, come, and take this shadow up,
 For 'tis thy rival O thou senseless form!
 Thou shalt be worshipp'd, kiss'd, lov'd, and ador'd, 205
 And, were there sense in his idolatry,
 My substance should be statue in thy stead
 I'll use thee kindly for thy mistress' sake,
 That us'd me so, or else, by Jove I vow,
 I should have scratch'd out your unseeing eyes,
 To make my master out of love with thee [Exit

ACT V

SCENE I—Milan An Abbey

Enter EGLAMOUR

Egl The sun begins to gild the western sky,
 And now it is about the very hour
 That Silvia at Friar Patrick's cell should meet
 me
 She will not fail, for lovers break not hours, 4
 Unless it be to come before their time,
 So much they spur their expedition See, where she comes.

Enter SILVIA

Lady, a happy evening!
 Sil Amen, amen! go on, good Eglamour, 8
 Out at the postern by the abbey-wall
 I fear I am attended by some spies Egl Fear not the forest is not three leagues
 off,
 If we recover that, we're sure enough [Exeunt

SCENE II—The Same A Room in the DUKE'S Palace

Enter THURIO, PROTEUS, and JULIA

Thu Sir Proteus, what says Silvia to my suit?
 Pro O, sir, I find her milder than she was,
 And yet she takes exceptions at your person.
 Thu What! that my leg is too long? 4
 Pro No, that it is too little Thu I'll wear a boot to make it somewhat rounder
 Jul [Aside] But love will not be spurr'd to what it loathes
 Thu What says she to my face? 8
 Pro She says it is a fair one Thu Nay then, the wanton lies, my face is black
 Pro But pearls are fair, and the old saying is,
 'Black men are pearls in beauteous ladies' eyes' Jul [Aside] 'Tis true, such pearls as put out ladies' eyes, 13
 For I had rather wink than look on them.
 Thu How likes she my discourse?
 Pro Ill, when you talk of war 16

Thu But well, when I discourse of love and peace?
 Jul [Aside] But better, indeed, when you hold your peace
 Thu What says she to my valour?
 Pro O, sir, she makes no doubt of that 20 Jul [Aside] She needs not, when she knows it cowardice
 Thu What says she to my birth?
 Pro That you are well deriv'd Jul [Aside] True, from a gentleman to a fool 24
 Thu Considers she my possessions?
 Pro O, ay, and pities them
 Thu Wherefore?
 Jul [Aside] That such an ass should owe
 them 28
 Pro That they are out by lease
 Jul Here comes the duke

Enter DUKE

Duke How now, Sir Proteus! how now, Thurio!
 Which of you saw Sir Eglamour of late? 32
 Thu Not I
 Pro Nor I
 Duke Saw you my daughter?
 Pro Neither
 Duke Why then,
 She's fled unto that peasant Valentine,
 And Eglamour is in her company 36
 'Tis true, for Friar Laurence met them both,
 As he in penance wander'd through the forest, Him he knew well, and guess'd that it was she,
 But, being mask'd, he was not sure of it, 40
 Besides, she did intend confession At Patrick's cell this even, and there she was not
 These likelihoods confirm her flight from hence Therefore, I pray you, stand not to discourse, 44
 But mount you presently and meet with me
 Upon the rising of the mountain-foot, That leads towards Mantua, whither they are fled
 Dispatch, sweet gentlemen, and follow me

[Exit

Thu Why, this it is to be a peevish girl,
 That flies her fortune when it follows her 50
 I'll after, more to be reveng'd on Eglamour
 Than for the love of reckless Silvia [Exit Pro And I will follow, more for Silvia's love Than hate of Eglamour that goes with her [Exit

Jul And I will follow, more to cross that love Than hate for Silvia that is gone for love [Exit

SCENE III.—Frontiers of Mantua The Forest

Enter Outlaws with SILVIA

First Out Come, come,
 Be patient, we must bring you to our captain Sil A thousand more mischances than this one
 Have learn'd me how to brook this patiently 4
 Second Out Come, bring her away.

First Out Where is the gentleman that was with her?

Third Out Being nimble-footed, he hath outrun us,

But Moyses and Valerius follow him Go thou with her to the west end of the wood,
There is our captain We'll follow him that's fled

The thicket is beset, he cannot 'scape

[Exeunt all except the First Outlaw and SILVIA]

First Out Come, I must bring you to our captain's cave

Fear not, he bears an honourable mind,
And will not use a woman lawlessly

Sil O Valentine! this I endure for thee.
[Exeunt]

SCENE IV — Another Part of the Forest

Enter VALENTINE

Val How use doth breed a habit in a man!
This shadowy desert, unfrequented woods,
I better brook than flourishing peopled towns Here can I sit alone, unseen of any,
And to the nightingale's complaining notes
Tune my distresses and record my woes
O thou that dost inhabit in my breast, Leave not the mansion so long tenantless
Lest, growing ruinous, the building fall
And leave no memory of what it was!
Repair me with thy presence, Silvia!
Thou gentle nymph, cherish thy forlorn swain!

[Noise within.]

What halloing and what stir is this to-day?
These are my mates, that make their wills their law,
Have some unhappy passenger in chase
They love me well, yet I have much to do
To keep them from uncivil outrages Withdraw thee, Valentine who's this comes here?
[Steps aside]

Enter PROTEUS, SILVIA, and JULIA

Pro Madam, this service I have done for you—Though you respect not aught your servant doth—
To hazard life and rescue you from him
That would have forc'd your honour and your love

Vouchsafe me, for my meed, but one fair look,
A smaller boon than this I cannot beg,
And less than this, I am sure, you cannot give Val [Aside] How like a dream is this I see and hear!

Love, lend me patience to forbear awhile
Sil O, miserable, unhappy that I am!

Pro Unhappy were you, madam, ere I came,
But by my coming I have made you happy

Sil By thy approach thou mak'st me most unhappy

Jul [Aside.] And me, when he approacheth to your presence

Sil Had I been seized by a hungry lion,

I would have been a breakfast to the beast,
Rather than have false Proteus rescue me
O! heaven be judge how I love Valentine, 36
Whose life's as tender to me as my soul,
And full as much—for more there cannot be—
I do detest false perjur'd Proteus Therefore be gone, solicit me no more 40
Pro What dangerous action, stood it next to death,

Would I not undergo for one calm look!
O, 'tis the curse in love, and still approv'd, When women cannot love where they're be-lov'd!

Sil When Proteus cannot love where he's be-lov'd

Read over Julia's heart, thy first best love,
For whose dear sake thou didst then rend thy faith

Into a thousand oaths, and all those oaths 48
Descended into perjury to love me
Thou hast no faith left now, unless thou'dst two,
And that's far worse than none better have none

Than plural faith which is too much by one 52
Thou counterfeit to thy true friend!

Pro In love
Who respects friend?

Sil All men but Proteus
Pro Nay, if the gentle spirit of moving words Can no way change you to a milder form, 56
I'll woo you like a soldier, at arms' end,
And love you 'gaunst the nature of love,— force ye

Sil O heaven!
Pro I'll force thee yield to my desire

Val [Coming forward] Ruffian, let go that rude uncivil touch, 60

Thou friend of an ill fashion!

Pro Valentine!
Val Thou common friend, that's without faith or love—

For such is a friend now—treacherous man!
Thou hast beguil'd my hopes naught but mine eye 64

Could have persuaded me Now I dare not say I have one friend alive thou wouldst disprove me

Who should be trusted now, when one's right hand

Is perjur'd to the bosom? Proteus, 68
I am sorry I must never trust thee more,
But count the world a stranger for thy sake.

The private wound is deep'st. O time most curst!

'Mongst all foes that a friend should be the worst!

Pro My shame and guilt confound me 73
Forgive me, Valentine If hearty sorrow
Be a sufficient ransom for offence,

I tender't here I do as truly suffer 76
As e'er I did commit.

Val Then, I am paid,
And once again I do receive thee honest.

Who by repentance is not satisfied
Is nor of heaven, nor earth, for these are pleas'd.

By penitence the Eternal's wrath's appeas'd 81

And, that my love may appear plain and free,
All that was mine in Silvia I give thee

Jul O me unhappy! [Swoons 85

Pro Look to the boy
Val Why, boy! why, wag! how now! what's the matter?

Look up, speak

Jul O good sir, my master charg'd me 88

To deliver a ring to Madam Silvia, Which out of my neglect was never done

Pro Where is that ring, boy?

Jul Here 'tis this is it [Gives a ring 92

Pro How! let me see

Why, this is the ring I gave to Julia

Jul O, cry you mercy, sir, I have mistook
This is the ring you sent to Silvia

[Shows another ring

Pro But how cam'st thou by this ring? 96
At my depart I gave this unto Julia

Jul And Julia herself did give it me,
And Julia herself hath brought it hither

Pro How! Julia! 100

Jul Behold her that gave aim to all thy oaths,
And entertain'd them deeply in her heart

How oft hast thou with perjury cleft the root!

O Proteus! let this habit make thee blush 104

Be thou asham'd that I have took upon me

Such an immodest raiment, if shame live

In a disguise of love

It is the lesser blot, modesty finds, 108

Women to change their shapes than men their minds

Pro Than men their minds! 'tis true O heaven! were man

But constant, he were perfect that one error

Fills him with faults, makes him run through all the sins 112

Inconstancy falls off ere it begins

What is in Silvia's face, but I may spy

More fresh in Julia's with a constant eye?

Val Come, come, a hand from either 116

Let me be blest to make this happy close

'Twere pity two such friends should be long foes

Pro Bear witness, heaven, I have my wish, for ever

Jul And I mine 120

Enter Outlaws with DUKE and THURIO.

Out A prize! a prize! a prize!

Val Forbear, forbear, I say, it is my lord
the duke

Your Grace is welcome to a man disgrac'd,

Banished Valentine

Duke Sir Valentine! 124

Thu. Yonder is Silvia, and Silvia's mine

Val. Thurio, give back, or else embrace thy death,

Come not within the measure of my wrath,
Do not name Silvia thine, if once again, 128
Verona shall not hold thee Here she stands, Take but possession of her with a touch,

I dare thee but to breathe upon my love

Thu Sir Valentine, I care not for her, I 132

I hold him but a fool that will endanger

His body for a girl that loves him not

I claim her not, and therefore she is thine 135

Duke The more degenerate and base art
thou,

To make such means for her as thou hast done,

And leave her on such slight conditions

Now, by the honour of my ancestry,

I do applaud thy spirit, Valentine, 140

And think thee worthy of an empress' love

Know then, I here forget all former griefs,

Cancel all grudge, repeat thee home again,

Plead a new state in thy unrivall'd merit, 144

To which I thus subscribe Sir Valentine,

Thou art a gentleman and well deriv'd,

Take thou thy Silvia, for thou hast deserv'd her

Val I thank your Grace, the gift hath made me happy 148

I now beseech you, for your daughter's sake,

To grant one boon that I shall ask of you

Duke I grant it, for thine own, what'er it be Val These banish'd men, that I have kept

withal 152

Are men endur'd with worthy qualities

Forgive them what they have committed here,

And let them be recall'd from their exile

They are reformed, civil, full of good, 156

And fit for great employment, worthy lord

Duke Thou hast prevail'd, I pardon them,

and thee

Dispose of them as thou know'st their deserts

Come, let us go we will include all jars 160

With triumphs, mirth, and rare solemnity

Val And as we walk along, I dare be bold

With our discourse to make your Grace to smile

What think you of this page, my lord? 164

Duke I think the boy hath grace in him he blushes

Val I warrant you, my lord, more grace than boy

Duke What mean you by that saying?

Val Please you, I'll tell you as we pass along,

That you will wonder what hath fortun'd 169

Come, Proteus, 'tis your penance, but to hear

The story of your loves discovered

That done, our day of marriage shall be yours,

One feast, one house, one mutual happiness 173

[Exeunt]

SCENE — Windsor, and the Neighbourhood

ACT I

SCENE I — Windsor. Before PAGE's House

Enter JUSTICE SHALLOW, SLENDER, and SIR HUGH EVANS

Shal Sir Hugh, persuade me not, I will make a Star-chamber matter of it, if he were twenty Sir John Falstaffs he shall not abuse Robert Shallow esquire 4

Slen In the county of Gloster, justice of peace, and coram

Shal Ay, cousin Slender, and cust-alorum

Slen Ay, and rato-lorum too, and a gentleman born, Master Parson who writes himself armigero, in any bill, warrant, quittance, or obligation,—armigero 11

Shal Ay, that I do, and have done any time these three hundred years

Slen All his successors gone before him hath done it, and all his ancestors that come after him may they may give the dozen white luses in their coat 17

Shal It is an old coat

Eva The dozen white louses do become an old coat well, it agrees well, passant it is a familiar bea t to man, and signifies love 21

Shal The luse is the fresh fish, the salt fish is an old coat

Slen I ma/ quarter, coz? 24

Shal You may, by marrying

Eva It is marring indeed, if he quarter it

Shal Not a whit

Eva Yes, py'r lady, if he has a quarter of your coat, there is but three skirts for yourself, in my simple conjectures but that is all one If Sir John Falstaff have committed disparagements unto you, I am of the Church, and will be glad to do my benevolence to make atonements and compromises between you 34

Shal The Council shall hear it, it is a riot

Eva It is not meet the Council hear a riot; there is no fear of Got in a riot. The Council, look you, shall desire to hear the fear of Got, and not to hear a riot, take your vizaments in that.

Shal Ha! o' my life, if I were young again, the sword should end it. 41

Eva It is petter that friends is the sword, and end it, and there is also another device in my prain, which, peradventure, prings goot discretions with it There is Anne Page, which is daughter to Master Thomas Page, which is pretty virginity

Slen Mistress Anne Page? She has brown hair, and speaks small like a woman 49

Eva It is that fery person for all the orld, as just as you will desire, and seven hundred pounds of moneys, and gold and silver, is her grandsire, upon his death's-bed,—Got deliver to a joyful resurrections!—give, when she is able to overtake seventeen years old It were a goot motion if we leave our pribles and prabbles, and desire a marriage between Master Abraham and Mistress Anne Page

Shal Did her grandsire leave her seven hundred pound? 60

Eva Ay, and her father is make her a petter penny

Shal I know the young gentlewoman, she has good gifts 64

Eva Seven hundred pounds and possibilities is goot gifts

Shal Well, let us see honest Master Page Is Falstaff there? 68

Eva Shall I tell you a he? I do despise a liar as I do despise one that is false, or as I despise one that is not true The knight, Sir John, is there, and, I beseech you, be ruled by your well-willers I will peat the door for Master Page [Knocks] What, ho! Got pless your house here!

Page [Within] Who's there? 76

Eva Here is Got's plessing, and your friend, and Justice Shallow, and here young Master Slender, that peradventures shall tell you another tale, if matters grow to your likings 80

Enter PAGE.

Page I am glad to see your worships well. I thank you for my venison, Master Shallow Shal Master Page, I am glad to see you much good do it your good heart! I wished your venison better it was ill killed How doth good- 82

Mistress Page?—and I thank you always with my heart, la! with my heart

Page Sir, I thank you

Shal Sir, I thank you, by yea and no, I do

Page I am glad to see you, good Master Slender

Slen How does your fallow greyhound, sir? I heard say he was outrun on Cotsall

Page It could not be judged, sir

Slen You'll not confess, you'll not confess

Shal That he will not 'tis your fault, 'tis your fault 'Tis a good dog

Page A cur, sir

Shal Sir, he's a good dog, and a fair dog, can there be more said? he is good and fair

Is Sir John Falstaff here?

Page Sir, he is within, and I would I could do a good office between you

Eva It is spoke as a Christians ought to speak

Shal He hath wronged me, Master Page

Page Sir, he doth in some sort confess it

Shal If it be confessed, it is not redressed is not that so, Master Page? He hath wronged me, indeed, he hath,—at a word, he hath,—believe me Robert Shallow, esquire, saith, he is wronged

Enter SIR JOHN FALSTAFF, BARDOLPH, NYM, and PISTOL

Fal Now, Master Shallow, you'll complain of me to the king?

Shal Knight, you have beaten my men, killed my deer, and broke open my lodge

Fal But not kissed your keeper's daughter?

Shal Tut, a pin! this shall be answered

Fal I will answer it straight I have done all this That is now answered

Shal The Council shall know this

Fal 'Twere better for you if it were known in counsel you'll be laughed at

Eva Pauca verba, Sir John, goot worts

Fal Good worts! good cabbage Slender, I broke your head what matter have you against me?

Slen Marry, sir, I have matter in my head against you, and against your cony-catching rascals, Bardolph, Nym, and Pistol They carried me to the tavern, and made me drunk, and afterwards picked my pocket Bard You Banbury cheese!

Slen Ay, it is no matter

Pist How now, Mephistophilus!

Slen Ay, it is no matter

Nym Slice, I say! pauca, pauca, slice! that's my humour

Slen Where's Simple, my man? can you tell, cousin?

Eva Peace, I pray you Now let us understand there is three umpires in this matter as I understand, that is—Master Page, fidelicet, Master Page, and there is myself, fidelicet, myself, and the three party is, lastly and finally, mine host of the Garter

Page We three, to hear it and end it between them.

Eva Fery goot I will make a prief of it in my note-book, and we will afterwards ork upon the cause with as great discreetly as we can Fal Pistol!

Pist He hears with ears

Eva The tovil and his tam! what phrase is this, 'He hears with ear?' Why, it is affectations Fal Pistol, did you pick Master Slender's purse?

Slen Ay, by these gloves, did he,—or I would I might never come in mine own great chamber again else,—of seven groats in mill-sixpences, and two Edwards' hovel-boards, that cost me two shilling and two pence a-piece of Yead Miller, by these gloves

Fal Is this true, Pistol?

Eva No, it is false, if it is a pick-purse

Pist Ha, thou mountain foreigner!—Sir John and master mine,

I combat challenge of this latten bilbo Word of demal in thy labras here!

Word of demal froth and scum, thou leest

Slen By these gloves, then, 'twas he Nym Be advised, sir, and pass good humours I will say, 'marry trap,' with you, if you run the nuthook's humour on me that is the very note of it

Slen By this hat, then, he in the red face had it, for though I cannot remember what I did when you made me drunk, yet I am not altogether an ass Fal What say you, Scarlet and John?

Bard Why, sir, for my part I say, the gentleman had drunk himself out of his five sentences

Eva It is his 'five sunses,' fie, what the ignorance is!

Bard And being fap, sir, was, as they say, cashier'd, and so conclusions pass'd the careers

Slen Ay, you spake in Latin then too but 'tis no matter I'll ne'er be drunk whilst I live again, but in honest, civil, godly company, for this trick if I be drunk, I'll be drunk with those that have the fear of God, and not with drunken knaves

Eva So Got udge me, that is a virtuous mind

Fal You hear all these matters denied, gentlemen, you hear it

Enter ANNE PAGE, with Wine MISTRESS FORD and MISTRESS PAGE

Page Nay, daughter, carry the wine in, we'll drink within

Slen O heaven! this is Mistress Anne Page

Fal Mistress Ford, by my troth, you are very well met by your leave, good mistress

Page Wife, bid these gentlemen welcome Come, we have a hot venison pasty to dinner come, gentlemen, I hope we shall drink down all unkindness

[Exeunt all but SHALLOW, SLENDER, and EVANS] Slen I had rather than forty shillings I had my Book of Songs and Sonnets here

Enter SIMPLE

How now, Simple! Where have you been? I must wait on myself, must I? You have not the Book of Riddles about you, have you? 209

Sim Book of Riddles! why, did you not lend it to Alice Shortcake upon All-Hallowmas last, a fortnight afore Michaelmas? 212

Shal Come, coz, come, coz, we stay for you. A word with you, coz, marry, this, coz there is, as 'twere a tender, a kind of tender, made afar off by Sir Hugh here do you understand me? 216

Slen Ay, sir, you shall find me reasonable if it be so, I shall do that that is reason. 218

Shal Nay, but understand me

Slen So I do, sir 220

Eva Give ear to his motions, Master Slender. I will description the matter to you, if you pe capacity of it

Slen Nay, I will do as my cousin Shallow says. I pray you pardon me, he's a justice of peace in his country, simple though I stand here

Eva But that is not the question, the question is concerning your marriage 228

Shal Ay, there's the point, sir

Eva Marry, is it, the very point of it, to Mistress Anne Page

Slen Why, if it be so, I will marry her upon any reasonable demands 233

Eva But can you affection the 'oman? Let us command to know that of your mouth or of your lips, for divers philosophers hold that the lips is parcel of the mouth therefore, precisely, can you carry your good will to the maid? 239

Shal Cousin Abraham Slender, can you love her?

Slen I hope, sir, I will do as it shall become one that would do reason 243

Eva Nay, God's lords and his ladies! you must speak possitable, if you can carry her your desires towards her

Shal That you must. Will you, upon good dowry, marry her? 248

Slen I will do a greater thing than that, upon your request, cousin, in any reason

Shal Nay, conceive me, conceive me, sweet coz what I do, is to pleasure you, coz Can you love the maid? 253

Slen I will marry her, sir, at your request, but if there be no great love in the beginning, yet heaven may decrease it upon better acquaintance, when we are married and have more occasion to know one another. I hope, upon familiarity will grow more contempt but if you say, 'Marry her,' I will marry her, that I am freely dissolved, and dissolutely 261

Eva It is a fery discretion answer, save, the fault is in the ort 'dissolutely' the ort is, according to our meaning, 'resolutely' His meaning is good

Shal Ay, I think my cousin meant well

Slen Ay, or else I would I might be hanged, la! 268

Shal Here comes fair Mistress Anne

Re-enter ANNE PAGE

Would I were young for your sake, Mistress Anne

Anne The dinner is on the table, my father desires your worships' company 273

Shal I will wait on him, fair Mistress Anne

Eva Od s plessed will! I will not be absence at the grace 276

[Exeunt SHALLOW and EVANS]

Anne Will't please your worship to come in, sir? 280

Slen No, I thank you, forsooth, heartily, I am very well

Anne The dinner attends you, sir

Slen I am not a-hungry, I thank you forsooth. Go, sirrah, for all you are my man, go wait upon my cousin Shallow. [Exit SIMPLE] A justice of peace sometime may be beholding to his friend for a man. I keep but three men and a boy yet, till my mother be dead, but what though? yet I live like a poor gentleman born 289

Anne I may not go in without your worship they will not sit till you come

Slen P' faith, I'll eat nothing, I thank you as much as though I did

Anne I pray you, sir, walk in 294

Slen I had rather walk here, I thank you. I bruised my shin th' other day with playing at sword and dagger with a master of fence, three veneyes for a dish of stewed prunes,—and, by my troth, I cannot abide the smell of hot meat since. Why do your dogs bark so? be there bears i' the town? 301

Anne I think there are, sir, I heard them talked of Slen I love the sport well, but I shall as soon quarrel at it as any man in England. You are afraid, if you see the bear loose, are you not? 308

Anne Ay, indeed, sir

Slen That's meat and drink to me, now I have seen Sackerson loose twenty times, and have taken him by the chain, but, I warrant you, the women have so cried and shrieked at it, that it passed but women, indeed, cannot abide 'em, they are very ill-favoured rough things 315

Re-enter PAGE

Page Come, gentle Master Slender, come, we stay for you

Slen I'll eat nothing, I thank you, sir

Page By cock and pie, you shall not choose, sir! come, come 320

Slen Nay, pray you, lead the way

Page Come on, sir

Slen Mistress Anne, yourself shall go first.

Anne Not I, sir, pray you, keep on. 324

Slen Truly, I will not go first truly, la! I will not do you that wrong

Anne I pray you, sir

Slen I'll rather be unmannerly than troublesome. You do yourself wrong, indeed, la! 329

[Exeunt]

SCENE II — The SameEnter SIR HUGH EVANS and SIMPLY

Eva Go your ways, and ask of Doctor Carus' house, which is the way and there dwells one Mistress Quickly, which is in the manner of his nurse, or his try nurse, or his cook, or his laundry, his washer, and his wringer

Sim Well, sir

Eva Nay, it is better yet Give her this letter, for it is a 'oman that altogether s acquaintance with Mistress Anne Page and the letter is, to desire and require her to solicit your master's desires to Mistress Anne Page I pray you, be gone I will make an end of my dinner, there's pippins and seese to come

[Exeunt

SCENE III — A Room in the Garter InnEnter FALSTAFF, Host, BARDOLPH, NYM, PISTOL, and ROBIN

Fal Mine host of the Garter!

Host Whatsaysmy bully-rook? Speak scholarly and wisely

Fal Truly, mine host, I must turn away some of my followers

Host Discard, bully Hercules, cashier let them wag, trot, trot

Fal I sit at ten pounds a week

Host Thou'rt an emperor, Cæsar, Keisar, and Pheezar I will entertain Bardolph, he shall draw, he shall tap said I well, bully Hector?

Fal Do so, good mine host

Host I have spoke, let him follow [To BARD] Let me see thee froth and lume I am at a word, follow

Fal Bardolph, follow him A tapster is a good trade an old cloak makes a new jerkin, a withered serving man a fresh tapster Go, adieu Bard It is a life that I have desired I will thrive

Pist O base Hungarian wight! wilt thou the spigot wield?

Nym He was gotten in drink, is not the humour conceited?

Fal I am glad I am so acquit of this tinder-box, his thefts were too open, his fitching was like an unskilful singer, he kept not time

Nym The good humour is to steal at a minims rest

Pist 'Convey,' the wise it call 'Steal!' foh! a fico for the phrase!

Fal Well, sirs, I am almost out at heels

Pist Why, then, let kibes ensue

Fal There is no remedy, I must cony-catch, I must shift

Pist Young ravens must have food

Fal Which of you know Ford of this town?

Pist I ken the wight he is of substance good Fal My honest lads, I will tell you what I am about

Pist Two yards, and more

Fal No quips now, Pistol! Indeed, I am in the waist two yards about, but I am now about no waste, I am about thrift Briefly, I do mean to make love to Ford's wife I spy entertainment in her, she discourses, she carves, she gives the leer of invitation I can construe the action of her familiar style, and the hardest voice of her behaviour, to be Englished rightly, is, 'I am Sir John Falstaff's'

Pist He hath studied her well, and translated her well, out of honesty into English

Nym The anchor is deep will that humour pass?

Fal Now, the report goes she has all the rule of her husband's purse, he hath a legion of angels

Pist As many devils entertain, and 'To her, boy,' say I

Nym The humour rises, it is good humour me the angels

Fal I have writ me here a letter to her, and here another to Page's wife, who even now gave me good eyes too, examined my parts with most judicious celliades sometimes the beam of her view gilded my foot, sometimes my portly belly

Pist Then did the sun on dunghill shine

Nym I thank thee for that humour

Fal O! she did so course o'er my exteriors with such a greedy intention, that the appetite of her eye did seem to scorch me up like a burning-glass Here's another letter to her she bears the purse too, she is a region in Guiana, all gold and bounty I will be 'cheator to them both, and they shall be exchequers to me they shall be my East and West Indies, and I will trade to them both Go bear thou this letter to Mistress Page and thou this to Mistress Ford We will thrive, lads, we will thrive

Pist Shall I Sir Pandarus of Troy become, And by my side wear steel? then, Lucifer take all!

Nym I will run no base humour here, take the humour-letter I will keep the haviour of reputation

Fal [To ROBIN] Hold, sirrah, bear you these letters tightly

Sail like my pinnace to these golden shores

Rogues, hence! avaunt! vanish like hailstones, go,

Trudge plod away o' the hoof, seek shelter, pack!

Falstaff will learn the humour of this age, French thrift, you rogues myself and skirted page

Pist Let vukures gripe thy guts! for gourd and fullam holds,

And high and low beguile the rich and poor

Tester I'll have in pouch when thou shalt lack, Base Phrygian Turk!

Nym I have operations in my head, which be humours of revenge

Pist Wilt thou revenge?

Nym By welkin and her star!

Pist With wit or steel?

Nym With both the humours, I

I will discuss the humour of this love to Page.

Pist And I to Ford shall eke unfold

How Falstaff, varlet vile, 104
His dove will prove, his gold will hold,
And his soft couch defile

Nym My humour shall not cool I will incense Page to deal with poison, I will possess him with yellowness, for the revolt of mine is dangerous that is my true humour 110

Pist Thou art the Mars of malcontents I second thee, troop on [Exeunt

SCENE IV —A Room in DOCTOR CAIUS's House

Enter MISTRESS QUICKLY and SIMPLE

Quick What, John Rugby!—

Enter RUGBY

I pray thee, go to the casement, and see if you can see my master, Master Doctor Caius, coming if he do, I' faith, and find anybody in the house, here will be an old abusing of God's patience and the king's English 6

Rug I'll go watch

Quick Go, and we'll have a posset for't soon at night, in faith, at the latter end of a sea-coal fire [Exit RUGBY] An honest, willing, kind fellow, as ever servant shall come in house withal, and, I warrant you, no tell-tale, nor no breed-bate his worst fault is, that he is given to prayer, he is something peevish that way, but nobody but has his fault, but let that pass Peter Simple you say your name is? 16

Sim Ay, for fault of a better

Quick And Master Slender's your master?

Sim Ay, forsooth

Quick Does he not wear a great round beard like a glover's paring-knife? 21

Sim No, forsooth he hath but a little whey-face, with a little yellow beard—a cane-coloured beard 24

Quick A softly sprighted man, is he not?

Sim Ay, forsooth, but he is as tall a man of his hands as any is between this and his head he hath fought with a warrener 28

Quick Howsay you?—O! I should remember him does he not hold up his head, as it were,
and strut in his gait?

Sim Yes, indeed, does he 32

Quick Well, heaven send Anne Page no worse fortune! Tell Master Parson Evans I will do what I can for your master Anne is a good girl, and I wish— 36

Re-enter RUGBY

Rug Out, alas! here comes my master

Quick We shall all be shent Run in here, good young man, go into this closet [Shuts SIM-PLE in the closet] He will not stay long What, John Rugby! John, what, John, I say! Go, John, go inquire for my master I doubt he be not well, that he comes not home [Exit RUGBY] [Sings]

'And down, down, adown-a,' &c.

44

Enter DOCTOR CAIUS.

Caius Vat is you sing? I do not like dese toys Pray you, go and vetch me in my closet une botine verde a box, a green-a box do intend vat I speak? a green-a box 48

Quick Ay, forsooth, I'll fetch it you [Aside]
I am glad he went not in himself if he had found the young man, he would have been horn-mad

Caius Fe, fe, fe, fe! ma foi, il fait fort chaud Je m'en vais à la cour,—la grande affaire 54

Quick Is it this, sir?

Caius Oui, mettez le au mon pocket, dépechez, quickly —Vere is dat knave Rugby?

Quick What, John Rugby! John! 58

Re-enter RUGBY

Rug Here, sir

Caius You are John Rugby, and you are Jack Rugby come, take-a your rapier, and come after my heel to de court

Rug 'Tis ready, sir, here in the porch 63

Caius By my trot, I tarry too long—Od's me! Qu'ay j'oublié? dere is some simples in my closet, dat I vill not for de varld I shall leave behind 67

Quick [Aside] Ay me! he'll find the young man there, and be mad

Caius O diable! diable! vat is in my closet?
—Villain! larron! [Pulling SIMPLE out] Rugby, my rapier! 72

Quick Good master, be content

Caius Verefore shall I be content-a?

Quick The young man is an honest man

Caius Vat shall de honest man do in my closet? dere is no honest man dat shall come in my closet 78

Quick I beseech you, be not so phlegmatic Hear the truth of it he came of an errand to me from Parson Hugh. 81

Caius Vell

Sim Ay, forsooth, to desire her to—

Quick Peace, I pray you 84

Caius Peace-a your tongue!—Speak-a your tale

Sim To desire this honest gentlewoman, your maid, to speak a good word to Mistress Anne Page for my master in the way of marriage 89

Quick This is all, indeed, la! but I'll ne'er put my finger in the fire, and need not

Caius Sir Hugh send-a you?—Rugby, baillez me some paper tarry you a little-a while 93

[Writes]

Quick I am glad he is so quiet if he had been thoroughly moved, you should have heard him so loud, and so melancholy But, notwithstanding, man, I'll do your master what good I can, and the very yea and the no is, the French doctor, my master,—I may call him my master, look you, for I keep his house, and I wash, wring, brew, bake, scour, dress meat and drink, make the beds, and do all myself,— 102

Sim 'Tis a great charge to come under one body's hand

Quick Are you avis'd o' that? you shall find it a great charge and to be up early and down late, but notwithstanding,—to tell you in your ear,—I would have no words of it,—my master himself is in love with Mistress Anne Page but notwithstanding that, I know Anne's mind, that's neither here nor there 111

Caus You jack'nape, give-a dis letter to Sir Hugh, by gar, it is a challenge I vill cut his throat in de Park, and I vill teach a scurvy jack-a-nape priest to meddle or make You may be gone, it is not good you tarry here by gar, I vill cut all his two stones, by gar, he shall not have a stone to throw at his dog [Exit SIMPLE

Quick Alas! he speaks but for his friend 119
Caus It is no matter-a for dat —do not you tell-a me dat I shall have Anne Page for myself? By gar, I vill kill de Jack priest, and I have appointed mine host of de Jartiere to measure our weapon By gar, I vill myself have Anne Page

Quick Sir, the maid loves you, and all shall be well We must give folks leave to prate what, the good-jer! 127

Caus Rugby, come to the court wit me By gar, if I have not Anne Page, I shall turn your head out of my door Follow my heels, Rugby [Exeunt CAUS and RUGBY

Quick You shall have An fool's-head of your own No, I know Anne's mind for that never a woman in Windsor knows more of Anne's mind than I do, nor can do more than I do with her I thank heaven

Fent [Within] Who's within there? ho! 136

Quick Who's there, I trow? Come near the house, I pray you

Enter FENTON

Fent How now, good woman! how dost thou?
Quick The better, that it pleases your good worship to ask 141

Fent What news? how does pretty Mistress Anne? 141

Quick In truth, sir, and she is pretty, and honest, and gentle, and one that is your friend, I can tell you that by the way, I praise heaven for it

Fent Shall I do any good, thinkest thou? Shall I not lose my suit? 149

Quick Troth, sir, all is in his hands above, but notwithstanding, Master Fenton, I'll be sworn on a book, she loves you Have not your worship a wart above your eye? 153

Fent Yes, marry have I, what of that?

Quick Well, thereby hangs a tale Good faith, it is such another Nan, but, I detest, an honest maid as ever broke bread we had an hour's talk of that wart I shall never laugh but in that maid's company,—but, indeed, she is given too much to allicholy and musing But for you—well, go to 161

Fent Well, I shall see her to-day Hold, there's money for thee, let me have thy voice in my behalf if thou seest her before me, commend me 165

Quick Will I? I' faith, that we will and I will tell your worship more of the wart he next time we have confidence, and of other woers 169

Fent Well, farewell, I am in great haste now Quick Farewell to your worship —[Exit FENTON] Truly, an honest gentleman but Anne loves him not, for I know Anne's mind as well as another does Out upon't! what have I forgot? [Exit

ACT II

SCENE I—Before PAGE'S House

Enter MISTRESS PAGE, with a Letter

Mrs Page What! have I 'scaped love-letters in the holiday-time of my beauty, and am I now a subject for them? Let me see

Ask me no reason why I love you for though Love use Reason for his physician he admits him not for his counsellor You are not young, no more am I go to then, there's sympathy, you are merry so am I ha! ha! then, there's more sympathy you love sack and so do I would you desire better sympathy? Let it suffice thee Mistress Page at the least, if the love of a soldier can suffice that I love thee I will not say pity me —'tis not a soldier like phrase, but I say love me By me,

Thine own true knight,
By day or night
Or any kind of light,
With all his might
For thee to fight,

16

JOHN FALSTAFF

What a Herod of Jewry is this! O wicked, wicked world! one that is well-nigh worn to pieces with age, to show himself a young gallant! What an unweighed behaviour hath this Flemish drunkard picked, with the devil's name! out of my conversation, that he dares in this manner assay me? Why, he hath not been thrice in my company! What should I say to him? I was then frugal of my mirth—heaven forgive me! Why, I'll exhibit a bill in the parliament for the putting down of men How shall I be revenged on him? for revenged I will be, as sure as his guts are made of puddings 32

Enter MISTRESS FORD

Mrs Ford Mistress Page! trust me, I was going to your house

Mrs Page And, trust me, I was coming to you You look very ill 36

Mrs Ford Nay, I'll ne'er believe that I have to show to the contrary

Mrs Page Faith, but you do, in my mind

Mrs Ford Well, I do then, yet, I say I could show you to the contrary O, Mistress Page! give me some counsel, 42

Mrs Page What's the matter, woman?

Mrs Ford O woman, if it were not for one trifling respect, I could come to such honour! 45

Mrs Page Hang the trifle, woman, take the honour What is it?—dispense with trifles,—what is it? 48

Mrs Ford If I would but go to hell for an eternal moment or so, I could be knighted.

Mrs Page What? thou liest Sir Alice Ford! These knights will hack, and so thou shouldst not alter the article of thy gentry 53

Mrs Ford We burn daylight here, read, read, perceive how I might be knighted I shall think the worse of fat men as long as I have an eye to make difference of men's liking and yet he would not swear, praised women's modesty, and gave such orderly and well behaved reproof to all uncomeliness, that I would have sworn his disposition would have gone to the truth of his words, but they do no more adhere and keep place together than the Hundredth Psalm to the tune of 'Green Sleeves' What tempest, I throw, threw this whale, with so many tunns of oil in his belly, ashore at Windsor? How shall I be revenged on him? I think, the best way were to entertain him with hope, till the wicked fire of lust have melted him in his own grease Did you ever hear the like? 70

Mrs Page Letter for letter, but that the name of Page and Ford differs! To thy great comfort in this mystery of ill opinions, here's the twin brother of thy letter but let thine inherit first, for, I protest, mine never shall I warrant, he hath a thousand of these letters, writ with blank space for different names, sure more, and these are of the second edition. He will print them, out of doubt, for he cares not what he puts into the press, when he would put us two I had rather be a giantess, and lie under Mount Pelion Well, I will find you twenty lascivious turtles ere one chaste man. 83

Mrs Ford Why, this is the very same, the very hand, the very words What doth he think of us?

Mrs Page Nay, I know not it makes me almost ready to wrangle with mine own honesty I'll entertain myself like one that I am not acquainted withal, for, sure, unless he know some strain in me, that I know not myself, he would never have boarded me in this fury

Mrs Ford Boarding call you it? I'll be sure to keep him above deck 93

Mrs Page So will I if he come under my hatches, I'll never to sea again. Let's be revenged on him let's appoint him a meeting, give him a show of comfort in his suit, and lead him on with a fine-baited delay, till he hath pawned his horses to mine host of the Garter 99

Mrs Ford Nay, I will consent to act any villainy against him, that may not sully the chariness of our honesty O, that my husband saw this letter! it would give eternal food to his jealousy

Mrs Page Why, look, where he comes, and my good man too he's as far from jealousy, as I am from giving him cause, and that, I hope, is an unmeasurable distance

Mrs Ford You are the happier woman 108

Mrs Page Let's consult together against this greasy knight Come hither [They retire

Enter FORD, PISTOL, PAGE, and NYM

Ford Well, I hope it be not so

Pistol Hope is a curtain dog in some places, Sir John affects thy wife.

Ford Why, sir, my wife is not young.

Pistol He woos both high and low, both rich and poor,

Both young and old, one with another, Ford 116
He loves the galimaufry Ford, perpend

Ford Love my wife!

Pistol With liver burning hot prevent, or go thou,

Like Sir Actæon he, with Ringwood at thy heels —

O! odious is the name! 121

Ford What name, sir?

Pistol The horn, I say Farewell

Take heed, have open eye, for thieves do foot by night 124

Take heed, ere summer comes or cuckoo-birds do sing

Away, sir Corporal Nym!

Believe it, Page, he speaks sense [Exit

Ford [Aside] I will be patient I will find out this. 129

Nym [To PAGE] And this is true, I like not the humour of lying He hath wronged me in some humours I should have borne the humoured letter to her, but I have a sword and it shall bite upon my necessity He loves your wife, there's the short and the long My name is Corporal Nym, I speak, and I avouch 'tis true my name is Nym, and Falstaff loves your wife Adieu I love not the humour of bread and cheese, and there's the humour of it Adieu [Exit

Page [Aside] 'The humour of it,' quoth 'at here's a fellow frights humour out of his wits 142

Ford I will seek out Falstaff

Page I never heard such a drawing, affecting rogue 145

Ford If I do find it well

Page I will not believe such a Catalan, though the priest o' the town commended him for a true man 149

Ford 'Twas a good sensible fellow well

Mrs Page Whither go you, George?—Hark you 153

Mrs Ford How now, sweet Frank! why art thou melancholy?

Ford I melancholy! I am not melancholy Get you home, go 157

Mrs Ford Faith, thou hast some crotchets in thy head now Will you go, Mistress Page?

Mrs Page Have with you You'll come to dinner, George? [Aside to MRS FORD] Look, who comes yonder she shall be our messenger to this paltry knight

Mrs Ford Trust me, I thought on her she'll fit it. 165

Enter MISTRESS QUICKLY.

Mrs Page You are come to see my daughter Anne?

Mrs Ford Ay, forsooth, and, I pray, how does Anne? 169

Mrs Page Well, and with us, and see we'd have an hour's talk with you

[Exit MISTRESS QUICKLY, MRS PAGE, MISTRESS FORD, and MISTRESS QUICKLY

Page How now, Master Ford! 172

Ford You heard what this knave told me, did you not?

Page Yes, and you heard what the other told me? 176

Ford Do you think there is truth in them?

Page Hang 'em, slaves! I do not think the knight would offer it but these that accuse him in his intent towards our wives, are a yoke of his discarded men, very rogues, now they be out of service

Ford Were they his men?

Page Marry, were they 184

Ford I like it rever the better for that. Does he lie at the Garter?

Page Ay, marry, does he If he should intend this voyage towards my wife, I would turn her loose to him, and what he gets more of her than sharp words, let it lie on my head

Ford I do not misdoubt my wife, but I would be loath to turn them together A man may be too confident I would have nothing 'he on my head ' I cannot be thus satisfied 194

Page Look, where my ranting host of the Garter comes There is either liquor in his pate or money in his purse when he looks so merrily — 198

Enter Host and SHALLOW.

How now, mine host!

Host How now, bully-rook! thou'rt a gentleman Cavaliero-justice, I say! 201

Shal Ifollow, mine host, I follow Goodeven and twenty, good Master Page! Master Page, will you go with us? we have sport in hand 204

Host Tell him, cavaliero-justice, tell him, bully-rook

Shal Sir, there is a fray to be fought between Sir Hugh the Welsh priest and Caus the French doctor 209

Ford Good mine host o' the Garter, a word with you

Host What sayest thou, my bully-rook? 212

Shal [To PAGE] Will you go with us to behold it? My merry host hath had the measuring of their weapons, and, I think, hath appointed them contrary places, for, believe me, I hear the parson is no jester Hark, I will tell you what our sport shall be [They go aside]

Host Hast thou no suit against my knight, my guest-cavalier? 220

Ford None, I protest but I'll give you a pottle of burnt sack to give me recourse to him and tell him my name is Brook, only for a jest

Host My hand, bully thou shalt have egress and regress, said I well? and thy name shall be Brook It is a merry knight Will you go, mynheers?

Shal Have with you, mine host 228

Page I have heard, the Frenchman hath good skill in his rapier

Shal Tut, sir! I could have told you more In these times you stand at distance, your passes, stoccadoes, and know not what 'tis the heart, Master Page, 'tis here, 'tis here have seen the time with my long sword I have made you four tall fellows skip like rats 236

Host Here, boys, here, here! shall we wag?

Page Have with you I had rather hear them scold than fight

[Exeunt Host, SHALLOW, and PAGE]

Ford Though Page be a secure fool, and stands so firmly on his wife's frailty, yet I cannot put off my opinion so easily She was in his company at Page's house, and what they made there, I know not Well, I will look further into t, and I have a disguise to sound Falstaff If I find her honest, I lose not my labour, if she be otherwise, 'tis labour well bestowed [Exit]

SCENE II — A Room in the Garter Inn.

Enter FALSTAFF and PISTOL

Fal I will not lend thee a penny

Pist Why, then the world's mine oyster, Which I with sword will open

I will retort the sum in equipage 4

Fal Not a penny I have been content, sir, you should lay my countenance to pawn I have grated upon my good friends for three reprieves for you and your coach-fellow Nym, or else you had looked through the grate, like a gemmy of baboons I am damned in hell for swearing to gentlemen my friends, you were good soldiers and tall fellows, and when Mistress Bridget lost the handle of her fan, I took 't upon mine honour thou hadst it not 14

Pist Didst thou not share? hadst thou not fifteen pence?

Fal Reason, you rogue, reason thinkest thou, I'll endanger my soul gratis? At a word, hang no more about me, I am no gibbet for you go a short knife and a throng!—to your manor of Picket-hatch! go You'll not bear a letter for me, you rogue!—you stand upon your honour!—Why, thou unconfinable baseness, it is as much as I can do to keep the terms of mine honour precise I, I, I, myself sometimes, leaving the fear of God on the left hand and hiding mine honour in my necessity, am fain to shuffle, to hedge and to lurch, and yet you, rogue, will ensconce your rags, your cat-a-mountain looks, your red-lattice phrases, and your bold-beating oaths, under the shelter of your honour! You will not do it, you!

Pist I do relent what wouldst thou more of man? 32

Enter ROBIN

Rob Sir, here's a woman would speak with you

Fal Let her approach.

Enter MISTRESS QUICKLY

Quick Give your worship good morrow 36

Fal Good morrow, good wife

Quick Not so, an't please your worship.

Fal Good maid, then.

Quick I have sworn 40
As my mother was, the first hour I was born.

Fal I do believe the swearer What with me?
Quick Shall I vouchsafe your worship a word or two? 44

Fal Two thousand, fair woman, and I'll vouchsafe thee the hearing

Quick There is one Mistress Ford, sir,—I pray, come a little nearer this ways—I myself dwell with Master Doctor Causus 49

Fal Well, on Mistress Ford, you say,—

Quick Your worship says very true—I pray your worship, come a little nearer this ways 52

Fal I warrant thee, nobody hears, mine own people, mine own people

Quick Are they so? God bless them, and make them his servants! 56

Fal Well Mistress Ford, what of her?

Quick Why, sir, she's a good creature Lord, Lord! your worship's a wanton! Well, heaven forgive you, and all of us, I pray! 60

Fal Mistress Ford, come, Mistress Ford,—

Quick Marry, this is the short and the long of it. You have brought her into such a canaries as 'tis wonderful the best courtier of them all, when the court lay at Windsor, could never have brought her to such a canary, yet there has been knights, and lords, and gentlemen, with their coaches, I warrant you, coach after coach, letter after letter, gift after gift, smelling so sweetly—all musk, and so rushing, I warrant you, in silk and gold, and in such alligant terms, and in such wine and sugar of the best and the fairest, that would have won any woman's heart, and, I warrant you, they could never get an eye-wink of her I had myself twenty angels given me this morning, but I defy all angels, in any such sort, as they say, but in the way of honesty and, I warrant you, they could never get her so much as sip on a cup with the proudest of them all, and yet there has been earls, nay, which is more, pensioners, but, I warrant you, all is one with her

Fal But what says she to me? be brief, my good she-Mercury 83

Quick Marry, she hath received your letter, for the which she thanks you a thousand times, and she gives you to notify that her husband will be absence from his house between ten and eleven 88

Fal Ten and eleven?

Quick Ay, forsooth, and then you may come and see the picture, she says, that you wot of Master Ford, her husband, will be from home

Alas! the sweet woman leads an ill life with him, he's a very jealousy man; she leads a very frampold life with him, good heart.

Fal Ten and eleven Woman, commend me to her, I will not fail her 97

Quick Why, you say well But I have another messenger to your worship Mistress Page hath her hearty commendations to you too and let me tell you in your ear, she's as fartuous a civil modest wife, and one, I tell you, that will not miss you morning nor evening prayer, as any is in Windsor, whoe'er be the other and she bade me tell your worship that her husband is seldom from home, but, she hopes there will come a time. I never knew a woman so dote upon a man surely, I think you have charms, la, yes, in truth 109

Fal Not I, I assure thee setting the attraction of my good parts aside, I have no other charms

Quick Blessing on your heart for 't! 112

Fal But, I pray thee, tell me this has Ford's wife and Page's wife acquainted each other how they love me? 115

Quick That were a jest indeed! they have not so little grace, I hope that were a trick, indeed! But Mistress Page would desire you to send her your little page, of all loves her husband has a marvellous infection to the little page, and, truly, Master Page is an honest man

Never a wife in Windsor leads a better life than she does do what she will, say what she will, take all, pay all, go to bed when she list, rise when she list, all is as she will and, truly she deserves it, for if there be a kind woman in Windsor, she is one You must send her your page, no remedy 128

Fal Why, I will

Quick Nay, but do so, then and, look you, he may come and go between you both, and in any case have a nay-word, that you may know one another's mind, and the boy never need to understand any thing, for 'tis not good that children should know any wickedness old folks, you know, have discretion, as they say, and know the world 137

Fal Fare thee well commend me to them both There's my purse, I am yet thy debtor—Boy, go along with this woman—[Exeunt MISTRESS QUICKLY and ROBIN] This news distracts me 142

Pist This punk is one of Cupid's carriers Clap on more sails, pursue, up with your fights, Give fire! she is my prize, or oceanwhelm them all! [Exit]

Fal Sayest thou so, old Jack? go thy ways, I'll make more of thy old body than I have done Will they yet look after thee? Wilt thou, after the expense of so much money, be now a gainer? Good body, I thank thee Let them say 'tis grossly done, so it be fairly done, no matter 151

Enter BARDOLPH, with a cup of Sack.

Bard Sir John, there's one Master Brook below would fain speak with you, and be acquainted with you and hath sent your worship a morning's draught of sack.

Fal Brook is his name?— 156

Bard Ay, sir

Fal Call him in. [Exit BARDOLPH] Such Brooks are welcome to me, that o'erflow such liquor Ah, ha! Mistress Ford and Mistress Page, have I encompassed you? go to, via! 161

Re-enter BARDOLPH, with FORD disguised.

Ford Bless you, sir!

Fal And you, sir, would you speak with me?

Ford I make bold to press with so little preparation upon you 165

Fal You're welcome. What's your will?—Give us leave, drawer [Exit BARDOLPH.]

Ford Sir, I am a gentleman that have spent much my name is Brook 169

Fal Good Master Brook, I desire more acquaintance of you

Ford Good Sir John, I sue for yours not to charge you, for I must let you understand I think myself in better plight for a lender than you are the which hath something emboldened me to this unseasoned intrusion, for, they say, if money go before, all ways do lie open 177

Fal Money is a good soldier, sir, and will on

Ford Troth, and I have a bag of money here troubles me if you will help to bear it, Sir John, take all, or half, for easing me of the carriage 183

Fal Sir, I know not how I may deserve to be your porter

Ford I will tell you, sir, if you will give me the hearing.

Fal Speak, good Master Brook, I shall be glad to be your servant 189

Ford Sir, I hear you are a scholar,—I will be brief with you, and you have been a man long known to me, though I had never so good means, as desire, to make myself acquainted with you I shall discover a thing to you, wherein I must very much lay open mine own imperfection, but, good Sir John, as you have one eye upon my follies, as you hear them unfolded, turn another into the register of your own, that I may pass with a reproof the easier, sith you yourself know how easy it is to be such an offender 200

Fal Very well, sir, proceed Ford There is a gentlewoman in this town, her husband's name is Ford

Fal Well, sir 204
Ford I have long loved her, and, I protest to you, bestowed much on her, followed her with a doting observance, engrossed opportunities to meet her, fee'd every slight occasion that could but niggardly give me sight of her, not only bought many presents to give her, but have given largely to many to know what she would have given Briefly, I have pursued her as love hath pursued me, which hath been on the wing of all occasions But whatsoever I have merited, either in my mind or in my means, meed, I am sure, I have received none, unless experience be a jewel that I have purchased at an infinite rate, and that hath taught me to say this,

Love like a shadow flies when substance love pursues, 220
Pursuing that that flies and flying what pursues

Fal Have you received no promise of satisfaction at her hands?

Ford Never 224
Fal Have you importuned her to such a purpose?

Ford Never
Fal Of what quality was your love, then? 228

Ford Like a fair house built upon another man's ground, so that I have lost my edifice by mistaking the place where I erected it

Fal To what purpose have you unfolded this to me? 233

Ford When I have told you that, I have told you all. Someday, that though she appear honest to me, yet in other places she enlargeth her mirth so far that there is shrewd construction made of her Now, Sir John, here is the heart of my purpose you are a gentleman of excellent breeding, admirable discourse, of great admittance, authentic in your place and person, generally allowed for your many war-like, court-like, and learned preparations

Fal O, sir! 244

Ford Believe it, for you know it There is money, spend it, spend it, spend more, spend all I have, only give me so much of your time in exchange of it, as to lay an amiable siege to the honesty of this Ford's wife use your art of wooing, win her to consent to you, if any man may, you may as soon as any 251

Fal Would it apply well to the vehemency of your affection, that I should win what you would enjoy? Methinks you prescribe to yourself very preposterously 255

Ford O, understand my drift She dwells so securely on the excellency of her honour, that the folly of my soul dares not present itself she is too bright to be looked against Now, could I come to her with any detection in my hand, my desires had instance and argument to commend themselves I could drive her then from the ward of her purity, her reputation, her marriage-vow, and a thousand other her defences, which now are too-too strongly embattled against me What say you to't, Sir John? 266

Fal Master Brook, I will first make bold with your money, next, give me your hand, and last, as I am a gentleman, you shall, if you will, enjoy Ford's wife

Ford O good sir! 272 Fal I say you shall Ford Want no money, Sir John, you shall want none

Fal Want no Mistress Ford, Master Brook, you shall want none I shall be with her, I may tell you, by her own appointment, even as you came in to me, her assistant or go-between parted from me I say I shall be with her between ten and eleven, for at that time the jealous rascally knave her husband will be forth Come you to me at night, you shall know how I speed 283

Ford I am blest in your acquaintance Do you know Ford, sir?

Fal Hang him, poor cuckoldly knave! I know him not. Yet I wrong him, to call him poor they say the jealous wittolly knave hath masses of money, for the which his wife seems to me well-favoured I will use her as the key of the cuckoldly rogue's coffer, and there's my harvest-home 292

Ford I would you knew Ford, sir, that you might avoid him, if you saw him.

Fal Hang him, mechanical salt-butter rogue! I will stare him out of his wits, I will awe him with my cudgel it shall hang like a meteor o'er the cuckold's horns Master Brook, thou shalt know I will predominate over the peasant, and thou shalt lie with his wife Come to me soon at night Ford's a knave, and I will aggravate his style, thou, Master Brook, shalt know him for knave and cuckold Come to me soon at night

[Exit

Ford What a damned Epicurean rascal is this! My heart is ready to crack with impatience Who says this is improvident jealousy? my wife hath sent to him, the hour is fixed, the match is made Would any man have thought this? See the hell of having a false woman! My bed shall be abused, my coffers ransacked, my reputation gnawn at, and I shall not only receive this villanous wrong, but stand under the adoption of abominable terms, and by him that does me this wrong Terms! names! Ammon sounds well, Lucifer, well, Barbasen, well, yet they are devil's additions, the names of fiends but Cuckold! Wittol!—Cuckold! the devil himself hath not such a name Page is an ass, a secure ass he will trust his wife, he will not be jealous I will rather trust a Fleming with my butter, Parson Hugh the Welshman with my cheese, an Irishman with my aqua-vitæ bottle, or a thief to walk my ambling gelding, than my wife with herself then she plots, then she ruminates, then she devises, and what they think in their hearts they may effect, they will break their hearts but they will effect God be praised for my jealousy! Eleven o'clock the hour I will prevent this, detect my wife, be revenged on Falstaff, and laugh at Page I will about it, better three hours too soon than a minute too late Fie fie, fie! cuckold! cuckold! cuckold! [Exit Caus By gar, 'tis good, vell said.

Host Let us wag, then 100

Caus Come at my heels, Jack Rugby [Exeunt]

ACT III

SCENE I—A Field near Frogmore

Enter SIR HUGH EVANS and SIMPLE

Eva I pray you now, good Master Slender's serving-man, and friend Simple by your name, which way have you looked for Master Caus, that calls himself doctor of physic? 4

Sim Marry, sir, the pittie-ward, the park-ward, every way, old Windsor way, and every way but the town way

Eva I most feheemently desire you you will also look that way 9

Sim I will, sir [Exit]

Eva Pless my soul! how full of chollors I am, and tremping of mind! I shall be glad if he have deceived me. How melancholies I am! I will knog his urnials about his knave's costard when I have goot opportunities for the 'ork pless my soul! [Sings]

To shallow rivers, to whose falls
Melodious birds sing madrigals,
There will we make our peds of roses,
And a thousand fragrant posies
To shallow— 17

Mercy on me! I have a great dispositions to cry [Sings]

Melodious birds sing madrigals,—
When as I sat in Pabylon—
And a thousand vagram posies.
To shallow— 24

Re-enter SIMPLE

Sim Yonder he is coming, this way, Sir Hugh

Eva He's welcome [Sings]

To shallow rivers, to whose falls— 29

Heaven prosper the right!—what weapons is he?

Sim No weapons, sir. There comes my master, Master Shallow, and another gentleman, from Frogmore, over the stile, this way 33

Eva Pray you, give me my gown, or else keep it in your arms [Reads in a book]

Enter PAGE, SHALLOW, and SLENDER

Shal How now, Master Parson! Good morrow, good Sir Hugh. Keep a gamester from the dice, and a good student from his book, and it is wonderful

Slen [Aside] Ah, sweet Anne Page! 40

Eva Pless you from His mercy sake, all of you!

Shal What, the sword and the word! do you study them both, Master Parson? 45

Page And youthful still in your doublet and hose! this raw rheumatic day?

Eva There is reasons and causes for it 48

Page We are come to you to do a good office, Master parson

Eva Fery well what is it?

Page Yonder is a most reverend gentleman, who, belike having received wrong by some person, is at most odds with his own gravity and patience that ever you saw 55

Shal I have lived fourscore years and upward, I never heard a man of his place, gravity, and learning, so wide of his own respect

Eva What is he?

Page I think you know him, Master Doctor Caus, the renowned French physician 61

Eva Got's will, and his passion of my heart! I had as lief you would tell me of a mess of porridge 64

Page Why?

Eva He has no more knowledge in Hibbocrates and Galen,—and he is a knave besides, a cowardly knave as you would desires to be acquainted withal

Page I warrant you, he's the man should fight with him

Slen [Aside] O, sweet Anne Page! 72

Shal It appears so, by his weapons. Keep them asunder here comes Doctor Caus

Enter Host, CAUS, and RUGBY

Page Nay, good Master parson, keep in your weapon 76

Shal So do you, good Master doctor. Disarm them, and let them question let them keep their limbs whole and hack our English 80

Caus I pray you, let-a me speak a word vit your ear before vill you not meet-a me?

Eva [Aside to Caus] Pray you, use your patience in good time 84

Caus By gar, you are de coward, de Jack dog, John ape

Eva [Aside to Caus] Pray you, let us not be laughing-stogs to other men's humours, I desire you in friendship, and I will one way or other make you amends [Aloud] I will knog your urnials about your knave's cogscorb for missing your meetings and appointments 92

Caus Diable!—Jack Rugby,—mine host de Jarretierre,—have I not stay for him to kill him? have I not, at de place I did appoint?

Eva As I ama Christians soul, now, look you, this is the place appointed. I'll be judgment by mine host of the Garter

Host Peace, Isay, Gallia and Guallia, French and Welsh, soul-curer and body-curer! 100

Caus Ay, dat is very good, excellent

Host Peace, I say! hear mine host of the Garter. Am I politic? am I subtle? am I a Machiavel? Shall I lose my doctor? no, he gives me the potions and the motions. Shall I lose my parson, my priest, my Sir Hugh? no, he gives me the proverbs and the no-verbs. Give me thy hand, terrestrial, so,—give me thy hand, celestial, so Boys of art, I have deceived you both, I have directed you to wrong places your hearts are mighty, your skins are whole, and let burnt sack be the issue Come, lay their swords to pawn Follow me, lads of peace follow, follow, follow 114

Shal Trust me, a mad host!—Follow, gentlemen, follow

Slen [Aside] O, sweet Anne Page!

[Exeunt SHALLOW, SLENDER, PAGE, and Host Caus Ha! do I perceive dat? have you make-a de sot of us, ha, ha? 119

Eva This is well, he has made us his vlouting-stog I desire you that we may be friends and let us knog our prains together to be revenge on this same scall, scurvy, cogging companion, the host of the Garter 124

Caus By gar, vit all my heart He promise to bring me vere is Anne Page by gar, he deceive me too

Eva Well, I will smite his noddles Pray you, follow [Exeunt 124

SCENE II—A Street in Windsor

Enter MISTRESS PAGE and ROBIN

Mrs Page Nay, keep your way, little gallant you were wont to be a follower, but now you are a leader Whether had you rather lead mine eyes, or eye your master's heels? 4

Rob I had rather, forsooth, go before you like a man than follow him like a dwarf

Mrs Page O! you are a flattering boy now I see you'll be a courtier 8

Enter FORD

Ford Well met, Mistress Page Whither go you?

Mrs Page Truly, sir, to see your wife is she at home? 12

Ford Ay, and as idle as she may hang together, for want of company I think, if your husbands were dead, you two would marry

Mrs Page Be sure of that,—two other husbands 17

Ford Where had you thus pretty weather-cock?

Mrs Page I cannot tell what the dickens his name is my husband had hum of What do you call your knight's name, surrah?

Rob Sir John Falstaff

Ford Sir John Falstaff? 24

Mrs Page He, he, I can never hit on's name There is such a league between my good man and he! Is your wife at home indeed?

Ford Indeed she is 28

Mrs Page By your leave, sir I am sick till I see her [Exeunt MISTRESS PAGE and ROBIN

Ford Has Page any brains? hath he any eyes? hath he any thinking? Sure they sleep, he hath no use of them Why, this boy will carry a letter twenty mile, as easy as a cannon will shoot point-blank twelve score He pieces out his wife's inclination, he gives her folly motion and advantage and now she's going to my wife, and Falstaff's boy with her A man may hear this shower sing in the wind and Falstaff's boy with her! Good pots! they are laid, and our revolted wives share damnation together Well, I will take him, then torture my wife, pluck the borrowed veil of modesty from the so seeming Mistress Page, divulge Page himself for a secure and wilful Actæon, and to these violent proceedings all my neighbours shall cry aim [Clock strikes] The clock gives me my cue, and my assurance bids me search there I shall find Falstaff I shall be rather praised for this than mocked, for it is as positive as the earth is firm, that Falstaff is there I will go 52

Enter PAGE, SHALLOW, SLENDER, Host, SN HUGH EVANS, CAUS, and RUGBY

Page, Shal, &c Well met, Master Ford
Ford Trust me, a good knot I have good cheer at home, and I pray you all go with me
Shal I must excuse myself, Master Ford 56

Slen And so must I sir we have appointed to dine with Mistress Anne, and I would not break with her for more money than I'll speak of

Shal We have lingered about a match between Anne Page and my cousin Slender, and this day we shall have our answer

Slen I hope I have your good will, father Page 64

Page You have, Master Slender, I stand wholly for you but my wife, Master doctor, is for you altogether

Caus Ay, by gar, and de maid is love-a me my nursh-a Quickly tell me so much 69

Host What say you to young Master Fenton? he capers, he dances, he has eyes of youth, he writes verses, he speaks holiday, he smells April and May he will carry't, he will carry't, 'tis in his buttons, he will carry't 74

Page Not by my consent, I promise you The gentleman is of no having he kept company with the wild prince and Pointz, he is of too high a region, he knows too much No, he shall not knit a knot in his fortunes with the finger of my substance if he take her, let him take her simply, the wealth I have waits on my consent, and my consent goes not that way 82

Ford I beseech you heartily, some of you go home with me to dinner besides your cheer, you shall have sport, I will show you a monster Master doctor, you shall go; so shall you, Master Page, and you, Sir Hugh

Shal Well, fare you well we shall have the freer wooing at Master Page's 89

[Exeunt SHALLOW and SLENDER

Caus Go home, John Rugby, I come anon [Exit RUGBY

Host Farewell, my hearts I will to my honest knight Falstaff, and drink canary with him [Exit Host

Ford [Aside] I think I shall drink in pipe-wine first with him, I'll make him dance Will you go, gentles? 96

All Have with you to see this monster.

[Exeunt]

SCENE III — A Room in FORD's House

Enter MISTRESS FORD and MISTRESS PAGE

Mrs Ford What, John! what, Robert!Mrs Page Quickly, quickly — Is the buck-basket —Mrs Ford I warrant What, Robin, I say! 4

Enter Servants with a Basket

Mrs Page Come, come, come*Mrs Ford* Here, set it down*Mrs Page* Give your men the charge, we must be brief 8*Mrs Ford* Marry, as I told you before, John, and Robert, be ready here hard by in the brew-house, and when I suddenly call you, come forth, and without any pause or staggering, take this basket on your shoulders that done, trudge with it in all haste, and carry it among the whistlers in Datchet-mead, and there empty it in the muddy ditch, close by the Thames side 16*Mrs Page* You will do it?Mrs Ford I have told them over and over, they lack no direction Be gone, and come when you are called [Exit Servants]Mrs Page Here comes little Robin. 21

Enter ROBIN

Mrs Ford How now, my eyas-musket! what news with you?Rob My master, Sir John, is come in at your back-door, Mistress Ford, and requests your company*Mrs Page* You little Jack-a-Lent, have you been true to us? 28*Rob* Ay, I'll be sworn My master knows not of your being here, and hath threatened to put me into everlasting liberty if I tell you of it, for he swears he'll turn me away 32*Mrs Page* Thou'rt a good boy, this secrecy of thine shall be a tailor to thee and shall make thee a new doublet and hose I'll go hide me*Mrs Ford* Do so Go tell thy master I am alone [Exit ROBIN] Mistress Page, remember you your cue 38*Mrs Page* I warrant thee, if I do not act it, huss me [Exit] 40*Mrs Ford* Go to, then we'll use this unwholesome humidity, this gross watery pumpion, we'll teach him to know turtles from jays 44

Enter FALSTAFF

Fal 'Have I caught my heavenly jewel?' Why, now let me die, for I have lived long enough this is the period of my ambition O this blessed hour! 48*Mrs Ford* O, sweet Sir John!Fal Mistress Ford, I cannot cog, I cannot prate, Mistress Ford Now shall I sin in my wish, I would thy husband were dead I'll speak it before the best lord, I would make thee my lady*Mrs Ford* I your lady, Sir John! alas, I should be a pitiful lady 56*Fal* Let the court of France show me such another I see how thine eye would emulate the diamond thou hast the right arched beauty of the brow that becomes the ship ure, the trevaliant, or any ture of Venetian admittance 61

Mrs Ford A plain kerchief, Sir John my brows become nothing else, nor that well neither 64*Fal* By the Lord, thou art a traitor to say so thou wouldst make an absolute courtier, and the firm fixture of thy foot would give an excellent motion to thy gait in a semi-circled farthingale I see what thou wert, if Fortune thy foe were not, Nature thy friend Come, thou canst not hide it 71*Mrs Ford* Believe me, there's no such thing in me*Fal* What made me love thee? let that persuade thee there's something extraordinary in thee Come, I cannot cog and say thou art this and that, like a many of these lispng hawthorn-buds, that come like women in men's apparel, and smell like Bucklersbury in simple-time, I cannot, but I love thee, none but thee, and thou deservest it 81*Mrs Ford* Do not betray me, sir I fear you love Mistress Page*Fal* Thou mightst as well say, I love to walk by the Counter-gate, which is as hateful to me as the reek of a lime-kiln*Mrs Ford* Well, heaven knows how I love you, and you shall one day find it 88*Fal* Keep in that munn, I'll deserve it*Mrs Ford* Nay, I must tell you, so you do, or else I could not be in that mind*Rob* [Within] Mistress Ford! Mistress Ford! here's Mistress Page at the door, sweating and blowing and looking wildly, and would needs speak with you presently*Fal* She shall not see me I will ensconce me behind the arras 97*Mrs Ford* Pray you, do so she's a very tattling woman [FALSTAFF hides himself]

Re-enter MISTRESS PAGE and ROBIN

What's the matter? how now! 100

Mrs Page O Mistress Ford! what have you done? You're shamed, you are overthrown, you're undone for ever!Mrs Ford What's the matter, good Mistress Page? 105*Mrs Page* O well-a-day, Mistress Ford! having an honest man to your husband, to give him such cause of suspicion! 108*Mrs Ford* What cause of suspicion?Mrs Page What cause of suspicion! Out upon you! how am I mistook in you!Mrs Ford Why, alas, what's the matter? 112*Mrs Page* Your husband's coming hither, woman, with all the officers of Windsor, to search for a gentleman that he says is here now in the house by your consent, to take an ill advantage of his absence you are undone 117*Mrs Ford* [Aside] Speak louder — 'Tis not so, I hope*Mrs Page* Pray heaven it be not so, that you have such a man here! but 'tis most certain your husband's coming with half Windsor at his heels, to search for such a one I come before to tell you. If you know yourself clear, why, I am glad of it, but if you have a friend here, convey, convey him out. Be not amazed, call all your senses to you defend your reputation or bid farewell to your good life for ever 123

Mrs Ford What shall I do?—There is a gentleman, my dear friend, and I fear not mine own shame so much as his peril. I had rather than a thousand pound he were out of the house 132

Mrs Page For shame! never stand 'you had rather' and 'you had rather' your husband's here at hand, bethink you of some conveyance in the house you cannot hide him. O, how have you deceived me! Look, here is a basket if he be of any reasonable stature, he may creep in here, and throw foul linen upon him, as if it were going to bucking or—it is whiting-time—send him by your two men to Datchet-mead 140

Mrs Ford He's too big to go in there. What shall I do? 144

Fal [Coming forward] Let me see't, let me see't, O, let me see't! I'll in, I'll in. Follow your friend's counsel. I'll in 149

Mrs Page What, Sir John Falstaff! Are these your letters, knight? 149

Fal I love thee, and none but thee, help me away let me creep in here. I'll never—

[He gets into the basket, they cover him with foul linen 154]

Mrs Page Help to cover your master, boy. Call your men, Mistress Ford. You dissembling knight! 154

Mrs Ford What, John! Robert! John! 154

[Exit ROBIN]

Re-enter Servants

Go take up these clothes here quickly, where's the cowl-staff? look, how you drumble! carry them to the laundress in Datchet-mead, quickly, come 158

Enter FORD, PAGE, CAIUS, and SIR HUGH EVANS 158

Ford Pray you, come near if I suspect without cause, why then make sport at me, then let me be your jest, I deserve it. How now! what goes here? whither bear you this? 163

Serv To the laundress, forsooth 163

Mrs Ford Why, what have you to do whither they bear it? You were best meddle with buck-washing 163

Ford Buck! I would I could wash myself of the buck! Buck, buck, buck! Ay, buck, I warrant you, buck, and of the season too, it shall appear [Exeunt Servants with the basket] 163

Gentlemen, I have dreamed to-night, I'll tell you my dream. Here, here, here be my keys ascend my chambers, search, seek, find out. I'll warrant we'll unkenel the fox. Let me stop this way first [Locking the door] So, now uncape 163

Page Good Master Ford, be contented you wrong yourself too much 177

Ford True, Master Page. Up, gentlemen, you shall see sport anon follow me, gentlemen [Exit 177]

Eva This is fery fantastical humours and jealousies 181

Caius By gar, 'tis no de fashion of France, it is not jealous in France 181

Page Nay, follow him, gentlemen, see the issue of his search. 185

[Exeunt PAGE, CAIUS, and EVANS]

Mrs Page Is there not a double excellency in this? 185

Mrs Ford I know not which pleases me better, that my husband is deceived, or Sir John 185

Mrs Page What a taking was he in when your husband asked who was in the basket! 191

Mrs Ford I am half afraid he will have need of washing, so throwing him into the water will do him a benefit 191

Mrs Page Hang him, dishonest rascal! I would all of the same strain were in the same distress 197

Mrs Ford I think my husband hath some special suspicion of Falstaff's being here, for I never saw him so gross in his jealousy till now 197

Mrs Page I will lay a plot to try that, and we will yet have more tricks with Falstaff his dissolute disease will scarce obey this medicine 207

Mrs Ford Shall we send that foolish carnon Mistress Quickly to him, and excuse his throwing into the water, and give him another hope, to betray him to another punishment? 207

Mrs Page We will do it let him be sent for to-morrow, eight o'clock, to have amends 209

Re-enter FORD, PAGE, CAIUS, and SIR HUGH EVANS 209

Ford I cannot find him may be the knave bragged of that he could not compass 213

Mrs Page [Aside to MRS FORD] Heard you that? 213

Mrs Ford [Aside to MRS PAGE] Ay, ay, peace—You use me well, Master Ford, do you? 216

Ford Ay, I do so 216

Mrs Ford Heaven make you better than your thoughts! 216

Ford Amen! 216

Mrs Page You do yourself mighty wrong, Master Ford 221

Ford Ay, ay, I must bear it 221

Eva If there be any pody in the house, and in the chambers, and in the coffers, and in the presses, heaven forgive my sins at the day of judgment! 226

Caius By gar, nor I too, dere is no bodies 226

Page Fie, fie, Master Ford! are you not ashamed? What spirit, what devil suggests this imagination? I would not ha' your distemper in this kind for the wealth of Windsor Castle 235

Ford 'Tis my fault, Master Page I suffer for it 235

Eva You suffer for a pad conscience your wife is as honest a 'omans as I will desires among five thousand, and five hundred too 235

Caius By gar, I see 'tis an honest woman 235

Ford Well, I promised you a dinner. Come, come, walk in the Park. I pray you, pardon me, I will hereafter make known to you why I have done this. Come, wife, come, Mistress Page. I pray you pardon me, pray heartily, pardon me 235

Page Let's go in, gentlemen, but, trust me, we'll mock him I do invite you to-morrow morning to my house to breakfast, after, we'll a-burding together I have a fine hawk for the bush Shall it be so? 246

Ford Any thing

Eva If there is one, I shall make two in the company

Caus If dere be one or two, I shall make a de turd

Ford Pray you go, Master Page 252

Eva I pray you now, remembrance to-morrow on the lousy knave, mine host

Caus Dat is good, by gar, vit all my heart

Eva A lousy knave! to have his gibes and his mockeries! [Exeunt

Shal She's coming, to her, coz. O boy, thou hadst a father! 37

Slen I had a father, Mistress Anne, my uncle can tell you good jests of him Pray you, uncle, tell Mistress Anne the jest, how my father stole two geese out of a pen, good uncle 41

Shal Mistress Anne, my cousin loves you

Slen Ay, that I do, as well as I love any woman in Glostershire 44

Shal He will maintan you like a gentleman 44

Slen Ay, that I will, come cut and long-tail, under the degree of a squire 48

Shal He will make you a hundred and fifty pounds jointure

Anne Good Master Shallow, let him woo for himself 52

Shal Marry, I thank you for it, I thank you for that good comfort She calls you, coz I'll leave you

Anne Now, Master Slender 56

Slen Now, good Mistress Anne —

Anne What is your will? 58

Slen My will? od sheartlings! that's a pretty jest, indeed! I ne'er made my will yet, I thank heaven, I am not such a sickly creature, I give heaven praise

Anne I mean, Master Slender, what would you with me? 64

Slen Truly, for mine own part, I would little or nothing with you Your father and my uncle have made motions if it be my luck, so if not, happy man be his dole! They can tell you how things go better than I can you may ask your father, here he comes 70

Page Now, Master Slender love him, daughter Anne

Why, how now! what does Master Fenton here?

You wrong me, sir, thus still to haunt my house I told you, sir, my daughter is dispos'd of

Fent Nay, Master Page, be not impatient

Mrs Page Good Master Fenton, come not to my child 76

Page She is no match for you

Fent Sir, will you hear me?

Page No, good Master Fenton Come, Master Shallow, come, son Slender, in Knowing my mind, you wrong me, Master Fenton 80

[Exeunt PAGE, SHALLOW, and SLENDER.]

Quick Speak to Mistress Page

Fent Good Mistress Page, for that I love your daughter

In such a righteous fashion as I do, Perforce, against all checks, rebukes and manners, 84

I must advance the colours of my love And not retire let me have your good will

Anne Good mother, do not marry me to yond fool

Mrs Page I mean it not, I seek you a better husband 88

Quick That's my master, Master doctor

SCENE IV — A Room in PAGE's House

Enter FENTON, ANNE PAGE, and MISTRESS QUICKLY MISTRESS QUICKLY stands apart

Fent I see I cannot get thy father's love, Therefore no more turn me to him, sweet Nan Anne Alas! how then?

Fent Why, thou must be thyself He doth object, I am too great of birth, 4

And that my state being gall'd with my expense, I seek to heal it only by his wealth

Besides these, other bars he lays before me, 8

My riots past, my wild societies, And tells me 'tis a thing impossible

I should love thee but as a property Anne May be he tells you true

Fent No, heaven so speed me in my time to come! 12

Albeit I will confess thy father's wealth Was the first motive that I woo'd thee, Anne

Yet, wooing thee, I found thee of more value Than stamps in gold or sums in sealed bags, 16

And 'tis the very riches of thyself That now I am at

Anne Gentle Master Fenton, Yet seek my father's love, still seek it, sir

If opportunity and humblest suit 20

Cannot attain it, why, then,—hark you hither [They converse apart

Enter SHALLOW and SLENDER

Shal Break their talk, Mistress Quickly my kinsman shall speak for himself

Slen I'll make a shaft or a bolt on't 'Shid, 'tis but venturing 25

Shal Be not dismayed

Slen No, she shall not dismay me I care not for that, but that I am afraid 28

Quick Hark ye, Master Slender would speak a word with you

Anne I come to him [Aside] This is my father's choice

O, what a world of vile ill favour'd faults 32

Looks handsome in three hundred pounds a year!

Quick And how does good Master Fenton?

Pray you, a word with you.

Anne Alas! I had rather be set quick i' the earth,

And bowl'd to death with turnips

Mrs Page Come, trouble not yourself Good Master Fenton,

I will not be your friend nor enemy

My daughter will I question how she loves you,

And as I find her, so am I affected

'Till then, farewell, sir she must needs go in,

Her father will be angry

Fent Farewell, gentle mistress Farewell,

Nan [Exeunt MISTRESS PAGE and ANNE

Quick This is my doing, now 'Nay,' said I,

'will you cast away your child on a fool, and a physician' Look on Master Fenton 'Tis is my doing

Fent I thank thee and I pray thee, once

to night

Give my sweet Nan this ring There's for thy pains

Quick Now heaven send thee good fortune!

[Exit FENTON] A kind heart he hath a woman would run through fire and water for such a kind heart But yet I would my master had

Mistress Anne, or I would Master Slender had her, or, in sooth, I would Master Fenton had her I will do what I can for them all three, for so I have promised, and I'll be as good as my word, but speciously for Master Fenton

Well, I must of another errand to Sir John Falstaff from my two mistresses what a beast

am I to slack it! [Exit

SCENE V—A Room in the Garter Inn

Enter FAI STAFF and BARDOLPH

Fal Bardolph, I say,—

Bard Here, sir

Fal Go fetch me a quart of sack, put a toast in't [Exit BARD] Have I lived to be carried in a basket, and to be thrown in the Thames like a barrow of butcher's offal? Well, if I be served such another trick, I'll have my brams ta'en out, and buttered, and give them to a dog for a new year's gift The rogues slighted me into the river with as little remorse as they would have drowned a blind bitch's puppies, fifteen i' the litter, and you may know by my size that I have a kind of alacrity i' sinking if the bottom were as deep as hell, I should down

I had been drowned but that the shore was shelvy and shallow a death that I abhor, for the water swells a man, and what a thing should

I have been when I had been swelled! I should have been a mountain of mummy

Re enter BARDOLPH, with the sack

Bard Here's Mistress Quickly, sir, to speak

with you

Fal Come, let me pour in some sack to the Thames water, for my belly's as cold as if I had swallowed snowballs for pills to cool the reins

Call her in.

Bard Come in, woman

Enter MISTRESS QUICKLY

Quick By your leave I cry you mercy give your worship good morrow

Fal Take away these chalices Go brew me a pottle of sack finely

Bard With eggs, sir?

Fal Simple of itself, I'll no pullet sperm in my brewage [Exit BARDOLPH]—How now!

Quick Marry, sir, I come to your worship from Mistress Ford

Fal Mistress Ford! I have had ford enough

I was thrown into the ford, I have my belly full of ford

Quick Alas the day! good heart, that was not her fault she does so take on with her men, they mistook their erection

Fal So did I mine, to build upon a foolish woman's promise

Quick Well, she laments, sir, for it, that it would yearn your heart to see it Her husband goes this morning a-birding she desires you once more to come to her between eight and nine I must carry her word quickly she'll make you amends, I warrant you

Fal Well, I will visit her tell her so, and bid her think what a man is let her consider his frailty, and then judge of my merit

Quick I will tell her

Fal Doso Between nine and ten, sayest thou?

Quick Eight and nine, sir

Fal Well, be gone I will not miss her

Quick Peace be with you sir [Exit

Fal I marvel I hear not of Master Brook, he sent me word to stay within I like his money well O! here he comes

Enter FORD

Ford Bless you, sir!

Fal Now, Master Brook, you come to know what hath passed between me and Ford's wife?

Ford That, indeed, Sir John, is my business

Fal Master Brook, I will not lie to you I was at her house the hour she appointed me

Ford And how sped you, sir?

Fal Very ill-favouredly, Master Brook

Ford How so, sir? did she change her determination?

Fal No, Master Brook, but the peaking cornuto her husband, Master Brook, dwelling in a continual 'larum of jealousy comes me in the instant of our encounter, after we had embraced, kissed, protested, and, as it were, spoke the prologue of our comedy, and at his heels a rabble of his companions, thither provoked and instigated by his distemper, and, forsooth, to search his house for his wife's love

Ford What! while you were there?

Fal While I was there

Ford And did he search for you, and could not find you?

Fal You shall hear As good luck would have it, comes in one Mistress Page, gives intelligence of Ford's approach, and in her invention, and Ford's wife's distraction, they conveyed me into a buck-basket 90

Fal A buck-basket!

Fal By the Lord, a buck-basket! rammed me in with foul shirts and smocks, socks, foul stockings, greasy napkins, that, Master Brook, there was the rankest compound of villainous smell that ever offended nostril 96

Ford And how long lay you there?

Fal Nay, you shall hear, Master Brook, what I have suffered to bring this woman to evil for your good. Being thus crammed in the basket, a couple of Ford's knaves, his hinds, were called forth by their mistress to carry me in the name of foul clothes to Datchet lane: they took me on their shoulders, met the jealous knave their master in the door, who asked them once or twice what they had in their basket. I quaked for fear lest the lunatic knave would have searched it, but Fate, ordaining he should be a cuckold, held his hand. Well, on went he for a search, and away went I for foul clothes. But mark the sequel, Master Brook. I suffered the pangs of three several deaths: first, an intolerable fright, to be detected with a jealous rotten bell-wether, next, to be compassed, like a good bilbo, in the circumference of a peck, hilt to point, heel to head, and then, to be stopped in, like a strong distillation, with stinking clothes that fretted in their own grease. Think of that, a man of my kidney, think of that, that am as subject to heat as butter, a man of continual dissolution and thaw: it was a miracle to 'scape suffocation. And in the height of this bath, when I was more than half stewed in grease, like a Dutch dish, to be thrown into the Thames, and cooled, glowing hot, in that surge, like a horse-shoe, think of that, hussing hot, think of that, Master Brook! 127

Ford In good sadness, sir, I am sorry that for my sake you have suffered all this. My suit then is desperate, you'll undertake her no more?

Fal Master Brook, I will be thrown into Etna, as I have been into Thames, ere I will leave her thus. Her husband is this morning gone a-birding. I have received from her another embassy of meeting, 'twixt eight and nine is the hour, Master Brook. 136

Ford 'Tis past eight already, sir.

Fal Is it? I will then address me to my appointment. Come to me at your convenient leisure, and you shall know how I speed, and the conclusion shall be crowned with your enjoying her adieu. You shall have her, Master Brook, Master Brook, you shall cuckold Ford. [Exit]

Ford Hum! ha! is this a vision? is this a dream? do I sleep? Master Ford, awake! awake, Master Ford! there's a hole made in your best coat, Master Ford. 'Tis 'tis to be married this 'tis to have linen and buck-baskets! Well, I will proclaim myself what I am. I will now take the lecher, he is at my house: he cannot 'scape me, 'tis impossible he should, he cannot creep into a half-penny purse, nor into a pepper-box, but, lest the devil that guides him should aid him, I will search impossible places. Though what I am I cannot avoid, yet to be what I would not, shall not make me tame. If I have horns to make me mad, let the proverb go with me, I'll be horn mad. [Exit]

ACT IV

SCENE I—The Street

Enter MISTRESS PAGE, MISTRESS QUICKLY, and WILLIAM

Mrs Page Is he at Master Ford's already, thinkest thou? 2

Quick Sure he is by this, or will be presently, but truly, he is very courageous mad about his throwing into the water. Mistress Ford desires you to come suddenly. 6

Mrs Page I'll be with her by and by. I'll but bring my young man here to school. Look, where his master comes, 'tis a playing-day, I see. 10

Enter SIR HUGH EVANS

How now, Sir Hugh! no school to day.

Eva No, Master Slender is get the boys leave to play. 13

Quick Blessing of his heart!

Mrs Page Sir Hugh, my husband says my son profits nothing in the world at his book. I pray you, ask him some questions in his accident. 16

Eva Come hither, William, hold up your head, come. 20

Mrs Page Come on, sirrah, hold up your head, answer your master, be not afraid.

Eva William, how many numbers is in nouns?

Will Two. 24

Quick Truly I thought there had been one number more because they say, 'Od's nouns'.

Eva Peace your tattlings! What is far William? 28

Will Pulcher.

Quick Polecats! there are fairer things than polecats, sure.

Eva You are a very simplicity 'oman. I pray you peace. What is lapis, William? 33

Will A stone.

Eva And what is a stone, William? 36

Will A pebble.

Eva No, it is lapis. I pray you remember in your pram.

Will Lapis.

Eva That is a good William. What is he, William, that does lend articles? 41

Will Articles are borrowed of the pronoun, and be thus declined, Singulariter, nominativo, hic, hæc, hoc. 44

Eva Nominativo, hic, hæc, hoc. pray you, mark genitivo, hujus. Well, what is your accusative case? 48

Will Accusativo, hunc.

Eva I pray you, have your remembrance, child, accusativo, hunc, hæc, hoc.

Quick Hang hog is Latin for bacon, I warrant you. 52

Eva Leave your prabbles, 'oman What is the focative case, William?

Will O vocativo, O

Eva Remember, William, focative is caret

Quick And that's a good root

Eva 'Oman, forbear

Mrs Page Peace!

Eva What is your genitive case plural, William?

Will Genitive case?

Eva Ay

Will Genitive, horum, harum, horum

Quick Vengeance of Jenny's case! fie on her! Never name her, child, if she be a whore

Eva For shame, 'oman!

Quick You do ill to teach the child such words He teaches him to hick and to hack, which they'll do fast enough of themselves, and to call 'horum' fie upon you!

Eva 'Oman, art thou lunatics? hast thou no understandings for thy cases and the numbers and the genders? Thou art as foolish Christian creatures as I would desires

Mrs Page Prithee, hold thy peace

Eva Show me now, William, some declensions of your pronouns

Will Forsooth, I have forgot

Eva It is qui, quæ, quod if you forget your quis, your quæ, and your quods, you must be preeches Go your ways and play, go

Mrs Page He is a better scholar than I thought he was

Eva He is a good sprag memory Farewell, Mistress Page

Mrs Page Adieu, good Sir Hugh [Exit SIR HUGH] Get you home, boy Come, we stay too long [Exeunt]

SCENE II — A Room in FORD'S House

Enter FALSTAFF and MISTRESS FORD

Fal Mistress Ford, your sorrow hath eaten up my sufferance I see you are obsequious in your love, and I profess requital to a hair's breadth, not only, Mistress Ford, in the simple office of love, but in all the accoutrement, complement and ceremony of it But are you sure of your husband now?

Mrs Ford He's a-birding, sweet Sir John

Mrs Page [Within] What ho! gossip Ford! what ho!

Mrs Ford Step into the chamber, Sir John [Exit FALSTAFF]

Enter MISTRESS PAGE

Mrs Page How now, sweetheart! who's at home besides yourself?

Mrs Ford Why, none but mine own people

Mrs Page Indeed!

Mrs Ford No, certainly — [Aside to her] Speak louder

Mrs Page Truly, I am so glad you have nobody here

Mrs Ford Why?

Mrs Page Why, woman, your husband is in his old lutes again he so takes on yonder with my husband, so rails against all married mankind, so curses all Eve's daughters, of what complexion soever, and so buffets himself on the forehead crying, 'Peer out, peer out!' that any madness I ever yet beheld seemed but tameness, civility and patience, to this his dusterper he is in now I am glad the fat knight is not here

Mrs Ford Why, does he talk of him?

Mrs Page Of none but him, and swears he was carried out, the last time he searched for him, in a basket protests to my husband he is now here, and hath drawn him and the rest of their company from their sport, to make another experiment of his suspicion But I am glad the knight is not here, now he shall see his own foolery

Mrs Ford How near is he, Mistress Page?

Mrs Page Hard by, at street end, he will be here anon

Mrs Ford I am undone! the knight is here

Mrs Page Why then you are utterly shamed, and he's but a dead man What a woman are you! Away with him, away with him! better shame than murder

Mrs Ford Which way should he go? how should I bestow him? Shall I put him into the basket again?

Re-enter FALSTAFF

Fal No, I'll come no more 't the basket May I not go out ere he come?

Mrs Page Alas! three of Master Ford's brothers watch the door with pistols, that none shall issue out, otherwise you might slip away ere he came But what make you here?

Fal What shall I do? I'll creep up into the chimney

Mrs Ford There they always use to discharge their birding-pieces

Mrs Page Creep into the kiln-hole,

Fal Where is it?

Mrs Ford He will seek there, on my word Neither press, coffer, chest, trunk, well, vault, but he hath an abstract for the remembrance of such places, and goes to them by his note there is no hiding you in the house

Fal I'll go out, then.

Mrs Page If you go out in your own semblance, you die, Sir John. Unless you go out disguised, —

Mrs Ford How might we disguise him?

Mrs Page Alas the day! I know not There is no woman's gown big enough for him, otherwise, he might put on a hat, a muffler, and a kerchief, and so escape

Fal Good hearts, devise something any extremity rather than a mischief

Mrs Ford My maid's aunt, the fat woman of Bransford, has a gown above

Mrs Page On my word, it will serve him she's as big as he is and there's her thrummed hat and her muffler too Run up, Sir John.

Mrs Ford Go, go, sweet Sir John Mistress Page and I will look some linen for your head

Mrs Page Quick, quick! we'll come dress you straight, put on the gown the while

[Exit FALSTAFF]

Mrs Ford I would my husband would meet him in this shape he cannot abide the old woman of Bramford, he swears she's a witch, forbade her my house, and hath threatened to beat her

Mrs Page Heaven guide him to thy husband's cudgel, and the devil guide his cudgel afterwards!

Mrs Ford But is my husband coming? 94

Mrs Page Ay, in good sadness, is he, and talks of the basket too, howsoever he hath had intelligence

Mrs Ford We'll try that, for I'll appoint my men to carry the basket again, to meet him at the door with it, as they did last time 101

Mrs Page Nay, but he'll be here presently let's go dress him like the witch of Bramford

Mrs Ford I'll first direct my men what they shall do with the basket Go up, I'll bring linen for him straight [Exit]

Mrs Page Hang him, dishonest varlet! we cannot misuse him enough 108

We'll leave a proof, by that which we will do, Wives may be merry, and yet honest too

We do not act that often jest and laugh, 'Tis old, but true, 'Still swine eats all the draff' [Exit]

Re-enter MISTRESS FORD, with two Servants

Mrs Ford Go, sirs, take the basket again on your shoulders your master is hard at door, if he bid you set it down, obey him Quickly, dispatch [Exit]

First Serv Come come, take it up 117

Sec Serv Pray heaven, it be not full of knight again

First Serv I hope not, I had as lief bear so much lead 121

Enter FORD, PAGE, SHALLOW, CAIUS, and SIR HUGH EVANS

Fora Ay, but if it prove true, Master Page have you any way then to unfool me again? Set down the basket, villains Somebody call my wife Youth in a basket! O you panderly rascals! there's a knot, a ging, a pack, a conspiracy against me now shall the devil be shamed What, wife, I say! Come, come forth! Behold what honest clothes you send forth to bleaching! 130

Page Why, this passes! Master Ford, you are not to go loose any longer, you must be punished 133

Eva Why, this is lunatics! this is mad as a mad dog! 133

Shal Indeed, Master Ford, this is not well, indeed 137

Ford So say I too, sir —

Re-enter MISTRESS FORD

Come hither, Mistress Ford, the honest woman, the modest wife the virtuous creature, that hath the jealous fool to her husband! I suspect without cause, mistress, do I?

Mrs Ford Heaven be my witness, you do, if you suspect me in any dishonesty 144

Ford Well said, brazen-face! hold it out Come forth, sirrah!

[Pulls the clothes out of the basket]

Mrs Ford Are you not ashamed? let the clothes alone 149

Ford I shall find you anon

Eva 'Tis unreasonable Will you take up your wife's clothes? Come away 152

Ford Empty the basket, I say!

Mrs Ford Why, man, why?

Ford Master Page, as I am an honest man, there was one conveyed out of my house yesterday in this basket why may not he be there again? In my house I am sure he is, my intelligence is true, my jealousy is reasonable Pluck me out all the linen 160

Mrs Ford If you find a man there he shall die a flea's death

Shal By my fidelity, this is not well, Master Ford, this wrongs you 165

Eva Master Ford, you must pray, and not follow the imaginations of your own heart this is jealousies 168

Ford Well, he's not here I seek for

Page No, nor nowhere else but in your brain [Servants carry away the basket]

Ford Help to search my house this one time if I find not what I seek, show no colour for my extremity, let me for ever be your table-sport, let them say of me, As jealous as Ford, that searched a hollow walnut for his wife's leman! Satisfy me once more, once more search with me 177

Mrs Ford What ho, Mistress Page! come you and the old woman down, my husband will come into the chamber 180

Ford Old woman! What old woman's that?

Mrs Ford Why, it is my maid's aunt of Bramford 183

Ford A witch, a quean, an old cozening quean! Have I not forbid her my house? She comes of errands, does she? We are simple men we do not know what's brought to pass under the profession of fortune-telling She works by charms, by spells, by the figure, and such daubery as this is, beyond our element we know nothing Come down, you witch, you hag, you come down, I say! 192

Mrs Ford Nay, good, sweet husband! good gentlemen, let him not strike the old woman

Enter FALSTAFF in women's clothes, led by MISTRESS PAGE

Mrs Page Come, Mother Prat, come, give me your hand 196

Ford I'll 'prat' her — [Beats him] Out of my door, you witch, you rag, you baggage, you polecat, you ronyon! out, out! I'll conjure you, I'll fortune tell you [Exit FALSTAFF]

Mrs Page Are you not ashamed? I think you have killed the poor woman

Mrs Ford Nay, he will do it 'Tis a goodly credit for you 204

Ford Hang her, witch!

Eva By yea and no, I think the 'oman is a witch indeed I like not when a 'oman has a great peard, I spy a great peard under her muffler

Ford Will you follow, gentlemen? I beseech you, follow see but the issue of my jealousy If I cry out thus upon no trail, never trust me when I open again

Page I let s obey his humour a little further Come, gentlemen

[Exeunt FORD, PAGE, SHALLOW, CAIUS,

and EVANS

Mrs Page Trust me, he beat him most pitifully

Mrs Ford Nay, by the mass, that he did not, he beat him most unpitifully methought

Mrs Page I'll have the cudgel hallowed and hung o'er the altar it hath done meritorious service

Mrs Ford What think you? May we, with the warrant of womanhood and the witness of a good conscience, pursue him with any further revenge?

Mrs Page The spirit of wantonness is, sure, scared out of him if the devil have him not in fee-simple, with fine and recovery, he will never, I think, in the way of waste, attempt us again

Mrs Ford Shall we tell our husbands how we have served him?

Mrs Page Yes, by all means, if it be but to scrape the figures out of your husband's brains If they can find in their hearts the poor unvirtuous fat knight shall be any further afflicted, we two will still be the ministers

Mrs Ford I'll warrant they'll have him publicly shamed and methinks there would be no period to the jest, should he not be publicly shamed

Mrs Page Come, to the forge with it then, shape it I would not have things cool [Exeunt

SCENE III — A Room in the Garter Inn

Enter Host and BARDOLP

Bard Sir, the Germans desire to have three of your horses the duke himself will be to-morrow at court, and they are going to meet him

Host What duke should that be comes so secretly? I hear not of him in the court Let me speak with the gentlemen, they speak English

Bard Ay, sir I'll call them to you

Host They shall have my horses, but I'll make them pay, I'll sauce them they have had my house a week at command, I have turned away my other guests they must come off, I'll sauce them Come [Exeunt

SCENE IV — A Room in FORD'S House

Enter PAGE, FORD, MISTRESS PAGE, MISTRESS FORD, and SIR HUGH EVANS

Eva 'Tis one of the pest discretions of a 'oman as ever I did look upon Page And did he send you both these letters at an instant?

Mrs Page Within a quarter of an hour

Ford Pardon me, wife Henceforth do what thou wilt,

I rather will suspect the sun with cold

Than thee with wantonness now doth thy honour stand,

In him that was of late an heretic,

As firm as faith

Page 'Tis well, 'tis well, no more

Be not as extreme in submission

As in offence,

But let our plot go forward let our wives

Yet once again, to make us public sport,

Appoint a meeting with this old fat fellow,

Where we may take him and disgrace him for it

Ford There is no better way than that they spoke of

Page How? to send him word they'll meet him in the Park at midnight? Fie, fie! he'll never come

Eva You say he has been thrown into the rivers, and has been grievously peaten as an old

'oman methinks there should be terrors in him that he should not come, methinks his flesh is punished, he shall have no desires

Page So think I too

Mrs Ford Devise but how you'll use him when he comes,

And let us two devise to bring him thither

Mrs Page There is an old tale goes that Herne the hunter,

Sometime a keeper here in Windsor forest,

Doth all the winter time, at still midnight,

Walk round about an oak, with great ragged horns,

And there he blasts the tree, and takes the cattle,

And makes milch-kine yield blood, and shakes

a chair

In a most hideous and dreadful manner

You have heard of such a spirit, and well you know

The superstitious idle-headed old

Receiv'd and did deliver to our age

This tale of Herne the hunter for a truth

Page Why, yet there want not many that do fear

In deep of night to walk by this Herne's oak

But what of this?

Mrs Ford Marry, this is our device,

That Falstaff at that oak shall meet with us,

Disguis'd like Herne with huge horns on his head

Page Well, let it not be doubted but he'll come,

And in this shape when you have brought him

thither,

What shall be done with him? what is your plot?

Mrs Page That likewise have we thought upon, and thus

Nan Page my daughter, and my little son,

And three or four more of their growth, we'll dress

Like urchins, ouchs and fairies, green and white,
 With rounds of waxen tapers on their heads, 52
 And rattles in their hands Upon a sudden,
 As Falstaff, she, and I, are newly met,
 Let them from forth a sawpit rush at once
 With some diffused song upon their sight, 56
 We two in great amazement will fly
 Then let them all encircle him about,
 And, fairy-like, to pinch the unclean knight,
 And ask him why, that hour of fairy revel, 60
 In their so sacred paths he dares to tread
 In shape profane

Mrs Ford And till he tell the truth,
 Let the supposed fairies pinch him sound
 And burn him with their tapers

Mrs Page The truth being known, 64
 We'll all present ourselves, dis-horn the spirit,
 And mock him home to Windsor

Ford The children must Be practis'd well to this, or they'll ne'er do't

Eva I will teach the children their behaviours, and I will be like a jack-an-apes also, to burn the knight with my taber

Ford That will be excellent. I'll go buy them vizards 72

Mrs Page My Nan shall be the queen of all the fairies,

Page That silk will I go buy —[Aside] and in that time

Shall Master Slender steal my Nan away, 76
 And marry her at Eton Go, send to Falstaff
 straight

Ford Nay, I'll to him again in name of Brook, He'll tell me all his purpose Sure, he'll come

Mrs Page Fear not you that Go, get us properties, 80

And tricking for our fairies Eva Let us about it it is admirable pleasures and fery honest knaveries

[Exeunt PAGE, FORD, and EVANS]
Mrs Page Go, Mistress Ford, 84
 Send Quickly to Sir John, to know his mind

[Exit MISTRESS FORD]
 I'll to the doctor he hath my good will,
 And none but he, to marry with Nan Page
 That Slender, though well landed, is an idiot, 88
 And him my husband best of all affects
 The doctor is well money'd, and his friends Potent at court he, none but he, shall have her, Though twenty thousand worthier come to crave her [Exit]

SCENE V — A Room in the Garter Inn

Enter Host and SIMPLE.

Host What wouldst thou have, boor? what, thick-skin? speak, breathe, discuss, brief, short,
 quick, snap

Sim Marry, sir, I come to speak with Sir John Falstaff from Master Slender 5

Host There's his chamber, his house, his castle, his standing-bed and trundle-bed tis painted about with the story of the Prodigal, fresh and new Go knock and call he'll speak like an Anthropophaginian unto thee knock,

 I say 11

Sim There's an old woman, a fat woman, gone up into his chamber I'll be so bold as stay, sir, till she come down, I come to speak with her, indeed 15

Host Ha! a fat woman! the knight may be robbed I'll call Bully knight! Bully Sir John! speak from thy lungs military art thou there?
 it is thine host, thine Ephesian, calls

Fal [Above] How now, mine host! 20 Host Here's a Bohemian-Tartar carries the coming down of thy fat woman Let her descend, bully, let her descend, my chambers are honourable fie! privacy? fie! 24

Enter FALSTAFF

Fal There was, mine host, an old fat woman even now with me, but she's gone

Sim Pray you, sir, was't not the wise woman of Brainford? 28

Fal Ay, marry, was it, muscle-shell what would you wish her?

Sim My Master, sir, Master Slender, sent to her, seeing her go thorough the streets, to know, sir, whether one Nym, sir, that beguiled him of a chain, had the chain or no 34

Fal I spake with the old woman about it Sim And what says she, I pray, sir? 36

Fal Marry, she says that the very same man that beguiled Master Slender of his chain cozened him of it

Sim I would I could have spoken with the woman herself I had other things to have spoken with her too, from him

Fal What are they? let us know 44

Host Ay, come quick
Sim I may not conceal them, sir

Host Conceal them, or thou diest Sim Why, sir they were nothing but about Mistress Anne Page, to know if it were my master's fortune to have her or no 49

Fal 'Tis, 'tis his fortune Sim What, sir?

Fal To have her, or no Go, say the woman told me so 53

Sim May I be bold to say so, sir?
Fal Ay, Sir Tike, who more bold?

Sim I thank your worship I shall make my master glad with these tidings [Exit]

Host Thou art clerkly, thou art clerkly, Sir John Was there a wise woman with thee? 59

Fal Ay, that there was, mine host, one that hath taught me more wit than ever I learned before in my life and I paid nothing for it neither, but was paid for my learning 63

Enter BARDOLPH

Bard Out, alas, sir! cozenage, mere cozenage!
Host Where be my horses? speak well of them, varletto 66

Bard Run away, with the cozeners, for so soon as I came beyond Eton, they threw me off, from behind one of them, in a slough of mire;

and set spurs and away, like three German devils, three Doctor Faustuses 71 Host They are gone but to meet the duke, villain Do not say they be fled Germans are honest men

Enter SIR HUGH EVANS

Eva Where is mine host?

Host What is the matter, sir? 76

Eva Have a care of your entertainments there is a friend of mine come to town, tells me, there is three cozen-germans that has cozened all the hosts of Readins, of Maidenhead, of Colebrook, of horses and money I tell you for good will, look you you are wise and full of gibes and vouting-stogs, and 'tis not convenient you should be cozened Fare you well [Exit]

Enter DOCTOR CAIUS

Caus Vere is mine host de Jartee? 85

Host Here, Master doctor, in perplexity and doubtful dilemma

Caus I cannot tell vat is dat, but it is tell-a me dat you make grand preparation for a duke de Jamany by my trot, dere is no duke dat de court is know to come I tell you for good vill adieu [Exit]

Host Hue and cry, villain! go Assist me, knight, I am undone Fly, run, hue and cry, villain! I am undone! 95

[Exeunt Host and BARDOLPH]

Fal I would all the world might be cozened, for I have been cozened and beaten too If it should come to the ear of the court how I have been transformed, and how my transformation hath been washed and cudgelled, they would melt me out of my fat drop by drop, and liquor fishermen's boots with me I warrant they would whip me with their fine wits till I were as crest fallen as a dried pear I never prospered since I forswore myself at primero Well, if my wind were but long enough to say my prayers, I would repent 107

Enter MISTRESS QUICKLY

Now, whence come you?

Quick From the two parties, forsooth

Fal The devil take one party and his dam the other! and so they shall be both bestowed I have suffered more for their sakes, more than the villainous inconstancy of man's disposition is able to bear 114

Quick And have not they suffered? Yes, I warrant, speciously one of them Mistress Ford, good heart, is beaten black and blue, that you cannot see a white spot about her 118

Fal What tellst thou me of black and blue? I was beaten myself into all the colours of the rainbow, and I was like to be apprehended for the witch of Bramford but that my admirable dexterity of wit, my counterfeiting the action of an old woman, delivered me, the knave constable had set me i' the stocks, i' the common stocks, for a witch 126

Quick Sir, let me speak with you in your chamber, you shall hear how things go, and, I warrant, to your content Here is a letter will say somewhat Good hearts! what ado here is to bring you together! Sure, one of you does not serve heaven well, that you are so crossed Fal Come up into my chamber [Exeunt]

SCENE VI—Another Room in the Garter Inn

Enter FENTON and Host

Host Master Fenton, talk not to me my mind is heavy, I will give over all

Fent Yet hear me speak Assist me in my purpose,

And, as I am a gentleman, I'll give thee 4
 A hundred pound in gold more than your loss

Host I will hear you, Master Fenton, and I will, at the least, keep your counsel

Fent From time to time I have acquainted you 8

With the dear love I bear to fair Anne Page, Who mutually hath answer'd my affection, So far forth as herself might be her chooser, Even to my wish I have a letter from her 12
 Of such contents as you will wonder at, The mirth whereof so larded with my matter, That neither singly can be manifested,

Without the show of both, wherein fat Falstaff Hath a great scare the image of the jest 17
 I'll show you here at large [Pointing to the Letter] Hark, good mine host

To-night at Herne's oak, just 'twixt twelve and one,

Must my sweet Nan present the Fairy Queen, The purpose why, is here in which disguise, 21
 While other jests are something rank on foot, Her father hath commanded her to slip Away with Slender, and with him at Eton 24 Immediately to marry she hath consented Now, sir,

Her mother, even strong against that match And firm for Doctor Caius, hath appointed 28
 That he shall likewise shuffle her away, While other sports are tasking of their minds, And at the deanery, where a priest attends, Straight marry her to this her mother's plot 33
 She, seemingly obedient, likewise hath Made promise to the doctor Now, thus it rests

Her father means she shall be all in white, And in that habit, when Slender sees his time To take her by the hand and bid her go, 37
 She shall go with him her mother hath intended,

The better to denote her to the doctor,— For they must all be mask'd and vizarded— 40
 That quaint in green she shall be loose enrob'd, With ribands pendent, flaring 'bout her head, And when the doctor spies his vantage ripe, To pinch her by the hand, and on that token 44
 The maid hath given consent to go with him

Host Which means she to deceive, father or mother?

Fent Both, my good host, to go along with me

And here it rests, that you'll procure the vicar

To stay for me at church 'twixt twelve and one,
 And, in the lawful name of marrying, 51
 To give our hearts united ceremony Host Well, husband your device, I'll to the vicar Bring you the maid, you shall not lack a priest
Fent So shall I evermore be bound to thee, Besides, I'll make a present recompense 56
 [Exeunt]

ACT V

SCENE I — A Room in the Garter Inn

Enter FALSTAFF and MISTRESS QUICKLY

Fal Prithce, no more prattling, go I'll hold This is the third time, I hope good luck lies in odd numbers Away! go They say there is divinity in odd numbers, either in nativity, chance or death Away! 5 Quick I'll provide you a chain, and I'll do what I can to get you a pair of horns Fal Away, I say, time wears hold up your head, and nuncce [Exit MISTRESS QUICKLY]

Enter FORD

How now Master Brook! Master Brook, the matter will be known to-night, or never Be you in the Park about midnight, at Herne's oak, and you shall see wonders 13

Ford Went you not to her yesterday, sir, as you told me you had appointed?

Fal I went to her, Master Brook, as you see, like a poor old man, but I came from her, Master Brook, like a poor old woman That same knave Ford, her husband, hath the finest mad devil of jealousy in him, Master Brook, that ever governed frenzy I will tell you he beat me grievously, in the shape of a woman, for in the shape of a man, Master Brook, I fear not Goliath with a weaver's beam, because I know also life is a shuttle I am in haste go along with me, I'll tell you all, Master Brook Since I plucked geese, played truant, and whipped top,
 I knew not what it was to be beaten till lately Follow me I'll tell you strange things of this knave Ford, on whom to-night I will be revenged, and I will deliver his wife into your hand Follow Strange things in hand, Master Brook! Follow [Exeunt]

SCENE II — Windsor Park

Enter PAGE, SHALLOW, and SLENDER

Page Come, come, we'll couch i' the castle-ditch till we see the light of our fairies Remember, son Slender, my daughter 3

Slender Ay, forsooth, I have spoke with her and we have a nayword how to know one another I come to her in white, and cry, 'mum,' she cries, 'budget,' and by that we know one another 8

Shallow That's good too but what needs either your 'mum,' or her 'budget?' the white will decipher her well enough. It hath struck ten o'clock 12

Page The night is dark, light and spirits will become it well Heaven prosper our sport!
 No man means evil but the devil, and we shall know him by his horns Le's away, follow me
 [Exeunt]

SCENE III — The Street in Windsor

Enter MISTRESS PAGE, MISTRESS FORD, and DR CAIUS

Mrs Page Master Doctor, my daughter is in green when you see your time, take her by the hand, away with her to the deanery, and dispatch it quickly Go before into the Park we two must go together 5

Caius I know vat I have to do Adieu

Mrs Page Fare you well, sir [Exit CAIUS] My husband will not rejoice so much at the abuse of Falstaff, as he will chafe at the doctor's marrying my daughter but 'tis no matter better a little chiding than a great deal of heart break

Mrs Ford Where is Nan now and her troop of fairies, and the Welsh devil, Hugh? 13

Mrs Page They are all couched in a pit hard by Herne's oak, with obscured lights, which, at the very instant of Falstaff's and our meeting, they will at once display to the night 17

Mrs Ford That cannot choose but amaze
 him

Mrs Page If he be not amazed, he will be mocked, if he be amazed, he will every way be mocked

Mrs Ford We'll betray him finely

Mrs Page Against such lewdsters and their lechery, 24

Those that betray them do no treachery

Mrs Ford The hour draws on to the oak, to the oak! [Exeunt]

SCENE IV — Windsor Park

Enter SIR HUGH EVANS, disguised, and others as Fairies

Eva Trib trib, fairies come, and remember your parts Be bold, I pray you, follow me into the pit, and when I give the watch-ords, do as I bid you Come, come, trib, trib [Exeunt]

SCENE V — Another part of the Park

Enter FALSTAFF disguised as Herne, with a buck's head on

Fal The Windsor bell hath struck twelve, the minute draws on Now, the hot-blooded gods assist me! Remember, Jove, thou wast a bull for thy Europa, love set on thy horns O powerful love! that, in some respects, makes a beast a man, in some other, a man a beast You were also, Jupiter, a swan for the love of Leda, O omnipotent love! how near the god drew to the complexion of a goose! A fault done first in the form of a beast, O Jove, a beastly fault!
 and then another fault in the semblance of a fowl think on t, Jove, a foul fault! When gods have hot backs, what shall poor men do? For me, I am here a Windsor stag, and the fattest, I think, 't' the forest send me a cool rut-tune, Jove, or who can blame me to piss my tallow? Who comes here? my doe?

17

Enter MISTRESS FORD and MISTRESS PAGE

Mrs Ford Sir John! art thou there, my deer? my male deer?

Fal My doe with the black scut! Let the sky rain potatoes, let it thunder to the tune of 'Green Sleeves' hail kissing-comfits and snow eringoes, let there come a tempest of provocation, I will shelter me here [Embracing her]

Mrs Ford Mistress Page is come with me, sweetheart

26

Fal Divide me like a brib'd duck, each a haunch I will keep my sides to myself, my shoulders for the fellow of this walk, and my horns I bequeath your husbands. Am I a wood-man, ha? Speak I like Herne the hunter? Why, now is Cupid a child of conscience, he makes restitution. As I am a true spirit, welcome!

[Noise within]

Mrs Page Alas! what noise?

Mrs Ford Heaven forgive our sins!

36

Fal What should this be?

Mrs Ford } Away, away!

Mrs Page } [They run off]

Fal I think the devil will not have me damned, lest the oil that is in me should set hell on fire, he would never else cross me thus

Enter SIR HUGH EVANS, like a Satyr PISTOL as Hobgoblin, ANNE PAGE, as the Fairy Queen, attended by her Brother and Others, as Fairies, with waxen tapers on their heads

Anne Fairies, black, grey, green, and white, You moonshine revellers, and shades of night, You orphan heirs of fixed destiny,

45

Attend your office and your quality

Crier Hobgoblin, make the fairy eyes

Pist Elves, list your names silence, you airy toys!

48

Cricket, to Windsor chimneys shalt thou leap Where fires thou find'st unrak'd and hearths unswept,

There pinch the maids as blue as bilberry

Our radiant queen hates sluts and sluttish shall die

Fal They are fairies, he that speaks to them

I'll wink and couch no man their works must eye

[Lies down upon his face]

Eva Where's Bede? Go you, and where you find a maid

That, ere she sleep, has thrice her prayers said,

Rein up the organs of her fantasy,

57

Sleep she as sound as careless infancy,

But those that sleep and think not on their sins,

Pinch them, arms, legs, backs, shoulders, sides 60 and shins

Anne About, about!

Search Windsor castle, elves, within and out

Strew good luck, oups, on every sacred room,

That it may stand till the perpetual doom, In state as wholesome as in state 'tis fit, Worthy the owner, and the owner it

64

The several chairs of order look you scour

With juice of balm and every precious flower

68

Each fair instalment, coat, and several crest,

With loyal blazon, ever more be blest!

And nightly, meadow-fairies, look you sing,

Like to the Garter's compass, in a ring 72

The expressure that it bears, green let it be,

More fertile-fresh than all the field to see,

And, Hon soit qui mal y pense write

In emerald tufts, flowers purple, blue, and white,

Like sapphire, pearl, and rich embroidery,

77

Buckled below fair knighthood's bending knee

Fairies use flowers for their charactery

Away! disperse! But, till 'tis one o'clock, 80

Our dance of custom round about the oak

Of Herne the hunter, let us not forget

Eva Pray you, lock hand in hand, yourselves in order set,

And twenty glow-worms shall our lanterns be,

To guide our measure round about the tree 85

But, stay, I smell a man of middle ear!

Fal Heavens defend me from that Welsh fairy, lest he transform me to a piece of cheese!

Pist Vile worm, thou wast o'erlook'd even 89 in thy birth

Anne With trial-fire touch me his finger-end

If he be chaste, the flame will back descend

And turn him to no pain, but if he start, 92

It is the flesh of a corrupted heart

Pist A trial! come

Eva Come, will this wood take fire?

[They burn him with their tapers]

Fal Oh, oh, oh!

Anne Corrupt, corrupt, and tainted in 96 desire!

About him, fairies, sing a scornful rime,

And, as you trip, still pinch him to your time

SONG

Fie on sinful fantasy!

Fie on lust and luxury!

100

Lust is but a bloody fire

Kindled with unchaste desire

Fed in heart, whose flames aspire,

As thoughts do blow them higher and higher 104

Pinch him, fairies mutually,

Pinch him for his villany

Pinch him and burn him and turn him about,

Till candles and star light and moonshine be out.

108

During this song, the Fairies pinch FALSTAFF

DOCTOR CAIUS comes one way, and steals away a Fairy in green. SLENDER another way, and takes off a Fairy in white, and

FENTON comes, and steals away ANNE

PAGE. A noise of hunting is heard within

The Fairies run away. FALSTAFF pulls off his buck's head, and rises

Enter PAGE, FORD, MISTRESS PAGE and MISTRESS FORD. They lay hold on FALSTAFF

Page Nay, do not fly. I think we have watch'd you now

Will none but Herne the hunter serve your turn?

Mrs Page I pray you, come, hold up the jest no higher Now, good Sir John, how like you Windsor wives? 112

See you these, husband? do not these fur yokes Become the forest better than the tower?

Ford Now sir, who's a cuckold now? Master Brook, Falstaff's a knave, a cuckoldly knave, here are his horns, Master Brook and Master Brook, he hath enjoyed nothing of Ford's but his buck-basket, his cudgel, and twenty pounds of money, which must be paid too, Master Brook, his horses are arrested for it, Master Brook 121

Mrs Ford Sir John, we have had ill luck, we could never meet I will never take you for my love again, but I will always count you my dear 125

Fal I do begin to perceive that I am made an ass

Ford Ay, and an ox too, both the proofs are extant 129

Fal And these are not fairies? I was three or four times in the thought they were not fairies, and yet the guiltiness of my mind, the sudden surprise of my powers, drove the gross-ness of the foppery into a received belief, in despite of the teeth of all rime and reason, that they were fairies See now how wit may be made a Jack-a-lent, when 'tis upon ill employment!

Eva Sir John Falstaff, serve Got, and leave your desires, and fairies will not pinse you 140

Ford Well said, fairy Hugh

Eva And leave you your jealousies too, I pray you

Ford I will never mistrust my wife again, till thou art able to woo her in good English 145

Fal Have I laid my brain in the sun and dried it, that it wants matter to prevent so gross o'er-reaching as this? Am I ridden with a Welsh goat too? shall I have a coxcomb of frize? 'Tis time I were choked with a piece of toasted cheese

Eva Seese is not goot to give putter your pelly is all putter 153

Fal 'Seese' and 'putter' have I lived to stand at the taunt of one that makes fritters of English? This is enough to be the decay of lust and late-walking through the realm 157

Mrs Page Why, Sir John, do you think, though we would have thrust virtue out of our rearts by the head and shoulders, and have given ourselves without scruple to hell, that ever he devil could have made you our delight?

Ford What, a hodge-pudding? a bag of flax?

Mrs Page A puffed man? 164

Page Old, cold, withered, and of intolerable entrails?

Ford And one that is as slanderous as Satan?

Page And as poor as Job? 168

Ford And as wicked as his wife?

Eva And given to fornications, and to taverns, and sack and wine and metheglins, and to drinkings and swearings and starings, pribbles and prabbles? 173

Fal Well, I am your theme you have the start of me I am dejected, I am not able to answer the Welsh flannel Ignorance itself is a plummet o'er me use me as you will 177

Ford Marry, sir, we'll bring you to Windsor, to one Master Brook, that you have cozened of money, to whom you should have been a pander over and above that you have suffered, I think, to repay that money will be a biting affliction

Mrs Ford Nay, husband, let that go to make amends, 183

Forgive that sum, and so we'll all be friends.

Ford Well, here's my hand all is forgiven at last

Page Yet be cheerful, knight thou shalt eat a posset to night at my house, where I will desire thee to laugh at my wife, that now laughs at thee Tell her, Master Slender hath married her daughter

Mrs Page [Aside] Doctors doubt that if Anne Page be my daughter, she is, by this Doctor Caius's wife 193

Enter SLENDER

Slender Whoa, ho! ho! father Page!

Page Son, how now! how now, son! have you dispatched? 196

Slender Dispatched! I'll make the best in Gloster-shire know on't would I were hanged, la, else!

Page Of what, son? 200

Slender I came yonder at Eton to marry Mistress Anne Page, and she's a great lubberly boy if it had not been in the church, I would have swung him or he should have swung me If I did not think it had been Anne Page, would I might never stir! and 'tis a postmaster's boy 206

Page Upon my life, then, you took the wrong Slender What need you tell me that? I think so, when I took a boy for a girl If I had been married to him, for all he was in woman's apparel, I would not have had him 211

Page Why, this is your own folly Did not I tell you how you should know my daughter by her garments?

Slender I went to her in white, and cried,
'mum,' and she cried 'budget,' as Anne and I had appointed, and yet it was not Anne, but a postmaster's boy

Eva Jeshu! Master Slender, cannot you see put marry poys? 220

Page O I am vexed at heart what shall
I do?

Mrs Page Good George, be not angry I knew of your purpose, turned my daughter into green, and, indeed, she is now with the doctor at the deanery, and there married 226

Enter DOCTOR CAIUS.

Caius Vere is Mistress Page? By gar, I am cozened I ha' married un garpon, a boy, un paysan, by gar, a boy, it is not Anne Page by gar, I am cozened 230

Mrs Page Why, did you not take her in green?

Caius Ay, by gar, and 'tis a boy by gar, I'll raise all Windsor [Exit]

Ford This is strange Who hath got the right Anne? ²³⁵

Page My heart misgives me here comes Master Fenton

Enter FENTON and ANNE PAGE

How now, Master Fenton!

Anne Pardon, good father! good my mother, pardon! ²⁴⁰

Page Now, mistress, how chance you went not with Master Slender?

Mrs Page Why went you not with Master doctor, maid? ²⁴⁴

Fent You do amaze her hear the truth of it
You would have married her most shamefully,
Where there was no proportion held in love
The truth is, she and I, long since contracted, ²⁴⁸
Are now so sure that nothing can dissolve us
The offence is holy that she hath committed,
And thus deceit loses the name of craft, ²⁵²
Of disobedience, or unduteous title,
Since therein she doth evitate and shun
A thousand irreligious cursed hours,

Which forced marriage would have brought upon her

Ford Stand not amaz'd here is no remedy In love the heavens themselves do guide the state ²⁵⁷

Money buys lands, and wives are sold by fate Fal I am glad, though you have ta'en a special stand to strike at me, that your arrow hath glanced ²⁶¹

Page Well, what remedy?—Fenton, heaven
give thee joy!

What cannot be eschew'd must be embrac'd

Fal When night dogs run all sorts of deer are chas'd ²⁶⁴

Mrs Page Well, I will muse no further
Master Fenton, —

Heaven give you many, many merry days!

Good husband, let us every one go home,
And laugh this sport o'er by a country fire, ²⁶⁸
Sir John and all

Ford Let it be so Sir John,
To Master Brook you yet shall hold your word,
For he to-night shall lie with Mistress Ford ²⁷²
[Exeunt]

ACT I

SCENE I — An Apartment in the DUKE'S Palace

Enter DUKE, ESCALUS, Lords, and Attendants

Duke Escalus

Escal My lord?

Duke Of government the properties to unfold,

Would seem in me to affect speech and discourse,

Since I am put to know that your own science

Exceeds, in that, the lists of all advice

My strength can give you then no more remains,

But that, to your sufficiency, as your worth is able,

And let them work The nature of our people,

Our city's institutions, and the terms

For common justice, you're as pregnant in,

As art and practice hath enriched any

That we remember There is our commission,

From which we would not have you warp

hither,

I say, bid come before us Angelo

What figure of us think you he will bear?

For you must know, we have with special soul

Elected him our absence to supply,

Lent him our terror, drest him with our love,

And given his deputation all the organs

Of our own power what think you of it?

Escal If any in Vienna be of worth

To undergo such ample grace and honour,

It is Lord Angelo

Duke Look where he comes

Enter ANGELO

Ang Always obedient to your Grace's will,

I come to know your pleasure

Duke Angelo,

There is a kind of character in thy life,

That, to th' observer doth thy history

Fully unfold Thyself and thy belongings

Are not thine own so proper, as to waste

Thyself upon thy virtues, they on thee

Heaven doth with us as we with torches do, 32

Not light them for themselves, for if our virtues

Did not go forth of us, 'twere all alike

As if we had them not Spirits are not finely touch'd

But to fine issues, nor Nature never lends 36

The smallest scruple of her excellence,

But, like a thrifty goddess, she determines

Herself the glory of a creditor,

Both thanks and use But I do bend my speech

To one that can my part in him advertise, 41

Hold, therefore, Angelo

[Tendering his commission

In our remove be thou at full yourself,

Mortality and mercy in Vienna 44

Live in thy tongue and heart Old Escalus,

Though first in question, is thy secondary

Take thy commission [Giving it

Ang Now, good my lord,

Let there be some more test made of my metal,

Before so noble and so great a figure 49

Be stamp'd upon it

Duke No more evasion

We have with a heaven'd and prepared choice

Proceeded to you, therefore take your honours

Our haste from hence is of so quick condition 53

That it prefers itself, and leaves unquestion'd

Matters of needful value We shall write to you,

As time and our concerns shall importune, 56

How it goes with us, and do look to know

What doth befall you here So, fare you well

To the hopeful execution do I leave you

Of your commissions

Ang Yet, give leave, my lord, 60

That we may bring you something on the way.

Duke My haste may not admit it,

Nor need you, on mine honour, have to do

With any scruple your scope is as mine own, 64

So to enforce or qualify the laws

As to your soul seems good Give me your hand,

I'll privily away I love the people, 68

But do not like to stage me to their eyes

Though it do well, I do not relish well

Their loud applause and Aves vehement,

Nor do I think the man of safe discretion

That does affect it Once more, fare you well. 72

Ang The heavens give safety to your purpose.¹
Escal Lead forth and bring you back in happiness.¹
Duke I thank you. Fare you well. [Exit Escal I shall desire you, sir, to give me leave To have free speech with you, and it concerns me
 To look into the bottom of my place
 A power I have, but of what strength and nature
 I am not yet instructed.⁸⁰
Ang 'Tis so with me. Let us withdraw together,
 And we may soon our satisfaction have Touching that point.
Escal I'll wait upon your honour [Exit

SCENE II — A Street

Enter LUCIO and two Gentlemen

Lucio If the Duke with the other dukes come not to composition with the King of Hungary, why then, all the dukes fall upon the king.
First Gent Heaven grant us its peace, but not the King of Hungary's!⁵ Second Gent Amen.
Lucio Thou concludest like the sanctimonious pirate, that went to sea with the Ten Commandments, but scraped one out of the table.
Second Gent 'Thou shalt not steal.'¹⁰
Lucio Ay, that he razed.
First Gent Why, 'twas a commandment to command the captain and all the rest from their functions: they put forth to steal. There's not a soldier of us all, that, in the thanksgiving before meat, doth relish the petition well that prays for peace.¹⁷
Second Gent I never heard any soldier dislike it.
Lucio I believe thee, for I think thou never wast where grace was said.²¹ Second Gent No? a dozen times at least.
First Gent What, in metre?
Lucio In any proportion or in any language.
First Gent I think, or in any religion.²⁵ Lucio Ay, why not? Grace is grace, despite of all controversy: as, for example, thou thyself art a wicked villain, despite of all grace.²⁸ First Gent Well, there went but a pair of shears between us.
Lucio I grant, as there may between the lists and the velvet: thou art the list.³² First Gent And thou the velvet: thou art good velvet; thou art a three-piled piece, I warrant thee. I had as lief be a list of an English kersey as be piled, as thou art piled, for a French velvet. Do I speak feelingly now?³⁷ Lucio I think thou dost, and, indeed, with most painful feeling of thy speech. I will, out of thine own confession, learn to begin thy health: but, whilst I live, forget to drink after
 thee.
First Gent I think I have done myself wrong, have I not?⁴⁴ Second Gent Yes, that thou hast, whether thou art tainted or free.
Lucio Behold, behold, where Madam Mitigation comes! I have purchased as many diseases under her roof as come to—⁴⁹

Second Gent To what, I pray?
Lucio Judge.
Second Gent To three thousand dolours a year.⁵³
First Gent Ay, and more.
Lucio A French crown more.
First Gent Thou art always figuring diseases in me, but thou art full of error. I am sound.⁵⁷ Lucio Nay, not as one would say, healthy, but so sound as things that are hollow: thy bones are hollow, impiety has made a feast of thee.⁶¹

Enter MISTRESS OVERDONE

First Gent How now! which of your hips has the most profound sciatica?
Mrs Ov Well, well, there's one yonder arrested and carried to prison was worth five thousand of you all.⁶⁶
Second Gent Who's that, I pray thee?
Mrs Ov Marry, sir, that's Claudio, Signior Claudio.
First Gent Claudio to prison! 'tis not so.⁷⁰
Mrs Ov Nay, but I know 'tis so. I saw him arrested, saw him carried away, and, which is more, within these three days his head to be chopped off.
Lucio But, after all this fooling, I would not have it so. Art thou sure of this?⁷⁶ Mrs Ov I am too sure of it, and it is for getting Madam Juhetta with child.
Lucio Believe me, this may be: he promised to meet me two hours since, and he was ever precise in promise-keeping.⁸¹ Second Gent Besides, you know, it draws something near to the speech we had to such a purpose.⁸⁴
First Gent But most of all, agreeing with the proclamation.
Lucio Away! let's go learn the truth of it.
 [Exit LUCIO and Gentlemen Mrs Ov Thus, what with the war, what with the sweat, what with the gallows and what with poverty, I am custom-shrunk.
 Enter POMPEY
 How now! what's the news with you?
Pom Yonder man is carried to prison.⁹²
Mrs Ov Well, what has he done?
Pom A woman.
Mrs Ov But what's his offence?
Pom Groping for trouts in a peculiar river.
Mrs Ov What, is there a maid with child by
 him?
Pom No, but there's a woman with maid by him. You have not heard of the proclamation, have you?¹⁰¹
Mrs Ov What proclamation, man?
Pom All houses of resort in the suburbs of Vienna must be plucked down.¹⁰⁴ Mrs Ov And what shall become of those in the city?
Pom They shall stand for seed: they had gone down too, but that a wise burgher put in for them.¹⁰⁹

Mrs Ov But shall all our houses of resort in the suburbs be pulled down?

Pom To the ground, mistress 112

Mrs Ov Why, here's a change indeed in the commonwealth! What shall become of me?

Pom Come, fear not you good counsellors lack no clients though you change your place, you need not change your trade, I'll be your tapster still. Courage! there will be pity taken on you, you that have worn your eyes almost out in the service, you will be considered 120

Mrs Ov What's to do here, Thomas tapster? Let's withdraw

Pom Here comes Signior Claudio, led by the provost to prison, and there's Madam Juliet

[Exeunt

Enter PROVOST, CLAUDIO, JULIET, and Officers

Claud Fellow, why dost thou show me thus to the world?

Bear me to prison, where I am committed.

Prov I do it not in evil disposition, But from Lord Angelo by special charge 128

Claud Thus can the demi-god Authority Make us pay down for our offence by weight The words of heaven, on whom it will, it will, On whom it will not, so yet still 'tis just 132

Re-enter LUCIO and two Gentlemen

Lucio Why, how now, Claudio! whence comes this restraint?

Claud From too much liberty, my Lucio, liberty

As surfeit is the father of much fast, So every scope by the immoderate use 136 Turns to restraint. Our natures do pursue— Like rats that ravin down their proper bane,— A thirsty evil, and when we drink we die

Lucio If I could speak so wisely under an arrest, I would send for certain of my creditors. And yet, to say the truth, I had as lief have the foppery of freedom as the morality of imprisonment. What's thy offence, Claudio? 144

Claud What but to speak of would offend again.

Lucio What, is't murder?

Claud No 148

Lucio Lechery?

Claud Call it so

Prov Away, sir! you must go 151

Claud One word, good friend Lucio, a word with you [Takes him aside Lucio A hundred, if they'll do you any good Is lechery so looked after?

Claud Thus stands it with me — upon a true contract

I got possession of Julietta's bed 156

You know the lady, she is fast my wife, Save that we do the denunciation lack

Of outward order this we came not to, Only for propagation of a dower 160

Remaining in the coffer of her friends, From whom we thought it meet to hide our love

Till time had made them for us. But it chanced

The stealth of our most mutual entertainment With character too gross is writ on Juliet. 165 Lucio With child, perhaps?

Claud Unhappily, even so

And the new deputy now for the duke,— Whether it be the fault and glumpse of new-ness, 168

Or whether that the body public be A horse whereon the governor doth ride, Who, newly in the seat, that it may know He can command, lets it straight feel the spur, Whether the tyranny be in his place, 173

Or in his eminence that fills it up, I stagger in—but this new governor Awakes me all the enrolled penalties 176 Which have, like unscour'd armour, hung by the wall

So long that nineteen zodiacs have gone round, And none of them been worn, and, for a name, Now puts the drowsy and neglected act 180 Freshly on me 'tis surely for a name

Lucio I warrant it is and thy head stands so tickle on thy shoulders that a milkmaid, if she be in love, may sigh it off. Send after the duke and appeal to him 185

Claud I have done so, but he's not to be found

I prithee, Lucio, do me this kind service This day my sister should the cloister enter, 188 And there receive her approbation

Acquaint her with the danger of my state, Implore her, in my voice, that she make friends

To the strict deputy, bid herself assay him 192 I have great hope in that, for in her youth

There is a prone and speechless dialect, Such as move men, beside, she hath prosperous art

When she will play with reason and discourse, And well she can persuade 197

Lucio I pray she may as well for the encouragement of the like, which else would stand under grievous imposition, as for the enjoying of thy life, who I would be sorry should be thus foolishly lost at a game of tick-tack. I'll to her

Claud I thank you, good friend Lucio,

Lucio Within two hours

Claud Come, officer, away! [Exeunt

SCENE III —A Monastery

Enter DUKE and FRIAR THOMAS

Duke No, holy father, throw away that thought

Believe not that the dribbling dart of love Can pierce a complete bosom. Why I desire thee —

To give me secret harbour, hath a purpose 4 More grave and wrinkled than the aums and ends

Of burning youth

Fri T May your Grace speak of it?

Duke My holy sir, none better knows than you

How I have ever lov'd the life remov'd, 8 And held in idle price to haunt assemblies

Where youth, and cost, and witless bravery keeps I have deliver'd to Lord Angelo—

A man of stricture and firm abstinence— 12

My absolute power and place here in Vienna,

And he supposes me travell'd to Poland,
For so I have strew'd it in the common ear,
And so it is receiv'd Now, pious sir, 16
You will demand of me why I do this?

Fri T Gladly, my lord

Duke We have strict statutes and most biting laws,—

The needful bits and curbs to headstrong steeds,—

Which for this fourteen years we have let sleep, Even like an o'ergrown lion in a cave,

That goes not out to prey Now, as fond fathers, Having bound up the threatening twigs of birch,

Only to stick it in their children's sight 25
For terror, not to use, in time the rod Becomes more mock'd than fear'd, so our decrees,

Dead to infiction, to themselves are dead, 28

And liberty plucks justice by the nose,
The baby beats the nurse, and quite athwart

Goes all decorum
Fri T It rested in your Grace

T'undoose this tied-up justice when you pleas'd,
And it in you more dreadful would have seem'd 4

Than in Lord Angelo
Duke I do fear, too dreadful

Sith 'twas my fault to give the people scope, 35
'Twould be my tyranny to strike and gall them

For what I bid them do for we bid thus be done,
When evil deeds have their permissive pass

And not the punishment Therefore, indeed, my father,

I have on Angelo impos'd the office, 40
Who may, in the ambush of my name, strike

home,
And yet my nature never in the sight

To do it slander And to behold his sway,
I will, as 'twere a brother of your order, 44

Visit both prince and people therefore, I prthee,

Supply me with the habit, and instruct me
How I may formally in person bear me

Like a true friar Moe reasons for this action
At our more leisure shall I render you, 49

Only, thus one Lord Angelo is precise, Stands at a guard with envy, scarce confesses

That his blood flows, or that his appetite 52
Is more to bread than stone hence shall we see,

If power change purpose, what our seemers be [Exeunt]

SCENE IV —A Nunnery

Enter ISABELLA and FRANCISCA

Isab And have you nuns no further privileges?

Fran Are not these large enough?

Isab Yes, truly I speak not as desiring
more,

But rather wishing a more strict restraint 4
Upon the sisterhood, the votarists of Saint Clare Lucio [Within] Ho! Peace be in this place!

Isab Who's that which calls?

Fran It is a man's voice Gentle Isabella, Turn you the key, and know his business of him

You may, I may not, you are yet unsworn 9
When you have vow'd, you must not speak with men

But in the presence of the prioress Then, if you speak, you must not show your face, 12

Or, if you show your face, you must not speak

He calls again, I pray you, answer him. [Exit Isab Peace and prosperity! Who is't that calls?

Enter LUCIO

Lucio Hail, virgin, if you be, as those cheek-roses 16

Proclaim you are no less! Can you so stead me
As bring me to the sight of Isabella,

A novice of this place, and the fair sister
To her unhappy brother Claudio? 20

Isab Why 'her unhappy brother?' let me ask,
The rather for I now must make you know

I am that Isabella and his sister Lucio Gentle and fair, your brother kindly greet's you 24

Not to be weary with you, he's in prison

Isab Woe me! for what?

Lucio For that which, if myself might be his judge,

He should receive his punishment in thanks 28
He hath got his friend with child

Isab Sir, make me not your story
Lucio It is true

I would not, though 'tis my familiar sin
With maids to seem the lapwing and to jest, 32

Tongue far from heart, play with all virgins so I hold you as a thing ensky'd and sainted,

By your renouncement an immortal spirit,
And to be talk'd with in sincerity, 36

As with a saint Isab You do blaspheme the good in mock-

ing me
Lucio Do not believe it Fewness and truth,

'tis thus
Your brother and his lover have embrac'd 40

As those that feed grow full, as blossoming time
That from the seedness the bare fallow brings

To teeming foison, even so her plenteous womb Expresseth his full tilth and husbandry 44

Isab Some one with child by him? My cousin Juliet?

Lucio Is she your cousin?

Isab Adoptedly, as school-maids change their names

By vau, though apt affection
Lucio She it is. 48

Isab O! let him marry her.

Lucio This is the point
The duke is very strangely gone from hence,

Bore many gentlemen, myself being one,
In hand and hope of action, but we do learn 52

By those that know the very nerves of state,
His givings out were of an infinite distance

From his true-meant design Upon his place,
And with full line of his authority, 56

Governs Lord Angelo a man whose blood Is very snow-broth, one who never feels

The wanton stings and motions of the sense,
 But doth rebate and blunt his natural edge 60
 With profits of the mind, study and fast
 He,—to give fear to use and liberty,
 Which have for long run by the hideous law,
 As mice by lions, hath pick'd out an act, 64
 Under whose heavy sense your brother's life Falls into forfeit he arrests him on it,
 And follows close the rigour of the statute,
 To make him an example All hope is gone, 68
 Unless you have the grace by your fair prayer
 To soften Angelo, and that's my path of business Twixt you and your poor brother Isab Doth he so seek his life?

Lucio He's censur'd him 72
 Already, and, as I hear, the provost hath A warrant for his execution

Isab Alas! what poor ability's in me
 To do him good?

Lucio Assay the power you have 76

Isab My power? alas! I doubt—

Lucio Our doubts are traitors,
 And make us lose the good we oft might win,
 By fearing to attempt Go to Lord Angelo,
 And let him learn to know, when maidens sue, 80

Men give like gods, but when they weep and kneel,

All their petitions are as freely theirs
 As they themselves would owe them

Isab I'll see what I can do

Lucio But speedily 84

Isab I will about it straight,
 No longer staying but to give the Mother
 Notice of my affair I humbly thank you Commend me to my brother, soon at night 88
 I'll send him certain word of my success

Lucio I take my leave of you

Isab Good sir, adieu [Exeunt

Whether you had not, some time in your life,
 Err'd in this point which now you censure him,
 And pull'd the law upon you 16

Ang 'Tis one thing to be tempted, Escalus, Another thing to fall I not deny,
 The jury, passing on the prisoner's life,
 May in the sworn twelve have a thief or two 20 Guiltier than him they try, what's open made to justice,

That justice seizes what know the laws
 That thieves do pass on thieves? 'Tis very pregnant,

The jewel that we find, we stoop and take it 24
 Because we see it, but what we do not see
 We tread upon, and never think of it
 You may not so extenuate his offence

For I have had such faults, but rather tell me,
 When I, that censure him, do so offend, 29
 Let mine own judgment pattern out my death,
 And nothing come in partial Sir, he must die

Escal Be it as your wisdom will

Ang Where is the provost?

Prov Here, if it like your honour

Ang See that Claudio

Be executed by mine to-morrow morning
 Bring him his confessor, let him be prepar'd, 36
 For that's the utmost of his pilgrimage

[Exit PROVOST
Escal Well, heaven forgive him, and forgive us all!

Some rise by sin, and some by virtue fall
 Some run from brakes of ice, and answer none,
 And some condemned for a fault alone 40

Enter ELBOW and Officers, with FROTH and POMPEY

Elb Come, bring them away if these be good people in a common-weal that do nothing but use their abuses in common houses, I know no law bring them away 44

Ang How now, sir! What's your name, and what's the matter?

Elb If it please your honour, I am the poor duke's constable, and my name is Elbow I do lean upon justice, sir, and do bring in here before your good honour two notorious benefactors 51

Ang Benefactors! Well what benefactors are they? are they not malefactors?

Elb If it please your honour, I know not well what they are, but precise villains they are, that I am sure of, and void of all profanation in the world that good Christians ought to have 57

Escal This comes off well, here's a wise officer

Ang Go to what quality are they of? Elbow is your name? why dost thou not speak, Elbow?

Pom He cannot, sir he's put at elbow 62

Ang What are you, sir?

Elb He, sir! a tapster, sir, parcel-bawd, one that serves a bad woman, whose house, sir, was, as they say, plucked down in the suburbs; and now she professes a hot-house, which, I think, is a very ill house too 68

Escal How know you that?

ACT II

SCENE I—A Hall in ANGELO'S House

Enter ANGELO, ESCALÚS, a Justice, PROVOST, Officers, and other Attendants

Ang We must not make a scarecrow of the law,
 Setting it up to fear the birds of prey,
 And let it keep one shape, till custom make it Their perch and not their terror

Escal Ay, but yet 4
 Let us be keen and rather cut a little,
 Than fall, and bruise to death. Alas! this gentleman,

Whom I would save, had a most noble father
 Let but your honour know,— 8

Whom I believe to be most strait in virtue,—
 That, in the working of your own affections, Had time coher'd with place or place with wishing,

Or that the resolute acting of your blood 12
 Could have attain'd the effect of your own purpose,

Elb My wife, sir, whom I detest before heaven and your honour,— Escal How! thy wife?

Elb Ay, sir, whom, I thank heaven, is an honest woman,— Escal Dost thou detest her therefore?

Elb I say, sir, I will detest myself also, as well as she, that this house, if it be not a bawd's house, it is pity of her life, for it is a naughty house

Escal How dost thou know that, constable?

Elb Marry, sir, by my wife, who, if she had been a woman cardinally given, might have been accused in fornication, adultery, and all uncleanness there

Escal By the woman's means?

Elb Ay, sir, by Mistress Overdone's means, but as she spit in his face, so she defied him

Pom Sir, if it please your honour, this is not so

Elb Prove it before these varlets here, thou honourable man, prove it Escal [To ANGELO] Do you hear how he misplaces?

Pom Sir, she came in, great with child, and longing,—saving your honour's reverence,—for stewed prunes. Sir, we had but two in the house, which at that very distant time stood, as it were, in a fruit-dish, a dish of some three-pence, your honours have seen such dishes, they are not China dishes, but very good dishes

Escal Go to, go to, no matter for the dish, sir

Pom No, indeed, sir, not of a pin, you are therein in the right but to the point. As I say, this Mistress Elbow, being, as I say, with child, and being great-bellied, and longing, as I said, for prunes, and having but two in the dish, as I said, Master Froth here, this very man, having eaten the rest, as I said, and, as I say, paying for them very honestly, for, as you know, Master Froth, I could not give you three-pence again

Froth No, indeed

Pom Very well you being then, if you be remembered, cracking the stones of the foresaid prunes,—

Froth Ay, so I did, indeed

Pom Why, very well I telling you then, if you be remembered, that such a one and such a one were past cure of the thing you wot of, unless they kept very good diet, as I told you,—

Froth All this is true

Pom Why, very well then —

Escal Come, you are a tedious fool to the purpose. What was done to Elbow's wife, that he hath cause to complain of? Come me to what was done to her Pom Sir, your honour cannot come to that yet.

Escal No, sir, nor I mean it not.

Pom Sir, but you shall come to it, by your honour's leave. And, I beseech you, look into Master Froth here, sir, a man of fourscore pound a year, whose father died at Hallowmas Was't not at Hallowmas, Master Froth?

Froth All-hallow'd eve

Pom Why, very well I hope here be truths. He, sir, sitting, as I say, in a lower chair, sir, 'twas in the Bunch of Grapes, where indeed, you have a delight to sit, have you not?

Froth I have so, because it is an open room and good for winter

Pom Why, very well then I hope here be truths

Ang This will last out a night in Russia, 144 When nights are longest there I'll take my leave,

And leave you to the hearing of the cause, Hoping you'll find good cause to whip them all

Escal I think no less Good morrow to your lordship [Exit ANGELO]

Now, sir, come on what was done to Elbow's wife, once more?

Pom Once, sir? there was nothing done to her once

Elb I beseech you, sir, ask him what this man did to my wife

Pom I beseech your honour, ask me

Escal Well, sir, what did this gentleman to her?

Pom I beseech you, sir, look in this gentleman's face Good Master Froth, look upon his honour, 'tis for a good purpose Doth your honour mark his face?

Escal Ay, sir, very well

Pom Nay, I beseech you, mark it well.

Escal Well, I do so

Pom Doth your honour see any harm in his face?

Escal Why, no

Pom I'll be supposed upon a book, his face is the worst thing about him Good, then, if his face be the worst thing about him, how could Master Froth do the constable's wife any harm? I would know that of your honour Escal He's in the right Constable, what say you to it?

Elb First, an' it like you, the house is a respected house, next, this is a respected fellow, and his mistress is a respected woman

Pom By this hand, sir, his wife is a more respected person than any of us all

Elb Varlet, thou heest thou heest, wicked varlet. The time is yet to come that she was ever respected with man, woman, or child

Pom Sir, she was respected with him before he married with her Escal Which is the wiser here? Justice, or Iniquity? Is this true?

Elb O thou carter! O thou wicked Hannibal! I respected with her before I was married to her? If ever I was respected with her, or she with me, let not your worship think me the poor duke's officer Prove this thou wicked Hannibal, or I'll have mine actor of battery on thee

Escal If he took you a box o' th' ear, you might have your action of slander too

Elb Marry, I thank your good worship for it. What is't your worship's pleasure I shall do with this wicked carter?

Escal Truly, officer, because he hath some offences in him that thou wouldest discover if thou couldst, let him continue in his courses till thou knowest what they are 202

Elb Marry, I thank your worship for it. Thou seest, thou wicked varlet, now, what's come upon thee: thou art to continue now, thou varlet, thou art to continue 202

Escal Where were you born, friend?

Froth Here in Vienna, sir 208

Escal Are you of fourscore pounds a year?

Froth Yes, an 't please you, sir

Escal So [To POMPEY] What trade are you of, sir? 212

Pom A tapster, a poor widow's tapster

Escal Your mistress' name?

Pom Mistress Overdone

Escal Hath she had any more than one husband?

Pom Nine, sir, Overdone by the last 218

Escal Nine!—Come hither to me, Master

Froth Master Froth, I would not have you acquainted with tapsters, they will draw you, Master Froth, and you will hang them. Get you gone, and let me hear no more of you

Froth I thank your worship. For mine own part, I never come into any room in a taphouse, but I am drawn in 226

Escal Well, no more of it, Master Froth, farewell. [Exit FROTH]—Come you hither to me, Master tapster. What's your name, Master tapster?

Pom Pompey

Escal What else? 232

Pom Bum, sir

Escal Troth, and your bum is the greatest thing about you, so that, in the beastliest sense, you are Pompey the Great. Pompey, you are partly a bawd, Pompey, howsoever you colour it in being a tapster, are you not? come, tell me true: it shall be the better for you 239

Pom Truly, sir, I am a poor fellow that would live

Escal How would you live, Pompey? by being a bawd? What do you think of the trade, Pompey? is it a lawful trade? 244

Pom If the law would allow it, sir

Escal But the law will not allow it, Pompey, nor it shall not be allowed in Vienna

Pom Does your worship mean to geld and spay all the youth of the city?

Escal No, Pompey 250

Pom Truly, sir, in my humble opinion, they will to't then. If your worship will take order for the drabs and the knaves, you need not to fear the bawds

Escal There are pretty orders beginning, I can tell you: it is but heading and hanging 256

Pom If you head and hang all that offend that way but for ten year together, you'll be glad to give out a commission for more heads. If this law hold in Vienna ten year, I'll rent the fairest house in it after threepence a bay. If you live to see this come to pass, say, Pompey told you so 263

Escal Thank you, good Pompey, and, in requital of your prophecy, hark you: I advise you, let me not find you before me again upon any complaint whatsoever, no, not for dwelling where you do: if I do, Pompey, I shall beat you to your tent, and prove a shrewd Caesar to you. In plain dealing, Pompey, I shall have you whipt. So, for this time, Pompey, fare you well 272

Pom I thank your worship for your good counsel,—[Aside] but I shall follow it as the flesh and fortune shall better determine. Whip me! No, no, let carman whip his jade. The valiant heart's not whipt out of his trade. [Exit]

Escal Come hither to me, Master Elbow, come hither, Master constable. How long have you been in this place of constable? 280

Elb Seven year and a half, sir

Escal I thought by your readiness in the office, you had continued in it some time. You say, seven years together? 284

Elb And a half, sir

Escal Alas! it hath been great pains to you! They do you wrong to put you so oft upon't. Are there not men in your ward sufficient to serve it? 289

Elb Faith, sir, few of any wit in such matters. As they are chosen, they are glad to choose me for them. I do it for some piece of money, and go through with all 293

Escal Look you bring me in the names of some six or seven, the most sufficient of your parish 296

Elb To your worship's house, sir?

Escal To my house. Fare you well. [Exit ELBOW]

What's o'clock, thank you?

Just Eleven, sir 300

Escal I pray you home to dinner with me

Just I humbly thank you

Escal It grieves me for the death of Claudio, But there is no remedy 304

Just Lord Angelo is severe

Escal It is but needful

Mercy is not itself, that oft looks so, Pardon is still the nurse of second woe. But yet, poor Claudio! There's no remedy 308
Come, sir [Exeunt]

SCENE II—Another Room in the Same

Enter PROVOST and a Servant

Serv He's hearing of a cause: he will come straight. I'll tell him of you Prov Pray you, do. [Exit Serv] I'll know His pleasure, may be he will relent. Alas! He hath but as offended in a dream. All sects, all ages smack of this vice, and he To die for it! 4

Enter ANGELO

Ang Now, what's the matter, provost?
Prov Is it your will Claudio shall die to-morrow?

Ang Did I not tell thee, yea? hadst thou not order?

Why dost thou ask again?

Prov Lest I might be too rash
Under your good correction, I have seen,
When, after execution, Judgment hath Repented o'er his doom

Ang Go to, let that be mine
Do you your office, or give up your place,
And you shall well be spar'd

Prov I crave your honour's pardon
What shall be done, sir, with the groaning Juliet?

She's very near her hour

Ang Dispose of her
To some more fitter place, and that with speed

Re-enter Servant.

Serv Here is the sister of the man condemn'd Desires access to you

Ang Hath he a sister?

Prov Ay, my good lord, a very virtuous maid,

And to be shortly of a sisterhood,

If not already

Ang Well, let her be admitted
[Exit Servant]

See you the fornicatress be remov'd
Let her have needful, but not lavish, means,
There shall be order for't

Enter ISABELLA and LUCIO

Pro God save your honour!

[Offering to retire Ang Stay a little while — [To ISAB] You're welcome what's your will?

Isab I am a woful suitor to your honour, Please but your honour hear me

Ang Well, what's your suit? 28 Isab There is a vice that most I do abhor,
And most desire should meet the blow of justice,
For which I would not plead, but that I must,
For which I must not plead, but that I am 32
At war 'twixt will and will not

Ang Well, the matter?
Isab I have a brother is condemn'd to die
I do beseech you, let it be his fault,

And not my brother

Prov [Aside] Heaven give thee moving graces! 36

Ang Condemn the fault, and not the actor
of it?

Why, every fault's condemn'd ere it be done
Mine were the very cipher of a function,
To fine the faults whose fine stands in record, 40
And let go by the actor

Isab O just, but severe law!
I had a brother, then.—Heaven keep your honour! [Retiring]

Lucio [Aside to ISAB] Give 't not o'er so to him again, entreat him, Kneel down before him, hang upon his gown,
You are too cold, if you should need a pin, 45
You could not with more tame a tongue desire it To him, I say!

Isab Must he needs die?

Ang Maiden, no remedy

Isab Yes, I do think that you might pardon
him,

And neither heaven nor man grieve at the mercy

Ang I will not do't

Isab But can you, if you would?

Ang Look, what I will not, that I cannot do Isab But might you do't, and do the world no wrong,

If so your heart were touch'd with that remorse
As mine is to him?

Ang He's sentenc'd 'tis too late

Lucio [Aside to ISAB] You are too cold 56

Isab Too late? why, no, I, that do speak a
word,

May call it back again Well, believe this,
No ceremony that to great ones 'longs,

Not the king's crown, nor the deputed sword, 60
The marshal's truncheon, nor the judge's robe, Become them with one half so good a grace

As mercy does
If he had been as you, and you as he, 64

You would have slept like him, but he, like you,
Would not have been so stern

Ang Pray you, be gone

Isab I would to heaven I had your potency,
And you were Isabel! should it then be thus? 68

No, I would tell what 'twere to be a judge,
And what a prisoner

Lucio [Aside to ISAB] Ay, touch him, there's the vein

Ang Your brother is a forfeit of the law,
And you but waste your words

Isab Alas! alas! 72
Why, all the souls that were were forfeit once,
And He that might the vantage best have took,

Found out the remedy How would you be,
If He, which is the top of judgment, should 76

But judge you as you are? O! think on that,
And mercy then will breathe within your lips,
Like man new made

Ang Be you content, fair maid,
It is the law, not I, condemn your brother 80

Were he my kinsman, brother, or my son,
It should be thus with him he must die to-morrow

Isab To-morrow! O! that's sudden! Spare him, spare him!

He's not prepar'd for death. Even for our kitchens 84

We kill the fowl of season shall we serve heaven
With less respect than we do minister

To our gross selves? Good, good my lord, be-think you

Who is it that hath died for this offence? 88

There's many have committed it.

Lucio [Aside to ISAB] Ay, well said.

Ang The law hath not been dead, though it hath slept

Those many had not dar'd to do that evil,
If that the first that did th' edict infringe 92

Had answer'd for his deed now 'tis awake, Takes note of what is done, and, like a prophet,

Looks in a glass, that shows what future evils, Either new, or by remissness new-conceiv'd, 96

And so in progress to be hatch'd and born,
Are now to have no successive degrees,
But, ere they live, to end

Isab Yet show some pity

Ang I show it most of all when I show justice,
For then I pity those I do not know 101
Which a dismiss'd offence would after gall,
And do him right, that, answering one foul wrong,

Lives not to act another Be satisfied 104
Your brother dies to-morrow be content

Isab So you must be the first that gives this sentence,

And he that suffers O! it is excellent
To have a giant's strength, but it is tyrannous
To use it like a giant

Lucio [Aside to ISAB] That's well said 109
Isab Could great men thunder

As Jove himself does, Jove would ne'er be quiet,
For every pelted, petty officer 112 Would use his heaven for thunder, nothing but thunder

Merciful heaven!

Thou rather with thy sharp and sulphurous bolt Split'st the unwedgeable and gnarled oak 116
Than the soft myrtle, but man, proud man, Drest in a little brief authority,

Most ignorant of what he's most assur'd,
His glassy essence, like an angry ape, 120
Plays such fantastic tricks before high heaven
As make the angels weep, who, with our spleens, Would all themselves laugh mortal

Lucio [Aside to ISAB] O, to him, to him, wench! He will relent 124
He's coming I perceive 't

Prov [Aside] Pray heaven she win him!
Isab We cannot weigh our brother with our-
self

Great men may jest with saints, 'tis wit in them,
But, in the less foul profanation 128

Lucio [Aside to ISAB] Thou'rt in the right, girl more o' that

Isab That in the captain's but a choleric
word,

Which in the soldier is flat blasphemy

Lucio [Aside to ISAB] Art advis'd o' that?
more on't 132

Ang Why do you put these sayings upon me?
Isab Because authority, though it err like others,

Hath yet a kind of medicine in itself,
That skims the vice o' the top Go to your bosom, Knock there, and ask your heart what it doth
know 137

That's like my brother's fault if it confess A natural guiltiness such as is his,
Let it not sound a thought upon your tongue 140
Against my brother's life

Ang She speaks, and 'tis Such sense that my sense breeds with it Fare you well

Isab Gentle my lord, turn back

Ang I will bethink me Come again tomorrow 144

Isab Hark how I'll bribe you Good my lord, turn back.

Ang How! bribe me?

Isab Ay, with such gifts that heaven shall share with you

Lucio [Aside to ISAB] You had marr'd all else 148

Isab Not with fond sicles of the tested gold,
Or stones whose rates are either rich or poor
As fancy values them, but with true prayers
That shall be up at heaven and enter there 152
Ere sun-rise prayers from preserved souls,
From fasting maids whose minds are dedicate
To nothing temporal

Ang Well, come to me to-morrow

Lucio [Aside to ISAB] Go to, 'tis well away!

Isab Heaven keep your honour safe!
Ang [Aside] Amen

For I am that way going to temptation, Where prayers cross

Isab At what hour to-morrow
Shall I attend your lordship?

Ang At any time 'fore noon 160

Isab Save your honour!
[Exeunt ISABELLA, LUCIO, and PROVOST

Ang From thee, even from thy virtue!
What's this? what's this? Is this her fault or mine?

The tempter or the tempted, who sins most?
Ha! 164

Not she, nor doth she tempt but it is I,
That, lying by the violet in the sun,

Do as the carrion does, not as the flower,
Corrupt with virtuous season Can it be 168

That modesty may more betray our sense Than woman's lightness? Having waste ground enough,

Shall we desire to raze the sanctuary,
And pitch our evils there? O, fie, fie, fie! 172

What dost thou, or what art thou, Angelo?
Dost thou desire her foully for those things

That make her good? O, let her brother live!
Thieves for their robbery have authority 176

When judges steal themselves What! do I love
her,

That I desire to hear her speak again,
And feast upon her eyes? What is't I dream on?

O cunning enemy, that, to catch a saint, 180
With saints dost bait thy hook! Most dangerous

Is that temptation that doth goad us on To sin in loving virtue never could the trumpet,

With all her double vigour, art and nature, 184
Once stir my temper, but this virtuous maid

Subdues me quite Ever till now, When men were fond, I smil'd and wonder'd how [Exit

SCENE III—A Room in a Prison

Enter DUKE, disguised as a friar, and PROVOST

Duke Hail to you, provost! so I think you are

Prov I am the provost What's your will, good friar?

Duke Bound by my charity and my bless'd order,

I come to visit the afflicted spirits

Here in the prison do me the common right
To let me see them and to make me know
The nature of their crimes, that I may minister To them accordingly

Prov I would do more than that, if more were needful

Look, here comes one a gentlewoman of mine,
Who, falling in the flaws of her own youth,
Hath bluster'd her report She is with child, 12
And he that got it, sentenc'd, a young man
More fit to do another such offence, Than die for this

Enter JULIET

Duke When must he die?
Prov As I do think, to-morrow [To JULIET] I have provided for you stay a while, 17

And you shall be conducted Duke Repent you, fair one, of the sin you carry?

Juliet I do, and bear the shame most patiently 20

Duke I'll teach you how you shall arraign your conscience,
And try your penitence, if it be sound,
Or hollowly put on

Juliet I'll gladly learn 23
Duke Love you the man that wrong'd you?

Juliet Yes, as I love the woman that wrong'd
him

Duke So then it seems your most offenceful act

Was mutually committed?

Juliet Mutually
Duke Then was your sin of heavier kind than his 28

Juliet I do confess it, and repent it, father Duke 'Tis meet so, daughter but lest you do repent,

As that the sin hath brought you to this shame, Which sorrow is always toward ourselves, not
heaven, 32

Showing we would not spare heaven as we love it,
But as we stand in fear,—

Juliet I do repent me, as it is an evil,
And take the shame with joy

Duke There rest 36
Your partner, as I hear, must die to-morrow,
And I am going with instruction to him

God's grace go with you! Benedicite! [Exit Juliet Must die to-morrow! O injurious love,

That respites me a life, whose very comfort 41
Is still a dying horror!

Prov 'Tis pity of him [Exeunt

SCENE IV — A Room in ANGELO'S House

Enter ANGELO

Ang When I would pray and think, I think and pray

To several subjects heaven hath my empty
words,

Whilst my invention, hearing not my tongue,
Anchors on Isabel heaven in my mouth, 4

As if I did but only chew his name,
And in my heart the strong and swelling evil
Of my conception The state, whereon I studied Is like a good thing, being often read, 8
Grown fear'd and tedious, yea, my gravity, Wherein, let no man hear me, I take pride,
Could I with boot change for an idle plume,
Which the air beats for vain O place! O form!
How often dost thou with thy case, thy habit, 13
Wrench awe from fools, and tie the wiser souls
To thy false seeming! Blood, thou art blood Let's write good angel on the devil's horn, 16
'Tis not the devil's crest.

Enter a Servant.

How now! who's there?

Serv One Isabel, a sister,

Desires access to you

Ang Teach her the way

[Exit Servant

O heavens! 20

Why does my blood thus muster to my heart,

Making both it unable for itself,

And dispossessing all my other parts

Of necessary fitness? 24

So play the foolish throngs with one that swoonds,

Come all to help him, and so stop the air

By which he should revive and even so

The general, subject to a well-wish'd king, 28

Quit their own part, and in obsequious fondness

Crowd to his presence, where their untaught love

Must needs appear offence

Enter ISABELLA

How now, fair maid!

Isab I am come to know your pleasure 32

Ang That you might know it, would much better please me,

Than to demand what 'tis Your brother cannot live

Isab Even so Heaven keep your honour!

Ang Yet may he live awhile, and, it may be,

As long as you or I yet he must die. 37

Isab Under your sentence?

Ang Yea

Isab When, I beseech you? that in his reprieve, 40

Longer or shorter, he may be so fitted

That his soul sicken not Ang Ha! fie, these filthy vices! It were as

good

To pardon him that hath from nature stolen 44

A man already made, as to remit

Their saucy sweetness that do com heaven's image

In stamps that are forbid 'tis all as easy

Falsely to take away a life true made, 48

As to put metal in restrained means

To make a false one

Isab 'Tis set down so in heaven, but not in

earth

Ang Say you so? then I shall pose you quickly 52

Which had you rather, that the most just law

Now took your brother's life, or, to redeem him,

Give up your body to such sweet uncleanness
As she that he hath stain'd?

Isab Sir, believe this, 56
I had rather give my body than my soul Ang I talk not of your soul Our compell'd sins

Stand more for number than for account
Isab How say you?
Ang Nay, I'll not warrant that, for I can
speak 60

Against the thing I say Answer to this I, now the voice of the recorded law,
Pronounce a sentence on your brother's life Might there not be a charity in sin 64
To save this brother's life?

Isab Please you to do't,
I'll take it as a peril to my soul,
It is no sin at all, but charity

Ang Pleas'd you to do't, at peril of your soul,
Were equal poise of sin and charity 69

Isab That I do beg his life, if it be sin, Heaven let me bear it! you granting of my suit,
If that be sin, I'll make it my morn prayer 72
To have it added to the faults of mine,
And nothing of your answer

Ang Nay, but hear me Your sense pursues not mine either you are ignorant,

Or seem so craftily, and that's not good 76
Isab Let me be ignorant, and in nothing good,
But graciously to know I am no better

Ang Thus wisdom wishes to appear most bright

When it doth tax itself, as these black masks 80
Proclaim an ensheld beauty ten times louder Than beauty could, display'd But mark me,
To be received plain, I'll speak more gross
Your brother is to die 84

Isab So
Ang And his offence is so, as it appears, Accountant to the law upon that pain.

Isab True 88

Ang Admit no other way to save his life,—
As I subscribe not that, nor any other,
But in the loss of question,—that you, his sister, Finding yourself desir'd of such a person, 92
Whose credit with the judge, or own great place, Could fetch your brother from the manacles
Of the all-building law, and that there were No earthly mean to save him, but that either 96
You must lay down the treasures of your body
To this suppos'd, or else to let him suffer,
What would you do?

Isab As much for my poor brother, as myself
That is, were I under the terms of death, 101
Th' impression of keen whips I'd wear as rubies,
And strip myself to death, as to a bed
That, longing, have been sick for, ere I'd yield My body up to shame

Ang Then must your brother die

Isab And 'twere the cheaper way
Better it were a brother died at once,
Than that a sister, by redeeming him, 108
Should die for ever

Ang Were not you then as cruel as the sentence

That you have slander'd so?

Isab Ignomy in ransom and free pardon 112
Are of two houses lawful mercy
Is nothing kin to foul redemption

Ang You seem'd of late to make the law a tyrant,

And rather prov'd the shding of your brother 116
A merment than a vice

Isab O, pardon me, my lord! it oft falls out,
To have what we would have, we speak not what we mean

I something do excuse the thing I hate, 120
For his advantage that I dearly love

Ang We are all frail

Isab Else let my brother die,

If not a feodary, but only he Owe and succeed thy weakness 124

Ang Nay, women are frail too

Isab Ay, as the glasses where they view themselves,

Which are as easy broke as they make forms Women! Help heaven! men their creation mar In profiting by them Nay, call us ten times frail, 129

For we are soft as our complexions are,
And credulous to false prints

Ang I think it well
And from this testimony of your own sex,— 132
Since I suppose we are made to be no stronger Than faults may shake our frames,—let me be bold,

I do arrest your words Be that you are,
That is, a woman, if you be more, you're none,
If you be one, as you are well express'd 137
By all external warrants, show it now,
By putting on the destin'd livery

Isab I have no tongue but one gentle my
lord, 140

Let me entreat you speak the former language
Ang Plainly conceive, I love you

Isab My brother did love Juliet, and you tell me

That he shall die for't 144

Ang He shall not, Isabel, if you give me love

Isab I know your virtue hath a licence m't, Which seems a little fouler than it is,

To pluck on others

Ang Believe me, on mine honour,
My words express my purpose 149

Isab Ha! little honour to be much believ'd, And most pernicious purpose! Seeming, seeming!

I will proclaim thee, Angelo, look for't 152
Sign me a present pardon for my brother, Or with an outstretch'd throat I'll tell the world aloud

What man thou art

Ang Who will believe thee, Isabel?

My unsoil'd name, the austereness of my life, 156
My vouch against you, and my place! the state,
Will so your accusation outweigh,

That you shall stifle in your own report
And smell of calumny I have begun, 160

And now I give my sensual race the rein Fit thy consent to my sharp appetite,
Lay by all nicety and prolixious blushes,

That banish what they sue for, redeem thy brother
 By yielding up thy body to my will,
 Or else he must not only die the death,
 But thy unkindness shall his death draw out
 To lingering sufferance Answer me to-morrow, Or, by the affection that now guides me most,
 I'll prove a tyrant to him As for you,
 Say what you can, my false o'erweighs your true

Isab To whom should I complain? Did I tell this,
 Who would believe me? O perilous mouths!
 That bear in them one and the self same tongue,
 Either of condemnation or approval, Bidding the law make curt'sy to their will,
 Hooking both right and wrong to th' appetite,
 To follow as it draws I'll to my brother
 Though he hath fallen by prompture of the blood, Yet hath he in him such a mind of honour,
 That, had he twenty heads to tender down
 On twenty bloody blocks, he'd yield them up, Before his sister should her body stoop
 To such abhor'd pollution
 Then, Isabel, live chaste, and, brother, die
 More than our brother is our chastity
 I'll tell him yet of Angelo's request,
 And fit his mind to death, for his soul's rest

[Exit

ACT III

SCENE I — A Room in the Prison

Enter DUKE, as a friar, CLAUDIO, and PROVOST

Duke So then you hope of pardon from Lord Angelo?

Claud The miserable have no other medicine
 But only hope

I have hope to live, and am prepar'd to die

Duke Be absolute for death, either death or life

Shall thereby be the sweeter Reason thus with life

If I do lose thee, I do lose a thing

That none but fools would keep a breath thou
 art,

Servile to all the skye influences,
 That dost this habitation, where thou keep'st, Hourly afflict Merely, thou art death's fool,
 For him thou labour'st by thy flight to shun,
 And yet run'st toward him still Thou art not noble

For all th' accommodations that thou bear'st Are nurs'd by baseness Thou art by no means valiant,

For thou dost fear the soft and tender fork
 Of a poor worm Thy best of rest is sleep,
 And that thou oft provok'st, yet grossly fear'st Thy death, which is no more Thou art not thyself,

For thou exist'st on many a thousand grains
 That issue out of dust Happy thou art not,
 For what thou hast not, still thou striv'st to get,
 And what thou hast, forget'st Thou art not certain,

For thy complexion shifts to strange effects, 24

After the moon If thou art rich, thou'rt poor,
 For, like an ass whose back with ingots bows,
 Thou bear'st thy heavy riches but a journey,
 And death unloads thee Friend hast thou none,
 For thine own bowels, which do call thee sure,
 The mere effusion of thy proper loins,
 Do curse the gout, serpigo, and the rheum, For ending thee no sooner Thou hast nor youth nor age,

But as it were, an after-dinner's sleep,
 Dreaming on both, for all thy blessed youth Becomes as aged, and doth beg the alms
 Of palsied eld, and when thou art old and rich, Thou hast neither heat, affection, limb, nor beauty,
 To make thy riches pleasant What's yet in this That bears the name of life? Yet in this life Lie hid moe thousand deaths yet death we fear, That makes these odds all even

Claud I humbly thank you.

To sue to live, I find I seek to die,

And, seeking death, find life let it come on Isab [Within] What ho! Peace here, grace and good company!

Prov Who's there? come in the wish deserves a welcome

Duke Dear sir, ere long I'll visit you again

Claud Most holy sir, I thank you

[Enter ISABELLA

Is My business is a word or two with Claudio Prov And very welcome Look, signior, here's your sister

Duke Provost, a word with you.

Prov As many as you please

Duke Bring me to hear them speak, where I may be conceal'd

[Exeunt DUKE and PROVOST

Claud Now, sister, what's the comfort?

Isab Why, as all comforts are, most good,
 most good indeed

Lord Angelo, having affairs to heaven,
 Intends you for his swift ambassador,

Where you shall be an everlasting leger

Therefore, your best appointment make with speed,

To-morrow you set on

Claud Is there no remedy?

Isab None, but such remedy, as to save a head

To cleave a heart in twain

Claud But is there any?

Isab Yes, brother, you may live

There is a devilish mercy in the judge,

If you'll implore it, that will free your life,
 But fetter you till death

Claud Perpetual durance?

Isab Ay, just, perpetual durance, a restraint,

Though all the world's vastidity you had,

To a determin'd scope

Claud But in what nature?

Isab In such a one as, you consenting to't,
 Would bark your honour from that trunk you bear,

And leave you naked.

Claud. Let me know the point.

Isab O, I do fear thee, Claudio, and I quake, Lest thou a feverous life shouldst entertain, 73
And six or seven winters more respect
Than a perpetual honour 'Dar'st thou die?
The sense of death is most in apprehension, 76
And the poor beetle, that we tread upon,
In corporal sufferance finds a pang as great
As when a giant dies

Claud Why give you me this shame?
Think you I can a resolution fetch 80
From flowery tenderness? If I must die,
I will encounter darkness as a bride,
And hug it in mine arms

Isab There spake my brother there my father's grave 84
Did utter forth a voice Yes, thou must die
Thou art too noble to conserve a life In base appliances This outward-sainted deputy,
Whose settled visage and deliberate word 88
Nips youth i' the head, and follies doth enmesh
As falcon doth the fowl, is yet a devil,
His filth within being cast, he would appear
A pond as deep as hell

Claud The prenzio Angelo? 92
Isab O, 'tis the cunning livery of hell,
The damned'st body to invest and cover
In prenzio guards! Dost thou think, Claudio?
If I would yield him my virginity, 96
Thou mightst be freed

Claud O heavens! it cannot be Isab Yes, he would give't thee, from this rank offence,

So to offend him still This night's the time
That I should do what I abhor to name, 100
Or else thou diest to-morrow

Claud Thou shalt not do't Isab O! were it but my life,
I'd throw it down for your deliverance
As frankly as a pin.

Claud Thanks, dear Isabel 104 Isab Be ready, Claudio, for your death tomorrow

Claud Yes Has he affections in him,
That thus can make him bite the law by the nose,
When he would force it? Sure, it is no sin, 108
Or of the deadly seven it is the least.

Isab Which is the least?
Claud If it were damnable, he being so wise,
Why would he for the momentary trick 112
Be perdurably fin'd? O Isabel!

Isab What says my brother?
Claud Death is a fearful thing
Isab And shamed life a hateful

Claud Ay, but to die, and go we know not where, 116

To lie in cold obstruction and to rot,
This sensible warm motion to become A kneaded clod, and the delighted spirit
To bathe in fiery floods, or to reside
In thrilling region of thick-ribbed ice,
To be imprison'd in the viewless winds,
And blown with restless violence round about The pendant world, or to be worse than worst
Of those that lawless and uncertain thoughts
Imagine howling 'tis too horrible!

The weariest and most loathed worldly life
That age, ache, penury and imprisonment 128
Can lay on nature is a paradise
To what we fear of death

Isab Alas! alas!

Claud Sweet sister, let me live
What sin you do to save a brother's life, 132 Nature dispenses with the deed so far
That it becomes a virtue

Isab O you beast!
O faithless coward! O dishonest wretch!
Wilt thou be made a man out of my vice? 136
Is't not a kind of incest, to take life From thine own sister's shame? What should I think?

Heaven shield my mother play'd my father fair,
For such a warped slip of wilderness 140
Ne'er issu'd from his blood Take my defiance, Die, perish! Might but my bending down Reprieve thee from thy fate, it should proceed I'll pray a thousand prayers for thy death, 144
No word to save thee

Claud Nay, hear me, Isabel

Isab O, fie, fie, fie!
Thy sin's not accidental, but a trade
Mercy to thee would prove itself a bawd 148
'Tis best that thou diest quickly [Going] Claud O hear me, Isabella

Re-enter DUKE

Duke Vouchsafe a word, young sister, but one word

Isab What is your will? 151
Duke Might you dispense with your leisure, I would by and by have some speech with you the satisfaction I would require is likewise your own benefit

Isab I have no superfluous leisure my stay must be stolen out of other affairs, but I will attend you a while. 158

Duke [Aside to CLAUDIO] Son, I have overheard what hath past between you and your sister Angelo had never the purpose to corrupt her, only he hath made an assay of her virtue to practise his judgment with the disposition of natures She, having the truth of honour in her, hath made him that gracious denial which he is most glad to receive I am confessor to Angelo, and I know this to be true, therefore prepare yourself to death Do not satisfy your resolution with hopes that are fallible to-morrow you must die, go to your knees and make ready 170

Claud Let me ask my sister pardon I am so out of love with life that I will sue to be rid
of it

Duke Hold you there farewell 174
[Exit CLAUDIO]

Re-enter PROVOST

Provost, a word with you 120
Prov What's your will, father?
Duke That now you are come, you will be gone Leave me awhile with the maid my mind promises with my habit no loss shall touch her by my company 180
Prov In good time. [Exit]

Duke The hand that hath made you fair hath made you good the goodness that is cheap in beauty makes beauty brief in goodness, but grace, being the soul of your complexion, shall keep the body of it ever fair The assault that Angelo hath made to you, fortune hath conveyed to my understanding, and, but that frailty hath examples for his falling, I should wonder at Angelo How would you do to content thus substitute, and to save your brother?

Isab I am now going to resolve him, I had rather my brother die by the law than my son should be unlawfully born But O, how much is the good duke deceived in Angelo! If ever he return and I can speak to him, I will open my lips in vain, or discover his government

Duke That shall not be much amiss yet, as the matter now stands, he will avoid your accusation, 'he made trial of you only' Therefore, fasten your ear on my advisings to the love I have in doing good a remedy presents itself I do make myself believe that you may most uprightly do a poor wronged lady a merited benefit, redeem your brother from the angry law, do no stain to your own gracious person, and much please the absent duke, if peradventure he shall ever return to have hearing of this business

Isab Let me hear you speak further I have spirit to do anything that appears not foul in the truth of my spirit

Duke Virtue is bold, and goodness never fearful Have you not heard speak of Mariana, the sister of Frederick, the great soldier who miscarried at sea?

Isab I have heard of the lady, and good words went with her name

Duke She should thus Angelo have married, was affianced to her by oath, and the nuptial appointed between which time of the contract, and limit of the solemnity, her brother Frederick was wracked at sea, having in that perished vessel the dowry of his sister But mark how heavily this befell to the poor gentlewoman there she lost a noble and renowned brother, in his love toward her ever most kind and natural, with him the portion and snew of her fortune, her marriage-dowry, with both, her combinate husband, thus well-seeming Angelo

Isab Canthus beso? Did Angelo so leave her?

Duke Left her in her tears, and dried not one of them with his comfort, swallowed his vows whole, pretending in her discoveries of dishonour in few, bestowed her on her own lamentation, which she yet wears for his sake, and he, a marble to her tears, is washed with them but relents not Isab What a merit were it in death to take this poor maid from the world! What corruption in this life, that it will let this man live! But how out of this can she avail?

Duke It is a rupture that you may easily heal, and the cure of it not only saves your brother, but keeps you from dishonour in doing it.

Isab Show me how, good father

Duke This forenamed maid hath yet in her the continuance of her first affection his unjust unkindness, that in all reason should have quenched her love, hath, like an impediment in the current, made it more violent and unruly Go you to Angelo answer his requiring with a plausible obedience agree with his demands to the point, only refer yourself to this advantage, first, that your stay with him may not be long, that the time may have all shadow and silence in it, and the place answer to convenience This being granted in course, and now follows all, we shall advise this wronged maid to stand up your appointment, go in your place, if the encounter acknowledge itself hereafter, it may compel him to her recompense, and here by this is your brother saved, your honour untainted, the poor Mariana advantaged, and the corrupt deputy scaled The maid will I frame and make fit for his attempt If you think well to carry this, as you may, the doubtfulness of the benefit defends the deceit from reproof What think you of it?

Isab The image of it gives me content already, and I trust it will grow to a most prosperous perfection

Duke It lies much in your holding up Haste you speedily to Angelo if for this might he entreat you to his bed, give him promise of satisfaction I will presently to St Luke's, there, at the moated grange, resides this dejected Mariana at that place call upon me, and dispatch with Angelo, that it may be quickly

Isab I thank you for this comfort Fare you well, good father

SCENE II — The Street before the Prison

Enter DUKE, as a friar to him ELBOW, POMPEY, and Officers.

Elb Nay, if there be no remedy for it, but that you will needs buy and sell men and women like beasts, we shall have all the world drink brown and white bastard

Duke O heavens! what stuff is here?

Pom 'Twas never merry world, since, of two usuries, the merriest was put down, and the worse allowed by order of law a furred gown to keep him warm, and furred with fox and lamb skins too, to signify that craft, being richer than innocency, stands for the facing

Elb Come your way, sir Bless you, good father friar

Duke And you, good brother father What offence hath this man made you, sir?

Elb Marry, sir, he hath offended the law and, sir, we take him to be a thief too, sir, for we have found upon him, sir, a strange pick-lock, which we have sent to the deputy

Duke Fie, surrah a bawd, a wicked bawd! The evil that thou causest to be done, That is thy means to live, Do thou but think What 'tis to cram a man
From such a filthy vice With a back
thyself,

From their abominable and beastly touches
I drink, I eat, array myself, and live Canst thou believe thy living is a life, 27
So stinkingly depending? Go mend, go mend Pom Indeed, it does stunk in some sort, sir, but yet, sir, I would prove—

Duke Nay, if the devil have given thee proofs for sin,
Thou wilt prove his Take him to prison,
officer, 32
Correction and instruction must both work
Ere this rude beast will profit

Elb He must before the deputy, sir, he has given him warning The deputy cannot abide a whoremaster if he be a whoremonger, and comes before him, he were as good go a mile on his errand

Duke That we were all, as some would seem to be, 40
From our faults, as faults from seeming, free!

Elb His neck will come to your waist,—a cord, sir

Pom I spy comfort I cry, bail Here's a gentleman and a friend of mine 45

Enter LUCIO

Lucio How now, noble Pompey! What, at the wheels of Cæsar? Art thou led in triumph?
What, is there none of Pygmalion's images, newly made woman, to be had now, for putting the hand in the pocket and extracting it clutched? What reply 'ha? What say'st thou to this tune, matter and method? Is't not drowned i' the last rain, ha? What sayest thou Trot? Is the world as it was, man? Which is the way? Is it sad, and few words, or how? The trick of it? 56

Duke Still thus, and thus, still worse!
Lucio How doth my dear morsel, thy mistress? Procures she still, ha?

Pom Troth, sir, she hath eaten up all her beef, and she is herself in the tub 61

Lucio Why, 'tis good, it is the right of it, it must be so ever your fresh whores and your powdered bawd an unshunned consequence, it must be so Art going to prison, Pompey?

Pom Yes, faith, sir 66

Lucio Why, 'tis not amiss, Pompey Farewell. Go, say I sent thee thither For debt, Pompey? or how?

Elb For being a bawd, for being a bawd 70

Lucio Well, then, imprison him. If imprisonment be the due of a bawd, why, 'tis his right bawd is he, doubtless, and of antiquity too, bawd-born Farewell, good Pompey Commend me to the prison, Pompey You will turn good husband now, Pompey, you will keep the
house 77

Pom I hope, sir, your good worship will be my bail

Lucio No, indeed will I not, Pompey, it is not the wear I will pray, Pompey, to increase your bondage if you take it not patiently, why, your mettle is the more Adieu, trusty Pompey Bless you, friar 84

Duke And you

Lucio Does Bridget paint still, Pompey, ha?

Elb Come your ways, sir, come

Pom You will not bail me then, sir? 88

Lucio Then, Pompey, nor now What news abroad, friar? What news?

Elb Come your ways, sir, come

Lucio Go to kennel, Pompey, go 92

[Exeunt ELBOW, POMPEY and Officers.]

What news, friar, of the duke?

Duke I know none Can you tell me of any?

Lucio Some say he is with the Emperor of Russia, other some, he is in Rome but where is he, think you? 97

Duke I know not where, but wheresoever,
I wish him well

Lucio It was a mad fantastical trick of him to steal from the state, and usurp the beggary he was never born to Lord Angelo dukes it well in his absence, he puts transgression to't

Duke He does well in't 104

Lucio A little more lenity to lechery would do no harm in him something too crabbed that way, friar

Duke It is too general a vice, and severity must cure it 109

Lucio Yes, in good sooth, the vice is of a great kindred, it is well allied, but it is impossible to extirp it quite, friar, till eating and drinking be put down They say this Angelo was not made by man and woman after this downright way of creation is it true, think you?

Duke How should he be made, then? 116

Lucio Some report a sea-maid spawn'd him, some that he was begot between two stock-fishes But it is certain that when he makes water his urine is congealed ice, that I know to be true, and he is a motion generative, that's infallible

Duke You are pleasant, sir, and speak apace,

Lucio Why, what a ruthless thing is this in him, for the rebellion of a cod-piece to take away the life of a man! Would the duke that is absent have done this? Ere he would have hanged a man for the getting a hundred bastards, he would have paid for the nursing a thousand he had some feeling of the sport, he knew the service, and that instructed him to mercy 131

Duke I never heard the absent duke much detected for women, he was not inclined that way

Lucio O, sir, you are deceived.

Duke 'Tis not possible 136

Lucio Who? not the duke? yes, your beggar of fifty, and his use was to put a ducat in her clack-dish, the duke had crotchets in him. He would be drunk too, that let me inform you. 140

Duke You do him wrong, surely

Lucio Sir, I was an inward of his A shy fellow was the duke, and, I believe I know the cause of his withdrawing. 144

Duke What, I prithee, might be the cause?

Lucio No, pardon, 'tis a secret must be locked within the teeth and the lips, but this I can let you understand, the greater file of the subject held the duke to be wise

Duke Wise! why, no question but he was,

Lucio A very superficial, ignorant, unweigh-ing fellow 152

Duke Either this is envy in you, folly, or mistaking the very stream of his life and the business he hath helmed must, upon a warranted need, give him a better proclamation Let him be but testimonied in his own bringings forth, and he shall appear to the envious a scholar, a statesman and a soldier Therefore you speak unskilfully, or, if your knowledge be more, it is much darkened in your malice

Lucio Sir, I know him, and I love him 162 Duke Love talks with better knowledge, and knowledge with dearer love

Lucio Come, sir, I know what I know Duke I can hardly believe that, since you know not what you speak But, if ever the duke return,—as our prayers are he may,—let me desire you to make your answer before him if it be honest you have spoke, you have courage to maintain it I am bound to call upon you, and, I pray you, your name? 172

Lucio Sir, my name is Lucio, well known to
the duke

Duke He shall know you better, sir, if I may live to report you 176

Lucio I fear you not Duke O! you hope the duke will return no more, or you imagine me too unhurtful an opposite But indeed I can do you little harm, you'll forswear this again.

Lucio I'll be hanged first thou art deceived in me, friar But no more of this Canst thou tell if Claudio die to-morrow or no? 184

Duke Why should he die, sir?

Lucio Why? for filling a bottle with a tun-dish. I would the duke we talk of were returned again this ungentured agent will unpeople the province with contumacy, sparrows must not build in his house-eaves, because they are lecherous The duke yet would have dark deeds darkly answered, he would never bring them to light would he were returned! Marry, this Claudio is condemned for untrussing Farewell, good friar, I prithee, pray for me The duke,
I say to thee again, would eat mutton on Fridays He's not past it yet, and I say to thee, he would mouth with a beggar, though she smelt brown bread and garlic say that I said so Farewell
[Exit]

Duke No might nor greatness in mortality
Can censure 'scape back-wounding calumny
The whitest virtue strikes What king so strong Can tie the gall up in the slanderous tongue?
But who comes here? 204

Enter ESCALUS, PROVOST, and Officers with MISTRESS OVERDONE

Escal Go, away with her to prison!

Mrs Ov Good my lord, be good to me, your honour is accounted a merciful man, good my
lord. 208

Escal Double and treble admonition, and still forget it the same kind? This would make mercy swear, and play the tyrant.

Prov A bawd of eleven years' continuance, may it please your honour 213

Mrs Ov My lord, this is one Lucio's information against me Mistress Kate Keepdown was with child by him in the duke's time, he promised her marriage, his child is a year and a quarter old, come Philip and Jacob I have kept it myself, and see how he goes about to abuse me! 220

Escal That fellow is a fellow of much licence let him be called before us Away with her to prison! Go to, no more words [Exit Officers with MISTRESS OVERDONE] Provost, my brother Angelo will not be altered, Claudio must die to-morrow Let him be furnished with divines, and have all charitable preparation if my brother wrought by my pity, it should not be so with him 229

Prov So please you, this friar hath been with him, and advised him for the entertainment of death 232

Escal Good even, good father

Duke Bless and goodness on you!

Escal Of whence are you?

Duke Not of this country, though my chance is now 236

To use it for my time I am a brother
Of gracious order, late come from the See,
In special business from his Holiness

Escal What news abroad i' the world? 240

Duke None, but there is so great a fever on goodness, that the dissolution of it must cure it novelty is only in request, and it is as dangerous to be aged in any kind of course, as it is virtuous to be constant in any undertaking there is scarce truth enough alive to make societies secure, but security enough to make fellowships accursed Much upon this riddle runs the wisdom of the world This news is old enough, yet it is every day's news I pray you, sir, of what disposition was the duke? 251

Escal One that, above all other strifes, contended especially to know himself

Duke What pleasure was he given to? 254

Escal Rather rejoicing to see another merry, than merry at anything which professed to make him rejoice a gentleman of all temperance But leave we him to his events, with a prayer they may prove prosperous, and let me desire to know how you find Claudio prepared I am made to understand, that you have lent him visitation. 262

Duke He professes to have received no simister measure from his judge, but most willingly humbles himself to the determination of justice, yet had he framed to himself, by the instruction of his frailty, many deceiving promises of life, which I, by my good leisure have discredited to him, and now is he resolved to die 269

Escal You have paid the heavens your function, and the prisoner the very debt of your calling I have laboured for the poor gentleman to the extremest shore of my modesty, but my brother justice have I found so severe, that he hath forced me to tell him he is indeed Justice 276

Duke If his own life answer the straitness of his proceeding, it shall become him well, wherein if he chance to fail, he hath sentenced himself

Escal I am going to visit the prisoner Fare you well 281

Duke Peace be with you!

[Exeunt ESCALUS and PROVOST]

He, who the sword of heaven will bear
Should be as holy as severe,
Pattern in himself to know,
Grace to stand, and virtue go,
More nor less to others paying Than by self offences weighing Shame to him whose cruel striking Kills for faults of his own liking!
Twice treble shame on Angelo,
To weed my vice and let his grow!
O, what may man within him hide,
Though angel on the outward side!
How many likeness made in crimes,
Making practice on the times,
To draw with idle spiders' strings
Most pond'rous and substantial things!
Craft against vice I must apply With Angelo to-night shall he His old betrothed but despis'd
So disguise shall, by the disguis'd,
Pay with falsehood false exacting,
And perform an old contracting ance a little, may oe I will call upon you anon, for some advantage to yourself

Mari I am always bound to you [Exit

Enter ISABELLA

Duke Very well met, and well come 28
What is the news from this good deputy?

Isab He hath a garden circummur'd with brick,

Whose western side is with a vineyard back'd,
And to that vineyard is a planced gate, 32

288 That makes his opening with this bigger key,
This other doth command a little door
Which from the vineyard to the garden leads,
There have I made my promise 36

Upon the heavy middle of the night
292 To call upon him

Duke But shall you on your knowledge find this way?

Isab I have ta'en a due and wary note upon't 296

With whispering and most guilty diligence,
In action all of precept, he did show me
The way twice o'er

300 Duke Are there no other tokens Between you 'greed concerning her observance?

Isab No, none, but only a repair i' the dark, 45

[Exit And that I have possess'd him my most stay Can be but brief, for I have made him know
I have a servant comes with me along, 48
That stays upon me, whose persuasion is I come about my brother

Duke 'Tis well borne up
I have not yet made known to Mariana
A word of this What ho! within! come forth.

Re-enter MARIANA.

I pray you, be acquainted with this maid, 53 4 She comes to do you good

Isab I do desire the like.

Duke Do you persuade yourself that I respect you?

Mari Good friar, I know you do, and oft have found it. 56

Duke Take then this your companion by the hand,

Who hath a story ready for your ear
I shall attend your leisure but make haste,
The vaporous night approaches

Mari Will 't please you walk aside? 60

[Exeunt MARIANA and ISABELLA]

Duke O place and greatness! millions of false eyes

Are stuck upon thee volumes of report Run with these false and most contrarious quests

Upon thy doings thousand escapes of wit 64

Make thee the father of their idle dream,
And rack thee in their fancies!

Re-enter MARIANA and ISABELLA

Welcome! How agreed?

Isab She'll take the enterprise upon her,
father,
If you advise it.

ACT IV

SCENE I — The moated Grange at St Luke's

Enter MARIANA and a Boy Boy sings

Take O take those lips away

That so sweetly were forsworn,

And those eyes the break of day

Lights that do mislead the morn

But my kisses bring again

bring again,

Seals of love, but seal'd in vain, seal'd in vain. 8

Mari Break off thy song, and haste thee quick away

Here comes a man of comfort, whose advice Hath often still'd my brawling discontent

[Exit Boy]

Enter DUKE, disguised as before

I cry you mercy, sir, and well could wish 12

You had not found me here so musical

Let me excuse me, and believe me so,

My mirth it much displeas'd, but pleas'd my woe

Duke 'Tis good, though music oft hath such a charm 16

To make bad good, and good provoke to harm.

I pray you tell me, hath anybody inquired for me here to-day? much upon this time have I promised here to meet 20

Mari You have not been inquired after I have sat here all day

Duke I do constantly believe you. The time is come even now I shall crave your forbear-

Duke It is not my consent, 68
But my entreaty too
Isab Little have you to say
When you depart from him, but, soft and low,
'Remember now my brother'

Mari Fear me not Duke Nor, gentle daughter, fear you not at
all 72

He is your husband on a pre-contract
To bring you thus together, 'tis no sin,
Sith that the justice of your title to him
Doth flourish the decent Come, let us go 76
Our corn's to reap, for yet our tithe's to sow
[Exeunt]

SCENE II—A Room in the Prison

Enter PROVOST and POMPEY

Prov Come hither, sirrah Can you cut off a man's head?

Pom If the man be a bachelor, sir, I can, but if he be a married man, he is his wife's head, and I can never cut off a woman's head 5

Prov Come, sir, leave me your snatches, and yield me a direct answer To-morrow morning are to die Claudio and Barnardine Here is in our prison a common executioner, who in his office lacks a helper if you will take it on you to assist him, it shall redeem you from your gyves, if not, you shall have your full time of imprisonment, and your deliverance with an unpunished whipping, for you have been a notorious bawd 15

Pom Sir, I have been an unlawful bawd time out of mind, but yet I will be content to be a lawful hangman I would be glad to receive some instruction from my fellow partner

Prov What ho, Abhorson! Where's Abhor-son, there? 21

Enter ABHORSON

Abhor Do you call, sir?

Prov Sirrah, here's a fellow will help you to-morrow in your execution If you think it meet, compound with him by the year, and let him abide here with you, if not, use him for the present, and dismiss him He cannot plead his estimation with you, he hath been a bawd 28

Abhor A bawd, sir? Fie upon him! he will discredit our mystery

Prov Go to, sir, you weigh equally, a feather will turn the scale [Exit]

Pom Pray, sir, by your good favour—for surely, sir, a good favour you have, but that you have a hanging look,—do you call, sir, your occupation a mystery? 36

Abhor Ay, sir, a mystery

Pom Paining, sir, I have heard say, is a mystery, and your whores, sir, being members of my occupation, using painting, do prove my occupation a mystery but what mystery there should be in hanging, if I should be hanged, I cannot imagine

Abhor Sir, it is a mystery 44

Pom Proof?

Abhor Every true man's apparel fits your thief

Pom If it be too little for your thief, your true man thinks it big enough, if it be too big for your thief, your thief thinks it little enough so, every true man's apparel fits your thief 50

Re-enter PROVOST

Prov Are you agreed?

Pom Sir, I will serve him, for I do find that your hangman is a more penitent trade than your bawd, he doth often ask forgiveness

Prov You, sirrah, provide your block and your axe to-morrow four o'clock 56

Abhor Come on, bawd, I will instruct thee in my trade, follow

Pom I do desire to learn, sir, and, I hope, if you have occasion to use me for your own turn, you shall find me yare, for, truly, sir, for your kindness I owe you a good turn

Prov Call hither Barnardine and Claudio.

[Exit POMPEY and ABHORSON]

The one has my pity, not a jot the other, 64
Being a murderer, though he were my brother.

Enter CLAUDIO

Look, here's the warrant, Claudio, for thy death

'Tis now dead midnight, and by eight to-morrow Thou must be made immortal Where's Barnardine? 68

Claud As fast lock'd up in sleep as guiltless
labour

When it lies starkly in the traveller's bones,

He will not wake

Prov Who can do good on him?

Well, go, prepare yourself [Knocking within]

But hark, what noise?— 72

Heaven give your spirits comfort!—[Exit CLAU-DIO] By and by

I hope it is some pardon or reprieve

For the most gentle Claudio.

Enter DUKE, disguised as before

Welcome, father

Duke The best and wholesom'st spirits of the night 76

Envelop you, good provost! Who call'd here of late?

Prov None since the curfew rung

Duke Not Isabel?

Prov No

Duke They will, then ere't be long

Prov What comfort is for Claudio? 80

Duke There's some in hope

Prov It is a bitter deputy.

Duke Not so, not so: his life is parallel'd
Even with the stroke and line of his great justice—

He doth with holy abstinence subdue 84

That in himself which he spurs on his power

To qualify in others were he meal'd with that

Which he corrects, then were he tyrannous,

But this being so, he's just—[Knocking within]

Now are they come [Exit PROVOST]

This is a gentle provost seldom when 89

The steeld gaoler is the friend of men.

[Knocking.]

How now! What noise? That spirit's possess'd with haste
That wounds the unsisting postern with these strokes

92

Re-enter PROVOST

Prov There he must stay until the officer Arise to let him in, he is call'd up

Duke Have you no countermand for Claudio yet,
But he must die to-morrow?

Prov None, sir none 96
Duke As near the dawning, provost, as it is,
You shall hear more ere morning

Prov Happily
You something know, yet, I believe there comes No countermand no such example have we 100
Besides, upon the very siege of justice,
Lord Angelo hath to the public ear Profess'd the contrary

Enter a Messenger

This is his lordship's man
Duke And here comes Claudio's pardon 104 Mes [Giving a paper] My lord hath sent you this note, and by me this further charge, that you swerve not from the smallest article of it, neither in time, matter, or other circumstance Good morrow, for, as I take it, it is almost day Prov I shall obey him [Exit Messenger] Duke [Aside] This is his pardon, purchased by such sin

For which the pardoner himself is in, 112
Hence hath offence his quick celerity,
When it is borne in high authority
When vice makes mercy, mercy's so extended,
That for the fault's love is the offender friended 116

Now, sir, what news?
Prov I told you Lord Angelo, belike thinking me remiss in mine office, awakens me with this unwonted putting on, methinks strangely, for he hath not used it before 121

Duke Pray you, let's hear Prov Whatsoever you may hear to the contrary, let Claudio be executed by four of the clock, and, in the afternoon, Barnardine For my better satisfaction, let me have Claudio's head sent me by five Let this be duly performed, with a thought that more depends on it than we must yet deliver Thus fail not to do your office, as you will answer it at your peril
What say you to this, sir? 131

Duke What is that Barnardine who is to be executed this afternoon?

Prov A Bohemian born, but here nursed up and bred, one that is a prisoner nine years old

Duke How came it that the absent duke had not either delivered him to his liberty or executed him? I have heard it was ever his manner to do so 139

Prov His friends still wrought reprieves for him, and, indeed, his fact, till now in the government of Lord Angelo, came not to an un-doubtful proof

Duke It is now apparent? 144

Prov Most manifest, and not denied by himself Duke Hath he borne himself penitently in prison? How seems he to be touched?

Prov A man that apprehends death no more dreadfully but as a drunken sleep, careless, reckless, and fearless of what's past, present, or to come, insensible of mortality, and desperately mortal 152

Duke He wants advice Prov He will hear none He hath evermore had the liberty of the prison give him leave to escape hence he would not drunk many times a day, if not many days entirely drunk We have very oft awaked him, as if to carry him to execution, and showed him a seeming warrant for it it hath not moved him at all 160

Duke More of him anon There is written in your brow, provost, honesty and constancy if I read it not truly, my ancient skill beguiles me, but, in the boldness of my cunning I will lay myself in hazard Claudio, whom here you have warrant to execute, is no greater forfeit to the law than Angelo who hath sentenced him To make you understand this in a manifested effect, I crave but four days' respite, for the which you are to do me both a present and a dangerous courtesy

Prov Pray, sir, in what? 172
Duke In the delaying death

Prov Alack! how may I do it, having the hour limited, and an express command, under penalty, to deliver his head in the view of Angelo?
I may make my case as Claudio's to cross this in the smallest 178

Duke By the vow of mine order I warrant you, if my instructions may be your guide Let this Barnardine be this morning executed, and his head borne to Angelo

Prov Angelo hath seen them both, and will discover the favour 184

Duke O! death's a great dissembler, and you may add to it Shave the head, and tie the beard, and say it was the desire of the penitent to be so bared before his death you know the course is common If anything fall to you upon this, more than than's and good fortune, by the saint whom I profess, I will plead against it with my life 192

Prov Pardon me, good father, it is against my oath

Duke Were you sworn to the duke or to the deputy? 196

Prov To him, and to his substitutes

Duke You will think you have made no offence, if the duke avouch the justice of your dealing? 200

Prov But what likelihood is in that?

Duke Not a resemblance, but a certainty Yet since I see you fearful, that neither my coat, integrity, nor persuasion can with ease attempt you, I will go further than I meant, to pluck all fears out of you Look you, sir, here is the hand and seal of the duke you know the character, I doubt not, and the signet is not strange to you. 209

Prov I know them both.

Duke The contents of this is the return of the duke you shall anon over-read it at your pleasure, where you shall find within these two days, he will be here. This is a thing that Angelo knows not, for he this very day receives letters of strange tenour, perchance of the duke's death, perchance, his entering into some monastery, but, by chance, nothing of what is writ. Look, the unfolding star calls up the shepherd. Put not yourself into amazement how these things should be; all difficulties are but easy when they are known. Call your executioner, and off with Barnardine's head. I will give him a present shrift and advise him for a better place. Yet you are amaz'd, but this shall absolutely resolve you. Come away, it is almost clear dawn.

[Exeunt]

SCENE III — Another Room in the Same

Enter POMPEY

Pom I am as well acquainted here as I was in our house of profession: one would think it were Mistress Overdone's own house, for here be many of her old customers. First, here's young Master Rash, he's in for a commodity of brown paper and old ginger, nine-score and seventeen pounds, of which he made five marks, ready money marry, then ginger was not much in request, for the old women were all dead. Then is there here one Master Caper, at the suit of Master Three-pile the mercer, for some four suits of peach-colour'd satin, which now peaches him a beggar. Then have we young Dizzy, and young Master Deep-vow, and Master Copper-spur, and Master Starve-lackey the rapier and dagger man, and young Drop-heir that kill'd lusty Pudding, and Master Forthlight, the tilter, and brave Master Shoe-tie the great traveller, and wild Half-can that stabbed Pots, and, I think, forty more, all great doers in our trade, and are now 'for the Lord's sake'

Enter ABHORSON

Abhor Sirrah, bring Barnardine hither.
Pom Master Barnardine! you must rise and be hanged, Master Barnardine.

Abhor What ho! Barnardine!

Barnar [Within] A pox o' your throats! Who makes that noise there? What are you?

Pom Your friends, sir, the hangman. You must be so good, sir, to rise and be put to death.

Barnar [Within] Away! you rogue, away! I am sleepy.

Abhor Tell him he must awake, and that quickly too.

Pom Pray, Master Barnardine, awake till you are executed, and sleep afterwards.

Abhor Go in to him, and fetch him out.

Pom He is coming, sir, he is coming, I hear his straw rustle.

Abhor Is the axe upon the block, sirrah?Pom. Very ready, sir.

Enter BARNARDINE

Barnar How now, Abhorson! what's the news with you?

Abhor Truly, sir, I would desire you to clap into your prayers, for, look you, the warrant's come.

Barnar You rogue, I have been drinking all night, I am not fitted for 't.

Pom O, the better, sir, for he that drinks all night, and is hang'd betimes in the morning, may sleep the sounder all the next day.

Abhor Look you, sir, here comes your ghostly father: do we jest now, think you?

Enter DUKE, disguised as before

Duke Sir, induced by my charity, and hearing how hastily you are to depart, I am come to advise you, comfort you, and pray with you.

Barnar Friar, not I. I have been drinking hard all night, and I will have more time to prepare me, or they shall beat out my brains with billets. I will not consent to die this day, that's certain.

Duke O, sir, you must, and therefore, I beseech you look forward on the journey you shall go.

Barnar I swear I will not die to-day for any man's persuasion.

Duke But hear you.

Barnar Not a word if you have anything to say to me, come to my ward, for thence will not I to day.

Enter PROVOST.

Duke Unfit to live or die. O, gravel heart! After him fellows bring him to the block.

[Exeunt ABHORSON and POMPEY]

Prov Now, sir, how do you find the prisoner?

Duke A creature unprepar'd, unmeet for death,

And, to transport him in the mind he is Were damnable.

Prov Here in the prison, father, 76
 There died this morning of a cruel fever
 One Ragozine, a most notorious pirate,
 A man of Claudio's years, his beard and head Just of his colour. What if we do omit 80
 This reprobate till he were well inclin'd,
 And satisfy the deputy with the visage Of Ragozine, more like to Claudio?

Duke O, 'tis an accident that heaven provides!

Dispatch it presently: the hour draws on Prefix'd by Angelo. See this be done,
 And sent according to command, whiles I Persuade this rude wretch willingly to die.

Prov This shall be done, good father, presently.

But Barnardine must die this afternoon
 And how shall we continue Claudio,
 To save me from the danger that might come 82
 If he were known alive?

Duke Let this be done Put them in secret holds, both Barnardine and Claudio.

Ere twice the sun hath made his journal greeting
To the under generation, you shall find 96
Your safety manifested

Prov I am your free dependant.

Duke Quick, dispatch,
And send the head to Angelo [Exit PROVOST]
Now will I write letters to Angelo,— 101
The provost, he shall bear them,—whose contents

Shall witness to him I am near at home,
And that, by great injunctions, I am bound 104
To enter publicly him I'll desire
To meet me at the consecrated fount
A league below the city, and from thence,
By cold gradation and well-balanc'd form, 108
We shall proceed with Angelo

Re-enter PROVOST

Prov Here is the head, I'll carry it myself
Duke Convenient is it Make a swift return,
For I would commune with you of such things
That want no ear but yours

Prov I'll make all speed [Exit

Isab [Within] Peace, ho, be here!

Duke The tongue of Isabel She's come to know

If yet her brother's pardon be come hither, 116
But I will keep her ignorant of her good,
To make her heavenly comforts of despair,
When it is least expected

Enter ISABELLA

Isab Ho! by your leave

Duke Goodmorn'g to you, fair and gracious
daughter 120

Isab The better, given me by so holy a man
Hath yet the deputy sent my brother's pardon?
Duke He hath releas'd him, Isabel, from the world

His head is off and sent to Angelo 124

Isab Nay, but it is not so

Duke It is no other show your wisdom,
daughter,

In your close patience 127

Isab O! I will to him and pluck out his eyes!

Duke You shall not be admitted to his sight

Isab Unhappy Claudio! Wretched Isabel!
Injurious world! Most damned Angelo!

Duke This nor hurts him nor profits you a jot, 132

Forbear it therefore, give your cause to heaven

Mark what I say, which you shall find

By every syllable a faithful verity

The duke comes home to-morrow, nay, dry your eyes 136

One of our covent, and his confessor,

Gives me this instance already he hath carried

Notice to Escalus and Angelo,

Who do prepare to meet him at the gates, 140

There to give up their power If you can, pace your wisdom

In that good path that I would wish it go,

And you shall have your bosom on this wretch,

Grace of the Duke, revenges to your heart, 144

And general honour.

Isab

I am directed by you.

Duke This letter then to Friar Peter give,
'Tis that he sent me of the duke's return
Say, by this token, I desire his company 148 At Mariana's house to-night Her cause and
yours,

I'll perfect him withal, and he shall bring you Before the duke, and to the head of Angelo Accuse him home, and home For my poor
self, 152

I am combined by a sacred vow
And shall be absent Wend you with this letter Command these fretting waters from your
eyes

With a light heart trust not my holy order, 156
If I pervert your course Who's here?

Enter LUCIO

Lucio Good even. Friar, where is the provost?

Duke Not within, sir 160

Lucio O pretty Isabella, I am pale at mine heart to see thine eyes so red thou must be patient I am fain to dine and sup with water and bran I dare not for my head fill my belly, one fruitful meal would set me to't But they say the duke will be here to-morrow By my troth, Isabel, I loved thy brother if the old fantastical duke of dark corners had been at home, he had lived [Exit ISABELLA]

Duke Sir, the duke is marvellous little beholding to your reports, but the best is, he lives not in them 172

Lucio Friar, thou knowest not the duke so well as I do he's a better woodman than thou takest him for

Duke Well, you'll answer this one day
Fare ye well 177

Lucio Nay, tarry, I'll go along with thee I can tell thee pretty tales of the duke

Duke You have told me too many of him already, sir, if they be true, if not true, none were enough 182

Lucio I was once before him for getting a wench with child

Duke Did you such a thing?

Lucio Yes, marry, did I but I was fain to forswear it they would else have married me to the rotten medlar 188

Duke Sir, your company is fairer than honest Rest you well

Lucio By my troth, I'll go with thee to the lane's end If bawdy talk offend you, we'll have very little of it Nay, friar, I am a kind of butt, I shall stick. [Exeunt]

SCENE IV —A Room in ANGELO'S House

Enter ANGELO and ESCALUS.

Escal Every letter he hath writ hath disvouched other

Ang In most uneven and distracted man-His actions show much like to madness heaven his wisdom be not tainted! An'

meet him at the gates, and redeliver our authorities there?

Escal I guess not 8

Ang And why should we proclaim it in an hour before his entering, that if any crave redress of injustice, they should exhibit their petitions in the street? 12

Escal He shows his reason for that to have a dispatch of complaints, and to deliver us from devices hereafter, which shall then have no power to stand against us 16

Ang Well, I beseech you, let it be proclaim'd. Betimes in the morn I'll call you at your house, Give notice to such men of soot and suit As are to meet him 20

Escal I shall, sir fare you well

Ang Good night — [Exit ESCALUS]
This deed unshapes me quite, makes me unpregnant

And dull to all proceedings. A deflower'd maid,
And by an eminent body that enforc'd 25
The law against it! But that her tender shame Will not proclaim against her maiden loss, How might she tongue me! Yet reason dares her no 28

For my authority bears so credent bulk,
That no particular scandal once can touch But it confounds the breather. He should have liv'd,

Save that his notorious youth, with dangerous sense, 32

Might in the times to come have ta'en revenge,
By so receiving a dishonour'd life With ransom of such shame. Would yet he had liv'd!

Alack! when once our grace we have forgot 36 Nothing goes right we would, and we would not [Exit]

SCENE V — Fields without the Town

Enter DUKE, in his own habit, and FRIAR PETER

Duke These letters at fit time deliver me [Giving letters]

The provost knows our purpose and our plot
The matter being afoot, keep your instruction,
And hold you ever to our special drift, 4 Though sometimes you do plench from this to
that,

As cause doth minister. Go call at Flavius'
house,

And tell him where I stay give the like notice
To Valentinus, Rowland, and to Crassus, 8
And bid them bring the trumpets to the gate,
But send me Flavius first

F Peter. It shall be speeded well [Exit]

Enter VARRIUS

Duke I thank thee, Varrus, thou hast made good haste
Come, we will walk. There's other of our friends Will greet us here anon, my gentle Varrus 12
[Exeunt]

SCENE VI — Street near the City Gate

Enter ISABELLA and MARIANA

Isab To speak so indirectly I am loath
I would say the truth, but to accuse him so,
That is your part yet I'm advis'd to do it,
He says, to veil full purpose

Mari Be rul'd by him 4

Isab Besides, he tells me that if peradventure
He speak against me on the adverse side,
I should not think it strange, for 'tis a physic That's bitter to sweet end 8

Mari I would, Friar Peter—

Isab O, peace! the friar is come

Enter FRIAR PETER

F Peter Come, I have found you out a stand most fit,
Where you may have such vantage on the duke,
He shall not pass you. Twice have the trumpets sounded 12

The generous and gravest citizens Have bent the gates and cry near upon
The duke's entring therefore hence, away!
[Exeunt]

ACT V

SCENE I — A public Place near the City Gate

MARIANA, veiled, ISABELLA and FRIAR PETER, at their stand. Enter DUKE, VARRIUS, LORDS ANGELO, ESCALUS, UCIO PROVOST, Officers and Citizens at several doors

Duke My very worthy cousin fairly met!
Our old and faithful friend, we are glad to see
you

Ang } Happy return be to your royal Grace!

Escal }
Duke Many and hearty thanks to you both 4

We have made inquiry of you, and we hear
Such goodness of your justice, that our soul Cannot but yield you forth to public thanks, Forerunning more requital

Ang You make my bonds still greater 8 Duke O! you desert speaks loud, and I should wrong it,

To lock it in the wards of covert bosom,
When it deserves, with characters of brass,
A fortified residence 'gainst the tooth of time 12
And rasure of oblivion. Give me your hand,
And let the subject see, to make them know
That outward courtesies would fain proclaim Favours that keep within. Come Escalus, 16
You must walk by us on our other hand,
And good supporters are you

FRIAR PETER and ISABELLA come forward

F Peter Now is your time speak loud and kneel before him 19

Isab Justice O royal duke! Vail your regard Upon a wrong'd, I'd fain have said, a maid!
O worthy prince! dishonour not your eye
By throwing it on any other object

Till you have heard me in my true complaint
And given me justice, justice, justice, justice!

Duke Relate your wrongs in what? by whom? Be brief,

Here is Lord Angelo, shall give you justice Reveal yourself to him

Isab O worthy duke! 28
You bid me seek redemption of the devil
Hear me yourself, for that which I must speak Must either punish me, not being believ'd,
Or wring redress from you Hear me, O, hear me, here! 32

Ang My lord, her wits, I fear me, are not firm
She hath been a sutor to me for her brother Cut off by course of justice,—

Isab By course of justice! 34
Ang And she will speak most bitterly and strange 36

Isab Most strange, but yet most truly, will I speak

That Angelo's forsworn, is it not strange?

That Angelo's a murderer, is't not strange?

That Angelo is an adulterous thief, 40
A hypocrite, a virgin-violator,
Is it not strange, and strange?

Duke Nay, it is ten times strange

Isab It is not truer he is Angelo

Than this is all as true as it is strange, 44

Nay, it is ten times true, for truth is truth

To the end of reckoning

Duke Away with her! poor soul,
She speaks thus in the infirmity of sense

Isab O prince, I conjure thee, as thou believ'st 48

There is another comfort than this world,

That thou neglect me not, with that opinion

That I am touch'd with madness Make not impossible

That which but seems unlike 'Tis not impossible 52

But one, the wicked'st catiff on the ground,

May seem as shy, as grave, as just, as absolute

As Angelo, even so may Angelo,

In all his dressings, characts, titles, forms, 56

Be an arch-villain Believe it, royal prince

If he be less, he's nothing, but he's more,

Had I more name for badness

Duke By mine honesty,

If she be mad,—as I believe no other,— 60

Her madness hath the oddest frame of sense,

Such a dependency of thing on thing,

As e'er I heard in madness

Isab O gracious duke! 64

Harp not on that, nor do not banish reason

For inequality, but let your reason serve

To make the truth appear where it seems hid,

And hide the false seems true

Duke Many that are not mad

Have, sure, more lack of reason What would you say? 68

Isab I am the sister of one Claudio,

Condemn'd upon the act of fornication

To lose his head, condemn'd by Angelo,

I, in probation of a sisterhood, 72

Was sent to by my brother, one Lucio

As then the messenger,—

Lucio That's I, an't like your Grace

I came to her from Claudio, and desir'd her

To try her gracious fortune with Lord Angelo 76

For her poor brother's pardon

Isab That's he indeed

Duke You were not bid to speak

Lucio No, my good lord,

Nor wish'd to hold my peace

Duke I wish you now, then,

Pray you, take note of it, and when you have 80

A business for yourself, pray heaven you then

Be perfect

Lucio I warrant your honour

Duke The warrant's for yourself take heed 84

to it

Isab This gentleman told somewhat of my tale,—

Lucio Right

Duke It may be right, but you are in the wrong

To speak before your time Proceed

Isab I went 88

To this pernicious catiff deputy

Duke That's somewhat madly spoken

Isab Pardon it,

The phrase is to the matter

Duke Mended again the matter, proceed

Isab In brief, to set the needless process by, 92

How I persuaded, how I pray'd, and kneel'd,

How he refell'd me, and how I replied,—

For this was of much length,—the vile conclusion 96

I now begin with grief and shame to utter

He would not, but by gift of my chaste body

To his concupiscible intemperate lust,

Release my brother and, after much debate-ment, 100

My sisterly remorse confutes mine honour,

And I did yield to him But the next morn betimes,

His purpose surfeiting, he sends a warrant

For my poor brother's head

Duke This is most likely! 104

Isab O, that it were as like as it is true!

Duke By heaven, fond wretch! thou know'st not what thou speak'st,

Or else thou art suborn'd against his honour

In hateful practice First, his integrity 108

Stands without blemish, next, it imports no reason

That with such vehemency he should pursue

Faults proper to himself if he had so offended,

He would have weigh'd thy brother by himself,

And not have cut him off Some one hath set you on 112

Confess the truth, and say by whose advice

Thou cam'st here to complain

Isab And is this all?

Then, O you blessed ministers above, 116

Keep me in patience, and, with ripen'd time

Unfold the evil which is here wrapt up

In countenance! Heaven shield your Grace from woe,

As I, thus wrong'd, hence unbeliev'd go! 120

Duke I know you'd fain be gone. An officer!
 To prison with her! Shall we thus permit
 A blasting and a scandalous breath to fall On him so near us? This needs must be a practice 124
 Who knew of your intent and coming hither?
Isab One that I would were here, Friar Lodowick
Duke A ghostly father, belike Who knows that Lodowick?
Lucio My lord, I know him, 'tis a meddling
 friar, 128
 I do not like the man had he been lav, my
 lord,
 For certain words he spake aganst your Grace
 In your retirement, I had swing'd him soundly Duke Words against me! This' a good friar,
 belike! 132
 And to set on this wretched woman here
 Against our substitute! Let this friar be found Lucio But yesternight, my lord, she and that friar,
 I saw them at the prison a saucy friar, 136
 A very scurvy fellow
F Peter Bless'd be your roval Grace!
 I have stood by, my lord, and I have heard
 Your royal ear abus'd First, hath this woman
 Most wrongfully accus'd your substitute, 140
 Who is as free from touch or soil with her,
 As she from one ungot
Duke We did believe no less Know you that Friar Lodowick that she speaks of?
F Peter I know him for a man divine and holy, 144
 Not scurvy, nor a temporary meddler,
 As he's reported by this gentleman,
 And, on my trust, a man that never yet
 Did, as he vouches, misreport your Grace 148
Lucio My lord, most villanously, believe it F Peter Well, he in time may come to clear himself,
 But at this instant he is sick, my lord,
 Of a strange fever Upon his mere request, 152
 Being come to knowledge that there was complaint
 Intended 'gainst Lord Angelo, came I hither,
 To speak, as from his mouth, what he doth know
 Is true and false, and what he with his oath 156
 And all probation will make up full clear, Whensoever he's convented First, for this woman,
 To justify this worthy nobleman,
 So vulgarly and personally accus'd, 160
 Her shall you hear disproved to her eyes, Till she herself confess it.
Duke Good friar, let's hear it [ISABELLA is carried off guarded and MARIANA comes forward
 Do you not smile at this, Lord Angelo?—
 O heaven, the vanity of wretched fools! 164
 Give us some seats Come, cousin Angelo,
 In this I'll be impartial; be you judge
 Of your own cause Is this the witness, friar?
 First, let her show her face, and after speak 168

Mari Pardon, my lord, I will not show my
 face
 Un'til my husband bid me
Duke What, are you married?
Mari No, my lord
Duke Are you a maid?
Mari No, my lord
Duke A widow, then?
Mari Neither, my lord.
Duke Why, you Are nothing, then neither maid, widow, nor
 wife?
Lucio My lord, she may be a punk, for many of them are neither maid, widow, nor
 wife 176
Duke Silence that fellow I would he had some cause
 To prattle for himself
Lucio Well, my lord Mari My lord, I do confess I ne'er was married, 180
 And I confess besides I am no maid
 I have known my husband yet my husband knows not
 That ever he knew me Lucio He was drunk then my lord it can be no better 184
Duke For the benefit of silence, would thou wert so too!
Lucio Well, my lord
Duke This is no witness for Lord Angelo
Mari Now I come to 't, my lord 188
 She that accuses him of fornication,
 In self-same manner doth accuse my husband,
 And charges him, my lord, with such a time,
 When, I'll depose, I had him in mine arms, 192
 With all th' effect of love
Ang Charges she more than me?
Mari Not that I know
Duke No? you say your husband
Mari Why, just, my lord, and that is Angelo, Who thinks he knows that he ne'er knew my body 197
 But knows he thinks that he knows Isabel's Ang This is a strange abuse Let's see thy face Mari My husband bid me, now I will unmask [Unveiling]
 This is that face, thou cruel Angelo, 201
 Which once thou swor'st was worth the looking on
 This is the hand which, with a vow'd contract,
 Was fast belock'd in thine this is the body 204
 That took away the match from Isabel,
 And did supply thee at thy garden-house
 In her imagin'd person
Duke Know you this woman?
Lucio Carnally, she says
Duke Surrah, no more! 208
Lucio Enough, my lord Ang My lord, I must confess I know this woman,
 And five years since there was some speech of marriage 212
 Betwixt myself and her, which was broke off, Partly for that her promised proportions

Came short of composition, but, in chief
For that her reputation was d'sturb'd
In levity since which time of five years 215
I never spake with her, saw her, nor heard from
her,

Upon my faith and honour

Mari Noble prince,
As there comes light from heaven and words from breath,

As there is sense in truth and truth in virtue,
I am affianc'd this man's wife as strongly 221
As words could make up vows and, my good
lord,

But Tuesday night last gone in 's garden-house
He knew me as a wife As this is true 224
Let me in safety raise me from my knees
Or else for ever be conhd' here,
A marble monument

Arg I did but smile till now
Now, good my lord give me the scope of justice
My patience here is touch'd I do perceive 229
These poor informal women are no more
But instruments of some more mightier member That sets them on Let me have way, my lord,
To find this practice out

Duke Ay, with my heart, 233
And punish them unto your height of pleasure
Thou foolish friar, and thou pernicious woman, Compact with her that's gone, think'st thou thy oaths, 236
Though they would swear down each particular saint,

Were testimonies against his worth and credit That's seal'd in approbation? You, Lord Escalus,

Sit with my cousin, lend him your kind pains
To find out this abuse, whence 'tis deriv'd 241
There is another friar that set them on,
Let him be sent for

F. Peter Would he were here, my lord, for he indeed 244
Hath set the women on to this complaint
Your provost knows the place where he abides
And he may fetch him

Duke Go do it instantly [Exit PROVOST]
And you, my noble and well-warranted cousin, Whom it concerns to hear this matter forth,
Do with your injuries as seems you best, 250
In any chastisement I for awhile will leave
you,

But stir not you, till you have well determin'd Upon these slanderers

Escal My lord, we'll do it thoroughly — [Exit DUKE]

Signior Lucio, did not you say you knew that Friar Lodowick to be a dishonest person? 256

Lucio Cucullus non facit monachum honest in nothing, but in his clothes, and one that hath spoke most villanous speeches of
the duke 260

Escal We shall entreat you to abide here till he come and enforce them against him We shall find this friar a notable fellow

Lucio As any in Vienna, on my word 264

Escal Call that same Isabel here once again
I would speak with her [Exit an Attendant]

Pray you, my lord, give me leave to question, you shall see how I'll handle her 266

Lucio Not better than he, by her own report.

Escal Say you?

Lucio Marry, sir, I think, if you handled her privately, she would sooner confess perchance, publicly, she'll be ashamed 273

Escal I will go darkly to work with her

Lucio That's the way for women are light at midnight 276

Re-enter Officers with ISABELLA

Escal [To ISABELLA] Come on, mistress here's a gentlewoman denies all that you have said

Lucio My lord, here comes the rascal I spoke of, here with the provost 280

Escal In very good time speak not you to him, till we call upon you

Enter DUKE, disguised as a friar, and PROVOST

Lucio Mum 283

Escal Come, sir Did you set these women on to slander I ord Angelo? they have confessed you did

Duke 'Tis false

Escal How! know you where you are? 288

Duke Respect to your great place! and let the devil

Be sometime honour'd for his burning throne Where is the duke? 'tis he should hear me
speak

Escal The duke's in us, and we will hear you speak 292

Look you speak justly

Duke Boldly at least But, O, poor souls!

Come you to seek the lamb here of the fox?

Good night to your redress! Is the duke gone? 296

Then is your cause gone too The duke's unjust,

Thus to retort your manifest appeal,
And put your trial in the villain's mouth
Whence here you come to accuse 300

Lucio This is the rascal this is he I spoke of

Escal Why, thou unreverend and unhallow'd friar!

Is't not enough thou hast suborn'd these women
To accuse this worthy man, but, in foul mouth,

And in the witness of his proper ear, 305

To call him villain?

And then to glance from him to the duke himself,

To tax him with injustice? take him hence, 308 To the rack with him! We'll touse you joint by joint,

But we will know his purpose What! 'unjust'?

Duke Be not so hot, the duke

Dare no more stretch this finger of mine than he Dare rack his own his subject am I not, 313

Nor here provincial My business in this state Made me a looker-on here in Vienna,

Where I have seen corruption boil and bubble
Till it o'er-run the stew laws for all faults, 317

But faults so countenanc'd, that the strong statutes

Stand like the forfeits in a barber's shop,
As much in mock as mark 320

Escal Slander to the state! Away with him to prison!

Ang What can you vouch against him, Signior Lucio?

Is this the man that you did tell us of?

Lucio 'Tis he my lord. Come hither good-man bala-pate do you know me? 325

Duke I remember you sir, by the sound of your voice. I met you at the prison, in the absence of the duke 328

Lucio O! did you so? And do you remember what you said of the duke?

Duke Most notably, sir

Lucio Do you so, sir? And was the duke a flesh-monger, a fool, and a coward, as you then reported him to be? 334

Duke You must, sir, change persons with me, ere you make that my report. You, indeed spoke of him, and much more, much worse.

Lucio O thou damnable fellow! Did not I pluck thee by the nose for thy speeches?

Duke I protest I love the duke as I love myself 340

Ang Hark how the villain would close now, after his treasonable abuses!

Escal Such a fellow is not to be talk'd withal.

Away with him to prison! Where is the provost? 344

Away with him to prison! Lay bolts enough on him, let him speak no more. Away with those giglots too, and with the other confederate companions! 348

[The PROVOST lays hands on the DUKE]

Duke Stay, sir, stay awhile!

Ang What! resists he? Help him, Lucio!

Lucio Come, sir, come, sir, come, sir, forth! Why, you bald-pated, lying rascal, you must be hooded, must you? show your knave's visage, with a pox to you! show your sheep-biting face, and be hanged an hour! Will't not off? 356

[Pulls off the friar's hood, and discovers the DUKE]

Duke Thou art the first knave that e'er made a duke

First, provost, let me bail these gentle three

[To LUCIO] Sneak not away, sir, for the friar and you Must have a word anon. Lay hold on him 360

Lucio This may prove worse than hanging

Duke [To ESCALUS] What you have spoke I pardon: sit you down

We'll borrow place of him [To ANGELO] Sir, by your leave

Hast thou or word, or wit, or impudence, 364

That yet can do thee office? If thou hast, Rely upon it till my tale be heard,

And hold no longer out.

Ang. O my dread lord! I should be guiltier than my guiltiness, 368

To think I can be undiscernible

When I perceive your Grace, like power divine, Hath look'd upon my passes. Then, good prince, No longer session hold upon my shame, 372 But let my trial be mine own confession. Immediate sentence then and sequent death Is all the grace I beg Duke Come hither, Mariana, Say, wast thou e'er contracted to this woman?

Ang I was, my lord 377

Duke Go take her hence, and marry her instantly

Do you the office friar which consummate, Return him here again. Go with him, provost

[Exit ANGELO, MARIANA, FRIAR PETER, and PROVOST]

Escal My lord, I am more amaz'd at his dishonour 381

Than at the strangeness of it

Duke Come hither, Isabel. Your friar is now your prince as I was then

Advertising and holy to your business, 384

Not changing heart with habit, I am still

Attorney'd at your service

Isab O, give me pardon, That I your vassal, have employ'd and pain'd

Your unknown sovereignty!

Duke You are pardon'd, Isabel And now, dear maid, be you as free to us 389

Your brother's death, I know, sits at your heart,

And you may marvel why I obscur'd myself,

Labouring to save his life, and would not rather

Make rash remonstrance of my hidden power

'Till I did think with slower foot came on,

That brain'd my purpose but, peace be with

him! 395

That life is better life, past fearing death,

Than that which lives to fear make it you.

comfort,

So happy is your brother

Isab I do, my lord 400

Re-enter ANGELO, MARIANA, FRIAR PETER, and PROVOST

Duke For this new-married man approaching here,

Whose salt imagination yet hath wrong'd

Your well-defended honour, you must pardon

For Mariana's sake. But as he adjudg'd your

brother — 404

Being criminal, in double violation

Of sacred chastity, and of promise-breach,

Thereon dependent for your brother's life, —

The very mercy of the law cries out 408

Most audible, even from his proper tongue,

'An Angelo for Claudio, death for death!'

Haste still pays haste, and leisure answers

leisure,

Like doth quit like, and Measure still for Measure 412

Then, Angelo, thy fault's thus manifested,

Which, though thou wouldst deny, denies thee

vantage

We do condemn thee to the very block

Where Claudio stoop'd to death, and with like haste 416

Away with him!

Mari O, my most gracious lord!

I hope you will not mock me with a husband

Duke It is your husband mock'd you with a husband 419

Consenting to the safeguard of your honour,
I thought your marriage fit, else unputation,
For that he knew you, might reproach your life And choke your good to come For his possessions,

Although by confiscation they are ours, 424
We do instate and widow you withal,
To buy you a better husband

Mari O my dear lord!

I crave no other, nor no better man 427

Duke Never crave him, we are definitive

Mari [Kneeling] Gentle my liege,—

Duke You do but lose your labour Away with him to death! [To LUCIO] Now, sir, to you.

Mari O my good lord! Sweet Isabel, take my part

Lend me your knees, and, all my life to come,
I'll lend you all my life to do you service 433

Duke Against all sense you do importune
her

Should she kneel down in mercy of this fact,
Her brother's ghost his paved bed would break,
And take her hence in horror

Mari Isabel, 437

Sweet Isabel, do yet but kneel by me

Hold up your hands, say nothing, I'll speak
all 439

They say best men are moulded out of faults,
And, for the most, become much more the better

For being a little bad so may my husband
O, Isabel! will you not lend a knee? 443

Duke He dies for Claudio's death

Isab [Kneeling] Most bounteous sir,

Look, if it please you, on this man condemn'd,

As if my brother liv'd I partly think

A due sincerity govern'd his deeds,

Till he did look on me since it is so, 448

Let him not die My brother had but justice,

In that he did the thing for which he died

For Angelo,

His act did not o'ertake his bad intent, 452

And must be buried but as an intent

That perish'd by the way Thoughts are no subjects,

Intents but merely thoughts

Mari Merely, my lord

Duke Your suit's unprofitable stand up, I say 456

I have bethought me of another fault

Provost, how came it Claudio was beheaded

At an unusual hour?

Prov It was commanded so

Duke Had you a special warrant for the deed? 460

Prov No, my good lord, it was by private message

Duke For which I do discharge you of your office

Give up your keys

Prov Pardon me, noble lord
I thought it was a fault, but knew it not, 464

Yet did repent me, after more advice,

For testimony whereof, one in the prison,

That should by private order else have died

I have reserv'd alive

Duke What's he?

Prov His name is Barnardine

Duke I would thou hadst done so by Claudio

Go, fetch him hither let me look upon him

[Exit PROVOST]

Escal I am sorry, one so learned and so wise

As you, Lord Angelo, have still appear'd, 472

Should slip so grossly, both in the heat of blood,

And lack of temper'd judgment afterward

Ang I am sorry that such sorrow I procure,

And so deep sticks it in my penitent heart 476

That I crave death more willingly than mercy

'Tis my deserving, and I do entreat it

Re-enter PROVOST, with BARNARDINE, CLAUDIO muffled, and JULIET

Duke Which is that Barnardine?

Prov This, my lord

Duke There was a friar told me of this man

Sirrah, thou art said to have a stubborn soul,

That apprehends no further than this world, 482

And squar'st thy life according Thou'rt condemn'd

But, for those earthly faults, I quit them all,

And pray thee take this mercy to provide 485

For better times to come Friar, advise him

I leave him to your hand—What muffled fellow's that?

Prov This is another prisoner that I say'd,

That should have died when Claudio lost his

head, 489

As like almost to Claudio as himself

[Unmuffles CLAUDIO]

Duke [To ISABELLA] If he be like your brother, for his sake

Is he pardon'd, and, for your lovely sake 492

Give me your hand and say you will be mine,

He is my brother too But fitter time for that

By this, Lord Angelo perceives he's safe

Methinks I see a quickening in his eye 496

Well, Angelo, your evil quits you well

Look that you love your wife, her worth worth

yours—

I find an apt remission in myself,

And yet here's one in place I cannot pardon—

[To LUCIO] You, sirrah, that knew me for a fool, a coward, 502

One all of luxury, an ass, a madman

Wherein have I so deserv'd of you,

That you extol me thus? 504

Lucio Faith, my lord, I spoke it but according to the trick If you will hang me for it, you may, but I had rather it would please you I might be whipped. 508

Duke Whipp'd first, sir, and hang'd after

Proclaim it, provost, round about the city,

If any woman's wrong'd by this lewd fellow,—

As I have heard him swear himself there's one

Whom he begot with child, let her appear, 513
 And he shall marry her the nuptial finish'd, Let him be whipp'd and hang'd

Lucio I beseech your highness, do not marry me to a whore Your highness said even now, I made you a duke good my lord, do not re-compensate me in making me a cuckold

Duke Upon mine honour, thou shalt marry
 her 520

Thy slanders I forgive, and therewithal
 Remit thy other forfeits Take him to prison,
 And see our pleasure herein executed

Lucio Marrying a punk, my lord, is pressing to death, whipping, and hanging 525

Duke Slandering a prince deserves it She, Claudio, that you wrong'd, look you restore

Joy to you, Mariana! love her, Angelo 528
 I have confess'd her and I know her virtue Thanks, good friend Escalus, for thy much goodness

There's more behind that is more grate
 Thanks, provost, for thy care and secrecy, 532
 We shall employ thee in a worthier place

Forgive him, Angelo, that brought you home
 The head of Ragozine for Claudio's

The offence pardons itself Dear Isabel, 536
 I have a motion much imports your good,

Whereto if you'll a willing ear incline, What's mine is yours, and what is yours is
 mine 539

So, bring us to our palace where we'll show What's yet behind, that's meet you all should know

[Exeunt]

SCENE —Ephesus

ACT I

SCENE I—A Hall in the DUKE'S Palace

Enter DUKE, ÆGEON, Gaoler, Officers, and other Attendants

Æge Proceed, Solinus, to procure my fall,
 And by the doom of death end woes and all Duke Merchant of Syracuse, plead no more
 I am not partial to infringe our laws
 The enemy and discord which of late Sprung from the rancorous outrage of your duke
 To merchants, our well-dealing countrymen,
 Who, wanting guilders to redeem their lives, 8 Have seal'd his rigorous statutes with their bloods,

Excludes all pity from our threat'ning looks For, since the mortal and intestine jars
 'Twixt thy seditious countrymen and us, 12
 It hath in solemn synods been decreed,
 Both by the Syracusians and ourselves,
 T' admit no traffic to our adverse towns
 Nay, more, if any, born at Ephesus 16
 Be seen at Syracusan marts and fairs, Again, if any Syracusan born
 Come to the bay of Ephesus, he dies,
 His goods confiscate to the duke's dispose; 20
 Unless a thousand marks be levied,
 To quit the penalty and to ransom him
 Thy substance, valu'd at the highest rate, Cannot amount unto a hundred marks, 24
 Therefore, by law thou art condemn'd to die

Æge Yet this my comfort when your words are done,

My woes end likewise with the evening sun Duke Well, Syracusan, say, in brief the cause 28

Why thou departedst from thy native home,
 And for what cause thou cam'st to Ephesus

Æge A heavier task could not have been impos'd

Than I to speak my griefs unspeakable, 32
 Yet, that the world may witness that my end
 Was wrought by nature, not by vile offence, I'll utter what my sorrow gives me leave
 In Syracuse was I born, and wed 36
 Unto a woman, happy but for me,

And by me too, had not our hap been bad
 With her I liv'd in joy our wealth increas'd
 By prosperous voyages I often made 40
 To Epidamnus, till my factor's death,
 And the great care of goods at random left,
 Drew me from kind embracements of my spouse From whom my absence was not six months old, 44

Before herself,—almost at fainting under The pleasing punishment that women bear,—
 Had made provision for her following me,
 And soon and safe arriv'd where I was 48
 There had she not been long but she became A joyful mother of two goodly sons, And, which was strange, the one so like the other,

As could not be distinguish'd but by names 52
 That very hour, and in the self-same inn,
 A meaner woman was delivered
 Of such a burden, male twins, both alike Those—for their parents were exceeding poor,— 56

I bought, and brought up to attend my sons
 My wife, not meanly proud of two such boys,
 Made daily motions for our home return Unwilling I agreed, altho' too soon 60
 We came aboard

A league from Epidamnus had we sail'd,
 Before the always-wind-obeying deep Gave any tragic instance of our harm 64
 But longer did we not retain much hope,
 For what obscured light the heavens did grant Did but convey unto our fearful minds
 A doubtful warrant of immediate death, 68 Which, though myself would gladly have em-brac'd,

Yet the incessant weepings of my wife,
 Weeping before for what she saw must come,
 And piteous plainings of the pretty babes, 72
 That mourn'd for fashion, ignorant what to fear, Forc'd me to seek delays for them and me
 And this it was, for other means was none
 The sailors sought for safety by our boat, 76
 And left the ship, then sinking-ripe, to us
 My wife, more careful for the latter-born,
 Had fasten'd him unto a small spare mast,
 Such as seafaring men provide for storms, 80

To him one of the other twins was bound,
 Whilst I had been like heedful of the other
 The children thus dispos'd, my wife and I,
 Fixing our eyes on whom our care was fix'd, 84
 Fasten'd ourselves at either end the mast,
 And floating straight, obedient to the stream,
 Were carried towards Corinth, as we thought
 At length the sun, gazing upon the earth, 88
 Dispers'd those vapours that offended us,
 And, by the benefit of his wished light
 The seas wax'd calm, and we discovered
 Two ships from far making amain to us, 92
 Of Corinth that, of Epidaurus this But ere they came,—O' let me say no more,
 Gather the sequel by that went before

Duke Nay, forward, old man, do not break off so, 96

For we may pity, though not pardon thee Ege O! had the gods done so, I had not now

Worthily term'd them merciless to us!
 For, ere the ships could meet by twice five leagues, 100

We were encounter'd by a mighty rock,
 Which being violently borne upon,
 Our helpful ship was splitted in the midst,
 So that, in this unjust divorce of us 104
 Fortune had left to both of us alike

What to delight in, what to sorrow for Her part, poor soul! seeming as burdened With lesser weight, but not with lesser woe, 108
 Was carried with more speed before the wind,
 And in our sight they three were taken up
 By fishermen of Corinth, as we thought
 At length, another ship had seiz'd on us, 112
 And, knowing whom it was their hap to save Gave healthful welcome to their ship-wrack'd guests

And would have reft the fishers of their prey,
 Had not their bark been very slow of sail, 116 And therefore homeward did they bend their course

Thus have you heard me sever'd from my bliss,
 That by misfortune was my life prolong'd,
 To tell sad stories of my own mishaps 120

Duke And, for the sake of them thou sor-rowest for,

Do me the favour to dilate at full What hath befallen of them and thee till now

Ege My youngest boy, and yet my eldest care, 124

At eighteen years became inquisitive
 After his brother and importun'd me
 That his attendant—for his case was like,
 Reft of his brother, but retain'd his name— 128
 Might bear him company in the quest of him, Whom whilst I labour'd of a love to see,
 I hazarded the loss of whom I lov'd Five summers have I spent in furthest Greece, Roaming clean through the bounds of Asia, 133
 And, coasting homeward, came to Ephesus, Hopeless to find, yet loath to leave unsought
 Or that or any place that harbours men. 136
 But here must end the story of my life,
 And happy were I in my timely death,
 Could all my travels warrant me they live

Duke Hapless Ægeon, whom the fates have mark'd 140

To bear the extremity of dire mishap!
 Now, trust me, were it not against our laws,
 Against my crown, my oath, my dignity,
 Which princes, would they, may not disannul,
 My soul should sue as advocate for thee 145
 But though thou art adjudged to the death
 And passed sentence may not be recall'd
 But to our honour's great disparagement, 148 Yet will I favour thee in what I can Therefore, merchant, I'll limit thee this day
 To seek thy life by beneficial help
 Try all the friends thou hast in Ephesus, 152
 Beg thou, or borrow, to make up the sum,
 And live, if no, then thou art doom'd to die Gaoler, take him to thy custody

Gaol I will, my lord 156

Ege Hopeless and helpless doth Ægeon wend,

But to procrastinate his lifeless end [Exeunt

SCENE II—The Mart

Enter ANTIPHOLUS of Syracuse, DROMIO of Syracuse, and a Merchant

Mer Therefore, give out you are of Epidamnum,

Lest that your goods too soon be confiscate
 This very day, a Syracusan merchant
 Is apprehended for arrival here, 4
 And, not being able to buy out his life,
 According to the statute of the town
 Dies ere the weary sun set in the west
 There is your money that I had to keep 8

Ant S Go bear it to the Centaur, where we host,

And stay there, Dromio, till I come to thee
 Within this hour it will be dinner-time Till that, I'll view the manners of the town, 12
 Peruse the traders, gaze upon the buildings,
 And then return and sleep within mine inn,
 For with long travel I am stiff and weary Get thee away 16

Dro S Many a man would take you at your
 word,

And go indeed having so good a mean [Exit Ant S A trusty villain, sir, that very oft,
 When I am dull with care and melancholy, 20
 Lightens my humour with his merry jests
 What, will you walk with me about the town,
 And then go to my inn and dine with me?

Mer I am invited, sir, to certain merchants,
 Of whom I hope to make much benefit 25
 I crave your pardon Soon at five o'clock,
 Please you, I'll meet with you upon the mart,
 And afterward consort you till bed-time 28
 My present business calls me from you now,

Ant S Farewell till then I will go lose myself,

And wander up and down to view the city Mer Sir, I commend you to your own content [Exit

Ant S He that commends me to mine own content, 33

Commends me to the thing I cannot get
I to the world am like a drop of water
That in the ocean seeks another drop,
Who, falling there to find his fellow forth,
Unseen, inquisitive, confounds himself
So I, to find a mother and a brother,
In quest of them, unhappy, lose myself

Enter DROMIO of Ephesus

Here comes the almanack of my true date
What now? How chance thou art return'd so soon?

Dro E Return'd so soon! rather approach'd too late

The capon burns, the pig falls from the spit, 44
The clock hath stricken twelve upon the bell,
My mistress made it one upon my cheek
She is so hot because the meat is cold,
The meat is cold because you come not home,
You come not home because you have no stomach, 49
You have no stomach, having broke your fast,
But we, that know what 'tis to fast and pray,
Are penitent for your default to-day 52

Ant S Stop in your wind, sir, tell me thus, I pray

Where have you left the money that I gave you?
Dro E O!—sixpence, that I had o' Wednesday last

To pay the saddler for my mistress' crupper,
The saddler had it, sir, I kept it not 57

Ant S I am not in a sportive humour now Tell me, and dally not, where is the money?
We being strangers here, how dar'st thou trust
So great a charge from thine own custody? 61

Dro E I pray you, jest, sir, as you sit at dinner

I from my mistress come to you in post,
If I return, I shall be post indeed, 64
For she will score your fault upon my pate Methinks your maw, like mine, should be your clock

And strike you home without a messenger
Ant S Come, Dromio, come, these jests are out of season, 68

Reserve them till a merrier hour than this Where is the gold I gave in charge to thee?

Dro E To me, sir? why, you gave no gold to me

Ant S Come on, sir knave, have done your foolishness, 72

And tell me how thou hast dispos'd thy charge
Dro E My charge was but to fetch you from the mart

Home to your house, the Phoenix, sir, to dinner
My mistress and her sister stays for you 76

Ant S Now, as I am a Christian, answer me,
In what safe place you have bestow'd my money,
Or I shall break that merry scone of yours
That stands on tricks when I am undispos'd 80
Where is the thousand marks thou hadst of me?

Dro E I have some marks of yours upon my pate,
Some of my mistress' marks upon my shoulders,
But not a thousand marks between you both
If I should pay your worship those again, 85

Perchance you will not bear them patiently Ant S Thy mistress' marks! what mistress, slave, hast thou?

Dro E Your worship's wife, my mistress at the Phoenix, 88

She that doth fast till you come home to dinner,
And prays that you will hie you home to dinner

Ant S What! wilt thou flout me thus unto my face, 91

Being forbid? There, take you that, sir knave [Strikes him]

Dro E What mean you, sir? for God's sake, hold your hands!

Nay, an you will not, sir, I'll take my heels
[Exit]

Ant S Upon my life, by some device or other

The villain is o'er-raught of all my money 96
They say this town is full of cozenage,
As, numble jugglers that deceive the eye,
Dark-working sorcerers that change the mind,
Soul-killing witches that deform the body, 100
Disguised cheaters, prating mountebanks,
And many such-like liberties of sin

If it prove so, I will be gone the sooner
I'll to the Centaur, to go seek this slave 104

I greatly fear my money is not safe
[Exit]

ACT II

SCENE I—The House of ANTIPHOLUS of Ephesus

Enter ADRIANA and LUCIANA

Adr Neither my husband, nor the slave return'd,

That in such haste I sent to seek his master!
Sure, Luciana, it is two o'clock

Luc Perhaps some merchant hath invited him, 4

And from the mart he's somewhere gone to dinner

Good sister, let us dine and never fret
A man is master of his liberty 7

Time is their master, and, when they see time, They'll go or come if so, be patient, sister

Adr Why should their liberty than ours be more?

Luc Because their business still lies out o' door

Adr Look, when I serve him so, he takes it ill 12

Luc O! know he is the bridle of your will Adr There's none but asses will be bridled so

Luc Why, headstrong liberty is lash'd with woe

There's nothing situate under heaven's eye 16
But hath his bound, in earth, in sea, in sky

The beasts, the fishes, and the winged fowls,
Are their males' subjects and at their controls

Men, more divine, the masters of all these, 20
Lords of the wide world, and wild wat'ry seas, Indu'd with intellectual sense and souls,
Of more pre-eminence than fish and fowls,

Are masters to their females and their lords
Then, let your will attend on their accords 25

Adr This servitude makes you to keep unwed

Luc Not this, but troubles of the marriage-bed

Adr But, were you wedded, you would bear some sway 28

Luc Ere I learn love, I'll practise to obey

Adr How if your husband start some other where?

Luc Till he come home again, I would forbear

Adr Patience unmov'd! no marvel though she pause, 32

They can be meek that have no other cause
A wretched soul, bruis'd with adversity,

We bid be quiet when we hear it cry,
But were we burden'd with like weight of pain, 36

As much, or more we should ourselves complain

So thou, that hast no unkind mate to grieve thee,
With urging helpless patience wouldst reheve me

But if thou live to see like right bereft, 40
This fool-begg'd patience in thee will be left.

Luc Well, I will marry one day, but to try Here comes your man now is your husband nigh

Enter DROMIO of Ephesus

Adr Say, is your tardy master now at hand? 44

Dro E Nay, he's at two hands with me, and that my two ears can witness

Adr Say, didst thou speak with him?
Know'st thou his mind?

Dro E Ay, ay, he told his mind upon mine ear 48

Beshrew his hand, I scarce could understand it

Luc Spake he so doubtfully, thou couldst not feel his meaning? 51

Dro E Nay, he struck so plainly, I could too well feel his blows, and withal so doubtfully, that I could scarce understand them

Adr But say, I prithee, is he coming home?
It seems he hath great care to please his wife 56

Dro E Why, mistress, sure my master is horn-mad

Adr Horn-mad, thou villain!

Dro E I mean not cuckold-mad but, sure, he is stark mad

When I desir'd him to come home to dinner, 60
He ask'd me for a thousand marks in gold

'Tis dinner time,' quoth I, 'my gold!' quoth he

'Your meat doth burn,' quoth I, 'my gold!' quoth he 'Will you come home?' quoth I 'my gold!' quoth he 64

'Where is the thousand marks I gave thee, villain?'

'The pig, quoth I, 'is burn'd,' 'my gold!' quoth he

'My mistress, sir,' quoth I 'hang up thy mistress!

I know not thy mistress out on thy mistress!' 69

Luc Quoth who?

Dro E Quoth my master

'I know,' quoth he, 'no house, no wife, no mistress'

So that my errand, due unto my tongue, 72
I thank him, I bear home upon my shoulders,
For, in conclusion, he did beat me there

Adr Go back again, thou slave, and fetch him home

Dro F Go back again, and be new beaten home? 76

For God's sake, send some other messenger

Adr Back, slave, or I will break thy pate across Dro E And he will bless that cross with other beating

Between you, I shall have a holy head 80

Adr Hence, prating peasant! fetch thy master home

Dro E Am I so round with you as you with me,
That like a football you do spurn me thus?

You spurn me hence, and he will spurn me hither 84

If I last in this service, you must case me in leather [Exit]

Luc Fie, how impatience loureth in your face!

Adr His company must do his minions grace,
Whilst I at home starve for a merry look 88

Hath homely age the alluring beauty took From my poor cheek? then, he hath wasted it

Are my discourses dull? barren my wit?
If voluble and sharp discourse be marr'd, 92

Unkindness blunts it more than marble hard
Do their gay vestments his affections bait?

That's not my fault, he's master of my state
What runs are in me that can be found 96

By him not run'd? then is he the ground
Of my defeatures My decayed fair

A sunny look of his would soon repair,
But, too unruly deer, he breaks the pale 100

And feeds from home poor I am but his stale

Luc Self-harming jealousy! fie! beat it hence

Adr Unfeeling fools can with such wrongs dispense

I know his eye doth homage elsewhere, 104
Or else what lets it but he would be here?

Sister, you know he promis'd me a chain.
Would that alone, alone he would detain,

So he would keep fair quarter with his bed! 108
I see, the jewel best enamelled

Will lose his beauty, and though gold bides still

That others touch, yet often touching will Wear gold, and no man that hath a name, 112

By falsehood and corruption doth it shame.
Since that my beauty cannot please his eye,
I'll weep what's left away, and weeping die.

Luc How many fond fools serve mad jealousy! [Exeunt.]

SCENE II — A public Place

Enter ANTIPHOLUS of Syracuse

Ant S The gold I gave to Dromio is laid up Safe at the Centaur, and the heedful slave Is wander'd forth, in care to seek me out By computation and mine host's report I could not speak with Dromio since at first I sent him from the mart See, here he comes

Enter DROMIO of Syracuse

How now, sir! is your merry humour alter'd? As you love strokes, so jest with me again You know no Centaur? You receiv'd no gold? Your mistress sent to have me home to dinner? My house was at the Phoenix? Wast thou mad, That thus so madly thou didst answer me?

Dro S What answer, sir? when spake I such a word?

Ant S Even now, even here, not half-an-hour since

Dro S I did not see you since you sent me hence,

Home to the Centaur, with the gold you gave me

Ant S Villain, thou didst deny the gold's receipt,

And toldst me of a mistress and a dinner, For which, I hope, thou felt'st I was displeas'd

Dro S I am glad to see you in this merry vein

What means this jest? I pray you, master, tell me Ant S Yea, dost thou jeer, and flout me in the teeth?

Think'st thou I jest? Hold, take thou that, and that Dro S Hold, sir, for God's sake! now your jest is earnest

Upon what bargain do you give it me?

Ant S Because that I familiarly sometimes do use you for my fool, and chat with you,

Your sauciness will jest upon my love, And make a common of my serious hours

When the sun shines let foolish gnats make sport,

But creep in crannies when he hides his beams If you will jest with me, know my aspect,

And fashion your demerour to my looks, Or I will beat this method in your sconce

Dro S Sconce, call you it? so you would leave battering, I had rather have it a head an you use these blows long, I must get a sconce for my head and insconce it too, or else I shall seek my wit in my shoulders But, I pray, sir, why am I beaten?

Ant S Dost thou not know?

Dro S Nothing, sir, but that I am beaten

Ant S Shall I tell you why?

Dro S Ay, sir, and wherefore, for they say every why hath a wherefore

Ant S Why first,—for flouting me, and then, wherefore,—

For urging it the second time to me

Dro S Was there ever any man thus beaten out of season,

When, in the why and the wherefore is neither rime nor reason?

Well, sir, I thank you

Ant S Thank me, sir! for what?

Dro S Marry, sir, for this something that you gave me for nothing

Ant S I'll make you amends next, to give you nothing for something But—ay, sir, is it dinner-time?

Dro S No, sir I think the meat wants that I have Ant S In good time, sir, what's that?

Dro S Basting

Ant S Well, sir, then 'twill be dry

Dro S If it be, sir, I pray you eat none of it

Ant S Your reason?

Dro S Lest it make you choleric, and purchase me another dry basting

Ant S Well, sir, learn to jest in good time there's a time for all things

Dro S I durst have denied that, before you were so choleric

Ant S By what rule, sir?

Dro S Marry, sir, by a rule as plain as the plain bald pate of Father Time himself

Ant S Let's hear it

Dro S There's no time for a man to recover his hair that grows bald by nature

Ant S May he not do it by fine and recovery?

Dro S Yes, to pay a fine for a perwig and recover the lost hair of another man

Ant S Why is Time such a niggard of hair, being, as it is, so plentiful an excrement?

Dro S Because it is a blessing that he bestows on beasts and what he hath scantied men in hair, he hath given them in wit

Ant S Why, but there's many a man hath more hair than wit

Dro S Not a man of those but he hath the wit to lose his hair

Ant S Why, thou didst conclude hairy men plain dealers without wit

Dro S The plainer dealer, the sooner lost yet he loseth it in a kind of jollity Ant S For what reason?

Dro S For two, and sound ones too

Ant S Nay, not sound, I pray you

Dro S Sure ones then

Ant S Nay, not sure, in a thing falsing

Dro S Certain ones, then

Ant S Name them

Dro S The one, to save the money that he spends in tuing, the other, that at dinner they should not drop in his porridge

Ant S You would all this time have proved there is no time for all things

Dro S Marry, and did, sir namely, no time to recover hair lost by nature

Ant S But your reason was not substantial, why there is no time to recover

Dro S Thus I mend it Time himself is bald, and therefore to the world's end will have bald followers

Ant S I knew 'twould be a bald conclusion But soft! who wafts us yonder?

113

Enter ADRIANA and LUCIANA

Adr Ay, ay, Antipholus, look strange, and frown

Some other mistress hath thy sweet aspects,
I am not Adriana, nor thy wife 116
The time was once when thou unurg'd wouldst vow

That never words were music to thine ear,
That never object pleasing in thine eye,
That never touch well welcome to thy hand, 120
That never meat sweet-savour'd in thy taste, Unless I spake, or look'd, or touch'd, or carv'd
to thee

How comes it now, my husband, O! how comes
it,

That thou art thus estranged from thyself? 124
Thyself I call it, being strange to me,
That, undividable, incorporate,

Am better than thy dear self's better part Ah! do not tear away thyself from me, 128

For know, my love, as easy mayst thou fall
A drop of water in the breaking gulf,

And take unmingled thence that drop again,
Without addition or diminishing, 132

As take from me thyself and not me too
How dearly would it touch thee to the quick,

Shouldst thou but hear I were licentious,
And that this body, consecrate to thee, 136

By ruffian lust should be contaminate!
Wouldst thou not spit at me and spurn at me,

And hurl the name of husband in my face,
And tear the stain'd skin off my harlot-brow, 140

And from my false hand cut the wedding-ring
And break it with a deep-divorcing vow?

I know thou canst, and therefore, see thou do it
I am possess'd with an adulterate blot, 144

My blood is mingled with the crime of lust
For if we two be one and thou play false,

I do digest the poison of thy flesh,
Being strumpeted by thy contagion 148

Keep then fair league and truce with thy true
bed,

I live unstain'd, thou undishonoured Ant S Plead you to me, fair dame? I know you not

In Ephesus I am but two hours old, 152
As strange unto your town as to your talk,
Who, every word by all my wit being scann'd,

Want wit in all one word to understand Luc Fie, brother how the world is chang'd
with you! 156

When were you wont to use my sister thus?
She sent for you by Dromio home to dinner

Ant S By Dromio?
Dro S By me? 160

Adr By thee, and thus thou didst return from him,

That he did buffet thee, and in his blows,
Denied my house for his, me for his wife

Ant S Did you converse, sir, with this gentle-
woman? 164

What is the course and drift of your compact?
Dro S I, sir? I never saw her till this time

Ant S Villain, thou heest, for even her very
words

Didst thou deliver to me on the mart. 168

Dro S I never spake with her in all my life

Ant S How can she thus then, call us by our names,

Unless it be by inspiration?

Adr How ill agrees it with your gravity 172
To counterfeit thus grossly with your slave,

Abetting him to thwart me in my mood!
Be it my wrong you are from me exempt,

But wrong not that wrong with a more contempt 176

Come, I will fasten on this sleeve of thine, Thou art an elm, my husband, I a vine,

Whose weakness, married to thy stronger state,
Makes me with thy strength to communicate

If aught possess thee from me, it is dross, 181
Usurping ivy, brier, or idle moss,

Who, all for want of pruning, with intrusion
Infect thy sap and live on thy confusion 184

Ant S To me she speaks, she moves me for her theme!

What! was I married to her in my dream?
Or sleep I now and think I hear all this? 187

What error drives our eyes and ears amiss?
Until I know this sure uncertainty,

I'll entertain the offer'd fallacy Luc Dromio, go bid the servants spread for dinner

Dro S O, for my beads! I cross me for a sinner 192

This is the fairy land O! spite of spites
We talk with goblins, owls, and elvish sprites

If we obey them not, this will ensue, They'll suck our breath, or pinch us black and blue 196

Luc Why prat'st thou to thyself and an-swer'st not?

Dromio, thou drone, thou snail, thou slug, thou sot!

Dro S I am transformed, master, am not I?
Ant S I think thou art, in mind, and so am I Dro S Nay, master, both in mind and in my shape 201

Ant S Thou hast thine own form
Dro S No, I am an ape

Luc If thou art chang'd to aught, 'tis to an ass

Dro S 'Tis true, she rides me and I long for grass 204

'Tis so, I am an ass, else it could never be
But I should know her as well as she knows me

Adr Come, come, no longer will I be a fool,
To put the finger in the eye and weep, 208

Whilst man and master laugh my woes to scorn.
Come, sir, to dinner Dromio, keep the gate.

Husband, I'll dine above with you to-day,
And shrive you of a thousand idle pranks. 212

Sirrah, if any ask you for your master,
Say he dines forth, and let no creature enter

Come, sister Dromio, play the porter well.
Ant S [Aside] Am I in earth, in heaven, or in hell? 216

Sleeping or waking? mad or well-advis'd?
Known unto these, and to myself disguis'd!

I'll say as they say, and persevere so, 220
And in this mist at all adventures go

Dro S Master, shall I be porter at the gate?

Adr Ay, and let none enter, lest I break your pate

Luc Come, come, Antipholus, we dine too late [Exeunt]

ACT III

SCENE I.—Before the House of ANTIPHOLUS of Ephesus

Enter ANTIPHOLUS of Ephesus, DROMIO of Ephesus, ANGELO, and BALTHAZAR

Ant E Good Signior Angelo, you must excuse us all,

My wife is shrewish when I keep not hours,
Say that I linger'd with you at your shop
To see the making of her carcanet, 4
And that to-morrow you will bring it home
But here's a villain, that would face me down
He met me on the mart, and that I beat him, And charg'd him with a thousand marks in gold, 8

And that I did deny my wife and house Thou drunkard, thou, what didst thou mean by this?

Dro E Say what you will, sir, but I know what I know,
That you beat me at the mart, I have your hand to show, 12

If the skin were parchment and the blows you gave were ink,

Your own handwriting would tell you what I think

Ant E I think thou art an ass

Dro E Marry, so it doth appear
By the wrongs I suffer and the blows I bear I should kick, being kick'd, and, being at that pass, 17

You would keep from my heels and beware of
an ass

Ant E You are sad, Signior Balthazar pray
God, our cheer

May answer my good will and your good welcome here 20

Bal I hold your dainties cheap, sir, and your welcome dear

Ant E O, Signior Balthazar, either at flesh or fish,

A table-full of welcome makes scarce one dainty dish,

Bal Good meat, sir, is common, that every churl affords 24

Ant E And welcome more common, for that's nothing but words

Bal Small cheer and great welcome makes a merry feast

Ant E Ay, to a niggardly host and more sparing guest

But though my cates be mean, take them in good part, 28

Better cheer may you have, but not with better
heart

But soft! my door is lock'd. Go bid them let us in

Dro E Maud, Bridget, Marian, Cicely, Gillian, Ginn!

Dro S [Within] Mome, malt-horse, capon, coxcorn, idiot, patch! 32

Either get thee from the door or sit down at the hatch

Dost thou conjure for wenches, that thou call'st for such store,

When one is one too many? Go, get thee from the door

Dro E What patch is made our porter?—
My master stays in the street 36

Dro S [Within] Let him walk from whence he came, lest he catch cold on's feet

Ant E Who talks within there? ho! open
the door

Dro S [Within] Right, sir, I'll tell you when, an you'll tell me wherefore

Ant E Wherefore? for my dinner I have not din'd to-day 40

Dro S Nor to-day here you must not, come again when you may

Ant E What art thou that keep'st me out from the house I owe?

Dro S [Within] The porter for this time, sir, and my name is Dromio

Dro E O villain! thou hast stolen both mine office and my name 44

The one ne'er got me credit, the other mickle blame

If thou hadst been Dromio to-day in my place,

Thou wouldest have chang'd thy face for a name, or thy name for an ass

Luce [Within] What a coil is there, Dromio! who are those at the gate? 48

Dro E Let my master in, Luce

Luce [Within] Faith, no, he comes too late,
And so tell your master

Dro E O Lord! I must laugh Have at you with a proverb Shall I set in my staff?

Luce [Within] Have at you with another that's—when? can you tell? 52

Dro S [Within] If thy name be call'd Luce,
—Luce, thou hast answer'd him well

Ant E Do you hear, you minion? you'll let us in, I trow?

Luce [Within] I thought to have ask'd you Dro S [Within] And you said, no

Dro E So come, help well struck! there was blow for blow 56

Ant E Thou baggage, let me in Luce [Within] Can you tell for whose sake?

Dro E Master, knock the door hard

Luce [Within] Let him knock till it ache

Ant E You'll cry for this, minion, if I beat the door down

Luce [Within] What needs all that, and a pair of stocks in the town? 60

Adr [Within] Who is that at the door that keeps all this noise?

Dro S [Within] By my troth your town is troubled with unruly boys

Ant E Are you there, wife? you might have come before

Adr [Within] Your wife, sir knave! go, get you from the door. 64

Dro F If you went in pain, master, thus
 'knaves' would go sore
Ang Here is neither cheer, sir, nor welcome we would fain have either Bal In debating which was best, we shall part with neither Dro E They stand at the door, master bid them welcome hither 68 Ant E There is something in the wind, that we cannot get in Dro E You would say so, master, if your garments were thin
 Your cake here is warm within, you stand here in the cold
 It would make a man mad as a buck to be so bought and sold 72
Ant E Go fetch me something I'll break ope the gate
Dro S [Within] Break any breaking here, and I'll break your knave's pate Dro E A man may break a word with you, sir, and words are but wind Ay, and break it in your face, so he break it not behind 76
Dro S [Within] It seems thou wantest breaking out upon thee, hind!
Dro E Here's too much 'out upon thee!' I pray thee, let me in Dro S [Within] Ay, when fowls have no feathers, and fish have no fin Ant E Well, I'll break in. Go borrow me a crow 80
Dro E A crow without feather? Master, mean you so?
 For a fish without a fin, there's a fowl without a feather
 If a crow help us in, surrah, we'll pluck a crow together
Ant E Go get thee gone fetch me an iron crow 84
Bal Have patience, sir, O! let it not be so,
 Herein you war against your reputation,
 And draw within the compass of suspect
 The unviolated honour of your wife 88
 Once thus,—your long experience of her wisdom,
 Her sober virtue, years, and modesty,
 Plead on her part some cause to you unknown,
 And doubt not, sir, but she will well excuse 92 Why at this time the doors are made against
 you
 Be rul'd by me depart in patience,
 And let us to the Tiger all to dinner,
 And about evening come yourself alone, 96
 To know the reason of this strange restraint.
 If by strong hand you offer to break in Now in the stirring passage of the day,
 A vulgar comment will be made of it, 100
 And that supposed by the common rout
 Against your yet ungalled estimation, That may with foul intrusion enter in
 And dwell upon your grave when you are dead,
 For slander lives upon succession, 105
 For ever housed where it gets possession Ant E You have prevail'd I will depart in quiet
 And, in despite of mirth, mean to be merry 108

I know a wench of excellent discourse, Pretty and witty, wild and yet, too, gentle
 There will we dine this woman that I mean,
 My wife,—but, I protest, without desert,— 112
 Hath oftentimes upbraided me withal To her will we to dinner [To ANGELO] Get you
 home,
 And fetch the chain, by this I know 'tis made Bring it, I pray you, to the Porpentune, 116
 For there's the house that chain will I bestow,
 Be it for nothing but to spite my wife,
 Upon mine hostess there Good sir, make haste
 Since mine own doors refuse to entertain me, 120
 I'll knock elsewhere, to see if they'll disdain me Ang I'll meet you at that place some hour
 hence Ant E Do so This jest shall cost me some expense [Exeunt]

SCENE II — The Same

Enter LUCIANA and ANTIPHOLUS of Syracuse
Luc And may it be that you have quite forgot
 A husband's office? Shall, Antipholus,
 Even in the spring of love, thy love-springs rot?
 Shall love, in building, grow so rumous? 4
 If you did wed my sister for her wealth, Then, for her wealth's sake use her with more kindness
 Or, if you like elsewhere, do it by stealth, Muffle your false love with some show of blindness, 8
 Let not my sister read it in your eye,
 Be not thy tongue thy own shame's orator,
 Look sweet, speak fair, become disloyalty, Apparel vice like virtue's harbinger, 12 Bear a fair presence, though your heart be tainted,
 Teach sin the carriage of a holy saint,
 Be secret—false what need she be acquainted?
 What simple thief brags of his own attainment?
 'Tis double wrong to truant with your bed, 17
 And let her read it in thy looks at board Shame hath a bastard fame, well managed,
 Ill deeds are doubled with an evil word 20
 Alas! poor women, make us but believe,
 Being compact of credit, that you love us,
 Though others have the arm, show us the sleeve,
 We in your motion turn, and you may move
 us. 24
 Then, gentle brother, get you in again,
 Comfort my sister, cheer her, call her wife.
 'Tis holy sport to be a little vain,
 When the sweet breath of flattery conquers strife. 28
Ant S Sweet mistress,—what your name is else, I know not Nor by what wonder you do hit of mine,— Less in your knowledge and your grace you show not Than our earth's wonder; more than earth
 divine 32
 Teach me, dear creature, how to think and
 speak
 Lay open to my earthy-gross conceit,

Smother'd in errors, feeble, shallow, weak,
 The folded meaning of your words' deceit 36
 Against my soul's pure truth why labour you
 To make it wander in an unknown field?
 Are you a god? would you create me new?
 Transform me then, and to your power I'll yield 40
 But if that I am I, then well I know
 Your weeping sister is no wife of mine, Nor to her bed no homage do I owe Far more, far more, to you do I decline 44
 O! tram me not, sweet mermaid, with thy note,
 To drown me in thy sister flood of tears
 Sing, siren, for thyself, and I will dote Spread o'er the silver waves thy golden hairs,
 And as a bed I'll take them and there lie, 49
 And, in that glorious supposition think He gains by death that hath such means to die
 Let Love, being light, be drowned if she sink!
Luc What! are you mad, that you do reason so? 53
Ant S Not mad, but mated, how, I do not
 know
Luc It is a fault that springeth from your eye
Ant S For gazing on your beams, fair sun, being by 56
Luc Gaze where you shouu, and that will clear your sight
Ant S As good to wink, sweet love, as look on night
Luc Why call you me love? call my sister so Ant S Thy sister's sister
Luc That's my sister
Ant S No, 60
 It is thyself, mine own self's better part, Mine eye's clear eye, my dear heart's dearer
 heart,
 My food, my fortune, and my sweet hope's aim,
 My sole earth's heaven, and my heaven's claim Luc All this my sister is, or else should be Ant S Call thyself sister, sweet, for I aim
 thee
 Thee will I love and with thee lead my life Thou hast no husband yet nor I no wife 68
 Give me thy hand
Luc O! soft, sir, hold you still I'll fetch my sister, to get her good will [Exit Enter DROMIO of Syracuse, hastily Ant S Why, hownow, Dromio! where run'st thou so fast? 72
Dro S Do you know me, sir? am I Dromio?
 am I your man? am I myself?
Ant S Thou art Dromio, thou art my man, thou art thyself 76
Dro S I am an ass, I am a woman's man and besides myself
Ant S What woman's man? and how besides thyself? 80
Dro S Marry, sir, besides myself, I am due to a woman, one that claims me, one that haunts me, one that will have me Ant S What claim lays she to thee? 84 Dro S Marry, sir, such claim as you would lay to your horse, and she would have me as a beast not that, I being a beast, she would have me, but that she, being a very beastly creature, lays claim to me 89 Ant S What is she?

Dro S A very reverent body, aye, such a one as a man may not speak of, without he say,
 'Sir-reverence' I have but lean luck in the match, and yet is she a wondrous fat marriage Ant S How dost thou mean a fat marriage? 96
Dro S Marry, sir, she's the kitchen-wench, and all grease, and I know not what use to put her to but to make a lamp of her and run from her by her own light I warrant her rags and the tallow in them will burn a Poland winter, if she lives till doomsday, she'll burn a week longer than the whole world
Ant S What complexion is she of? 104 Dro S Swart, like my shoe, but her face nothing like so clean kept for why she sweats, a man may go over shoes in the grime of it Ant S That's a fault that water will mend Dro S No, sir, 'tis in grain, Noah's flood could not do it 110
Ant S What's her name?
Dro S Nell, sir, but her name and three quarters,—that is, an ell and three quarters,— will not measure her from hip to hip Ant S Then she bears some breadth? 115 Dro S No longer from head to foot than from hip to hip she is spherical, like a globe, I could find out countries in her Ant S In what part of her body stands
 Ireland? 120
Dro S Marry, sir, in her buttocks I found it out by the bogs Ant S Where Scotland?
Dro S I found it by the barrenness, hard in the palm of the hand 125 Ant S Where France?
Dro S In her forehead, armed and reverted, making war against her hair 128
Ant S Where England?
Dro S I looked for the chalky cliffs, but I could find no whiteness in them but I guess it stood in her chin, by the salt rheum that ran between France and it 133 Ant S Where Spain?
Dro S Faith, I saw not, but I felt it hot in her breath 136
Ant S Where America, the Indies?
Dro S O, sir! upon her nose, all o'er embellished with rubies, carbuncles, sapphires, declinning their rich aspect to the hot breath of Spain, who sent whole armadoes of caracks to be ballast at her nose 142
Ant S Where stood Belgia, the Netherlands?
Dro S O, sir! I did not look so low To conclude, this drudge, or diviner, laid claim to me, call'd me Dromio, swore I was assured to her, told me what privy marks I had about me, as the mark of my shoulder, the mole in my neck, the great wart on my left arm, that I, amazed, ran from her as a witch. 150
 And, I think, if my breast had not been made of faith and my heart of steel,

She had transform'd me to a curtal dog and made me turn i' the wheel 152

Ant S Go hie thee presently post to the road
 An if the wind blow any way from shore,
 I will not harbour in this town to night
 If any bark put forth, come to the mart, 156
 Where I will walk till thou return to me
 If every one knows us and we know none,

Til me, I think, to trudge, pack, and be gone
Dro S As from a bear a man would run for life, 160

So fly I from her that would be my wife [Exit
Ant S There's none but witches do inhabit here,

And therefore 'tis high time that I were hence
 She that doth call me husband, even my soul
 Doth for a wife abhor, but her fair sister, 165
 Possess'd with such a gentle sovereign grace,
 Of such enchanting presence and discourse,
 Hath almost made me traitor to myself 168
 But, lest myself be guilty to self wrong, I'll stop mine ears against the mermaid's song

Enter ANGELO

Ang Master Antipholus!

Ant S Ay, that's my name 172

Ang I know it well, sir! lo, here is the chain
 I thought to have ta'en you at the Porpentine,
 The chain unfinish'd made me stay thus long

Ant S What is your will that I shall do with this? 176

Ang What please yourself, sir I have made it for you Ant S Made it for me, sir! I bespoke it not Ang Not once, nor twice, but twenty times you have

Go home with it and please your wife withal,
 And soon at supper-time I'll visit you, 181
 And then receive my money for the chain

Ant S I pray you, sir, receive the money now,
 For fear you ne'er see chain nor money more

Ang You are a merry man, sir fare you well [Exit, leaving the chain

Ant S What I should think of this, I cannot tell

But thus I think, there's no man is so vain
 That would refuse so fair an offer'd chain 188
 I see, a man here needs not live by shifts,
 When in the streets he meets such golden gifts
 I'll to the mart, and there for Dromio stay If any ship put out, then straight away [Exit

ACT IV

SCENE I — A Public Place

Enter Second Merchant, ANGELO, and an Officer

Mer You know since Pentecost the sum is due,

And since I have not much importun'd you, Nor now I had not, but that I am bound To Persia, and want guilders for my voyage 4 Therefore make present satisfaction,
 Or I'll attach you by this officer

Ang Even just the sum that I do owe to you Is growing to me by Antipholus, 8

And in the instant that I met with you
 He had of me a chain at five o'clock
 I shall receive the money for the same Pleaseth you walk with me down to his house,
 I will discharge my bond, and thank you too 13

Enter ANTIPHOLUS of Ephesus and DROMIO of Ephesus from the Courtezan's

Off That labour may you save see where he comes

Ant E While I go to the goldsmith's house, go thou

And buy a rope's end, that I will bestow 16
 Among my wife and her confederates,
 For locking me out of my doors by day

But soft! I see the goldsmith Get thee gone, Buy thou a rope, and bring it home to me 20

Dro E I buy a thousand pound a year I buy a rope! [Exit

Ant E A man is well help up that trusts to you I promised your presence and the chain, 23

But neither chain nor goldsmith came to me Belike you thought our love would last too long,
 If it were chain'd together, and therefore came not

Ang Saving your merry humour, here's the note

How much your chain weighs to the utmost carat 28

The fineness of the gold, and chargeful fashion,
 Which doth amount to three odd ducats more

Than I stand debted to this gentleman
 I pray you see him presently discharg'd, 32

For he is bound to sea and stays but for it Ant E I am not furnish'd with the present money,

Besides, I have some business in the town
 Good signior, take the stranger to my house, 36

And with you take the chain, and bid my wife Disburse the sum on the receipt thereof
 Perchance I will be there as soon as you

Ang Then, you will bring the chain to her yourself? 40

Ant E No, bear it with you, lest I come not time enough

Ang Well, sir, I will Have you the chain about you?

Ant E An if I have not, sir, I hope you have,
 Or else you may return without your money 44

Ang Nay, come, I pray you, sir, give me the chain

Both wind and tide stays for this gentleman,
 And I, to blame, have held him here too long

Ant E Good Lord! you use this dalliance to excuse 48

Your breach of promise to the Porpentine,
 I should have chid you for not bringing it,

But, like a shrew, you first begin to brawl.
Mer The hour steals on, I pray you, sir, dispatch 52

Ang You hear how he importunes me the chain!

Ant E Why, give it to my wife and fetch your money

Ang Come, come, you know I gave it you even now 55
Either send the chain or send by me some token Ant E Fie! now you run this humour out of breath

Come, where's the chain? I pray you, let me see it.

Mer My business cannot brook this dalliance
Good sir, say whe'r you'll answer me or no 60
If not, I'll leave him to the officer

Ant E I answer you! what should I answer
you?

Ang The money that you owe me for the chain

Ant E I owe you none till I receive the chain

Ang You know I gave it you half an hour
since 65

Ant E You gave me none you wrong me much to say so

Ang You wrong me more, sir, in denying it Consider how it stands upon my credit 68

Mer Well, officer, arrest him at my suit Off I do,

And charge you in the duke's name to obey me

Ang This touches me in reputation 72

Either consent to pay this sum for me,

Or I attach you by this officer

Ant E Consent to pay thee that I never had!

Arrest me, foolish fellow, if thou dar'st 76

Ang Here is thy fee arrest him, officer
I would not spare my brother in this case,

If he should scorn me so apparently

Off I do arrest you, sir you hear the suit 80

Ant E I do obey thee till I give thee bail

But, surrah, you shall buy this sport as dear

As all the metal in your shop will answer

Ang Sir, sir, I shall have law in Ephesus, 84

To your notorious shame, I doubt it not

Enter DROMIO of Syracuse

Dro S Master, there is a bark of Epidamnium

That stays but till her owner comes aboard,

And then she bears away Our freightage, sir,

I have convey'd aboard, and I have bought 89

The oil, the balsamum, and aqua-vitæ

The ship is in her trim, the merry wind

Blows fair from land, they stay for nought at 92

all

But for their owner, master, and yourself

Ant E How now! a madman! Why, thou peevish sheep,

What ship of Epidamnium stays for me?

Dro S A ship you sent me to, to hire 96

waftage

Ant E Thou drunken slave, I sent thee for a rope,

And told thee to what purpose, and what end

Dro S You sent me for a rope's end as soon

You sent me to the bay, sir, for a bark 100

Ant E I will debate this matter at more

leisure,

And teach your ears to list me with more heed

To Adriana, villain, hie thee straight,

Give her this key, and tell her, in the desk 104

That's cover'd o'er with Turkish tapestry,

There is a purse of ducats let her send it

Tell her I am arrested in the street,
And that shall bail me Hie thee, slave, be gone!

On, officer, to prison till it come 109

[Exeunt Merchant, ANGELO, Officer, and

ANTIPHOLUS of Ephesus

Dro S To Adriana! that is where we din'd,

Where Dowsabel did claim me for her husband

She is too big, I hope, for me to compass 112

Thither I must, although against my will,

For servants must their masters' minds fulfil

[Exit

SCENE II — A Room in the House of ANTIPHOLUS of Ephesus

Enter ADRIANA and LUCIANA

Adr Ah! Luciana, did he tempt thee so?

Mightst thou perceive austere in his eye

That he did plead in earnest? yea or no?

Look'd he or red or pale? or sad or merrily?

What observation mad'st thou in this case 5

Of his heart's meteors tilting in his face?

Luc First he denied you had in him no right

Adr He meant he did me none, the more 8

my spite

Luc Then swore he that he was a stranger

here

Adr And true he swore, though yet forsworn

he were

Luc Then pleaded I for you

Adr And what said he?

Luc That love I begg'd for you he begg'd 12

of me

Adr With what persuasion did he tempt thy

love?

Luc With words that in an honest suit might move

First, he did praise my beauty, then my speech

Adr Didst speak him fair?

Luc Have patience, I beseech

Adr I cannot, nor I will not hold me still

My tongue, though not my heart, shall have his will

He is deformed, crooked, old and sere, 19

Ill-fac'd, worse bodied, shapeless every where,

Vicious, ungente, foolish, blunt, unkind,

Stigmatical in making, worse in mind

Luc Who would be jealous then, of such a one?

No evil lost is wail'd when it is gone 24

Adr Ah! but I think him better than I say,

And yet would herein others' eyes were worse

Far from her nest the lapwing cries away

My heart prays for him, though my tongue do curse 28

Enter DROMIO of Syracuse

Dro S Here, go the desk! the purse! sweet,

now, make haste

Luc How hast thou lost thy breath?

Dro S By running fast

Adr Where is thy master, Dromio? is he 32

well?

Dro S No, he's in Tartar limbo, worse than hell.

A devil in an everlasting garment hath him,
 One whose hard heart is button'd up with steel,
 A fiend, a fairy, pitiless and rough,
 A wolf, nay, worse, a fellow all in buff, 36
 A back-friend, a shoulder-clapper, one that countermands
 The passages of alleys, creeks and narrow lands, A hound that runs counter and yet draws dry-foot well,

 One that, before the judgment, carries poor souls to hell 40

Adr Why, man, what is the matter?

Dro S I do not know the matter. he is 'rested on the case

Adr What, is he arrested? tell me at whose suit

Dro S I know not at whose suit he is arrested well 44

But he's in a suit of buff which 'rested him, that can I tell

Will you send him, mistress, redemption, the money in his desk?

Adr Go fetch it, sister — [Exit LUCIANA]
 This I wonder at

That he, unknown to me, should be in debt 48
 Tell me, was he arrested on a band?

Dro S Not on a band, but on a stronger
 thing,

A chain, a chain Do you not hear it ring?
Adr What, the chain? 52

Dro S No, no, the bell 'tis time that I were
 gone

It was two ere I left him, and now the clock strikes one

Adr The hours come back! that did I never hear

Dro S O yes, if any hour meet a sergeant, a' turns back for very fear 56

Adr As if Time were in debt! how fondly dost thou reason!

Dro S Time is a very bankrupt, and owes more than he's worth to season

Nay, he's a thief too have you not heard men
 say,

That Time comes stealing on by night and day? 60

If Time be in debt and theft, and a sergeant in the way

Hath he not reason to turn back an hour in a day?

Re-enter LUCIANA

Adr Go, Dromio there's the money, bear it
 straight,

And bring thy master home immediately 64

Come, sister, I am press'd down with conceit, Conceit, my comfort and my injury [Exeunt]

SCENE III — A Public Place

Enter ANTIPHOLUS of Syracuse

Ant S There's not a man I meet but doth salute me,

As if I were their well acquainted friend,
 And every one doth call me by my name

Some tender money to me some invite me 4
 Some other give me thanks for kindnesses,
 Some offer me commodities to buy
 Even now a tailor call'd me in his shop
 And show'd me silks that he had bought for me
 And therewithal, took measure of my body 9
 Sure these are but imaginary wiles,
 And Lapland sorcerers inhabit here

Enter DROMIO of Syracuse

Dro S Master, here's the gold you sent me for 12

What! have you got the picture of old Adam new apparelled?

Ant S What gold is this? What Adam dost thou mean?

Dro S Not that Adam that kept the Paradise, but that Adam that keeps the prison he that goes in the calf's skin that was killed for the Prodigal he that came behind you, sir like an evil angel, and bid you forsake your liberty

Ant S I understand thee not 20

Dro S No? why, 'tis a plain case he that went, like a base-viol, in a case of leather, the man, sir, that, when gentlemen are tired, gives them a fob, and 'rests them, he, sir, that takes pity on decayed men and gives them suits of durance, he that sets up his rest to do more exploits with his mace than a morris-pike

Ant S What, thou meanest an officer? 28

Dro S Ay, sir, the sergeant of the band, he that brings any man to answer it that breaks his band, one that thinks a man always going to bed, and says, 'God give you good rest!' 32

Ant S Well, sir, there rest in your foolery.
 Is there any ship puts forth to-night? may we be gone? 35

Dro S Why, sir, I brought you word an hour since that the bark Expedition put forth tonight, and then were you hindered by the sergeant to tarry for the hoy Delay Here are the angels that you sent for to deliver you 40

Ant S The fellow is distract, and so am I,
 And here we wander in illusions
 Some blessed power deliver us from hence!

Enter a Courtezan.

Cour Well met, well met, Master Antipholus.
 I see, sir, you have found the goldsmith now 45

As that the chain you promis'd me to-day?

Ant S Satan, avoid! I charge thee tempt me not!

Dro S Master, is this Mistress Satan? 48

Ant S It is the devil

Dro S Nay, she is worse, she is the devil's dam, and here she comes in the habit of a light wench and thereof comes that the wenches say,
 'God damn me, 'that's as much as to say, 'God make me a light wench.' It is written, they appear to men like angels of light light is an effect of fire, and fire will burn, ergo, light wenches will burn Come not near her 57

Cour Your man and you are marvellous merry, sir Will you go with me? we'll mend our dinner here 60

Dro S Master, if you do, expects spoon-meat, so bespeak a long spoon

Ant S Why Dromio?

Dro S Marry, ne must have a long spoon that must eat with the devil

Ant S Avoid thee, fiend! what tell'st thou me of supping?

Thou art, as you are all, a sorceress
I conjure thee to leave me and be gone

Cour Give me the ring of mine you had at dinner,

Or for my diamond, the chain you promis'd,
And I'll be gone, sir, and not trouble you

Dro S Some devils ask but the parings of one's nail,

A rush, a hair, a drop of blood, a pin,

A nut, a cherry-stone,

But she, more covetous, would have a chain

Master, be wise an if you give it her,

The devil will shake her chain and fright us with it

Cour I pray you, sir, my ring, or else the chain

I hope you do not mean to cheat me so

Ant S Avaunt, thou witch! Come, Dromio, let us go

Dro S 'Fly pride,' says the peacock mistress, that you know

[Exeunt ANTIPHOLUS of Syracuse and

DROMIO of Syracuse

Cour Now, out of doubt, Antipholus is mad, Else would he never so demean himself

A ring he hath of mine worth forty ducats,

And for the same he promis'd me a chain

Both one and other he denies me now

The reason that I gather he is mad,

Besides this present instance of his rage,

Is a mad tale he told to-day at dinner,

Of his own doors being shut against his entrance

Belike his wife, acquainted with his fits,

On purpose shut the doors against his way

My way is now to hie home to his house,

And tell his wife, that, being lunatic,

He rush'd into my house, and took perforce

My ring away This course I fittest choose,

For forty ducats is too much to lose. [Exit

SCENE IV — A Street

Enter ANTIPHOLUS of Ephesus and the Officer

Ant E Fear me not, man, I will not break away.

I'll give thee, ere I leave thee, so much money,

To warrant thee, as I am 'rested for My wife is in a wayward mood to-day,

And will not lightly trust the messenger

That I should be attach'd in Ephesus,

I tell you, 'twill sound harshly in her ears

Enter DROMIO of Ephesus with a rope's end

Here comes my man I think he brings the money

How now, sir! have you that I sent you for?

Dro E Here's that, I warrant you, will pay them all

Ant E But where's the money?

Dro E Why, sir, I gave the money for the rope

Ant E Five hundred ducats, villain, for a rope?

Dro E I'll serve you, sir, five hundred at the rate

Ant E To what end did I bid thee hie thee
home?

Dro E To a rope's end, sir, and to that end am I return'd

Ant E And to that end, sir, I will welcome
you

Off Good sir, be patient

Dro E Nay, 'tis for me to be patient, I am in adversity

Off Good now, hold thy tongue

Dro E Nay, rather persuade him to hold his hands

Ant E Thou whoreson, senseless villain!

Dro E I would I were senseless, sir, that I might not feel your blows

Ant E Thou art sensible in nothing but blows, and so is an ass

Dro E I am an ass indeed, you may prove it by my long ears I have served him from the hour of my nativity to this instant, and have nothing at his hands for my service but blows

When I am cold, he heats me with beating, when I am warm, he cools me with beating,

I am waked with it when I sleep, raised with it when I sit, driven out of doors with it when I go from home, welcomed home with it when I return, nay, I bear it on my shoulders, as a beggar wont her brat, and, I think, when he hath lamed me, I shall beg with it from door to door

Ant E Come, go along, my wife is coming yonder

Enter ADRIANA, LUCIANA, the Courtezan, and PINCH

Dro E Mistress, respice finem, respect your end, or rather, to prophesy like the parrot,

'Beware the rope's end'

Ant E Wilt thou still talk? [Beats him

Cour How say you now? is not your husband mad?

Adr His incivility confirms no less

Good Doctor Pinch, you are a conjurer

Establish him in his true sense again,

And I will please you what you will demand

Luc Alas! how fiery and how sharp he looks!

Cour Mark how he trembles in his ecstasy!

Pinch Give me your hand and let me feel your pulse

Ant E There is my hand, and let it feel your ear

Pinch I charge thee, Satan, hous'd within this man

To yield possession to my holy prayers,

And to thy state of darkness hie thee straight

I conjure thee by all the saints in heaven

Ant E Peace, dotting wizard, peace! I am not mad

Adr O' that thou wert not, poor distressed soul!

Ant E You munion, you, are these your customers?

Did this companion with the saffron face
Revel and feast it at my house to-day, 64
Whilst upon me the guilty doors were shut
And I denied to enter in my house?

Adr O husband, God doth know you din'd at home,

Where would you had remain'd until this time,
Free from these slanders and this open shame!

Ant E Din'd at home! Thou villain, what say'st thou?

Dro E Sir, sooth to say, you did not dine at home

Ant E Were not my doors lock'd up and I shut out? 72

Dro E Perdy, your doors were lock'd and you shut out

Ant E And did not she herself revile me there?

Dro E Sans fable, she herself revil'd you there

Ant E Did not her kitchen-maid rail, taunt, and scorn me? 76

Dro E Certes, she did, the kitchen-vestal scorn'd you

Ant E And did not I in rage depart from thence?

Dro E In verity you did my bones bear witness,

That since have felt the vigour of his rage 80

Adr Is't good to soothe him in these contraries?

Pinch It is no shame the fellow finds his ven,

And, yielding to him humours well his frenzy

Ant E Thou hast suborn'd the goldsmith to arrest me 84

Adr Alas! I sent you money to redeem you, By Dromio here, who came in haste for it Dro E Money by me! heart and good will you might,

But surely, master, not a rag of money 88

Ant E Went'st not thou to her for a purse of ducats?

Adr He came to me, and I deliver'd it

Luc And I am witness with her that she did

Dro E God and the rope-maker bear me witness 92

That I was sent for nothing but a rope!

Pinch Mistress, both man and master is possess'd

I know it by their pale and deadly looks

They must be bound and laid in some dark room 96

Ant E Say, wherefore didst thou lock me forth to-day?

And why dost thou deny the bag of gold?

Adr I did not, gentle husband, lock thee forth

Dro E And, gentle master, I receiv'd no gold, 100

But I confess, sir, that we were lock'd out.

Adr Dissembling villain! thou speak'st false in both

Ant E Dissembling harlot! thou art false in all,

And art confederate with a damned pack 104

To make a loathsome abject scorn of me,
But with these nails I'll pluck out those false eyes

That would behold in me this shameful sport.

Adr O' bind him, bind him, let him not come near me 108

Pinch More company! the fiend is strong within him

Luc Ay me! poor man, how pale and wan he looks!

Enter three or four and bind ANTIPHOLUS of Ephesus

Ant E What, will you murder me? Thou gaoler, thou,

I am thy prisoner wilt thou suffer them 112

To make a rescue?

Off Masters, let him go
He is my prisoner, and you shall not have him

Pinch Go bind this man, for he is frantic too [They bind DROMIO of Ephesus

Adr What wilt thou do, thou peevish officer?
Hast thou delight to see a wretched man 117

Do outrage and displeasure to himself?

Off He is my prisoner if I let him go,
The debt he owes will be requir'd of me 120

Adr I will discharge thee ere I go from thee Bear me forthwith unto his creditor,

And, knowing how the debt grows, I will pay it.
Good Master doctor, see him safe convey'd 124

Home to my house O most unhappy day!

Ant E O most unhappy strumpet!

Dro E Master, I am here enter'd in bond for you

Ant E Out on thee, villain! wherefore dost thou mad me? 128

Dro E Will you be bound for nothing? be mad, good master, cry, 'the devil!'

Luc God help, poor souls! how idly do they talk

Adr Go bear him hence Sister, go you with me — 132

[Exeunt PINCH and Assistants with ANTIPHOLUS of Ephesus and DROMIO of Ephesus

Say now, whose suit is he arrested at?

Off One Angelo, a goldsmith, do you know him?

Adr I know the man. What is the sum he owes?

Off Two hundred ducats

Adr Say, how grows it due? 136

Off Due for a chain your husband had of him

Adr He did bespeak a chain for me, but had it not

Cour When as your husband all in rage, to-day

Came to my house, and took away my ring,—
The ring I saw upon his finger now,— 142

Straight after did I meet him with a chain.

Adr It may be so, but I did never see it Come, gaoler, bring me where the goldsmith is I long to know the truth hereof at large 145

Enter ANTIPHOLUS of Syracuse and DROMIO of Syracuse, with rapiers drawn

Luc God, for thy mercy! they are loose
again

Adr And come with naked swords Let's call more help

To have them bound again

Off Away! they'll kill us

[Exeunt ADRIANA, LUCIANA, and Officer] Ant S I see, these witches are afraid of swords 149

Dro S She that would be your wife now ran from you

Ant S Come to the Centaur, fetch our stuff from thence

I long that we were safe and sound aboard 152

Dro S Faith, stay here this night, they will surely do us no harm, you saw they speak us fair, give us gold methinks they are such a gentle nation, that, but for the mountain of mad flesh that claim's marriage of me, I could find in my heart to stay here still, and turn witch

Ant S I will not stay to-night for all the town,

Therefore away, to get our stuff aboard 160
[Exeunt]

ACT V

SCENE I—A Street before an Abbey

Enter Merchant and ANGELO

Ang I am sorry, sir, that I have hinder'd you,
But, I protest, he had the chain of me,
Though most dishonestly he doth deny it

Mer How is the man esteem'd here in the city? 4

Ang Of very reverend reputation, sir,
Of credit infinite, highly belov'd,
Second to none that lives here in the city
His word might bear my wealth at any time 8

Mer Speak softly yonder, as I think, he walks

Enter ANTIPHOLUS of Syracuse and DROMIO of Syracuse

Ang 'Tis so, and that self chain about his neck

Which he forswore most monstrously to have Good sir, draw near to me, I'll speak to him Signor Antipholus, I wonder much 13 That you would put me to this shame and trouble,

And not without some scandal to yourself,
With circumstance and oaths so to deny 16

This chain which now you wear so openly Beside the charge, the shame, imprisonment,
You have done wrong to this my honest friend,
Who, but for staying on our controversy, 20
Had hoisted sail and put to sea to-day

This chain you had of me, can you deny it?

Ant S I think I had I never did deny it

Mer Yes, that you did, sir, and forswore it too 24

Ant S Who heard me to deny it or for-swear it?

Mer These ears of mine, thou know'st, did hear thee

Fie on thee, wretch! 'tis pity that thou liv'st
To walk where any honest men resort 28

Ant S Thou art a villain to impeach me
thus

I'll prove mine honour and mine honesty

Against thee presently, if thou dar'st stand

Mer I dare, and do defy thee for a villain 32 [They draw]

Enter ADRIANA, LUCIANA, Courtezan, and Others

Adr Hold! hurt him not, for God's sake! he is mad

Some get within him, take his sword away

Bind Dromio too, and bear them to my house

Dro S Run, master, run, for God's sake, take a house! 36

This is some priory in, or we are spoil'd

[Exeunt ANTIPHOLUS of Syracuse and DROMIO of Syracuse to the Abbey]

Enter the Abbess

Abb Be quiet, people Wherefore throng you hither?

Adr To fetch my poor distracted husband
hence

Let us come in, that we may bind him fast, 40
And bear him home for his recovery

Ang I knew he was not in his perfect wits

Mer I am sorry now that I did draw on him

Abb How long hath this possession held the man? 44

Adr This week he hath been heavy, sour, sad,

And much different from the man he was,

But, till this afternoon his passion

Ne'er brake into extremity of rage 48 Abb Hath he not lost much wealth by wrack of sea?

Buried some dear friend? Hath not else his eye Stray'd his affection in unlawful love? 52

A sin prevailing much in youthful men,

Who give their eyes the liberty of gazing

Which of these sorrows is he subject to?

Adr To none of these, except it be the last, Namely, some love that drew him oft from home 56

Abb You should for that have reprehended

him

Adr Why, so I did

Abb Ay, but not rough enough

Adr As roughly as my modesty would let me

Abb Haply, in private

Adr And in assemblies too, 60

Abb Ay, but not enough

Adr It was the copy of our conference

In bed, he slept not for my urging it,

At board, he fed not for my urging it,

Alone, it was the subject of my theme,

In company I often glanced it Still did I tell him it was vile and bad

Abb And thereof came it that the man was mad 68

The venom clamours of a jealous woman
Poison more deadly than a mad dog's tooth
It seems, his sleeps were hinder'd by thy railing,
And thereof comes it that his head is light 72 Thou say'st his meat was sauc'd with thy upbraidings

Unquiet meals make ill digestions, Thereof the raging fire of fever bred
And what's a fever but a fit of madness? 76 Thou say'st his sports were hinder'd by thy brawls

Sweet recreation barr'd, what doth ensue
But moody moping, and dull melancholy,
Kinsman to grim and comfortless despair, 80
And at her heels a huge infectious troop
Of pale distemperatures and foes to life?
In food, in sport, and life-preserving rest
To be disturb'd, would mad or man or beast 84
The consequence is then, thy jealous fits Have scar'd thy husband from the use of wits

Luc She never reprehended him but mildly When he demean'd himself rough, rude, and wildly 88

Why bear you these rebukes and answer not?

Adr She did betray me to my own reproof
Good people, enter, and lay hold on him

Abb No, not a creature enters in my house Adr Then, let your servants bring my husband forth 93

Abb Neither he took this place for sanctuary,

And it shall privilege him from your hands Till I have brought him to his wits again, 96
Or lose my labour in assaying it

Adr I will attend my husband, be his nurse, Diet his sickness, for it is my office,
And will have no attorney but myself, 100
And therefore let me have him home with me

Abb Be patient, for I will not let him stir Till I have us'd the approved means I have,
With wholesome syrups, drugs, and holy prayers, 104

To make of him a formal man again
It is a branch and parcel of mine oath,
A charitable duty of my order,
Therefore depart and leave him here with me

Adr I will not hence and leave my husband
here, 109

And ill it doth beseem your holiness
To separate the husband and the wife

Abb Be quiet, and depart thou shalt not have him [Exit 113]

Luc Complam unto the duke of this indignity 113

Adr Come, go I will fall prostrate at his feet,
And never rise until my tears and prayers
Have won his Grace to come in person hither,
And take perforce my husband from the abbess

Sec Mer By this, I think, the dial points at five

Anon, I'm sure, the duke himself in person Comes this way to the melancholy vale, 120

The place of death and sorry execution,
Behind the ditches of the abbey here

Ang Upon what cause?

Sec Mer To see a reverend Syracusan merchant, 124

Who put unluckily into this bay
Against the laws and statutes of this town, Beheaded publicly for his offence

Ang See where they come we will behold his death 128

Luc Kneel to the duke before he pass the abbey

Enter DUKE attended AEGEON bare-headed, with the Headsman and other Officers

Duke Yet once again proclaim it publicly,
If any friend will pay the sum for him,
He shall not die, so much we tender him 132

Adr Justice, most sacred duke, against the abbess!

Duke She is a virtuous and a reverend lady
It cannot be that she hath done thee wrong

Adr May it please your Grace, Antipholus, my husband, 136

Whom I made lord of me and all I had,
At your important letters, this ill day

A most outrageous fit of madness took him,
That desperately he hurried through the street,—

With him his bondman, all as mad as he,— 141
Doing displeasure to the citizens

By rushing in their houses, bearing thence Rings, jewels, anything his rage did like 144

Once did I get him bound and sent him home, Whilst to take order for the wrongs I went

That here and there his fury had committed Anon, I wot not by what strong escape, 148

He broke from those that had the guard of him,
And with his mad attendant and himself,

Each one with ireful passion, with drawn swords
Met us again, and, madly bent on us 152

Chas'd us away, till, raising of more aid
We came again to bind them Then they fled

Into this abbey, whither we pursu'd them,
And here the abbess shuts the gates on us, 156

And will not suffer us to fetch him out,
Nor send him forth that we may bear him hence

Therefore, most gracious duke, with thy command

Let him be brought forth, and borne hence for help 160

Duke Long since thy husband serv'd me in my wars,

And I to thee engag'd a prince's word,
When thou didst make him master of thy bed,

To do him all the grace and good I could 164
Go, some of you, knock at the abbey gate

And bid the lady abbess come to me
I will determine this before I stir

Enter a Servant.

Serv O mistress, mistress! shift and save yourself! 168

My master and his man are both broke loose,
Beaten the maids a-row and bound the doctor, Whose beard they have sing'd off with brands of fire,

And ever as it blaz'd they threw on him 172
Great pails of puddled mire to quench the hur My master preaches patience to him, and the while

His man with scissors nick's him like a fool,
And sure, unless you send some present help,
Between them they will kill the conjurer 177

Adr Peace, fool! thy master and his man are he?

And that is, false thou dost report to us

Ser. Mistress, upon my life, I tell you true,
I have not breath'd almost, since I did see it 181
He cries for you and vows, if he can take you,
To scotch your face, and to disfigure you [Cry within

Hark, hark! I hear him, mistress fly, be gone!
Duke Come, stand by me, fear nothing

Guard with halberds! 185

Adr Av me, it is my husband! Witness you,
That he is borne about invisible
Even now we hous'd him in the abbey here, 188
And now he's here, past thought of human reason

Enter ANTIPHOLUS of Ephesus and DROMIO of Ephesus

Ant E Justice, most gracious duke! O!
grant me justice,

Even for the service that long since I did thee,
When I bestrid thee in the wars and took 192
Deep scars to save thy life even for the blood
That thou I lost for thee, now grant me justice Ege Unless the fear of death doth make me dote,

I see my son Antipholus and Dromio! 196

Ant E Justice, sweet prince, against that woman there!

She whom thou gav'st to me to be my wife,
That hath abused and dishonour'd me,
Even in the strength and height of injury! 200
Beyond imagination is the wrong
That she this day hath shameless thrown on me

Duke Discover now, and thou shalt find me just

Ant E This day, great duke, she shut the doors upon me, 204

While she with harlots feasted in my house

Duke A grievous fault! Say, woman, didst thou so?

Adr No, my good lord myself, he, and my sister

To-day did dine together So befall my soul 208
As this is false he burdens me withal!

Luc Ne'er may I look on day, nor sleep on night,

But she tells to your highness simple truth!

Ang O perjur'd woman! They are both for-sworn 212

In this the madman justly chargeth them!

Ant E My liege, I am advis'd what I say Neither disturb'd with the effect of wine, Nor heady-rash, provok'd with raging ire, 216
Albeit my wrongs might make one wiser mad
This woman lock'd me out this day from dinner That goldsmith there, were he not pack'd with
her,

Could witness it, for he was with me then 220
Who parted with me to go fetch a chain,
Promising to bring it to the Porpentune,
Where Balthazar and I did dine together
Our dinner done, and he not coming thither, 224
I went to seek him in the street I met him,
And in his company that gentleman
There did this perjur'd goldsmith swear me
down

That I this day of him receiv'd the chain, 228 Which God he knows, I saw not, for the which He did arrest me with an officer
I did obey, and sent my peasant home
For certain ducats he with none return'd 232

Then fairly I bespoke the officer
To go in person with me to my house
By the way we met

My wife, her sister, and a rabble more 236

Of vile confederates along with them

They brought one Pinch, a hungry lean-fac'd villain,

A mere anatomy, a mountebank,

A threadbare juggler, and a fortune-teller, 240

A needy, hollow-ey'd, sharp looking wretch,

A living-dead man This pernicious slave,

Forsooth, took on him as a conjurer,

And, gazing in mine eyes, feeling my pulse, 244

And with no face, as 'twere, out-facing me,

Cries out, I was possess'd Then, altogether

They fell upon me, bound me, bore me thence,

And in a dark and dankish vault at home 248

There left me and my man, both bound together,

Till, gnawing with my teeth my bonds in sunder,

I gain'd my freedom, and immediately

Ran hither to your Grace, whom I beseech 252

To give me ample satisfaction

For these deep shames and great indignities

Ang My lord, in truth, thus far I witness

with him, 255

That he dur'd not at home, but was lock'd out

Duke But had he such a chain of thee, or no?

Ang He had, my lord, and when he ran in

here,

These people saw the chain about his neck

Sec Mer Besides, I will be sworn these ears

of mine 260

Heard you confess you had the chain of him

After you first forswore it on the mart,

And thereupon I drew my sword on you,

And then you fled into this abbey here, 264

From whence, I think, you are come by miracle

Ant E I never came within these abbey walls,

Nor ever didst thou draw thy sword on me,

I never saw the chain, so help me heaven! 268

And this is false you burden me withal

Duke Why, what an intricate impeach is

this!

I think you all have drunk of Circe's cup

If here you hous'd him, here he would have been, 272

If he were mad, he would not plead so coldly,

You say he dur'd not at home, the goldsmith here

Denies that saying Sirrah, what say you?

Dro E Sir, he dur'd with her there, at the Porpentune 276

- Cour* He did, and from my finger snatch'd that ring Ant E 'Tis true, my liege, thus ring I had of her Duke Saw'st thou him enter at the abbey here?
Cour As sure, my liege, as I do see your Grace 280
Duke Why, this is strange Go call the abbess hither [Exit an Attendant
I think you are all mated or stark mad
Ege Most mighty duke, vouchsafes me speak a word Haply I see a friend will save my life, 284
And pay the sum that may deliver me
Duke Speak freely, Syracusan, what thou wilt Ege Is not your name, sir, called Antipholus?
And is not that your bondman Dromio? 288
Dro E Within this hour I was his bondman, sir,
But he, I thank him, gnaw'd in two my cords
Now am I Dromio and his man, unbound Ege I am sure you both of you remember me 292
Dro E Ourselves we do remember, sir, by you,
For lately we were bound, as you are now
You are not Pinch's patient, are you, sir?
Ege Why look you strange on me? you know me well 296 Ant E I never saw you in my life till now Ege O! grief hath chang'd me since you saw me last,
And careful hours, with Time's deformed hand,
Have written strange defeatures in my face 300
But tell me yet, dost thou not know my voice?
Ant E Neither
Ege Dromio, nor thou?
Dro E No, trust me, sir, not I 304
Ege I am sure thou dost
Dro E Ay, sir, but I am sure I do not, and whatsoever a man denies, you are now bound to believe him 308 Ege Not know my voice! O, time's extremity, Hast thou so crack'd and splitted my poor tongue
In seven short years, that here my only son Knows not my feeble key of untun'd cares? 312
Though now this grained face of mine be hid
In sap-consuming winter's drizzled snow,
And all the conduits of my blood froze up,
Yet hath my night of life some memory, 316
My wasting lamps some fading glimmer left,
My dull deaf ears a little use to hear
All these old witnesses, I cannot err,
Tell me thou art my son Antipholus 320
Ant E I never saw my father in my life
Ege But seven years since, in Syracuse, boy, Thou know'st we parted but perhaps, my son,
Thou sham'st to acknowledge me in misery
Ant E The duke and all that know me in the city 325
Can witness with me that it is not so I ne'er saw Syracuse in my life.
Duke I tell thee, Syracusan, twenty years
- Have I been patron to Antipholus, 329
During which time he ne'er saw Syracuse
I see thy age and dangers make thee dote
- Re-enter Abbess, with ANTIPHOLUS of Syracuse and DROMIO of Syracuse*
Abb Most mighty duke, behold a man much wrong'd [All gather to see him Adr I see two husbands, or mine eyes deceive me! 333 Duke One of these men is Genius to the other,
And so of these which is the natural man,
And which the spirit? Who deciphers them?
Dro S I, sir, am Dromio command him away 337
Dro E I, sir, am Dromio pray let me stay Ant S Ægeon art thou not? or else his ghost?
Dro S O! my old master, who hath bound him here? 340
Abb Whoever bound him, I will loose his bonds,
And gain a husband by his liberty
Speak, old Ægeon, if thou be'st the man
That hadst a wife once call'd Æmilia, 344
That bore thee at a burden two fair sons
O! if thou be'st the same Ægeon, speak,
And speak unto the same Æmilia!
Ege If I dream not, thou art Æmilia 348
If thou art she, tell me where is that son
That floated with thee on the fatal raft?
Abb By men of Epidamnus, he and I,
And the twin Dromio, all were taken up 352
But by and by rude fishermen of Corinth
By force took Dromio and my son from them,
And me they left with those of Epidamnus.
What then became of them, I cannot tell, 356
I to this fortune that you see me in Duke Why, here begins his morning story right
These two Antipholus', these two so like,
And these two Dromios, one in semblance, 360
Besides her urging of her wrack at sea,
These are the parents to these children,
Which accidentally are met together
Antipholus, thou cam'st from Corinth first? 364 Ant S No, sir, not I, I came from Syracuse Duke Stay, stand apart, I know not which is which.
Ant E I came from Corinth, my most gracious lord,— Dro E And I with him. 368
Ant E Brought to this town by that most famous warrior, Duke Menaphon, your most renowned uncle
Adr Which of you two did dine with me to-day?
Ant S I, gentle mistress. 372
Adr And are not you my husband?
Ant E No, I say nay to that.
Ant S And so do I, yet did she call me so;
And this fair gentlewoman, her sister here, 376 Did call me brother. [To LUCIANA.] What I told you then,

I hope I shall have leisure to make good,

If this be not a dream I see and hear

Ang That is the chain, sir, which you had
of me 380

Ant S I think it be, sir, I deny it not Ant E And you, sir, for this chain arrested

me

Ang I think I did, sir, I deny it not

Adr I sent you money, sir, to be your bail,
By Dromio, but I think he brought it not 385

Dro E No, none by me

Ant S This purse of ducats I receiv'd from
you,

And Dromio, my man, did bring them me 388

I see we still did meet each other's man,

And I was ta'en for him, and he for me,

And thereupon these errors are arose

Ant E These ducats pawn I for my father
here 392

Duke It shall not need thy father hath his life

Cour Sir, I must have that diamond from
you

Ant E There, take it, and much thanks for my good cheer

Abb Renowned duke, vouchsafe to take the pams 396

To go with us into the abbey here,

And hear at large discoursed all our fortunes,

And all that are assembled in this place,

That by thus sympathized one day's error 400

Have suffer'd wrong, go keep us company;

And we shall make full satisfaction

Thirty-three years have I but gone in travail

Of you, my sons, and, till this present hour 404

My heavy burdens ne'er delivered

The duke, my husband, and my children both,

And you the calendars of their nativity,

Go to a gossip's feast, and joy with me 408

After so long grief such festivity!

Duke With all my heart I'll gossip at this feast

[Exeunt DUKE, Abbess, AGEON, Courtezan, Merchant, ANGELO, and Attendants]

Dro S Master, shall I fetch your stuff from shipboard?

Ant E Dromio, what stuff of mine hast thou embark'd? 412

Dro S Your goods that lay at host, sir, in the Centaur

Ant S He speaks to me I am your master, Dromio

Come, go with us, we'll look to that anon

Embrace thy brother there, rejoice with him

[Exeunt ANTIPHOLUS of Syracuse and ANTIPHOLUS of Ephesus, ADRIANA and LUCIANA]

Dro S There is a fat friend at your master's
house, 417

That kitchen'd me for you to day at dinner

She now shall be my sister, not my wife

Dro E Methinks you are my glass, and not my brother 420

I see by you I am a sweet-fac'd youth

Will you walk in to see their gossiping?

Dro S Not I, sir, you are my elder Dro E That's a question how shall we try

it? 424

Dro S We'll draw cuts for the senior till then lead thou first

Dro E Nay, then, thus

We came into the world like brother and brother,

And now let's go hand in hand, not one before another [Exeunt]

ACT I

SCENE I — Before LEONATO's House

Enter LEONATO, HERO, BEATRICE and others, with a Messenger

Leon I learn in this letter that Don Pedro of Arragon comes this night to Messina

Mess He is very near by this he was not three leagues off when I left him 4

Leon How many gentlemen have you lost in this action?

Mess But few of any sort, and none of name

Leon A victory is twice itself when the achiever brings home full numbers I find here that Don Pedro hath bestowed much honour on a young Florentine called Claudio 11

Mess Much deserved on his part and equally remembered by Don Pedro He hath borne himself beyond the promise of his age, doing in the figure of a lamb the feats of a lion he hath indeed better bettered expectation than you must expect of me to tell you how 17

Leon He hath an uncle here in Messina will be very much glad of it.

Mess I have already delivered him letters, and there appears much joy in him, even so much that joy could not show itself modest enough without a badge of bitterness

Leon Did he break out into tears? 24

Mess In great measure

Leon A kind overflow of kindness There are no faces truer than those that are so washed how much better is it to weep at joy than to joy at weeping! 29

Beat I pray you is Signior Mountanto returned from the wars or no?

Mess I know none of that name, lady there was none such in the army of any sort. 33

Leon What is he that you ask for, niece?

Hero My cousin means Signior Benedick of Padua 36

Mess O! he is returned, and as pleasant as ever he was Beat He set up his bills here in Messina and challenged Cupid at the flight, and my uncle's fool, reading the challenge, subscribed for Cupid, and challenged him at the bird-bolt I pray you, how many hath he killed and eaten in these wars? But how many hath he killed? for, indeed, I promised to eat all of his killing 45

Leon Faith, niece, you tax Signior Benedick too much, but he'll be meet with you, I doubt it not 48

Mess He hath done good service, lady, in these wars

Beat You had musty victual, and he hath help to eat it he is a very valiant trencherman, he hath an excellent stomach 53

Mess And a good soldier too, lady

Beat And a good soldier to a lady, but what is he to a lord? 56

Mess A lord to a lord, a man to a man, stuffed with all honourable virtues

Beat It is so, indeed, he is no less than a stuffed man, but for the stuffing,—well, we are all mortal 61

Leon You must not, sir, mistake my niece There is a kind of merry war betwixt Signior Benedick and her they never meet but there's a skirmish of wit between them 65

Beat Alas! he gets nothing by that In our last conflict four of his five wits went halting off, and now is the whole man governed with one! so that if he have wit enough to keep himself warm, let him bear it for a difference between himself and his horse, for it is all the wealth that he hath left to be known a reasonable creature Who is his companion now? He hath every month a new sworn brother 74

Mess Is't possible?

Beat Very easily possible he wears his faith but as the fashion of his hat, it ever changes with the next block

Mess I see, lady, the gentleman is not in your books 80

Beat No an he were, I would burn my study But, I pray you, who is his companion? Is there no young squarer now that will make a voyage with him to the devil? 84

Mess He is most in the company of the right noble Claudio

Beat O Lord! he will hang upon him like a your tongue, and so good a continuer But keep your way, i' God's name, I have done

Beat You always end with a jade's trick I know you of old

D Pedro This is the sum of all, Leonato Signior Claudio, and Signior Benedick, my dear friend Leonato hath invited you all I tell him we shall stay here at the least a month, and he heartily prays some occasion may detain us longer I dare swear he is no hypocrite, but prays from his heart

Leon If you swear, my lord, you shall not be forsworn [To DON JOHN] Let me bid you welcome, my lord being reconciled to the prince your brother, I owe you all duty

D John I thank you I am not of many words, but I thank you

Leon Please it your Grace lead on

D Pedro Your hand, Leonato, we will go together [Exeunt all but BENEDICK and CLAUDIO Benedick, didst thou note the daughter of Signior Leonato?

Bene I noted her not but I looked on her Claud Is she not a modest young lady?

Bene Do you question me, as an honest man should do, for my simple true judgment or would you have me speak after my custom, as being a professed tyrant to their sex?

Claud No, I pray thee speak in sober judgment

Bene Why, i' faith, methinks she's too low for a high praise, too brown for a fair praise, and too little for a great praise only thus commendation I can afford her, that were she other than she is, she were unhandsome, and being no other but as she is, I do not like her

Claud Thou thinkest I am in sport I pray thee tell me truly how thou likest her Bene Would you buy her, that you inquire after her?

Claud Can the world buy such a jewel?

Bene Yea, and a case to put it into But speak you this with a sad brow, or do you play the flouting Jack, to tell us Cupid is a good hare-finder, and Vulcan a rare carpenter? Come, in what key shall a man take you, to go in the song?

Claud In mine eye she is the sweetest lady that ever I looked on Bene I can see yet without spectacles and I see no such matter there's her cousin, an she were not possessed with a fury, exceeds her as much in beauty as the first of May doth the last of December But I hope you have no intent to turn husband, have you?

Claud I would scarce trust myself, though I had sworn to the contrary, if Hero would be my wife Bene Is't come to this, i' faith? Hath not the world one man but he will wear his cap with suspicion? Shall I never see a bachelor of three-score again? Go to, i' faith, an thou wilt needs thrust thy neck into a yoke, wear the print of it, and sigh away Sundays. Look! Don Pedro is returned to seek you.

Mess I will hold friends with you, lady

Beat Do, good friend

Leon You will never run mad, niece

Beat No, not till a hot January

Mess Don Pedro is approached

Enter DON PEDRO, DON JOHN, CLAUDIO, BENEDICK, BALTHAZAR, and Others

D Pedro Good Signior Leonato, you are come to meet your trouble the fashion of the world is to avoid cost, and you encounter it

Leon Never came trouble to my house in the likeness of your Grace, for trouble being gone, comfort should remain, but when you depart from me, sorrow abides and happiness takes his leave

D Pedro You embrace your charge too willingly I think this is your daughter

Leon Her mother hath many times told me so Bene Were you in doubt, sir, that you asked her?

Leon Signior Benedick, no, for then you were a child

D Pedro You have it full, Benedick we may guess by this what you are, being a man truly, the lady fathers herself Be nappy, lady, for you are like an honourable father

Bene If Signior Leonato be her father, she would not have his head on her shoulders for all Messina, as like him as she is

Beat I wonder that you will still be talking, Signior Benedick nobody marks you Bene What! my dear Lady Disdain, are you yet living?

Beat Is it possible Disdain should die while she hath such meet food to feed it as Signior Benedick? Courtesy itself must convert to disdain, if you come in her presence

Bene Then is courtesy a turncoat. But it is certain I am loved of all ladies, only you excepted, and I would I could find in my heart that I had not a hard heart, for, truly, I love none

Beat A dear happiness to women they would else have been troubled with a pernicious suitor I thank God and my cold blood, I am of your humour for that I had rather hear my dog bark at a crow than a man swear he loves me

Bene God keep your ladyship still in that mind, so some gentleman or other shall scape a predestinate scratched face

Beat Scratching could not make it worse, an 'twere such a face as yours were

Bene Well, you are a rare parrot-teacher

Beat A bird of my tongue is better than a beast of yours

Bene I would my horse had the speed of

Re-enter DON PEDRO

D Pedro What secret hath held you here, that you followed not to Leonato's?

Bene I would your Grace would constrain me to tell

D Pedro I charge thee on thy allegiance

Bene You hear, Count Claudio. I can be secret as a dumb man, I would have you think so, but on my allegiance, mark you this, on my allegiance he is in love With who? now that is your Grace's part Mark how short his answer is with Hero, Leonato's short daughter

Claud If this were so, so were it uttered

Bene Like the old tale, my lord 'tis not so, nor 'twas not so, but, indeed, God forbid it should be so

Claud If my passion change not shortly, God forbid it should be otherwise

D Pedro Amen, if you love her, for the lady is very well worthy

Claud You speak this to fetch me in, my lord

D Pedro By my troth, I speak my thought

Claud And in faith, my lord, I spoke mine

Bene And by my two faiths and troths, my lord, I spoke mine

Claud That I love her, I feel

D Pedro That she is worthy, I know

Bene That I neither feel how she should be loved nor know how she should be worthy, is the opinion that fire cannot melt out of me I will die in it at the stake

D Pedro Thou wast ever an obstinate heretic in the despite of beauty

Claud And never could maintain his part but in the force of his will

Bene That a woman conceived me, I thank her, that she brought me up, I likewise give her most humble thanks but that I will have a recheat wadded in my forehead, or hang my bugle in an invisible baldrick, all women shall pardon me Because I will not do them the wrong to mistrust any, I will do myself the right to trust none and the fine is,—for the which I may go the finer,—I will live a bachelor

D Pedro I shall see thee, ere I die, look pale with love

Bene With anger, with sickness, or with hunger, my lord, not with love prove that ever I lose more blood with love than I will get again with drinking, pick out mine eyes with a ballad-maker's pen, and hang me up at the door of a brothel-house for the sign of blind Cupid

D Pedro Well, if ever thou dost fall from this faith, thou wilt prove a notable argument.

Bene If I do, hang me in a bottle like a cat and shoot at me, and he that hits me, let him be clapped on the shoulder, and called Adam

D Pedro Well, as time shall try

'In time the savage bull doth bear the yoke'

Bene The savage bull may, but if ever the sensible Benedick bear it, pluck off the bull's horns and set them in my forehead, and let me be vilely painted, and in such great letters as they write, 'Here is good horse to hire,' let them signify under my sign 'Here you may see Benedick the married man'

Claud If this should ever happen, thou wouldst be horn-mad

D Pedro Nay, if Cupid have not spent all his quiver in Venice, thou wilt quake for this shortly.

Bene I look for an earthquake too then.

D Pedro Well, you will temporize with the hours In the meantime, good Signior Benedick, repair to Leonato's commend me to him and tell him I will not fail him at supper, for indeed he hath made great preparation

Bene I have almost matter enough in me for such an embassy, and so I commend you—

Claud To the tuition of God from my house, if I had it,—

D Pedro The sixth of July your loving friend, Benedick

Bene Nay, mock not, mock not. The body of your discourse is sometime guarded with fragments, and the guards are but slightly basted on neither ere you flout old ends any further, examine your conscience and so I leave you

Claud My liege, your highness now may do me good

D Pedro My love is thine to teach teach it but how,

And thou shalt see how apt it is to learn Any hard lesson that may do thee good.

Claud Hath Leonato any son, my lord?

D Pedro No child but Hero, she's his only heir

Dost thou affect her, Claudio?

Claud O' my lord, When you went onward on this ended action, I looked upon her with a soldier's eye,

That lik'd, but had a rougher task in hand Than to drive liking to the name of love,

But now I am return'd, and that war-thoughts Have left their places vacant, in their rooms

Come thronging soft and delicate desires, All prompting me how fair young Hero is Saying, I lik'd her ere I went to wars

D Pedro Thou wilt be like a lover presently, And tire the hearer with a book of words

If thou dost love fair Hero, cherish it, And I will break with her, and with her father,

And thou shalt have her Was't not to this end That thou began'st to twist so fine a story?

Claud How sweetly do you minister to love, That know love's grief by his complexion!

But lest my liking might too sudden seem, I would have salv'd it with a longer treatise

D Pedro What need the bridge much broader than the flood?

The fairest grant is the necessity Look what will serve is fit 'tis once, thou lov'st,

And I will fit thee with the remedy I know we shall have revelling to-night

I will assume thy part in some disguise, And tell fair Hero I am Claudio,

And in her bosom I'll unclasp my heart, And take her hearing prisoner with the force

And strong encounter of my amorous tale. Then, after to her father will I break,

And the conclusion is, she shall be thine In practice let us put it presently

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II — A Room in LEONATO's HouseEnter LEONATO and ANTONIO, meeting

Leon How now, brother! Where is my cousin, your son? Hath he provided this music?

Ant He is very busy about it. But, brother, I can tell you strange news that you yet dreamt not of Leon Are they good?

Ant As the event stamps them but they have a good cover, they show well outward. The prince and Count Claudio, walking in a thick-pleached alley in my orchard, were thus much overheard by a man of mine the prince discovered to Claudio that he loved my niece your daughter, and meant to acknowledge it this night in a dance, and, if he found her accordant, he meant to take the present time by the top and instantly break with you of it

Leon Hath the fellow any wit that told you this?

Ant A good sharp fellow I will send for him, and question him yourself

Leon No, no, we will hold it as a dream till it appear itself but I will acquaint my daughter withal, that she may be the better prepared for an answer, if peradventure this be true. Go you, and tell her of it. [Several persons cross the stage] Cousins, you know what you have to do. O! I cry you mercy, friend, go you with me, and I will use your skill. Good cousin, have a care this busy time

*[Exeunt]*SCENE III — Another Room in LEONATO's HouseEnter DON JOHN and CONRADE

Con What the good-year, my lord! why are you thus out of measure sad?

D John There is no measure in the occasion that breeds, therefore the sadness is without limit

Con You should hear reason

D John And when I have heard it, what blessing brings it?

Con If not a present remedy, at least a patient sufferance

D John I wonder that thou, being,—as thou say'st thou art,—born under Saturn, goest about to apply a moral medicine to a mortifying mischief. I cannot hide what I am. I must be sad when I have cause, and smile at no man's jests, eat when I have stomach, and wait for no man's leisure, sleep when I am drowsy, and tend on no man's business, laugh when I am merry, and claw no man in his humour

Con Yea, but you must not make the full show of this till you may do it without controlment. You have of late stood out against your brother, and he hath taken you newly into his grace, where it is impossible you should take true root but by the fair weather that you make yourself. It is needful that you frame the season for your own harvest

D John I had rather be a canker in a hedge than a rose in his grace, and it better fits my blood to be disdained of all than to fashion a carriage to rob love from any. In this, though I cannot be said to be a flattering honest man, it must not be denied but I am a plain dealing villain. I am trusted with a muzzle and enfranchised with a clog, therefore I have decreed not to sing in my cage. If I had my mouth, I would bite, if I had my liberty, I would do my liking in the meantime, let me be that I am, and seek not to alter me Con Can you make no use of your discontent?

D John I make all use of it, for I use it only. Who comes here?

Enter BORACHIO

What news, Borachio?

Bora I came yonder from a great supper the prince, your brother, is royally entertained by Leonato, and I can give you intelligence of an intended marriage

D John Will it serve for any model to build mischief on? What is he for a fool that betrays himself to unquietness?

Bora Marry, it is your brother's right hand

D John Who? the most exquisite Claudio?

Bora Even he

D John A proper squire! And who, and who? which way looks he?

Bora Marry, on Hero, the daughter and heir of Leonato

D John A very forward March-chick! How came you to this?

Bora Being entertained for a perfumer, as I was smoking a musty room, comes me the prince and Claudio, hand in hand, in sad conference. I whipt me behind the arras, and there heard it agreed upon that the prince should woo Hero for himself, and having obtained her, give her to Count Claudio

D John Come, come, let us thither. This may prove food to my displeasure. That young start-up hath all the glory of my overthrow. If I can cross him any way, I bless myself every way. You are both sure, and will assist me?

Con To the death, my lord

Bora } D John Let us to the great supper. Their cheer is the greater that I am subdued. Would the cook were of my mind! Shall we go prove what's to be done?

Bora We'll wait upon your lordship.

[Exeunt]

ACT II

SCENE I — A Hall in LEONATO's HouseEnter LEONATO, ANTONIO, HERO, BEATRICE, and Others

Leon Was not Count John here at supper?

Ant I saw him not Beat How tartly that gentleman looks! I never can see him but I am heart-burned an hour after

Hero He is of a very melancholy disposition

Beat He were an excellent man that were made just in the mid-way between him and Benedick the one is too like an image, and says nothing, and the other too like my lady's eldest son, evermore tatting

Leon Then half Signior Benedick's tongue in Count John's mouth, and half Count John's melancholy in Signior Benedick's face,—

Beat With a good leg and a good foot, uncle, and money enough in his purse, such a man would win any woman in the world, if a' could get her good will

Leon By my troth, mece, thou wilt never get thee a husband, if thou be so shrewd of thy tongue

Ant In faith, she's too curst

Beat Too curst is more than curst I shall lessen God's sending that way, for it is said, 'God sends a curst cow short horns,' but to a cow too curst he sends none

Leon So, by being too curst, God will send you no horns

Beat Just, if he send me no husband, for the which blessing I am at him upon my knees every morning and evening Lord! I could not endure a husband with a beard on his face I had rather lie in the woollen

Leon You may light on a husband that hath no beard

Beat What should I do with him? dress him in my apparel and make him my waiting-gentlewoman? He that hath a beard is more than a youth, and he that hath no beard is less than a man, and he that is more than a youth is not for me, and he that is less than a man, I am not for him therefore I will even take sixpence in earnest of the bear-ward, and lead his apes into hell.

Leon Well then, go you into hell?

Beat No, but to the gate, and there will the devil meet me, like an old cuckold, with horns on his head, and say, 'Get you to heaven, Beatrice, get you to heaven, here's no place for you maids' so deliver I up my apes, and away to Saint Peter for the heavens, he shows me where the bachelors sit, and there live we as merry as the day is long

Ant [To HERO] Well, mece, I trust you will be ruled by your father

Beat Yes, faith, it is my cousin's duty to make curtsy, and say, 'Father, as it please you'—but yet for all that, cousin, let him be a handsome fellow, or else make another curtsy, and say, 'Father, as it please me'

Leon Well, mece, I hope to see you one day fitted with a husband

Beat Not till God make men of some other metal than earth Would it not grieve a woman to be over-mastered with a piece of valiant dust? to make an account of her life to a clod of wayward marl? No, uncle, I'll none Adam's sons are my brethren, and truly, I hold it a sin to match in my kindred

Leon Daughter, remember what I told you if the prince do solicit you in that kind, you know your answer

Beat The fault will be in the music, cousin, if you be not wooed in good time if the prince be too important, tell him there is measure in everything, and so dance out the answer For, hear me, Hero wooing, wedding, and repenting, is as a Scotch jig, a measure, and a cinque-pace the first suit is hot and hasty, like a Scotch jig, and full as fantastical, the wedding, mannerly-modest, as a measure, full of state and ancientry, and then comes Repentance, and with his bad legs, falls into the cinque-pace faster and faster, till he sink into his grave

Leon Cousin, you apprehend passing shrewdly

Beat I have a good eye, uncle I can see a church by daylight

Leon The revellers are entering, brother make good room.

Enter DON PEDRO, CLAUDIO, BENEDICK, BALTHAZAR, DON JOHN, BORACHIO, MARGARET, URSULA, and Others, masked

D Pedro Lady, will you walk about with your friend?

Hero So you walk softly and look sweetly and say nothing, I am yours for the walk, and especially when I walk away

D Pedro With me in your company?

Hero I may say so, when I please

D Pedro And when please you to say so?

Hero When I like your favour, for God defend the lute should be like the case!

D Pedro My visor is Philemon's roof, within the house is Jove

Hero Why, then, your visor should be thatch'd

D Pedro Speak low, if you speak love

Balth Well, I would you did like me

Marg So would not I, for your own sake, for I have many ill qualities

Balth Which is one?

Marg I say my prayers aloud

Balth I love you the better, the hearers may cry Amen

Marg God match me with a good dancer!

Balth Amen.

Marg And God keep him out of my sight when the dance is done! Answer, clerk

Balth No more words the clerk is answered

Urs I know you well enough you are Signior Antomo

Ant At a word, I am not

Urs I know you by the wagging of your head

Ant To tell you true, I counterfeit him.

Urs You could never do him so ill-well, unless you were the very man. Here's his dry hand up and down you are he, you are he.

Ant At a word, I am not.

Urs Come, come, do you think I do not know you by your excellent wit? Can virtue hide itself? Go to, mum, you are he, you are he, and there's an end Beat Will you not tell me who told you so?

Bene No, you shall pardon me.

Beat Nor will you not tell me who you are?

Bene. Not now 135 Beat. That I was disdainful, and that I had my good wit out of the 'Hundred Merry Tales'

Well, thus was Signior Benedick that said so Bene. What's he?

Beat. I am sure you know him well enough

Bene. Not I, believe me 141

Beat. Did he never make you laugh?

Bene. I pray you, what is he?

Beat. Why, he is the prince's jester a very dull fool, only his gift is in devising impossible slanders none but libertines delight in him, and the commendation is not in his wit, but in his villany, for he both pleases men and angers them, and then they laugh at him and beat him. I am sure he is in the fleet I would he had boarded me! 151

Bene. When I know the gentleman, I'll tell him what you say

Beat. Do, do he'll but break a comparison or two on me, which, peradventure not marked or not laughed at, strikes him into melancholy, and then there's a partridge wing saved, for the fool will eat no supper that night. [Music within] We must follow the leaders

Bene. In every good thing 160

Beat. Nay, if they lead to any ill, I will leave them at the next turning [Dance. Then exeunt all but DON JOHN, BORACHIO, and CLAUDIO]

D John. Sure my brother is amorous on Hero, and hath withdrawn her father to break with him about it. The ladies follow her and but one visor remains

Bora. And that is Claudio I know him by his bearing 168

D John. Are you not Signior Benedick?

Claud. You know me well, I am he D John. Signior, you are very near my brother in his love he is enamoured on Hero, I pray you, dissuade him from her, she is no equal for his birth you may do the part of an honest man in it.

Claud. How know you he loves her? 176

D John. I heard him swear his affection.

Bora. So did I too, and he swore he would marry her to-night.

D John. Come, let us to the banquet. 180

[Exeunt DON JOHN and BORACHIO]

Claud. Thus answer I in name of Benedick,
 But hear these ill news with the ears of Claudio
 'Tis certain so, the prince woos for himself Friendship is constant in all other things 184
 Save in the office and affairs of love Therefore all hearts in love use their own tongues,

Let every eye negotiate for itself
 And trust no agent, for beauty is a witch 188 Against whose charms faith melteth into blood.
 This is an accident of hourly proof,
 Which I mistrusted not. Farewell, therefore, Hero!

Re-enter BENEDICK.

Bene. Count Claudio?

Claud. Yea, the same. 192

Bene. Come, will you go with me?

Claud. Whither? 195

Bene. Even to the next willow, about your own business, count What fashion will you wear the garland of? About your neck, like a usurer's chain? or under your arm, like a lieutenant's scarf? You must wear it one way, for the prince hath got your Hero 201

Claud. I wish him joy of her

Bene. Why, that's spoken like an honest drovier so they sell bullocks But did you think the prince would have served you thus? 205

Claud. I pray you, leave me

Bene. Ho! now you strike like the blind man 'twas the boy that stole your meat, and you'll beat the post 209

Claud. If it will not be, I'll leave you [Exit]

Bene. Alas! poor hurt fowl Now will he creep into sedges But, that my lady Beatrice should know me, and not know me! The prince's fool! Ha! it may be I go under that title because I am merry Yea, but so I am apt to do myself wrong, I am not so reputed it is the base though bitter disposition of Beatrice that puts the world into her person, and so gives me out. Well, I'll be revenged as I may. 219

Re-enter DON PEDRO

D Pedro. Now, signior, where's the count?
 Did you see him?

Bene. Troth, my lord, I have played the part of Lady Fame I found him here as melancholy as a lodge in a warren. I told him, and I think I told him true, that your Grace had got the good will of this young lady, and I offered him my company to a willow tree, either to make him a garland, as being forsaken, or to bind him up a rod, as being worthy to be whipped. 229

D Pedro. To be whipped! What's his fault?

Bene. The flat transgression of a school-boy, who, being overjoy'd with finding a bird's nest, shows it his companion, and he steals it. 233

D Pedro. Wilt thou make a trust a transgression? The transgression is in the stealer Bene. Yet it had not been amiss the rod had been made, and the garland too, for the garland he might have worn himself, and the rod he might have bestowed on you, who, as I take it, have stolen his bird's nest. 240

D Pedro. I will but teach them to sing, and restore them to the owner

Bene. If their singing answer your saying, by my faith, you say honestly 244

D Pedro. The Lady Beatrice hath a quarrel to you the gentleman that danced with her told her she is much wronged by you

Bene. O! she misused me past the endurance of a block an oak but with one green leaf on it, would have answered her my very visor began to assume life and scold with her She told me, not thinking I had been myself, that I was the prince's jester, that I was duller than a great thaw, huddling jest upon jest with such impossible conveyance upon me, that I stood like a man at a mark, with a whole army shooting at me. She speaks poniards, and every word stabs:

if her breath were as terrible as her terminations, there were no living near her, she would infect to the north star I would not marry her, though she were endowed with all that Adam had left him before he transgressed she would have made Hercules have turned spit, yea, and have cleft his club to make the fire too Come, talk not of her, you shall find her the infernal Ate in good apparel I would to God some scholar would conjure her, for certainly, while she is here, a man may live as quiet in hell as in a sanctuary, and people sin upon purpose because they would go thither, so, indeed, all disquiet, horror and perturbation follow her 271

Re-enter CLAUDIO, BEATRICE, HERO, and LEONATO

D Pedro Look! here she comes

Bene Will your Grace command me any service to the world's end? I will go on the slightest errand now to the Antipodes that you can devise to send me on, I will fetch you a toothpucker now from the furthest inch of Asia, bring you the length of Prester John's foot, fetch you a hair off the Great Cham's beard, do you any embassy to the Pigmies, rather than hold three words' conference with this harpy You have no employment for me? 282

D Pedro None, but to desire your good company

Bene O God, sir, here's a dish I love not I cannot endure my Lady Tongue [Exit]

D Pedro Come, lady, come, you have lost the heart of Signior Benedick 288

Beat Indeed, my lord, he lent it me awhile, and I gave him use for it, a double heart for a single one marry, once before he won it of me with false dice, therefore your Grace may well say I have lost it 293

D Pedro You have put him down, lady, you have put him down

Beat So I would not he should do me, my lord, lest I should prove the mother of fools I have brought Count Claudio, whom you sent me to seek 299

D Pedro Why, how now, count! wherefore are you sad?

Claud Not sad, my lord

D Pedro How then? Sick?

Claud Nether, my lord 304

Beat The count is neither sad, nor sick, nor merry, nor well, but civil count, civil as an orange, and something of that jealous complexion 308

D Pedro I' faith, lady, I think your blazon to be true, though, I'll be sworn, if he be so, his conceit is false Here, Claudio, I have wooed in thy name, and fair Hero is won, I have broke with her father, and, his good will obtained, name the day of marriage, and God give thee joy!

Leon Count, take of me my daughter, and with her my fortunes his Grace hath made the match, and all grace say Amen to it! 317

Beat Speak, count, 'tis your cue.

Claud Silence is the perfectest herald of joy I were but little happy, if I could say how much.

Lady, as you are mine, I am yours I give away myself for you and dote upon the exchange 322

Beat Speak, cousin, or, if you cannot, stop his mouth with a kiss, and let not him speak neither 325

D Pedro In faith, lady, you have a merry heart

Beat Yea, my lord, I thank it, poor fool, it keeps on the windy side of care My cousin tells him in his ear that he is in her heart. 330

Claud And so she doth, cousin

Beat Good Lord, for alliance! Thus goes every one to the world but I, and I am sunburnt I may sit in a corner and cry heigh-ho for a husband! 335

D Pedro Lady Beatrice, I will get you one

Beat I would rather have one of your father's getting Hath your Grace ne'er a brother like you? Your father got excellent husbands, if a maid could come by them. 340

D Pedro Will you have me, lady?

Beat No, my lord, unless I might have another for working days your Grace is too costly to wear every day But, I beseech your Grace, pardon me, I was born to speak all mirth and no matter 346

D Pedro Your silence most offends me, and to be merry best becomes you, for, out of question, you were born in a merry hour

Beat No, sure, my lord, my mother cried, but then there was a star danced, and under that was I born Cousins, God give you joy! 352

Leon Niece, will you look to those things I told you of?

Beat I cry, ou mercy, uncle By your Grace's pardon [Exit]

D Pedro By my troth, a pleasant-spirited lady 358

Leon There's little of the melancholy element in her, my lord she is never sad but when she sleeps, and not ever sad then, for I have heard my daughter say, she hath often dreamed of unhappiness and waked herself with laughing

D Pedro She cannot endure to hear tell of a husband 365

Leon O! by no means she mocks all her wooers out of suit

D Pedro She were an excellent wife for Benedick 369

Leon O Lord! my lord, if they were but a week married, they would talk themselves mad.

D Pedro Count Claudio, when mean you to go to church? 373

Claud To-morrow, my lord Time goes on crutches till love have all his rites

Leon Not till Monday, my dear son, which is hence a just seven-night, and a time too brief too, to have all things answer my mind. 378

D Pedro Come, you shake the head at so long a breathing, but, I warrant thee, Claudio, the time shall not go dully by us I will in the interim undertake one of Hercules' labours, which is, to bring Signior Benedick and the Lady Beatrice into a mountain of affection the one with the other I would fain have it a match, and I doubt not but to fashion it, if you three will but minister such assistance as I shall give you direction. 388

Leon My lord, I am for you, though it cost me ten nights' watchings

Claudio And I, my lord

D Pedro And you too, gentle Hero? 392

Hero I will do any modest office, my lord, to help my cousin to a good husband.

D Pedro And Benedick is not the unhopefullest husband that I know Thus far can I praise him, he is of a noble strain, of approved valour, and confirmed honesty I will teach you how to humour your cousin, that she shall fall in love with Benedick, and I, with your two helps, will so practise on Benedick that, in despite of his quick wit and his queasy stomach, he shall fall in love with Beatrice If we can do this, Cupid is no longer an archer his glory shall be ours, for we are the only love-gods Go in with me, and I will tell you my drift. 406

[Exeunt]

blance of a maid,—that you have discovered thus They will scarcely believe this without trial offer them instances, which shall bear no less likelihood than to see me at her chamber-window, hear me call Margaret Hero, hear Margaret term me Claudio, and bring them to see this the very night before the intended wedding for in the meantime I will so fashion the matter that Hero shall be absent, and there shall appear such seeming truth of Hero's disloyalty, that jealousy shall be called assurance, and all the preparation overthrown 51

D John Grow this to what adverse issue it can, I will put it in practice Be cunning in the working this, and thy fee is a thousand ducats

Bora Be you constant in the accusation, and my cunning shall not shame me 57

D John I will presently go learn their day of marriage [Exit 57]

SCENE II —Another Room in LEONATO'S House

Enter DON JOHN and BORACHIO

D John It is so, the Count Claudio shall marry the daughter of Leonato

Bora Yea, my lord, but I can cross it 3

D John Any bar, any cross, any impediment will be medicinable to me I am sick in displeasure to him, and whatsoever comes athwart his affection ranges evenly with mine How canst thou cross this marriage? 8

Bora Not honestly, my lord, but so covertly that no dishonesty shall appear in me

D John Show me briefly how 11

Bora I think I told your lordship, a year since, how much I am in the favour of Margaret, the waiting-gentlewoman to Hero

D John I remember 15

Bora I can, at any unseasonable instant of the night, appoint her to look out at her lady's chamber-window

D John What life is in that, to be the death of this marriage? 20

Bora The poison of that lies in you to temper Go you to the prince your brother, spare not to tell him, that he hath wronged his honour in marrying the renowned Claudio,—whose estimation do you mightily hold up,—to a contaminated stale, such a one as Hero 26

D John What proof shall I make of that?

Bora Proof enough to misuse the prince, to vex Claudio, to undo Hero, and kill Leonato Look you for any other issue?

D John Only to despite them, I will endeavour any thing 32

Bora Go, then, find me a meet hour to draw Don Pedro and the Count Claudio alone tell them that you know that Hero loves me, intend a kind of zeal both to the prince and Claudio, as—in love of your brother's honour, who hath made this match, and his friend's reputation, who is thus like to be cozened with the sem-

SCENE III —LEONATO'S Garden

Enter BENEDICK

Bene Boy!

Enter a Boy

Boy Signior?

Bene In my chamber-window lies a book, bring it hither to me in the orchard 4

Boy I am here already, sir

Bene I know that, but I would have thee hence, and here again [Exit Boy] I do much wonder that one man, seeing how much another man is a fool when he dedicates his behaviours to love, will, after he hath laughed at such shallow folies in others, become the argument of his own scorn by falling in love and such a man is Claudio I have known, when there was no music with him but the drum and the fife, and now had he rather hear the tabor and the pipe I have known, when he would have walked ten mile afoot to see a good armour, and now will he lie ten nights awake, carving the fashion of a new doublet He was wont to speak plain and to the purpose, like an honest man and a soldier, and now is he turned orthographer, his words are a very fantastical banquet, just so many strange dishes May I be so converted, and see with these eyes? I cannot tell, I think not I will not be sworn but love may transform me to an oyster, but I'll take my oath on it, till he have made an oyster of me, he shall never make me such a fool One woman is fair, yet I am well, another is wise, yet I am well, another virtuous, yet I am well, but till all graces be in one woman, one woman shall not come in my grace Rich she shall be, that's certain, wise, or I'll none, virtuous, or I'll never cheapen her, fair, or I'll never look on her, mild, or come not near me, noble, or not I for an angel, of good discourse, an excellent musician, and her hair shall be of what colour it please God. Ha! the prince and Monsieur Love! I will hide me in the arbour [Withdraws]

Enter DON PEDRO, LEONATO, and CLAUDIO, followed by BALTHAZAR and Musicians

D Pedro Come, shall we hear this music? 40

Claud Yea, my good lord How still the evening is,

As hush'd on purpose to grace harmony!

D Pedro See you where Benedick hath hid himself?

Claud O' very well, my lord the music ended, 44

We'll fit the kid-fox with a penny-worth

D Pedro Come, Balthazar, we'll hear that song again

Balth O' good my lord, tax not so bad a voice To slander music any more than once 48

D Pedro It is the witness still of excellency, To put a strange face on his own perfection.

I pray thee, sing, and let me woo no more 51

Balth Because you talk of wooing, I will sing, Since many a wooer doth commence his suit

To her he thinks not worthy, yet he woos, Yet will he swear he loves

D Pedro Nay, pray thee, come, Or if thou wilt hold longer argument, 56

Do it in notes

Balth Note this before my notes, There's not a note of mine that's worth the noting

D Pedro Why these are very crotchets that he speaks, 59

Notes, notes, forsooth, and nothing! [Music]

Bene Now, divine air! now is his soul ravished! Is it not strange that sheeps' guts should hale souls out of men's bodies? Well, a horn for my money, when all's done 64

BALTHAZAR sings

Sigh no more ladies, sigh no more,

Men were deceivers ever

One foot in sea, and one on shore,

To one thing constant never

Then sigh not so,

But let them go,

And be you blithe and bonny

Converting all your sounds of woe

Into Hey nonny, nonny

Sing no more ditties sing no mo

Of dumps so dull and heavy

The fraud of men was ever so

Since summer first was leavy

Then sigh not so,

But let them go,

And be you blithe and bonny

Converting all your sounds of woe

Into Hey nonny nonny

D Pedro By my troth, a good song

Balth And an ill singer, my lord 84

D Pedro Ha, no, no, faith, thou singest well enough for a shift

Bene [Aside] An he had been a dog that should have howled thus, they would have hanged him, and I pray God his bad voice bode no mischief

I had as lief have heard the night-raven, come what plague could have come after it, 91

D Pedro Yea, marry, dost thou hear,

Balthazar? I pray thee, get us some excellent music, for to-morrow night we would have it at the Lady Hero's chamber-window

Balth The best I can, my lord 96

D Pedro Do so farewell [Exeunt BALTHAZAR and Musicians] Come hither, Leonato what was it you told me of to-day, that your niece Beatrice was in love with Signior Benedick? 100

Claud O' ay — [Aside to D PEDRO] Stalk on, stalk on, the fowl sits I did never think that lady would have loved any man 103

Leon No, nor I neither, but most wonderful that she should so dote on Signior Benedick, whom she hath in all outward behaviours seemed ever to abhor 107

Bene [Aside] Is't possible? Sits the wind in that corner?

Leon By my troth, my lord, I cannot tell what to think of it but that she loves him with an enraged affection it is past the infinite of thought 113

D Pedro May be she doth but counterfeit

Claud Faith, like enough

Leon O God! counterfeit! There was never counterfeit of passion came so near the life of passion as she discovers it

D Pedro Why, what effects of passion shows she? 120

Claud [Aside] Bait the hook well this fish will bite

Leon What effects, my lord? She will sit you, [To CLAUDIO] You heard my daughter tell you how 125

Claud She did, indeed

D Pedro How, how, I pray you? You amaze me I would have thought her spirit had been invincible against all assaults of affection 129

Leon I would have sworn it had, my lord, especially against Benedick

Bene [Aside] I should think this a gull, but that the white-bearded fellow speaks it knavery cannot, sure, hide itself in such reverence

Claud [Aside] He hath ta'en the infection hold it up 136

D Pedro Hath she made her affection known to Benedick?

Leon No, and swears she never will that's her torment 140

Claud 'Tis true, indeed, so your daughter says 'Shall I,' says she, 'that have so oft encountered him with scorn, write to him that I love him' 144

Leon Thus says she now when she is beginning to write to him, for she'll be up twenty times a night, and there will she sit in her smock till she have writ a sheet of paper my daughter tells us all 149

Claud Now you talk of a sheet of paper, I remember a pretty jest your daughter told us of

Leon O! when she had writ it, and was reading it over, she found Benedick and Beatrice between the sheet? 153

Claud That.

Leon O! she tore the letter into a thousand halfpence, railed at herself, that she should be so immodest to write to one that she knew would flout her 'I measure him,' says she, 'by my own spirit, for I should flout him, if he writ to me, yea, though I love him, I should' 161

Claud Then down upon her knees she falls, weeps, sobs, beats her heart, tears her hair, prays, curses, 'O sweet Benedick! God give me patience!' 165

Leon She doth indeed, my daughter says so, and the ecstasy hath so much overborne her, that my daughter is sometimes afraid she will do a desperate outrage to herself. It is very true 170

D Pedro It were good that Benedick knew of it by some other, if she will not discover it 172

Claud To what end? he would but make a sport of it and torment the poor lady worse 175

D Pedro An he should, it were an alms to hang him. She's an excellent sweet lady, and, out of all suspicion, she is virtuous 177

Claud And she is exceeding wise 178

D Pedro In everything but in loving Benedick 180

Leon O! my lord, wisdom and blood combating in so tender a body, we have ten proofs to one that blood hath the victory. I am sorry for her, as I have just cause, being her uncle and her guardian 185

D Pedro I would she had bestowed this dotation on me, I would have dashed all other respects and made her half myself. I pray you, tell Benedick of it, and hear what a will say 189

Leon Were it good, thank you? 190

Claud Hero thinks surely she will die, for she says she will die if he love her not, and she will die ere she make her love known, and she will die if he woo her, rather than she will bate one breath of her accustomed crossness 195

D Pedro She doth well if she should make tender of her love, 'tis very possible he'll scorn it, for the man—as you know all,—hath a contemptible spirit 200

Claud He is a very proper man 200

D Pedro He hath indeed a good outward happiness 205

Claud 'Fore God, and in my mind, very wise 205

D Pedro He doth indeed show some sparks that are like wit 205

Leon And I take him to be valiant.

D Pedro As Hector, I assure you and in the managing of quarrels you may say he is wise, for either he avoids them with great discretion, or undertakes them with a most Christian-like fear 211

Leon If he do fear God, a' must necessarily keep peace if he break the peace, he ought to enter into a quarrel with fear and trembling 211

D Pedro And so will he do, for the man doth fear God, howsoever it seems not in him by some large jests he will make. Well, I am sorry for your niece. Shall we go seek Benedick, and tell him of her love? 219

Claud Never tell him, my lord let her wear it out with good counsel 223

Leon Nay, that's impossible she may wear her heart out first. 223

D Pedro Well, we will hear further of it by your daughter let it cool the while. I love Benedick well, and I could wish he would modestly examine himself, to see how much he is unworthy to have so good a lady 228

Leon My lord, will you walk? dinner is ready 228

Claud [Aside] If he do not dote on her upon this, I will never trust my expectation 231

D Pedro [Aside] Let there be the same net spread for her, and that must your daughter and her gentlewoman carry. The sport will be, when they hold one an opinion of another's dotation, and no such matter that's the scene that I would see, which will be merely a dumb-show. Let us send her to call him in to dinner.

[Exeunt DON PEDRO, CLAUDIO, and LEONATO]

Bene [Advancing from the arbour] Thus can benotrick the conference wassadly borne. They have the truth of this from Hero. They seem to pity the lady, it seems, her affections have their full bent. Love me! why, it must be requited. I hear how I am censured: they say I will bear myself proudly, if I perceive the love come from her, they say too that she will rather die than give any sign of affection. I did never think to marry. I must not seem proud. Happy are they that hear their detractions, and can put them to mending. They say the lady is fair 'tis a truth, I can bear them witness and virtuous 'tis so, I cannot reprove it, and wise, but for loving me by my troth, it is no addition to her wit, nor no great argument of her folly, for I will be horribly in love with her. I may chance have some odd quirks and remnants of wit broken on me, because I have railed so long against marriage, but doth not the appetite alter? A man loves the meat in his youth that he cannot endure in his age. Shall quips and sentences and these paper bullets of the brain awe a man from the career of his humour? No, the world must be peopled. When I said I would die a bachelor, I did not think I should live till I were married. Here comes Beatrice. By this day! she's a fair lady. I do spy some marks of love in her 266

Enter BEATRICE

Beat Against my will I am sent to bid you come in to dinner 268

Bene Fair Beatrice, I thank you for your pains 268

Beat I took no more pains for those thanks than you take pains to thank me. If it had been painful, I would not have come 273

Bene You take pleasure then in the message?

Beat Yea, just so much as you may take upon a knife's point, and choke a daw withal. You have no stomach, signior fare you well. [Exit] 273

Bene Ha! 'Against my will I am sent to bid you come in to dinner,' there's a double meaning in that. 'I took no more pains for those thanks than you took pains to thank me,' that's as much as to say, Any pains that I take for you is as easy as thanks. If I do not take pity of her, I am a villain, if I do not love her, I am a Jew. I will go get her picture. [Exit] 273

SCENE I — LEONATO'S Garden

Enter HERO, MARGARET, and URSULAHero Good Margaret, run thee to the parlour,

There shalt thou find my cousin Beatrice Proposing with the prince and Claudio Whisper her ear, and tell her, I and Ursula Walk in the orchard, and our whole discourse
Is all of her, say that thou overheardst us,
And bid her steal into the pleached bower,
Where honey-suckles, ripen'd by the sun,
Forbid the sun to enter, like favourites,
Made proud by princes, that advance their pride Against that power that bred it. There will she hide her,

To listen our propose This is thy office,
Bear thee well in it and leave us alone

Marg I'll make her come, I warrant you, presently [Exit]

Hero Now, Ursula, when Beatrice doth
come,

As we do trace this alley up and down,
Our talk must only be of Benedick
When I do name him, let it be thy part
To praise him more than ever man did merit
My talk to thee must be how Benedick
Is sick in love with Beatrice of this matter Is little Cupid's crafty arrow made,
That only wounds by hearsay

Enter BEATRICE, behind

Now begin,
For look where Beatrice, like a lapwing, runs Close by the ground, to hear our conference

Urs The pleasant'st angling is to see the fish

Cut with her golden oars the silver stream,
And greedily devour the treacherous bait
So angle we for Beatrice, who even now
Is couched in the woodbine coverture Fear you not my part of the dialogue

Hero Then go we near her, that her ear lose nothing

Of the false sweet bait that we lay for it [They advance to the bower]

No, truly, Ursula, she is too disdainful.
I know her spirits are as coy and wild
As haggards of the rock

Urs But are you sure That Benedick loves Beatrice so entirely?

Hero So says the prince, and my new-trothed
lord

Urs And did they bid you tell her of it, madam?

Hero They did entreat me to acquaint her
of it,

But I persuaded them, if they lov'd Benedick,
To wish him wrestle with affection,
And never to let Beatrice know of it

Urs Why did you so? Doth not the gentleman

Deserve as full as fortunate a bed
As ever Beatrice shall couch upon?

Hero O god of love! I know he doth deserve

As much as may be yielded to a man,
But nature never fram'd a woman's heart
Of prouder stuff than that of Beatrice, Disdain and scorn ride sparkling in her eyes,
Misprising what they look on, and her wit Values itself so highly, that to her
All matter else seems weak She cannot love, Nor take no shape nor project of affection,
She is so self-endear'd

Urs Sure, I think so
And therefore certainly it were not good
She knew his love, lest she make sport at it.

Hero Why, you speak truth I never yet saw man,

How wise, how noble, young, how rarely featur'd,
But she would spell him backward if fair-fac'd,
She would swear the gentleman should be her sister,

If black, why, Nature, drawing of an antick,
Made a foul blot, if tall, a lance ill-headed,
If low, an agate very vilely cut,

If speaking, why, a vane blown with all winds,
If silent, why, a block moved with none

So turns she every man the wrong side out,
And never gives to truth and virtue that Which simpleness and merit purchaseth

Urs Sure, sure, such carping is not commendable

Hero No not to be so odd and from all fashions

As Beatrice is, cannot be commendable
But who dare tell her so? If I should speak, She would mock me into air O! she would laugh me

Out of myself, press me to death with wit.
Therefore let Benedick, like cover'd fire,

Consume away in sighs, waste inwardly
It were a better death than die with mocks,
Which is as bad as die with tickling

Urs Yet tell her of it hear what she will say Hero No, rather I will go to Benedick,

And counsel him to fight against his passion
And, truly, I'll devise some honest slanders
To stain my cousin with One doth not know

How much an ill word may empoison liking
Urs O! do not do your cousin such a wrong
She cannot be so much without true judgment,—

Having so swift and excellent a wit
As she is priz'd to have,—as to refuse

So rare a gentleman as Signior Benedick.
Hero He is the only man of Italy,

Always excepted my dear Claudio
Urs I pray you, be not angry with me, madam,

Speaking my fancy Signior Benedick,
For shape, for bearing, argument and valour, 96

Goes foremost in report through Italy Hero Indeed, he hath an excellent good name

Urs His excellence did earn it, ere he had it:
When are you married, madam?

Hero Why, every day, to-morrow Come, go in.

I'll show thee some attires, and have thy counsel
Which is the best to furnish me to-morrow

Urs She s him'd, I warrant you— we have caught her, madam.

204

Hero If it prove so, then loving goes by haps
Some Cupid kills with arrows, some with traps

[Exeunt HERO and URSULA.]

Beat [Advancing] What fire is in mine ears?
Can this be true?

Stand I condemn'd for pride and scorn so much?

Contempt, farewell! and milder pride, adieu!
No glory lives behind the back of such.

And, Benedick, love on, I will requite thee, Taming my wild heart to thy loving hand

If thou dost love, my kindness shall incite thee
To bind our loves up in a holy band

For others say thou dost deserve, and I Believe it better than reportingly

[Exit]

SCENE II — A Room in LEONATO'S House

Enter DON PEDRO, CLAUDIO, BENEDICK, and LEONATO

D Pedro I do but stay till your marriage be consummate, and then go I toward Arragon

Claud I'll bring you thither, my lord, if you'll vouchsafe me

D Pedro Nay, that would be as great a soil in the new gloss of your marriage, as to show a child his new coat and forbid him to wear it I will only be bold with Benedick for his company, for, from the crown of his head to the sole of his foot, he is all mirth he hath twice or thrice cut Cupid's bow-string, and the little hangman dare not shoot at him He hath a heart as sound as a bell, and his tongue is the clapper, for what his heart thinks his tongue speaks

Bene Gallants, I am not as I have been

Leon So say I methinks you are sadder

Claud I hope he be in love

D Pedro Hang him, truant! there's no true drop of blood in him, to be truly touched with love If he be sad, he wants money

Bene I have the tooth-ache

D Pedro Draw it

Bene Hang it

Claud You must hang it first, and draw it afterwards

D Pedro What! sigh for the tooth-ache?

Leon Where is but a humour or a worm?

Bene Well, every one can master a grief but he that has it.

Claud Yet say I, he is in love

D Pedro There is no appearance of fancy in him, unless it be a fancy that he hath to strange disguises, as, to be a Dutchman to-day, a Frenchman to-morrow, or in the shape of two countries at once, as a German from the waist downward, all slops, and a Spaniard from the hip upward, no doublet Unless he have a fancy to this foolery, as it appears he hath, he is no fool for fancy, as you would have it appear he is Claud If he be not in love with some woman, there is no believing old signs a' brushes his hat a mornings, what should that bode?

D Pedro Hath any man seen him at the barber's?

Claud No, but the barber's man hath been seen with him, and the old ornament of his cheek hath already stuffed tennis-balls

Leon Indeed he looks younger than he did,
by the loss of a beard

D Pedro Nay, a' rubs himself with civet can you smell him out by that?

Claud That's as much as to say the sweet youth's in love

D Pedro The greatest note of it is his melancholy

Claud And when was he wont to wash his face?

D Pedro Yea, or to paint himself? for the which, I hear what they say of him

Claud Nay, but his jesting spirit, which is now crept into a lute-string, and new-governed by stops

D Pedro Indeed, that tells a heavy tale for him Conclude, conclude he is in love

Claud Nay, but I know who loves him

D Pedro That would I know too I warrant, one that knows him not

Claud Yes, and his ill conditions, and in despite of all, dies for him

D Pedro She shall be buried with her face upwards

Bene Yet is thus no charm for the tooth-ache Old signior, walk aside with me I have studied eight or nine wise words to speak to you, which these hobby-horses must not hear

[Exeunt BENEDICK and LEONATO]

D Pedro For my life, to break with him about Beatrice

Claud 'Tis even so Hero and Margaret have by this played their parts with Beatrice, and then the two bears will not bite one another when they meet.

[Exit]

Enter DON JOHN

D John My lord and brother, God save you!

D Pedro Good den, brother

D John If your leisure served, I would speak
with you

D Pedro In private

D John If it please you, yet Count Claudio may hear, for what I would speak of concerns
him

D Pedro What's the matter?

D John [To CLAUDIO] Means your lordship to be married to-morrow?

D Pedro You know he does

D John I know not that, when he knows what I know

Claud If there be any impediment, I pray you discover it

D John You may think I love you not let that appear hereafter, and aim better at me by that I now will manifest For my brother, I think he holds you well, and in dearth of heart hath help to effect your ensuing marriage, surely suit ill-spent, and labour ill bestowed!

D Pedro Why, what's the matter?

D John I came hither to tell you, and circumstances shortened,—for she hath been too long a talking of,—the lady is disloyal

Claud Who, Hero?

Claud Who, Hero?

Claud Who, Hero?

Claud Who, Hero?

Claud Who, Hero?

Claud Who, Hero?

Claud Who, Hero?

Claud Who, Hero?

Claud Who, Hero?

Claud Who, Hero?

Claud Who, Hero?

Claud Who, Hero?

D John Even she Leonato's Hero, your Hero, every man's Hero

Claud Disloyal?

111

D John The word's too good to paint out her wickedness, I could say, she were worse than you of a worse title, and I will fit her to it. Wonder not till further warrant go but with me to-night, you shall see her chamber-window entered, even the night before her wedding-day if you love her then, to-morrow wed her, but it would better fit your honour to change your mind

120

Claud May this be so?

D Pedro I will not think it

D John If you dare not trust that you see, confess not that you know. If you will follow me, I will show you enough, and when you have seen more and heard more, proceed accordingly.

Claud If I see any thing to-night why I should not marry her to-morrow, in the congregation, where I should wed, there will I shame her.

D Pedro And, as I wooed for thee to obtain her, I will join with thee to disgrace her

132

D John I will disparage her no further till you are my witnesses. Bear it coldly but till midnight, and let the issue show itself.

D Pedro O day untowardly turned!

136

Claud O mischief strangely thwarting!

D John O plague right well prevented! So will you say when you have seen the sequel

[Exeunt

SCENE III — A Street

Enter DOGBERRY and VERGES, with the Watch

Dogb Are you good men and true?

Verg Yea, or else it were pity but they should suffer salvation, body and soul.

Dogb Nay, that were a punishment too good for them, if they should have any allegiance in them, being chosen for the prince's watch.

Verg Well, give them their charge, neighbour Dogberry

8

Dogb First, who think you the most desertless man to be constable?

First Watch Hugh Oatcake, sir, or George Seacoal, for they can write and read

12

Dogb Come hither, neighbour Seacoal. God hath blessed you with a good name to be a well-favoured man is the gift of fortune, but to write and read comes by nature.

16

Sec Watch Both which, Master constable,—

Dogb You have I knew it would be your answer. Well, for your favour, sir, why, give God thanks, and make no boast of it, and for your writing and reading, let that appear when there is no need of such vanity. You are thought here to be the most senseless and fit man for the constable of the watch, therefore bear you the lantern. This is your charge: you shall comprehend all vagrom men, you are to bid any man stand, in the prince's name.

Watch How, if a' will not stand?

28

Dogb Why, then, take no note of him, but let him go, and presently call the rest of the watch together, and thank God you are rid of a knave.

Verg If he will not stand when he is bidden, he is none of the prince's subjects

33

Dogb True, and they are to meddle with none but the prince's subjects. You shall also make no noise in the streets for, for the watch to babble and to talk is most tolerable and not to be endured.

Sec Watch We will rather sleep than talk. we know what belongs to a watch

40

Dogb Why, you speak like an ancient and most quiet watchman, for I cannot see how sleeping should offend, only have a care that your bills be not stolen. Well, you are to call at all the alehouses, and bid those that are drunk get them to bed.

46

Watch How if they will not?

Dogb Why then, let them alone till they are sober. If they make you not then the better answer, you may say they are not the men you took them for.

Watch Well, sir

52

Dogb If you meet a thief, you may suspect him, by virtue of your office, to be no true man, and, for such kind of men, the less you meddle or make with them, why, the more is for your honesty.

57

Sec Watch If we know him to be a thief, shall we not lay hands on him?

Dogb Truly, by your office, you may, but I think they that touch pitch will be defiled. The most peaceable way for you, if you do take a thief, is, to let him show himself what he is and steal out of your company.

64

Verg You have been always called a merciful man, partner.

Dogb Truly, I would not hang a dog by my will, much more a man who hath any honesty in him.

Verg If you hear a child cry in the night, you must call to the nurse and bid her still it.

Sec Watch How if the nurse be asleep and will not hear us?

72

Dogb Why, then, depart in peace, and let the child wake her with crying, for the ewe that will not hear her lamb when it baes, will never answer a calf when he bleats.

76

Verg 'Tis very true.

Dogb This is the end of the charge. You constables, are to present the prince's own person if you meet the prince in the night, you may stay him.

81

Verg Nay, by 'r lady, that I think, a' cannot.

Dogb Five shillings to one on't, with any man that knows the statutes, he may stay him marry, not without the prince be willing, for, indeed, the watch ought to offend no man, and it is an offence to stay a man against his will.

Verg By 'r lady, I think it be so

88

Dogb Ha, ah, ha! Well, masters, good night. an there be any matter of weight chances, call up me. keep your fellows' counsels and your own, and good night. Come, neighbour

92

Sec Watch Well, masters, we hear our charge, let us go sit here upon the church-bench till two, and then all go to bed.

Dogb One word more, honest neighbours I pray you, watch about Signior Leonato's door, for the wedding being there to-morrow, there is a great col to-night Adieu, be vigilant, I beseech you [Exeunt DOGBERRY and VERGES]

Enter BORACHIO and CONRADE

Bora What, Conrade! 101
Watch [Aside] Peace! stir not.
Bora Conrade, I say!
Con Here, man, I am at thy elbow 104
Bora Mass, and my elbow itched, I thought there would a scab follow

Con I will owe thee an answer for that, and now forward with thy tale 108

Bora Stand thee close then under this penthouse, for it drizzles rain, and I will, like a true drunkard, utter all to thee

Watch [Aside] Some treason, masters, yet stand close 113

Bora Therefore know, I have earned of Don John a thousand ducats

Con Is it possible that any villany should be so dear? 117

Bora Thou shouldst rather ask if it were possible any villany should be so rich, for when rich villains have need of poor ones, poor ones may make what price they will 121

Con I wonder at it

Bora That shows thou art unconfirmed Thou knowest that the fashion of a doublet, or a hat, or a cloak, is nothing to a man. 125

Con Yes, it is apparel

Bora I mean, the fashion
Con Yes, the fashion is the fashion 128

Bora Tush! I may as well say the fool's the fool But seest thou not what a deformed thief this fashion is?

Watch [Aside] I know that Deformed, a' has been a vile thief this seven years, a' goes up and down like a gentleman I remember his name 135

Bora Didst thou not hear somebody?

Con No 'twas the vane on the house

Bora Seest thou not, I say, what a deformed thief this fashion is? how giddily he turns about all the hot bloods between fourteen and five-and-thirty? sometime fashioning them like Pharaoh's soldiers in the reechy painting, sometime like god Bel's priests in the old church-window, sometime like the shaven Hercules in the smurched worm-eaten tapestry, where his cod-piece seems as massy as his club? 146

Con All this I see, and I see that the fashion wears out more apparel than the man But art not thou thyself giddy with the fashion too, that thou hast shifted out of thy tale into telling me of the fashion? 151

Bora Not so, neither, but know, that I have to-night wooed Margaret, the Lady Hero's gentlewoman, by the name of Hero she leans me out at her mistress' chamber-window, bids me a thousand times good night,—I tell this tale vilely—I should first tell thee how the prince, Claudio, and my master, planted and placed and possessed by my master Don John, saw afar off in the orchard this amiable encounter 160

Con And thought they Margaret was Hero?

Bora Two of them did, the prince and Claudio, but the devil my master knew she was Margaret, and partly by his oaths, which first possessed them, partly by the dark night, which did deceive them, but chiefly by my villany, which did confirm any slander that Don John had made, away went Claudio enraged, swore he would meet her, as he was appointed, next morning at the temple, and there, before the whole congregation, shame her with what he saw o'er night, and send her home again without a husband. 173

First Watch We charge you in the prince's name, stand!

Sec Watch Call up the right Master constable We have here recovered the most dangerous piece of lechery that ever was known in the commonwealth

First Watch And one Deformed is one of them I know him, a' wears a lock 181

Con Masters, masters!

Sec Watch You'll be made bring Deformed forth, I warrant you 184

Con Masters,—

First Watch Never speak we charge you let us obey you to go with us

Bora We are like to prove a goodly commodity, being taken up of these men's bills 189

Con A commodity in question, I warrant you. Come, we'll obey you [Exeunt]

SCENE IV—A Room in LEONATO'S House

Enter HERO, MARGARET, and URSULA

Hero Good Ursula, wakemy cousin Beatrice, and desire her to rise

Urs I will, lady

Hero And bid her come hither. 4

Urs Well [Exit]

Marg Troth, I think your other rabato were better

Hero No, pray thee, good Meg, I'll wear this Marg By my troth's not so good, and I warrant your cousin will say so

Hero My cousin's a fool, and thou art another I'll wear none but this 12

Marg I like the new tire wthin excellently, if the hair were a thought browner, and your gown's a most rare fashion, i' faith I saw the Duchess of Milan's gown that they praise so 16

Hero O! that exceeds, they say

Marg By my troth's but a night-gown in respect of yours cloth o' gold, and cuts, and laced with silver, set with pearls, down sleeves, side sleeves, and skirts round, underborne with a bluish tinsel, but for a fine, quaint, graceful, and excellent fashion, yours is worth ten on't

Hero God give me joy to wear it! for my heart is exceeding heavy 25

Marg 'Twill be heavier soon by the weight of a man

Hero Fie upon thee! art not ashamed? 28

Marg Of what, lady? of speaking honourably? is not marriage honourable in a beggar? Is not your lord honourable without marriage? I think you would have me say, 'saving your reverence, a husband' an bad thinking do not wrest true speaking, I'll offend nobody Is there any harm in 'the heavier for a husband?' None, I think, an it be the right husband and the right wife, otherwise 'tis light, and not heavy ask my Lady Beatrice else, here she comes.

Enter BEATRICE

Hero Good morrow, coz

Beat Good morrow, sweet Hero 40

Hero Why, how now! do you speak in the sick tune?

Beat I am out of all other tune, methinks

Marg Clap's into 'Light o' love,' that goes without a burden do you sing it, and I'll dance it

Beat Ye light o' love with your heels! then, if your husband have stables enough, you'll see he shall lack no barns 48

Marg O illegitimate construction! I scorn that with my heels

Beat 'Tis almost five o'clock, cousin, 'tis time you were ready By my troth, I am exceeding ill Heigh-ho! 53

Marg For a hawk, a horse, or a husband?

Beat For the letter that begins them all, H.

Marg Well, an you be not turned Turk, there's no more sauling by the star 57

Beat What means the fool, trow?

Marg Nothing I, but God send every one their heart's desire! 60

Hero These gloves the count sent me, they are an excellent perfume

Beat I am stuffed, cousin, I cannot smell

Marg A maid, and stuffed! there's goodly catching of cold 65

Beat O, God help me! God help me! how long have you professed apprehension?

Marg Ever since you left it. Doth not my wit become me rarely! 69

Beat It is not seen enough, you should wear it in your cap By my troth, I am sick

Marg Get you some of this distilled Carduus Benedictus, and lay it to your heart it is the only thing for a qualm.

Hero There thou prick'st her with a thistle

Beat Benedictus! why Benedictus? you have some moral in this Benedictus 77

Marg Moral! no, by my troth, I have no moral meaning, I meant, plain holy-thistle You may think, perchance, that I think you are in love nay, by'r lady, I am not such a fool to think what I list, nor I list not to think what I can, nor, indeed, I cannot think, if I would think my heart out of thinking, that you are in love, or that you will be in love, or that you can be in love Yet Benedick was such another, and now is he become a man he swore he would never marry, and yet now, in despite of his heart, he eats his meat without grudging and how you may be converted, I know not, but methinks you look with your eyes as other women do

Beat What pace is this that thy tongue keeps? 93

Marg Not a false gallop

Re-enter URSULA

Urs Madam, withdraw the prince, the count, Signior Benedick, Don John, and all the gallants of the town, are come to fetch you to church 97

Hero Help to dress me, good coz, good Meg, good Ursula [Exeunt]

SCENE V — Another Room in LEONATO'S House

Enter LEONATO with DOGBERRY and VERGES

Leon What would you with me, honest neighbour?

Dogb Marry, sir, I would have some confidence with you, that concerns you nearly 4

Leon Brief, I pray you, for you see it is a busy time with me

Dogb Marry, this it is, sir

Verg Yes, in truth it is, sir 8

Leon What is it, my good friends?

Dogb Goodman Verges, sir, speaks a little off the matter an old man, sir, and his wits are not so blunt, as, God help, I would desire they were, but, in faith, honest as the skin between his brows

Verg Yes, I thank God, I am as honest as any man living, that is an old man and no honestier than I 17

Dogb Comparisons are odorous palabras, neighbour Verges

Leon Neighbours, you are tedious 20

Dogb It pleases your worship to say so, but we are the poor duke's officers, but truly, for mine own part, if I were as tedious as a king, I could find in my heart to bestow it all of your worship 25

Leon All thy tediousness on me! ha?

Dogb Yea, an't were a thousand pound more than 'tis, for I hear as good exclamation on your worship, as of any man in the city, and though I be but a poor man, I am glad to hear it.

Verg And so am I 31

Leon I would fain know what you have to say

Verg Marry, sir, our watch to-night, excepting your worship's presence, ha' ta'en a couple of as arrant knaves as any in Messina 35

Dogb A good old man, sir, he will be talking as they say, 'when the age is in, the wit is out' God help us! it is a world to see! Well said, I' faith, neighbour Verges well, God's a good man, an two men ride of a horse, one must ride behind An honest soul, I' faith, sir, by my troth he is, as ever broke bread but God is to be worshipp'd all men are not alike, alas! good neighbour 44

Leon Indeed, neighbour, he comes too short of you.

Dogb Gifts that God gives

Leon I must leave you. 48

Dogb One word, sir our watch, sir, hath indeed comprehended two aspicuous persons, and we would have them this morning examined before your worship 53

Leon Take their examination yourself, and bring it me I am now in great haste, as may appear unto you

Dogb It shall be suffigance 56

Leon Drink some wine ere you go fare you well

Enter a Messenger

Mess My lord, they stay for you to give your daughter to her husband 60

Leon I'll wait upon them I am ready

[Exeunt LEONATO and Messenger

Dogb Go, good partner, go, get you to Francis Seacoal, bid him bring his pen and inkhorn to the gaol we are now to examination these men

Yerg And we must do it wisely 65

Dogb We will spare for no wit, I warrant you, here's that shall drive some of them to a non-come only get the learned writer to set down our excommunication, and meet me at the gaol. [Exeunt

ACT IV

SCENE I — The Inside of a Church

Enter DON PEDRO, DON JOHN, LEONATO, FRIAR FRANCIS, CLAUDIO, BENEDICK, HERO, BEATRICE, &c

Leon Come, Friar Francis, be brief only to the plain form of marriage, and you shall recount their particular duties afterwards

Friar You come hither, my lord, to marry this lady? 5

Claud No

Leon To be married to her, friar, you come to marry her 8

Friar Lady, you come hither to be married to this count?

Hero I do 11

Friar If either of you know any inward impediment, why you should not be conjoined, I charge you, on your souls to utter it

Claud Know you any, Hero?

Hero None, my lord

Friar Know you any, count? 16

Leon I dare make his answer, none

Claud O! what men dare do! what men may do! what men daily do, not knowing what they do! Bene How now! Interjections? Why then, some be of laughing, as ah! ha! he!

Claud Stand thee by, friar Father, by your leave

Will you with free and unconstrained soul 24 Give me this maid, your daughter?

Leon As freely, son, as God did give her me

Claud And what have I to give you back whose worth

May counterpoise this rich and precious gift? 28

D Pedro Nothing, unless you render her again

Claud Sweet prince, you learn me noble thankfulness

There, Leonato, take her back again

Give not this rotten orange to your friend, 32 She's but the sign and semblance of her honour

Behold! how like a maid she blushes here

O! what authority and show of truth

Can cunning sin cover itself withal 36

Comes not that blood as modest evidence

To witness simple virtue? Would you not swear,

All you that see her, that she were a maid,

By these exterior shows? But she is more 40

She knows the heat of a luxurious bed,

Her blush is guiltiness, not modesty

Leon What do you mean, my lord?

Claud Not to be married,

Not to knit my soul to an approved wanton 44

Leon Dear my lord, if you, in your own proof,

Have vanquish'd the resistance of her youth,

And made defeat of her virginity,—

Claud I know what you would say if I have known her, 48

You'll say she did embrace me as a husband,

And so extenuate the 'forehand sin

No, Leonato,

I never tempted her with word too large, 52

But, as a brother to his sister, show'd

Bashful sincerity and comely love

Hero And seem'd I ever otherwise to you?

Claud Out on thee! Seeming! I will write against it 56

You seem to me as Dian in her orb,

As chaste as is the bud ere it be blown,

But you are more intemperate in your blood

Than Venus, or those pamper'd animals 60

That rage in savage sensuality

Hero Is my lord well, that he doth speak so wide? 5

Leon Sweet prince, why speak not you?

D Pedro What should I speak?

I stand dishonour'd, that have gone about 64

To hnk my dear friend to a common stale

Leon Are these things spoken, or do I but dream? 68

D John Sir, they are spoken, and these things are true

Bene This looks not like a nuptial

Hero True! O God!

Claud Leonato, stand I here?

Is this the prince? Is this the prince's brother?

Is this face Hero's? Are our eyes our own? 72

Leon All this is so, but what of this, my lord?

Claud Let me but move one question to your

daughter,

And by that fatherly and kindly power

That you have in her, bid her answer truly 76

Leon I charge thee do so, as thou art my child

Hero O, God defend me! how am I beset!

What kind of catechizing call you this?

Claud To make you answer truly to your

name 80

Hero Is it not Hero? Who can blot that

name

With any just reproach?

Claud Marry, that can Hero

Hero itself can blot out Hero's virtue

What man was he talk'd with you yesternight 84

Out at your window betwixt twelve and one?

Now, if you are a maid, answer to this

Hero I talk'd with no man at that hour, my

lord

D Pedro Why, then are you no maiden Leonato,
 I am sorry you must hear upon mine honour,
 Myself, my brother, and thus griev'd count,
 Did see her, hear her, at that hour last night,
 Talk with a ruffian at her chamber-window,
 Who hath indeed, most like a liberal villain, Confess'd the vile encounters they have had A thousand times in secret

D John Fie, fie! they are not to be nam'd,
 my lord,

Not to be spoke of,
 There is not chastity enough in language Without offence to utter them. Thus, pretty lady,

I am sorry for thy much misgovernment.
Claud O Hero! what a Hero hadst thou been,
 If half thy outward graces had been plac'd
 About thy thoughts and counsels of thy heart!
 But fare thee well, most foul, most fair! fare-
 well,

Thou pure impiety, and impious purity!
 For thee I'll lock up all the gates of love,
 And on my eyelids shall conjecture hang,
 To turn all beauty unto thoughts of harm,
 And never shall it more be gracious

Leon Hath no man's dagger here a point for me?

Beat Why, how now, cousin! wherefore sink you down?

D John Come, let us go These things, come thus to light,

Smother her spirits up

[Exeunt DON PEDRO, DON JOHN and CLAUDIO]

Bene How doth the lady?

Beat Dead, I think! help, uncle!

Hero! why, Hero! Uncle! Sigmor Benedick!

Friar!

Leon O Fate! take not away thy heavy hand

Death is the fairest cover for her shame

That may be wish'd for Beat How now, cousin Hero!

Friar Have comfort, lady

Leon Dost thou look up?

Friar Yea, wherefore should she not?

Leon Wherefore! Why, doth not every earthly thing

Cry shame upon her? Could she here deny

The story that is printed in her blood?

Do not live, Hero, do not ope thine eyes,

For, did I think thou wouldst not quickly die,

Thought I thy spirits were stronger than thy

shames,

Myself would, on the rearward of reproaches,

Strike at thy life Grieved I, I had but one?

Child I for that at frugal nature's frame?

O! one too much by thee Why had I one?

Why ever wast thou lovely in mine eyes?

Why had I not with charitable hand

Took up a beggar's issue at my gates,

Who smurched thus, and mir'd with infamy,

I might have said, 'No part of it is mine,

This shame derives itself from unknown loins?'

But mine, and mine I lov'd, and mine I prais'd,

And mine that I was proud on, mine so much

That I myself was to myself not mine,

Valuing of her, why, she—O! she is fallen Into a pit of ink, that the wide sea
 Hath drops too few to wash her clean again,
 And salt too little which may season give
 To her foul-tainted flesh.

Bene Sir, sir, be patient.
 For my part, I am so attir'd in wonder,
 I know not what to say

Beat O! on my soul, my cousin is belied!

Bene Lady, were you her bedfellow last night?

Beat No, truly, not, although, until last

night,

I have thus twelvemonth been her bedfellow

Leon Confirm'd, confirm'd! O! that is stronger made,

Which was before barr'd up with ribs of iron.

Would the two princes he? and Claudio he,

Who lov'd her so, that, speaking of her foul-

ness,

Wash'd it with tears? Hence from her! let her die

Friar Hear me a little,

For I have only been silent so long,

And given way unto this course of fortune,

By noting of the lady I have mark'd

A thousand blushing apparitions

To start into her face, a thousand innocent

shames

In angel whiteness bear away those blushes,

And in her eye there hath appear'd a fire,

To burn the errors that these princes hold—

Against her maiden truth Call me a fool,

Trust not my reading nor my observations,

Which with experimental seal doth warrant

The tenour of my book, trust not my age,

My reverence, calling, nor divinity,

If this sweet lady lie not guiltless here

Under some biting error

Leon Friar, it cannot be

Thou seest that all the grace that she hath left

Is, that she will not add to her damnation

A sin of perjury she not denies it

Why seek'st thou then to cover with excuse

That which appears in proper nakedness?

Friar Lady, what man is he you are accus'd of?

Hero They know that do accuse me, I know

none,

If I know more of any man alive

Than that which maiden modesty doth warrant,

Let all my sins lack mercy! O, my father!

Prove you that any man with me convers'd

At hours unmeet, or that I yesternight

Maintain'd the change of words with any creature,

Refuse me, hate me, torture me to death

Friar There is some strange misprision in the princes

Bene Two of them have the very bent of

honour,

And if their wisdoms be misled in this,

The practice of it lives in John the bastard,

Whose spirits toil in frame of villanies.

Leon I know not. If they speak but truth of her,

These hands shall tear her, if they wrong her honour,

The proudest of them shall well hear of it
Time hath not yet so dried this blood of mine, Nor age so eat up my invention, 196
Nor fortune made such havoc of my means,
Nor my bad life left me so much of friends,
But they shall find, awak'd in such a kind,
Both strength of limb and policy of mind, 200
Ability in means and choice of friends,
To quit me of them thoroughly

Friar Pause awhile,
And let my counsel sway you in this case
Your daughter here the princes left for dead,
Let her awhile be secretly kept in, 205
And publish it that she is dead indeed Maintain a mourning ostentation,
And on your family's old monument 208
Hang mournful epitaphs and do all rites
That appertain unto a burial

Leon What shall become of this? What will this do?

Friar Marry, thus well carried shall on her behalf 212

Change slander to remorse, that is some good
But not for that dream I on this strange course,
But on this travail look for greater birth
She dying, as it must be so maintain'd, 216
Upon the instant that she was accus'd,
Shall be lamented, pitied and excus'd
Of every hearer, for it so falls out

That what we have we prize not to the worth Whiles we enjoy it, but being lack'd and lost,
Why, then we rack the value, then we find 222
The virtue that possession would not show us Whiles it was ours So will it fare with Claudio
When he shall hear she died upon his words,
The idea of her life shall sweetly creep
Into his study of imagination,
And every lovely organ of her life 228
Shall come apparell'd in more precious habit,
More moving-delicate, and full of life
Into the eye and prospect of his soul,
Than when she liv'd indeed then shall he 232 mourn,—

If ever love had interest in his liver,—
And wish he had not so accus'd her,
No, though he thought his accusation true
Let this be so, and doubt not but success 236
Will fashion the event in better shape Than I can lay it down in likelihood But if all aim but this be levell'd false,
The supposition of the lady's death 240
Will quench the wonder of her infamy
And if it sort not well, you may conceal her,—
As best befits her wounded reputation,—
In some reclusive and religious life, 244
Out of all eyes, tongues, minds, and injuries

Bene Signior Leonato, let the friar advise you

And though you know my inwardness and love
Is very much unto the prince and Claudio, 248 Yet, by mine honour, I will deal in this As secretly and justly as your soul
Should with your body

Leon. Being that I flow in grief,

The smallest twine may lead me 252
Friar 'Tis well consented presently away,
For to strange sores strangely they strain the cure

Come, lady, die to live this wedding day
Perhaps is but prolong'd have patience and endure 256

[Exeunt FRIAR, HERO, and LEONATO]

Bene Lady Beatrice, have you wept all this while?

Beat Yea, and I will weep a while longer

Bene I will not desire that 260

Beat You have no reason, I do it freely

Bene Surely I do believe your fair cousin is wronged

Beat Ah! how much might the man deserve of me that would right her 265

Bene Is there any way to show such friendship?

Beat A very even way, but no such friend

Bene May a man do that? 269

Beat It is a man's office, but not yours

Bene I do love nothing in the world so well as you is not that strange? 272

Beat As strange as the thing I know not It were as possible for me to say I loved nothing so well as you, but believe me not, and yet I he not, I confess nothing, nor I deny nothing I am sorry for my cousin 277

Bene By my sword, Beatrice, thou lovest me

Beat Do not swear by it, and eat it

Bene I will swear by it that you love me, and I will make him eat it that says I love not you

Beat Will you not eat your word?

Bene With no sauce that can be devised to it I protest I love thee 285

Beat Why then, God forgive me!

Bene What offence, sweet Beatrice?

Beat You have stay'd me in a happy hour
I was about to protest I loved you 289

Bene And do it with all thy heart

Beat I love you with so much of my heart that none is left to protest 292

Bene Come, bid me do anything for thee

Beat Kill Claudio

Bene Ha! not for the wide world

Beat You kill me to deny it Farewell 296

Bene Tarry, sweet Beatrice

Beat I am gone, though I am here there is no love in you nay, I pray you, let me go 300

Bene Beatrice,—

Beat In faith, I will go 300

Bene We'll be friends first

Beat You dare easier be friends with me than fight with mine enemy 304

Bene Is Claudio thine enemy?

Beat Is he not approved in the height a villain, that hath slandered, scorned, dishon-oured my kinswoman? O! that I were a man What! bear her in hand until they come to take hands, and then, with public accusation, uncovered slander, unmitigated rancour,—O God, that I were a man! I would eat his heart in the market place. 313

Bene Hear me, Beatrice,—

Beat Talk with a man out at a window! a proper saying! 316

Bene Nay, but Beatrice,—

Beat Sweet Hero! she is wronged, she is slandered, she is undone

Bene Beat— 320

Beat Princes and counties! Surely, a princely testimony, a goodly Count Comfekt, a sweet gallant, surely! O! that I were a man for his sake, or that I had any friend would be a man for my sake! But manhood is melted into curtsies, valour into compliment, and men are only turned into tongue, and trim ones too: he is now as valiant as Hercules, that only tells a lie and swears it. I cannot be a man with wishing, therefore I will die a woman with grieving.

Bene Tarry, good Beatrice. By this hand, I love thee 332

Beat Use it for my love some other way than swearing by it

Bene Thank you in your soul the Count Claudio hath wronged Hero? 336

Beat Yea, as sure as I have a thought or a soul

Bene Enough! I am engaged, I will challenge him. I will kiss your hand, and so leave you. By this hand, Claudio shall render me a dear account. As you hear of me, so think of me. Go, comfort your cousin. I must say she is dead, and so, farewell. [Exeunt]

SCENE II.—A Prison

Enter DOGBERRY, VERGES, and SEXTON, in gowns and the Watch, with CONRADE and BORACHIO

Dogb. Is our whole dissembly appeared?

Verg. O! a stool and a cushion for the sexton

Sexton. Which be the malefactors? 4

Dogb. Marry, that am I and my partner

Verg. Nay, that's certain: we have the exhibition to examine 7

Sexton. But which are the offenders that are to be examined? let them come before Master constable

Dogb. Yea, marry, let them come before me. What is your name, friend? 12

Bora. Borachio

Dogb. Pray write down Borachio. Yours, surrah?

Con. I am a gentleman, sir, and my name is Conrade 17

Dogb. Write down Master gentleman Conrade. Masters, do you serve God? 20

Con. Yea, sir, we hope

Bora. Write down that they hope they serve God, and write God first, for God defend but God should go before such villains! Masters, it is proved already that you are little better than false knaves, and it will go near to be thought so shortly. How answer you for yourselves? 26

Con. Marry, sir, we say we are none

Dogb. A marvellous witty fellow, I assure you, but I will go about with him. Come you hither, surrah, a word in your ear: sir, I say to you, it is thought you are false knaves

Bora. Sir, I say to you we are none 32

Dogb. Well, stand aside. 'Fore God, they are both in a tale. Have you writ down, that they are none?

Sexton. Master constable, you go not the way to examine: you must call forth the watch that are their accusers 38

Dogb. Yea, marry, that's the efiest way. Let the watch come forth. Masters, I charge you, in the prince's name, accuse these men.

First Watch. This man said, sir, that Don John, the prince's brother, was a villain 43

Dogb. Write down Prince John a villain. Why, this is flat perjury, to call a prince's brother villain.

Bora. Master constable,—

Dogb. Pray thee, fellow, peace. I do not like thy look, I promise thee

Sexton. What heard you him say else? 50

Sec. Watch. Marry, that he had received a thousand ducats of Don John for accusing the Lady Hero wrongfully Dogb. Flat burglary as ever was committed.

Verg. Yea, by the mass, that it is.

Sexton. What else, fellow? 56

First Watch. And that Count Claudio did mean, upon his words, to disgrace Hero before the whole assembly, and not marry her

Dogb. O villain! thou wilt be condemned into everlasting redemption for this. 61

Sexton. What else?

Sec. Watch. This is all

Sexton. And this is more, masters, than you can deny. Prince John is this morning secretly stolen away. Hero was in this manner accused, in this very manner refused, and, upon the grief of this, suddenly died. Master constable, let these men be bound, and brought to Leonato's. I will go before and show him their examination. [Exit]

Dogb. Come, let them be opinioned. 72

Verg. Let them be in the hands—

Con. Off, coxcomb!

Dogb. God's my life! where's the sexton? let him write down the prince's officer coxcomb. Come, bind them. Thou naughty varlet! 77

Con. Away! you are an ass, you are an ass

Dogb. Dost thou not suspect my place? Dost thou not suspect my years? O that he were here to write me down an ass! but, masters, remember that I am an ass, though it be not written down, yet forget not that I am an ass. No, thou villain, thou art full of piety, as shall be proved upon thee by good witness. I am a wise fellow, and, which is more, an officer, and, which is more, a householder, and, which is more, as pretty a piece of flesh as any in Messina, and one that knows the law, go to, and a rich fellow enough, go to, and a fellow that hath had losses, and one that hath two gowns, and everything handsome about him. Bring him away. O that I had been writ down an ass! 93

[Exeunt.]

ACT V

SCENE I—Before LEONATO'S House

Enter LEONATO and ANTONIO

Ant If you go on thus, you will kill yourself,
And 'tis not wisdom thus to second grief
Against yourself

Leon I pray thee, cease thy counsel,
Which falls into mine ears as profitless
As water in a sieve give not me counsel,
Nor let no comforter delight mine ear
But such a one whose wrongs do suit with mine
Bring me a father that so lov'd his child, Whose joy of her is overwhelm'd like mine,
And bid him speak of patience,
Measure his woe the length and breadth of mine,
And let it answer every strain for strain,
As thus for thus and such a grief for such,
In every lineament, branch, shape, and form
If such a one will smile, and stroke his beard, Bid sorrow wag, cry 'hem' when he should groan,

Patch grief with proverbs, make misfortune drunk

With candle-wasters, bring him yet to me,
And I of him will gather patience
But there is no such man, for, brother, men Can counsel and speak comfort to that grief
Which they themselves not feel, but, tasting it,
Their counsel turns to passion, which before
Would give preceptual medicine to rage,
Fetter strong madness in a silken thread,
Charm ache with air and agony with words
No, no, 'tis all men's office to speak patience
To those that wring under the load of sorrow,
But no man's virtue nor sufficiency
To be so moral when he shall endure
The like himself Therefore give me no counsel
My griefs cry louder than advertisement

Ant Therein do men from children nothing differ

Leon I pray thee, peace! I will be flesh and blood,

For there was never yet philosopher
That could endure the toothache patiently, However they have writ the style of gods
And made a push at chance and sufferance

Ant Yet bend not all the harm upon yourself,

Make those that do offend you suffer too Leon There thou speak'st reason nay, I will do so

My soul doth tell me Hero is belied, And that shall Claudio know, so shall the prince,

And all of them that thus dishonour her Ant Here come the prince and Claudio hastily

Enter DON PEDRO and CLAUDIO

D Pedro Good den, good den

Claudio Good day to both of you.

Leon Hear you, my lords,—

D Pedro We have some haste, Leonato

Leon Some haste, my lord! well, fare you well, my lord

Are you so hasty now?—well, all is one D Pedro Nay, do not quarrel with us, good old man

Ant If he could right himself with quarrelling,
Some of us would lie low

Claudio Who wrongs him? 52 Leon Marry, thou dost wrong me, thou dis-sembler, thou

Nay, never lay thy hand upon thy sword,
I fear thee not

Claudio Marry, beshrew my hand, 55
If it should give you age such cause of fear
In faith, my hand meant nothing to my sword

Leon Tush, tush, man! never fear and jest at me

I speak not like a dotard nor a fool,
As, under privilege of age, to brag What I have done being young, or what would do,

Were I not old Know, Claudio, to thy head, Thou hast so wrong'd mine innocent child and
me

That I am forc'd to lay my reverence by, 64
And, with grey hairs and bruise of many days,
Do challenge thee to trial of a man

I say thou hast belied mine innocent child Thy slander hath gone through and through her heart, 68

And she lies buried with her ancestors,
O' in a tomb where never scandal slept,
Save this of hers, fram'd by thy villany!

Claudio My villany?

Leon Thine, Claudio, thine, I say 72

D Pedro You say not right, old man

Leon My lord, my lord,

I'll prove it on his body, if he dare,
Despite his nice fence and his active practice,
His May of youth and bloom of lusthood 76

Claudio Away! I will not have to do with you Leon Canst thou so daff me? Thou hast kill'd my child, 4

If thou kill'st me, boy, thou shalt kill a man

Ant He shall kill two of 'em, and men indeed

But that's no matter, let him kill one first 81

Win me and wear me, let him answer me

Come, follow me, boy, come, sir boy, come,

follow me

Sir boy, I'll whip you from your foaming fence,

Nay, as I am a gentleman, I will 85

Leon Brother,—

Ant Content yourself God knows I lov'd my niece,

And she is dead, slander'd to death by villains,
That dare as well answer a man indeed 89

As I dare take a serpent by the tongue

Boys, apes, braggarts, Jacks, milksops!

Leon Brother Antony,—

Ant Hold you content. What, man! I know them, yea 92

And what they weigh, even to the utmost scruple,

Scrambling, out-facing, fashion-monging boys,

That he and cog and flout, deprave and slander,

Go antickly, show outward hideousness, 96

And speak off half a dozen dangerous words,

How they might hurt their enemies, if they durst,

And this is all!

Leon But, brother Antony,—

Ant Come, 'tis no matter 100
Do not you meddle, let me deal in this

D Pedro Gentlemen both, we will not wake your patience

My heart is sorry for your daughter's death,
But, on my honour, she was charg'd with nothing 104

But what was true and very full of proof

Leon My lord, my lord—

D Pedro I will not hear you

Leon No?

Come, brother, away I will be heard — 107

Ant And shall, or some of us will smart for it [Exeunt LEONATO and ANTONIO]

Enter BENEDICK

D Pedro See, see, here comes the man we went to seek Claud Now, signior, what news?

Bene Good day, my lord 112

D Pedro Welcome, signior you are almost come to part almost a fray

Claud We had like to have had our two noses snapped off with two old men without teeth 117

D Pedro Leonato and his brother What thinkest thou? Had we fought I doubt we should have been too young for them 120

Bene In a false quarrel there is no true valour I came to seek you both.

Claud We have been up and down to seek thee, for we are high-proof melancholy, and would fain have it beaten away Wilt thou use thy wit? 126

Bene It is in my scabbard, shall I draw it?

D Pedro Dost thou wear thy wit by thy side?

Claud Never any did so, though very many have been beside their wit. I will bid thee draw, as we do the minstrels, draw, to pleasure us 132

D Pedro As I am an honest man, he looks pale Art thou sick, or angry?

Claud What, courage, man! What though care killed a cat, thou hast mettle enough in thee to kill care 137

Bene Sir, I shall meet your wit in the career, an you charge it against me I pray you choose another subject 140

Claud Nay then, give him another staff this last was broke cross

D Pedro By this light, he changes more and more I think he be angry indeed 144

Claud If he be, he knows how to turn his gridle

Bene Shall I speak a word in your ear?

Claud God bless me from a challenge! 148

Bene [Aside to CLAUDIO] You are a villain, I jest not I will make it good how you dare, with what you dare, and when you dare Do me right, or I will protest your cowardice You have killed a sweet lady, and her death shall fall heavy on you. Let me hear from you *

Claud Well I will meet you, so I may have good cheer 156

D Pedro What, a feast, a feast?

Claud I' faith, I thank him, he hath bid me to a calf's-head and a capon, the which if I do not carve most curiously, say my knife's naught Shall I not find a woodcock too? 161

Bene Sir, your wit ambles well, it goes easily

D Pedro I'll tell thee how Beatrice praised thy wit the other day I said thou hadst a fine wit 'True,' says she, 'a fine little one' 'No,' said I, 'a great wit' 'Right,' said she, 'a great gross one' 'Nay,' said I, 'a good wit' 'Just,' said she, 'it hurts nobody' 'Nay,' said I, 'the gentleman is wise' 'Certain,' said she, 'a wise gentleman' 'Nay,' said I, 'he hath the tongues' 'That I believe,' said she, 'for he swore a thing to me on Monday night, which he forswore on Tuesday morning there's a double tongue, there's two tongues' Thus did she, an hour together, trans shape thy particular virtues, yet at last she concluded with a sigh, thou wast the properest man in Italy 178

Claud For the which she wept heartily and said she cared not

D Pedro Yea, that she did, but yet, for all that, an if she did not hate him deadly, she would love him dearly The old man's daughter told us all 184

Claud All, all, and moreover, God saw him when he was hid in the garden

D Pedro But when shall we set the savage bull's horns on the sensible Benedick's head? 189

Claud Yea, and text underneath, 'Here dwells Benedick the married man!'

Bene Fare you well, boy you know my mind I will leave you now to your gossip-like humour you break jests as braggarts do their blades, which, God be thanked, hurt not My lord, for your many courtesies I thank you I must discontinue your company Your brother the bastard is fled from Messina you have, among you, killed a sweet and innocent lady For my Lord Lack-beard there, he and I shall meet, and till then, peace be with him [Exit.]

D Pedro He is in earnest.

Claud In most profound earnest, and, I'll warrant you, for the love of Beatrice 204

D Pedro And hath challenged thee?

Claud Most sincerely

D Pedro What a pretty thing man is when he goes in his doublet and hose and leaves off his wit! 209

Claud He is then a giant to an ape, but then is an ape a doctor to such a man

D Pedro But, soft you, let me be pluck'd up, my heart, and be sad! Did he not say my brother was fled? 214

Enter DOGBERRY, VERGES, and the Watch, with CONRADE and BORACHIO.

Dogb Come, you, sir if justice cannot tame you, she shall ne'er weigh more reasons in her balance Nay, an you be a cursing hypocrite once, you must be looked to

D Pedro How now! two of my brother's men bound! Borachio, one!

Claud Hearken after their offence, my lord D Pedro Officers, what offence have these men done?

Dogb Marry, sir, they have committed false report, moreover, they have spoken untruths, secondarily, they are slanders, sixth and lastly, they have belied a lady, thirdly, they have verified unjust things, and to conclude, they are lying knaves 229

D Pedro First, I ask thee what they have done, thirdly, I ask thee what's their offence, sixth and lastly, why they are committed, and,
to conclude, what you lay to their charge?

Claud Rightly reasoned, and in his own division and, by my troth, there's one meaning well suited 236

D Pedro Who have you offended, masters, that you are thus bound to your answer? this learned constable is too cunning to be understood What's your offence? 240

Bora Sweet prince, let me go no further to mine answer do you hear me, and let this count kill me I have deceived even your very eyes what your wisdoms could not discover, these shallow fools have brought to light, who,
in the night overheard me confessing to this man how Don John your brother incensed me to slander the Lady Hero, how you were brought into the orchard and saw me court Margaret in Hero's garments, how you disgraced her, when you should marry her My villany they have upon record, which I had rather seal with my death than repeat over to my shame The lady is dead upon mine and my master's false accusation, and, briefly, I deserve nothing but the reward of a villain 256

D Pedro Runs not this speech like iron through your blood?

Claud I have drunk poison while he utter'd it.

D Pedro But did my brother set thee on to
this?

Bora Yea, and paid me richly for the practice of it 260

D Pedro He is compos'd and fram'd of treachery

And fled he is upon this villany

Claud Sweet Hero! now thy image doth appear

In the rare semblance that I lov'd it first 264

Dogb Come, bring away the plaintiffs by this time our sexton hath reformed Signior Leonato of the matter And masters, do not forget to specify, when time and place shall serve, that I am an ass 269

Verg Here, here comes Master Signior Leo-nato, and the sexton too

Re-enter LEONATO, ANTONIO, and the Sexton

Leon Which is the villain? Let me see his
eyes, 272

That, when I note another man like him,
I may avoid him Which of these is he?

Bora If you would know your wronger, look on me

Leon Art thou the slave that with thy breath hast kill'd 276

Mine innocent child?

Bora Yea, even I alone Leon No, not so, villain, thou beliest thyself

Here stand a pair of honourable men,
A third is fled, that had a hand in it 280
I thank you, princes, for my daughter's death Record it with your high and worthy deeds
'Twas bravely done, if you bethink you of it

Claud I know not how to pray your patience, 284

Yet I must speak Choose your revenge yourself,

Impose me to what penance your invention
Can lay upon my sin yet sinn'd I not But in mistaking

D Pedro By my soul, nor I 288
And yet, to satisfy this good old man,
I would bend under any heavy weight That he'll enjoin me to Leon I cannot bid you bid my daughter

live, 292

That were impossible but, I pray you both, Possess the people in Messina here
How innocent she died, and if your love
Can labour aught in sad invention, 296

Hang her an epitaph upon her tomb,
And sing it to her bones sing it to-night

To-morrow morning come you to my house,
And since you could not be my son-in-law, 300

Beyet my nephew My brother hath a daughter, Almost the copy of my child that's dead,

And she alone is heir to both of us Give her the right you should have given her cousin, 304

And so dies my revenge

Claud O noble sir
Your over-kindness doth wring tears from me!
I do embrace your offer, and dispose

For henceforth of poor Claudio 308

Leon To-morrow then I will expect your coming,

To-night I take my leave This naughty man Shall face to face be brought to Margaret, 311

Who, I believe, was pack'd in all this wrong, Hid'd to it by your brother

Bora No, by my soul she was not, Nor knew not what she did when she spoke

to me,
But always hath been just and virtuous

In anything that I do know by her 316

Dogb Moreover, sir,—which, indeed, is not under white and black,—this plaintiff here, the offender, did call me ass I beseech you let it be remembered in his punishment And also, the watch heard them talk of one Deformed they say he wears a key in his ear and a lock hanging by it, and borrows money in God's name, the which he hath used so long and never paid, that now men grow hard-hearted, and will lend nothing for God's sake Pray you, examine him upon that point 327

Leon I thank thee for thy care and honest pains 328

Dogb Your worship speaks like a most thankful and reverend youth, and I praise God for you 332

Leon There's for thy pains

Dogb God save the foundation!

Leon Go, I discharge thee of thy prisoner, and I thank thee. 336

Dogb I leave an arrant knave with your worship, which I beseech your worship to correct yourself, for the example of others God keep your worship! I wish your worship well, God restore you to health! I humbly give you leave to depart, and if a merry meeting may be wished, God prohibit it! Come, neighbour 343

[Exeunt DOGBERRY and VERGES]

Leon Until to-morrow morning, lords, farewell 344

Ant Farewell, my lords we look for you to-morrow

D Pedro We will not fail

Claud To-night I'll mourn with Hero

[Exeunt DON PEDRO and CLAUDIO]

Leon [To the Watch] Bring you these fellows on We'll talk with Margaret, 347
How her acquaintance grew with this lewd fellow. [Exeunt]

SCENE II — LEONATO'S Garden

Enter BENEDICK and MARGARET, meeting

Bene Pray thee, sweet Mistress Margaret, deserve well at my hands by helping me to the speech of Beatrice

Marg Will you then write me a sonnet in praise of my beauty? 5

Bene In so high a style, Margaret, that no man living shall come over it, for, in most comely truth, thou deservest it 8

Marg To have no man come over me! why, shall I always keep below st urs?

Bene Thy wit is as quick as the greyhound's mouth, it catches 12

Marg And yours as blunt as the fencer's foils, which hit, but hurt not

Bene A most manly wit, Margaret, it will not hurt a woman and so I pray thee, call Beatrice I give thee the bucklers 17

Marg Give us the swords, we have bucklers of our own

Bene If you use them, Margaret, you must put in the pikes with a vice, and they are dangerous weapons for maids

Marg Well, I will call Beatrice to you, who I think hath legs 19

Bene And therefore will come

[Exit MARGARET]

The god of love

That sits above

And knows me and knows me, 28

How pitiful I deserve —

I mean, in singing, but in loving, Leander the good swimmer, Troilus the first employer of pandars, and a whole book full of these quondam carpet-mongers, whose names yet run smoothly in the even road of a blank verse, why, they were never so truly turned over and over as my poor self, in love. Marry, I cannot show it in rime, I have tried I can find out no rime to 'lady' but 'baby,' an innocent rime, for 'scorn,' 'horn,' a hard rime, for 'school,' 'fool,' a babbling rime, very ominous endings no, I was not born under a riming planet, nor I cannot woo in festival terms 42

Sweet Beatrice, wouldst thou come when I called thee? 43

Beat Yea, signor, and depart when you bid me

Bene O, stay but till then! 47

Beat 'Then' is spoken, fare you well now and yet, ere I go, let me go with that I came for, which is, with knowing what hath passed between you and Claudio 51

Bene Only foul words, and thereupon I will kiss thee

Beat Foul words is but foul wind, and foul wind is but foul breath, and foul breath is noisome, therefore I will depart unknissed 56

Bene Thou hast frighted the word out of his right sense, so forcible is thy wit But I must tell thee plainly, Claudio undergoes my challenge, and either I must shortly hear from him, or I will subscribe him a coward And, I pray thee now, tell me for which of my bad parts didst thou first fall in love with me? 63

Beat For them all together, which maintained so politic a state of evil that they will not admit any good part to intermingle with them But for which of my good parts did you first suffer love for me? 68

Bene 'Suffer love,' a good epithet! I do suffer love indeed, for I love thee against my will Beat In spite of your heart, I think Alas, poor heart! If you spite it for my sake, I will spite it for yours, for I will never love that which my friend hates 75

Bene Thou and I are too wise to woo peaceably

Beat It appears not in this confession there's not one wise man among twenty that will praise himself 80

Bene An old, an old instance, Beatrice, that lived in the time of good neighbours If a man do not erect in this age his own tomb ere he dies, he shall live no longer in monument than the bell rings and the widow weeps 85

Beat And how long is that think you?

Bene Question why, an hour in clamour and a quarter in rheum therefore it is most expedient for the wise — if Don Worm, his conscience, find no impediment to the contrary, — to be the trumpet of his own virtues, as I am to myself So much for praising myself, who, I myself will bear witness, is praiseworthy And now tell me, how doth your cousin? 90

Beat Very ill

Bene And how do you?

Beat Very ill too

Bene Serve God, love me, and mend There will I leave you too, for here comes one in haste 100

Enter URSULA

Urs Madam, you must come to your uncle
Yonder's old coil at home it is proved, my Lady Hero hath been falsely accused, the prince and Claudio mightily abused, and Don John is the author of all, who is fled and gone Will you come presently? 106

Beat Will you go hear this news, signior?

Bene I will live in thy heart, die in thy lap, and be buried in thy eyes, and moreover I will go with thee to thy uncle's [Exeunt

SCENE III — The Inside of a Church

Enter DON PEDRO, CLAUDIO, and Attendants, with mus c and tapers

Claud Is this the monument of Leonato?

Bene It is, my lord.

Claud [Reads from a scroll]

Done to death by slanderous tongues
Was the Hero that here lies Death in guerdon of her wrongs
Gives her fame which never dies
So the life that died with shame
Lives in death with glorious fame

Hang thou there upon the tomb,
Praising her when I am dumb
Now, music, sound, and sing your solemn hymn

SONG

Pardon goddess of the night,
Those that slew thy virgin knight
For the which with songs of woe
Round about her tomb they go Midnight as t our moan
Help us to sigh and groan
Heavily, heavily
Graves yawn and yield your dead,
Till death be uttered,
Heavily heavily

Claud Now, unto thy bones good night!
Yearly will I do this rite

D Pedro Good morrow, masters put your torches out 24
The wolves have prey'd, and look, the gentle
day,

Before the wheels of Phœbus, round about Dapples the drowsy east with spots of grey Thanks to you all, and leave us fare you well

Claud Good morrow, masters each his several way 29

D Pedro Come, let us hence, and put on other weeds

And then to Leonato's we will go

Claud And Hymen now with luckier issue speed's, 32

Than this for whom we render'd up this woe!

[Exeunt

SCENE IV — A Room in LEONATO'S House

Enter LEONATO, ANTONIO, BENEDICK, BEATRICE, MARGARET, URSULA, FRIAR FRANCIS, and HERO

Friar Did I not tell you she was innocent?

Leon So are the prince and Claudio, who accus'd her

Upon the error that you heard debated
But Margaret was in some fault for this, 4
Although against her will, as it appears In the true course of all the question

Ant Well, I am glad that all things sort so
well

Bene And so am I, being else by faith enforc'd
To call young Claudio to a reckoning for it 9

Leon Well, daughter, and you gentlewomen
all,

Withdraw into a chamber by yourselves,
And when I send for you, come hither mask'd
The prince and Claudio promis'd by this hour
To visit me [Exeunt ladies

You know your office, brother,
You must be father to your brother's daughter,
And give her to young Claudio 16

Ant Which I will do with confirm'd countenance

Bene Friar, I must entreat your pains, I think

Friar To do what, signior?

Bene To bind me, or undo me, one of them
Signior Leonato, truth it is, good signior, 21

Your mece regards me with an eye of favour Leon That eye my daughter lent her 'tis most true

Bene And I do with an eye of love requite her Leon The sight whereof I think, you had from me, 25

From Claudio, and the prince But what's your will?

Bene Your answer, sir, is enigmatical
But, for my will, my will is your good will 28

May stand with ours, this day to be conjoin'd
In the state of honourable marriage

In which, good friar, I shall desire your help

Leon My heart is with your liking

Friar And my help 32
Here come the prince and Claudio

Enter DON PEDRO and CLAUDIO, with Attendants

D Pedro Good morrow to this fair assembly, Leon Good morrow, prince good morrow,
Claudio

We here attend you Are you yet determin'd
To-day to marry with my brother's daughter? 37

Claud I'll hold my mind, were she an Ethiop.

Leon Call her forth, brother here's the friar ready [Exit ANTONIO

D Pedro Good morrow, Benedick Why,
what's the matter, 40

That you have such a February face
So full of frost, of storm and cloudiness?

Claud I think he thinks upon the savage bull Tush! fear not, man, we'll tip thy horns with gold, 44

And all Europa shall rejoice at thee,

As once Europa did at lusty Jove,
 When he would play the noble beast in love
Bene Bull Jove, sir, had an amiable low 48 And some such strange bull leap'd your father's cow,
 And got a calf in that same noble feat,
 Much like to you, for you have just his bleat Claud For this I owe you here come other 52 reckonings

Re-enter ANTONIO, with the ladies masked Which is the lady I must seize upon?
Ant This same is she, and I do give you her Claud Why, then she's mine Sweet, let me see your face
Leon No, that you shall not, till you take her 56
 hand
 Before this friar, and swear to marry her Claud Give me your hand before this holy friar,

I am your husband, if you like of me Hero And when I liv'd, I was your other wife [Unmasking]
 And when you lov'd, you were my other hus- 61 band
Claud Another Hero!

Hero Nothing certainer
 One Hero died defil'd, but I do live,
 And surely as I live, I am a maid 64 D Pedro The former Hero! Hero that is dead!

Leon She died, my lord, but whiles her slander liv'd
Friar All this amazement can I qualify 68
 When after that the holy rites are ended, I'll tell you largely of fair Hero's death
 Meantime, let wonder seem familiar,
 And to the chapel let us presently

Bene Soft and fair, friar Which is Beatrice?
Beat [Unmasking] I answer to that name
 What is your will? 73

Bene Do not you love me?
Beat Why, no, no more than reason Bene Why, then, your uncle and the prince and Claudio

Have been deceived, for they swore you did 76
Beat Do not you love me?

Bene Troth, no, no more than reason Beat Why, then, my cousin, Margaret, and Ursula,

Are much deceiv'd, for they did swear you did Bene They swore that you were almost sick
 for me 80

Beat They swore that you were well-nigh dead for me

Bene 'Tis no such matter Then, you do not love me?

Beat No, truly, but in friendly recompense

Leon Come, cousin, I am sure you love the gentleman 84

Claud And I'll be sworn upon't that he loves
 her,

For here's a paper written in his hand,
 A halting sonnet of his own pure brain,
 Fashion'd to Beatrice

Hero And here's another, 88 Writ in my cousin's hand, stolen from her pocket,

Containing her affection unto Benedick Bene Amiracle! here's our own hands against our hearts Come, I will have thee, but, by this light, I take thee for pity 93

Beat I would not deny you, but, by this good day, I yield upon great persuasion, and partly to save your life, for I was told you were in a consumption 97

Bene Peace! I will stop your mouth

[Kisses her] D Pedro How dost thou, Benedick, the married man? 100

Bene I'll tell thee what, prince, a college of witrackers cannot flout me out of my humour Dost thou think I care for a satire or an epigram? No, if a man will be beaten with brains, a' shall wear nothing handsome about him In brief, since I do purpose to marry, I will think nothing to any purpose that the world can say against it, and therefore never flout at me for what I have said against it, for man is a giddy thing, and this is my conclusion For thy part, Claudio, I did think to have beaten thee, but, in that thou art like to be my kinsman, live unbruised, and love my cousin 113

Claud I had well hoped thou wouldst have denied Beatrice, that I might have cudgelled thee out of thy single life, to make thee a double-dealer, which, out of question, thou wilt be, if my cousin do not look exceeding narrowly to
 thee 119

Bene Come, come, we are friends Let's have a dance ere we are married, that we may lighten our own hearts and our wives' heels

Leon We'll have dancing afterward

Bene First, of my word, therefore play, music! Prince, thou art sad, get thee a wife, get thee a wife there is no staff more reverend than one tipped with horn. 127

Enter a messenger

Mes My lord, your brother John is ta'en in flight,

And brought with armed men back to Messina Bene Think not on him till to-morrow I'll devise thee brave punishments for him Strike up, pipers! [Dance Exeunt.]

ACT I

SCENE I —The KING OF NAVARRE'S Park

Enter the KING, BEROWNE, LONGAVILLE, and DUMAINE

King Let fame, that all hunt after in their lives,
 Live register'd upon our brazen tombs,
 And then grace us in the disgrace of death,
 When, spite of cormorant devouring Time, 4
 The endeavour of this present breath may buy
 That honour which shall bate his scythe's keen edge,
 And make us heirs of all eternity Therefore, brave conquerors,—for so you are,
 That war against your own affections 9
 And the huge army of the world's desires,—
 Our late edict shall strongly stand in force Navarre shall be the wonder of the world, 12
 Our court shall be a little academe,
 Still and contemplative in living art
 You three, Berowne, Dumaine, and Longaville,
 Have sworn for three years' term to live with me,
 My fellow-scholars, and to keep those statutes
 That are recorded in this schedule here 18
 Your oaths are pass'd, and now subscribe your names,
 That his own hand may strike his honour down
 That violates the smallest branch herein 21
 If you are arm'd to do, as sworn to do,
 Subscribe to your deep oaths, and keep it too Long I am resolv'd, 'tis but a three years' 24 fast
 The mind shall banquet, though the body pine Fat paunches have lean pates, and dainty bits
 Make rich the ribs, but bankrupt quite the wits Dum My loving lord, Dumaine is mortified
 The grosser manner of these world's delights 29
 He throws upon the gross world's baser slaves
 To love, to wealth, to pomp, I pine and die,
 With all these living in philosophy 32
Ber I can but say their protestation over,
 So much, dear hege, I have already sworn,
 That is, to live and study here three years
 But there are other strict observances, 36
 As, not to see a woman in that term,
 Which I hope well is not enrolled there

And one day in a week to touch no food,
 And but one meal on every day beside, 40
 The which I hope is not enrolled there
 And then, to sleep but three hours in the night,
 And not be seen to wink of all the day,—
 When I was wont to think no harm all night 44
 And make a dark night too of half the day,—
 Which I hope well is not enrolled there
 O! these are barren tasks, too hard to keep,
 Not to see ladies, study, fast not sleep 48 King Your oath is pass'd to pass away from these Ber Let me say no, my hege, an if you please
 I only swore to study with your Grace,
 And stay herein your court for three years' space Long You swore to that, Berowne, and to 53
 the rest
Ber By yea and nay, sir, then I swore in jest
 What is the end of study? let me know King Why, that to know which else we should not know 56 Ber Things hid and barr'd, you mean, from common sense?
King Ay, that is study's god like recompense Ber Come on then, I will swear to study so,
 To know the thing I am forbid to know, 60
 As thus to study where I well may dine,
 When I to feast expressly am forbid,
 Or study where to meet some mistress fine,
 When mistresses from common sense are hid,
 Or, having sworn too hard-a-keeping oath, 65
 Study to break it, and not break my troth
 If study's gain be thus, and thus be so,
 Study knows that which yet it doth not know Swear me to this, and I will ne'er say no 69 King These be the stops that hinder study quite,
 And train our intellects to vain delight Ber Why, all delights are vain, but that 72 most vain
 Which, with pain purchas'd doth inherit pain
 As, painfully to pore upon a book,
 To seek the light of truth, while truth the while Doth falsely blind the eyesight of his look 76
 Light seeking light doth light of light beguile
 So, ere you find where light in darkness lies,
 Your light grows dark by losing of your eyes

Study me how to please the eye indeed, 80
 By fling it upon a fairer eye,
 Who dazzling so, that eye shall be his heed,
 And give him light that it was blinded by Study is like the heaven's glorious sun, 84
 That will not be deep-search'd with saucy
 looks,
 Small have continual plodders ever won,
 Save base authority from others' books
 These earthly godfathers of heaven's lights 88
 That give a name to every fixed star,
 Have no more profit of their shining nights Than those that walk and wot not what they are Too much to know is to know nought but fame, 92
 And every godfather can give a name King How well he's read, to reason against reading!
Dum Proceeded well, to stop all good proceeding!
Long He weeds the corn, and still lets grow the weeding 96
Ber The spring is near, when green geese are a-breeding Dum How follows that?
Ber Fit in his place and time
Dum In reason nothing
Ber Something then, in rime
King Berowne is like an envious sneaping frost 100
 That bites the first-born infants of the spring Ber Well, say I am why should proud summer boast
 Before the birds have any cause to sing?
 Why should I joy in an abortive birth? 104
 At Christmas I no more desire a rose Than wish a snow in May's new-fangled mirth,
 But like of each thing that in season grows
 So you, to study now it is too late, 108
 Clumb o'er the house to unlock the little gate King Well, sit you out go home, Berowne
 adieu!
Ber No, my good lord, I have sworn to stay
 with you
 And though I have for barbarism spoke more Than for that angel knowledge you can say, 113
 Yet confident I'll keep to what I swore,
 And bide the penance of each three years' day
 Give me the paper, let me read the same, 116
 And to the strict'st decrees I'll write my name King How well this yielding rescues thee from shame!
Ber Item, That no woman shall come within a mile of my court Hath this been proclaimed? 121
Long Four days ago
Ber Let's see the penalty On pain of losing her tongue Who devised this penalty? 124 Long Marry, that did I
Ber Sweet lord, and why?
Long To fright them hence with that dread penalty
Ber A dangerous law against gentility! 127 Item. If any man be seen to talk with a wo- man within the term of three years, he shall endure such public shame as the rest of the court can possibly devise

 This article, my liege, yourself must break, 132
 For well you know here comes in embassy
 The French king's daughter with yourself to speak—
 A maid of grace and complete majesty—
 About surrender up of Aquitaine 136
 To her decrepit, sick, and bed-ridden father Therefore this article is made in vain,
 Or vainly comes th' admired princess hither King What say you, lords? why, this was quite forgot 140
Ber So study evermore is overshot While it doth study to have what it would,
 It doth forget to do the thing it should,
 And when it hath the thing it hunteth most,
 'Tis won as towns with fire, so won, so lost 145 King We must of force dispense with this decree,
 She must lie here on mere necessity
Ber Necessity will make us all forsworn 148 Three thousand times within this three years' space,
 For every man with his affects is born,
 Not by might master'd, but by special grace
 If I break faith this word shall speak for me, I am forsworn 'on mere necessity' 153
 So to the laws at large I write my name [Subscribes
 And he that breaks them in the least degree Stands in attainder of eternal shame 156
 Suggestions are to others as to me,
 But I believe, although I seem so loath,
 I am the last that will last keep his oath
 But is there no quick recreation granted? 160 King Ay, that there is Our court, you know, is haunted
 With a refined traveller of Spain,
 A man in all the world's new fashion planted,
 That hath a mint of phrases in his brain, 164
 One whom the music of his own vain tongue
 Doth ravish like enchanting harmony,
 A man of complements, whom right and wrong
 Have chose as umpire of their mutiny 168
 This child of fancy, that Armado hight, For interim to our studies shall relate
 In high-born words the worth of many a knight
 From tawny Spain lost in the world's debate
 How you delight, my lords, I know not, I, 173
 But, I protest, I love to hear him lie,
 And I will use him for my minstrelsy
Ber Armado is a most illustrious wight, 176
 A man of fire-new words, fashion's own knight Long Costard the swain and he shall be our sport,
 And, so to study, three years is but short.
 Enter DULL, with a letter, and COSTARD Dull Which is the duke's own person? 180
Ber This, fellow What wouldst?
Dull I myself reprehend his own person, for I am his Grace's tharborough but I would see his own person in flesh and blood, 184

Ber This is he Dull Signior Arm—Arm—commends you There's villany abroad this letter will tell you
 more 188
Cost Sir, the contempts thereof are as touching me
King A letter from the magnificent Armado King How long soever the matter, I hope in God for high words 193 Long A high hope for a low heaven God grant us patience!
Ber To hear, or forbear laughing? 196 Long To hear meekly, sir, and to laugh moderately, or to forbear both.
Ber Well, sir, be it as the style shall give us cause to climb in the merriness 200 Cost The matter is to me, sir, as concerning Jaquenetta The manner of it is, I was taken with the manner
Ber In what manner? 204
Cost In manner and form following, sir, all those three I was seen with her in the manorhouse, sitting with her upon the form, and taken following her into the park, which, put together, is, in manner and form following Now, sir, for the manner,—it is the manner of a man to speak to a woman, for the form,—in some form Ber For the following sir? 212 Cost As it shall follow in my correction, and God defend the right!
King Will you hear this letter with attention?
Ber As we would hear an oracle 216 Cost Such is the simplicity of man to hearken after the flesh
King Great deputy, the welkin's vicegerent, and sole dominator of Navarre, my soul's earth's God, and body's fostering patron, 221
Cost Not a word of Costard yet.
King So it is — Cost It may be so, but if he say it is so, he is, in telling true, but so — 225 King Peace!
Cost Be to me and every man that dares not fight 228
King No words!
Cost Of other men's secrets, I beseech you King So it is, besieged with sable-coloured melancholy, I did commend the black-oppressing humour to the most wholesome physic of thy health-giving air, and, as I am a gentleman, betook myself to walk The time when?
 About the sixth hour when beasts most graze, birds best peck, and men sit down to that nourishment which is called supper so much for the time when Now for the ground which which, I mean, I walked upon it is ycleped thy park Then for the place where where, I mean, I did encounter that most obscene and preposterous event, that draweth from my snow-white pen the ebony-coloured ink, which here thou viewest, beholdest, surveyest, or seest But to the place where, it standeth north-north-east and by east from the west corner of thy curiousknotted garden there did I see that low-spirited swain that base munnow of thy mirth,— 249
Cost Me

King that unlettered small-knowing soul,—
Cost Me 252
King that shallow vessel,—
Cost Still me
King which, as I remember, hight Costard,— 256
Cost O me
King sorted and consorted, contrary to thy established proclaimed edict and continent canon, with—with,—O! with but with this I passion to say wherewith,— Cost With a wench 262
King with a child of our grandmother Eve, a female, or, for thy more sweet understanding, a woman Him, I,—as my ever-esteemed duty pricks me on,—have sent to thee, to receive the meed of punishment, by thy sweet Grace's officer, Antony Dull, a man of good repute, carriage, bearing, and estimation 269 Dull Me, an't please you, I am Antony Dull King For Jaquenetta,—so is the weaker vessel called which I apprehended with the aforesaid swain,—I keep her as a vessel of thy law's fury, and shall, at the least of thy sweet notice, bring her to trial Thine, in all compliments of devoted and heart-burning heat of duty, 276

DON ADRIANO DE ARMADO

Ber This is not so well as I looked for, but the best that ever I heard King Ay, the best for the worst But, sirrah, what say you to this? 280
Cost Sir, I confess the wench
King Did you hear the proclamation?
Cost I do confess much of the hearing it, but little of the marking of it 284 King It was proclaimed a year's imprisonment to be taken with a wench Cost I was taken with none, sir I was taken with a damosel 288
King Well, it was proclaimed 'damosel' Cost This was no damosel neither, sir she was a virgin
King It is so varied too, for it was proclaimed 'virgin' 293 Cost If it were, I deny her virginity I was taken with a maid
King This maid will not serve your turn, sir Cost This maid will serve my turn, sir 297 King Sir, I will pronounce your sentence you shall fast a week with bran and water Cost I had rather pray a month with mutton and porridge 301
King And Don Armado shall be your keeper
 My Lord Berowne, see him deliver'd o'er
 And go we, lords, to put in practice that 304 Which each to other hath so strongly sworn [Exeunt KING, LONGAVILLE, and DUMAINE
Ber I'll lay my head to any good man's hat,
 These oaths and laws will prove an idle scorn Sirrah, come on 308
Cost I suffer for the truth, sir for true it is I was taken with Jaquenetta, and Jaquenetta is a true girl, and therefore welcome the sour cup of prosperity! Affliction may one day smile again, and till then, sit thee down, sorrow! [Exeunt

SCENE II.—The SameEnter ARMADO and MOTH.

Arm Boy, what sign is it when a man of great spirit grows melancholy?

Moth A great sign, sir, that he will look sad

Arm Why, sadness is one and the self-same thing, dear ump 5

Moth No, no, O Lord, sir, no

Arm How canst thou part sadness and melancholy, my tender juvenal? 8

Moth By a familiar demonstration of the working, my tough senior Arm Why tough senior? why tough senior?

Moth Why tender juvenal? why tender juvenal? 13

Arm I spoke it, tender juvenal, as a congruent epitheton appertaining to thy young days, which we may nominate tender 16

Moth And I, tough senior, as an appertinent title to your old time, which we may name tough

Arm Pretty, and apt

Moth How mean you, sir? I pretty, and my saying apt? or I apt, and my saying pretty? 21

Arm Thou pretty, because little

Moth Little pretty, because little Wherefore apt? 24

Arm And therefore apt, because quick

Moth Speak you thus in my praise, master?

Arm In thy condign praise

Moth I will praise an eel with the same praise 29

Arm What! that an eel is ingenuous?

Moth That an eel is quick

Arm I do say thou art quick in answers thou heatest my blood 33

Moth I am answered, sir

Arm I love not to be crossed

Moth [Aside] He speaks the mere contrary crosses love not him 37

Arm I have promised to study three years with the duke

Moth You may do it in an hour, sir 40

Arm Impossible

Moth How many is one thrice told?

Arm I am ill at reckoning, it fitteth the spirit of a tapster 44

Moth You are a gentleman and a gamester, sir

Arm I confess both they are both the varnish of a complete man 48

Moth Then, I am sure you know how much the gross sum of deuce-ace amounts to Arm It doth amount to one more than two Moth Which the base vulgar do call three

Arm True 53

Moth Why, sir, is this such a piece of study? Now, here's three studied, ere you'll thrice wink, and how easy it is to put 'years' to the word 'three,' and study three years in two words, the dancing horse will tell you Arm A most fine figure!

Moth To prove you a cipher. 60

Arm I will hereupon confess I am in love, and as it is base for a soldier to love, so am I in love with a base wench If drawing my sword against the humour of affection would deliver me from the reprobate thought of it, I would take Desire prisoner, and ransom him to any French courtier for a new devised curtsy I think scorn to sigh methinks I should out-swear Cupid. Comfort me, boy what greatness have been in love? 70

Moth Hercules, master

Arm Most sweet Hercules! More authority, dear boy, name more, and, sweet my child, let them be men of good repute and carriage 74

Moth Samson, master he was a man of good carriage, great carriage, for he carried the town-gates on his back like a porter, and he was in love

Arm O well-knit Samson! strong-jointed Samson! I do excel thee in my rapier as much as thou didst me in carrying gates I am in love too Who was Samson's love, my dear Moth? 82

Moth A woman, master

Arm Of what complexion?

Moth Of all the four, or the three, or the two, or one of the four

Arm Tell me precisely of what complexion

Moth Of the sea-water green, sir 87

Arm Is that one of the four complexions?

Moth As I have read, sir, and the best of them too 90

Arm Green indeed is the colour of lovers, but to have a love of that colour, methinks Samson had small reason for it He surely affected her for her wit 94

Moth It was so, sir, for she had a green wit

Arm My love is most unmaculate white and red

Moth Most maculate thoughts, master, are masked under such colours 99

Arm Define, define, well-educated infant

Moth My father's wit, and my mother's tongue, assist me!

Arm Sweet invocation of a child, most pretty and pathetic! 104

Moth If she be made of white and red,

Her faults will ne'er be known

For blushing cheeks by faults are bred,

And fears by pale white shown 108

Then if she fear or be to blame,

By this you shall not know,

For still her cheeks possess the same

Which native she doth owe 112

A dangerous rime, master, against the reason of white and red

Arm Is there not a ballad, boy, of the King and the Beggar? 116

Moth The world was very guilty of such a ballad some three ages since, but I think now 'tis not to be found, or, if it were, it would

neither serve for the writing nor the tune 120

Arm I will have that subject newly writ o'er, that I may example my digression by some mighty precedent Boy, I do love that country girl that I took in the park with the rational hind Costard she deserves well 125

Moth [Aside] To be whipped, and yet a better love than my master

Arm Sing, boy my spirit grows heavy in love 129

Moth And that's great marvel, loving a light wench

Arm I say, sing

Moth Forbear till this company be past god of rime, for I am sure I shall turn sonnetter Devise, wit, write, pen, for I am for whole volumes in folio

[Exit

Enter DULL, COSTARD, and JAQUENETTA

Dull Sir, the duke's pleasure is, that you keep Costard safe and you must let him take no delight nor no penance, but a' must fast three days a week. For this damsel, I must keep her at the park, she is allowed for the day-woman Fare you well

Arm I do betray myself with blushing Maid!

Jaqu Man?

Arm I will visit thee at the lodge

Jaqu That's hereby

Arm I know where it is situate Jaqu Lord, how wise you are!

Arm I will tell thee wonders

Jaqu With that face?

Arm I love thee

Jaqu So I heard you say

Arm And so farewell

Jaqu Fair weather after you!

Dull Come, Jaquenetta, away!

[Exeunt DULL and JAQUENETTA]

Arm Villain, thou shalt fast for thy offences ere thou be pardoned

Cost Well, sir, I hope, when I do it, I shall do it on a full stomach

Arm Thou shalt be heavily punished

Cost I am more bound to you than your fellows, for they are but lightly rewarded

Arm Take away this villain shut him up

Moth Come, you transgressing slave away!

Cost Let me not be pent up, sir I will fast, being loose

Moth No, sir, that were fast and loose thou shalt to prison

Cost Well, if ever I do see the merry days of desolation that I have seen, some shall see—

Moth What shall some see?

Cost Nay, nothing, Master Moth, but what they look upon. It is not for prisoners to be too silent in their words and therefore I will say nothing. I thank God I have as little patience as another man, and therefore I can be quiet

[Exeunt MOTH and COSTARD]
Arm I do affect the very ground, which is base, where her shoe, which is baser, guided by her foot, which is basest, doth tread. I shall be forsworn,—which is a great argument of falsehood,—if I love. And how can that be true love which is falsely attempted? Love is a familiar, Love is a devil there is no evil angel but Love. Yet was Samson so tempted, and he had an excellent strength, yet was Solomon so seduced, and he had a very good wit. Cupid's butt-shaft is too hard for Hercules' club, and therefore too much odds for a Spaniard's rapier. The first and second clause will not serve my turn, the passado he respects not, the duello he regards not. His disgrace is to be called boy, but his glory is, to subdue men. Adieu, valour! rust, rapier! be still, drum! for your manager is in love, yea, he loveth. Assist me some extemporal

ACT II

SCENE I.—The KING of NAVARRE's Park. A Pavilion and Tents at a distance

Enter the PRINCESS of FRANCE, ROSALINE, MARIA, KATHARINE, BOYET, Lords, and other Attendants

Boyet Now, madam, summon up your dearest spirits

Consider whom the king your father sends, To whom he sends, and what's his embassy. Yourself, held precious in the world's esteem, 4

To parley with the sole inheritor Of all perfections that a man may owe,

Matchless Navarre, the plea of no less weight

Than Aquitaine, a dowry for a queen 8

Be now as prodigal of all dear grace

As Nature was in making graces dear

When she did starve the general world beside,

And prodigally gave them all to you 12

Prin Good Lord Boyet, my beauty, though

but mean,

Needs not the painted flourish of your praise

Beauty is bought by judgment of the eye,

Not utter'd by base sale of chapmen's tongues

I am less proud to hear you tell my worth 17

Than you much willing to be counted wise

In spending your wit in the praise of mine

But now to task the tasker good Boyet, 20

You are not ignorant, all-telling fame

Doth noise abroad, Navarre hath made a vow,

Till painful study shall out-wear three years,

No woman may approach his silent court 24

Therefore to us seem'h it a needful course,

Before we enter his forbidden gates,

To know his pleasure, and in that behalf,

Bold of your worthiness, we single you 28

As our best-moving fair solicitor

Tell him, the daughter of the King of France,

On serious business craving quick dispatch,

Importunes personal conference with his Grace

Haste, signify so much, while we attend, 33

Like humble-visag'd suitors, his high will

Boyet Proud of employment, willingly I go

Prin All pride is willing pride, and yours is so

Who are the votaries, my loving lords, 37

That are vow-fellows with this virtuous duke?

First Lord Lord Longaville is one

Prin Know you the man?

Mar I know him, madam at a marriage

feast, 40

Between Lord Perigot and the beauteous heir

Of Jacques l'Alconbridge, solemnized

In Normandy, saw I this Longaville

A man of sovereign parts he is esteem'd, 44

Well fitted in the arts, glorious in arms

Nothing becomes him ill that he would well

The only soil of his fair virtue's gloss,—

If virtue's gloss will stain with any soil,— 48

Is a sharp wit match'd with too blunt a will;

Whose edge hath power to cut, whose will still wills

It should none spare that come within his power

Prin Some merry mocking lord, belike, is't so?

Mar They say so most that most his humours know

Prin Such short liv'd wits do wither as they grow

Who are the rest?

Kath The young Dumaine, a well-accomplish'd youth,

Of all that virtue love for virtue lov'd

Most power to do most harm, least knowing ill,

For he hath wit to make an ill shape good,

And shape to win grace though he had no wit

I saw him at the Duke Alençon's once,

And much too little of that good I saw

Is my report to his great worthiness

Ros Another of these students at that time

Was there with him, if I have heard a truth

Berowne they call him, but a merrier man,

Within the limit of becoming mirth,

I never spent an hour's talk withal

His eye begets occasion for his wit,

For every object that the one doth catch

The other turns to a mirth-moving jest,

Which his fair tongue, conceit's expositor,

Delivers in such apt and gracious words,

That aged ears play truant at his tales,

And younger hearings are quite ravished,

So sweet and voluble is his discourse

Prin God bless my ladies! are they all in love,

That every one her own hath garnished

With such bedecking ornaments of praise?

First Lord Here comes Boyet

Re-enter BOYET

Prin Now, what admittance, lord?

Boyet Navarre had notice of your fair approach,

And he and his competitors in oath

Were all address'd to meet you, gentle lady,

Before I came. Marry, thus much I have learnt,

He rather means to lodge you in the field,

Like one that comes here to besiege his court,

Than seek a dispensation for his oath,

To let you enter his unpeeled house

Here comes Navarre [The Ladies mask]

Enter KING, LONGAVILLE, DUMAINE, BEROWNE, and Attendants

King Fair princess, welcome to the court of Navarre

Prin 'Fair,' I give you back again, and 'welcome' I have not yet the roof of this court is too high to be yours, and welcome to the wide fields too base to be mine

King You shall be welcome, madam, to my court

Prin I will be welcome, then conduct me thither

King Hear me, dear lady, I have sworn an oath.

Prin Our Lady help my lord! he'll be forsworn

King Not for the world, fair madam, by my will Prin Why, will shall break it, will, and nothing else

King Your ladyship is ignorant what it is Prin Were my lord so, his ignorance were wise,

Where now his knowledge must prove ignorance

I hear your grace hath sworn out house-keeping

'Tis deadly sin to keep that oath, my lord,

And sin to break it

But pardon me, I am too sudden-bold

To teach a teacher ill besemeth me

Vouchsafe to read the purpose of my coming,

And suddenly resolve me in my suit

[Gives a paper]

King Madam, I will, if suddenly I may

Prin You will the sooner that I were away, For you'll prove perjur'd if you make me stay

Ber Did not I dance with you in Brabant once?

Ros Did not I dance with you in Brabant once?

Ber I know you did

Ros How needless was it then To ask the question!

Ber You must not be so quick

Ros 'Tis long of you that spur me with such questions

Ber Your wit's too hot, it speeds too fast, 'twill tire

Ros Not till it leave the rider in the mire

Ber What time o' day?

Ros The hour that fools should ask

Ber Now fair befall your mask!

Ros Fair fall the face it covers!

Ber And send you many lovers!

Ros Amen, so you be none

Ber Nay, then I will be gone

King Madam, your father here doth intimate The payment of a hundred thousand crowns,

Being but the one half of an entire sum

Disbursed by my father in his wars

But say that he, or we,—as neither have,— Receiv'd that sum, yet there remains unpaid

A hundred thousand more, in surety of the which,

One part of Aquitaine is bound to us,

Although not valu'd to the money's worth

If then the king your father will restore

But that one half which is unsatisfied,

We will give up our right in Aquitaine,

And hold fair friendship with his majesty

But that it seems, he little purposeth,

For here he doth demand to have repaid

A hundred thousand crowns, and not demands,

On payment of a hundred thousand crowns,

To have his title live in Aquitaine,

Which we much rather had depart withal,

And have the money by our father lent,

Than Aquitaine, so gelded as it is

Dear princess, were not his requests so far

From reason's yielding, your fair self should make
A yielding 'gainst some reason in my breast,
And go well satisfied to France again. 152 Prin You do the king my father too much wrong
And wrong the reputation of your name,
In so unseemingly to confess receipt
Of that which hath so faithfully been paid 156
King I do protest I never heard of it,
And if you prove it, I'll repay it back Or yield up Aquitaine
Prin We arrest your word
Boyet, you can produce acquittances 160
For such a sum from special officers Of Charles his father
King Satisfy me so Boyet So please your Grace, the packet is not come
Where that and other specialties are bound 164
To-morrow you shall have a sight of them
King It shall suffice me at which interview All liberal reason I will yield unto Meantime, receives such welcome at my hand 168
As honour, without breach of honour, may Make tender of to thy true worthiness
You may not come, fair princess, in my gates,
But here without you shall be so receiv'd, 172
As you shall deem yourself lodg'd in my heart, Though so denied fair harbour in my house
Your own good thoughts excuse me, and farewell
To-morrow shall we visit you again. 176 Prin Sweet health and fair desires consort your Grace!
King Thy own wish wish I thee in every place! [Exeunt KING and his Train Ber Lady, I will commend you to mine own
heart
Ros Pray you, do my commendations, I would be glad to see it 180
Ber I would you heard it groan Ros Is the fool sick?
Ber Sick at the heart
Ros Alack! let it bleed 184
Ber Would that do it good?
Ros My physic says, 'ay'
Ber Will you prick't with your eye?
Ros No point, with my knife 188
Ber Now, God save thy life!
Ros And yours from long living!
Ber I cannot stay thanksgiving [Retiring Dum Sir, I pray you, a word what lady is that same? 192
Boyet The heir of Alençon, Katharine her
name
Dum A gallant lady Monsieur, fare you well [Exit Long I beseech you a word what is she in the white?
Boyet A woman sometimes, an you saw her in the light 196
Long Perchance light in the light I desire her name
Boyet She hath but one for herself, to desire that, were a shame

Long Pray you, sir, whose daughter?
Boyet Her mother's, I have heard 200
Long God's blessing on your beard!
Boyet Good sir, be not offended
She is an heir of Falconbridge Long Nay, my choler is ended 204
She is a most sweet lady Boyet Not unlike, sir, that may be [Exit LONGAVILLE
Ber What's her name, in the cap?
Boyet Rosaline, by good hap 208
Ber Is she wedded or no?
Boyet To her will, sir, or so Ber You are welcome, sir Adieu Boyet Farewell to me, sir, and welcome to you [Exit BEROWNE —Ladies unmask Mar That last is Berowne, the merry madcap lord 213
Not a word with him but a jest
Boyet And every jest but a word Prin It was well done of you to take him at his word
Boyet I was as willing to grapple, as he was to board 216
Mar Two hot sheeps, marry!
Boyet And wherefore not ships?
No sheep, sweet lamb, unless we feed on your lips
Mar You sheep, and I pasture shall that finish the jest?
Boyet So you grant pasture for me [Offering to kiss her Mar Not so, gentle beast 220
My lips are no common, though several they be Boyet Belonging to whom?
Mar To my fortunes and me Prin Good wits will be jangling, but, gentles, agree
This civil war of wits were much better us'd 224
On Navarre and his book-men, for here 'tis abus'd
Boyet If my observation,—which very seldom hes,—
By the heart's still rhetoric disclosed with eyes, Deceive me not now, Navarre is infected 228 Prin With what?
Boyet With that which we lovers entitle affected
Prin Your reason Boyet Why, all his behaviours did make their retire 232
To the court of his eye, peeping thorough desire,
His heart, like an agate, with your print im-press'd,
Proud with his form, in his eye pride express'd
His tongue, all impatient to speak and not see, Did stumble with haste in his eyesight to be,
All senses to that sense did make their repair,
To feel only looking on fairest of fair,
Methought all his senses were lock'd in his eye,
As jewels in crystal for some prince to buy, 241 Who, tend'ring their own worth from where they were glass'd,
Did point you to buy them, along as you pass'd
His face's own margent did quote such amazes,
That all eyes saw his eyes enchanted with gazes

I'll give you Aquitaine, and all that is his, 246 An' you give him for my sake but one loving kiss

Prin Come to our pavilion. Bovet is dispos'd Boyet But to speak that in words which his eye hath disclos'd

I only have made a mouth of his eye,

By adding a tongue which I know will not lie Ros Thou art an old love-monger, and speak'st skilfully 252

Mar He is Cupid's grandfather and learns news of him.

Ros Then was Venus like her mother, for her father is but grum

Boyet Do you hear, my mad wenches?

Mar No

Boyet What, then, do you see?

Ros Ay, our way to be gone

Boyet You are too hard for me 256
[Exeunt]

ACT III

SCENE I.—The KING OF NAVARRE'S Park

Enter ARMADO and MOTH

Arm Warble, child, make passionate my sense of hearing

Moth [Singing] Concolnel,— 3

Arm Sweet air! Go, tenderness of years, take this key, give enlargement to the swain, bring him festinately hither, I must employ him in a letter to my love

Moth Master, will you win your love with a French brawl? 9

Arm How meanest thou? brawling in French?

Moth No, my complete master, but to jig off a tune at the tongue's end, canary to it with your feet, humour it with turning up your eyelids, sigh a note and sing a note, sometime through the throat, as if you swallowed love by singing love, sometime through the nose, as if you snuffed up love by smelling love, with your hat penthouse-like o'er the shop of your eyes, with your arms crossed on your thin belly-doublet like a rabbit on a spit, or your hands in your pocket like a man after the old painting and keep not too long in one tune, but a snip and away. These are complements, these are humours, these betray nice wenches, that would be betrayed without these, and make them men of note,—do you note me?—that most are affected to these 27

Arm How hast thou purchased this experience?

Moth By my penny of observation.

Arm But O—but O,—

Moth 'The hobby-horse is forgot' 32

Arm Callest thou my love hobby-horse?

Moth No, master, the hobby-horse is but a colt, and your love perhaps, a hackney. But have you forgot your love? 36

Arm Almost I had

Moth Negligent student! learn her by heart.

Arm By heart, and in heart, boy

Moth And out of heart, master, all those three I will prove 41

Arm What wilt thou prove?

Moth A man, if I live, and this, by, in, and without, upon the instant by heart you love her, because your heart cannot come by her, in heart you love her, because your heart is in love with her, and out of heart you love her, being out of heart that you cannot enjoy her 48

Arm I am all these three Moth And three times as much more, and yet nothing at all

Arm Fetch hither the swain he must carry me a letter 53

Moth A message well sympathized a horse to be ambassador for an ass

Arm Ha, ha! what sayest thou? 56

Moth Marry, sir, you must send the ass upon the horse, for he is very slow-gaited. But I go Arm The way is but short away! 60

Moth As swift as lead, sir

Arm Thy meaning, pretty ingenious?
Is not lead a metal heavy, dull, and slow?

Moth Mumme, honest master, or rather, master, no

Arm I say, lead is slow

Moth You are too swift, sir, to say so
Is that lead slow which is fir'd from a gun? 65

Arm Sweet smoke of rhetoric!

He reputes me a cannon, and the bullet, that's he

I shoot thee at the swain

Moth Thump then, and I flee [Exit]

Arm A most acute juvenal, volable and free of grace! 69

By thy favour, sweet welkin, I must sigh in thy
face

Most rude melancholy, valour gives thee place
My herald is return'd 72

Re-enter MOTH with COSTARD

Moth A wonder, master! here's a costard broken in a shin

Arm Some enigma, some riddle come, thy l'envoy, begin

Cost No enigma no riddle, no l'envoy, no salve in the mail, sir O! sir, plantain, a plain plantain no l'envoy, no l'envoy no salve, sir, but a plantain 78

Arm By virtue, thou enforcest laughter, thy silly thought, my spleen, the heaving of my lungs provokes me to ridiculous smiling O! pardon me, my stars Doth the inconsiderate take salve for l'envoy, and the word l'envoy for a salve? 84

Moth Do the wise think them other? is not l'envoy a salve?

Arm No, page it is an epilogue or discourse, to make plain

Some obscure precedence that hath tofore been sam 88

I will example it

The fox, the ape, and the humble-bee
Were still at odds, being but three There's the moral, Now the l'envoy. 92

Moth I will add the l'envoy Say the moral again

Arm. The fox, the ape, and the humble bee,
Were still at odds, being but three 96

Moth. Until the goose came out of door,
And stay'd the odds by adding four Now will I begin your moral, and do you follow with my l'envoy 100

The fox, the ape, and the humble-bee,
Were still at odds, being but three

Arm. Until the goose came out of door,
Staying the odds by adding four 104

Moth A good l'envoy, ending in the goose Would you desire more?

Cost The boy hath sold him a bargain, a goose, that's flat

Sir, your pennyworth is good an your goose be fat 108

To sell a bargain well is as cunning as fast and loose

Let me see, a fat l'envoy, ay, that's a fat goose

Arm Come hither, come hither How did this argument begin?

Moth. By saying that a costard was broken in a shun 112

Then call'd you for the l'envoy

Cost True, and I for a plantain thus came your argument in,

Then the boy's fat l'envoy, the goose that you bought,

And he ended the market 116

Arm But tell me, how was there a costard broken in a shun?

Moth I will tell you sensibly Cost Thou hast no feeling of it, Moth I will speak that l'envoy 121

I, Costard, running out, that was safely within, Fell over the threshold and broke my shun

Arm We will talk no more of this matter 124

Cost Till there be more matter in the shun

Arm Sirrah Costard, I will enfranchise thee

Cost O! marry me to one Frances I smell some l'envoy, some goose, in this 128

Arm. By my sweet soul, I mean setting thee at liberty, enfranchising thy person thou wert immured, restrained, captivated, bound

Cost True, true, and now you will be my purgation and let me loose 133

Arm I give thee thy liberty, set thee from durance, and in lieu thereof, impose upon thee nothing but this —[Giving a letter] Bear this significant to the country maid Jaquenetta [Giving money] There is remuneration, for the best ward of mine honour is rewarding my dependents Moth, follow [Exit] 137

Moth Like the sequel, I. Signior Costard, adieu 141

Cost My sweet ounce of man's flesh! my incony Jew! [Exit MOTH]

Now will I look to his remuneration 'Remuneration! O! that's the Latin word for three farthings three farthings, remuneration 'What's the price of this mkle?' 'One penny' 'No, I'll give you a remuneration' why, it carries it Remuneration! why, it is a fairer name than French crown I will never buy and sell out of this word

Enter BEROWNE

Ber O! my good knave Costard, exceedingly well met 152

Cost Pray you, sir, how much carnation riband may a man buy for a remuneration?

Ber What is a remuneration?

Cost Marry, sir, halfpenny farthing 156

Ber Why then, three-farthing-worth of silk

Cost I thank your worship God be wi'
you!

Ber Stay, slave, I must employ thee 160
As thou wilt win my favour, good my knave,
Do one thing for me that I shall entreat

Cost When would you have it done, sir?

Ber O, this afternoon 164

Cost Well, I will do it, sir! fare you well

Ber O, thou knowest not what it is Cost I shall know, sir, when I have done it

Ber Why, villain, thou must know first 168

Cost I will come to your worship to-morrow morning

Ber It must be done this afternoon Hark, slave, it is but this 172

The princess comes to hunt here in the park,
And in her train there is a gentle lady,

When tongues speak sweetly, then they name
her name,

And Rosaline they call her ask for her 176

And to her white hand see thou do commend This seal'd-up counsel [Gives him a shilling]

There's thy guerdon go

Cost Gardon, O sweet gardon! better than remuneration, a 'leven-pence farthing better

Most sweet gardon! I will do it, sir, in print Gardon! remuneration! [Exit] 180

Ber And I,—

Forsooth, in love! I, that have been love's whip,

A very beadle to a humorous sigh, 185

A critic, nay, a night-watch constable,

A domineering pedant o'er the boy,

Than whom no mortal so magnificent! 188

This wimpled, whining, purblind, wayward boy,

This senior-junior, giant-dwarf, Dan Cupid,

Regent of love-rimes, lord of folded arms,

The anointed sovereign of sighs and groans, 192

Liege of all loiterers and malecontents,

Dread prince of plackets, king of codpieces,

Sole imperator and great general

Of trotting paritors O my little heart! 196

And I to be a corporal of his field,

And wear his colours like a tumbler's hoop!

What II I love! I sue! I seek a wife!

A woman that is like a German clock, 200

Still a-repairing, ever out of frame,

And never going aright, being a watch,

But being watch'd that it may still go right!

Nay, to be perjurd, which is worst of all, 204

And, among three, to love the worst of all,

A wighty wanton with a velvet brow,

With two pitch balls stuck in her face for eyes,

Ay, and, by heaven, one that will do the deed 208

Though Argus were her eunuch and her guard

And I to sigh for her! to watch for her!

To pray for her! Go to, it is a plague
That Cupid will impose for my neglect 212
Of his almighty dreadful little might Well, I will love, write, sigh, pray, sue, and groan
Some men must love my lady, and some Joan [Exit

ACT IV

SCENE I—The KING OF NAVARRE'S Park

Enter the PRINCESS, ROSALINE, MARIA, KATHARINE, BOYET, Lords, Attendants, and a Forester

Prin Was that the king, that spurr'd his horse so hard Against the steep uprising of the hill?

Boyet I know not, but I think it was not he Prin Whoe'er a' was, a' show'd a mounting mind 4

Well, lords, to day we shall have our dispatch,
On Saturday we will return to France
Then, forester, my friend, where is the bush
That we must stand and play the murderer in? 8

For Hereby, upon the edge of yonder cop-pice,
A stand where you may make the fairest shoot

Prin I thank my beauty, I am fair that shoot, 11

And thereupon thou speak'st the fairest shoot
For Pardon me, madam, for I meant not so

Prin What, what? first praise me, and again say no?

O short-liv'd pride! Not fair? alack! for woe!
For Yes, madam, fair

Prin Nay never paint me now 16
Where fair is not, praise cannot mend the brow Here, good my glass—[Gives money] Take this for telling true

Fair payment for foul words is more than due For Nothing but fair is that which you inherent 20

Prin See, see! my beauty will be sav'd by merit
O heresy in fair, fit for these days!

A giving hand, though foul, shall have fair praise

But come, the bow now mercy goes to kill, 24
And shooting well is then accounted ill

Thus will I save my credit in the shoot
Not wounding, pity would not let me do't,

If wounding, then it was to show my skill, 28
That more for praise than purpose meant to kill

And out of question so it is sometimes,
Glory grows guilty of detested crimes,

When, for fame's sake, for praise, an outward part, 32

We bend to that the working of the heart,
As I for praise alone now seek to spill

The poor deer's blood, that my heart means no ill

Boyet Do not curst wives hold that self-sovereignty 36

Only for praise' sake, when they strive to be Lords o'er their lords?

Prin Only for praise, and praise we may afford
To any lady that subdues a lord. 40

Enter COSTARD

Boyet Here comes a member of the commonwealth

Cost God dig-you-den all! Pray you, which is the head lady?

Prin Thou shalt know her, fellow, by the rest that have no heads 45

Cost Which is the greatest lady, the highest?
Prin The thickest, and the tallest

Cost The thickest, and the tallest! it is so truth is truth 48

An your waist, mistress, were as slender as my wit,

One o' these maids' girdles for your waist should be fit

Are not you the chief woman? you are the thickest here

Prin What's your will, sir? what's your will?
Cost I have a letter from Monsieur Berowne to one Lady Rosaline 53

Prin O! thy letter, thy letter, he's a good friend of mine

Stand aside, good bearer Boyet, you can carve, Break up this capon

Boyet I am bound to serve 56
This letter is mistook, it importeth none here
It is writ to Jaquenetta

Prin We will read it, I swear Break the neck of the wax and every one give ear

Boyet By heaven, that thou art fair, is most infallible true, that thou art beauteous, truth itself, that thou art lovely

More fairer than fair, beautiful than beauteous, truer than truth itself, have commiseration on thy heretical vassal! The magnanimous and most illustre king Cophetua set eye upon the pernicious and indubitate beggar Zenelophon, and he it was that might rightly say vici, vici, which to anatomize in the vulgar—O base and obscure vulgar!—videlicet, he came, saw, and overcame he came, one saw, two overcame, three Who came? the king Why did he come? to see Why did he see? to overcome To whom came he? to the beggar What saw he? the beggar Whom overcame he? the beggar The conclusion is victory on whose side? the king's, the captive is enriched on whose side? the beggar's The catastrophe is a nuptial on whose side? the king's, no, on both in one, or one in both I am the king, for so stands the comparison, thou the beggar, for so witnesseth thy lowliness Shall

I command thy love? I may Shall I enforce thy love? I could Shall I entreat thy love? I will What shalt thou exchange for rags? robes; for titles? titles, for thyself? me Thus, expecting thy reply, I profane my lips on thy foot, my eyes on thy picture, and my heart on thy every part 88

Thine, in the dearest design of Industry,
DON ADRIANO DE ARMADO

*Thus dost thou hear the Nemean lion roar
'Gainst thee, thou lamb, that standest as his prey* 92
*Submissive fall his princely feet before,
And he from forage will incline to play
But if thou strive, poor soul, what art thou then?*
Food for his rage, repasture for his den 96 Prin What plume of feathers is he that in-dited this letter?
What vane? what weathercock? did you ever hear better?
Boyet I am much deceiv'd but I remember the style
Prin Else, our memory is bad, going o'er it erewhile 100
Boyet Thus Armado is a Spaniard, that keeps here in court,
A phantasime, a Monarcho, and one that makes sport
To the prince and his book-mates Prin Thou, fellow, a word
Who gave thee this letter?
Cost I told you, my lord 104
Prin To whom shouldst thou give it?
Cost From my lord to my lady Prin From which lord, to which lady?
Cost From my lord Berowne, a good master
of mine,
To a lady of France that he call'd Rosaline Prin Thou hast mistaken his letter Come, lords, away 109
Here, sweet, put up this 'twill be 'hine another day [Exeunt PRINCESS and IRAM] Boyet Who is the suitor? who is the suitor?
Ros Shall I teach you to know?
Boyet Ay, my continent of beauty
Ros Why, she that bears the bow 113
Finely put off!
Boyet My lady goes to kill horns, but, if thou marry,
Hang me by the neck if horns that year miscarry Finely put on! 116
Ros Well then, I am the shooter Boyet And who is your deer?
Ros If we choose by the horns, yourself come not near Finely put on, indeed!
Mar You still wrangle with her, Boyet, and she strikes at the brow 120 Boyet But she herself is hit lower have I hit her now?
Ros Shall I come upon thee with an old saying that was a man when King Pepin of France was a little boy, as touching the hit it? 124 Boyet So may I answer thee with one as old, that was a woman when Queen Guinever of Britain was a little wench, as touching the hit it 128
Ros. Thou canst not hit it, hit it, hit it, Thou canst not hit it, my good man Boyet An I cannot, cannot, cannot,
An I cannot, another can 132
[Exeunt ROSALINE and KATHARINE]

Cost By my troth, most pleasant how both did fit it!
Mar A mark marvellous well shot, for they both did hit it Boyet A mark! O! mark but that mark, a mark, says my lady!
Let the mark have a prick in't, to mete at, if it may be 136
Mar Wide o' the bow hand! I' faith your hand is out Cost Indeed a' must shoot nearer, or he'll ne'er hit the clout Boyet An' if my hand be out, then belike your hand is in Cost Then will she get the upshoot by cleaving the pin 140
Mar Come, come, you talk greasily, your lips grow foul Cost She's too hard for you at pricks, sir challenge her to bowl Boyet I fear too much rubbing Good night, my good owl [Exeunt BOYET and MARIA] Cost By my soul, a swain! a most simple clown! 144
Lord, lord how the ladies and I have put him
down!
O' my troth, most sweet jests! most incony vulgar wit!
When it comes so smoothly off, so obscenely, as it were, so fit
Armado o' the one side, O! a most dainty man
To see him walk before a lady, and to bear her fan! 149
To see him kiss his hand! and how most sweetly a' will swear!
And his page o' t'other side, that handful of
wit!
Ah! heavens it is a most pathological nit 152 [Shouting within] Sola, sola! [Exit running]

SCENE II — The Same

Enter HOLOFERNES, SIR NATHANIEL, and DULL

Nath Very reverend sport, truly and done in the testimony of a good conscience Hol The deer was, as you know, sanguis in blood, ripe as a pomewater, who now hangeth like a jewel in the ear of celo, the sky, the welkin, the heaven, and anon falleth like a crab on the face of terra, the soil, the land, the earth 7 Nath Truly, Master Holofernes, the epithets are sweetly varied, like a scholar at the least but, sir, I assure ye, it was a buck of the first head Hol Sir Nathaniel, haud credo 11
Dull 'Twas not a haud credo, 'twas a pricket Hol Most barbarous intimation! yet a kind of insinuation, as it were, in via, in way, of explication, facere, as it were, replication, or, rather, ostentare, to show, as it were, his inclination,—after his undressed, unpolished, uneducated, unpruned, untrained, or, rather, unlettered, or, ratherest, unconfirmed fashion,—to insert again my haud credo for a deer 20 Dull I said the deer was not a haud credo,
'twas a pricket.

Hol Twice sod simplicity, his coctus!
O' thou monster Ignorance, how deformed dost thou look!

Nath Sir, he hath not fed of the dainties that are bred of a book, he hath not eat paper, as it were, he hath not drunk ink: his intellect is not replenished: he is only an animal, only sensible in the dullest parts. And such barren plants are set before us, that we thankful should be,

Which we of taste and feeling are, for those parts that do fructify in us more than he, For as it would ill become me to be vain, indiscreet, or a fool

So, were there a patch set on learning, to see him in a school

But, omne bene, say I, being of an old Father's mind,

Many can brook the weather that love not the wind

Dull You two are book-men: can you tell by your wit,

What was a month old at Cain's birth, that's not five weeks old as yet?

Hol Dictynna, Goodman Dull Dictynna, Goodman Dull

Dull What is Dictynna?

Nath A title to Phœbe, to Luna, to the moon

Hol The moon was a month old when Adam was no more,

And raught not to five weeks when he came to five-score

The allusion holds in the exchange

Dull 'Tis true indeed: the collusion holds in the exchange

Hol God comfort thy capacity! I say, the allusion holds in the exchange

Dull And I say the pollution holds in the exchange, for the moon is never but a month old, and I say beside that 'twas a pricklet that the princess killed

Hol Sir Nathaniel, will you hear an extemporal epitaph on the death of the deer? and, to humour the ignorant, I have call'd the deer the princess killed, a pricklet.

Nath Perge, good Master Holofernes, perge, so it shall please you to abrogate scurrility

Hol I will something affect the letter, for it argues facility

The princely princess pierc'd and prick'd a pretty playing pricklet

Some say a sore but not a sore till now made sore with shooting,

The dogs did yell put L to sore, then sore jumps from thicket

Or pricklet, sore, or else sore! the people fall a hooting

If sore be sore, then L to sore makes fifty sores one sore!

Of one sore I a hundred make, by adding but one more L

Nath A rare talent!

Dull [Aside] If a talent be a claw, look how he claws him with a talent

Hol This is a gift that I have, simple, simple, a foolish extravagant spirit, full of forms, figures, shapes, objects, ideas, apprehensions, motions, revolutions: these are begot in the ventricle of memory, nourished in the womb of pia mater, and delivered upon the mellowing of occasion. But the gift is good in those in whom it is acute, and I am thankful for it

Nath Sir, I praise the Lord for you, and so may my parishioners, for their sons are well tutored by you, and their daughters profit very greatly under you: you are a good member of the commonwealth

Hol Mehercle! if their sons be ingenuous, they shall want no instruction, if their daughters be capable, I will put it to them. But, vir sapit qui pauca loquitur: A soul feminine salute us

Enter JAQUENETTA and COSTARD

Jaq God give you good morrow, Master parson

Hol Master parson, quasi pers-on: An if one should be pierc'd, which is the one?

Cost Marry, Master schoolmaster, he that is likeliest to a hogshead

Hol Piercing a hogshead! a good lustre of conceit in a turf of earth, fire enough for a flint, pearl enough for a swine: 'tis pretty, it is well

Jaq Good Master parson [giving a letter to NATHANIEL], be so good as read me this letter: it was given me by Costard, and sent me from Don Armado. I beseech you, read it

Hol Fauste, precor gelida quando pecus omne sub umbra Ruminat, and so forth. Ah! good old Mantuan: I may speak of thee as the traveller doth of Venice

—Venetia, Venetia,

Chi non te vede, non te pretia

Old Mantuan! old Mantuan! Who understandeth thee not, loves thee not. Ut, re, sol, la, mi, fa. Under pardon, sir, what are the contents? or, rather, as Horace says in his—What, my soul, verses?

Nath Ay, sir, and very learned

Hol Let me hear a staff, a stanza, a verse
lege, domine

Nath If love make me forsworn, how shall I swear to love?

Ah! never faith could hold, if not to beauty vow'd Though to myself forsworn, to thee I'll faithful prove Those thoughts to me were oaks, to thee like osiers bow'd

Study his bias leaves and makes his book thine eyes
Where all those pleasures live that art would comprehend

If knowledge be the mark to know thee shall suffice Well learned is that tongue that well can thee commend

All ignorant that soul that sees thee without wonder Which is to me some praise that I thy parts admire Thy eye Jove's lightning bears, thy voice his dreadful thunder

Which not to anger bent, is music and sweet fire.
Celestial as thou art, O! pardon love thus wrong,
That sings heaven's praise with such an earthly tongue!

Hol You find not the apostrophas, and so miss the accent: let me supervise the canonet. Here are only numbers ratified, but, for the elegance, facility, and golden cadence of poesy, caret: Ovidius Naso was the man: and why, indeed, Naso, but for smelling out the odorous flowers of fancy, the jerks of invention? Imitari is nothing, so doth the hound his master, the ape his keeper, the 'tired horse his rider. But, damosella virgin, was I 'tis directed to you?

Jaq Ay, sir, from one Monsieur Berowne, one of the strange queen's lords

Hol I will overglance the superscript To the snow-white hand of the most beauteous Lady Rosaline I will look again on the intellect of the letter, for the nomination of the party writing to the person written unto Your ladyship's, in all desired employment, BEROWNE—Sir Nathaniel, this Berowne is one of the votaries with the king and here he hath framed a letter to a sequent of the stranger queen's, which, accidentally, or by the way of progression, hath miscarried. Trnp and go, my sweet, deliver this paper into the royal hand of the king, it may concern much. Stay not thy compliment, I forgive thy duty adieu Jaq Good Costard, go with me Sir, God save your life!

Cost Have with thee, my girl

[Exeunt COSTARD and JAQUENETTA]

Nath Sir, you have done this in the fear of God, very religiously, and, as a certain Father saith—Hol Sir, tell not me of the Father, I do fear colourable colours. But to return to the verses did they please you, Sir Nathaniel?

Nath Marvellous well for the pen

Hol I do dine to-day at the father's of a certain pupil of mine, where, if before repast it shall please you to gratify the table with a grace, I will, on my privilege I have with the parents of the foresaid child or pupil, undertake your ben venuto, where I will prove those verses to be very unlearned, neither savouring of poetry, wit, nor invention. I beseech your society

Nath And thank you too, for society—saith the text—is the happiness of life

Hol And, certes, the text most infallibly concludes it—[To DUKE J] Sir, I do invite you too: you shall not say me nay pauca verba. Away! the gentles are at their game, and we will to our recreation.

SCENE III—The Same

Enter BEROWNE, with a paper

Ber The king he is hunting the deer, I am coursing myself: they have pitched a toil, I am toiling in a pitch,—pitch that defiles, defile! a foul word! Well, sit thee down, sorrow! for so they say the fool said, and so say I, and I the fool well proved, wit! By the Lord, this love is as mad as Ajax: it kills sheep, it kills me, I a sheep well proved again o' my side! I will not love, if I do, hang me, I' faith, I will not. O! but her eye,—by this light, but for her eye, I would not love her, yes, for her two eyes. Well, I do nothing in the world but lie, and lie in my throat. By heaven, I do love, and it hath taught me to rime, and to be melancholy, and here is part of my rime, and here my melancholy. Well, she ha'th one o' my sonnets already: the clown bore it, the fool sent it, and the lady hath it sweet clown, sweeter fool, sweetest lady! By the world, I would not care a pin if the other three were in. Here comes one with a paper. God give him grace to groan! 21 [Gets up into a tree]

Enter the KING, with a paper

King Ah me!

Ber [Aside] Shot, by heaven! Proceed, sweet Cupid, thou hast thumped him with thy bird-bolt under the left pap. In faith, secrets!

King So sweet a kiss the golden sun gives not
To those fresh morning drops upon the rose 28
As thy eye beams, when their fresh rays have smote

The night of dew that on my cheeks down flows
Nor shines the silver moon one half so bright 32

Through the transparent bosom of the deep
As doth thy face through tears of mine give light,

Thou shin'st in every tear that I do weep
No drop but as a coach doth carry thee 36

So ridest thou triumphing in my woe
Do but behold the tears that swell in me,

And they thy glory through my grief will show
But do not love thyself: then thou wilt keep 40

My tears for glasses, and still make me weep
O queen of queens! how far thou dost excel

No thought can think, nor tongue of mortal tell How shall she know my griefs? I'll drop the 45 paper

Sweet leaves, shade folly. Who is he comes here?

What, Longaville! and reading! listen, ear 45
[Steps aside]

Enter LONGAVILLE, with a paper

Ber Now, in thy likeness, one more fool appear!

Long Ay me! I am forsworn Ber Why, he comes in like a perjure, wear- 48

ing papers
King In love, I hope sweet fellowship in shame!

Ber One drunkard loves another of the name.

Long Am I the first that have been perjur'd so?

Ber I could put thee in comfort not by two that I know 52

Thou mak'st the triumph, the corner-cap of society,

The shape of love's Tyburn, that hangs up simplicity

Long. I fear these stubborn lines lack power to move

O sweet Maria, empress of my love! 56

These numbers will I tear, and write in prose Ber O! rimes are guards on wanton Cupid's hose Disfigure not his slop. This same shall go. 60

Did not the heavenly rhetoric of thine eye,
'Gainst whom the world cannot hold argument,

Persuade my heart to this false perjury?
Vows for these broke deserve not punishment.

A woman I forswore but I will prove,
 Thou being a goddess I forswore not thee
 My vow was earthly thou a heavenly love
 Thy grace being gain'd cures all disgrace in me.
 Vows are but breath, and breath a vapour is Then thou fair sun which on my earth dost shine, Exhalest this vapour vow in thee it is If broken then, it is no fault of mine
 If by me broke what fool is not so wise
 To lose an oath to win a paradise!

Ber This is the liver-vein, which makes flesh a deity,
 A green goose a goddess, pure, pure idolatry God amend us, God amend! we are much out o' the way

Long By whom shall I send this?—Company! stay [Steps aside]

Ber All hid, all hid, an old infant play
 Like a demi-god here sit I in the sky,
 And wretched fools' secrets heedfully o'er-eye More sacks to the mill! O heavens! I have my wish

Enter DUMAINE, with a paper

Dumaine transform'd four woodcocks in a dish!

Dum O most divine Kate!

Ber O most profane coxcomb!

Dum By heaven, the wonder of a mortal
 eye!

Ber By earth, she is but corporal, there you lie

Dum Her amber hairs for foul have amber quoted

Ber An amber-colour'd raven was well noted

Dum As upright as the cedar

Ber Stoop, I say,
 Her shoulder is with child

Dum As fair as day

Ber Ay, as some days, but then no sun must shine

Dum O! that I had my wish

Long And I had mine! 92

King And I mine too, good Lord!

Ber Amen, so I had mine Is not that a good word?

Dum I would forget her, but a fever she Reigns in my blood, and will remember'd be 96

Ber A fever in your blood! why, then inci-sion

Would let her out in saucers sweet misprision!

Dum Once more I'll read the ode that I have writ

Ber Once more I'll mark how love can vary
 wit. 100

Dum On a day, alack the day!
 Love, whose month is ever May,
 Spied a blossom passing fair
 Playing in the wanton air
 Through the velvet leaves the wind,
 All unseen, 'gan passage find,
 That the lover, sick to death
 Wish'd himself the heaven's breath.
 Air, quoth he, thy cheeks may blow,
 Air, would I might triumph so!
 But alack! my hand is sworn Ne'er to pluck thee from thy thorn:

Vow alack! for youth unmeet,

Youth so apt to pluck a sweet.

Do not call it sin in me

That I am forsworn for thee

Thou for whom e'en Jove would swear

Juno but an Ethiope were

And deny himself for Jove

Turning mortal for thy love

This will I send, and something else more plain,

That shall express my true love's fasting pain

O! would the King, Berowne, and Longaville

Were lovers too ill, to example ill,

Would from my forehead wipe a perjurd note,

For none offend where all alike do dote

Long [Advancing] Dumaine, thy love is far from charity,

That in love's grief desir'st society

You may look pale, but I should blush, I know,

To be o'erheard and taken napping so

King [Advancing] Come, sir, you blush as his your case is such,

You chide at him, offending twice as much

You do not love Maria, Longaville

Did never sonnet for her sake compile,

Nor never lay his wretched arms athwart

His loving bosom to keep down his heart

I have been closely shrouded in this bush,

And mark'd you both, and for you both did blush

I heard your guilty rimes, observ'd your fashion,

Saw sighs reek from you, noted well your

passion

Ay me! says one, O Jove! the other cries,

One, her hairs were gold, crystal the other's

eyes

[To LONGAVILLE] You would for paradise break faith and troth,

[To DUMAINE] And Jove, for your love, would infringe an oath

What will Berowne say, when that he shall hear

A faith infringed, which such zeal did swear?

How will he scorn! how will he spend his wit!

How will he triumph, leap and laugh at it!

For all the wealth that ever I did see,

I would not have him know so much by me

Ber Now step I forth to whip hypocrisy

[Descends from the tree]

Ah! good my liege, I pray thee, pardon me

Good heart! what grace hast thou, thus to reprove

These worms for loving, that art most in love?

Your eyes do make no coaches, in your tears

There is no certain princess that appears

You'll not be perjurd, 'tis a hateful thing

Tush! none but minstrels like of sonneting

But are you not asham'd? nay, are you not,

All three of you, to be thus much o'er-shot?

You found his mote, the king your mote did

see,

But I a beam do find in each of three

O! what a scene of foolery have I seen,

Of sighs, of groans, of sorrow, and of teen,

O me! with what strict patience have I sat,

To see a king transformed to a gnat,

To see great Hercules whipping a gig,

And profound Solomon to tune a jig,

And Nestor play at push-pin with the boys,
And critic Timon laugh at idle toys!
Where lies thy grief? O! tell me, good Dumaine,
And, gentle Longaville, where lies thy pain? 172
And where my liege's? all about the breast
A caudle, ho!

King Too bitter is thy jest
Are we betray'd thus to thy over-view?
Ber Not you to me, but I betray'd by you
I, that am honest, I, that hold it sin 177

To break the vow I am engaged in,
I am betray'd, by keeping company
With men like men, men of inconstancy 180
When shall you see me write a thing in rune?
Or groan for Joan? or spend a minute's time In pruning me? When shall you hear that I Will praise a hand, a foot, a face, an eye, 184
A gait, a state, a brow, a breast, a waist,
A leg, a limb?—

King Soft! Whither away so fast?
A true man or a thief that gallops so? 187
Ber I post from love, good lover, let me go

Enter JAQUENETTA and COSTARD

Jaqu God bless the king!
King What present hast thou there?
Cost Some certain treason
King What makes treason here?
Cost Nay, it makes nothing, sir
King If it mar nothing neither,
The treason and you go in peace away together Jaqu I beseech your Grace, let this letter be read 193

Our parson misdoubts it, 'twas treason, he said King Berowne, read it over—

[Giving the letter to him]

Where hadst thou it? 196
Jaqu Of Costard

King Where hadst thou it?
Cost Of Dun Adramadio, Dun Adramadio

[BEROWNE tears the letter]

King How now! what is in you? why dost thou tear it? 200

Ber A toy, my liege, a toy your Grace needs not fear it

Long It did move him to passion, and therefore let's hear it.

Dum [Picking up the pieces] It is Berowne's writing, and here is his name

Ber [To COSTARD] Ah, you whoreson loggerhead, you were born to do me shame 204

Guilty, my lord, guilty, I confess, I confess King What?

Ber That you three fools lack'd me fool to make up the mess,

He, he, and you, and you my liege, and I, 208
Are pick-purses in love, and we deserve to die

O! dismiss this audience, and I shall tell you more

Dum Now the number is even.
Ber True, true, we are four

Will these turtles be gone?

King Hence, sirs, away! 212

Cost Walk aside the true folk, and let the traitors stay

[Exeunt COSTARD and JAQUENETTA,

Ber Sweet lords, sweet lovers, O! let us embrace

As true we are as flesh and blood can be
The sea will ebb and flow, heaven show his face, Young blood doth not obey an old decree 217

We cannot cross the cause why we were born,
Therefore, of all hands must we be forsworn

King What! did these rent lines show some love of thine? 220

Ber 'Did they,' quoth you? Who sees the heavenly Rosaline,

That, like a rude and savage man of Inde,
At the first opening of the gorgeous east,

Bows not his vassal head, and, stricken blind,
Kisses the base ground with obedient breast?

What peremptory eagle-sighted eye
Dares look upon the heaven of her brow,

That is not blinded by her majesty? 228
King What zeal, what fury hath inspir'd thee
now?

My love, her mistress, is a gracious moon,
She, an attending star, scarce seen a light

Ber My eyes are then no eyes, nor I Berowne
O! but for my love, day would turn to night

Of all complexions the cull'd sovereignty
Do meet, as at a fair, in her fair cheek,

Where several worthies make one dignity, 236
Where nothing wants that want itself doth seek

Lend me the flourish of all gentle tongues,— Fie, painted rhetoric! O! she needs it not

To things of sale a seller's praise belongs, 240
She passes praise, then praise too short doth blot

A wither'd hermit, five-score winters worn, Might shake off fifty, looking in her eye

Beauty doth varnish age, as if new-born, 244
And gives the crutch the cradle's infancy

O! 'tis the sun that maketh all things shine
King By heaven, thy love is black as ebony

Ber Is ebony like her? O wood divine! 248
A wife of such wood were felicity

O! who can give an oath? where is a book?
That I may swear beauty doth beauty lack,

If that she learn not of her eye to look 252
No face is fair that is not full so black

King O paradox! Black is the badge of hell
The hue of dungeons and the scowl of night,

And beauty's crest becomes the heavens well Ber Devils soonest tempt, resembling spirits of light 257

O! if in black my lady's brows be deck'd,

It mourns that painting and usurping hair
Should ravish doters with a false aspect, 260

And therefore is she born to make black fair
Her favour turns the fashion of the days,

For native blood is counted painting now,
And therefore red, that would avoid dispraise,

Paints itself black, to imitate her brow 265 Dum To look like her are chimney-sweepers
black

Long And since her time are colliers counted bright

King And Ethiops of their sweet complexion crack 268

Dum Dark needs no candles now, for dark is light

Ber Your mustresses dare never come in rain,
For fear their colours should be wash'd away King 'I were good yours did, for, sir, to tell you plain, 272
I'll find a fairer face not wash'd to day Ber I'll prove her fair, or talk till doomsday
here
King No devil will fight thee then so much as she
Dum I never knew man ho'd vile stuff so dear Long Look, here's thy love [Showing his shoe] my foot and her face see 277 Ber O! if the streets were paved with thine
eyes,
Her feet were much too dainty for such tread Dum O vile! then, as she goes, what upward lies 280
The street should see as she walk'd over head King But what of this? Are we not all in love?
Ber Nothing so sure, and thereby all for-sworn King Then leave this chat, and good Be-towne, now prove 284
Our loving lawful, and our faith not torn Dum Ay, marry, there, some flattery for this evil
Long O! some authority how to proceed, Some tricks, some quilllets, how to cheat the devil 288
Dum Some salve for perjury
Ber O, 'tis more than need
Have at you, then, affection's men-at arms Consider what you first did swear unto,
To fast, to study, and to see no woman, 292
Flat treason 'gainst the kingly state of youth Say can you fast? your stomachs are too young,
And abstinence engenders maladies
And where that you have vow'd to study, lords,
In that each of you hath forsworn his book, 297
Can you still dream and pore and thereon look?
For when would you, my lord, or you, or you,
Have found the ground of study's excellence
Without the beauty of a woman's face? 301
From women's eyes this doctrine I derive
They are the ground, the books, the academes, From whence doth spring the true Promethean
fire 304
Why, universal plodding poisons up
The nimble spirits in the arteries,
As motion and long-during action tires
The sinewy vigour of the traveller 308
Now, for not looking on a woman's face,
You have in that forsworn the use of eyes,
And study too, the causer of your vow,
For where is any author in the world 312
Teaches such beauty as a woman's eye?
Learning is but an adjunct to ourself,
And where we are our learning likewise is Then when ourselves we see in ladies' eyes, 316
Do we not likewise see our learning there?
O! we have made a vow to study, lords,
And in that vow we have forsworn our books
For when would you, my liege, or you, or you,
In leaden contemplation have found out 321
Such fiery numbers as the prompting eyes
Of beauty's tutors have enrich'd you with?

Other slow arts entirely keep the brain, 324
And therefore, finding barren practisers Scarce show a harvest of their heavy toil,
But love, first learned in a lady's eyes,
Lives not alone immured in the brain, 328
But, with the motion of all elements
Courses as swift as thought in every power,
And gives to every power a double power,
Above their functions and their offices 332
It adds a precious seeing to the eye,
A lover's eyes will gaze an eagle blind,
A lover's ear will hear the lowest sound,
When the suspicious head of theft is stopp'd
I love's feeling is more soft and sensible 337
Than are the tender horns of cockled snails Love's tongue proves dainty Bacchus gross in taste
For valour, is not Love a Hercules, 340
Still climbing trees in the Hesperides?
Subtle as Sphinx, as sweet and musical
As bright Apollo's lute, strung with his hair And when Love speaks, the voice of all the gods 344
Makes heaven drowsy with the harmony
Never durst poet touch a pen to write Until his ink were temper'd with Love's sighs,
O! then his lines would ravish savage ears, 348
And plant in tyrants mild humility
From women's eyes this doctrine I derive
They sparkle still the right Promethean fire,
They are the books, the arts, the academes, 352
That show, contain, and nourish all the world, Else none at all in aught proves excellent
Then fools you were these women to forswear, Or, keeping what is sworn, you will prove fools 356
For wisdom's sake, a word that all men love,
Or for love's sake, a word that loves all men,
Or for men's sake, the authors of these women,
Or women's sake, by whom we men are men, 360
Let us once lose our oaths to find ourselves,
Or else we lose ourselves to keep our oaths
It is religion to be thus forsworn,
For charity itself fulfils the law, 364
And who can sever love from charity?
King Saint Cupid, then! and, soldiers, to the field!
Ber Advance your standards, and upon them, lords!
Pell-mell, down with them! but be first advis'd,
In conflict that you get the sun of them 369 Long Now to plain-dealing, lay these gloses by,
Shall we resolve to woo these girls of France?
King And win them too therefore let us devise 372
Some entertainment for them in their tents.
Ber First, from the park let us conduct them
thither,
Then homeward every man attach the hand
Of his fair mistress in the afternoon 376
We will with some strange pastime solace them,
Such as the shortness of the time can shape,
For revels, dances, masks, and merry hours, Forerunfair Love, strewing her way with flowers

King Away, away! no time shall be omitted,
That will betime, and may by us be fitted Ber Allons! allons! Sow'd cockle reap'd no corn,
And justice always whirls in equal measure Light wenches may prove plagues to men for-sworn, 385
If so, our copper buys no better treasure
[Exeunt]

ACT V

SCENE I—The KING OF NAVARRE'S Park

Enter HOLOFERNES, SIR NATHANIEL, and DULL

Hol Satis quod sufficit

Nath I praise God for you, sir, your reasons at dinner have been sharp and sententious, pleasant without scurrility, witty without affection, audacious without impudency, learned without opinion, and strange without heresy. I did converse this quondam day with a companion of the king's, who is intituled, nominated, or called, Don Adriano de Armado 9

Hol Novi hominem tanquam te his humour is lofty, his discourse peremptory, his tongue filed, his eye ambitious, his gait majestical, and his general behaviour vain, ridiculous, and thrasomical. He is too picked, too spruce, too affected, too odd, as it were, too peregrinate, as I may call it 16

Nath A most singular and choice epithet

[Draws out his table-book]

Hol He draweth out the thread of his verbosity finer than the staple of his argument. I abhor such fanatical phantasies, such inscri-bable and point-devise companions, such rackers of orthography, as to speak dout, fine, when he should say, doubt, det, when he should pronounce, debt,—d, e, b, t, not d, e, t. He clepeth a calf, cauf, half; hauf, neighbour; vocatur neighbour, neigh abbreviated ne. This is abominable, which he would call abominable,—it insinuateth me of insane anne intelligis, domine? To make frantic, lunatic 29

Nath Laus Deo bone intelligo

Hol Bone? bone, for bene. Priscian a little scratched, 'twill serve 32

Enter ARMADO, MOTH, and COSTARD

Nath Videsne quis venit?

Hol Video, et gaudeo

Arm [To MOTH] Chirrah!

Hol Quare Chirrah, not sirrah? 36

Arm Men of peace, well encountered

Hol Most military sir, salutation

Moth [Aside to COSTARD] They have been at a great feast of languages, and stolen the scraps 41

Cost O! they have lived long on the alms-basket of words. I marvel thy master hath not eaten thee for a word, for thou art not so long by the head as honorificabilitudinitatibus thou art easier swallowed than a flap-dragon. 46

Moth Peace! the peal begins.

Arm [To HOLOFERNES] Monsieur, are you not lettered?

Moth Yes, yes, he teaches boys the horn-book. What is a, b, spelt backward, with the horn on his head? 52

Hol Ba, pueritia, with a horn added

Moth Ba! most silly sheep with a horn. You hear his learning

Hol Quis, quis, thou consonant? 56

Moth The third of the five vowels, if you repeat them, or the fifth, if I

Hol I will repeat them,—a, e, i,—

Moth The sheep, the other two concludes it,—o, u 61

Arm Now, by the salt wave of the Mediterranean, a sweet touch, a quick venew of wit!
snip, snap, quick and home! it rejoiceth my intellect true wit! 65

Moth Offered by a child to an old man, which is wit-old

Hol What is the figure? what is the figure?

Moth Horns 69

Hol Thou dispurest like an infant, go, whip thy gig

Moth Lend me your horn to make one, and I will whip about your infamy circum circa. A gig of a cuckold's horn 74

Cost An I had but one penny in the world, thou shouldst have it to buy gingerbread. Hold, there is the very remuneration I had of thy master, thou halfpenny purse of wit, thou pigeon egg of discretion. O! an the heavens were so pleased that thou wert but my bastard, what a joyful father wouldst thou make me. Go to, thou hast it ad dunghill, at the fingers' ends, as they say 83

Hol O! I smell false Latin, dunghill for unguem

Arm Arts-man, præambula we will be singled from the barbarous. Do you noteducate youth at the charge-house on the top of the mountain? 89

Hol Or mons, the hill

Arm At your sweet pleasure, for the mountain 92

Hol I do, sans question

Arm Sir, it is the king's most sweet pleasure and affection to congratulate the princess at her pavilion in the posteriors of this day, which the rude multitude call the afternoon 97

Hol The posterior of the day, most generous sir, is liable, congruent, and measurable for the afternoon the word is well culled, chose, sweet and apt, I do assure you, sir, I do assure 102

Arm Sir, the king is a noble gentleman, and my familiar, I do assure ye, very good friend.
For what is inward between us, let it pass. I do beseech thee, remember thy curtsy, I beseech thee, apparel thy head—and among other im-portunate and most serious designs, and of great import indeed, too, but let that pass. For I must tell thee, it will please his Grace, by the world, sometime to lean upon my poor shoulder, and with his royal finger, thus dally with my excrement, with my mustachio but, sweet heart, let that pass By the world, I recount no fable some certain special honours it pleaseth his greatness to impart to Armado, a soldier, a man of travel, that hath seen the world but let that pass The very all of all is, but, sweet heart, I do implore secrecy, that the king would have me present the princess, sweet chuck, with some delightful ostentation, or show, or pageant, or antick, or fire-work Now, understanding that the curate and your sweet self are good at such eruptions and sudden breaking out of mirth, as it were, I have acquainted you withal, to the end to crave your assistance 126

Hol Sir, you shall present before her the Nine Worthies Sir Nathaniel, as concerning some entertainment of time, some show in the posterior of this day, to be rendered by our assistance, at the king's command, and this most gallant, illustrate, and learned gentleman, before the princess, I say, none so fit as to present the Nine Worthies

Nath Where will you find men worthy enough to present them? 136

Hol Joshua, yourself, myself, or this gallant gentleman, Judas Maccabæus, this swain, because of his great limb, or joint, shall pass Pompey the Great, the page, Hercules,— 140

Arm Pardon, sir, error he is not quantity enough for that Worthy's thumb he is not so big as the end of his club

Hol Shall I have audience? he shall present Hercules in minority his enter and exit shall be strangling a snake, and I will have an apology for that purpose 147

Moth An excellent device! so, if any of the audience hiss, you may cry, 'Well done, Hercules! now thou crushest the snake!' that is the way to make an offence gracious, though few have the grace to do it 152

Arm For the rest of the Worthies?—

Hol I will play three myself

Moth Thrice-worthy gentleman!

Arm Shall I tell you a thing? 156

Hol We attend

Arm We will have, if this fadge not, an antick I beseech you, follow

Hol Via, goodman Dull! thou hast spoken no word all this while 161

Dull Nor understood none neither, sir

Hol Allons! we will employ thee

Dull I'll make one in a dance, or so, or I will play the tabor to the Worthies, and let them dance the hay 166

Hol Most dull, honest Dull, to our sport, away! [Exeunt

SCENE II.—The same Before the PRINCESS'S Pavilion

Enter the PRINCESS, KATHARINE, ROSALINE, and MARIA

Prin Sweet hearts, we shall be rich ere we depart,

If fairings come thus plentifully in A lady wall'd about with diamonds!

Look you what I have from the loving king. 4

Ros Madam, came nothing else along with
that?

Prin Nothing but this! yes, as much love in rime

As would be cramm'd up in a sheet of paper, Writ o' both sides the leaf, margent and all, 8
That he was fain to seal on Cupid's name

Ros That was the way to make his godhead wax

For he hath been five thousand years a boy
Kath Ay, and a shrewd unhappy gallows too

Ros You'll ne'er be friends with him a' kill'd your sister 13

Kath He made her melancholy, sad, and heavy,

And so she died had she been light, like you,
Of such a merry, numble, stirring spirit, 16

She might ha' been a grandam ere she died,
And so may you, for a light heart lives long

Ros What's your dark meaning, mouse, of this light word?

Kath A light condition in a beauty dark 20

Ros We need more light to find your meaning out

Kath You'll mar the light by taking it in snuff,

Therefore, I'll darkly end the argument

Ros Look, what you do, you do it still! the dark 24

Kath So do not you, for you are a light
wench.

Ros Indeed I weigh not you, and therefore light

Kath You weigh me not O! that's you care not for me

Ros Great reason, for, 'past cure is still past care' 28

Prin Well bandied both, a set of wit well
play'd

But Rosaline, you have a favour too

Who sent it? and what is it?

Ros I would you knew

An if my face were but as fair as yours, 32
My favour were as great, be witness this

Nay, I have verses too, I thank Berowne
The numbers true, and, were the numb'ring
too,

I were the fairest goddess on the ground 36
I am compar'd to twenty thousand fairs

O! he hath drawn my picture in his letter

Prin Anything like? 39

Ros Much in the letters, nothing in the praise

Prin Beauteous as ink, a good conclusion.

Kath Fair as a text B in a copy-book

Ros 'Ware pencils! how? let me not die your debtor,

My red dominical, my golden letter 44
O, that your face were not so full of O's!

Kath A pox of that jest! and beshrew all shrows!

Prin But what was sent to you from fair Dumaine?

Kath Madam, this glove

Prin Did he not send you twain? 48

Kath Yes, madam, and moreover,
Some thousand verses of a faithful lover

A huge translation of hypocrisy, Vilely compil'd, profound simplicity 52
Mar Thus, and these pearls to me sent Longaville
The letter is too long by half a mile Prin I think no less Dost thou not wish in
heart
The chain were longer and the letter short? 56 Mar Ay, or I would these hands might never part Prin We are wise girls to mock our lovers so Ros They are worse fools to purchase mocking so
That same Berowne I'll torture ere I go 60
O that I knew he were but in by the week!
How I would make him fawn, and beg, and seek,
And wait the season, and observe the times,
And spend his prodigal wits in bootless rimes,
And shape his service wholly to my hests, 65
And make him proud to make me proud that jests!
So perttaunt-like would I o'ersway his state
That he should be my fool, and I his fate 68 Prin None are so surely caught, when they are catch'd,
As wit turn'd fool folly, in wisdom hatch'd,
Hath wisdom's warrant and the help of school
And wit's own grace to grace a learned fool 72 Ros The blood of youth burns not with such excess
As gravity's revolt to wantonness
Mar Folly in fools bears not so strong a rote
As foolery in the wise, when wit doth dote, 76
Since all the power thereof it doth apply
To prove, by wit, worth in simplicity

Enter BOYET

Prin Here comes Boyet, and mirth is in his
face Boyet O! I am stabb'd with laughter Where's her Grace? 80
Prin Thy news, Boyet?
Boyet Prepare, madam, prepare!— Arm, wenches, arm! encounters mounted are Against your peace Love doth approach dis-guis'd,
Armed in arguments, you'll be surpris'd 84
Muster your wits, stand in your own defence,
Or hide your heads like cowards, and fly hence Prin Saint Denis to Saint Cupid! What are they
That charge their breath against us? say, scout,
say 88
Boyet Under the cool shade of a sycamore
I thought to close mine eyes some half an hour,
When, lo! to interrupt my purpos'd rest,
Toward that shade I might behold address 92
The king and his companions warily
I stole into a neighbour thicket by,
And overheard what you shall overhear,
That, by and by, disguis'd they will be here 96
Their herald is a pretty knavish page,
That well by heart hath conn'd his embassy Action and accent did they teach him there
'Thus must thou speak, and thus thy body bear'

And ever and anon they made a doubt 101
Presence majestical would put him out,
'For,' quoth the king, 'an angel shalt thou see,
Yet fear not thou, but speak audaciously' 104
The boy replied, 'An angel is not evil,
I should have fear'd her had she been a devil'
With that all laugh'd and clapp'd him on the shoulder,
Making the bold wag by their praises bolder 108 One rubb'd his elbow thus, and fear'd, and swore
A better speech was never spoke before,
Another, with his finger and his thumb, 111
Cry'd 'Via! we will do't, come what will come,'
The third he caper'd and cried, 'All goes well,'
The fourth turn'd on the toe, and down he fell
With that, they all did tumble on the ground,
With such a zealous laughter, so profound, 116
That in this spleen ridiculous appears,
To check their folly, passion's solemn tears Prin But what, but what, come they to visit us?
Boyet They do, they do, and are apparell'd
thus, 120
Like Muscovites or Russians, as I guess
Their purpose is to parle to court and dance,
And every one his love-feat will advance
Unto his several mistress, which they'll know
By favours several which they did bestow 125 Prin And will they so? the gallants shall be task'd
For, ladies, we will every one be mask'd,
And not a man of them shall have the grace,
Despite of suit, to see a lady's face 129
Hold, Rosaline, this favour thou shalt wear,
And then the king will court thee for his dear Hold, take thou this, my sweet, and give me thine. 132
So shall Berowne take me for Rosaline,
And change you favours too, so shall your loves Woo contrary, deceiv'd by these removes Ros Come on, then, wear the favours most in sight 136
Kath But in this changing what is your intent?
Prin The effect of my intent is, to cross theirs
They do it but in mocking merriment,
And mock for mock is only my intent 140
Their several counsels they unbosom shall To loves mistook and so be mock'd withal
Upon the next occasion that we meet,
With visages display'd, to talk and greet 144 Ros But shall we dance, if they desire us
to't?
Prin No, to the death, we will not move a foot
Nor to their penn'd speech render we no grace,
But while 'tis spoke each turn away her face 148 Boyet Why, that contempt will kill the speaker's heart,
And quite divorce his memory from his part Prin Therefore I do it, and I make no doubt,
The rest will ne'er come in, if he be out 152
There's no such sport as sport by sport o'er-thrown,
To make theirs ours and ours none but our own

So shall we stay, mocking intended game,
And they, well mock'd, depart away with shame

Boyet The trumpet sounds [Trumpets sound within] maskers come [The Ladies mask]

Enter Blackamoors with music MOTH, the KING, BEROWNE, LONGAVILLE, and DUMAINE in Russian habits, and masked

Moth All hail, the richest beauties on the earth!

Boyet Beauties no richer than rich taffeta

Moth A holy parcel of the fairest dames, 160

[The Ladies turn their backs to him]

That ever turn'd their—backs—to mortal views!

Ber 'Their eyes,' villain, 'their eyes'

Moth That ever turn'd their eyes to mortal views!

Out— 164

Boyet True, 'out,' indeed

Moth 'Out of your favours, heavenly spirits, vouchsafe

Not to behold!—

Ber 'Once to behold,' rogue 168

Moth 'Once to behold with your sun-beamed
eyes,

—with your sun-beamed eyes!—

Boyet They will not answer to that epithet,

You were best call it 'daughter-beamed eyes'

Moth They do not mark me, and that brings me out 173

Ber Is this your perfectness? be gone, you rogue! [Exit MOTH]

Ros What would these strangers know their minds, Boyet

If they do speak our language, 'tis our will 176

That some plain man recount their purposes

Know what they would

Boyet What would you with the princess?

Ber Nothing but peace and gentle visitation

Ros What would they, say they? 181

Boyet Nothing but peace and gentle visitation

Ros Why, that they have, and bid them so
be gone

Boyet She says, you have it, and you may be gone 184

King Say to her, we have measur'd many miles,

To tread a measure with her on this grass

Boyet They say, that they have measur'd many a mile,

To tread a measure with you on this grass 188

Ros It is not so Ask them how many inches is in one mile if they have measur'd many,

The measure then of one is easily told

Boyet If to come hither you have measur'd
miles, 192

And many miles, the princess bids you tell

How many inches do fill up one mile

Ber Tell her we measure them by weary steps

Boyet She hears herself

Ros How many weary steps,

Of many weary miles you have o'ergone, 197

Are number'd in the travel of one mile?

Ber We number nothing that we spend for
you

Our duty is so rich, so infinite, 200

That we may do it still without accompt

Vouchsafe to show the sunshine of your face,

That we, like savages, may worship it

Ros My face is but a moon, and clouded too

King Blessed are clouds, to do as such clouds
do! 205

Vouchsafe, bright moon, and these thy stars, to
shine,

Those clouds remov'd, upon our wat'ry eyne

Ros O vain petitioner! beg a greater matter,

Thou now request'st but moonshine in the water

King Then, in our measure but vouchsafe one change 210

Thou bid'st me beg, this begging is not strange

Ros Play, music, then! Nay, you must do it soon [Music plays]

Not yet! no dance! thus change I like the moon

King Will you not dance? How come you thus estrang'd? 214

Ros You took the moon at full, but now she's chang'd

King Yet still she is the moon, and I the man.

The music plays, vouchsafe some motion to it

Ros Our ears vouchsafe it

King But your legs should do it

Ros Since you are strangers, and come here by chance,

We'll not be nice take hands we will not dance 220

King Why take we hands then?

Ros Only to part friends

Curtsey, sweet hearts, and so the measure ends

King More measure of this measure be not nice

Ros We can afford no more at such a price

King Prize you yourselves? what buys your company? 225

Ros Your absence only

King That can never be

Ros Then cannot we be bought and so,
adieu,

Twice to your visor, and half once to you! 228

King If you deny to dance, let's hold more chat

Ros In private, then

King I am best pleas'd with that [They converse apart]

Ber White-handed mistress, one sweet word with thee

Prin Honey, and milk, and sugar, there are three 232

Ber Nay then, two treys, an if you grow so nice,

Metheglin, wort, and malmsey well run, dice!

There's half a dozen sweets

Prin Seventh sweet, adieu

Since you can cog, I'll play no more with you.

Ber One word in secret

Prin Let it not be sweet. 237

Ber Thou griev'st my gall.

Prin Gall! bitter

Ber Therefore meet.

[They converse apart]

Dum. Will you vouchsafe with me to change a word?
Mar Name it.
Dum Fair lady,—
Mar Say you so? Fair lord,
 Take that for your fair lady
Dum Please it you, 241
 As much in private, and I'll bid adieu
 [They converse apart
Kath What! was your visor made without a tongue?
Long I know the reason, lady, why you ask.
Kath O! for your reason, quickly, sir, I long 245
Long You have a double tongue within your mask,
 And would afford my speechless visor half Kath 'Veal,' quoth the Dutchman Is not 'veal' a calf? 248 Long A calf, fair lady!
Kath No, a fair lord calf Long Let's part the word
Kath No, I'll not be your half Take all, and wean it it may prove an ox
Long Look, how you butt yourself in these sharp mocks 252
 Will you give horns, chaste lady? do not so Kath Then die a calf, before your horns do grow Long One word in private with you, ere I die Kath Bleat softly then, the butcher hears you cry
 [They converse apart
Boyet The tongues of mocking wenches are as keen 257
 As is the razor's edge invisible,
 Cutting a smaller hair than may be seen,
 Above the sense of sense, so sensible 260
 Seemeth their conference, their conceits have wings Fleeter than arrows, bullets, wind, thought, swifter things Ros Not one word more, my maids break off, break off Ber By heaven, all dry-beaten with pure scoff! 264
King Farewell, mad wenches you have simple wits Prin Twenty adieus, my frozen Muscovits
 [Exeunt KING, LORDS, MUSIC, and ATTENDANTS Are these the breed of wits so wonder'd at?
Boyet Tapers they are, with your sweet breaths puff'd out 268
Ros Well-liking wits they have, gross, gross, fat, fat Prin O poverty in wit, kingly-poor flout!
 Will they not, think you, hang themselves to-night?
 Or ever, but in visors, show their faces? 272
 This pert Berowne was out of countenance quite Ros O! they were all in lamentable cases
 The king was weeping-ripe for a good word Prin Berowne did swear himself out of all suit. 276
Mar Dumaine was at my service, and his sword

'No point,' quoth I my servant straight was mute Kath Lord Longaville said, I came o'er his heart,
 And trow you what he call'd me?
Prin Qualm, perhaps 280
Kath Yes, in good faith
Prin Go, sickness as thou art!
Ros Well, better wits have worn plain statutes-caps
 But will you hear? the king is my love sworn Prin And quick Berowne hath plighted faith to me 284 Kath And Longaville was for my service born Mar Dumaine is mine, as sure as bark on tree
Boyet Madam, and pretty mistresses, give ear Immediately they will again be here 288
 In their own shapes, for it can never be They will digest this harsh indignity Prin Will they return?
Boyet They will, they will, God knows,
 And leap for joy, though they are lame with blows 292
 Therefore change favours, and, when they repair, Blow like sweet roses in this summer air
Prin How blow? how blow? speak to be understood Boyet Fair ladies mask'd are roses in their bud 296 Dismask'd, their damask sweet commixture shown,
 Are angels veiling clouds, or roses blown Prin Avaunt perplexity! What shall we do
 If they return in their own shapes to woo? 300
Ros Good madam, if by me you'll be advis'd, Let's mock them still, as well known as disguis'd
 Let us complain to them what fools were here, Disguis'd like Muscovites, in shapeless gear, 304
 And wonder what they were, and to what end
 Their shallow shows and prologue vilely penn'd,
 And their rough carriage so ridiculous,
 Should be presented at our tent to us 308
Boyet Ladies, withdraw the gallants are at hand Prin Whip to your tents, as roes run over land [Exeunt PRINCESS, ROS, KATH, and MARIA Enter the KING, BEROWNE, LONGAVILLE, and DUMAINE in their proper habits.
King Fair sir, God save you! Where is the princess?
Boyet Gone to her tent. Please it your majesty, 312 Command me any service to her thither?
King That she vouchsafe me audience for one word Boyet I will, and so will she, I know, my lord [Exit Ber This fellow pecks up wit, as pigeons pease, 316
 And utters it again when God doth please.

He is wit's pedlar, and retails his wares
 At wakes and wassails, meetings, markets, fairs,
 And we that sell by gross, the Lord doth know,
 Have not the grace to grace it with such show
 This gallant pins the wenches on his sleeve,
 Had he been Adam, he had tempted Eve
 He can carve too, and lisp why, this is he 324
 That kiss'd his hand away in courtesy,
 This is the ape of form, monsieur the nice,
 That, when he plays at tables, chides the dice
 In honourable terms nay, he can sing 328
 A mean most meanly, and in ushering
 Mend him who can the ladies call him, sweet,
 The stairs, as he treads on them, kiss his feet
 This is the flower that smiles on every one, 332
 To show his teeth as white as whales-bone,
 And consciences, that will not die in debt,
 Pay him the due of honey-tongue'd Boyet

King A blister on his sweet tongue, with my heart, 336
 That put Armado's page out of his part!

Re-enters the PRINCESS, ushered by BOYET ROSA-LINE, MARIA, KATHARINE, and Attendants

Ber See where it comes! Behaviour, what wert thou,
 Till this man show'd thee? and what art thou
 now?

King All hail, sweet madam, and fair time of
 day! 340

Prin 'Fair,' in 'all hail,' is foul, as I conceive King Construe my speeches better, if you may

Prin Then wish me better I will give you leave 343

King We came to visit you, and purpose now
 To lead you to our court vouchsafe it then

Prin This field shall hold me, and so hold your vow

Nor God, nor I, delights in perjur'd men.
King Rebuke me not for that which you provoke 348

The virtue of your eye must break my oath Prin You nick-name virtue, vice you should have spoke,

For virtue's office never breaks men's troth
 Now, by my maiden honour, yet as pure 352
 As the unsullied lily, I protest,

A world of torments though I should endure,
 I would not yield to be your house's guest,

So much I hate a breaking cause to be 356
 Of heavenly oaths, vow'd with integrity

King O! you have liv'd in desolation here, Unseen, unvisited, much to our shame 359

Prin Not so, my lord, it is not so, I swear,
 We have had pastime here and pleasant game

A mess of Russians left us but of late King How, madam! Russians?

Prin Ay, in truth, my lord,
 Trim gallants, full of courtship and of state 364

Ros Madam, speak true It is not so, my
 lord

My lady, to the manner of the days,
 In courtesy gives undeserving praise

We four, indeed confronted were with four 368
 In Russian habit here they stay'd an hour,
 And talk'd apace, and in that hour, my lord,

They did not bless us with one happy word
 I dare not call them fools, but this I think, 372 When they are thirsty, fools would fain have drink

Ber This jest is dry to me Fair gentle sweet, Your wit makes wise things foolish when we greet,

With eyes best seeing, heaven's fiery eye, 376
 By light we lose light your capacity
 Is of that nature that to your huge store

Wise things seem foolish and rich things but poor

Ros This proves you wise and rich, for in my eye— 380

Ber I am a fool, and full of poverty

Ros But that you take what doth to you belong,

It were a fault to snatch words from my tongue
Ber O! I am yours, and all that I possess

Ros All the fool mine?

Ber I cannot give you less
Ros Which of the visors was it that you wore?

Ber Where? when? what visor? why demand you this?

Ros There, then, that visor, that superfluous case 388

That hid the worse, and show'd the better face King We are descried they'll mock us now downright

Dum Let us confess, and turn it to a jest Prin Amaz'd, my lord? Why looks your highness sad? 392

Ros Help! hold his brows! he'll swoond Why look you pale?

Sea-sick, I think, coming from Muscovy Ber Thus pour the stars down plagues for perjury

Can any face of brass hold longer out?— 396
 Here stand I, lady, dart thy skill at me, Bruise me with scorn, confound me with a flout,

Thrust thy wit quite through my ignorance,

Cut me to pieces with thy keen conceit, 400
 And I will wish thee never more to dance, Nor never more in Russian habit wait.

O! never will I trust to speeches penn'd,
 Nor to the motion of a school-boy's tongue,

Nor never come in visor to my friend, 405
 Nor woo in rime, like a blind harper's song, Taffeta phrases, silken terms precise,

Three-pil'd hyperboles, spruce affectation,
 Figures pedantical, these summer flies 409
 Have blown me full of maggot ostentation

I do forswear them, and I here protest,
 By this white glove,—how white the hand,

God knows,— 412
 Henceforth my wooing mind shall be express'd
 In russet yeas and honest kersey noes

And, to begin, wench,—so God help me, la!—
 My love to thee is sound, sans crack or flaw 416

Ros Sans 'sans,' I pray you.

Ber Yet I have a trick
 Of the old rage bear with me, I am sick, I'll leave it by degrees Soft! let us see

Write, 'Lord have-mercy on us' on those three,

They are infected, in their hearts it lies, 421
 They have the plague, and caught it of your eyes
 These lords are visited, you are not free,
 For the Lord's tokens on you do I see 424
Prin No, they are free that gave these tokens to us Ber Our states are forfeit seek not to undo us
Ros It is not so For how can this be true,
 That you stand forfeit, being those that sue? 428
Ber Peace! for I will not have to do with you Ros Nor shall not, if I do as I intend Ber Speak for yourselves my wit is at an end King Teach us, sweet madam, for our rude transgression 432
 Some fair excuse
Prin The fairest is confession
 Were you not here, but even now, disguis'd?
King Madam, I was
Prin And were you well advis'd?
King I was, fair madam
Prin When you then were here,
 What did you whisper in your lady's ear? 437
King That more than all the world I did respect her Prin When she shall challenge this, you will reject her King Upon mine honour, no
Prin Peace! peace! forbear, 440
 Your oath once broke, you force not to forswear King Despise me, when I break this oath of mine Prin I will, and therefore keep it Rosaline,
 What did the Russian whisper in your ear? 444
Ros Madam, he swore that he did hold me dear
 As precious eyesight, and did value me Above this world, adding thereto, moreover,
 That he would wed me, or else die my lover 448
Prin God gave thee joy of him! the noble lord
 Most honourably doth uphold his word King What mean you, madam? by my life, my troth,
 I never swore this lady such an oath 452
Ros By heaven you did, and to confirm it plain,
 You gave me this but take it, sir, again King My faith and thus the princess I did give I knew her by this jewel on her sleeve 456
Prin Pardon me, sir, this jewel did she wear,
 And Lord Berowne, I thank him, is my dear
 What, will you have me, or your pearl again?
Ber Neither of either I renit both twain
 I see the trick on't here was a consent, 461
 Knowing aforehand of our merriment,
 To dash it like a Christmas comedy
 Some carry-tale, some please-man, some slight zany, 464
 Some mumble-news, some trencher-knight, some Dick,
 That smiles his cheek in years, and knows the trick

To make my lady laugh when she's dispos'd, Told our intents before, which once disclos'd,
 The ladies did change favours, and then we, 469 Following the signs, woo'd but the sign of she Now, to our perjury to add more terror,
 We are again forsworn, in will and error 472
 Much upon this it is [To BOYET] and might not you Forestall our sport, to make us thus untrue?
 Do not you know my lady's foot by the squire,
 And laugh upon the apple of her eye? 476
 And stand between her back, sir, and the fire,
 Holding a trencher, jesting merrily?
 You put our page out go, you are allow'd,
 Die when you will, a smock shall be your shroud
 You leer upon me, do you? there's an eye 481 Wounds like a leaden sword
Boyet Full merrily
 Hath this brave manage, this career, been run Ber Lo! he is tilting straight Peace! I have done 484

Enter COSTARD

Welcome, pure wit! thou partest a fair fray
Cost O Lord, sir, they would know Whether the three Worthies shall come in or no Ber What, are there but three?
Cost No, sir, but it is vara fine, 488
 For every one pursueth three Ber And three times thrice is nine Cost Not so, sir, under correction, sir, I hope, it is not so You cannot beg us, sir, I can assure you, sir, we know what we know
 I hope, sir, three times thrice, sir,— Ber Is not nine 492 Cost Under correction, sir, we know where-until it doth amount Ber By Jove, I always took three threes for nine Cost O Lord, sir! it were pity you should get your living by reckoning, sir 497 Ber How much is it?
Cost O Lord, sir! the parties themselves, the actors, sir, will show whereuntil it doth amount for mine own part, I am, as they say, but to perfect one man in one poor man, Pompion the Great, sir
Ber Art thou one of the Worthies? 504 Cost It pleased them to think me worthy of Pompion the Great for mine own part, I know not the degree of the Worthy, but I am to stand for him 508
Ber Go, bid them prepare Cost We will turn it finely off, sir, we will take some care [Exit King Berowne, they will shame us, let them not approach.
Ber We are shame-proof, my lord, and 'tis some policy 512
 To have one show worse than the king's and his company
King I say they shall not come.
Prin Nay, my good lord, let me o'errule you now. 515
 That sport best pleases that doth least know how;

Where zeal strives to content, and the contents
Die in the zeal of those which it presents, Their form confounded makes most form in mirth,
When great things labouring perish in their birth 520
Ber A right description of our sport, my lord

Enter ARMADO

Arm Anointed, I implore so much expense of thy royal sweet breath as will utter a brace of
words 524

[ARMADO converses with the KING, and delivers a paper to him]

Prin Doth this man serve God?

Ber Why ask you?

Prin He speaks not like a man of God's making 527

Arm That's all one, my fair, sweet, honey monarch, for, I protest, the schoolmaster is exceeding fantastical, too-too vain, too-too vain but we will put it, as they say, to fortuna de la guerra I wish you the peace of mind, most royal complement! [Exit]

King Here is like to be a good presence of Worthies He presents Hector of Troy, the swain, Pompey the Great, the parish curate, Alexander, Armado's page, Hercules, the pen-dant, Judas Maccabæus
And if these four Worthies in their first show thrive,

These four will change habits and present the other five 540

Ber There is five in the first show

King You are deceived, 'tis not so

Ber The pendant, the braggart, the hedge-priest, the fool, and the boy — 544

Abate throw at novum, and the whole world
again

Cannot pick out five such, take each one in his vein

King The ship is under sail and here she comes amain

Enter COSTARD armed, for Pompey

Cost I Pompey am,—

Boyet You lie, you are not he 548

Cost I Pompey am,—

Boyet With libbard's head on knee

Ber Well said, old mocker. I must needs be friends with thee

Cost I Pompey am, Pompey surnam'd the Big,—

Dum 'The Great' 552

Cost It is 'Great,' sir, Pompey surnam'd the Great

That oft in field, with targe and shield, did make my foe to sweat

And travelling along this coast, I here am come
by chance,

And lay my arms before the legs of this sweet lass of France 556

If your ladyship would say, 'Thanks, Pompey,' I had done.

Prin Great thanks, great Pompey

Cost 'Tis not so much worth, but I hope I was perfect I made a little fault in 'Great' Ber My hat to a halfpenny, Pompey proves the best Worthly

Enter SIR NATHANIEL armed, for Alexander Nath When in the world I liv'd, I was the world's commander,

By east, west, north, and south, I spread my conquering might 564

My scutcheon plain declares that I am Alisan-der,—

Boyet Your nose says, no, you are not, for it stands too right

Ber Your nose smells 'no,' in this, most tender-smelling knight

Prin The conqueror is dismay'd Proceed, good Alexander 568

Nath When in the world I liv'd, I was the
world's commander,—

Boyet Most true, 'tis nght you were so,
Alisander

Ber Pompey the Great,—

Cost Your servant, and Costard 572

Ber Take away the conqueror, take away
Alisander

Cost [To NATHANIEL] O' sir, you have overthrown Alisander the conqueror! You will be scraped out of the painted cloth for this your lion, that holds his poll axe sitting on a close-stool, will be given to Ajax he will be the ninth Worthy A conqueror, and afraid to speak!
run away for shame, Alisander! [NATHANIEL retires] There, an't shall please you a foolish mild man, an honest man, look you, and soon dashed! He is a marvellous good neighbour, faith, and a very good bowler, but, for Alisan-der,—alas, you see how 'tis,—a little o'erparted But there are Worthies a-comeing will speak their mind in some other sort

Prin Stand aside, good Pompey 588

Enter HOLOFERNES armed, for Judas, and MOTH armed, for Hercules

Hol Great Hercules is presented by this imp, Whose club kill'd Cerberus, that three-headed cans,

And, when he was a babe, a child, a shrimp,
Thus did he strangle serpents in his manus

Quoniam, he seemeth in minority, 593

Ergo, I come with this apology

Keep some state in thy exit, and vanish —

[MOTH retires]

Judas I am —

Dum A Judas! 596

Hol Not Iscariot, sir

Judas I am, ycleped Maccabæus

Dum Judas Maccabæus clipt is plain Judas

Ber A kissing traitor How art thou prov'd

Judas? 601

Hol Judas I am —

Dum The more shame for you, Judas

Hol What mean you, sir? 604

Boyet To make Judas hang himself

Hol Begin, sir, you are my elder

Ber Well follow'd Jucas was hanged on an elder Hol I will not be put out of countenance 608 Ber Because thou hast no face Hol What is this?
Boyet A cittern-head
Dum The head of a bodkin. 612
Ber A death's face in a ring
Long The face of an old Roman coin, scarce seen Boyet The pommel of Cæsar's falchion
Dum The carved-bone face on a flask 616
Ber Saint George's half-cheek in a brooch Dum Ay, and in a brooch of lead
Ber Ay, and worn in the cap of a tooth-drawer
 And now forward, for we have put thee in countenance 620
Hol You have put me out of countenance
Ber False we have given thee faces Hol But you have outfaced them all Ber An thou wert a lion, we would do so 624
Boyet Therefore, as he is an ass, let him go
 And so adieu, sweet Jude! nay, why dost thou stay?
Dum For the latter end of his name
Ber For the ass to the Jude? give it him —
Jud-as, away! 628
Hol This is not generous, not gentle, not humble Boyet A light for Monsieur Judas! it grows dark, he may stumble Prin Alas! poor Maccabæus, how hath he been baited.

Enter ARMADO armed, for Hector

Ber Hide thy head, Achilles here comes Hector in arms 633 Dum Though my mocks come home by me, I will now be merry King Hector was but a Trojan in respect of this 637 Boyet But is this Hector?
King I think Hector was not so clean-timbered. 640 Long His calf is too big for Hector Dum More calf, certain Boyet No, he is best indued in the small Ber This cannot be Hector 644
Dum He's a god or a painter, for he makes faces Arm The armipotent Mars, of lances the almighty, Gave Hector a gift,— 648
Dum A gilt nutmeg
Ber A lemon
Long Struck with cloves
Dum No, cloven 652
Arm Peace!
The armipotent Mars, of lances the almighty, Gave Hector a gift, the heir of Ilion,
A man so breath'd, that certain he would fight ye 656
From morn till night, out of his pavilion
I am that flower,—

Dum That mint
Long That columbine
Arm Sweet Lord Longaville, rein thy tongue
Long I must rather give it the rein, for it runs against Hector 661 Dum Ay, and Hector's a greyhound
Arm The sweet war-man is dead and rotten, sweet chucks, beat not the bones of the buried, when he breathed, he was a man But I will forward with my device [To the PRINCESS] Sweet royalty, bestow on me the sense of hearing 667 Prin Speak, brave Hector, we are much delighted Arm I do adore thy sweet Grace's slipper
Boyet [Aside to DUMAINE] Loves her by the foot 672
Dum [Aside to BOYET] He may not by the yard Arm This Hector far surmounted Hannibal,— Cost The party is gone, fellow Hector, she is gone, she is two months on her way 677 Arm What meanest thou?
Cost Faith, unless you play the honest Troyan, the poor wench is cast away she's quick, the child brags in her belly already 'tis yours Arm Dost thou infamozize me among potentates? Thou shalt die 683 Cost Then shall Hector be whipped for Jaquenetta that is quick by him, and hanged for Pompey that is dead by him Dum Most rare Pompey!
Boyet Renowned Pompey! 688
Ber Greater than great, great, great, great Pompey! Pompey the Hugel!
Dum Hector trembles
Ber Pompey is moved More Ates, more Ates! stir them on! stir them on! 693 Dum Hector will challenge him
Ber Ay, if a' have no more man's blood in's belly than will sup a flea 696 Arm By the north pole, I do challenge thee
Cost I will not fight with a pole, like a northern man I'll slash, I'll do it by the sword I bepray you, let me borrow my arms again 701 Dum Room for the incensed Worthies!
Cost I'll do it in my shirt
Dum Most resolute Pompey! 704
Moth Master, let me take you a button-hole lower Do you not see Pompey is uncasing for the combat? What mean you? you will lose your reputation 708 Arm Gentlemen and soldiers, pardon me, I will not combat in my shirt Dum You may not deny it, Pompey hath made the challenge. 712 Arm Sweet bloods, I both may and will.
Ber What reason have you for't?
Arm The naked truth of it is, I have no shirt I go woolward for penance 716
Boyet True, and it was enjoined him in Rome for want of linen, since when, I'll be sworn, he wore none but a dish-clout of Jaquenetta's, and that a' wears next his heart for a favour 720

Enter Monsieur MARCADE, a Messenger

Mar God save you, madam!

Prin Welcome, Marcade,

But that thou interrupt'st our merriment

Mar I am sorry, madam, for the news I bring 724

Is heavy in my tongue The king your father—

Prin Dead, for my life!

Mar Even so my tale is told

Ber Worthies, away! The scene begins to cloud 729

Arm For my own part, I breathe free breath
I have seen the day of wrong through the little hole of discretion, and I will right myself like a soldier [Exeunt Worthies]

King How fares your majesty?

Prin Boyet, prepare I will away to-night

King Madam, not so I do beseech you, stay 736

Prin Prepare, I say I thank you, gracious
lords,

For all your fair endeavours, and entreat,

Out of a new-sad soul, that you vouchsafe

In your rich wisdom to excuse or hide 740

The liberal opposition of our spirits,

If over-boldly we have borne ourselves

In the converse of breath, your gentleness

Was guilty of it Farewell, worthy lord! 744

A heavy heart bears not a numble tongue,

Excuse me so, coming so short of thanks

For my great suit so easily obtain'd

King The extreme part of time extremely forms 748

All causes to the purpose of his speed,

And often, at his very loose, decides

That which long process could not arbitrate

And though the mourning brow of progeny 752

Forbid the smiling courtesy of love

The holy suit which faith it would convince,

Yet, since love's argument was first on foot,

Let not the cloud of sorrow justle it 756

From what it purpos'd, since, to wail friends lost

Is not by much so wholesome-profitable

As to rejoice at friends but newly found

Prin I understand you not my griefs are double 760

Ber Honest plain words best pierce the ear
of grief,

And by these badges understand the king

For your fair sakes have we neglected time,

Play'd foul play with our oaths. Your beauty, ladies, 764

Hath much deform'd us, fashioning our humours

Even to the opposed end of our intents,

And what in us hath seem'd ridiculous,—

As love is full of unbefitting strains, 768

All wanton as a child, skipping and vain,

Form'd by the eye, and, therefore, like the eye,

Full of stray shapes, of habits and of forms,

Varying in subjects, as the eye doth roll 772

To every varied object in his glance

Which parti-coated presence of loose love

Put on by us, if, in your heavenly eyes,

Have misbecome our oaths and gravities, 776

Those heavenly eyes, that look into these faults,

Suggested us to make. Therefore, ladies,

Our love being yours, the error that love makes

Is likewise yours we to ourselves prove false,

By being once false for ever to be true 781

To those that make us both,—fair ladies, you

And even that falsehood, in itself a sin,

Thus purifies itself and turns to grace 784

Prin We have receiv'd your letters full of
love,

Your favours, the ambassadors of love,

And, in our maiden council, rated them

At courtship, pleasant just, and courtesy, 788

As bombast and as lining to the time

But more devout than this in our respects

Have we not been, and therefore met your loves

In their own fashion, like a merriment 792

Dum Our letters, madam, show'd much more than jest

Long So did our looks

Ros We did not quote them so

King Now, at the latest minute of the hour,

Grant us your loves

Prin A time, methinks, too short

To make a world-without-end bargain in. 797

No, no, my lord, your Grace is perjur'd much,

Full of dear guiltness, and therefore this

If for my love,—as there is no such cause,— 800

You will do aught, thus shall you do for me

Your oath I will not trust, but go with speed

To some forlorn and naked hermitage,

Remote from all the pleasures of the world, 804

There stay, until the twelve celestial signs

Have brought about their annual reckoning

If this austere insociable life 807

Change not your offer made in heat of blood,

If frosts and fasts, hard lodging and thin weeds,

Nip not the gaudy blossoms of your love,

But that it bear this trial and last love,

Then, at the expiration of the year, 812

Come challenge me, challenge me by these deserts,

And, by this virgin palm now kissing thine,

I will be thine, and, till that instant, shut

My woful self up in a mourning house, 816

Raming the tears of lamentation

For the remembrance of my father's death.

If this thou do deny, let our hands part,

Neither intitled in the other's heart. 820

King If this, or more than this, I would deny,

To flatter up these powers of mine with rest,

The sudden hand of death close up mine eye!

Hence ever then my heart is in thy breast 824

Ber And what to me, my love? and what to
me?

Ros You must be purged too, your sins are rack'd

You are attaint with faults and perjury,

Therefore, if you my favour mean to get, 828

A twelvemonth shall you spend, and never rest,

But seek the weary beds of people sick,

Dum But what to me, my love? but what to
me?

Kath A wife! A beard, fair health, and honesty, 832

With three-fold love I wish you all these three.

Dum O! shall I say, I thank you, gentle wife?

Kath Not so, my lord A twelvemonth and a day
 I'll mark no words that smooth fac'd wooers say 836
 Come when the king doth to my lady come,
 Then, if I have much love, I'll give you some Dum I'll serve thee true and faithfully till then Kath Yet swear not, lest you be forsworn again 840 Long What says Maria?
Mar At the twelvemonth's end
 I'll change my black gown for a faithful friend Long I'll stay with patience, but the time is long 843 Mar The liker you few taller are so young Ber Studies my lady? mistress, look on me
 Behold the window of my heart, mine eye,
 What humble suit attends thy answer there,
 Impose some service on me for thy love 848
Ros Oft have I heard of you, my Lord Berowne, Before I saw you, and the world's large tongue Proclaims you for a man replete with mocks,
 Full of comparisons and wounding flouts, 852
 Which you on all estates will execute
 That he within the mercy of your wit
 To weed this wormwood from your fruitful brain,
 And therewithal to win me, if you please,— 856
 Without the which I am not to be won,—
 You shall thus twelvemonth term, from day to day, Visit the speechless sick, and still converse With groaning wretches, and your task shall be,
 With all the fierce endeavour of your wit 861
 To enforce the pained impotent to smile
Ber To move wild laughter in the throat of death?
 It cannot be, it is impossible 864
 Mirth cannot move a soul in agony
Ros Why, that's the way to choke a gibing spirit, Whose influence is begot of that loose grace
 Which shallow laughing hearers give to fools
 A jest's prosperity lies in the ear 869
 Of him that hears it, never in the tongue
 Of him that makes it then, if sickly ears, Deaf'd with the clamours of their own dear groans, 872
 Will hear your idle scorns, continue them,
 And I will have you and that fault withal,
 But if they will not, throw away that spirit,
 And I shall find you empty of that fault, 876
 Right joyful of your reformation
Ber A twelvemonth! well, befall what will befall, I'll jest a twelvemonth in a hospital
Prin [To the KING] Ay, sweet my lord, and so I take my leave 880
King No, madam, we will bring you on your way
Ber Our wooing doth not end like an old play, Jack hath not Jill, these ladies' courtesy Might well have made our sport a comedy 884

King Come, sir, it wants a twelvemonth and a day,
 And then 'twill end
Ber That's too long for a play
 Enter ARMADO
Arm Sweet majesty, vouchsafe me,— Prin Was not that Hector? 888
Dum The worthy knight of Troy
Arm I will kiss thy royal finger, and take leave
 I am a votary, I have vowed to Jaquenetta to hold the plough for her sweet love three years
 But, most esteemed greatness, will you hear the dialogue that the two learned men have compiled in praise of the owl and the cuckoo? it should have followed in the end of our show 896
King Call them forth quickly, we will do so Arm Holla! approach
 Re-enter HOLOFERNES, NATHANIEL, MOTH, COSTARD, and others
 This side is Hiems, Winter, this Ver, the Spring, the one maintained by the owl, the other by the cuckoo Ver, begin 901

SPRING
 I
 When daisies pied and violets blue
 And lady smocks all silver white
 And cuckoo buds of yellow hue 904
 Do paint the meadows with delight
 The cuckoo then on every tree
 Mocks married men for thus sings he Cuckoo 908
 Cuckoo cuckoo O, word of fear,
 Unpleasing to a married ear!
 II
 When shepherds pipe on oaten straws
 And merry larks are ploughmen's clocks 912
 When turtles tread, and rooks and daws
 And maidens bleach their summer smocks,
 The cuckoo then on every tree
 Mocks married men for thus sings he, Cuckoo 916
 Cuckoo cuckoo O, word of fear
 Unpleasing to a married ear!

WINTER
 III
 When icicles hang by the wall
 And Dick the shepherd blows his nail 920
 And Tom bears logs into the hall,
 And milk comes frozen home in pail,
 When blood is nipp'd and ways be foul, 924
 Then nightly sings the staring owl
 Tu who, Tu who,
 Tu whut tu who—a merry note
 While greasy Joan doth keel the pot 928
 IV
 When all aloud the wind doth blow
 And coughing drowns the parson's saw
 And birds sit brooding in the snow,
 And Marian's nose looks red and raw, 932
 When roasted crabs hiss in the bowl,
 Then nightly sings the staring owl
 Tu—who, Tu—who, 936
 Tu whut tu who—a merry note,
 While greasy Joan doth keel the pot.
Arm The words of Mercury are harsh after the songs of Apollo You, that way we, this

SCENE — Athens, and a Wood near it

ACT I

SCENE I — Athens The Palace of THESEUS

Enter THESEUS, HIPPOLYTA, PHILOSTRATE, and Attendants

The Now, fair Hippolyta, our nuptial hour Draws on apace four happy days bring in Another moon, but O! methinks how slow
 This old moon wanes, she lingers my desires, 4
 Like to a step-dame, or a dowager
 Long withering out a young man's revenue Hip Four days will quickly steep themselves in night;
 Four nights will quickly dream away the time, 8
 And then the moon, like to a silver bow
 New-bent in heaven, shall behold the night
 Of our solemnities

The Go, Philostrate,
 Stir up the Athenian youth to merriments, 12
 Awake the pert and nimble spirit of mirth, Turn melancholy forth to funerals,
 The pale companion is not for our pomp

[Exit PHILOSTRATE]
 Hippolyta, I woo'd thee with my sword, 16
 And won thy love doing thee injuries,
 But I will wed thee in another key,
 With pomp, with triumph, and with revelling

Enter EGEUS, HERMIA, LYSANDER, and DEMETRIUS

Ege Happy be Theseus, our renowned duke!
The Thanks, good Egeus what's the news
 with thee?

Ege Full of vexation come I, with complaint Against my child, my daughter Hermia 24
 Stand forth, Demetrius My noble lord,
 This man hath my consent to marry her Stand forth, Lysander and, my gracious duke,
 This man hath bewitch'd the bosom of my child
 Thou, thou, Lysander, thou hast given her runes,
 And interchang'd love-tokens with my child, 29
 Thou hast by moonlight at her window sung,
 With feigning voice, verses of feigning love,

And stol'n the impression of her fantasy 32
 With bracelets of thy hair, rings, gawds, conceits, Knacks, trifles, nosebags, sweetmeats, messengers
 Of strong prevailment in unhardened youth,
 With cunning hast thou filch'd my daughter's heart, 36

Turn'd her obedience, which is due to me,
 To stubborn harshness And, my gracious duke,
 Be it so she will not here before your Grace Consent to marry with Demetrius, 40
 I beg the ancient privilege of Athens,
 As she is mine, I may dispose of her,
 Which shall be either to this gentleman,
 Or to her death, according to our law 44
 Immediately provided in that case

The. What say you, Hermia? be advis'd, fair maid.

To you, your father should be as a god,
 One that compos'd your beauties, yea, and one
 To whom you are but as a form in wax 49
 By him imprinted, and within his power
 To leave the figure or disfigure it Demetrius is a worthy gentleman 52

Her So is Lysander

The In himself he is,
 But, in this kind, wanting your father's voice,
 The other must be held the worthier

Her I would my father look'd but with my eyes 56

The Rather your eyes must with his judgment look.

Her I do entreat your Grace to pardon me
 I know not by what power I am made bold, Nor how it may concern my modesty 60
 In such a presence here to plead my thoughts,
 But I beseech your Grace, that I may know
 The worst that may befall me in this case,
 If I refuse to wed Demetrius 64

The Either to die the death, or to abjure
 For ever the society of men.
 Therefore, fair Hermia, question your dearest, Know of your youth, examine well your blood,

Whether, if you yield not to your father's choice,
 You can endure the livery of a nun,
 For aye to be in shady cloister mew'd,
 To live a barren sister all your life,
 Chanting faint hymns to the cold fruitless moon
 Thrice blessed they that master so their bloo'd,
 To undergo such maiden pilgrimage,
 But earthlier happy is the rose distill'd,
 Than that which withering on the virgin thorn
 Grows, lives, and dies, in single b'essedness
Her So will I grow, so live, so die, my lord, Ere I will yield my virgin patent up Unto his lordship, whose unwish'd yoke
 My soul consents not to give sovereignty
The Take time to pause, and, by the next new moon,—

The sealing-day betwixt my love and me 84
 For everlasting bond of fellowship,— Upon that day either prepare to die For disobedience to your father's will Or else to wed Demetrius, as he would,
 Or on Diana's altar to protest
 For aye austerity and single life

Dem Relent, sweet Hermia, and, Lysander, yield

Thy crazed title to my certain right 92

Lys You have her father's love, Demetrius, Let me have Hermia's—do you marry him

Ege Scornful Lysander! true, he hath my
 love,

And what is mine my love shall render him, 96
 And she is mine, and all my right of her
 I do estate unto Demetrius

Lys I am, my lord, as well deriv'd as he,
 As well possess'd, my love is more than his, 100
 My fortunes every way as fairly rank'd

If not with vantage, as Demetrius,

And, which is more than all these boasts can be,

I am belov'd of beauteous Hermia 104

Why should not I then prosecute my right?

Demetrius, I'll avouch it to his head,

Made love to Nedar's daughter, Helena,

And won her soul, and she, sweet lady, dotes,

Devoutly dotes, dotes in idolatry, 109

Upon thus spotted and inconstant man

The I must confess that I have heard so much,

And with Demetrius thought to have spoke thereof; 112

But, being over-full of self-affairs,

My mind did lose it—But, Demetrius, come,

And come, Egeus, you shall go with me,

I have some private schooling for you both 116

For you, fair Hermia, look you arm yourself

To fit your fancies to your father's will,

Or else the law of Athens yields you up,

Which by no means we may extenuate, 120

To death, or to a vow of single life

Come, my Hippolyta—what cheer, my love?

Demetrius and Egeus, go along

I must employ you in some business 124

Against our nuptial, and confer with you

Of something nearly that concerns yourselves

Ege With duty and desire we follow you

[Exeunt THESEUS, HIPPOLYTA, EGEUS,

DEMETRIUS, and Train.

Lys How now, my love! Why is your cheek so pale? 128

How chance the roses there do fade so fast?

Her Belike for want of rain, which I could
 well 132

Betwixt them from the tempest of mine eyes

Lys Ay me! for aught that ever I could read, 132

Could ever hear by tale or history,

The course of true love never did run smooth,

But, either it was different in blood,—

Her O cross! too high to be enthral'd to low, 136

Lys Or else misgraffed in respect of years,—

Her O spite! too old to be engag'd to young Lys Or else it stood upon the choice of friends,— 139

Her O hell! to choose love by another's eye

Lys Or, if there were a sympathy in choice,

War, death, or sickness did lay's eye to it,

Making it momentary as a sound,

Swift as a shadow, short as any dream, 144

Brief as the lightning in the collied night,

That, in a spleen, unfolds both heaven and earth,

And ere a man hath power to say, 'Behold!'

The jaws of darkness do devour it up 148

So quick bright things come to confusion

Her If then true lovers have been ever cross'd,

It stands as an edict in destiny

Then let us teach our trial patience, 152

Because it is a customary cross,

As due to love as thoughts and dreams and sighs,

Whines and tears, poor fancy's followers

Lys A good persuasion—therefore, hear me, Hermia 156

I have a widow aunt, a dowager

Of great revenue, and she hath no child

From Athens is her house remote seven leagues,

And she respects me as her only son 160

There, gentle Hermia, may I marry thee,

And to that place the sharp Athenian law

Cannot pursue us—If thou lov'st me then,

Steal forth thy father's house to-morrow night,

And in the wood, a league without the town, 165

Where I did meet thee once with Helena,

To do observance to a morn of May,

There will I stay for thee

Her My good Lysander! 168

I swear to thee by Cupid's strongest bow,

By his best arrow with the golden head

By the simplicity of Venus' doves,

By that which knitteth souls and prospers loves,

And by that fire which burn'd the Carthage
 queen, 173

When the false Trojan under sail was seen,

By all the vows that ever men have broke,—

In number more than ever women spoke,— 176

In that same place thou hast appointed me,

To-morrow truly will I meet with thee

Lys Keep promise, love. Look, here comes Helena.

Enter HELENA

Her God speed fair Helena! Whither away?

Hel. Call you me fair? that fair again unsay

Demetrius loves your fair O happy fair!
Your eyes are lode-stars! and your tongue's sweet air

More tuneable than lark to shepherd's ear, 184
When wheat is green, when hawthorn buds appear

Sickness is catching O! were favour so,
Yours would I catch, fair Hermia, ere I go,
My ear should catch your voice, my eye your eye,
My tongue should catch your tongue's sweet melody 189

Were the world mine, Demetrius being bated,
The rest I'd give to be to you translated O! teach me how you look, and with what art
You sway the motion of Demetrius heart 193

Her I frown upon him, yet he loves me still Hel O! that your frowns would teach my smiles such skill.

Her I give him curses, yet he gives me love.
Hel O! that my prayers could such affection move 197

Her The more I hate, the more he follows
me

Hel The more I love, the more he hateth me
Her His folly, Helena, is no fault of mine

Hel None, but your beauty would that fault were mine! 201

Her Take comfort he no more shall see my face,

Lysander and myself will fly this place
Before the time I did Lysander see, 204

Secur'd Athens as a paradise to me
O! then, what graces in my love do dwell,
That he hath turn'd a heaven unto a hell

Lys Helen to you our minds we will untold
To-morrow night when Phoebe doth behold
Her silver visage in the wat'ry glass, 210

Decking with liquid pearl the bladed grass,—
A time that lovers' flights doth still conceal,— Through Athens' gates have we devis'd to steal

Her And in the wood, were often you and I Upon faint primrose-beds were wont to lie, Emptying our bosoms of their counsel sweet,
There my Lysander and myself shall meet, 217

And thence from Athens turn away our eyes,
To seek new friends and stranger companies
Farewell, sweet playfellow pray thou for us,
And good luck grant thee thy Demetrius! 221

Keep word, I ysander we must starve our sight
From lovers' food till morrow deep midnight.

Lys I will my Hermia—[Exit HERMIA]
Helena, adieu 224

As you on him, Demetrius do on you! [Exit Hel' How happy some o'er other some can be!]

Through Athens I am thought as fair as she,
But what of that? Demetrius thinks not so,
He will not know what all but he do know, 229

And as he errs, doting on Hermia's eyes,
So I, admiring of his qualities
Things base and vile holding no quantity, 232

Love can transmute to form and dignity Love looks not with the eyes, but with the mind,
And therefore is wing'd Cupid painted blind
Nor hath Love's mind of any judgment taste, Wings and no eyes figure unheedy haste 237

And therefore is Love said to be a child, Because in choice he is so oft beguill'd
As waggish boys in game themselves forswear,
So the boy Love is perjur'd every where, 241
For ere Demetrius look'd on Hermia's eyne,
He hail'd down oaths that he was only mine,
And when this hail some heat from Hermia felt,
So he dissolv'd, and showers of oaths did melt
I will go tell him of fair Hermia's flight 246
Then to the wood will he to-morrow night
Pursue her, and for this intelligence
If I have thanks, it is a dear expense
But herein mean I to enrich my pain, 250
To have his sight thither and back again [Exit]

SCENE II—The Same A Room in QUINCE'S
House

Enter QUINCE, SNUG, BOTTOM, FLUTE, SNOUT,
and STARVELING

Quin Is all our company here?

Bot You were best to call them generally, man by man, according to the scrip

Quin Here is the scroll of every man's name, which is thought fit, through all Athens, to play in our interlude before the duke and the duchess on his wedding-day at night 7

Bot First, good Peter Quince, say what the play treats on, then read the names of the actors, and so grow to a point 10

Quin Marry, our play is, The most lamentable comedy, and most cruel death of Pyramus and Thisby 13

Bot A very good piece of work, I assure you, and a merry Now, good Peter Quince, call forth your actors by the scroll Masters, spread yourselves 17

Quin Answer as I call you. Nick Bottom, the weaver

Bot Ready Name what part I am for, and proceed 21

Quin You, Nick Bottom, are set down for Pyramus

Bot What is Pyramus? a lover, or a tyrant?

Quin A lover, that kills himself most gallantly for love 26

Bot That will ask some tears in the true performing of it if I do it, let the audience look to their eyes I will move storms, I will condole in some measure To the rest yet my chief humour is for a tyrant I could play Eracles rarely, or a part to tear a cat in, to make all split 33

The raging rocks
And shivering shocks
Shall break the locks 36

Of prison gates
And Phibbus' car
Shall shine from far
And make and mar 40

The foolish Fates

This was lofty! Now name the rest of the players This is Eracles' vein, a tyrant's vein, a lover is more condoling 44

Quin Francis Flute, the bellows-mender.

Flu Here, Peter Quince
Quin You must take Thisby on you 47
Flu What is Thisby? a wandering knight?
Quin It is the lady that Pyramus must love Flu Nay, faith, let not me play a woman, I have a beard coming 51 Quin That's all one you shall play it in a mask, and you may speak as small as you will Bot An I may lude my face, let me play Thisby too I'll speak in a monstrous little voice, 'Thisne, Thisne!' 'Ah, Pyramus, my lover
 dear, thy Thisby dear, and lady dear!' 57 Quin No, no, you must play Pyramus, and Flute, you Thisby
Bot Well, proceed 60
Quin Robin Starveling, the tailor Star Here, Peter Quince Quin Robin Starveling, you must play Thisby's mother Tom Snout, the tinker 64
Snout Here, Peter Quince Quin You, Pyramus's father, myself, Thisby's father, Snug, the joiner, you the lion's part and, I hope, here is a play fitted 68 Snug Have you the lion's part written? pray you, if it be, give it me, for I am slow of study Quin You may do it extempore, for it is nothing but roaring 72
Bot Let me play the lion too I will roar, that I will do any man's heart good to hear me, I will roar, that I will make the duke say, 'Let him roar again, let him roar again' 76 Quin An you should do it too terribly, you would fright the duchess and the ladies, that they would shneke, and that were enough to hang us all 80
All That would hang us, every mother's son Bot I grant you, friends, if that you should fright the ladies out of their wits, they would have no more discretion but to hang us, but I will aggravate my voice so that I will roar you as gently as any sucking dove, I will roar you as 'twere any nightingale 87 Quin You can play no part but Pyramus, for Pyramus is a sweet-faced man, a proper man, as one shall see in a summer's day, a most lovely, gentleman-like man, therefore, you must needs play Pyramus 92 Bot Well, I will undertake it What beard were I best to play it in?
Quin Why, what you will Bot I will discharge it in either your strawcolour beard, your orange-tawny beard, your purple in grain beard, or your French-crown colour beard, your perfect yellow 99 Quin Some of your French crowns have no hair at all, and then you will play bare-faced But masters, here are your parts, and I am to entreat you, request you, and desire you, to contem by to-morrow night, and meet me in the palace wood, a mile without the town, by moonlight there will we rehearse, for if we meet in the city, we shall be dogged with company, and our devices known In the meantime I will draw a bill of properties, such as our play wants I pray you, fail me not 110 Bot We will meet, and there we may rehearse more obscenely and courageously Take pains, be perfect, adieu

Quin At the duke's oak we meet Bot Enough, hold, or cut bow-strings 115
 [Exeunt]

ACT II

SCENE I — A Wood near Athens

Enter a Fairy on one side, and PUCK on the other

Puck How now, spirit! wthther wander you?
Fai Over hill, over dale,
 Thorough bush, thorough brier,
 Over park, over pale,
 Thorough flood, thorough fire,
 I do wander every where,
 Swifter than the moone's sphere,
 And I serve the fairy queen,
 To dew her orbs upon the green
 The cowslips tall her pensioners be,
 In their gold coats spots you see,
 Those be rubies, fairy favours, 12
 In their freckles live their savours
 I must go seek some dew-drops here,
 And hang a pearl in every cowslip's ear
 Farewell, thou lob of spirits I'll be gone 16
 Our queen and all her elves come here anon Puck The king doth keep his revels here tonight
 Take heed the queen come not within his sight,
 For Oberon is passing fell and wrath, 20
 Because that she as her attendant hath
 A lovely boy, stol'n from an Indian king,
 She never had so sweet a changeling,
 And jealous Oberon would have the child 24
 Knight of his train, to trace the forests wild,
 But she, perforce, withholds the loved boy, Crowns him with flowers, and makes him all her joy
 And now they never meet in grove, or green, 28
 By fountain clear, or spangled starlight sheen, But they do square, that all their elves, for fear,
 Creep into acorn-cups and hide them there Fai Either I mistake your shape and making quite, 32
 Or else you are that shrewd and knavish sprite Call'd Robin Goodfellow are you not he That frights the maidens of the villagery, Skim milk, and sometimes labour in the quern,
 And bootless make the breathless housewife churn, 37
 And sometime make the drink to bear no barm, Misdread night-wanderers, laughing at their harm?
 Those that Hobgoblin call you and sweet Puck,
 You do their work, and they shall have good luck 41
 Are you not he?
Puck Fairy, thou speak'st aright,
 I am that merry wanderer of the night
 I jest to Oberon, and make him smile
 When I a fat and bean-fed horse beguile, Neighing in likeness of a filly foal
 And sometime lurk I in a gossip's bowl,

In very likeness of a roasted crab, 48
 And, when she drinks, against her lips I bob
 And on her wither'd dewlap pour the ale
 The wisest aunt, telling the saddest tale, Sometime for three-foot stool mistaketh me, 52
 Then slip I from her bum, down topples she,
 And 'tailor' cries, and falls into a cough,
 And then the whole quire hold their hips and loff,
 And waxen in their mirth, and neeze, and
 swear 56
 A merrier hour was never wasted there
 But, room, fairy! here comes Oberon Fai And here my mistress Would that he were gone!

Enter OBERON from one side, with his Train, and TITANIA from the other, with hers

Obe Ill met by moonlight, proud Titania 60

Tita What! jealous Oberon. Fairies, skip
 hence

I have forsworn his bed and company

Obe Tarry, rash wanton! am not I thy lord?

Tita Then, I must be thy lady, but I know

When thou hast stol'n away from fairy land, 65

And in the shape of Corin sat all day,

Playing on pipes of corn, and versing love

To amorous Phillida Why art thou here, 68

Come from the furthest steppe of India?

But that, forsooth, the bouncing Amazon,

Your buskin'd mistress and your warrior love,

To Theseus must be wedded, and you come 72

To give their bed joy and prosperity

Obe How canst thou thus for shame, Titania,

Glance at my credit with Hippolyta,

Knowing I know thy love to Theseus? 76

Didst thou not lead him through the glimmering night

From Perigouna, whom he ravished?

And make him with fair Egle break his faith,

With Ariadne, and Antiope? 80

Tita These are the forgeries of jealousy

And never, since the middle summer's spring,

Met we on hill, in dale, forest, or mead,

By paved fountain, or by rushy brook, 84

Or in the beached margin of the sea,

To dance our ringlets to the whistling wind,

But with thy brawls thou hast disturb'd our

sport

Therefore the winds, piping to us in vain, 88

As in revenge, have suck'd up from the sea

Contagious fogs, which, falling in the land,

Have every pelted river made so proud

That they have overborne their continents 92

The ox hath therefore stretch'd his yoke in vain,

The ploughman lost his sweat, and the green corn

Hath rotted ere his youth attain'd a beard

The fold stands empty in the drowned field, 96

And crows are fatted with the murrion flock,

The nine men's morris is fill'd up with mud,

And the quaint mazes in the wanton green

For lack of tread are undistinguishable 100

The human mortals want their winter here

No night is now with hymn or carol blest

Therefore the moon, the governess of floods,

Pale in her anger, washes all the air, 104

That rheumatic diseases do abound
 And thorough this distemperature we see
 The seasons alter hoary-headed frosts
 Fall in the fresh lap of the crimson rose, 108
 And on old Hiems' thin and icy crown
 An odorous chaplet of sweet summer buds
 Is, as in mockery, set The spring, the summer,
 The chiding autumn, angry winter, change 112
 Their wonted liveries, and the mazed world,
 By their increase, now knows not which is which
 And this same progeny of evil comes From our debate, from our dissension 116
 We are their parents and original

Obe Do you amend it then, it lies in you.
 Why should Titania cross her Oberon?
 I do but beg a little changeling boy, 120
 To be my henchman

Tita Set your heart at rest,
 The fairy land buys not the child of me
 His mother was a votaress of my order
 And, in the spiced Indian air, by night, 124
 Full often hath she gossip'd by my side,
 And sat with me on Neptune's yellow sands, Marking the embarked traders on the flood,
 When we have laugh'd to see the sails conceive
 And grow big-bellied with the wanton wind,
 Which she, with pretty and with swimming gait Following,—her womb then rich with my young squire,—

Would imitate, and sail upon the land, 132
 To fetch me trifles, and return again,
 As from a voyage, rich with merchandise
 But she, being mortal, of that boy did die,
 And for her sake I do rear up her boy, 136
 And for her sake I will not part with him.

Obe How long within this wood intend you stay?

Tita Perchance, till after Theseus' wedding-
 day

If you will patiently dance in our round, 140
 And see our moonlight revels, go with us,

If not, shun me, and I will spare your haunts

Obe Give me that boy, and I will go with
 thee

Tita Not for thy fairy kingdom Fairies,
 away! 144

We shall chide downright, if I longer stay [Exit TITANIA with her Train

Obe Well, go thy way thou shalt not from this grove

Till I torment thee for this injury

My gentle Puck, come hither Thou remem-ber'st 148

Since once I sat upon a promontory,
 And heard a mermaid on a dolphin's back Uttering such dulcet and harmonious breath,
 That the rude sea grew civil at her song, 152
 And certain stars shot madly from their spheres
 To hear the sea-maid's music

Puck I remember

Obe That very time I saw, but thou couldst
 not,

Flying between the cold moon and the earth,

Cupid all arm'd a certain aim he took 157

At a fair vestal throned by the west,

And loos'd his love-shaft smartly from his bow,

As it should pierce a hundred thousand hearts,
But I might see young Cupid's fiery shaft 161 Quench'd in the chaste beams of the wat'ry
moon,

And the imperial votaress passed on,
In maiden meditation, fancy-free 164
Yet mark'd I where the bolt of Cupid fell
It fell upon a little western flower, Before milk-white, now purple with love's wound,

And maidens call it, Love-in-idleness 168 Fetch me that flower, the herb I show'd thee once

The juice of it on sleeping eyelids laid
Will make or man or woman madly dote
Upon the next live creature that it sees 172
Fetch me this herb, and be thou here again
Ere the leviathan can swim a league

Puck I'll put a girdle round about the earth
In forty minutes [Exit

Obe Having once this juice 176
I'll watch Titania when she is asleep,
And drop the liquor of it in her eyes
The next thing then she waking looks upon,
Be it on lion, bear, or wolf, or bull, 180
On meddling monkey, or on busy ape,
She shall pursue it with the soul of love
And ere I take this charm off from her sight,
As I can take it with another herb, 184
I'll make her render up her page to me
But who comes here? I am invisible,
And I will overhear their conference

Enter DEMETRIUS, HELENA following him

Dem I love thee not, therefore pursue me not Where is Lysander and fair Hermia? 189
The one I'll slay, the other slayeth me
Thou told'st me they were stol'n into this wood,
And here am I, and wood within this wood, 192
Because I cannot meet my Hermia
Hence! get thee gone, and follow me no more

Hel You draw me, you hard-hearted adaman-tant

But yet you draw not iron, for my heart 196
Is true as steel: leave you your power to draw,
And I shall have no power to follow you

Dem Do I entice you? Do I speak you fair?
Or, rather, do I not in plainest truth 200
Tell you I do not nor I cannot love you?

Hel And even for that do I love you the more
I am your spaniel, and, Demetrius,
The more you beat me, I will fawn on you 204
Use me but as your spaniel, spurn me, strike me, Neglect me, lose me, only give me leave,
Unworthy as I am, to follow you,
What worse place can I beg in your love, 208
And yet a place of high respect with me,
Than to be used as you use your dog?

Dem Tempt not too much the hatred of my spirit,

For I am sick when I do look on you. 212

Hel And I am sick when I look not on you Dem You do impeach your modesty too

much,

To leave the city, and commit yourself
Into the hands of one that loves you not, 216

To trust the opportunity of night
And the ill counsel of a desert place
With the rich worth of your virginity

Hel Your virtue is my privilege for that 220
It is not night when I do see your face, Therefore I think I am not in the night,
Nor doth this wood lack worlds of company,
For you in my respect are all the world 224
Then how can it be said I am alone,
When all the world is here to look on me?

Dem I'll run from thee and hide me in the brakes,

And leave thee to the mercy of wild beasts 228
Hel The wildest hath not such a heart as you Run when you will, the story shall be chang'd, Apollo fies, and Daphne holds the chase,

The dove pursues the griffin, the mild hind 232 Makes speed to catch the tiger: bootless speed,
When cowardice pursues and valour fies

Dem I will not stay thy questions: let me go,
Or, if thou follow me, do not believe 236
But I shall do thee mischief in the wood

Hel Ay, in the temple, in the town, the field,
You do me mischief: Fie, Demetrius!
Your wrongs do set a scandal on my sex 240

We cannot fight for love, as men may do,
We should be woo'd and were not made to woo

[Exit DEMETRIUS
I'll follow thee and make a heaven of hell,
To die upon the hand I love so well [Exit

Obe Fare thee well, nymph: ere he do leave
this grove, 245
Thou shalt fly him, and he shall seek thy love.

Re-enter PUCK

Hast thou the flower there? Welcome, wanderer Puck Ay, there it is

Obe I pray thee, give it me 248
I know a bank whereon the wild thyme blows,
Where oxlips and the nodding violet grows Quite over-canopied with luscious woodbine,
With sweet musk-roses, and with eglantine 252

There sleeps Titania some time of the night, Lull'd in these flowers with dances and delight,
And there the snake throws her enamell'd skin,
Weed wide enough to wrap a fairy in 256

And with the juice of this I'll streak her eyes,
And make her full of hateful fantasies Take thou some of it, and seek through this grove

A sweet Athenian lady is in love 260
With a disdainful youth: anoint his eyes,
But do it when the next thing he espies
May be the lady: Thou shalt know the man
By the Athenian garments he hath on 264

Effect it with some care, that he may prove More fond on her than she upon her love
And look thou meet me ere the first cock crow

Puck Fear not, my lord, your servant shall do so

[Exit

SCENE II — Another Part of the Wood

Enter TITANIA, with her Train

Tita Come, now a roundel and a fairy song,
Then, for the third of a minute, hence,

Some to kill cankers in the musk-rose buds,
Some war with rere-mice for their leathern wings,
To make my small elves coats, and some keep back
The clamorous owl, that nightly hoots, and wonders
At our quaint spirits Sing me now asleep, Then to your offices, and let me rest

The Fairies sing

I

You spotted snakes with double tongue,
Thorny hedge hogs be not seen Newts, and blind worms do no wrong,
Come not near our fairy queen
Phylomel with melody
Sing in our sweet lullaby, Lulla lulla lullaby lulla, lulla, lullaby Never harm
Nor spell, nor charm
Come our lovely lady nigh
So, good night with lullaby

II

Waving spiders come not here
Hence, you long leg'd spinners, hence!
Beetles black approach not near Worm nor snail do no offence
Phylomel, with melody &c

Fai Hence away! now all is well
One aloof stand sentinel

[Exeunt Fairies TITANIA sleeps]

Enter OBERON, and squeezes the flower on TITANIA'S eyelids

Obe What thou seest when thou dost wake,
Do it for thy true love take,
Love and languish for his sake
Be it ounce, or cat, or bear,
Pard, or boar with bristled hair,
In thy eye that shall appear
When thou wak'st, it is thy dear Wake when some vile thing is near

Enter LYSANDER and HERMIA

Lys Fair love, you faint with wandering in the wood,

And to speak troth, I have forgot our way
We'll rest us, Hermia, if you think it good,
And tarry for the comfort of the day

Her Be it so, Lysander find you out a bed,
For I upon this bank will rest my head

Lys One turf shall serve as pillow for us both,
One heart, one bed, two bosoms, and one troth

Her Nay, good Lysander, for my sake, my
dear,

Lie further off yet, do not lie so near

Lys O! take the sense, sweet, of my innocence, Love takes the meaning in love's conference.

I mean that my heart unto yours is knit,
So that but one heart we can make of it

Two bosoms interchained with an oath,
So then two bosoms and a single troth

Then by your side no bed-room me deny,
For, lying so, Hermia, I do not lie

Her Lysander riddles very prettily Now much beshrew my manners and my pride,
If Hermia meant to say Lysander lied.

But, gentle friend, for love and courtesy Lie further off, in human modesty,
Such separation as may well be said Becomes a virtuous bachelor and a maid,
So far be distant, and, good night, sweet friend
Thy love ne'er alter till thy sweet life end!
Lys Amen, amen, to that fair prayer, say I,
And then end life when I end loyalty!

[Retires a little distance]

Here is my bed sleep give thee all his rest!

Her With half that wish the wisher's eyes be press'd!

[They sleep]

Enter PUCK

12 Puck Through the forest have I gone,
But Athenian found I none,
On whose eyes I might approve
This flower's force in stirring love

16 Night and silence! who is here?
Weeds of Athens he doth wear
This is he, my master said,
Despised the Athenian maid,

20 And here the maiden, sleeping sound,
On the dank and dirty ground
Pretty soul! she durst not lie
Near this lack-love, this kill-courtesy

24 [Squeezes the flower on LYSANDER'S eyelids]
Churl, upon thy eyes I throw
All the power this charm doth owe
When thou wak'st, let love forbid
Sleep his seat on thy eyelid

76 So awake when I am gone,
For I must now to Oberon

[Exit]

Enter DEMETRIUS and HELENA, running

Hel Stay, though thou kill me, sweet Demetrius

84 Dem I charge thee, hence, and do not haunt me thus

Hel O! wilt thou darkling leave me? do not so

Dem Stay, on thy peril I alone will go

[Exit DEMETRIUS]

Hel O! I am out of breath in this fond chase

The more my prayer, the lesser is my grace

89 Happy is Hermia, wheresoe'er she lies,
For she hath blessed and attractive eyes

How came her eyes so bright? Not with salt tears

If so, my eyes are oftener wash'd than hers

93 No, no, I am as ugly as a bear,
For beasts that meet me run away for fear,

Therefore no marvel though Demetrius

96 Do, as a monster, fly my presence thus

What wicked and dissembling glass of mine

Made me compare with Hermia's spherish eye?

But who is here? Lysander! on the ground!

100 Dead? or asleep? I see no blood, no wound.

Lysander, if you live, good sir, awake

Lys [Awaking] And run through fire I will for thy sweet sake

52 Transparent Helena! Nature shows art,
That through thy bosom makes me see thy heart.

Where is Demetrius? O! how fit a word

Is that vile name to perish on my sword.

Hel Do not say so, Lysander, say not so What though he love your Hermia? Lord!
what though?

Yer Hermia still loves you then be content
Lys Content with Hermia? No I do repent

The tedious minutes I with her have spent Not Hermia, but Helena I love

Who will not change a raven for a dove?
The will of man is by his reason sway'd,

And reason says you are the worthier maid
Things growing are not ripe until their season,

So I, being young, till now ripe not to reason,
And touching now the point of human skill,

Reason becomes the marshal to my will,
And leads me to your eyes, where I o'erlook

Love's stories written in love's richest book Hel Wherefore was I to this keen mockery

born?
When at your hands did I deserve this scorn?

Is't not enough, is't not enough, young man,
That I did never, no, nor never can,

Deserve a sweet look from Demetrius' eye,
But you must flout my insufficiency?

Good troth, you do me wrong, good sooth, you do,

In such disdainful manner me to woo
But fare you well perforce I must confess

I thought you lord of more true gentleness
O! that a lady of one man refus'd,

Should of another therefore be abus'd [Exit Lys She sees not Hermia Hermia, sleep

thou there,
And never mayst thou come Lysander near

For, as a surfeit of the sweetest things
The deepest loathing to the stomach brings,

Or, as the heresies that men do leave
Are hated most of those they did deceive

So thou, my surfeit and my heresy,
Of all be hated, but the most of me!

And, all my powers, address your love and might

To honour Helen, and to be her knight [Exit Her [Awaking] Help me, Lysander, help me! do thy best

To pluck this crawling serpent from my breast

Ay me, for pity! what a dream was here!
Lysander, look how I do quake with fear

Methought a serpent eat my heart away,
And you sat smiling at his cruel prey

Lysander! what! remov'd?—Lysander! lord!
What! out of hearing? gone? no sound, no

word?
Alack! where are you? speak, an if you hear,

Speak of all loves! I wound almost with fear
No! then I well perceive you are not nigh

Either death or you I'll find immediately [Exit

ACT III

SCENE I—A Wood TITANIA lying asleep

Enter QUINCE, SNUG, BOTTOM, FLUTE, SNOUT,
and STARVELING

Bot Are we all met?

Quin Pat, pat, and here's a marvellous convenient place for our rehearsal This green plot shall be our stage, this hawthorn-brake our tiring-house, and we will do it in action as we will do it before the duke

Bot Peter Quince,—

Quin What sayst thou, bully Bottom?

Bot There are things in this comedy of Pyramus and Thusby that will never please

First, Pyramus must draw a sword to kill himself, which the ladies cannot abide How answer you that?

Snout By'r lakin, a parlous fear

Star I believe we must leave the killing out, when all is done

Bot Not a whit I have a device to make all well Write me a prologue, and let the prologue seem to say, we will do no harm with our swords, and that Pyramus is not killed indeed, and,

for the more better assurance, tell them that I, Pyramus, am not Pyramus, but Bottom the weaver this will put them out of fear Quin Well, we will have such a prologue, and it shall be written in eight and six Bot No, make it two more let it be written in eight and eight Snout Will not the ladies be afeard of the lion?

Star I fear it, I promise you

Bot Masters, you ought to consider with yourselves to bring in,—God's shield us!—a lion among ladies, is a most dreadful thing, for there is not a more fearful wild-fowl than your lion living, and we ought to look to it Snout Therefore, another prologue must tell

he is not a lion Bot Nay, you must name his name and half his face must be seen through the lion's neck, and he himself must speak through, saying thus,

or to the same defect, 'Ladies,' or, 'Fair ladies,'
'I would wish you,' or, 'I would request you,' or,

'I would entreat you, not to fear, not to tremble my life for yours If you think I come hither as a lion, it were pity of my life no, I am no such thing I am a man as other men are,' and there indeed let him name his name, and tell them plainly he is Snug the joiner

Quin Well, it shall be so But there is two hard things, that is, to bring the moonlight into a chamber, for, you know, Pyramus and Thusby meet by moonlight

Snug Doth the moon shine that night we play our play?

Bot A calendar, a calendar! look in the almanack, find out moonshine, find out moonshine

Quin Yes, it doth shine that night

Bot Why, then may you leave a casement of the great chamber-window, where we play, open, and the moon may shine in at the casement

Quin Ay, or else one must come in with a bush of thorns and a lanthorn, and say he comes to disfigure, or to present, the person of Moon- shine Then, there is another thing we must have a wall in the great chamber, for Pyramus and Thusby, says the story, did talk through the chink of a wall

Snug You can never bring in a wall What say you, Bottom?

Bot Some man or other must present Wall, and let him have some plaster, or some loam, or some rough-cast about him, to signify wall, and let him hold his fingers thus, and through that cranny shall Pyramus and Thisby whisper 76

Quin If that may be, then all is well Come, sit down, every mother's son, and rehearse your parts Pyramus, you begin when you have spoken your speech, enter into that brake, and so every one according to his cue 81

Enter PUCK, behind

Puck What hempen home-spuns have we swaggering here So near the cradle of the fairy queen?

What! a play toward, I'll be an auditor, 84
An actor too perhaps, if I see cause

Quin Speak, Pyramus—Thusby, stand forth
Bot Thusby, the flowers have odious savours sweet,—

Quin Odorous, odorous 88

Bot—odours savours sweet

So hath thy breath, my dearest Thusby dear But hark, a voice! stay thou but here awhile, And by and by I will to thee appear [Exit

Puck A stranger Pyramus than e'er play'd here! [Exit

Flu Must I speak now?

Quin Ay, marry, must you, for you must understand, he goes but to see a noise that he heard, and is to come again 97

Flu Most radiant Pyramus, most hly-white of hue,

Of colour like the red rose on triumphant brier, Most briskly juvenal, and eke most lovely Jew, As true as truest horse that yet would never tire, 101

I'll meet thee, Pyramus, at Nunny's tomb

Quin 'Ninus' tomb, man Why, you must not speak that yet, that you answer to Pyramus you speak all your part at once, cues and all Pyramus, enter your cue is past, it is 'never tire'

Flu O!—As true as truest horse, that yet would never tire 108

Re-enter PUCK, and BOTTOM with an ass's head

Bot If I were, fair Thusby, I were only thine

Quin O monstrous! O strange! we are haunted

Pray, masters! fly, masters!—Help!

[Exeunt Clowns]

Puck I'll follow you, I'll lead you about a round, 112

Through bog, through bush, through brake, through brier

Sometime a horse I'll be, sometime a hound,

A hog, a headless bear, sometime a fire,

And neigh, and bark, and grunt, and roar, and burn, 116

Like horse, hound, hog, bear, fire, at every turn.

[Exit

Bot Why do they run away? this is a knavery of them to make me afraid.

Re-enter SNOOT

Snout O Bottom, thou art chang'd! what do I see on thee? 121

Bot What do you see? you see an ass-head of your own, do you? [Exit SNOOT

Re-enter QUINCE

Quin Bless thee, Bottom! bless thee! thou art translated [Exit

Bot I see their knavery this is to make an ass of me, to fright me, if they could But I will not stir from this place, do what they can I will walk up and down here, and I will sing, that they shall hear I am not afraid

The ouzel-cock, so black of hue,

With orange tawny bill 124

The throble with his note so true,

The wren with little quill

Tita [Awaking] What angel wakes me from my flowery bed? 136

Bot The finch the sparrow, and the lark,

The plain song cuckoo gray

Whose note full many a man doth mark

And dares not answer nay, 140 for indeed, who would set his wit to so foolish a bird? who would give a bird the lie, though he cry 'cuckoo' never so?

Tita I pray thee, gentle mortal, sing again Mine ear is much enamour'd of thy note, 145

So is mine eye enthralled to thy shape,

And thy fair virtue's force, perforce, doth move me,

On the first view, to say, to swear, I love thee

Bot Methinks, mistress, you should have little reason for that and yet, to say the truth, reason and love keep little company together now-a-days The more the pity, that some honest neighbours will not make them friends Nay, I can gleek upon occasion 154

Tita Thou art as wise as thou art beautiful

Bot Not so, neither, but if I had wit enough to get out of this wood, I have enough to serve mine own turn

Tita Out of this wood do not desire to go Thou shalt remain here, where thou wilt or no I am a spirit of no common rate, 161

The summer still doth tend upon my state,

And I do love thee therefore, go with me,

I'll give thee faeries to attend on thee, 164

And they shall fetch thee jewels from the deep,

And sing, while thou on pressed flowers dost sleep

And I will purge thy mortal grossness so

That thou shalt like an airy spirit go 168

Pease-blossom! Cobweb! Moth! and Mustard-seed!

Enter Four Fairies.

Peas Ready

Cob And I

Moth.

And I.

Mus.

And I.

All Four

Where shall we go?

Tita Be kind and courteous to this gentleman,

Hop in his walks, and gambol in his eyes, 172
Feed him with apricocks and dewberries,
With purple grapes, green figs, and mulberries
The honey-bags s'eal from the humble bees,
And for night-tapers crop their waxen thighs,
And light them at the fiery glow-worm's eyes,
To have my love to bed, and to arise,
And pluck the wings from painted butterflies
To fan the moonbeams from his sleeping eyes
Nod to him elves, and do him courtesies 181

Peas Hail, mortal!

Cob Hail!

Moth Hail!

Mus Hail!

Bot I cry your worships mercy, heartily I beseech your worship's name

Cob Cobweb

Bot I shall desire you of more acquaintance, good Master Cobweb if I cut my finger, I shall make bold with you Your name, honest gentleman? 192

Peas Pease-blossom

Bot I pray you, commend me to Mistress Squash, your mother, and to Master Peascod, your father Good Master Pease-blossom, I shall desire you of more acquaintance too
Your name, I beseech you, sir? 198

Mus Mustard-seed

Bot Good Master Mustard-seed, I know your patience well that same cowardly, giant-like ox-beef hath devoured many a gentleman of your house I promise you, your kindred hath made my eyes water ere now I desire you of more acquaintance, good Master Mustard-seed.

Tita Come, wait upon him, lead him to my bower 206
The moon methinks, looks with a watery eye,
And when she weeps, weeps every little flower, Lamenting some enforced chastity
Tie up my love's tongue, bring him silently 210
[Exeunt]

SCENE II — Another Part of the Wood

Enter OBERON

Obe I wonder if Titania be awak'd,
Then, what it was that next came in her eye,
Which she must dote on in extremity
Here comes my messenger

Enter PUCK

How now, mad spirit! 4
What night-rule now about this haunted grove?
Puck My mistress with a monster is in love
Near to her close and consecrated bower,
While she was in her dull and sleeping hour, 8
A crew of patches, rude mechanicals,
That work for bread upon Athenian stalls,
Were met together to rehearse a play Intended for great Theseus' nuptial day 12
The shallowest thick-skinn of that barren sort,
Who Pyramus presented in their sport
Forsook his scene, and enter'd in a brake,
When I did him at this advantage take, 16
An ass's now! I fixed on his head, Anon his Thusbe must be answered,

And forth my mumick comes When they hum spy,

As wild geese that the creeping fowler eye, 20
Or russet-pated choughs, many in sort, Rising and cawing at the gun's report,
Sever themselves, and madly sweep the sky,
So, at his sight, away his fellows fly, 24
And, at our stamp, here o'er and o'er one falls,
He murder cries, and help from Athens calls Their sense thus weak, lost with their fears thus strong, 27

Made senseless things begin to do them wrong,
For briars and thorns at their apparel snatch,
Some sleeves, some hats, from yielders all things catch

I led them on in this distracted fear,
And left sweet Pyramus translated there, 32
When in that moment, so it came to pass, Titania wak'd and straightway lov'd an ass

Obe Thus falls out better than I could devise But hast thou yet latch'd the Athenian's eyes
With the love juice, as I did bid thee do? 37

Puck I took him sleeping,—that is finish'd
too,—

And the Athenian woman by his side,
That, when he wak'd, of force she must be ey'd

Enter DEMETRIUS and HERMIA

Obe Stand close this is the same Athenian Puck This is the woman, but not this the

man

Dem O! why rebuke you him that loves you so?

Lay breath so bitter on your bitter foe 44

Her Now I but chide, but I should use thee
worse,

For thou, I fear hast given me cause to curse
If thou hast slain Lysander in his sleep, Being o'er shoes in blood, plunge in knee deep,
And kill me too 49

The sun was not so true unto the day
As he to me Would he have stol'n away
From sleeping Hermia? I'll believe as soon 52 Thus whole earth may be bor'd, and that the moon

May through the centre creep, and so displease
Her brother's noontide with the Antipodes
It cannot be but thou hast murder'd him, 56
So should a murderer look, so dead so grim

Dem So should the murder'd look, and so should I

Pierc'd through the heart with your stern cruelty

Yet you, the murderer, look as bright, as clear, As yonder Venus in her glimmering sphere 61

Her What's this to my Lysander? where is he?

Ah! good Demetrius, wilt thou give him me?

Dem I had rather give his carcass to my hounds 64

Her Out, dog! out, cur! thou driv'st me past the bounds

Of maiden's patience Hast thou slain him then?
Henceforth be never number'd among men!
O! once tell true, tell true, e'en for my sake; 68
Durst thou have look'd upon him being awake,

And hast thou kill'd him sleeping? O brave touch!

Could not a worm, an adder, do so much?
An adder did it, for with doubler tongue 72
Than thine, thou serpent, never adder stung

Dem You spend your passion on a mispris'd mood

I am not guilty of Lysander's blood,
Nor is he dead, for aught that I can tell 76

Her I pray thee, tell me then that he is well Dem An if I could, what should I get therefore?

Her A privilege never to see me more
And from thy hated presence part I so, 80
See me no more, wh'er he be dead or no [Exit]

Dem There is no following her in this fierce vein

Here therefore for awhile I will remain
So sorrow's heaviness doth heavier grow 84

For debt that bankrupt sleep doth sorrow owe,
Which now in some slight measure it will pay,
If for his tender here I make some stay

[Lies down and sleeps] Obe What hast thou done? thou hast mistaken quite, 88

And laid the love-juice on some true-love's sight

Of thy misprision must perforce ensue
Some true-love turn'd, and not a false turn'd

Puck Then fate o'er-rules, that, one man holding troth, 92

A million fail, confounding oath on oath Obe About the wood go swifter than the wind,

And Helena of Athens look thou find.
All fancy-sick she is, and pale of cheer 96

With sighs of love, that cost the fresh blood
dear

By some illusion see thou bring her here
I'll charm his eyes against she do appear

Puck I go, I go, look how I go, 100
Swifter than arrow from the Tartar's bow

[Exit]

Obe Flower of this purple dye, Hit with Cupid's archery, 104

Sink in apple of his eye
When his love he doth espy,

Let her shine as gloriously
As the Venus of the sky

When thou wak'st, if she be by, 108
Beg of her for remedy

Re-enter PUCK.

Puck Captain of our fairy band,
Helena is here at hand,

And the youth, mistook by me, 112
Pleading for a lover's fee

Shall we their fond pageant see?
I ord, what fools these mortals be! 116

Obe Stand aside the noise they make Will cause Demetrius to awake

Puck Then will two at once woo one;
That must needs be sport alone,

And those things do best please me 120
That befall preposterously

Enter LYSANDER and HELENA

Lys Why should you think that I should woo in scorn?

Scorn and derision never come in tears
Look, when I vow, I weep and vows so born,

In their nativity all truth appears 125
How can these things in me seem scorn to you,

Bearing the badge of faith to prove them true?
Hel You do advance your cunning more and

more 128
When truth kills truth, O devilish-holy fr!

These vows are Hermia's will you give her o'er?

Weigh oath with oath, and you will nothing weigh

Your vows, to her and me, put in two scales,
Will even weigh, and both as light as tales 133

Lys I had no judgment when to her I swore Hel Nor none, in my mind, now you give her o'er Lys Demetrius loves her, and he loves not

you 136
Dem [Awaking] O Helen! goddess, nymph, perfect, divine!

To what, my love, shall I compare thine eyne?

Crystal is muddy O! how ripe in show 139
Thy lips, those kissing cherries, tempting grow,

Thus pure congealed white, high Taurus snow, Fann'd with the eastern wind, turns to a crow

When thou hold'st up thy hand O! let me
kiss 143

That princess of pure white, this seal of bliss Hel O spite! O hell! I see you all are bent

To set against me for your merriment
If you were civil and knew courtesy,

You would not do me thus much injury 148
Can you not hate me, as I know you do,

But you must join in souls to mock me too?
If you were men, as men you are in show,

You would not use a gentle lady so, 152
To vow, and swear, and superpraise my parts,

When I am sure you hate me with your hearts
You both are rivals, and love Hermia,

And now both rivals, to mock Helena 156
A trim exploit, a manly enterprise,

To conjure tears up in a poor maid's eyes
With your derision! none of noble sort

Would so offend a virgin, and extort 160
A poor soul's patience, all to make you sport.

Lys You are unkind, Demetrius, be not so;
For you love Hermia, this you know I know

And here, with all good will, with all my heart,
In Hermia's love I yield you up my part, 165

And yours of Helena to me bequeath,
Whom I do love, and will do to my death.

Hel Never did mockers waste more idle breath

Dem Lysander, keep thy Hermia, I will none

If e'er I lov'd her, all that love is gone
My heart with her but as guest-wise sojourn'd,

And now to Helen it is home return'd, 172
There to remain.

Lys Helen, it is not so Dem Disparage not the faith thou dost not
know,

Lest to thy peril thou aby it dear Look! where thy love comes yonder is thy
dear 176

Enter HERMIA.

Her Dark night, that from the eye his function takes,
The ear more quick of apprehension makes,
Wherein it doth impair the seeing sense,
It pays the hearing double recompense 180
Thou art not by mine eye, Lysander, found, Mine ear, I thank it, brought me to thy sound
But why unkindly didst thou leave me so?

Lys Why should he stay, whom love doth press to go? 184

Her What love could press Lysander from my side?

Lys Lysander's love, that would not let him bide,

Fair Helena, who more engilds the night
Than all yon fiery oes and eyes of light 188

Why seek'st thou me? could not this make thee
know,

The hate I bear thee made me leave thee so?

Her You speak not as you think it cannot be

Hel Lo! she is one of this confederacy 192
Now I perceive they have conjoin'd all three To fashion this false sport in spite of me

Injurious Hermia! most ungrateful maid!
Have you conspir'd, have you with these con-triv'd 196

To bait me with this foul derision?
Is all the counsel that we two have shar'd,
The sister-vows, the hours that we have spent,
When we have chid the hasty-footed time 200
For parting us, O! is it all forgot?

All school-days' friendship, childhood innocence?

We, Hermia, like two artificial gods, 203
Have with our needls created both one flower, Both on one sampler, sitting on one cushion,
Both warbling of one song, both in one key,
As if our hands, our sides, voices, and minds,
Had been incorporate So we grew together,
Like to a double cherry, seeming parted, 209
But yet an union in partition,
Two lovely berries moulded on one stem,
So, with two seeming bodies, but one heart,
Two of the first, like coats in heraldry, 213
Due but to one, and crowned with one crest
And will you rent our ancient love asunder,
To join with men in scorning your poor friend?
It is not friendly, 'tis not maidenly 217
Our sex, as well as I, may chide you for it, Though I alone do feel the injury

Her I am amazed at your passionate words
I scorn you not it seems that you scorn me

Hel Have you not set Lysander, as in scorn,
To follow me and praise my eyes and face,
And made your other love, Demetrius,— 224 Who even but now did spurn me with his foot,—

To call me goddess, nymph divine and rare, Precious, celestial? Wherefore speaks he this
To her he hates? and wherefore doth Lysander

Deny your love, so rich within his soul, 229

And tender me, forsooth, affection,
But by your setting on, by your consent?

What though I be not so in grace as you, 232
So hung upon with love, so fortunate,
But miserable most to love unlov'd?

This you should pity rather than despise Her I understand not what you mean by
this 236

Hel Ay, do, persevere, counterfeit sad looks,
Make mouths upon me when I turn my back,
Wink each at other hold the sweet jest up
This sport, well carried, shall be chronicled 240

If you have any pity, grace, or manners,
You would not make me such an argument
But, fare ye well 'tis partly mine own fault,
Which death or absence soon shall remedy 244

Lys Stay, gentle Helena! hear my excuse
My love, my life, my soul, fair Helena!

Hel O excellent!

Her Sweet, do not scorn her so Dem If she cannot entreat, I can compel Lys Thou canst compel no more than she entreat 249

Thy threats have no more strength than her weak prayers

Helen, I love thee, by my life, I do
I swear by that which I will lose for thee, 252
To prove him false that says I love thee not Dem I say I love thee more than he can do

Lys If thou say so, withdraw, and prove it too

Dem Quick, come!

Her Lysander whereto tends all this?

Lys Away, you Ethiop!

Dem No, no, he'll 257 Seem to break loose, take on, as you would follow,

But yet come not you are a tame man, go!

Lys [To HERMIA] Hang off, thou cat, thou burr! vile thing, let loose, 260

Or I will shake thee from me like a serpent

Her Why are you grown so rude? what change is this,

Sweet love,—

Lys Thy love! out, tawny Tartar, out!
Out, loathed medicine! hated poison, hence!

Her Do you not jest?

Hel Yes, sooth, and so do you

Lys Demetrius, I will keep my word with
thee

Dem I would I had your bond, for I perceive A weak bond holds you I'll not trust your
word 268

Lys What! should I hurt her, strike her, kill her dead?

Although I hate her, I'll not harm her so

Her What! can you do me greater harm than hate?

Hate me! wherefore? O me! what news, my
love? 272

Am not I Hermia? Are not you Lysander?
I am as fair now as I was erewhile

Since might you lov'd me, yet, since might you left me

Why, then you left me,—O, the gods forbid!—
In earnest, shall I say?

Lys Ay, by my life, 277
And never did desire to see thee more Therefore be out of nope, of question, doubt,
Be certain, nothing truer tis no jest, 280
That I do hate thee and love Helena

Her Ome! you juggler! you canker-blossom!
You thief of love! what! have you come by night

And stol'n my love's heart from him?

Hel Fine, I' faith!
Have you no modesty, no maiden shame, 285
No touch of bashfulness? What! will you tear Impatient answers from my gentle tongue?
Fie! fie! you counterfeit, you puppet you! 288

Her Puppet! why, so ay, that way goes the game

Now I perceive that she hath made compare Between our statures she hath urg'd her height,
And with her personage her tall personage, 292 Her height, forsooth, she hath prevail'd with
him

And are you grown so high in his esteem,
Because I am so dwarfish and so low?
How low am I, thou painted maypole? speak,
How low am I? I am not yet so low 297
But that my nails can reach unto thine eyes

Hel I pray you, though you mock me,
gentlemen,

Let her not hurt me I was never curst, 300
I have no gift at all in shrewishness,
I am a right maid for my cowardice
Let her not strike me You perhaps may think, Because she is something lower than myself, 304

Than I can match her

Her Lower! hark, again Hel Good Hermia, do not be so bitter with
me

I evermore did love you, Hermia, Did ever keep your counsels, never wrong'd
you, 308

Save that, in love unto Demetrius,
I told him of your stealth unto this wood.
He follow'd you for love I follow'd him,
But he hath chid me hence, and threaten'd
me 312

To strike me, spurn me, nay, to kill me too
And now, so you will let me quiet go,
To Athens will I bear my folly back,
And follow you no further let me go 316
You see how simple and how fond I am

Her Why, get you gone Who is't that hinders you?

Hel A foolish heart, that I leave here behind

Her What! with Lysander?

Hel With Demetrius
Lys Be not afraid she shall not harm thee,
Helena 321

Dem No, sir, she shall not, though you take her part.

Hel O! when she's angry, she is keen and shrewd

She was a vixen when she went to school 324

And though she be but little, she is fierce Her 'Little' again! nothing but 'low' and 'little!'

Why will you suffer her to flout me thus?

Let me come to her

Lys Get you gone, you dwarf, 328
You minimus, of hindering knot-grass made,
You bead, you acorn!

Dem You are too officious
In her behalf that scorns your services

Let her alone, speak not of Helena, 332

Take not her part, for, if thou dost intend

Never so little show of love to her,

Thou shalt aby it

Lys Now she holds me not,

Now follow, if thou dar'st, to try whose right,
Or thine or mine, is most in Helena 337

Dem Follow! nay, I'll go with thee, cheek by jole

[Exeunt LYSANDER and DEMETRIUS

Her You, mistress, all this coil is 'long of
you

Nay, go not back

Hel I will not trust you, I, 340

Nor longer stay in your curst company

Your hands than mine are quicker for a fray,

My legs are longer though, to run away [Exit

Her I am amaz'd, and know not what to say [Exit

Obe This is thy negligence still thou mis-tak'st, 345

Or else commit'st thy knaveries wilfully

Puck Believe me, king of shadows, I mistook

Did not you tell me I should know the man

By the Athenian garments he had on? 349

And so far blameless proves my enterprise,

That I have 'mounted an Athenian's eyes,

And so far am I glad it so did sort, 352

As thus their jangling I esteem a sport

Obe Thou see'st these lovers seek a place to fight

Hie therefore, Robin, overcast the night,

The starry welkin cover thou anon 356

With drooping fog as black as Acheron,

And lead these testy rivals so astray,

As one come not within another's way

Like to Lysander sometime frame thy tongue,

Then stir Demetrius up with bitter wrong, 361

And sometime rail thou like Demetrius,

And from each other look thou lead them thus,

Till o'er their brows death-counterfeiting sleep

With leaden legs and batty wings doth creep

Then crush this herb into Lysander's eye,

Whose liquor hath this virtuous property, 367

To take from thence all error with his might,

And make his eyeballs roll with wonted sight.

When they next wake, all this dervision

Shall seem a dream and fruitless vision,

And back to Athens shall the lovers wend, 372

With league whose date till death shall never end,

Whiles I in this affair do thee employ,

I'll to my queen and beg her Indian boy,

And then I will her charmed eye release 376

From monster's view, and all things shall be peace

Puck My fairy lord, this must be done with haste,
For night's swift dragons cut the clouds full fast,
And yonder shines Aurora's harbinger, 380
At whose approach, ghosts, wandering here and there, Troop home to churchyards damned spirits all,

That in cross-ways and floods have burial,
Already to their wormy beds are gone, 384
For fear lest day should look their shames upon,
They wilfully themselves exile from light,
And must for aye consort with black-brow'd night

Obe But we are spirits of another sort 388
I with the morning's love have oft made sport,
And, like a forester, the groves may tread,
Even till the eastern gate, all fiery-red, 391
Opening on Neptune with fair blessed beams, Turns into yellow gold his salt green streams
But, notwithstanding, haste, make no delay
We may effect this business yet ere day

[Exit OBERON]
Puck Up and down, up and down, 396
I will lead them up and down
I am fear'd in field and town,
Goblin, lead them up and down Here comes one 400

Re-enter LYSANDER

Lys Where art thou, proud Demetrius?
speak thou now

Puck Here, villain! drawn and ready Where art thou?

Lys I will be with thee straight Puck Follow me, then,
To plainer ground

[Exit LYSANDER as following the voice]

Re-enter DEMETRIUS

Dem Lysander! speak again 404
Thou runaway, thou coward, art thou fled?
Speak! In some bush? Where dost thou hide thy head?

Puck Thou coward! art thou bragging to the stars, Telling the bushes that thou look'st for wars,
And wilt not come? Come, recreant, come, thou child, 409
I'll whup thee with a rod he is devil'd
That draws a sword on thee

Dem Yea, art thou there?
Puck Follow my voice we'll try no manhood here [Exeunt.]

Re enter LYSANDER.

Lys He goes before me and still dares me on
When I come where he calls, then he is gone
The villain is much lighter-heel'd than I.
I follow'd fast, but faster he did fly, 416
That fallen am I in dark uneven way,
And here will rest me [Lies down] Come, thou gentle day!

For if but once thou show me thy grey light, I'll find Demetrius and revenge this spite 420 [Sleeps]

Re-enter PUCK and DEMETRIUS

Puck Ho! ho! ho! Coward, why com'st thou not?

Dem Abide me, if thou dar'st for well I wot Thou runn'st before me, shifting every place,
And dar'st not stand, nor look me in the face 424

Where art thou now?

Puck Come hither I am here
Dem Nay then, thou mock'st me Thou shalt buy this dear,

If ever I thy face by daylight see 427
Now, go thy way Faintness constraineth me
To measure out my length on this cold bed
By day's approach look to be visited [Lies down and sleeps]

Re-enter HELENA

Hel O weary night! O long and tedious night, Abate thy hours! shine, comforts, from the east! 432

That I may back to Athens by daylight,
From these that my poor company detest
And sleep, that sometimes shuts up sorrow's eye,

Steal me awhile from mine own company 436
[Lies down and sleeps]

Puck Yet but three? Come one more,
Two of both kinds make up four Here she comes, curst and sad
Cupid is a knavish lad, 440
Thus to make poor females mad

Re-enter HERMIA

Her Never so weary, never so in woe, Bedabbled with the dew and torn with briars,
I can no further crawl, no further go, 444
My legs can keep no pace with my desires Here will I rest me till the break of day Heavens shield Lysander, if they mean a fray!
[Lies down and sleeps]

Puck On the ground
Sleep sound
I'll apply
To your eye,

Gentle lover, remedy 452
[Squeezing the juice on LYSANDER's eyes]
When thou wak'st,
Thou tak'st
True delight
In the sight 456

Of thy former lady's eye
And the country proverb known,
That every man should take his own,
In your waking shall be shown 460
Jack shall have Jill,
Nought shall go ill,
The man shall have his mare again,
And all shall be well. [Exit.]

ACT IV

SCENE I—A Wood LISANDER, DEMETRIUS,
HELENA and HERMIA lying asleep

Enter TITANIA and BOTTOM, Fairies attending, Oberon behind unseen

Tita Come, sit thee down upon this flowery bed, While I thy amiable cheeks do coy,
And stick musk-roses in thy sleek smooth head,
And kiss thy fair large ears, my gentle joy 4 Bot Where's Pease-blossom?
Peas Ready
Bot Scratch my head, Pease-blossom Where's Mounsieur Cobweb? 8

Cob Ready
Bot Mounsieur Cobweb, good mounsieur, get your weapons in your hand, and kill me a red-hipped humble-bee on the top of a thistle, and, good mounsieur, bring me the honey-bag Do not fret yourself too much in the action, mounsieur, and, good mounsieur, have a care the honey-bag break not, I would be loath to have you overflown with a honey-bag, signior Where's Mounsieur Mustard-seed? 18

Must Ready
Bot Give me your neaf, Mounsieur Mustard-seed Pray you, leave your curtsy, good mounsieur

Must What's your will? 23
Bot Nothing, good mounsieur, but to help Cavalery Cobweb to scratch I must to the barber s, mounsieur, for methinks I am marvellous hairy about the face, and I am such a tender ass, if my hair do but tickle me, I must scratch. 29

Tita What, wilt thou hear some music, my sweet love?

Bot I have a reasonable good ear in music let us have the tongs and the bones 33

Tita Or say, sweet love, what thou desir'st to eat

Bot Truly, a peck of provender I could munch your good dry oats Methinks I have a great desire to a bottle of hay good hay, sweet hay, hath no fellow 39

Tita I have a venturous fairy that shall seek The squirrel's hoard, and fetch thee thence new nuts

Bot I had rather have a handful or two of dried pease But, I pray you, let none of your people stir me I have an exposition of sleep come upon me 45

Tita Sleep thou, and I will wind thee in my arms

Fairies, be gone, and be all ways away [Exeunt Fairies]

So doth the woodbine the sweet honeysuckle
Gently entwist, the female ivy so 49

Enrings the barky fingers of the elm
O' how I love thee, how I dote on thee!

[They sleep]

Enter PUCK.

Obe [Advancing] Welcome, good Robin.
See'st thou this sweet sight? 52
Her dotage now I do begin to pity

For, meeting her of late behind the wood, Seeking sweet favours for this hateful fool,
I did upbraid her and fall out with her, 56
For she his hary temples then had rounded With coronet of fresh and fragrant flowers,
And that same dew, which sometime on the buds

Was wont to swell like round and orient pearls, 60

Stood now within the pretty flowerets' eyes
Like tears that did their own disgrace bewail.
When I had at my pleasure taunted her,
And she in mild terms begg'd my patience, 64
I then did ask of her her changeling child, Which straight she gave me, and her fairy sent

To bear him to my bower in fairy land
And now I have the boy, I will undo 68
This hateful imperfection of her eyes
And, gentle Puck, take this transformed scalp
From off the head of this Athenian swain, That he, awaking when the other do, 72
May all to Athens back again repair,
And think no more of this night's accidents
But as the fierce vexation of a dream
But first I will release the fairy queen. 76

[Touching her eyes with an herb Be as thou wast wont to be,
See as thou wast wont to see Dian's bud o'er Cupid's flower Hath such force and blessed power 80

Now, my Titania, wake you, my sweet queen Tita My Oberon! what visions have I seen!
Methought I was enamour'd of an ass

Obe There lies your love
Tita How came these things to pass?

O! how mine eyes do loathe his visage now 85

Obe Silence, awhile. Robin, take off this
head

Titania, music call, and strike more dead
Than common sleep of all these five the sense

Tita Music, ho! music! such as charmeth sleep [Music]

Puck When thou wak'st, with thine own fool's eyes peep

Obe Sound, music! [Still, music] Come, my queen, take hands with me,

And rock the ground whereon these sleepers
be

Now thou and I are new in amity, 93
And will to-morrow midnight solemnly

Dance in Duke Theseus' house triumphantly,
And bless it to all fair prosperity 96

There shall the pairs of faithful lovers be Wedded, with Theseus, all in jollity

Puck Fairy king, attend, and mark
I do hear the morning lark. 100

Obe Then, my queen, in silence sad, Trip we after the night's shade,

We the globe can compass soon,
Swifter than the wandering moon

Tita Come, my lord, and in our flight 105
Tell me how it came this night

That I sleeping here was found With these mortals on the ground 108

[Exeunt Horns winded within.]

Enter THESEUS, HIPPOLYTA, EGESUS, and Train

The Go, one of you, find out the forester,
For now our observation is perform'd,
And since we have the vaward of the day, 111
My love shall hear the music of my hounds Uncouple in the western valley, let them go Dispatch, I say, and find the forester
We will, fair queen, up to the mountain's top,
And mark the musical confusion 116
Of hounds and echo in conjunction

Hip I was with Hercules and Cadmus once,
When in a wood of Crete they bay'd the bear
With hounds of Sparta never did I hear 120
Such gallant chiding, for, besides the groves,
The skies, the fountains, every region near Seem'd all one mutual cry I never heard
So musical a discord, such sweet thunder 124

The My hounds are bred out of the Spartan kind,

So flew'd, so sanded, and their heads are hung
With ears that sweep away the morning dew, Crook-knee'd, and dew-lapp'd like Thessalian bulls, 128
Slow in pursuit, but match'd in mouth like bells,

Each under each A cry more tuneable
Was never holla'd to, nor cheer'd with horn,
In Crete, in Sparta, nor in Thessaly 132 Judge, when you hear But, soft! what nymphs are these?

Ege My lord, this is my daughter here asleep,
And this, Lysander, this Demetrius is,
This Helena, old Nedar's Helena 136
I wonder of their being here together

The No doubt they rose up early to observe The rite of May, and, hearing our intent, Came here in grace of our solemnity 140
But speak, Egeus, is not this the day
That Hermia should give answer of her choice?

Ege It is, my lord

The Go, bid the huntsmen wake them with their horns 144

[Horns and shout within LYSANDER, DEMETRIUS, HERMIA, and HELENA, wake and start up

Good morrow, friends Saint Valentine is past Begin these wood-birds but to couple now?

Lys Pardon, my lord [He and the rest kneel

The I pray you all, stand up
I know you two are rival enemies 148
How comes this gentle concord in the world,
That hatred is so far from jealousy,
To sleep by hate, and fear no enmity?

Lys My lord, I shall reply amazedly, 152
Half sleep, half waking but as yet, I swear,
I cannot truly say how I came here,
But, as I think,—for truly would I speak,
And now I do bethink me, so it is,— 156
I came with Hermia hither our intent Was to be gone from Athens, where we might,
Without the peril of the Athenian law—

Ege Enough, enough, my lord, you have enough 160

I beg the law, the law upon his head
They would have stol'n away, they would,
Demetrius,

Thereby to have defeated you and me,
You of your wife, and me of my consent, 164
Of my consent that she should be your wife

Dem My lord, fair Helen told me of their stealth,

Of this their purpose hither, to this wood,
And I in fury hither follow'd them, 168

Fair Helena in fancy following me
But, my good lord, I wot not by what power,—

But by some power it is,—my love to Hermia, Melted as doth the snow, seems to me now 172

As the remembrance of an idle gaud
Which in my childhood I did dote upon,

And all the faith, the virtue of my heart,
The object and the pleasure of mine eye, 176

Is only Helena To her, my lord,
Was I betroth'd ere I saw Hermia

But, like in sickness, did I loathe this food,
But, as in health, come to my natural taste,

Now do I wish it, love it, long for it, 181
And will for evermore be true to it

The Fair lovers, you are fortunately met
Of this discourse we more will hear anon 184

Egeus, I will overbear your will,
For in the temple, by and by with us,

These couples shall eternally be knit
And, for the morning now is something worn,

Our purpos'd hunting shall be set aside 189
Away with us, to Athens three and three, We'll hold a feast in great solemnity

Come, Hippolyta 192

[Exeunt THESEUS, HIPPOLYTA, EGESUS, and Train

Dem These things seem small and undistinguishable,

Like far-off mountains turned into clouds

Her Methinks I see these things with parted
eye,

When everything seems double

Hel So methinks
And I have found Demetrius, like a jewel, 197

Mine own, and not mine own

Dem Are you sure

That we are awake? It seems to me
That yet we sleep, we dream Do you not think

The duke was here, and bid us follow him? 201

Her Yea, and my father

Hel And Hippolyta.

Lys And he did bid us follow to the temple

Dem Why then, we are awake Let's follow him, 204

And by the way let us recount our dreams

[Exeunt

Bot [Awaking] When my cue comes, call me, and I will answer my next is, 'Most fair

Pyramus' Heigh-ho! Peter Quince! Flute, the bellows-mender! Snout, the tinker! Starveling!

God's my life! stolen hence, and left me asleep!
I have had a most rare vision I have had a dream, past the wit of man to say what dream it was man is but an ass, if he go about to expound this dream Methought I was—there is no man can tell what Methought I was,—and methought I had,—but man is but a patched fool if he will offer to say what methought I had

The eye of man hath not heard the ear of man hath not seen, man's hand is not able to taste, his tongue to conceive, nor his heart to report, what my dream was I will get Peter Quince to write a ballad of this dream it shall be called Bottom's Dream, because it hath no bottom, and I will sing it in the latter end of a play, before the duke peradventure, to make it the more gracious, I shall sing it at her death 226

[Exit

SCENE II.—Athens A Room in QUINCE'S House

Enter QUINCE, FLUTE, SNOOT, and STARVELING

Quin Have you sent to Bottom's house? is he come home yet?

Star He cannot be heard of Out of doubt he is transported. 4

Flu If he come not, then the play is marred it goes not forward, doth it?

Quin It is not possible you have not a man in all Athens able to discharge Pyramus but he 9

Flu No, he hath simply the best wit of any handicraft man in Athens

Quin Yea, and the best person too and he is a very paramour for a sweet voice 13

Flu You must say, 'paragon' a paramour is, God bless us! a thing of naught.

Enter SNUG

Snuq Masters, the duke is coming from the temple, and there is two or three lords and ladies more married if our sport had gone forward, we had all been made men 19

Flu O sweet bully Bottom! Thus hath he lost sixpence a day during his life, he could not have 'scaped sixpence a day an the duke had not given him sixpence a day for playing Pyramus, I'll be hanged he would have deserved it sixpence a day in Pyramus, or nothing 25

Enter BOTTOM.

Bot Where are these lads? where are these hearts?

Quin Bottom! O most courageous day! O most happy hour! 29

Bot Masters, I am to discourse wonders but ask me not what, for if I tell you, I am no true Athenian. I will tell you everything, right as it fell out 33

Quin Let us hear, sweet Bottom

Bot Not a word of me All that I will tell you is, that the duke hath dined Get your apparel together, good strings to your beards, new ribbons to your pumps, meet presently at the palace, every man look o'er his part, for the short and the long is, our play is preferred In any case, let Thisby have clean linen, and let not him that plays the lion pare his nails, for they shall hang out for the lion's claws And, most dear actors eat no onions nor garlic, for we are to utter sweet breath, and I do not doubt but to hear them say, it is a sweet comedy No more words away! go, away [Exeunt

ACT V

SCENE I — Athens An Apartment in the Palace of THESEUS

Enter THESEUS, HIPPOLYTA, PHILOSTRATE, Lords, and Attendants

Hip 'Tis strange, my Theseus, that these lovers speak of The More strange than true I never may believe

These antique fables, nor these fairy toys Lovers and madmen have such seething brains, Such shaping fantasies, that apprehend 5 More than cool reason ever comprehends.

The lunatic, the lover and the poet, Are of imagination all compact 8

One sees more devils than vast hell can hold, That is, the madman, the lover, all as frantic, Sees Helen's beauty in a brow of Egypt

The poet's eye, in a fine frenzy rolling, 12 Doth glance from heaven to earth, from earth to heaven, And, as imagination bodies forth

The forms of things unknown, the poet's pen Turns them to shapes, and gives to airy nothing

A local habitation and a name 17 Such tricks hath strong imagination,

That, if it would but apprehend some joy, It comprehends some bringer of that joy, 20

Or in the night, imagining some fear, How easy is a bush suppos'd a bear!

Hip But all the story of the night told over, And all their minds transfigur'd so together, 24

More witnesseth than fancy's images, And grows to something of great constancy,

But, howsoever, strange and admirable

The Here come the lovers, full of joy and mirth. 28

Enter LYSANDER, DEMETRIUS, HERMIA, and HELENA

Joy, gentle friends! joy, and fresh days of love Accompany your hearts!

Lys More than to us Wait in your royal walks, your board, your bed! 32

The Come now, what masques, what dances shall we have, 32

To wear away this long age of three hours Between our after-supper and bed time?

Where is our usual manager of mirth? What revels are in hand? Is there no play, 36

To ease the anguish of a torturing hour? Call Philostrate

Philostr Here, mighty Theseus

The Say, what abridgment have you for this evening?

What masque? what music? How shall we beguile 40

The lazy time, if not with some delight? Philostr There is a brief how many sports are ripe

Make choice of which your highness will see first

The The battle with the Centaurs, to be sung 44

He bravely broach'd his boiling bloody breast,
 And Thisby, tarrying in mulberry shade,
 His dagger drew, and died For all the rest,
 Let Lion, Moonshine, Wall, and lovers twain,
 At large discourse, while here they do remain [Exeunt PROLOGUE, PYRAMUS, THISBE, LION, and MOONSHINE

The I wonder, if the lion be to speak Dem No wonder, my lord one lion may,
 When many asses do 156

Wall In this same interlude it doth befall
 That I, one Snout by name, present a wall
 And such a wall, as I would have you think,
 That had in it a crannied hole or chunk, 160
 Through which the lovers, Pyramus and Thisby, Did whisper often very secretly

This loam, this rough-cast, and this stone doth show

That I am that same wall the truth is so, 164
 And this the cranny is, right and sunster,
 Through which the fearful lovers are to whisper

The Would you desire lime and hair to speak better? 168

Dem It is the whitest partition that ever I heard discourse, my lord

The Pyramus draws near the wall silence!

Re-enter PYRAMUS

Pyr O grim-look'd night! O night with hue so black! 172

O night, which ever art when day is not!
 O night! O night! alack, alack, alack!

I fear my Thisby's promise is forgot
 And thou, O wall! O sweet, O lovely wall! 176

That stand'st between her father's gown and
 mine

Thou wall, O wall! O sweet, and lovely wall!
 Show me thy chunk to blink through with mine eye [WALL holds up his fingers

Thanks, courteous wall Jove shield thee well for this! 180

But what see I? No Thisby do I see
 O wicked wall! through whom I see no bliss

Curs'd be thy stones for thus deceiving me!
 The The wall, methinks, being sensible, should curse again 185

Pyr No, in truth, sir, he should not 'Deceiving me,' is Thisby's cue she is to enter now, and I am 'o spy her through the wall You shall see, it will fall pat as I told you Yonder she comes

Re-enter THISBE.

This O wall! full often hast thou heard my moans,

For parting my fair Pyramus and me 192
 My cherry lips have often kiss'd thy stones,

Thy stones with lime and hair knit up in thee Pyr I see a voice now will I to the chunk,

To spy an I can hear my Thisby's face 196 Thisby!

This My love! thou art my love, I think Pyr Think what thou wilt, I am thy lover's
 grace

And, like Limander am I trusty still 200
 This And I like Helen, till the Fates me kill

Pyr Not Shafalus to Procrus was so true
 This As Shafalus to Procrus, I to you

Pyr O! kiss me through the hole of this vile wall 204

This I kiss the wall's hole, not your lips at
 all

Pyr Wilt thou at Nunny's tomb meet me straightway?

This 'Tide life, 'tide death I come without delay [Exeunt PYRAMUS and THISBE

Wall Thus have I, Wall, my part discharged
 so 208

And, being done, thus Wall away doth go [Exit
 The Now is the mural down between the two neighbours

Dem No remedy, my lord, when walls are so wilful to hear without warning 213

Hip This is the silliest stuff that ever I heard
 The The best in this kind are but shadows, and the worst are no worse, if imagination amend them 217

Hip It must be your imagination then, and not theirs

The If we imagine no worse of them than they of themselves, they may pass for excellent men Here come two noble beasts in, a man and a lion.

Re-enter LION and MOONSHINE

Lion You, ladies, you, whose gentle hearts do fear 224

The smallest monstrous mouse that creeps on floor,

May now perchance both quake and tremble
 here,

When lion rough in wildest rage doth roar
 Then know that I, one Snug the joiner, am 228

A lion-fell, nor else no lion's dam
 For, if I should as lion come in strife

Into this place, 'twere pity on my life
 The A very gentle beast, and of a good conscience 233

Dem The very best at a beast, my lord, that e'er I saw

Lys This lion is a very fox for his valour
 The True, and a goose for his discretion 237

Dem Not so, my lord, for his valour cannot carry his discretion, and the fox carries the goose 240

The His discretion, I am sure, cannot carry his valour, for the goose carries not the fox It is well leave it to his discretion, and let us listen to the moon. 244

Moon This lanthorn doth the horned moon
 present —

Dem He should have worn the horns on his head

The He is no crescent, and his horns are invisible within the circumference. 249

Moon This lanthorn doth the horned moon
 present

Myself the man is the moon do seem to be The This is the greatest error of all the rest.

The man should be put into the lanthorn how is it else the man is the moon?

Dem He dares not come there for the candle, for, you see, it is already in snuff 256

Hip I am awary of this moon would he would change!

The It appears, by his small light of discretion, that he is in the wane but yet, in courtesy, in all reason, we must stay the time 261

Lys Proceed, Moon

Moon All that I have to say, is, to tell you that the lanthorn is the moon, I, the man in the moon, this thorn-bush, my thorn-bush, and this dog, my dog

Dem Why, all these should be in the lanthorn, for all these are in the moon. But, silence! here comes Thisbe 269

Re-enter THISBE

This This is old Nunny's tomb Where is my
love?

Lion [Roaring] Oh— [THISBE runs off]

Dem Well roared, Lion 272

The Well run, Thisbe

Hip Well shone, Moon. Truly, the moon shines with a good grace

[The LION tears THISBE'S mantle, and exit

The Well moused, Lion 276

Dem And then came Pyramus

Lys And so the lion vanished

Re-enter PYRAMUS

Pyr Sweet moon, I thank thee for thy sunny beams 279

I thank thee, moon, for shuning now so bright,
For, by thy gracious, golden, glittering streams,
I trust to taste of truest Thisby's sight

But stay, O spite!

But mark, poor knight, 284

What dreadful dole is here!

Eyes, do you see?

How can it be?

O dainty duck! O dear! 288

Thy mantle good,

What! stain'd with blood!

Approach, ye Furies fell! 292

O Fates, come, come,

Cut thread and thrum

Quail, crush, conclude, and quell!

The This passion, and the death of a dear friend, would go near to make a man look sad.

Hip Beshrew my heart, but I pity the man.

Pyr O! wherefore, Nature, didst thou lions frame?

Since lion vile hath here deflower'd my dear?
Which is—no, no—which was the fairest dame

That lov'd, that lov'd, that lov'd, that look'd with cheer 301

Come tears, confound

Out, sword, and wound

The pap of Pyramus 304

Ay, that left pap,

Where heart doth hop

Thus die I, thus, thus, thus [Stabs himself

Now am I dead, 308

Now am I fled,

My soul is in the sky
Tongue, lose thy light!
Moon, take thy flight! 312

[Exit MOONSHINE

Now die, die, die, die, die [Dies

Dem No die, but an ace, for him, for he is but one

Lys Less than an ace, man, for he is dead
he is nothing 317

The With the help of a surgeon, he might yet recover, and prove an ass

Hip How chance Moonshine is gone before Thisbe comes back and finds her lover? 321

The She will find him by starlight Here she comes, and her passion ends the play

Re-enter THISBE

Hip Methinks she should not use a long or for such a Pyramus I hope she will be brief

Dem Amotewill turn the balance, which Pyra-mus, which Thisbe, is the better he for a man, God warrant us, she for a woman, God bless us

Lys She hath spied him already with those sweet eyes

Dem And thus she moans, videlicet —
This Asleep, my love? 332

What, dead, my dove?

O Pyramus, arise!

Speak, speak! Quite dumb?

Dead, dead! A tomb 336

Must cover thy sweet eyes

These lily lips,

Thy cherry nose,

These yellow cowslip cheeks, 340

Are gone, are gone

Lovers, make moan!

His eyes were green as leeks

O, Sisters Three, 344

Come, come to me,

With hands as pale as milk,

Lay them in gore,

Since you have shore 348

With shears his thread of silk

Tongue, not a word

Come, trusty sword

Come, blade, my breast imbrue 352

[Stabs herself

And farewell, friends,

Thus Thisbe ends [Dies

Adieu, adieu, adieu 357

The Moonshine and Lion are left to bury the dead

Dem Ay, and Wall too

Bot No, I assure you, the wall is down that parted their fathers Will it please you to see the epilogue, or to hear a Bergomask dance between two of our company? 362

The No epilogue, I pray you, for your play needs no excuse Never excuse, for when the players are all dead, there need none to be blamed Marry, if he that writ it had played Pyramus, and hanged himself in Thisbe's garter, it would have been a fine tragedy and so it is, truly, and very notably discharged But come, your Bergomask let your epilogue alone [A dance.

The iron tongue of midnight hath told twelve,
 Lovers, to bed, 'tis almost fairy time 373
 I fear we shall out-sleep the coming morn,
 As much as we this night have overwatch'd
 This palpable-gross play hath well beguil'd 376
 The heavy gait of night Sweet friends, to bed
 A fortnight hold we this solemnity,
 In nightly revels, and new jollity [Exeunt

SCENE II

Enter PUCK

Puck Now the hungry lion roars,
 And the wolf howls the moon,
 Whilst the heavy ploughman snores
 All with weary task fordone 4
 Now the wasted brands do glow,
 Whilst the screech-owl, screeching loud,
 Puts the wretch that lies in woe
 In remembrance of a shroud 8
 Now it is the time of night
 That the graves, all gaping wide,
 Every one lets forth his sprite,
 In the church-way paths to glide 12
 And we fairies, that do run
 By the triple Hecate's team,
 From the presence of the sun,
 Following darkness like a dream, 16
 Now are frolic, not a mouse
 Shall disturb this hallow'd house
 I am sent with broom before,
 To sweep the dust behind the door 20

Enter OBERON and TITANIA, with their Train

Obe Through the house give glimmering light
 By the dead and drowsy fire,
 Every elf and fairy sprite Hop as light as bird from brier, 24
 And this ditty after me
 Sing and dance it trippingly Tita First, rehearse your song by rote,
 To each word a warbling note 28

Hand in hand, with fairy grace,
 Will we sing, and bless this place

[Song and dance

Obe Now, until the break of day,
 Through this house each fairy stray 32
 To the best bride-bed will we,
 Which by us shall blessed be,
 And the issue there create Ever shall be fortunate 36
 So shall all the couples three Ever true in loving be,
 And the blots of Nature's hand
 Shall not in their issue stand 40
 Never mole, hare-lip, nor scar, Nor mark prodigious, such as are Despised in nativity,
 Shall upon their children be 44
 With this field-dew consecrate,
 Every fairy take his gait,
 And each several chamber bless,
 Through this palace, with sweet peace, 48
 Ever shall in safety rest,
 And the owner of it blest

Trip away,

Make no stay, 52

Meet me all by break of day

[Exeunt OBERON, TITANIA, and Train

Puck If we shadows have offended, Think but this, and all is mended,
 That you have but slumber'd here 56
 While these visions did appear
 And this weak and idle theme,
 No more yielding but a dream,
 Gentles, do not reprehend 60
 If you pardon, we will mend
 And, as I'm an honest Puck,
 If we have unearned luck
 Now to 'scape the serpent's tongue, 64
 We will make amends ere long,
 Else the Puck a har call
 So, good night unto you all
 Give me your hands, if we be friends, 68
 And Robin shall restore amends [Exit

ACT I

SCENE I—Venice A Street

Enter ANTONIO, SALARINO, and SALANIO

Ant In sooth, I know not why I am so sad
It wearies me, you say it wearies you,
But how I caught it, found it, or came by it,
What stuff 'tis made of, whereof it is born, 4
I am to learn,
And such a want-wit sadness makes of me,
That I have much ado to know myself

Salar Your mind is tossing on the ocean, 8
There, where your argosies with portly sail,— Like signiors and rich burghers on the flood,
Or, as it were, the pageants of the sea,—
Do overpeer the petty traffickers, 12
That curtsy to them, do them reverence,
As they fly by them with their woven wings Salar Believe me, sir, had I such venture
forth,

The better part of my affections would 16
Be with my hopes abroad I should be still Plucking the grass to know where sits the wind, Peering in maps for ports, and piers, and roads,
And every object that might make me fear 20
Misfortune to my ventures, out of doubt
Would make me sad

Salar My wind, cooling my broth,
Would blow me to an ague, when I thought
What harm a wind too great might do at sea. 24
I should not see the sandy hour-glass run
But I should think of shallows and of flats,
And see my wealthy Andrew dock'd in sand Vailing her high-top lower than her ribs 28
To kiss her burial Should I go to church
And see the holy edifice of stone, And not bethink me straight of dangerous rocks,

Which touching but my gentle vessel's side 32
Would scatter all her spices on the stream, Enrobe the roaring waters with my silks,
And, in a word, but even now worth this,
And now worth nothing? Shall I have the thought 36
To think on this, and shall I lack the thought

That such a thing bechanc'd would make me sad?

But tell not me I know Antonio
Is sad to think upon his merchandise 40 Ant Believe me, no I thank my fortune for it,

My ventures are not in one bottom trusted,
Nor to one place, nor is my whole estate
Upon the fortune of this present year 44
Therefore, my merchandise makes me not sad Salar Why, then you are in love

Ant Fie, fie!
Salar Not in love neither? Then let's say you are sad,

Because you are not merry and 'twere as easy For you to laugh and leap, and say you are merry, 49
Because you are not sad Now, by two headed Janus,

Nature hath fram'd strange fellows in her time
Some that will evermore peep through their eyes
And laugh like parrots at a bag-piper, 53
And other of such vinegar aspect
That they'll not show their teeth in way of smile, Though Nestor swear the jest be laughable 56

Enter BASSANIO, LORENZO, and GRATIANO

Salar Here comes Bassanio, your most noble kinsman,

Gratiano, and Lorenzo Fare ye well
We leave you now with better company

Salar I would have stay'd till I had made you merry, 60

If worthier friends had not prevented me Ant Your worth is very dear in my regard
I take it, your own business calls on you,
And you embrace the occasion to depart. 64

Salar Good morrow, my good lords Bass Good signiors both, when shall we laugh? say when?

You grow exceeding strange must it be so?
Salar We'll make our leasures to attend on yours [Exit SALARINO and SALANIO] Lor My Lord Bassanio, since you have found
Antonio, 69

We too will leave you, but, at dinner-time,
I pray you, have in mind where we must meet

Bass I will not fail you 72

Gra You look not well, Signior Antonio,
You have too much respect upon the world
They lose it that do buy it with much care
Believe me, you are marvellously chang'd 76

Ant I hold the world but as the world,
Gratiano,

A stage where every man must play a part,
And mine a sad one

Gra Let me play the fool
With mirth and laughter let old wrinkles come,
And let my liver rather heat with wine 81
Than my heart cool with mortifying groans Why should a man, whose blood is warm within,
Sit like his grandsire cut in alabaster? 84
Sleep when he wakes, and creep into the jaundice

By being peevish? I tell thee what, Antonio—
I love thee, and it is my love that speaks—
There are a sort of men whose visages 88
Do cream and mantle like a standing pond,
And do a wilful stillness entertain,
With purpose to be dress'd in an opinion
Of wisdom, gravity, profound conceit, 92
As who should say, 'I am Sir Oracle,
And when I ope my lips let no dog bark!'
O, my Antonio, I do know of these,
That therefore only are reputed wise 96
For saying nothing, when, I am very sure,
If they should speak, would almost damn those ears

Which, hearing them, would call their brothers fools

I'll tell thee more of this another time 100
But fish not, with this melancholy bait,
For this fool-gudgeon, this opinion
Come, good Lorenzo Fare ye well awhile
I'll end my exhortation after dinner 104

Lor Well, we will leave you then till dinner-time

I must be one of these same dumb-wise men,
For Gratiano never lets me speak

Gra Well, keep me company but two years more, 108

Thou shalt not know the sound of thine own tongue

Ant Farewell I'll grow a talker for this gear Gra Thanks, I' faith, for silence is only commendable

In a neat's tongue dried and a maid not vendible [Exeunt GRATIANO and LORENZO]

Ant Is that anything now? 113

Bass Gratiano speaks an infinite deal of nothing, more than any man in all Venice His reasons are as two grains of wheat hid in two bushels of chaff you shall seek all day ere you find them, and, when you have them, they are not worth the search

Ant Well, tell me now, what lady is the same
To whom you swore a secret pilgrimage, 121
That you to-day promis'd to tell me of?

Bass 'Tis not unknown to you, Antonio,
How much I have disabled mine estate, 124
By something showing a more swelling port

Than my faint means would grant continuance Nor do I now make moan to be abridg'd
From such a noble rate, but my chief care 128
Is, to come fairly off from the great debts
Wherein my time, something too prodigal, Hath left me gag'd To you, Antonio,
I owe the most, in money and in love, 132
And from your love I have a warranty
To unburthen all my plots and purposes
How to get clear of all the debts I owe

Ant I pray you, good Bassanio, let me know it, 136

And if it stand, as you yourself still do,
Within the eye of honour, be assur'd,
My purse, my person, my extremest means,
Lie all unlock'd to your occasions 140

Bass In my school-days, when I had lost one shaft,

I shot his fellow of the self-same flight
The self-same way with more advised watch,
To find the other forth, and by adventuring both,
I oft found both I urge this childhood proof,
Because what follows is pure innocence
I owe you much, and, like a wilful youth,
That which I owe is lost, but if you please 148
To shoot another arrow that self way
Which you did shoot the first, I do not doubt,
As I will watch the aim, or to find both,
Or bring your latter hazard back again, 152
And thankfully rest debtor for the first

Ant You know me well, and herein spend but time

To wind about my love with circumstance,
And out of doubt you do me now more wrong
In making question of my uttermost 157 Than if you had made waste of all I have Then do but say to me what I should do
That in your knowledge may by me be done, 160
And I am prest unto it therefore speak.

Bass In Belmont is a lady richly left,
And she is fair, and, fairer than that word,
Of wondrous virtues sometimes from her eyes
I did receive fair speechless messages 165
Her name is Portia, nothing undervalu'd
To Cato's daughter, Brutus' Portia
Nor is the wide world ignorant of her worth, 168
For the four winds blow in from every coast Renowned suitors, and her sunny locks
Hang on her temples like a golden fleece,
Which makes her seat of Belmont Colchus' 172 strand,

And many Jasons come in quest of her
O my Antonio! had I but the means
To hold a rival place with one of them,
I have a mind presages me such thrift, 176
That I should questionless be fortunate

Ant Thou knowest that all my fortunes are at sea,

Neither have I money, nor commodity
To raise a present sum therefore go forth, 180
Try what my credit can in Venice do That shall be rack'd, even to the uttermost,
To furnish thee to Belmont, to fair Portia.
Go, presently inquire, and so will I, 184 Where money is, and I no question make
To have it of my trust or for my sake. [Exeunt]

SCENE II — Belmont A Room in PORTIA'S House

Enter PORTIA and NERISSA

Por By my troth, Nerissa, my little body is away of this great world

Ner You would be, sweet madam, if your muses were in the same abundance as your good fortunes are and yet, for aught I see, they are as sick that surfeit with too much as they that starve with nothing It is no mean happiness therefore, to be seated in the mean superfluity comes sooner by white hairs, but competency lives longer 70

Por Good sentences and well pronounced.
Ner They would be better if well followed

Por If to do were as easy as to know what were good to do, chapels had been churches, and poor men's cottages princes' palaces It is a good divine that follows his own instructions I can easier teach twenty what were good to be done, than be one of the twenty to follow mine own teaching The brain may devise laws for the blood, but a hot temper leaps o'er a cold decree such a hare is madness the youth, to skip o'er the meshes of good counsel the cripple But this reasoning is not in the fashion to choose me a husband O me, the word 'choose!' I may neither choose whom I would nor refuse whom I dislike, so is the will of a living daughter curbed by the will of a dead father Is it not hard, Nerissa, that I cannot choose one nor refuse none? 79

Ner Your father was ever virtuous, and holy men at their death have good inspirations, therefore, the lottery that he hath devised in these three chests of gold, silver, and lead, whereof who chooses his meaning chooses you, will, no doubt, never be chosen by any rightly but one who you shall rightly love But what warmth is there in your affection towards any of these principally suitors that are already come? 88

Por I pray thee, over-name them, and as thou namest them, I will describe them, and,
according to my description, level at my affection

Ner First, there is the Neapolitan prince 42

Por Ay, that's a colt indeed, for he doth nothing but talk of his horse, and he makes it a great appropriation to his own good parts that he can shoe him himself I am much afraid my lady his mother played false with a smith

Ner Then is there the County Palatine 48

Por He doth nothing but frown, as who should say, 'An you will not have me, choose' He hears merry tales, and smiles not I fear he will prove the weeping philosopher when he grows old, being so full of unmannerly sadness in his youth I had rather be married to a death's-head with a bone in his mouth than to either of these God defend me from these two!

Ner How say you by the French lord,
Monsieur Le Bon? 58

Por God made him and therefore let him pass for a man In truth, I know it is a sin to be a mock, but, he! why, he hath a horse better than the Neapolitan's, a better bad habit of frowning than the Count Palatine, he is every man in no man, if a throstle sing, he falls straight a-capering, he will fence with his own shadow if I should marry him, I should marry twenty husbands If he would despise me, I would forgive him, for if he love me to madness, I shall never requite him 69

Ner What say you, then, to Falconbridge, the young baron of England?

Por You know I say nothing to him, for he understands not me, nor I him he hath neither Latin, French, nor Italian, and you will come into the court and swear that I have a poor pennyworth in the English He is a proper man's picture, but, alas! who can converse with a dumb-show? How oddly he is suited! I think he bought his doublet in Italy, his round hose in France, his bonnet in Germany, and his behaviour every where 81

Ner What think you of the Scottish lord, his neighbour?

Por That he hath a neighbourly charity in him, for he borrowed a box of the ear of the Englishman, and swore he would pay him again when he was able I think the Frenchman became his surety and sealed under for another

Ner How like you the young German, the Duke of Saxony's nephew? 90

Por Very vilely in the morning, when he is sober, and most vilely in the afternoon, when he is drunk when he is best, he is a little worse than a man, and when he is worst, he is little better than a beast An the worst fall that ever fell I hope I shall make shift to go without him

Ner If he should offer to choose, and choose the right casket, you should refuse to perform your father's will, if you should refuse to accept
him 100

Por Therefore, for fear of the worst, I pray thee, set a deep glass of Rhenish wine on the contrary casket, for, if the devil be within and that temptation without, I know he will choose it I will do anything, Nerissa, ere I will be married to a sponge 106

Ner You need not fear, lady, the having any of these lords they have acquainted me with their determinations, which is, indeed, to return to their home and to trouble you with no more suit, unless you may be won by some other sort than your father's imposition depending on the caskets 113

Por If I live to be as old as Sibylla, I will die as chaste as Diana, unless I be obtained by the manner of my father's will I am glad this parcel of wooers are so reasonable, for there is not one among them but I dote on his very absence, and I pray God grant them a fair departure 120

Ner Do you not remember, lady, in your father's time, a Venetian, a scholar and a soldier, that came hither in the company of the Marquis of Montferrat? 124

Por Yes, yes it was Bassanio, as I think, he was so called

Ner True, madam he, of all the men that ever my foolish eyes looked upon, was the best deserving a fair lady 129

Por I remember him well, and I remember him worthy of thy praise

Enter a Servant

How now! what news? 132

Serv The four strangers seek for you, madam, to take their leave, and there is a forerunner come from a fifth, the Prince of Morocco, who brings word the prince his master will be here
to-night 137

Por If I could bid the fifth welcome with so good heart as I can bid the other four farewell, I should be glad of his approach if he have the condition of a saint, and the complexion of a devil, I had rather he should reveal than wive me
Come, Nerissa Sir ah, go before 143 Whiles we shut the gate upon one wooer, another knocks at the door [Exeunt]

SCENE III—Venice A public Place

Enter BASSANIO and SHYLOCK.

Shy Three thousand ducats, well?

Bass Ay, sir, for three months

Shy For three months, well?

Bass For the which, as I told you, Antonio shall be bound 5

Shy Antonio shall become bound well?

Bass May you stead me? Will you pleasure me? Shall I know your answer? 8

Shy Three thousand ducats, for three months, and Antonio bound

Bass Your answer to that

Shy Antonio is a good man 12

Bass Have you heard any imputation to the contrary?

Shy Ho, no, no, no, no, my meaning in saying he is a good man is to have you understand me that he is sufficient Yet his means are in supposition he hath an argosy bound to Tripolis, another to the Indies, I understand moreover upon the Rialto, he hath a third at Mexico, a fourth for England and other ventures he hath, squandered abroad But ships are but boards, sailors but men there be land-rats and water-rats, land-thieves, and water-thieves,—I mean pirates,—and then there is the peril of waters, winds, and rocks The man is, notwithstanding, sufficient Three thousand ducats, I think, I may take his bond 28

Bass Be assured you may

Shy I will be assured I may, and, that I may be assured, I will bethink me May I speak with Antonio? 32

Bass If it please you to dine with us

Shy Yes, to smell pork, to eat of the habitation which your prophet the Nazarene conjured the devil into I will buy with you sell with you, talk with you, walk with you, and so following, but I will not eat with you drink with you, nor pray with you What news on the Rialto? Who is he comes here? 40

Enter ANTONIO

Bass This is Signior Antonio

Shy [Aside] How like a fawning publican he looks!

I hate him for he is a Christian,
But more for that in low simplicity 44

He lends out money gratis, and brings down
The rate of usance here with us in Venice

If I can catch him once upon the hip,

I will feed fat the ancient grudge I bear him 48

He hates our sacred nation, and he rails,

Even there where merchants most do congregate,

On me, my bargains, and my well-won thrift,

Which he calls interest Cursed be my tribe, 52

If I forgive him!

Bass Shylock, do you hear?

Shy I am debating of my present store,

And, by the near guess of my memory,

I cannot instantly raise up the gross 56

Of full three thousand ducats What of that?

Tubal, a wealthy Hebrew of my tribe,

Will furnish me But soft! how many months

Do you desire? [To ANTONIO] Rest you fair, good signior, 60

Your worship was the last man in our mouths

Ant Shylock, albeit I neither lend nor borrow

By taking nor by giving of excess,

Yet, to supply the ripe wants of my friend, 64

I'll break a custom [To BASSANIO] Is he yet possess'd?

How much ye would?

Shy Ay, ay, three thousand ducats

Ant And for three months

Shy I had forgot, three months, you told me so 68

Well then, your bond, and let me see But hear

you,

Me thought you said you neither lend nor borrow

Upon advantage

Ant I do never use it

Shy When Jacob graz'd his uncle Laban's

sheep,— 72

This Jacob from our holy Abram was,

As his wise mother wrought in his behalf,

The third possessor ay, he was the third,—

Ant And what of him? did he take interest?

Shy No, not take interest, not, as you would

say, 77

Directly interest mark what Jacob did

When Laban and himself were compromis'd,

That all the earnings that were streak'd and pie'd 80

Should fall as Jacob's hire, the ewes, being rank,

In end of autumn turned to the rams,

And, when the work of generation was Between these woolly breeders in the act, 84

The skilful shepherd peel'd me certain wands,

And, in the doing of the deed of kind,

He stuck them up before the fulsome ewes,

Who, then conceiving, did in coming time 88

Fall parti-colour'd lambs and those were Jacob's.

This was a way to thrive, and he was blest

And thrift is blessing, if men steal it not

Ant This was a venture, sir, that Jacob serv'd for, 92

A thing not in his power to bring to pass,
But sway'd and fashion'd by the hand of heaven
Was this inserted to make interest good?
Or is your gold and silver ewes and rams? 96

Shy I cannot tell, I make it breed as fast
But note me, signior

Ant Mark you this, Bassanio,
The devil can cite Scripture for his purpose
An evil soul, producing holy witness, 100
Is like a villain with a smiling cheek,
A goodly apple rotten at the heart.
O, what a goodly outside falsehood hath!

Shy Three thousand ducats, 'tis a good round sum 104

Three months from twelve, then let me see the
rate

Ant Well, Shylock, shall we be beholding to
you?

Shy Signior Antonio, many a time and oft
In the Rialto you have rated me 108

About my moneys and my usances
Still have I borne it with a patient shrug,
For surffrance is the badge of all our tribe

You call me misbeliever, cut-throat dog, 112
And spet upon my Jewish gaberdine,
And all for use of that which is mine own

Will then, it now appears you need my help Go to then, you come to me, and you say, 116

'Shylock, we would have moneys, you say so,
You, that did void your rheum upon my beard,

And foot me as you spurn a stranger cur
Over your threshold moneys is your suit 120

What should I say to you? Should I not say,
'Hath a dog money? Is it possible

A cur can lend three thousand ducats?' or Shall I bend low, and in a bondman's key, 124

With bated breath, and whispering humbleness, Say this —

'Fair sir, you spet on me on Wednesday last,
You spurn'd me such a day, another time 128

You call'd me dog, and for these courtesies
I'll lend you thus much moneys?'

Ant I am as like to call thee so again,
To spet on thee again, to spurn thee too 132

If thou wilt lend this money, lend it not
As to thy friends,—for when did friendship take

A breed for barren metal of his friend?—
But lend it rather to thine enemy, 136

Who if he break, thou mayst with better face Exact the penalty

Shy Why, look you, how you storm!
I would be friends with you, and have your love,

Forget the shames that you have stain'd me with, 140

Supply your present wants, and take no doit
Of usance for my moneys, and you'll not hear

me
This is kind I offer

Ant This were kindness

Shy This kindness will I show
Go with me to a notary, seal me there 145

Your single bond, and, in a merry sport,
If you repay me not on such a day,

In such a place, such sum or sums as are 148
Express'd in the condition, let the forfeit
Be nominated for an equal pound

Of your fair flesh, to be cut off and taken
In what part of your body pleaseth me 152

Ant Content, I' faith I'll seal to such a bond,
And say there is much kindness in the Jew

Bass You shall not seal to such a bond for
me

I'll rather dwell in my necessity 156

Ant Why, fear not, man, I will not forfeit it Within these two months, that's a month before

This bond expires, I do expect return
Of thrice three times the value of this bond 160

Shy O father Abram! what these Christians
are,

Whose own hard dealing teaches them suspect
The thoughts of others Pray you, tell me this,

If he should break his day, what should I gain
By the exaction of the forfeiture? 165

A pound of man's flesh, taken from a man,
Is not so estimable, profitable neither,

As flesh of muttons, beefs, or goats I say, 168
To buy his favour, I extend this friendship
If he will take it, so, if not, adieu,

And, for my love, I pray you wrong me not Ant Yes, Shylock, I will seal unto this bond.

Shy Then meet me forthwith at the notary's,
Give him direction for this merry bond,

And I will go and purse the ducats straight,
See to my house left in the fearful guard 176

Of an unthrifty knave, and presently
I will be with you

Ant Hie thee, gentle Jew [Exit SHYLOCK
This Hebrew will turn Christian he grows kind

Bass I like not fair terms and a villain's mood 180

Ant Come on in this there can be no dismay,

My ships come home a month before the day
[Exit

ACT II

SCENE I—Belmont A Room in PORTIA'S
House

Flourish of Cornets Enter the PRINCE OF MO-ROCCO, and his Followers, PORTIA, NERISSA, and Others of her Train

Mor Mislake me not for my complexion,
The shadow'd livery of the burnish'd sun,

To whom I am a neighbour and near bred Bring me the fairest creature northward born, 4

Where Phœbus' fire scarce thaws the icicles,
And let us make incision for your love,

To prove whose blood is reddest, his or mine
I tell thee, lady, this aspect of mine 8

Hath fear'd the valiant by my love I swear
The best regarded virgins of our clime

Have lov'd it too I would not change this hue, Except to steal your thoughts, my gentle queen

Por In terms of choice I am not solely led By nice direction of a maiden's eyes,

Besides, the lottery of my destiny
Bars me the right of voluntary choosing 16

But if my father had not scanted me
And hedg'd me by his wit, to yield myself

His wife who wins me by that means I told you,

Yoursel, renowned prince, then stood as fair 20
As any comer I have look'd on yet
For my affection.

Mor Even for that I thank you
Therefore, I pray you, lead me to the caskets
To try my fortune By this scimitar,— 24
That slew the Sophy, and a Persian prince That won three fields of Sultan Solymán,— I would outstare the sternest eyes that look, Outbrave the heart most daring on the earth, 28
Pluck the young sucking cubs from the she-bear, Yea, mock the lion when he roars for prey,
To win thee, lady But, alas the while!
If Hercules and Lichas play at dice 32
Which is the better man, the greater throw
May turn by fortune from the weaker hand
So is Alcides beaten by his page,
And so may I, blind fortune leading me, 36
Miss that which one unworthier may attain,
And die with grieving

Por You must take your chance,
And either not attempt to choose at all,
Or swear before you choose, if you choose wrong,
Never to speak to lady afterward 41
In way of marriage therefore be advis'd

Mor Nor will not come, bring me unto my chance

Por First, forward to the temple after dinner 44
Your hazard shall be made

Mor Good fortune then!
To make me blest or curs'd 'st among men!
[Cornets, and exeunt]

SCENE II — Venice A Street

Enter LAUNCELOT GOBBO

Laun Certainly my conscience will serve me to run from this Jew my master The fiend is at mine elbow, and tempts me, saying to me,
'Gobbo, Launcelot Gobbo, good Launcelot,' or 'good Gobbo,' or 'good Launcelot Gobbo, use your legs, take the start, run away' My conscience says, 'No take heed, honest Launcelot, take heed, honest Gobbo,' or, as aforesaid, 'honest Launcelot Gobbo, do not run, scorn running with thy heels' Well, the most courageous fiend bids me pack 'Via' says the fiend, 'away!'
says the fiend, 'for the heavens, rouse up a brave mind,' says the fiend, 'and run' Well, my conscience, hanging about the neck of my heart, says very wisely to me, 'My honest friend Launcelot, be an honest man's son,'—or rather an honest woman's son,—for, indeed, my father did something smack, something grow to, he had a kind of taste,—well, my conscience says, 'Launcelot, budge not' 'Budge,' says the fiend 'Budge not,' says my conscience 'Conscience,' say I,
'you counsel well,' fiend, say I, 'you counsel well' to be ruled by my conscience, I should stay with the Jew my master, who, God bless the mark!
is a kind of devil, and, to run away from the Jew, I should be ruled by the fiend, who, saving your reverence, is the devil himself Certainly, the Jew is the very devil incarnate, and, in my conscience, my conscience is but a kind of hard conscience, to offer to counsel me to stay with the Jew The fiend gives the more friendly counsel I will run, fiend, my heels are at your commandment, I will run 33

Enter Old GOBBO, with a basket

Gob Master young man, you, I pray you, which is the way to Master Jew's?

Laun [Aside] O heavens! this is my true-begotten father, who, being more than sand-blind, high-gravel blind, knows me not I will try confusions with him

Gob Master young gentleman, I pray you,
which is the way to Master Jew's? 41

Laun Turn up on your right hand at the next turning, but, at the next turning of all, on your left, marry, at the very next turning, turn of no hand, but turn down indirectly to the Jew's
house

Gob By God's sonnes, 'twill be a hard way to hit Can you tell me whether one Launcelot, that dwells with him, dwell with him or no? 49

Laun Talk you of young Master Launcelot?
[Aside] Mark me now, now will I raise the waters Talk you of young Master Launcelot?

Gob No master, sir, but a poor man's son his father, though I say it, is an honest, exceeding poor man, and, God be thanked, well to live 56

Laun Well, let his father be what a' will, we talk of young Master Launcelot

Gob Your worship's friend, and Launcelot,
sir 60

Laun But I pray you, ergo, old man, ergo, I beseech you, talk you of young Master Launcelot?

Gob Of Launcelot, an't please your mastership 64

Laun Ergo, Master Launcelot Talk not of Master Launcelot, father, for the young gentleman,—according to Fates and Destinies and such odd sayings, the Sisters Three and such branches of learning,—is, indeed deceased, or, as you would say in plain terms, gone to heaven

Gob Marry, God forbid! the boy was the very staff of my age, my very prop 72

Laun [Aside] Do I look like a cudgel or a hovel-post, a staff or a prop? Do you know me, father?

Gob Alack the day! I know you not, young gentleman but I pray you, tell me, is my boy,— God rest his soul!—alive or dead?

Laun Do you not know me, father?

Gob Alack, sir, I am sand-blind, I know you
not 81

Laun Nay, indeed if you had your eyes, you might fail of the knowing me it is a wise father that knows his own child Well, old man, I will tell you news of your son Give me your blessing, truth will come to light, murder cannot be hid long, a man's son may, but, in the end, truth will out 88

Gob Pray you, sir, stand up I am sure you are not Launcelot, my boy

Laun Pray you let's have no more fooling about it, but give me your blessing I am

Launcelot, your boy that was, your son that is, your child that shall be 94

Gob I cannot think you are my son Laun I know not what I shall think of that, but I am Launcelot, the Jew's man, and I am sure Margery your wife is my mother 98

Gob Her name is Margery, indeed I'll be sworn, if thou be Launcelot, thou art mine own flesh and blood Lord worshipped might he be!
what a beard hast thou got! thou hast got more hair on thy chin than Dobbin my thill-horse has on his tail 104

Laun It should seem then that Dobbin's tail grows backward I am sure he had more hair on his tail than I have on my face, when I last saw
him 108

Gob Lord! how art thou changed How dost thou and thy master agree? I have brought him a present How 'gree you now?

Laun Well, well but, for mine own part, as I have set up my rest to run away, so I will not rest till I have run some ground My master's a very Jew give him a present! give him a halter I am famished in his service, you may tell every finger I have with my ribs Father, I am glad you are come give me your present to one Master Bassanio, who, indeed, gives rare new liveries If I serve not him, I will run as far as God has any ground. O rare fortune! here comes the man to him, father, for I am a Jew, if I serve the Jew any longer 123

Enter BASSANIO, with LEONARDO, and other Followers

Bass You may do so, but let it be so hasted that supper be ready at the very furthest by five of the clock. See these letters delivered, put the liveries to making, and desire Gratiano to come anon to my lodging [Exit a Servant]

Laun To him, father 129

Gob God bless your worship!
Bass Gramercy! wouldst thou aught with
me? 134

Gob Here's my son, sir, a poor boy — Laun. Not a poor boy, sir, but the rich Jew's man, that would, sir,—as my father shall specify,— 136

Gob He hath a great infection, sir, as one would say, to serve—Laun. Indeed, the short and the long is, I serve the Jew, and have a desire, as my father shall specify,— 141

Gob His master and he, saving your wor-ship's reverence, are scarce cater-cousins,— Laun To be brief, the very truth is that the Jew having done me wrong, doth cause me,— as my father, being, I hope, an old man, shall frutify unto you,— 147

Gob I have here a dish of doves that I would bestow upon your worship, and my suit is,— Laun In very brief, the suit is impertinent to myself, as your worship well knoweth; this honest old man, and, though I say it though old man, yet poor man, my father Bass One speak for both. What would you?

Laun Serve you sir 156
Gob That is the very defect of the matter,
sir

Bass I know thee well, thou hast obtain'd thy suit

Shylock thy master spoke with me this day, 160
And hath prefer'd thee, if it be preferment
To leave a rich Jew's service, to become The follower of so poor a gentleman

Laun The old proverb is very well parted between my master Shylock and you, sir you have the grace of God, sir, and he hath enough

Bass Thou speak'st it well Go, father, with thy son

Take leave of thy old master, and inquire 168
My lodging out [To his followers] Give him a livery

More guarded than his fellows' see it done

Laun Father, in I cannot get a service, no, I have ne'er a tongue in my head. Well, [Looking on his palm] if any man in Italy have a fairer table which doth offer to swear upon a book, I shall have good fortune Go to, here's a simple line of life here's a small trifle of wives alas! fifteen wives is nothing a leaven widows and nine maids is a simple coming-in for one man, and their to 'scape drowning thrice, and to be in peril of my life with the edge of a feather-bed, here's a simple scapes Well if Fortune be a woman, she is a good wench for this gear Father, come I'll take my leave of the Jew in the twinking of an eye 184

[Exit LAUNCELOT and Old GOBBO] Bass I pray thee, good Leonardo, think on
this

These things being bought, and orderly bestow'd, Return in haste, for I do feast to-night
My best esteem'd acquaintance here thee, go

Leon My best endeavours shall be done herein 189

Enter GRATIANO

Gra Where is your master?
Leon Yonder, sir, he walks
[Exit]

Gra Signior Bassanio!—
Bass Gratiano! 192

Gra I have a suit to you
Bass You have obtain'd it

Gra You must not deny me I must go with you to Belmont

Bass Why, then you must. But hear thee, Gratiano,

Thou art too wild, too rude and bold of voice,
Parts that become thee happily enough, 197
And in such eyes as ours appear not faults, But where thou art not known, why, there they show

Something too liberal Pray thee, take pain too
To allay with some cold drops of modesty Thy skipping spirit, lest, through thy wild behaviour,

I be misconstru'd in the place I go to,
And lose my hopes

Gra Signior Bassanio, hear me 204
If I do not put on a sober habit,

Talk with respect, and swear but no and then,
Wear prayer-books in my pocket, look demurely,

Nay more, while grace is saying, hood mine eyes

Thus with my hat, and sigh, and say 'amen,'
Use all the observance of civility,

Like one well studied in a sad ostent
To please his grandam, never trust me more

Bass Well, we shall see your bearing Gra Nay, but I bar to-night, you shall not gauge me

By what we do to-night.
Bass No, that were pity

I would entreat you rather to put on Your boldest suit of mirth, for we have friends

That purpose merriment But fare you well
I have some business

Gra And I must to Lorenzo and the rest,
But we will visit you at supper-time [Exeunt]

SCENE III —The Same A Room in SHYLOCK'S House

Enter JESSICA and LAUNCELOT.

Jes I am sorry thou wilt leave my father so
Our house is hell, and thou, a merry devil,

Didst rob it of some taste of tediousness
But fare thee well, there is a ducat for thee

And, Launcelot, soon at supper shalt thou see Lorenzo, who is thy new master's guest

Give him this letter, do it secretly,
And so farewell I would not have my father

See me in-talk with thee
Laun Adieu! tears exhibit my tongue

Most beautiful pagan, most sweet Jew! If a Christian did not play the knave and get thee, I am much deceived But, adieu! these foolish drops do somewhat drown my manly spirit adieu!

Jes Farewell, good Launcelot.
[Exit LAUNCELOT]

Alack, what heinous sin is it in me
To be ashamed to be my father's child!

But though I am a daughter to his blood,
I am not to his manners O Lorenzo!

If thou keep promise, I shall end this strife,
Become a Christian, and thy loving wife [Exit]

SCENE IV —The Same A Street

Enter GRATIANO, LORENZO, SALARINO, and SALANIO

Lor Nay, we will slink away in supper-time, Disguise us at my lodging, and return

All in an hour
Gra We have not made good preparation

Salar We have not spoke us yet of torch-bearers Salan 'Tis vile, unless it may be quaintly order'd,

And better, in my mind, not undertook

Lor 'Tis now but four o'clock we have two hours

To furnish us.

Enter LAUNCELOT, with a letter

Friend Launcelot, what's the news?

Laun An it shall please you to break up this,
it shall seem to signify

Lor I know the hand in faith, 'tis a fair
hand,

And whiter than the paper it writ on
Is the fair hand that writ

Gra Love news, in faith
Laun By your leave, sir

Lor Whither goest thou?
Laun Marry, sir, to bid my old master, the Jew, to sup to-night with my new master, the Christian

Lor Hold here, take this tell gentle Jessica
I will not fail her, speak it privately

Go, gentlemen, [Exit LAUNCELOT]
Will you prepare you for this masque to-night?

I am provided of a torch-bearer
Salar Ay, marry, I'll begone about it straight.

Salan And so will I
Lor Meet me and Gratiano

At Gratiano's lodging some hour hence Salar 'Tis good we do so

[Exeunt SALARINO and SALANIO]
Gra Was not that letter from fair Jessica?

Lor I must needs tell thee all. She hath directed

How I shall take her from her father's house, What gold and jewels she is furnish'd with,

What page's suit she hath in readiness
If e'er the Jew her father come to heaven,

It will be for his gentle daughter's sake,
And never dare misfortune cross her foot,

Unless she do it under this excuse,
That she is issue to a faithless Jew

Come, go with me peruse this as thou goest Fair Jessica shall be my torch-bearer [Exeunt]

SCENE V —The Same Before SHYLOCK'S House.

Enter SHYLOCK and LAUNCELOT

Shy Well, thou shalt see, thy eyes shall be thy judge,

The difference of old Shylock and Bassanio —
What, Jessica!—thou shalt not gormandize,

As thou hast done with me,—What, Jessica!—
And sleep and snore, and rend apparel out—

Why, Jessica, I say!
Laun Why, Jessica!

Shy Who bids thee call? I do not bid thee call.

Laun Your worship was wont to tell me that I could do nothing without bidding

Enter JESSICA.

Jes Call you? What is your will?
Shy I am bid forth to supper, Jessica

There are my keys But wherefore should I go?
I am not bid for love, they flatter me

But yet I'll go in hate, to feed upon The prodigal Christian. Jessica, my girl,

Look to my house. I am right loath to go.
There is some ill a-brewing towards my rest,

For I did dream of money-bags to-night

Laun I beseech you, sir, go my young master doth expect your reproach

Sh. So do I mis

Laun And they have conspired together I will not say you shall see a masque, but if you do, then it was not for nothing that my nose fe'll a-bleeding on Black-Monday last, at six o'clock 't' the morning, falling out that year on Ash-Wednesday was four year in the afternoon

Shy What! are there masques? Hear you me, Jessica

Lock up my doors, and when you hear the drum,

And the vile squealing of the wry-neck'd fife, Clamber not you up to the casements then, Nor thrust your head into the public street To gaze on Christian fools with varnish'd faces, But stop my house's ears, I mean my casements,

Let not the sound of shallow foppery enter My sober house By Jacob's staff I swear I have no mind of feasting forth to-night But I will go Go you before me, sirrah, Say I will come

Laun I will go before, sir Mistress, look out at window, for all this,

There will come a Christian by, Will be worth a Jewess' eye

[Exit LAUNCELOT

Shy What says that fool of Hagar's offspring, ha?

Jes His words were, 'Farewell, mistress,' nothing else

Shy The patch is kind enough, but a huge feeder,

Snail-slow in profit, and he sleeps by day More than the wild cat drones live not with me,

Therefore I part with him, and part with him To one that I would have him help to waste His borrow'd purse Well, Jessica, go in Perhaps I will return immediately

Do as I bid you, shut doors after you 'Fast bind, fast find,'

A proverb never stale in thrifty mind [Exit Jes Farewell, and if my fortune be not crost, I have a father, you a daughter, lost [Exit

SCENE VI —The Same

Enter GRATIANO and SALARINO, masqued

Gra This is the penthouse under which Lorenzo

Desir'd us to make stand

Salar His hour is almost past

Gra And it is marvel he out-dwells his hour, For lovers ever run before the clock

Salar O! ten times faster Venus' pigeons fly To seal love's bonds new-made, than they are wont

To keep obliged faith unforfeited!

Gra That ever holds who riseth from a feast With that keen appetite that he sits down? Where is the horse that doth untread again His tedious measures with the unbated fire

That he did pace them first? All things that are, Are with more spirit chased than enjoy'd How like a younker or a prodigal

The scarfed bark puts from her native bay, Hugg'd and embraced by the strumpet wind! How like the prodigal doth she return, With over-weather'd ribs and ragged sails, Lean, rent, and beggar'd by the strumpet wind!

Salar Here comes Lorenzo more of this hereafter

Enter LORENZO

Lor Sweet friends, your patience for my long abode,

Not I, but my affairs, have made you wait When you shall please to play the thieves for wives, I'll watch as long for you then Approach, Here dwells my father Jew Ho! who's within?

Enter JESSICA above, in boy's clothes

Jes Who are you? Tell me, for more certainty,

Albeit I'll swear that I do know your tongue Lor Lorenzo, and thy love Jes Lorenzo, certain, and my love indeed, For whom love I so much? And now who knows But you, Lorenzo, whether I am yours?

Lor Heaven and thy thoughts are witness that thou art

Jes Here, catch this casket, it is worth the pains

I am glad 'tis night, you do not look on me, For I am much ashamed of my exchange, But love is blind, and lovers cannot see

The pretty follies that themselves commit, For if they could, Cupid himself would blush To see me thus transformed to a boy

Lor Descend, for you must be my torch-bearer

Jes What! must I hold a candle to my shame?

They in themselves, goodsooth, are too too light Why, 'tis an office of discovery, love, And I should be obscur'd

Lor So are you, sweet, Even in the lovely garnish of a boy

But come at once, For the close night doth play the runaway, And we are stay'd for at Bassanio's feast

Jes I will make fast the doors, and gild myself

With some more ducats, and be with you straight

Gra Now, by my hood, a Gentle, and no Jew Lor Beshrew me, but I love her heartily,

For she is wise, if I can judge of her, And fair she is, if that mine eyes be true, And true she is, as she hath prov'd herself, And therefore, like herself, wise, fair, and true, Shall she be placed in my constant soul

Enter JESSICA.

What, art thou come? On, gentlemen, away! Our masquing mates by this time for us stay

[Exit with JESSICA and SALARINO

Enter ANTONIO

Ant Who's there?
 Gra Signior Antonio!
 Ant Fie, fie, Gratiano! where are all the rest?
 'Tis nine o'clock, our friends all stay for you No masque to-night the wind is come about,
 Bassanio presently will go aboard
 I have sent twenty out to seek for you Gra I am glad on't I desire no more delight
 Than to be under sail and gone to-night

[Exeunt

SCENE VII — Belmont A Room in PORTIA'S House

Flourish of Cornets Enter PORTIA, with the PRINCE OF MOROCCO, and their Trains

Por Go, draw aside the curtains, and discover

The several caskets to this noble prince Now make your choice

Mor The first, of gold, which this inscription bears

Who chooseth me shall gain what many men desire

The second, silver, which this promise carries Who chooseth me shall get as much as he deservesThis third, dull lead, with warning all as blunt
Who chooseth me must give and hazard all he hath

How shall I know if I do choose the right?

Por The one of them contains my picture, prince

If you choose that, then I am yours withal Mor Some god direct my judgment! Let me see

I will survey the inscriptions back again

What says this leaden casket?

Who chooseth me must give and hazard all he hath

Must give For what? for lead? hazard for lead?

This casket threatens Men that hazard all Do it in hope of fair advantagesA golden mind stoops not to shows of dross, so I'll then nor give nor hazard aught for lead

What says the silver with her virgin hue?

Who chooseth me shall get as much as he deserves

As much as he deserves! Pause there, Morocco,
And weigh thy value with an even handIf thou be'st rated by thy estimation, Thou dost deserve enough, and yet enoughMay not extend so far as to the lady
And yet to be afraid of my deservingWere but a weak disabling of myself
As much as I deserve! Why, that's the ladyI do in birth deserve her, and in fortunes, so
In graces, and in qualities of breeding,But more than these, in love I do deserve
What if I stray'd no further, but chose here?Let's see once more this saying grav'd in gold
Who chooseth me shall gain what many men desire.

Why, that's the lady all the world desires her,
 From the four corners of the earth they come,
 To kiss this shrine, this mortal-breathing saint
 The Hyrcanian deserts and the vasty wilds
 Of wide Arabia are as thoroughfares now
 For princes to come view fair Portia
 The watery kingdom, whose ambitious head Spits in the face of heaven, is no bar
 To stop the foreign spirits, but they come,
 As o'er a brook, to see fair Portia
 One of these three contains her heavenly picture Is't like that lead contains her? 'Twere damnation

To think so base a thought it were too gross

To rib her cerecloth in the obscure grave
Or shall I think in silver she's immur'd,Being ten times undervalu'd to tried gold?
O sinful thought! Never so rich a gem

Was set in worse than gold They have in England

A coin that bears the figure of an angel Stamped in gold, but that's insculp'd upon,But here an angel in a golden bed Lies all within Deliver me the keyHere do I choose, and thrive I as I may!
Por There, take it, prince, and if my formlie there,
Then I am yours[He unlocks the golden casket Mor O hell! what have we here?A carrion Death, within whose empty eye
There is a written scroll I'll read the writingAll that glisters is not gold Often have you heard that toldMany a man his life hath sold
But my outside to beholdGilded tombs do worms infold
Had you been as wise as boldYoung in limbs in judgment old Your answer had not been inscroll'dFare you well, your suit is cold.
Cold, indeed, and labour lostThen, farewell, heat, and welcome, frost!
Portia, adieu I have too griev'd a heartTo take a tedious leave thus losers part [Exit with his Train Flourish of CornetsPor A gentle riddance Draw the curtains goLet all of his complexion choose me so
[Exeunt

SCENE VIII — Venice A Street

Enter SALARINO and SALANIO

Salar Why man, I saw Bassanio under sail
With him is Gratiano gone along,And in their ship I'm sure Lorenzo is not Salar The villain Jew with outcries rais'dthe duke, Who went with him to search Bassanio's ship

Salar He came too late, the ship was under sail

But there the duke was given to understand That in a gondola were seen togetherLorenzo and his amorous Jessica Besides, Antonio certified the duke

They were not with Bassanio in his ship

Salan I never heard a passion so confus'd, 12
 So strange, outrageous, and so variable,
 As the dog Jew did utter in the streets
 'My daughter! O my ducats! O my daughter!
 Fled with a Christian! O my Christian ducats!
 Justice! the law! my ducats, and my daughter!
 A sealed bag, two sealed bags of ducats,
 Of double ducats, stol'n from me by my daughter!

And jewels! two stones, two rich and precious stones, 20
 Stol'n by my daughter! Justice! find the girl!
 She hath the stones upon her, and the ducats!

Salan Why, all the boys in Venice follow
 him,

Crying, his stones, his daughter, and his ducats Salan Let good Antonio look he keep his day, 25

Or he shall pay for this

Salan Marry, well remember'd
 I reason'd with a Frenchman yesterday,
 Who told me,—in the narrow seas that part 28
 The French and English,—there miscarried
 A vessel of our country richly fraught
 I thought upon Antonio when he told me,
 And wish'd in silence that it were not his 32

Salan You were best to tell Antonio what you hear,

Yet do not suddenly, for it may grieve him Salan A kinder gentleman treads not the earth

I saw Bassanio and Antonio part 36
 Bassanio told him he would make some speed
 Of his return he answer'd 'Do not so,
 Slubber not business for my sake, Bassanio,
 But stay the very upping of the time, 40
 And for the Jew's bond which he hath of me,
 Let it not enter in your mind of love
 Be merry, and employ your chiefest thoughts
 To courtship and such fair ostents of love 44
 As shall conveniently become you there
 And even there, his eye being big with tears,
 Turning his face, he put his hand behind him,
 And with affection wondrous sensible 48
 He wrung Bassanio's hand and so they parted

Salan I think he only loves the world for
 him

I pray thee, let us go and find him out,
 And quicken his embraced heaviness 52
 With some delight or other

Salan Do we so
 [Exeunt]

SCENE IX—Belmont A Room in PORTIA'S House

Enter NERISSA, with a Servitor

Ner Quick, quick, I pray thee, draw the curtain straight
 The Prince of Arragon hath ta'en his oath,
 And comes to his election presently

Flourish of Cornets Enter the PRINCE OF ARRAGON, PORTIA, and their Trains

Por Behold, there stand the caskets, noble prince 4

If you choose that wherein I am contain'd, Straight shall our nuptial rites be solemniz'd
 But if you fail, without more speech, my lord,
 You must be gone from hence immediately 8 Ar I am enjoin'd by oath to observe three things

First, never to unfold to any one Which casket 'twas I chose, next, if I fail
 Of the right casket, never in my life 12
 To woo a maid in way of marriage,
 Lastly,

If I do fail in fortune of my choice,
 Immediately to leave you and be gone 16

Por To these injunctions every one doth
 swear

That comes to hazard for my worth-less self Ar And so have I address'd me Fortune
 now

To my heart's hope! Gold, silver, and base lead 20

Who chooseth me must give and hazard all he hath

You shall look fairer, ere I give or hazard
 What says the golden chest? ha! let me see Who chooseth me shall gain what many men desire 24

What many men desire! that 'many' may be meant

By the fool multitude, that choose by show,
 Not learning more than the fond eye doth teach, Which pries not to the interior, but, like the marilet 28

Builds in the weather on the outward wall,
 Even in the force and road of casualty
 I will not choose what many men desire,
 Because I will not jump with common spirits 32
 And rank me with the barbarous multitude
 Why, then to thee, thou silver treasure-house,
 Tell me once more what title thou dost bear

Who chooseth me shall get as much as he deserves 36

And well said too, for who shall go about To cozen fortune and be honourable Without the stamp of merit? Let none presume

To wear an undeserved dignity 40
 O! that estates, degrees, and offices Were not deriv'd corruptly, and that clear
 honour

Were purchas'd by the merit of the wearer
 How many then should cover that stand bare,
 How many be commanded that command, 45
 How much low peasantry would then be glean'd
 From the true seed of honour, and how much
 honour

Pick'd from the chaff and run of the times 48
 To be new varnish'd! Well, but to my choice
Who chooseth me shall get as much as he deserves

I will assume desert. Give me a key for this,
 And instantly unlock my fortunes here 52

[He opens the silver casket Por Too long a pause for that which you find there.

Ar What's here? the portrait of a blinking idiot,

Presenting me a schedule! I will read it
How much unlike art thou to Portia! 56
How much unlike my hopes and my deservings!
Who chooseth me shall have as much as he deserves

Did I deserve no more than a fool's head?
Is that my prize? are my deserts no better? 60
Por To offend, and judge, are distinct offices,
And of opposed natures

Ar What is here?

The fire seven times tried this Seven times tried that judgment is That did never choose amiss
Some there be that shadows kiss
Such have but a shadow's bliss
There be fools alive I wis, Silver d o e r, and so was this Take what wife you will to bed
I will ever be your head
So be gone sir you are sped

Still more fool I shall appear
By the time I linger here
With one fool's head I came to woo,
But I go away with two Sweet, adieu! I'll keep my oath, Patiently to bear my wroth.

[Exit ANTONIO with his Train]
Por Thus hath the candle sing'd the moth
O, these deliberate fools! when they do choose,
They have the wisdom by their wit to lose 81

Ner The ancient saying is no heresy
'Hanging and wiving goes by destiny'
Por Come, draw the curtain, Nerissa 84

Enter a Servant.

Ser Where is my lady?

Por Here, what would my lord?

Ser Madam there is alighted at your gate
A young Venetian, one that comes before
To signify the approaching of his lord, 88
From whom he bringeth sensible regrets, To wit,—besides commends and courteous
breath,—

Gifts of rich value Yet I have not seen
So likely an ambassador of love 92
A day in April never can be so sweet,
To show how costly summer was at hand,
As this fore-spurrer comes before his lord

Por No more, I pray thee I am half afraid Thou wilt say anon he is some kin to thee, 97 Thou spend'st such high-day wit in praising
him

Come, come Nerissa, for I long to see Quick Cupid's post that comes so mannerly 100 Ner Bassanio, lord Love, if thy will it be!

[Exeunt]

ACT III

SCENE I.—Venice A Street

Enter SALANIO and SALARINO

Salar Now, what news on the Rialto?

Salar Why, yet it lives there unchecked that Antonio hath a ship of rich lading wracked on the narrow seas, the Goodwins I think they call the place, a very dangerous flat, and fatal, where the carcasses of many a tall ship lie buried, as they say, if my gossip Report be an honest woman of her word 8

Salar I would she were as lying a gossip in that as ever knapped ginger, or made her neighbours believe she wept for the death of a third husband But it is true,—without any slips of prolixity or crossing the plain highway of talk, —that the good Antonio, the honest Antonio,— O, that I had a title good enough to keep his name company!— 16

Salar Come, the full stop Salar H^a! what sayst thou? Why, the end is, he hath lost a ship

Salar I would it might prove the end of his losses 21

Salar Let me say 'amen' betimes, lest the devil cross my prayer, for here he comes in the likeness of a Jew 24

Enter SHYLOCK

How now, Shylock! what news among the merchants? 76

Sny You knew, none so well, none so well as you, of my daughter's flight 28

Salar That's certain I, for my part, knew the tailor that made the wings she flew withal

Salar And Shylock, for his own part, knew the bird was fledged, and then it is the complexion of them all to leave the dam. 33

Shy She is damned for it

Salar That's certain, if the devil may be her
judge 36

Shy My own flesh and blood to rebel!

Salar Out upon it, old carrion! rebels it at these years—

Shy I say my daughter is my flesh and
blood 41

Salar There is more difference between thy flesh and hers than between jet and ivory, more between your bloods than there is between red wine and Rhenish But tell us, do you hear whether Antonio have had any loss at sea or no? 47

Shy There I have another bad match a bankrupt, a prodigal, who dare scarce show his head on the Rialto, a beggar, that used to come so smug upon the mart, let him look to his bond he was wont to call me usurer, let him look to his bond he was wont to lend money for a Christian courtesy, let him look to his bond 54

Salar Why, I am sure, if he forfeit thou wilt not take his flesh what's that good for?

Shy To bait fish withal if it will feed nothing else, it will feed my revenge He hath disgraced me, and hindered me half a million, laughed at my losses, mocked at my gains, scorned my nation, thwarted my bargains, cooled my friends, heated mine enemies, and what's his reason? I am a Jew Hath not a Jew eyes? hath not a Jew hands, organs, dimensions, senses, affections, passions? fed with the same food, hurt with the same weapons, subject to the same diseases, healed by the same means, warmed and cooled by the same winter and summer, as a Christian is? If you prick us, do we not bleed? if you tickle us, do we not laugh? if you poison us, do we not die? and if you wrong us, shall we not revenge? If we are like you in the rest, we will resemble you in that. If a Jew wrong a Christian, what is his humility? Revenge. If a Christian wrong a Jew, what should his sufferance be by Christian example? Why, revenge. The villany you teach me I will execute, and it shall go hard but I will better the instruction 78

Enter a Servant

Serv Gentlemen, my master Antonio is at his house, and desires to speak with you both Salar We have been up and down to seek him.

Enter TUBAL

Salar Here comes another of the tribe a third cannot be matched, unless the devil himself turn Jew 85

[Exeunt SALARIO, SALARINO and Servant]
Shy How now, Tubal! what news from Genoa? Hast thou found my daughter?

Tub I often came where I did hear of her, but cannot find her 89

Shy Why there, there, there! a diamond gone, cost me two thousand ducats in Frankfort! The curse never fell upon our nation till now, I never felt it till now two thousand ducats in that, and other precious, precious jewels I would my daughter were dead at my foot, and the jewels in her ear! would she were hearsed at my foot, and the ducats in her coffin! No news of them? Why, so and I know not what's spent in the search. Why thou—loss upon loss! the thief gone with so much, and so much to find the thief, and no satisfaction, no revenge nor no ill luck stirring but what lights on my shoulders, no sighs but of my breathing, no tears but of my shedding 104

Tub Yes, other men have ill luck too Antonio, as I heard in Genoa,— Shy What, what, what? ill luck, ill luck?

Tub —hath an argosy cast away, coming from Tripolis 109

Shy I thank God! I thank God! Is it true? is it true?

Tub I spoke with some of the sailors that escaped the wrack 113

Shy I thank thee, good Tubal. Good news, good news! ha, ha! Where? in Genoa?

Tub Your daughter spent in Genoa, as I heard, one night, fourscore ducats 117

Shy Thou stick'st a dagger in me. I shall never see my gold again. Fourscore ducats at a sitting! fourscore ducats! 120

Tub There came divers of Antonio's creditors in my company to Venice, that swear he cannot choose but break

Shy I am very glad of it. I'll plague him, I'll torture him. I am glad of it. 125

Tub One of them showed me a ring that he had of your daughter for a monkey

Shy Out upon her! Thou torturest me, Tubal. It was my turquoise, I had it of Leah when I was a bachelor. I would not have given it for a wilderness of monkeys

Tub But Antonio is certainly undone 132

Shy Nay, that's true, that's very true. Go Tubal, fee me an officer, bespeak him a fortnight before. I will have the heart of him, if he forfeit, for, were he out of Venice, I can make what merchandise I will. Go, go, Tubal, and meet me at our synagogue, go, good Tubal, at our synagogue, Tubal [Exeunt]

SCENE II —Belmont A Room in PORTIA'S House

Enter BASSANIO, PORTIA, GRATIANO, NERISSA, and Attendants

Por I pray you, tarry pause a day or two. Before you hazard, for, in choosing wrong, I lose your company therefore, forbear awhile. There's something tells me, but it is not love, I would not lose you, and you know yourself, Hate counsels not in such a quality. But lest you should not understand me well,—And yet a maiden hath no tongue but thought,—I would detain you here some month or two. Before you venture for me. I could teach you how to choose right, but then I am forsworn, So will I never be. So may you miss me, But if you do, you'll make me wish a sin, That I had been forsworn. Beshrew your eyes, They have o'erlook'd me and divided me. One half of me is yours, the other half yours, Mine own, I would say, but if mine, then yours, And so all yours. O! these naughty times. Put bars between the owners and their rights, And so, though yours, not yours. Prove it so, Let fortune go to hell for it, not I. I speak too long, but 'tis to please the time, To eke it and to draw it out in length, To stay you from election.

Bass Let me choose, 24

For as I am, I live upon the rack.
Por Upon the rack, Bassanio! then confess. What treason there is mingled with your love.

Bass None but that ugly treason of mistrust, Which makes me fear th' enjoying of my love. There may as well be amity and life 30

'Tween snow and fire, as treason and my love.
Por Ay, but I fear you speak upon the rack,

Where men enforced do speak anything 33

Bass Promise me life, and I'll confess the truth.

Por Well then, confess, and live

Bass 'Confess' and 'love' Had been the very sum of my confession 36

O happy torment, when my torturer Doth teach me answers for deliverance!

But let me to my fortune and the caskets

Por Away then! I am lock'd in one of them. If you do love me, you will find me out 41

Nerissa and the rest, stand all aloof. Let music sound while he doth make his choice,

Then, if he lose, he makes a swan-like end, 44 Fading in music that the comparison

May stand more proper, my eye shall be the stream

And watery death-bed for him He may win,
 And what is music then? then music is 48
 Even as the flourish when true subjects bow
 To a new-crowned monarch such it is As are those dulcet sounds in break of day
 That creep into the dreaming bridegroom's ear,
 And summon him to marriage Now he goes, 53
 With no less presence, but with much more love, Than young Alcides, when he did redeem
 The virgin tribute paid by howling Troy 56
 To the sea-monster I stand for sacrifice,
 The rest aloof are the Dardanian waves,
 With bleared visages, come forth to view
 The issue of the exploit Go, Hercules! 60
 Live thou, I live with much, much more dismay
 I view the fight than thou that mak'st the fray

[A Song, whilst BASSANIO comments on the caskets to himself]

Tell me where is fancy bred
 Or in the heart or in the head? 64
 How begot, how nourished?
 Reply reply
 It is engender'd in the eyes
 With gazing fed and fancy dies 68
 In the cradle where it lies
 Let us all ring fancy's knell I'll begin it—Ding dong bell.

All Ding dong bell 72

Bass So may the outward shows be least themselves

The world is still deceiv'd with ornament
 In law, what plea so tainted and corrupt
 But, being season'd with a gracious voice, 76 Obscures the show of evil? In religion
 What damned error, but some sober brow
 Will bless it and approve it with a text, Hiding the grossness with fair ornament? 80
 There is no vice so simple but assumes
 Some mark of virtue on his outward parts
 How many cowards, whose hearts are all as false
 As stairs of sand, wear yet upon their chins 84
 The beards of Hercules and frowning Mars,
 Who inward search'd have livers white as milk,
 And these assume but a colour's excrement
 To render them redoubt'd! Look on beauty, 88
 And you shall see 'tis purchas'd by the weight, Which therein works a miracle in nature
 Making them lightest that wear most of it So are those crisped snaky golden locks 92 Which make such wanton gambols with the wind,

Upon supposed fairness, often known
 To be the dowry of a second head,
 The skull that bred them, in the sepulchre 96
 Thus ornament is but the guiled shore
 To a most dangerous sea, the beauteous scarf Veiling an Indian beauty, 'n a word,
 The seeming truth which cunning times put on To entrap the wisest Therefore, thou gaudy 100
 gold,

Hard food for Midas, I will none of thee,
 Nor none of thee that's pale and common drudge
 'Tween man and man but thou, thou meagre 104
 lead,

Which rather threat'nest than dost promise aught,

Thy plainness moves me more than eloquence,
 And here choose I joy be the consequence!
 Por [Aside] How all the other passions fleet 108 to air,
 As doubtful thoughts, and rash-embac'd despair,
 And shuddering fear, and green-ey'd jealousy
 O love! be moderate, allay thy ecstasy,
 In measure rain thy joy, scant this excess, 112
 I feel too much thy blessing, make it less,
 For fear I surfeit!

Bass

What find I here?

[Opening the leaden casket]

Fair Portia's counterfeit! What demi-god Hath come so near creation? Move these eyes?
 Or whether, riding on the balls of mine, 117
 Seem they in motion? Here are sever'd lips, Parted with sugar breath, so sweet a bar
 Should sunder such sweet friends Here, in her 120 hairs

The painter plays the spider, and hath woven
 A golden mesh to entrap the hearts of men Faster than gnats in cobwebs but her eyes!— 68
 How could he see to do them? having made one, Methinks it should have power to steal both his
 And leave itself unfurnish'd yet look, how far The substance of my praise doth wrong this shadow

In underprizing it, so far this shadow 128 Doth limp behind the substance Here's the scroll,

The continent and summary of my fortune

You that choose not by the view,
 Chance as fair and choose as true! 132
 Since this fortune falls to you,
 Be content and seek no new If you be well pleas'd with this And hold your fortune for your bliss, 136 Turn you where your lady is
 And claim her with a loving kiss

A gentle scroll Fair lady, by your leave,

[Kissing her]

I come by note, to give and to receive 140
 Like one of two contending in a prize,
 That thinks he hath done well in people's eyes,
 Hearing applause and universal shout,
 Giddy in spirit, still gazing in a doubt 144
 Whether those peals of praise be his or no,
 So, thrice-fair lady, stand I, even so,
 As doubtful whether what I see be true,
 Until confirm'd, sign'd, ratified by you 148 Por You see me, Lord Bassanio, where I
 stand,

Such as I am though for myself alone
 I would not be ambitious in my wish,
 To wish myself much better yet, for you 152
 I would be trebled twenty times myself,
 A thousand times more fair, ten thousand times More rich,
 That only to stand high in your account, 156
 I might in virtues beauties, livings, friends, Exceed account but the full sum of me
 Is sum of nothing which, to term in gross,
 Is an unlesson'd girl, unschool'd, unpractis'd, 161
 Happy in this, she is not yet so old
 But she may learn, happier than this,

She is not bred so dull but she can learn,
 Happiest of all is that her gentle spirit Commits itself to yours to be directed, 164
 As from her lord, her governor, her king Myself and what is mine to you and yours
 Is now converted but now I was the lord 168
 Of this fair mansion, master of my servants,
 Queen o'er myself, and even now, but now,
 This house, these servants, and this same myself 171

Are yours, my lord. I give them with this ring, Which when you part from, lose, or give away,
 Let it presage the ruin of your love,
 And be my vantage to exclaim on you

Bass Madam, you have bereft me of all words, 176

Only my blood speaks to you in my veins,
 And there is such confusion in my powers,
 As, after some oration fairly spoke
 By a beloved prince, there doth appear 180
 Among the buzzing pleased multitude,
 Where every something being blent together,
 Turns to a wild of nothing, save of joy,
 Express'd and not express'd But when this ring Parts from this finger, then parts life from
 hence 185

O! then be bold to say Bassanio's dead
Ner My lord and lady, it is now our time,
 That have stood by and seen our wishes prosper,
 To cry, good joy Good joy, my lord and lady!

Gra My Lord Bassanio and my gentle lady,
 I wish you all the joy that you can wish,
 For I am sure you can wish none from me 192
 And when your honours mean to solemnize
 The bargain of your faith, I do beseech you, Even at that time I may be marr'd too

Bass With all my heart, so thou canst get a wife 196

Gra I thank your lordship, you have got me one

My eyes, my lord, can look as swift as yours
 You saw the mistress, I beheld the maid,
 You lov'd, I lov'd for intermission. 200
 No more pertains to me, my lord, than you Your fortune stood upon the caskets there,
 And so did mine too, as the matter falls,
 For wooing here until I sweat again, 204
 And swearing till my very roof was dry With oaths of love, at last, if promise last,
 I got a promise of this fair one here 207
 To have her love, provided that your fortune Achiev'd her mistress

Por Is this true, Nerissa?
Ner Madam, it is, so you stand pleas'd withal Bass And do you, Gratiano, mean good faith?

Gra Yes, faith, my lord 212 Bass Our feast shall be much honour'd in your marriage

Gra We'll play with them the first boy for a thousand ducats.

Ner What! and stake down? 216
Gra No, we shall ne'er win at that sport, and stake down

But who comes here? Lorenzo and his infidel?
 What! and my old Venetian friend, Salanio? 220

Enter LORENZO, JESSICA, and SALANIO

Bass Lorenzo, and Salanio, welcome hither,
 If that the youth of my new interest here
 Have power to bid you welcome By your leave,
 I bid my very friends and countrymen, 224
 Sweet Portia, welcome

Por So do I, my lord

They are entirely welcome Lor I thank your honour For my part, my
 lord,

My purpose was not to have seen you here, 228
 But meeting with Salanio by the way,
 He did entreat me, past all saying nay,
 To come with him along

Salan I did, my lord,
 And I have reason for it Signior Antonio 232
 Commends him to you [Gives BASSANIO a letter

Bass Ere I ope his letter,
 I pray you, tell me how my good friend doth Salan Not sick, my lord, unless it be in mind, Nor well, unless in mind his letter there 236
 Will show you his estate

Gra Nerissa, cheer yon stranger, bid her welcome

Your hand, Salanio What's the news from Venice?

How doth that royal merchant, good Antonio?
 I know he will be glad of our success, 241
 We are the Jasons, we have won the fleece

Salan I would you had won the fleece that he hath lost

Por There are some shrewd contents in yon same paper, 244

That steal the colour from Bassanio's cheek
 Some dear friend dead, else nothing in the world Could turn so much the constitution
 Of any constant man What, worse and worse!

With leave, Bassanio, I am half yourself, 249
 And I must freely have the half of anything
 That this same paper brings you

Bass O sweet Portia!
 Here are a few of the unpleasant st words 252

That ever blotted paper Gentle lady,
 When I did first impart my love to you,
 I freely told you all the wealth I had

Ran in my veins, I was a gentleman 256
 And then I told you true, and yet, dear lady, Rating myself at nothing, you shall see

How much I was a braggart When I told you My state was nothing, I should then have told
 you 260

That I was worse than nothing, for, indeed,
 I have engag'd myself to a dear friend,
 Engag'd my friend to his mere enemy,

To feed my means Here is a letter, lady, 264
 The paper as the body of my friend,
 And every word in it a gaping wound,
 Issuing life-blood But is it true, Salanio?

Hath all his ventures fail'd? What, not one hit?
 From Tripolis, from Mexico, and England, 269
 From Lisbon, Barbary, and India?

And not one vessel 'scape the dreadful touch
 Of merchant-marring rocks?

Salan Not one, my lord 272
 Besides, it should appear, that if he had The present money to discharge the Jew,

He would not take it Never did I know
A creature, that did bear the shape of man, 276
So keen and greedy to confound a man
He plies the duke at morning and at night,
And doth impeach the freedom of the state,
If they deny him justice twenty merchants, 280
The duke himself, and the magnificoes
Of great'st port, have all persuaded with him,
But none can drive him from the envious plea
Of forfeiture of justice, and his bond 284

Jes When I was with him, I have heard him
swear
To Tubal and to Chus, his countrymen,
That he would rather have Antonio's flesh
Than twenty times the value of the sum 288
That he did owe him, and I know, my lord,
If law authority, and power deny not,
It will go hard with poor Antonio

Por Is it your dear friend that is thus in trouble? 292

Bass The dearest friend to me, the kindest
man

The best condition'd and unwearied spirit
In doing courtesies, and one in whom
The ancient Roman honour more appears 296
Than any that draws breath in Italy

Por What sum oves he the Jew?
Bass For me, three thousand ducats

Por What, no more?
Pay him six thousand, and deface the bond, 300 Double six thousand, and then treble that,
Before a friend of this description
Shall lose a hair thorough Bassanio's fault
First go with me to church and call me wife, 304
And then away to Venice to your friend,
For never shall you lie by Portia's side
With an unquiet soul You shall have gold
To pay the petty debt twenty times over 308
When it is paid, bring your true friend along My maid Nerissa and myself meantime,
Will live as maids and widows Come, away!
For you shall hence upon your wedding-day 312
Bid your friends welcome, show a merry cheer, Since you are dear bought, I will love you dear
But let me hear the letter of your friend 315

Bass Sweet Bassanio my ships have all miscarried my creditors grow cruel my estate is very low my bond to the Jew is forfeit and since in paying it it is impossible I should live all debts are cleared between you and I if I might but see you at my death Notwithstanding use your pleasure if your love do not persuade you to come, let not my letter

Por O love, dispatch all business, and be gone! 324

Bass Since I have your good leave to go away,
I will make haste but, till I come again,
No bed shall I be guilty of my stay,
Nor rest be interposer 'twixt us twain.

[Exeunt]

SCENE III — Venice A Street

Enter SHYLOCK, SALARINO, ANTONIO, and Gaoler

Shy Gaoler, look to him tell not me of mercy,

This is the fool that lent out money gratis

Gaoler, look to him

Ant Hear me yet, good Shylock Shy I'll have my bond, speak not against my bond

I have sworn an oath that I will have my bond, Thou call'st me dog before thou hadst a cause,
But, since I am a dog, beware my fangs
The duke shall grant me justice I do wonder, Thou naughty gaoler, that thou art so fond 9
To come abroad with him at his request

Ant I pray thee, hear me speak Shy I'll have my bond, I will not hear thee
speak 12

I'll have my bond, and therefore speak no more I'll not be made a soft and dull-eyed fool,
To shake the head, relent, and sigh, and yield To Christian intercessors Follow not, 16
I'll have no speaking, I will have my bond

[Exit]

Salar It is the most impenetrable cur
That ever kept with men

Ant Let him alone
I'll follow him no more with bootless prayers
He seeks my life, his reason well I know 21
I oft deliver'd from his forfeitures
Many that have at times made moan to me, Therefore he hates me

Salar I am sure the duke 24
Will never grant this forfeiture to hold

Ant The duke cannot deny the course of law For the commodity that strangers have With us in Venice, if it be denied, 28
'Twill much impeach the justice of the state,
Since that the trade and profit of the city
Consisteth of all nations Therefore, go
These griefs and losses have so bated me, 32
That I shall hardly spare a pound of flesh
To-morrow to my bloody creditor
Well, gaoler, on Pray God, Bassanio come
To see me pay his debt, and then I care not! 36
[Exeunt]

SCENE IV — Belmont A Room in PORTIA'S House

Enter PORTIA, NERISSA, LORENZO, JESSICA and BALTHAZAR

Lor Madam, although I speak it in your presence,

You have a noble and a true conceit
Of god-like amity, which appears most strongly In bearing thus the absence of your lord 4
But if you knew to whom you show this honour,
How true a gentleman you send relief,
How dear a lover of my lord your husband,
I know you would be prouder of the work 8
Than customary bounty can enforce you.

Por I never did repent for doing good,
Nor shall not now for in companions
That do converse and waste the time together,
Whose souls do bear an equal yoke of love, 13
There must be needs a like proportion Of lineaments, of manners, and of spirit,
Which makes me think that this Antonio, 16
Being the bosom lover of my lord,

Must needs be like my lord If it be so,
 How little is the cost I have bestow'd
 In purchasing the semblance of my soul 20
 From out the state of hellish cruelty!
 This comes too near the praising of myself,
 Therefore, no more of it hear other things
 Lorenzo, I commit into your hands 24
 The husbandry and manage of my house Until my lord's return for mine own part,
 I have toward heaven breath'd a secret vow
 To live in prayer and contemplation, 28
 Only attended by Nerissa here, Until her husband and my lord's return
 There is a monastery two miles off,
 And there will we abide I do desire you 32
 Not to deny this imposition,
 The which my love and some necessity
 Now lays upon you.

Lor Madam, with all my heart
 I shall obey you in all fair commands 36
Por My people do already know my mind,
 And will acknowledge you and Jessica
 In place of Lord Bassanio and myself
 So fare you well till we shall meet again. 40 Lor Fair thoughts and happy hours attend on you!
Jes I wish your ladyship all heart's content Por I thank you for your wish, and am well
 pleas'd

To wish it back on you fare you well, Jessica [Exeunt JESSICA and LORENZO]

Now, Balthazar, 45
 As I have ever found thee honest-true,
 So let me find thee still Take this same letter,
 And use thou all the endeavour of a man 48
 In speed to Padua see thou render this Into my cousin's hand, Doctor Bellario, And, look, what notes and garments he doth give thee,
 Bring them, I pray thee, with imagin'd speed 52
 Unto the trajet, to the common ferry
 Which trades to Venice Waste no time in words,
 But get thee gone I shall be there before thee
Balth Madam, I go with all convenient speed.

[Exit
Por Come on, Nerissa I have work in hand
 That you yet know not of we'll see our husbands Before they think of us

Ner Shall they see us?
Por They shall, Nerissa, but in such a habit
 That they shall think we are accomplished 61
 With that we lack I'll hold thee any wager,
 When we are both account'd like young men,
 I'll prove the prettier fellow of the two, 64
 And wear my dagger with the braver grace,
 And speak between the change of man and boy
 With a reed voice, and turn two mincing steps
 Into a manly stride, and speak of frays 68
 Like a fine bragging youth, and tell quaint lies,
 How honourable ladies sought my love,
 Which I denying, they fell sick and died
 I could not do without, then I'll repent, 72
 And wish, for all that, that I had not kill'd them
 And twenty of these puny lies I'll tell That men shall swear I have discontinu'd school Above a twelvemonth I have within my mind

A thousand raw tricks of these bragging Jacks, Which I will practise

Ner Why, shall we turn to men?
Por Fie, what a question's that,
 If thou wert near a lewd interpreter! 80
 But come I'll tell thee all my whole device
 When I am in my coach, which stays for us
 At the park gate, and therefore haste away,
 For we must measure twenty miles to-day 84
 [Exeunt]

SCENE V—The Same A Garden

Enter LAUNCELOT and JESSICA.

Laun Yes, truly, for, look you, the sins of the father are to be laid upon the children, therefore, I promise you, I fear you I was always plain with you, and so now I speak my agitation of the matter therefore be of good cheer, for, truly, I think you are damned There is but one hope in it that can do you any good, and that is but a kind of bastard hope neither 8

Jes And what hope is that, I pray thee?
Laun Marry, you may partly hope that your father got you not, that you are not the Jew's
 daughter 12

Jes That were a kind of bastard hope, indeed so the sins of my mother should be visited upon me

Laun Truly then I fear you are damned both by father and mother thus when I shun Scylla, your father, I fall into Charybdis, your mother well, you are gone both ways

Jes I shall be saved by my husband, he hath made me a Christian 21

Laun Truly the more to blame he we were Christians enow before, e'en as many as could well live one by another Thus making of Christians will raise the price of hogs if we grow all to be pork-eaters, we shall not shortly have a rasher on the coals for money 27

Jes I'll tell my husband, Launcelot, what you say here he comes

Enter LORENZO

Lor I shall grow jealous of you shortly, Launcelot, if you thus get my wife into corners 32

Jes Nay, you need not fear us, Lorenzo Launcelot and I are out He tells me flatly, there is no mercy for me in heaven, because I am a Jew's daughter and he says you are no good member of the commonwealth, for, in converting Jews to Christians, you raise the price of pork 39

Lor I shall answer that better to the commonwealth than you can the getting up of the negro's belly the Moor is with child by you, Launcelot 43

Laun It is much that the Moor should be more than reason, but if she be less than an honest woman, she is indeed more than I took her for 47

Lor How every fool can play upon the word!
 I think the best grace of wit will shortly turn into silence, and discourse grow commendable in none only but parrots Go in, surrah bid them prepare for dinner 52

Laun That is done, sir, they have all stomachs

Lor Goodly Lord, what a wit-snapper are you! then bid them prepare dinner 56

Laun That is done too, sir, only, 'cover' is the word.

Lor Will you cover, then, sir? 59

Laun Not so, sir, neither, I know my duty

Lor Yet more quarrelling with occasion!
Wilt thou show the whole wealth of thy wit in an instant? I pray thee, understand a plain man in his plain meaning go to thy fellows, bid them cover the table, serve in the meat, and we will come in to dinner 66

Laun For the table, sir, it shall be served in, for the meat, sir, it shall be covered, for your coming in to dinner, sir, why, let it be as humours and conceits shall govern. [Exit]

Lor O dear discretion, how his words are suted!

The fool hath planted in his memory 72

An army of good words and I do know

A many fools, that stand in better place,

Garnish'd like him, that for a tricky word

Defy the matter How cheer'st thou, Jessica?

And now, good sweet, say thy opinion, 77

How dost thou like the Lord Bassanio's wife?

Jes Past all expressing It is very meet,

The Lord Bassanio live an upright life, 80

For, having such a blessing in his lady,

He finds the joys of heaven here on earth,

And if on earth he do not mean it, then

In reason he should never come to heaven 84

Why, if two gods should play some heavenly match,

And on the wager lay two earthly women,

And Portia one, there must be something else

Pawn'd with the other, for the poor rude world

Hath not her fellow

Lor Even such a husband 89

Hast thou of me as she is for a wife

Jes Nay, but ask my opinion too of that.

Lor I will anon, first, let us go to dinner 92

Jes Nay, let me praise you while I have a stomach

Lor No, pray thee, let it serve for table-talk,

Then howsoever thou speak'st, 'mong other things

I shall digest it

Jes Well, I'll set you forth [Exeunt]

ACT IV

SCENE I—Venice A Court of Justice

Enter the DUKE the Magnificoes, ANTONIO, BASSANTIO, GRATIANO, SALARINO, SALANIO, and Others

Duke What, is Antonio here?

Ant Ready, so please your Grace

Duke I am sorry for thee, thou art come to answer

A stony adversary, an inhuman wretch Uncapable of pity, void and empty 4

From any dram of mercy

Ant

I have heard

Your Grace hath ta'en great pains to qualify His rigorous course, but since he stands obdurate, 8

And that no lawful means can carry me

Out of his envy's reach, I do oppose

My patience to his fury, and am arm'd

To suffer with a quietness of spirit 12

The very tyranny and rage of his

Duke Go one, and call the Jew into the court

Salar He's ready at the door he comes,

my lord.

Enter SHYLOCK.

Duke Make room, and let him stand before our face 16

Shylock, the world thinks, and I think so too,

That thou but lead'st this fashion of thy malice

To the last hour of act, and then 'tis thought

Thou'lt show thy mercy and remorse more 20

strange

Than is thy strange-apparent cruelty,

And where thou now exact'st the penalty,—

Which is a pound of this poor merchant's flesh,—

Thou wilt not only loose the forfeiture, 24

But, touch'd with human gentleness and love,

Forgive a moiety of the principal,

Glancing an eye of pity on his losses,

That have of late so huddled on his back, 28

Enow to press a royal merchant down,

And pluck commiseration of his state

From brassy bosoms and rough hearts of flint,

From stubborn Turks and Tartars, never train'd

To offices of tender courtesy 33

We all expect a gentle answer, Jew

Shy I have possess'd your Grace of what I purpose,

And by our holy Sabbath have I sworn 36

To have the due and forfeit of my bond

If you deny it, let the danger light

Upon your charter and your city's freedom

You'll ask me, why I rather choose to have 40

A weight of carrion flesh than to receive

Three thousand ducats I'll not answer that

But say it is my humour is it answer'd?

What if my house be troubled with a rat, 44

And I be pleas'd to give ten thousand ducats

To have it ban'd? What, are you answer'd yet?

Some men there are love not a gaping pig,

Some, that are mad if they behold a cat, 48

And others, when the bagpipe sings i' the nose,

Cannot contain their urine for affection,

Mistress of passion, sways it to the mood

Of what it likes, or loathes. Now, for your

answer 52

As there is no firm reason to be render'd,

Why he cannot abide a gaping pig,

Why he, a harmless necessary cat,

Why he, a wailing bagpipe, but of force 56

Must yield to such inevitable shame

As to offend, himself being offended,

So can I give no reason, nor I will not,

More than a lodg'd hate and a certain loathing

I bear Antonio, that I follow thus 61
 A losing suit against him. Are you answer'd?
Bass This is no answer, thou unfeeling man,
 To excuse the current of thy cruelty 64 Shy I am not bound to please thee with my answer
Bass Do all men kill the things they do not
 love?
Shy Hates any man the thing he would not kill?
Bass Every offence is not a hate at first 68 Shy What! wouldst thou have a serpent sting thee twice?
Ant I pray you, think you question with the Jew
 You may as well go stand upon the beach,
 And bid the main flood bate his usual height, 72
 You may as well use question with the wolf,
 Why he hath made the ewe bleat for the lamb,
 You may as well forbid the mountain pines
 To wag their high tops, and to make no noise 76
 When they are fretted with the gusts of heaven,
 You may as well do anything most hard,
 As seek to soften that—than which what's harder?—
 His Jewish heart therefore, I do beseech you, Make no more offers, use no further means, 81
 But with all brief and plain conveyency, Let me have judgment, and the Jew his will Bass For thy three thousand ducats here is six 84
Shy If every ducat in six thousand ducats
 Were in six parts and every part a ducat,
 I would not draw them, I would have my bond Duke How shalt thou hope for mercy, rendering none? 88
Shy What judgment shall I dread, doing no
 wrong?
 You have among you many a purchas'd slave,
 Which, like your asses and your dogs and mules,
 You use in abject and in slavish parts, 92
 Because you bought them shall I say to you, Let them be free, marry them to your heirs?
 Why sweat they under burdens? let their beds
 Be made as soft as yours, and let their palates Be season'd with such viands? You will answer 97
 'The slaves are ours' so do I answer you
 The pound of flesh which I demand of him,
 Is dearly bought, 'tis mine and I will have it.
 If you deny me, fie upon your law! 101
 There is no force in the decrees of Venice
 I stand for judgment answer, shall I have it?
Duke Upon my power I may dismiss this court, 104
 Unless Bellario, a learned doctor, Whom I have sent for to determine this,
 Come here to-day
Salar My lord, here stays without A messenger with letters from the doctor, 108
 New come from Padua.
Duke Bring us the letters call the messenger Bass Good cheer, Antonio! What, man, courage yet!
 The Jew shall have my flesh, blood, bones,
 and all, 112

Ere thou shalt lose for me one drop of blood
Ant I am a tainted wether of the flock
 Meetest for death the weakest kind of fruit Drops earliest to the ground, and so let me 116
 You cannot better be employ'd, Bassanio,
 Than to live still, and write mine epitaph
Enter NERISSA, dressed like a lawyer's clerk Duke Came you from Padua, from Bellario?
Ner From both, my lord Bellario greets your Grace [Presents a letter Bass Why dost thou whet thy knife so earnestly? 121
Shy To cut the forfeiture from that bankrupt there
Gra Not on thy sole, but on thy soul, harsh Jew,
 Thou mak'st thy knife keen, but no metal can,
 No, not the hangman's axe, bear half the keen-
 ness 125
 Of thy sharp envy Can no prayers pierce thee?
Shy No, none that thou hast wit enough to make Gra O be thou damn'd, inexecrable dog! 128
 And for thy life let justice be accus'd
 Thou almost mak'st me waver in my faith
 To hold opinion with Pythagoras,
 That souls of animals infuse themselves 132
 Into the trunks of men thy currish spirit Govern'd a wolf, who, hang'd for human slaughter,
 Even from the gallows did his fell soul fleet,
 And whilst thou lay'st in thy unhallow'd dam,
 Infus'd itself in thee, for thy desires 137
 Are wolnsh, bloody, starv'd, and ravenous Shy Till thou canst rail the seal from off my bond,
 Thou but offend'st thy lungs to speak so loud
 Repair thy wit, good youth, or it will fall 142
 To cureless ruin I stand here for law Duke This letter from Bellario doth commend
 A young and learned doctor to our court 144
 Where is he?
Ner He attendeth here hard by,
 To know your answer, whether you'll admit
 him
Duke With all my heart some three or four of you 147
 Go give him courteous conduct to this place
 Meantime, the court shall hear Bellario's letter Clerk Your Grace shall understand that at the receipt of your letter I am very sick, but in the instant that your messenger came in loving visitation was with me a young doctor of Rome his name is Balthazar I acquainted him with the cause in controversy between the Jew and Antonio the merchant we turned o'er many books together he is furnished with my opinion which bettered with his own learning—the greatness whereof I cannot enough commend,—comes with him at my importunity to fill up your Grace's request in my stead I beseech you, let his lack of years be no impediment to let him lack a reverend estimation for I never knew so young a body with so old a head I leave him to your gracious acceptance whose trial shall better publish his commendation. 166

Duke You hear the learn'd Bellario, what he writes
And here, I take it, is the doctor come

Enter PORTIA, dressed like a doctor of laws Give me your hand Came you from old Bellario?

Por I did, my lord

Duke You are welcome take your place
Are you acquainted with the difference
That holds this present question in the court?

Por I am informed thoroughly of the cause
Which is the merchant here, and which the Jew?

Duke Antonio and old Shylock, both stand forth

Por Is your name Shylock?

Shy Shylock is my name 176

Por Of a strange nature is the suit you follow,

Yet in such rule that the Venetian law Cannot impugn you as you do proceed

[To ANTONIO] You stand within his danger, do you not?

Ant Ay, so he says

Por Do you confess the bond?

Ant I do

Por Then must the Jew be merciful

Shy On what compulsion must I? tell me that

Por The quality of mercy is not strain'd, 184
It droppeth as the gentle rain from heaven

Upon the place beneath it is twice bless'd, It blesseth him that gives and him that takes

'Tis mightiest in the mightiest it becomes 188
The throned monarch better than his crown

His sceptre shows the force of temporal power,
The attribute of awe and majesty

Wherein doth sit the dread and fear of kings,
But mercy is above this sceptred sway, 193

It is enthroned in the hearts of kings,
It is an attribute to God himself,

And earthly power doth then show likest God's When mercy seasons justice Therefore, Jew,

Though justice be thy plea, consider this 198
That in the course of justice none of us

Should see salvation we do pray for mercy,
And that same prayer doth teach us all to tender 201

The deeds of mercy I have spoke thus much

To mitigate the justice of thy plea,
Which if thou follow, this strict court of Venice

Must needs give sentence 'gainst the merchant there 205

Shy My deeds upon my head! I crave the law,

The penalty and forfeit of my bond Por Is he not able to discharge the money?

Bass Yes, here I tender it for him in the court, 209

Yea, twice the sum if that will not suffice,
I will be bound to pay it ten times o'er,

On forfeit of my hands, my head, my heart 212
If this will not suffice, it must appear

That malice bears down truth. And, I beseech you,

Wrest once the law to your authority
To do a great right, do a little wrong, 216
And curb this cruel devil of his will Por It must not be There is no power in Venice

Can alter a decree established
'Twill be recorded for a precedent, 220

And many an error by the same example Will rush into the state It cannot be Shy A Daniel come to judgment! yea, a Daniel!

O wise young judge how I do honour thee! 224

Por I pray you let me look upon the bond Shy Here 'tis, most reverend doctor, here

Por Shylock, there's thrice thy money offer'd thee

Shy An oath, an oath, I have an oath in heaven 228

Shall I lay perjury upon my soul?
No not for Venice

Por Why, this bond is forfeit,
And lawfully by this the Jew may claim

A pound of flesh to be by him cut off 232 Nearest the merchant's heart Be merciful

Take thrice thy money bid me tear the bond Shy When it is paid according to the tenour

It doth appear you are a worthy judge, 236
You know the law, your exposition

Hath been most sound I charge you by the law, Whereof you are a well deserving pillar,

Proceed to judgment by my soul I swear 240
There is no power in the tongue of man

To alter me I stay here on my bond Ant Most heartily I do beseech the court

To give the judgment
Por Why then, thus it is 244

You must prepare your bosom for his knife Shy O noble judge! O excellent young man!

Por For, the intent and purpose of the law Hath full relation to the penalty, 248

Which here appeareth due upon the bond Shy 'Tis very true! O wise and upright

judge!

How much more elder art thou than thy looks!

Por Therefore lay bare your bosom Shy Ay his breast

So says the bond—doth it not, noble judge?—
'Nearest his heart' those are the very words

Por It is so Are there balance here to weigh The flesh? 256

Shy I have them ready Por Have by some surgeon, Shylock, on your charge

To stop his wounds, lest he do bleed to death

Shy Is it so nominated in the bond? 260

Por It is not so express'd but what of that?
'Twere good you do so much for charity

Shy I cannot find it 'tis not in the bond Por You, merchant, have you anything to

say? 264

Ant But little I am arm'd and well prepar'd Give me your hand, Bassanio fare you well!

Grieve not that I am fallen to this for you,
For herein Fortune shows herself more kind 268
Than is her custom it is still her use

To let the wretched man outlive his wealth,
To view with hollow eye and wrinkled brow
An age of poverty, from which lingering penance

Of such a misery doth she cut me off
Commend me to your honourable wife Tell her the process of Antonio's end,
Say how I lov'd you, speak me fair in death, 276
And, when the tale is told, bid her be judge Whether Bassanio had not once a love
Repent not you that you shall lose your friend,
And he repents not that he pays your debt, 280
For it the Jew do cut but deep enough, I'll pay it instantly with all my heart

Bass. Antonio, I am married to a wife
Which is as dear to me as life itself, 284
But life itself, my wife, and all the world,
Are not with me esteem'd above thy life
I would lose all, ay, sacrifice them all,
Here to this devil, to deliver you 288

Por. Your wife would give you little thanks for that,

If she were by to hear you make the offer
Gra. I have a wife, whom, I protest, I love
I would she were in heaven, so she could 292
Entreat some power to change this curish Jew

Ner. 'Tis well you offer it behind her back,
The wish would make else an unquiet house

Shy. These be the Christian husbands! I have a daughter, 296

Would any of the stock of Barabbas
Had been her husband rather than a Christian!
We trifle time, I pray thee, pursue sentence

Por. A pound of that same merchant's flesh is thine 300

The court awards it, and the law doth give it Shy. Most rightful judge!

Por. And you must cut this flesh from off his breast

The law allows it, and the court awards it 304

Shy. Most learned judge! A sentence! come, prepare!

Por. Tarry a little there is something else
This bond doth give thee here no jot of blood,
The words expressly are 'a pound of flesh' 308
Then take thy bond, take thou thy pound of flesh,
But, in the cutting it, if thou dost shed One drop of Christian blood, thy lands and goods

Are, by the laws of Venice, confiscate 312 Unto the state of Venice

Gra. Oupright judge! Mark, Jew O learned
judge!

Shy. Is that the law?

Por. Thyself shalt see the act,
For, as thou urgest justice, be assur'd 316
Thou shalt have justice, more than thou desir'st

Gra. O learned judge! Mark, Jew a learned
judge!

Shy. I take this offer then pay the bond thrice,

And let the Christian go Bass. Here is the money 320

Por. Soft!
The Jew shall have all justice, soft! no haste —
He shall have nothing but the penalty

Gra. O Jew! an upright judge, a learned
judge! 324

Por. Therefore prepare thee to cut off the flesh.

Shed thou no blood, nor cut thou less, nor more,
But just a pound of flesh if thou tak'st more,
Or less, than a just pound, be it but so much 328
As makes it light or heavy in the substance,
Or the division of the twentieth part
Of one poor scruple, nay, if the scale do turn
But in the estimation of a hair, 332
Thou diest and all thy goods are confiscate

Gra. A second Daniel, a Daniel, Jew!

Now, infidel, I have thee on the hip

Por. Why doth the Jew pause? take thy forfeiture 336

Shy. Give me my principal, and let me go Bass. I have it ready for thee, here it is

Por. He hath refus'd it in the open court
He shall have merely justice, and his bond 340

Gra. A Daniel, still say I, a second Daniel!
I thank thee, Jew, for teaching me that word

Shy. Shall I not have barely my principal?
Por. Thou shalt have nothing but the forfeiture, 344

To be so taken at thy peril, Jew
Shy. Why, then the devil give him good of it!
I'll stay no longer question

Por. Tarry, Jew

The law hath yet another hold on you 348

It is enacted in the laws of Venice,
If it be prov'd against an alien

That by direct or indirect attempts
He seek the life of any citizen, 352

The party 'gainst the which he doth contrive Shall seize one half his goods, the other half

Comes to the privy coffer of the state,
And the offender's life lies in the mercy 350

Of the duke only, 'gainst all other voice
In which predicament, I say, thou stand'st,

For it appears by manifest proceeding,
That indirectly and directly too 360

Thou hast contriv'd against the very life
Of the defendant, and thou hast incur'd
The danger formerly by me rehears'd

Down therefore and beg mercy of the duke 364

Gra. Beg that thou mayst have leave to hang thyself

And yet, thy wealth being forfeit to the state,
Thou hast not left the value of a cord,

Therefore thou must be hang'd at the state's charge 368

Duke. That thou shalt see the difference of our spirits,

I pardon thee thy life before thou ask it.
For half thy wealth, it is Antonio's,

The other half comes to the general state, 372
Which humbleness may drive into a fine

Por. Ay, for the state, not for Antonio Shy. Nay, take my life and all, pardon not
that

You take my house when you do take the prop
That doth sustain my house, you take my life

When you do take the means whereby I live Por. What mercy can you render him, Antonio?

Gra A halter gratis, nothing else, for God's sake!
Ant So please my lord the duke, and all the court,

To quit the fine for one half of his goods,
 I am content, so he will let me have
 The other half in use, to render it, Upon his death, unto the gentleman
 That lately stole his daughter
 Two things provided more, that, for this favour,
 He presently become a Christian,
 The other, that he do record a gift,
 Here in the court, of all he dies possess'd,
 Unto his son Lorenzo and his daughter

Duke He shall do this, or else I do recant
 The pardon that I late pronounced here
Por Art thou contented, Jew? what dost thou say?

Shy I am content

Por Clerk, draw a deed of gift

Shy I pray you give me leave to go from hence I am not well Send the deed after me,
 And I will sign it

Duke Get thee gone, but do it

Gra In christening thou shalt have two god-fathers, Had I been judge, thou shouldst have had ten more,
 To bring thee to the gallows, not the font

[Exit SHYLOCK]
Duke Sir, I entreat you home with me to dinner

Por I humbly do desire your Grace of pardon
 I must away this night toward Padua,
 And it is meet I presently set forth

Duke I am sorry that your leisure serves you not Antonio, gratify this gentleman,

 For, in my mind, you are much bound to him

[Exit DUKE, MAGNIFICOS, and TRAM]
Bass Most worthy gentleman land my friend
 Have by your wisdom been this day acquitted
 Of grievous penalties in lieu whereof,
 Three thousand ducats, due unto the Jew,
 We freely cope your courteous pains withal

Ant And stand indebted, over and above,
 In love and service to you evermore

Por He is well paid that is well satisfied,
 And I, delivering you, am satisfied,
 And therein do account myself well paid
 My mind was never yet more mercenary
 I pray you, know me when we meet again
 I wish you well, and so I take my leave

Bass Dear sir, of force I must attempt you further

Take some remembrance of us, as a tribute,
 Not as a fee Grant me two things, I pray you,
 Not to deny me, and to pardon me

Por You press me far, and therefore I will yield

[To ANT] Give me your gloves, I'll wear them for your sake,

[To BASS] And, for your love, I'll take this ring from you Do not draw back your hand, I'll take no more,

 And you in love shall not deny me this

Bass This ring, good sir? alas! it is a trifle, I will not shame myself to give you this

Por I will have nothing else but only this,
 And now methinks I have a mind to it

Bass There's more depends on this than on the value

The dearest ring in Venice will I give you,
 And find it out by proclamation

Only for this, I pray you, pardon me
Por I see, sir you are liberal in offers

You taught me first to beg, and now methinks
 You teach me how a beggar should be answer'd

Bass Good sir, this ring was given me by my wife,
 And, when she put it on, she made me vow

That I should never sell nor give nor lose it

Por That 'scuse serves many men to save their gifts

An if your wife be not a mad-woman,
 And know how well I have deserv'd the ring,
 She would not hold out enemy for ever,
 For giving it to me Well, peace be with you

[Exit PORTIA and NERISSA]
Ant My Lord Bassanio, let him have the ring

Let his deservings and my love withal
 Bevalu'd 'gainst your wife's commandment

Bass Go, Gratiano, run and overtake him,
 Give him the ring, and bring him, if thou canst, Unto Antonio's house Away! make haste

[Exit GRATIANO]
 Come, you and I will thither presently,
 And in the morning early will we both

Fly toward Belmont Come, Antonio [Exit]

SCENE II—The Same A Street

Enter PORTIA and NERISSA

Por Inquire the Jew's house out, give him this deed,

And let him sign it We'll away to-night,
 And be a day before our husbands home

This deed will be well welcome to Lorenzo

Enter GRATIANO

Gra Fair sir, you are well o'erta'en.
 My Lord Bassanio upon more advice

Hath sent you here this ring, and doth entreat
 Your company at dinner

Por That cannot be
 His ring I do accept most thankfully,

And so, I pray you, tell him furthermore,
 I pray you, show my youth old Shylock's house

Gra That will I do
Ner Sir, I would speak with you

[Aside to PORTIA] I'll see if I can get my husband's ring,

Which I did make him swear to keep for ever

Por Thou mayst, I warrant. We shall have old swearing

That they did give the rings away to men,
 But we'll outface them, and outswear them too

Away! make haste thou know'st where I will tarry Ner Come, good sir, will you show me to this house? [Exeunt]

ACT V

SCENE I — Belmont The Avenue to PORTIA'S House

Enter LORENZO and JESSICA

Lor The moon shines bright in such a night as this,
When the sweet wind did gently kiss the trees
And they did make no noise, in such a night
Troilus methinks mounted the Trojan walls, 4
And sigh'd his soul toward the Grecian tents, Where Cressid lay that night

Jes In such a night
Did Thisbe fearfully o'ertrip the dew,
And saw the lion's shadow ere himself, 8
And ran dismay'd away

Lor In such a night
Stood Dido with a willow in her hand Upon the wild sea-banks, and waft her love
To come again to Carthage

Jes In such a night 12
Medea gather'd the enchanted herbs
That did renew old Æson.

Lor In such a night
Did Jessica steal from the wealthy Jew
And with an unthrift love did run from Venice,
As far as Belmont

Jes In such a night 17
Did young Lorenzo swear he lov'd her well, Stealing her soul with many vows of faith,
And ne'er a true one

Lor In such a night 20
Did pretty Jessica, like a little shrew, Slander her love, and he forgave it her

Jes I would out-night you, did no body come,
But, hark! I hear the footing of a man 24

Enter STEPHANO

Lor Who comes so fast in silence of the night?

Steph A friend

Lor A friend! what friend? your name, I pray you, friend

Steph Stephano is my name, and I bring
word 28

My mistress will before the break of day
Be here at Belmont she doth stray about By holy crosses where she kneels and prays For happy wedlock hours

Lor Who comes with her? 32
Steph None, but a holy hermit and her maid
I pray you, is my master yet return'd?

Lor He is not, nor we have not heard from
him

But go we in, I pray thee, Jessica, 36
And ceremoniously let us prepare
Some welcome for the mistress of the house.

Enter LAUNCELOT

Laun Sola, sola! wo ha, ho! sola, sola!

Lor Who calls? 40

Laun Sola! did you see Master Lorenzo?
Master Lorenzo! sola, sola!

Lor Leave hollaing, man, here

Laun Sola! where? where? 44

Lor Here

Laun Tell him there's a post come from my master, with his horn full of good news my master will be here ere morning [Exit]

Lor Sweet soul, let's in, and there expect their coming 49

And yet no matter, why should we go in?
My friend Stephano, signify, I pray you,
Within the house, your mistress is at hand, 52
And bring your music forth into the air

[Exit STEPHANO]

How sweet the moonlight sleeps upon this bank!
Here will we sit, and let the sounds of music
Creep in our ears soft stillness and the night 56
Become the touches of sweet harmony

Sit, Jessica look, how the floor of heaven
Is thick inlaid with patines of bright gold There's not the smallest orb which thou be-hold'st

But in his motion like an angel sings, 61
Still quining to the young-eyed cherubins,
Such harmony is in immortal souls,
But, whilst this muddy vesture of decay 64
Doth grossly close it in, we cannot hear it.

Enter Musicians

Come, ho! and wake Diana with a hymn
With sweetest touches pierce your mistress' ear,
And draw her home with music [Music]

Jes I am never merry when I hear sweet music 69

Lor The reason is, your spirits are attentive
For do but note a wild and wanton herd,
Or race of youthful and unhandled colts, 72 Fetching mad bounds, bellowing and neighing loud,

Which is the hot condition of their blood,
If they but hear perchance a trumpet sound,
Or any air of music touch their ears, 76
You shall perceive them make a mutual stand,
Their savage eyes turn'd to a modest gaze
By the sweet power of music therefore the poet Did feign that Orpheus drew trees, stones, and floods, 80

Since nought so stockish, hard, and full of rage,
But music for the time doth change his nature
The man that hath no music in himself,
Nor is not mov'd with concord of sweet sounds,
Is fit for treasons, stratagems, and spoils, 85
The motions of his spirit are dull as night,
And his affections dark as Erebus
Let no such man be trusted Mark the music.

Enter PORTIA and NERISSA, at a distance

Por That light we see is burning in my hall
How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world

Ner When the moon shone, we did not see the candle 92

Por So doth the greater glory dim the less
A substitute shines brightly as a king
Until a king be by, and then his state

Empties itself, as doth an inland brook
Into the main of waters Music! hark!

Ner It is your music, madam, of the house
Por Nothing is good, I see, without respect Methinks it sounds much sweeter than by day

Ner Silence bestows that virtue on it, madam Por The crow doth sing as sweetly as the lark
When neither is attended, and I think

The nightingale, if she should sing by day,
When every goose is cackling, would be thought
No better a musician than the wren

How many things by season season'd are
To their right praise and true perfection!
Peace, ho! the moon sleeps with Endymion,
And would not be awak'd!

[Music ceases]
Lor That is the voice,
Or I am much deceiv'd, of Portia

Por He knows me, as the blind man knows the cuckoo,
By the bad voice

Lor Dear lady, welcome home Por We have been praying for our husbands' welfare,

Which speed, we hope, the better for our words
Are they return'd?

Lor Madam, they are not yet,
But there is come a messenger before,
To signify their coming

Por Go in, Nerissa
Give order to my servants that they take
No note at all of our being absent hence, Nor you, Lorenzo, Jessica, nor you

[A tucket sounds] Lor Your husband is at hand, I hear his trumpet

We are no tell-tales, madam, fear you not Por This night methinks is but the daylight sick,

It looks a little paler 'tis a day,
Such as the day is when the sun is hid

Enter BASSANTIO, ANTONIO, GRATIANO, and their Followers

Bass We should hold day with the Antipodes,
If you would walk in absence of the sun

Por Let me give light, but let me not be light,
For a light wife doth make a heavy husband,
And never be Bassanio so for me

But God sort all! You are welcome home, my
lord

Bass I thank you, madam. Give welcome to my friend

This is the man, this is Antonio,
To whom I am so infinitely bound

Por You should in all sense be much bound to him,

For, as I hear, he was much bound for you.

Ant No more than I am well acquainted of Por Sir, you are very welcome to our house
It must appear in other ways than words,
Therefore I scant this breathing courtesy

Gra [To NERISSA] By yonder moon I swear you do me wrong,

In faith, I gave it to the judge's clerk
Would he were gelt that had it, for my part,
Since you do take it, love, so much at heart.

Por Aquarrel, ho, already! what's the matter?

Gra About a hoop of gold, a paltry ring That she did give me, whose poesy was

For all the world like cutlers' poetry
Upon a knife, 'Love me, and leave me not.'

Ner What talk you of the poesy, or the value?
You swore to me, when I did give it you,

That you would wear it till your hour of death,
And that it should lie with you in your grave
Though not for me, yet for your vehement oaths, You should have been respectful and have kept

it

Gave it a judge's clerk! no, God's my judge, The clerk will ne'er wear hair on's face that had it

Gra He will, an if he live to be a man.
Ner Ay, if a woman live to be a man

Gra Now, by this hand, I gave it to a youth,
A kind of boy, a little scrubbed boy,
No higher than thyself, the judge's clerk

A prating boy, that begg'd it as a fee
I could not for my heart deny it him

Por You were to blame,—I must be plain
with you,—

To part so slightly with your wife's first gift,
A thing stuck on with oaths upon your finger,
And riveted so with faith unto your flesh

I gave my love a ring and made him swear
Never to part with it, and here he stands,
I dare be sworn for him he would not leave it

Nor pluck it from his finger for the wealth
That the world masters Now, in faith, Gratiano,

You give your wife too unkind a cause of grief
An 'twere to me, I should be mad at it

Bass [Aside] Why, I were best to cut my left hand off,

And swear I lost the ring defending it

Gra My Lord Bassanio gave his ring away
Unto the judge that begg'd it, and indeed

Deserv'd it too, and then the boy, his clerk,
That took some pains in writing, he begg'd

mine,
And neither man nor master would take aught
But the two rings

Por What ring gave you, my lord?

Not that, I hope, that you receiv'd of me
Bass If I could add a lie unto a fault,

I would deny it, but you see my finger Hath not the ring upon it, it is gone

Por Even so void is your false heart of truth.
By heaven, I will ne'er come in your bed Until I see the ring

Ner Nor I in yours,
Till I again see mine

Bass Sweet Portia,

If you did know to whom I gave the ring,
If you did know for whom I gave the ring,

And would conceive for what I gave the ring,
And how unwillingly I left the ring,

When naught would be accepted but the ring,
You would abate the strength of your dis-

pleasure
Por If you had known the virtue of the ring,
Or half her worthiness that gave the ring,
Or your own honour to contain the ring,

You would not then have parted with the ring
What man is there so much unreasonable,
If you had pleas'd to have defended it 204
With any terms of zeal, wanted the modesty
To urge the thing held as a ceremony?
Nerissa teaches me what to believe

I'll die for't but some woman had the ring 208
Bass No, by my honour, madam, by my soul,
No woman had it, but a civil doctor,
Which did refuse three thousand ducats of me,
And begg'd the ring, the which I did deny him,
And suffer'd him to go displeas'd away, 213
Even he that did uphold the very life
Of my dear friend What should I say, sweet
lady?

I was enforc'd to send it after him, 216
I was beset with shame and courtesy,
My honour would not let ingratitude
So much besmear it Pardon me, good lady,
For, by these blessed candles of the night, 220 Had you been there, I think you would have begg'd

The ring of me to give the worthy doctor

Por Let not that doctor e'er come near my
house

Since he hath got the jewel that I lov'd, 224
And that which you did swear to keep for me,
I will become as liberal as you,
I'll not deny him anything I have,
No, not my body, nor my husband's bed 228
Know him I shall, I am well sure of it Lie not a night from home, watch me like Argus
If you do not, if I be left alone,
Now by mine honour, which is yet mine own, 232
I'll have that doctor for my bedfellow

Ner And I his clerk, therefore be well advis'd

How you do leave me to mine own protection Gra Well, do you so let me not take him,
then, 236

For if I do, I'll mar the young clerk's pen

Ant I am the unhappy subject of these quarrels

Por Sir, grieve not you, you are welcome notwithstanding

Bass Portia, forgive me this enforced wrong,
And in the hearing of these many friends, 241
I swear to thee, even by thine own fair eyes, Wherein I see myself,—

Por Mark you but that!
In both my eyes he doubly sees himself, 244
In each eye, one swear by your double self,
And there's an oath of credit

Bass Nay, but hear me
Pardon this fault, and by my soul I swear
I never more will break an oath with thee 248

Ant I once did lend my body for his wealth, Which, but for him that had your husband's ring,

Had quite miscarried I dare be bound again,
My soul upon the forfeit, that your lord 252
Will never more break faith advisedly

Por Then you shall be his surety Give him
this,

And bid him keep it better than the other.

Ant Here, Lord Bassanio, swear to keep this ring 256

Bass By heaven! it is the same I gave the doctor!

Por I had it of him pardon me, Bassanio,
For, by this ring, the doctor lay with me 259

Ner And pardon me, my gentle Gratiano,
For that same scrubbed boy, the doctor's clerk,
In lieu of this last night did lie with me

Gra Why, this is like the mending of highways

In summer, where the ways are fair enough 264
What! are we cuckolds ere we have deserv'd it?

Por Speak not so grossly You are all amaz'd

Here is a letter, read it at your leisure,
It comes from Padua, from Bellario 268

There you shall find that Portia was the doctor, Nerissa, there, her clerk Lorenzo here
Shall witness I set forth as soon as you
And even but now return'd, I have not yet 272
Enter'd my house Antonio, you are welcome,
And I have better news in store for you
Than you expect unseal this letter soon,
There you shall find three of your argosies 276
Are richly come to harbour suddenly
You shall not know by what strange accident
I chanced on this letter

Ant I am dumb

Bass Were you the doctor and I knew you
not? 280

Gra Were you the clerk that is to make me cuckold?

Ner Ay, but the clerk that never means to do it,

Unless he live until he be a man

Bass Sweet doctor, you shall be my bedfellow 284

When I am absent, then, he with my wife

Ant Sweet lady, you have given me life and living,

For here I read for certain that my ships Are safely come to road

Por How now, Lorenzo! 288
My clerk hath some good comforts too for you.

Ner Ay, and I'll give them him without a fee

There do I give to you and Jessica,
From the rich Jew, a special deed of gift, 292 After his death, of all he dies possess'd of Lor Fair ladies, you drop manna in the way

Of starved people

Por It is almost morning,
And yet I am sure you are not satisfied 296

Of these events at full Let us go in,
And charge us there upon inter'gatories,
And we will answer all things faithfully

Gra Let it be so the first inter'gatory 300
That my Nerissa shall be sworn on is,

Wher'till the next night she had rather stay,
Or go to bed now, being two hours to day
But were the day come, I should wish it dark,

That I were couching with the doctor's clerk.
Well, while I live I'll fear no other thing 306
So sore as keeping safe Nerissa's ring [Exeunt

ACT I

SCENE I—An Orchard near OLIVER'S House

Enter ORLANDO and ADAM

Orl As I remember, Adam, it was upon this fashion bequeathed me by will but poor a thousand crowns, and, as thou sayest, charged my brother on his blessing, to breed me well and there begins my sadness My brother Jaques he keeps at school, and report speaks goldenly of his profit for my part, he keeps me rustically at home, or, to speak more properly, stays me here at home unkept, for call you that keeping for a gentleman of my birth, that differs not from the stalling of an ox? His horses are bred better, for, besides that they are fair with their feeding, they are taught their manage, and to that end riders dearly hired but I, his brother, gain nothing under him but growth, for the which his animals on his dunghills are as much bound to him as I Besides this nothing that he so plentifully gives me the something that nature gave me, his countenance seems to take from me he lets me feed with his hinds, bars me the place of a brother, and, as much as in him lies, mines my gentility with my education This is it Adam, that grieves me, and the spirit of my father, which I think is within me begins to munny against this servitude I will no longer endure it, though yet I know no wise remedy how to avoid it 27

Adam Yonder comes my master, your brother Orl Go apart, Adam, and thou shalt hear how he will shake me up

Enter OLIVER

Ol Now, sir! what make you here? 31
 Orl Nothing I am not taught to make anything Ol What mar you then, sir?
 Orl Marry, sir, I am helping you to mar that which God made, a poor unworthy brother of yours, with idleness 37

Ol Marry, sir, be better employed, and be naught awhile

Orl Shall I keep your hogs, and eat husks with them? What prodigal portion have I spent, that I should come to such penury?

Ol Know you where you are, sir?

Orl O! sir, very well here in your orchard

Ol Know you before whom, sir? 45

Orl Ay, better than he I am before knows me I know you are my eldest brother, and, in the gentle condition of blood, you should so know me The courtesy of nations allows you my better, in that you are the first-born, but the same tradition takes not away my blood, were there twenty brothers betwixt us I have as much of my father in me as you, albeit, I confess, your coming before me is nearer to his reverence

Ol What, boy! 56

Orl Come, come, elder brother, you are too young in this

Ol Wilt thou lay hands on me, villain? 59

Orl I am no villain, I am the youngest son of Sir Rowland de Boys, he was my father, and he is thrice a villain that says such a father begot villains Wert thou not my brother, I would not take this hand from thy throat till this other had pulled out thy tongue for saying so thou hast railed on thyself 66

Adam [Coming forward] Sweet masters, be patient for your father's remembrance, be at accord

Ol Let me go, I say 70

Orl I will not, till I please you shall hear me My father charged you in his will to give me good education you have trained me like a peasant, obscuring and hiding from me all gentleman-like qualities The spirit of my father grows strong in me, and I will no longer endure it, therefore allow me such exercises as may become a gentleman, or give me the poor allottery my father left me by testament, with that I will go buy my fortunes 80

Ol. And what wilt thou do? beg, when that is spent? Well, sir, get you in. I will not long be troubled with you, you shall have some part of your will. I pray you, leave me. 84

Orl. I will not further offend you than becomes me for my good.

Ol. Get you with him, you old dog.

Adam. Is 'old dog' my reward? Most true, I have lost my teeth in your service. God be with my old master! he would not have spoke such a word. [Exeunt ORLANDO and ADAM]

Ol. Is it even so? begin you to grow upon me? I will physic your rankness, and yet give no thousand crowns neither. Holla, Dennis!

Enter DENNIS

Den. Calls your worship? 95

Ol. Was not Charles the duke's wrestler here to speak with me?

Den. So please you, he is here at the door, and importunes access to you. 99

Ol. Call him in. [Exit DENNIS] 'Twill be a good way, and to-morrow the wrestling is

Enter CHARLES

Cha. Good-morrow to your worship. 102

Ol. Good Monsieur Charles, what's the new news at the new court?

Cha. There's no news at the court, sir, but the old news: that is, the old duke is banished by his younger brother the new duke, and three or four loving lords have put themselves into voluntary exile with him, whose lands and revenues enrich the new duke, therefore he gives them good leave to wander. 111

Ol. Can you tell if Rosalind the duke's daughter, be banished with her father?

Cha. O, no, for the duke's daughter, her cousin, so loves her—being ever from their cradles bred together—that she would have followed her exile, or have died to stay behind her. She is at the court, and no less beloved of her uncle than his own daughter, and never two ladies loved as they do. 120

Ol. Where will the old duke live?

Cha. They say he is already in the forest of Arden, and a many merry men with him, and there they live like the old Robin Hood of England. They say many young gentlemen flock to him every day, and fleet the time carelessly, as they did in the golden world.

Ol. What, you wrestle to-morrow before the new duke? 129

Cha. Marry, do I, sir, and I came to acquaint you with a matter. I am given, sir, secretly to understand that your younger brother Orlando hath a disposition to come in disguised against me to try a fall. To-morrow, sir, I wrestle for my credit, and he that escapes me without some broken limb shall acquit him well. Your brother is but young and tender; and, for your love, I would be loath to foil him as I must, for my own honour, if he come in therefore, out of my love to you, I came hither to acquaint you withal, that either you might stay him from his intentment, or brook such disgrace well as he shall run into in that it is a thing of his own search and altogether against my will. 144

Ol. Charles, I thank thee for thy love to me, which thou shalt find I will most kindly requite. I had myself notice of my brother's purpose herein, and have by underhand means laboured to dissuade him from it, but he is resolute. I'll tell thee, Charles, it is the stubbornest young fellow of France, full of ambition, an envious emulator of every man's good parts, a secret and villanous contriver against me his natural brother: therefore use thy discretion. I had as lief thou didst break his neck as his finger. And thou wert best look to it, for if thou dost him any slight disgrace, or if he do not mightily grace himself on thee, he will practise against thee by poison, entrap thee by some treacherous device, and never leave thee till he hath taken thy life by some indirect means or other, for, I assure thee,—and almost with tears I speak it,—there is not one so young and so villanous this day living. I speak but brotherly of him, but should I anatomize him to thee as he is, I must blush and weep, and thou must look pale and wonder. 167

Cha. I am heartily glad I came hither to you. If he come to-morrow, I'll give him his payment if ever he go alone again, I'll never wrestle for prize more, and so God keep your worship! [Exit]

Ol. Farewell good Charles. Now will I stir this gamester. I hope I shall see an end of him, for my soul, yet I know not why, hates nothing more than he. Yet he's gentle, never schooled, and yet learned, full of noble device, of all sorts enchantingly beloved, and, indeed so much in the heart of the world, and especially of my own people, who best know him, that I am altogether misprised. But it shall not be so long, this wrestler shall clear all, nothing remains but that I kindle the boy thither, which now I'll go about.

SCENE II.—A Lawn before the DUKE'S Palace

Enter ROSALIND and CELIA

Cel. I pray thee, Rosalind, sweet my coz, be merry.

Ros. Dear Celia, I show more mirth than I am mistress of, and would you yet I were merrier? Unless you could teach me to forget a banished father, you must not learn me how to remember any extraordinary pleasure. 7

Cel. Herein I see thou lovest me not with the full weight that I love thee. If my uncle, thy banished father, had banished thy uncle, the duke my father, so thou hadst been still with me, I could have taught my love to take thy father for mine: so wouldst thou, if the truth of thy love to me were so righteously tempered as mine is to thee. 15

Ros. Well, I will forget the condition of my estate to rejoice in yours.

Cel. You know my father hath no child but I, nor none is like to have, and, truly, when he dies, thou shalt be his heir for what he hath taken away from thy father perforce, I will render thee again in affection, by mine honour, I will, and when I break that oath, let me turn monster Therefore, my sweet Rose, my dear Rose, be merry 25

Ros From henceforth I will coze, and devise sports Let me see, what think you of falling in love? 28

Cel Marry, I prithee, do, to make sport withal but love no man in good earnest, nor no further in sport neither, than with safety of a pure blush thou mayst in honour come off again 33

Ros What shall be our sport then?

Cel Let us sit and mock the good housewife Fortune from her wheel, that her gifts may henceforth be bestowed equally 37

Ros I would we could do so, for her benefits are mightily misplaced, and the bountiful blind woman doth most mistake in her gifts to women

Cel 'Tis true, for those that she makes fair she scarce makes honest, and those that she makes honest she makes very ill-favour'dly 43

Ros Nay, now thou goest from Fortune's office to Nature's Fortune reigns in gifts of the world, not in the lineaments of Nature

Enter TOUCHSTONE

Cel No? when Nature hath made a fair creature, may she not by Fortune fall into the fire? Though Nature hath given us wit to flout at Fortune, hath not Fortune sent in this fool to cut off the argument? 51

Ros Indeed, there is Fortune too hard for Nature, when Fortune makes Nature's natural the cutter-off of Nature's wit

Cel Peradventure this is not Fortune's work neither, but Nature's, who, perceiving our natural wits too dull to reason of such goddesses, hath sent this natural for our whetstone for always the dulness of the fool is the whetstone of the wits How now, wit! whither wander you? 61

Touch Mistress, you must come away to your father

Cel Were you made the messenger?

Touch No, by mine honour, but I was bid to come for you 66

Ros Where learned you that oath, fool?

Touch Of a certain knight that swore by his honour they were good pancakes, and swore by his honour the mustard was naught now, I'll stand to it, the pancakes were naught and the mustard was good, and yet was not the knight forsworn 73

Cel How prove you that, in the great heap of your knowledge?

Ros Ay, marry now unmuzzle your wisdom

Touch Stand you both forth now stroke your chins, and swear by your beards that I am a knave 79

Cel By our beards, if we had them, thou art

Touch By my knavery, if I had it, then I were, but if you swear by that that is not, you are not forsworn no more was this knight, swearing by his honour, for he never had any, or if he had, he had sworn it away before ever he saw those pancakes or that mustard 86

Cel Prithee, who is't that thou meanest?

Touch One that old Frederick, your father, loves

Cel My father's love is enough to honour him Enough! speak no more of him, you'll be whipped for taxation one of these days 92

Touch The more pity, that fools may not speak wisely what wise men do foolishly

Cel By my troth, thou sayest true, for since the little wit that fools have was silenced, the little foolery that wise men have makes a great show Here comes Monsieur Le Beau 98

Ros With his mouth full of news

Cel Which he will put on us, as pigeons feed their young

Ros Then we shall be news-cramm'd

Cel All the better, we shall be more marketable 104

Enter LE BEAU

Bon jour, Monsieur Le Beau what's the news?

Le Beau Fair princess, you have lost much good sport

Cel Sport! Of what colour? 108

Le Beau What colour, madam! How shall I answer you?

Ros As wit and fortune will Touch Or as the Destinies decree 112

Cel Well said that was laid on with a trowel

Touch Nay, if I keep not my rank,—

Ros Thou lovest thy old smell

Le Beau You amaze me, ladies I would have told you of good wrestling, which you have lost the sight of 118

Ros Yet tell us the manner of the wrestling

Le Beau I will tell you the beginning, and, if it please your ladyships, you may see the end, for the best is yet to do, and here, where you are, they are coming to perform it 123

Cel Well, the beginning, that is dead and buried

Le Beau There comes an old man and his three sons,— 127

Cel I could match this beginning with an old tale

Le Beau Three proper young men, of excellent growth and presence,—

Ros With bills on their necks, 'Be it known unto all men by these presents' 133

Le Beau The eldest of the three wrestled with Charles, the duke's wrestler which Charles in a moment threw him and broke three of his ribs, that there is little hope of life in him so he served the second, and so the third Yonder they lie, the poor old man, their father, making such pitiful dole over them that all the beholders take his part with weeping 141

Ros Alas!

Touch But what is the sport, monsieur, that the ladies have lost? 144

Le Beau Why, this that I speak of Touch Thus men may grow wiser every day it is the first time that ever I heard breaking of ribs was sport for ladies 148

Cel Or I, I promise thee

Ros But is there any else longs to feel thus broken music in his sides? is there yet another dotes upon rib-breaking? Shall we see this wrestling, cousin? 153

Le Beau You must, if you stay here, for here is the place appointed for the wrestling, and they are ready to perform it 156

Cel Yonder, sure, they are coming let us now stay and see it

Flourish Enter DUKE FREDERICK, Lords, ORLANDO, CHARLES, and Attendants

Duke F Come on since the youth will not be entreated, his own peril on his forwardness 161

Ros Is yonder the man?

Le Beau Even he, madam

Cel Alas! he is too young yet he looks successfully 165

Duke F How now, daughter and cousin! are you crept hither to see the wrestling?

Ros Ay, my liege, so please you give us leave 169

Duke F You will take little delight in it, I can tell you, there is such odds in the man in pity of the challenger's youth I would fain dissuade him, but he will not be entreated Speak to him, ladies, see if you can move him

Cel Call him hither, good Monsieur Le Beau

Duke F Do so I'll not be by 176

[DUKE goes apart]

Le Beau Monsieur the challenger, the princess calls for you

Orl I attend them with all respect and duty

Ros Young man, have you challenged Charles the wrestler? 181

Orl No, fair princess, he is the general challenger I come but in, as others do, to try with him the strength of my youth 184

Cel Young gentleman, your spirits are too bold for your years You have seen cruel proof of this man's strength if you saw yourself with your eyes or knew yourself with your judgment, the fear of your adventure would counsel you to a more equal enterprise We pray you, for your own sake, to embrace your own safety and give over this attempt. 192

Ros Do, young sir your reputation shall not therefore be misprised We will make it our suit to the duke that the wrestling might not go forward 196

Orl I beseech you, punish me not with your hard thoughts, wherein I confess me much guilty, to deny so fair and excellent ladies anything. But let your fair eyes and gentle wishes go with me to my trial wherein if I be foiled, there is but one shamed that was never gracious, if killed, but one dead that is willing to be so I shall do my friends no wrong, for I have none to lament me, the world no injury, for in it I have nothing, only in the world I fill up a place, which may be better supplied when I have made it empty 208

Ros The little strength that I have, I would it were with you

Cel And mine, to eke out hers

Ros Fare you well Pray heaven I be deceived in you! 213

Cel Your heart's desires be with you!

Cha Come, where is this young gallant that is so desirous to lie with his mother earth? 216

Orl Ready, sir, but his will hath in it a more modest working

Duke F You shall try but one fall 219

Cha No, I warrant your Grace, you shall not entreat him to a second, that have so mightily persuaded him from a first

Orl You mean to mock me after, you should not have mocked me before but come your ways 223

Ros Now Hercules be thy speed, young man!

Cel I would I were invisible, to catch the strong fellow by the leg 228

[CHARLES and ORLANDO wrestle]

Ros O excellent young man!

Cel If I had a thunderbolt in mine eye, I can tell who should down

[CHARLES is thrown Shout]

Duke F No more, no more 232

Orl Yes, I beseech your Grace I am not yet well breathed Duke F How dost thou, Charles?

Le Beau He cannot speak, my lord 236

Duke F Bear him away What is thy name, young man? [CHARLES is borne out]

Orl Orlando, my liege, the youngest son of Sir Rowland de Boys 240

Duke F I would thou hadst been son to some man else

The world esteem'd thy father honourable, But I did find him still mine enemy Thou shouldst have better pleas'd me with this deed, 244

Hadst thou descended from another house But fare thee well, thou art a gallant youth

I would thou hadst told me of another father [Exeunt DUKE FREDERICK, Train, and LE BEAU]

Cel Were I my father, coz, would I do this?

Orl I am more proud to be Sir Rowland's son, 249

His youngest son, and would not change that calling,

To be adopted heir to Frederick

Ros My father lov'd Sir Rowland as his soul, And all the world was of my father's mind 253

Had I before known this young man his son, I should have given him tears unto entreaties, Ere he should thus have ventur'd

Cel Gentle cousin, 256

Let us go thank him and encourage him My father's rough and envious disposition

Sticks me at heart Sir, you have well deserv'd If you do keep your promises in love 260

But justly, as you have exceeded all promise, Your mistress shall be happy

Ros Gentleman,

[Giving him a chain from her neck] Wear this for me, one out of suits with fortune

That could give more, but that her hand lacks means 264

Shall we go, coz?

Cel Ay Fare you well, fair gentleman

Orl Can I not say, I thank you? My better parts

Are all thrown down, and that which here stands up

Is but a quintain, a mere lifeless block 268

Ros He calls us back my pride fell with my fortunes,

I'll ask him what he would Did you call, sir?

Sir, you have wrestled well, and overthrown

More than your enemies

Cel Will you go, coz? 272

Ros Have with you. Fare you well

[Exeunt ROSALIND and CELIA]

Orl What passion hangs these weights upon my tongue?

I cannot speak to her, yet she urg'd conference

O poor Orlando, thou art overthrown! 276

Or Charles or something weaker masters thee

Re-enter LE BEAU

Le Beau Good sir, I do in friendship counsel
you

To leave this place Albeit you have deserv'd

High commendation, true applause and love,

Yet such is now the duke's condition 281

That he misconstrues all that you have done

The duke is humorous what he is indeed,

More suits you to conceive than I to speak of Orl I thank you, sir, and pray you, tell me

this, 285

Which of the two was daughter of the duke,

That here was at the wrestling?

Le Beau Neither his daughter, if we judge

by manners 288

But yet, indeed the smaller is his daughter

The other is daughter to the banish'd duke,

And here detain'd by her usurping uncle,

To keep his daughter company, whose loves 292

Are dearer than the natural bond of sisters

But I can tell you that of late this duke

Hath ta'en displeasure 'gainst his gentle niece,

Grounded upon no other argument 296

But that the people praise her for her virtues,

And pity her for her good father's sake

And, on my life, his malice 'gainst the lady

Will suddenly break forth Sir, fare you well

Hereafter, in a better world than this, 301

I shall all desire more love and knowledge of you

Orl I rest much bounden to you fare you well [Exit LE BEAU]

Thus must I from the smoke into the smother,

From tyrant duke unto a tyrant brother 305

But heavenly Rosalind! [Exit]

SCENE III —A Room in the Palace

Enter CELIA and ROSALIND

Cel Why, cousin! why, Rosalind! Cupid have mercy! Not a word?

Ros Not one to throw at a dog

Cel No, thy words are too precious to be cast away upon curs, throw some of them at me, come, lame me with reasons

Ros Then there were two cousins laid up, when the one should be lamed with reasons and the other mad without any 9

Cel But is all this for your father?

Ros No, some of it is for my child's father

O, how full of briers is this working-day world!

Cel They are but burrs, cousin, thrown upon thee in holiday foolery if we walk not in the trodden paths, our very petticoats will catch

them 16

Ros I could shake them off my coat these burrs are in my heart

Cel Hem them away

Ros I would try, if I could cry 'hem,' and have him 21

Cel Come, come, wrestle with thy affections

Ros O! they take the part of a better wrestler than myself! 24

Cel O, a good wish upon you! you will try in time, in despite of a fall But, turning these jests out of service, let us talk in good earnest is it possible, on such a sudden, you should fall into so strong a liking with old Sir Rowland's youngest son? 26

Ros The duke my father loved his father

dearly 32

Cel Doth it therefore ensue that you should love his son dearly? By this kind of chase, I should hate him, for my father hated his father dearly, yet I hate not Orlando 36

Ros No, faith, hate him not, for my sake

Cel Why should I not? doth he not deserve
well? 42

Ros Let me love him for that, and do you love him, because I do Look, here comes the duke 42

Cel With his eyes full of anger

Enter DUKE FREDERICK, with Lords

Duke F Mistress, dispatch you with your safest haste, 44

And get you from our court

Ros Me, uncle?

Duke F You, cousin

Within these ten days if that thou be'st found

So near our public court as twenty miles,

Thou diest for it

Ros I do beseech your Grace, 48

Let me the knowledge of my fault bear with me,

If with myself I hold intelligence,

Or have acquaintance with mine own desires,

If that I do not dream or be not frantic,— 52

As I do trust I am not,—then, dear uncle,

Never so much as in a thought unborn

Did I offend your highness

Duke F Thus do all traitors

If their purgation did consist in words, 56

They are as innocent as grace itself

Let it suffice thee that I trust thee not Ros Yet your mistrust cannot make me a traitor

Tell me whereon the likelihood depends 60

Duke F Thou art thy father's daughter, there's enough

Ros So was I when your highness took his dukedom,
 So was I when your highness banish'd him
 Treason is not inherited, my lord, 64
 Or, if we did derive it from our friends, What's that to me? my father was no traitor
 Then, good my liege, mistake me not so much
 To think my poverty is treacherous 68

Cel Dear sovereign, hear me speak
Duke F Ay, Celia, we stay'd her for your sake

Else had she with her father rang'd along Cel I did not then entreat to have her stay
 It was your pleasure and your own remorse 73
 I was too young that time to value her,
 But now I know her if she be a traitor,
 Why so am I, we still have slept together, 76
 Rose at an instant, learn'd, play'd, eat together,
 And whereso'er we went, like Juno's swans,
 Still we were coupled and inseparable

Duke F She is too subtle for thee, and her smoothness, 80

Her very silence and her patience,
 Speak to the people, and they pity her Thou art a fool she robs thee of thy name,
 And thou wilt show more bright and seem more virtuous 84

When she is gone Then open not thy lips
 Firm and irrevocable is my doom
 Which I have pass'd upon her, she is banish'd

Cel Pronounce that sentence then, on me, my liege 88

I cannot live out of her company

Duke F You are a fool You, niece, provide yourself

If you outstay the time, upon mine honour,
 And in the greatness of my word, you die 92

[Exeunt DUKE FREDERICK and Lords]
Cel O my poor Rosalind! whither wilt thou go?

Wilt thou change fathers? I will give thee mine
 I charge thee, be not thou more griev'd than I am

Ros I have more cause

Cel Thou hast not, cousin, 96
 Prithce, be cheerful, know'st thou not, the duke Hath banish'd me, his daughter?

Ros That he hath not

Cel No, hath not? Rosalind lacks then the love 99

Which teacheth thee that thou and I am one Shall we be sunder'd? shall we part, sweet girl?

No let my father seek another heir
 Therefore devise with me how we may fly, Whither to go, and what to bear with us 104
 And do not seek to take your change upon you,
 To bear your griefs yourself and leave me out,
 For, by this heaven, now at our sorrows pale,
 Say what thou canst, I'll go along with thee 108

Ros Why, whither shall we go?

Cel To seek my uncle in the forest of Arden Ros Alas, what danger will it be to us,

 Maids as we are, to travel forth so far! 112
 Beauty provoketh thieves sooner than gold

Cel I'll put myself in poor and mean attire,

And with a kind of umber smurgh my face,
 The like do you so shall we pass along 116
 And never stir assailants

Ros Were it not better,
 Because that I am more than common tall,
 That I did suit me all points like a man?

A gallant curtle-axe upon my thigh, 120
 A boar-spear in my hand, and,—in my heart Lie there what hidden woman's fear there will,— We'll have a swashing and a martial outside,
 As many other mannish cowards have 124

That do outface it with their semblances
Cel What shall I call thee when thou art a man?

Ros I'll have no worse a name than Jove's own page,
 And therefore look you call me Ganymede 128
 But what will you be call'd?

Cel Something that hath a reference to my state

No longer Celia, but Aliena

Ros But, cousin, what if we assay'd to steal 132

The clownish fool out of your father's court?
 Would he not be a comfort to our travel?

Cel He'll go along o'er the wide world with me,

Leave me alone to woo him Let's away, 136
 And get our jewels and our wealth together, Devise the fittest time and safest way

To hide us from pursuit that will be made After my flight Now go we in content 140

To liberty and not to banishment [Exeunt]

ACT II

SCENE I—The Forest of Arden

Enter DUKE SENIOR, AMIENS, and other Lords, like Foresters

Duke S Now, my co-mates and brothers in exile,

Hath not old custom made this life more sweet Than that of painted pomp? Are not these woods

More free from peril than the envious court? 4
 Here feel we but the penalty of Adam,
 The seasons' difference, as, the icy fang

And churlish chiding of the winter's wind,
 Which, when it bites and blows upon my body,

Even till I shrink with cold, I smile and say 9
 'This is no flattery these are counsellors
 That feelingly persuade me what I am'

Sweet are the uses of adversity, 12
 Which like the toad, ugly and venomous, Wears yet a precious jewel in his head,

And thus our life exempt from public haunt,
 Finds tongues in trees, books in the running brooks, 16

 Sermons in stones, and good in every thing
 I would not change it

Am Happy is your Grace,
 That can translate the stubbornness of fortune

Into so quiet and so sweet a style 20

Duke S Come, shall we go and kill us venison?

And yet it irks me, the poor dappled fools,
Being native burghers of this desert city,
Should in their own confines with forked heads Have their round haunches gor'd

First Lord Indeed, my lord, 25
The melancholy Jaques grieves at that,
And in that kind, swears you do more usurp
Than doth your brother that hath banish'd you To-day my Lord of Amiens and myself 29
Did steal behind him as he lay along Under an oak whose antique root peeps out Upon the brook that brawls along this wood,
To the which place a poor sequester'd stag, 33
That from the hunters' aim had ta'en a hurt,
Did come to languish, and, indeed, my lord,
The wretched animal heav'd forth such groans That their discharge did stretch his leathern 37 coat

Almost to bursting, and the big round tears
Cours'd one another down his innocent nose
In piteous chase, and thus the hairy fool, 40
Much marked of the melancholy Jaques, Stood on the extremest verge of the swift brook, Augmenting it with tears

Duke S But what said Jaques?
Did I e not moralize this spectacle? 44

First Lord O, yes, into a thousand smiles First, for his weeping into the needless stream,
'Poor deer,' quoth he, 'thou mak'st a testament
As worldlings do, giving thy sum of more 48
To that which had too much ' then, being there alone,

Left and abandon'd of his velvet friends,
'Tis right,' quoth he, 'thus misery doth part
The flux of company; anon a careless herd, 52
Full of the pasture, jumps along by him
And never stays to greet him, 'Ay,' quoth Jaques,

'Sweep on, you fat and greasy citizens,
'Tis just the fashion, wherefore do you look 56 Upon that poor and broken bankrupt there?'
Thus most invectively he pierceth through
The body of the country, city, court,
Yea, and of this our life, swearing that we 60
Are mere usurpers, tyrants, and what's worse,
To fright the animals and to kill them up In their assign'd and native dwelling-place

Duke S And did you leave him in this contemplation? 64

Sec Lord We did, my lord, weeping and commenting

Upon the sobbing deer

Duke S Show me the place
I love to cope him in these sullen fits,
For then he's full of matter 68

Sec Lord I'll bring you to him straight
[Exeunt]

SCENE II — A Room in the Palace

Enter DUKE FREDERICK, Lords, and Attendants.

Duke F Can it be possible that no man saw
them?

It cannot be some villains of my court
Are of consent and sufferance in this

First Lord I cannot hear of any that did see
her 4

The ladies, her attendants of her chamber,
Saw her a-bed, and, in the morning early
They found the bed untreasur'd of their mistress

Sec Lord My lord, the roynish clown, at whom so oft 8

Your Grace was wont to laugh, is also missing Hisperia, the princess' gentlewoman, Confesses that she secretly o'erheard
Your daughter and her cousin much commend
The parts and graces of the wrestler 13
That did but lately foil the sinewy Charles,
And she believes, wherever they are gone,
That youth is surely in their company 16

Duke F Send to his brother, fetch that gallant hither,

If he be absent, bring his brother to me,
I'll make him find him Do this suddenly,
And let not search and inquisition quail 20
To bring again these foolish runaways

[Exeunt]

SCENE III — Before OLIVER's House

Enter ORLANDO and ADAM, meeting

Orl Who's there?

Adam What! my young master? O my gentle master!

O my sweet master! O you memory
Of old Sir Rowland! why, what make you here?
Why are you virtuous? Why do people love you?
And wherefore are you gentle, strong, and valiant?

Why would you be so fond to overcome
The bony praiser of the humorous duke? 8
Your praise is come too swiftly home before you Know you not, master, to some kind of men
Their graces serve them but as enemies?
No more do yours your virtues, gentle master,
Are sanctified and holy traitors to you 13
O, what a world is this, when what is comely Envenoms him that bears it!

Orl Why, what's the matter?

Adam O unhappy youth!
Come not within these doors, within this roof
The enemy of all your graces lives

Your brother,—no, no brother, yet the son,—
Yet not the son, I will not call him son 20
Of him I was about to call his father,—

Hath heard your praises, and thus might he means To burn the lodging where you use to lie,

And you within it if he fail of that, 24
He will have other means to cut you off

I overheard him and his practices
This is no place, this house is but a butchery

Abhor it, fear it, do not enter it. 28

Orl Why, whither, Adam, wouldst thou have me go?

Adam No matter whither, so you come not
here

Orl What! wouldst thou have me go and beg my food?

Or with a base and boisterous sword enforce 32
A thievish living on the common road?

Thus I must do, or know not what to do Yet this I will not do, do how I can,
 I rather will subject me to the malice
 Of a diverted blood and bloody brother Adam But do not so I have five hundred crowns,

The thrifty hire I sav'd under your father,
 Which I did store to be my foster-nurse
 When service should in my old limbs lie lame,
 And unregarded age in corners thrown Take that, and He that doth the ravens feed, Yea, providently caters for the sparrow,
 Be comfort to my age! Here is the gold,
 All this I give you Let me be your servant
 Though I look old, yet I am strong and lusty,
 For in my youth I never did apply
 Hot and rebellious liquors in my blood,
 Nor did not with unbashful forehead woo
 The means of weakness and debility,
 Therefore my age is as a lusty winter,
 Frosty, but kindly Let me go with you,
 I'll do the service of a younger man
 In all your business and necessities

Orl O good old man! how well in thee appears

The constant service of the antique world,
 When service sweat for duty, not for meed!
 Thou art not for the fashion of these times,
 Where none will sweat but for promotion,
 And having that, do choke their service up Even with the having it is not so with thee
 But, poor old man, thou prun'st a rotten tree,
 That cannot so much as a blossom yield,
 In lieu of all thy pains and husbandry
 But come thy ways, we'll go along together,
 And ere we have thy youthful wages spent,
 We'll light upon some settled low content

Adam Master, go on, and I will follow thee
 To the last gasp with truth and loyalty
 From seventeen years till now almost fourscore Here lived I, but now live here no more At seventeen years many their fortunes seek,
 But at fourscore it is too late a week
 Yet fortune cannot recompense me better Than to die well and not my master's debtor

[Exeunt]

SCENE IV — The Forest of Arden

Enter ROSALIND in boy's clothes, CELIA dressed like a shepherdess, and TOUCHSTONE

Ros O Jupiter! how weary are my spirits — Touch I care not for my spirits if my legs were not weary

Ros I could find it in my heart to disgrace my man's apparel and to cry like a woman, but I must comfort the weaker vessel, as doublet and hose ought to show itself courageous to petticoat therefore, courage, good Athena

Cel I pray you, bear with me I cannot go no further

Touch For my part, I had rather bear with you than bear you, yet I should bear no cross if I did bear you, for I think you have no money in your purse

Ros Well, this is the forest of Arden!

Touch Ay, now am I in Arden, the more fool I when I was at home, I was in a better place but travellers must be content Ros Ay, beseech you, good Touchstone Look you, who comes here, a young man and an old in solemn talk

Enter CORIN and SILVUS

Cor That is the way to make her scorn you still

Sil O Corin, that thou knew'st now I do love
 her!

Cor I partly guess, for I have lov'd ere now Sil No, Corin, being old, thou canst not guess,

Though in thy youth thou wast as true a lover
 As ever sigh'd upon a midnight pillow
 But if thy love were ever like to mine,—
 As sure I think did never man love so,—

How many actions most ridiculous
 Hast thou been drawn to by thy fantasy?

Cor Into a thousand that I have forgotten

Sil O! thou didst then ne'er love so heartily
 If thou remember'st not the slightest folly

That ever love did make thee run into,
 Thou hast not lov'd

Or if thou hast not sat as I do now, Wearing thy hearer with thy mistress' praise,
 Thou hast not lov'd

Or if thou hast not broke from company
 Abruptly, as my passion now makes me, Thou hast not lov'd O Phebe, Phebe, Phebe!

[Exit]

Ros Alas, poor shepherd! searching of thy wound,

I have by hard adventure found mine own Touch And I mine I remember, when I was in love I broke my sword upon a stone, and bid him take that for coming a-night to Jane Smile, and I remember the kissing of her batler, and the cow's dugs that her pretty chopped hands had milked, and I remember the wooing of a peascod instead of her, from whom I took two cods, and giving her them again, said with weeping tears, 'Wear these for my sake' We that are true lovers run into strange capers, but as all is mortal in nature, so is all nature in love mortal in folly

Ros Thou speakest wiser than thou art ware of

Touch Nay, I shall ne'er be ware of mine own wit till I break my shins against it

Ros Jove, Jove! this shepherd's passion
 Is much upon my fashion

Touch And mine, but it grows something stale with me

Cel I pray you, one of you question yond
 man,

If he for gold will give us any food
 I faint almost to death

Touch Holla, you clown!
Ros Peace, fool he's not thy kinsman.

Cor Who calls? 68

Touch Your betters, sir

Cor Else are they very wretched.

Ros Peace, I say. Good even to you, friend.

Cor And to you, gentle sir, and to you all Ros I prithee, shepherd, if that love or gold
 Can in this desert place buy entertainment,⁷³
 Bring us where we may rest ourselves and feed Here 's a young maid with travel much oppress'd,
 And fants for succour

Cor Fair sir, I pity her, 76
 And wish, for her sake more than for mine own,
 My fortunes were more able to relieve her,
 But I am shepherd to another man,
 And do not shear the fleeces that I graze 80
 My master is of churlish disposition
 And little reckes to find the way to heaven
 By doing deeds of hospitality

Besides, his cote, his flocks, and bounds of feed
 Are now on sale, and at our shee-cote now, 85
 By reason of his absence, there is nothing
 That you will feed on, but what is, come see,
 And in my voice most welcome shall you be 88

Ros What is he that shall buy his flock and pasture?

Cor That young swain that you saw here but
 erewhile,

That little cares for buying anything

Ros I pray thee, if it stand with honesty, 92
 Buy thou the cottage, pasture, and the flock,
 And thou shalt have to pay for it of us

Cel And we will mend thy wages I like this place,

And willingly could waste my time in it 96

Cor Assuredly the thing is to be sold Go with me if you like upon report
 The soil, the profit, and this kind of life,
 I will your very faithful feeder be, 100
 And buy it with your gold right suddenly

[Exeunt]

SCENE V—Another Part of the Forest.

Enter AMIENS, JACQUES, and Others

SONG

Ami Under the greenwood tree
 Who loves to lie with me
 And turn his merry note
 Unto the sweet bird's throat 4
 Come hither come hither come hither
 Here shall he see
 No enemy
 But winter and rough weather

Jaq More, more, I prithee, more

Ami It will make you melancholy, Monsieur
 Jaques 11

Jaq I thank it More! I prithee, more I can suck melancholy out of a song as a weasel sucks eggs More! I prithee, more Ami My voice is ragged, I know I cannot please you 16

Jaq I do not desire you to please me, I do desire you to sing Come, more, another stanza call you them stanzas?

Ami What you will, Monsieur Jaques 20

Jaq Nay, I care not for their names, they owe me nothing Will you sing?

Ami More at your request than to please myself 24

Jaq Well then, if ever I thank any man, I'll thank you but that they call compliment is like the encounter of two dog-apes, and when a man thanks me heartily, methinks I have given him a penny and he renders me the beggarly thanks Come, sing, and you that will not, hold your tongues

Ami Well, I'll end the song Sirs, cover the while, the duke will drink under this tree He hath been all this day to look you. 33

Jaq And I have been all this day to avoid him He is too disputable for my company I think of as many matters as he, but I give heaven thanks, and make no boast of them. Come, warble, come

SONG

Ami Who doth ambition shun [All together here
 And loves to live the sun,
 Seeking the food he eats 40
 And pleas'd with what he gets

Come hither come hither come hither
 Here shall he see
 No enemy 44
 But winter and rough weather

Jaq I'll give you a verse to this note, that I made yesterday in despite of my invention

Ami And I'll sing it 48

Jaq Thus it goes

If it do come to pass
 That any man turn ass
 Leaving his wealth and ease 52
 A stubborn will to please Duce-dame duc-dame duc-dame
 Here shall he see
 Gross fools as he, 56
 An if he will come to me

Ami What's that 'ducdame'?

Jaq 'Tis a Greek invocation to call fools into a circle I'll go sleep if I can, if I cannot, I'll rail against all the first-born of Egypt 61

Ami And I'll go seek the duke his banquet is prepared. [Exeunt severally]

SCENE VI—Another Part of the Forest

Enter ORLANDO and ADAM

Adam Dear master, I can go no further O!
 I die for food Here lie I down, and measure out my grave Farewell, kind master 3

Orl Why, how now, Adam! no greater heart in thee? Live a little, comfort a little cheer thyself a little If this uncouth forest yield anything savage, I will either be food for it, or bring it for food to thee Thy concert is nearer death than thy powers For my sake be comfortable, hold death awhile at the arm's end, I will here be with thee presently, and if I bring thee not something to eat, I will give thee leave to die, but if thou diest before I come, thou art a mocker of my labour Well said! thou lookest cheerly, and I'll be with thee quickly Yet thou liest in the bleak air come, I will bear thee to some shelter, and thou shalt not die for lack of a dinner, if there live anything in this desert Cheerly, good Adam. [Exeunt]

SCENE VII — Another Part of the Forest
A table set out Enter DUKE SENIOR, AMIENS, Lords like Outlaws

Duke S I think he be transform'd into a beast,
 For I can nowhere find him like a man First Lord My lord, he is but even now gone
 hence
 Here was he merry, hearing of a song
Duke S If he, compact of jars, grow musical,
 We shall have shortly discord in the spheres Go, seek him tell him I would speak with him First Lord He saves my labour by his own approach

Enter JAQUES

Duke S Why, how now, monsieur! what a life is this,
 That your poor friends must woo your company?
 What, you look merrily!
Jaq A fool, a fool! I met a fool i' the forest,
 A motley fool, a miserable world!
 As I do live by food, I met a fool,
 Who laid him down and bask'd him in the sun,
 And rail'd on Lady Fortune in good terms, 16
 In good set terms, and yet a motley fool
 'Good morrow, fool,' quoth I 'No, sir,' quoth
 he,
 'Call me not fool till heaven hath sent me fortune'
 And then he drew a dial from his poke, 20
 And, looking on it with lack-lustre eye,
 Says very wisely, 'It is ten o'clock, Thus may we see,' quoth he, 'how the world wags
 'Tis but an hour ago since it was nine, 24
 And after one hour more 'twill be eleven,
 And so, from hour to hour we ripe and ripe,
 And then from hour to hour we rot and rot,
 And thereby hangs a tale' When I did hear 28
 The motley fool thus moral on the time,
 My lungs began to crow like chanticleer,
 That fools should be so deep-contemplative,
 And I did laugh sans intermission 32
 An hour by his dial O noble fool!
 A worthy fool! Motley's the only wear Duke S What fool is this?
Jaq O worthy fool! One that hath been a courtier,
 And says, if ladies be but young and fair, 36
 They have the gift to know it, and in his brain,—
 Which is as dry as the remainder biscuit
 After a voyage,—he hath strange places 40 cramm'd
 With observation, the which he vents
 In mangled forms O that I were a fool!
 I am ambitious for a motley coat Duke S Thou shalt have one
Jaq It is my only suit, 44
 Provided that you weed your better judgments
 Of all opinion that grows rank in them
 That I am wise I must have liberty
 Withal, as large a charmer as the wind, 48
 To blow on whom I please, for so fools have

And they that are most galled with my folly, They must must laugh And why, sir, must they so?
 The 'why' is plain as way to parish church 52
 He that a fool doth very wisely hit Doth very foolishly, although he smart,
 Not to seem senseless of the bob, if not,
 The wise man's folly is anatomiz'd 56
 Even by the squandering glances of the fool
 Invest me in my motley, give me leave To speak my mind, and I will through and through Cleanse the foul body of th' infected world, 60
 If they will patiently receive my medicine Duke S Fie on thee! I can tell what thou wouldst do Jaq What, for a counter, would I do, but
 good?
Duke S Most mischievous foul sin, in chiding sin 64
 For thou thyself hast been a libertine,
 As sensual as the brutish sting itself
 And all the embossed sores and headed evils,
 That thou with licence of free foot hast caught, Wouldst thou disgorge into the general world
Jaq Why, who cries out on pride,
 That can therein tax any private party?
 Doth it not flow as hugely as the sea, 72
 Till that the weary very means do ebb?
 What woman in the city do I name,
 When that I say the city-woman bears
 The cost of princes on unworthy shoulders? 76
 Who can come in and say that I mean her,
 When such a one as she such is her neighbour?
 Or what is he of basest function,
 That says his bravery is not on my cost,— 80
 Thinking that I mean him,—but therein suits
 His folly to the mettle of my speech?
 There then, how then? what then? Let me see wherein
 My tongue hath wrong'd him if it do him right,
 Then he hath wrong'd himself, if he be free, 85
 Why then, my taxing like a wild goose flies, Unclamd of any man But who comes here?

Enter ORLANDO, with his sword drawn

Orl Forbear, and eat no more Jaq Why, I have eat none yet
Orl Nor shalt not, till necessity be serv'd 89 Jaq Of what kind should this cock come of?
Duke S Art thou thus bolden'd, man, by thy distress,
 Or else a rude despiser of good manners, 92
 That in civility thou seem'st so empty?
Orl You touch'd my vein at first the thorny point
 Of bare distress hath ta'en from me the show
 Of smooth civility, yet I am inland bred 96
 And know some nurture But forbear, I say He dies that touches any of this fruit
 Till I and my affairs are answered
Jaq An you will not be answered with reason,
 I must die 101
Duke S What would you have? Your gentleness shall force
 More than your force move us to gentleness

Orl I almost die for food, and let me have it Duke S Sit down and feed, and welcome to our table 105
Orl Speak you so gently? Pardon me, I pray
 you

I thought that all things had been savage here,
 And therefore put I on the countenance 108
 Of stern commandment But whate'er you are
 That in this desert inaccessible,
 Under the shade of melancholy boughs,
 Lose and neglect the creeping hours of time, 112
 If ever you have look'd on better days,
 If ever been where bells have knoll'd to church,
 If ever sat at any good man's feast,
 If ever from your eyelids wip'd a tear, 116
 And know what 'tis to pity, and be pitied, Let gentleness my strong enforcement be In the which hope I blush, and hide my sword Duke S True is it that we have seen better days, 120

And have with holy bell been knoll'd to church, And sat at good men's feasts, and wip'd our
 eyes

Of drops that sacred pity hath engender'd,
 And therefore sit you down in gentleness 124
 And take upon command what help we have That to your wanting may be minister'd

Orl Then but forbear your food a little while, Whiles, like a doe, I go to find my fawn 128
 And give it food There is an old poor man,
 Who after me hath many a weary step Lump'd in pure love till he be first suffic'd, Oppress'd with two weak evils, age and hunger,
 I will not touch a bit

Duke S Go find him out, 133
 And we will nothing waste till you return

Orl I thank ye, and be bless'd for your good comfort! [Exit 136]

Duke S Thou seest we are not all alone unhappy 136

This wide and universal theatre
 Presents more woful pageants than the scene Wherein we play in

Jaq All the world's a stage,
 And all the men and women merely players
 They have their exits and their entrances, 141
 And one man in his time plays many parts,
 His acts being seven ages At first the infant, Mewling and puking in the nurse's arms 144
 And then the whining school-boy, with his satchel,

And shuning morning face, creeping like snail Unwillingly to school And then the lover, Sighing like furnace, with a woful ballad 148
 Made to his mistress' eyebrow Then a soldier, Full of strange oaths, and bearded like the pard, Jealous in honour, sudden and quick in quarrel, Seeking the bubble reputation 152 Even in the cannon's mouth And then the justice,

In fair round belly with good capon lin'd,
 With eyes severe, and beard of formal cut,
 Full of wise saws and modern instances, 156
 And so he plays his part The sixth age shifts
 Into the lean and slipper'd pantaloan,
 With spectacles on nose and pouch on side, 159

His youthful hose well sav'd, a world too wide
 For his shrunk shank and his big manly voice, Turning again toward childish treble, pipes
 And whistles in his sound Last scene of all,
 That ends this strange eventful history, 164
 Is second childishness and mere oblivion, Sans teeth, sans eyes, sans taste, sans everything

Re-enter ORLANDO, with ADAM

Duke S Welcome Set down your venerable burden,

And let him feed

Orl I thank you most for him 168
Adam So had you need

I scarce can speak to thank you for myself Duke S Welcome, fall to I will not trouble
 you 171

As yet, to question you about your fortunes
 Give us some music, and, good cousin, sing

SONG

Am. Blow blow thou winter wind Thou art not so unkind
 As man's ingratitude 176
 Thy tooth is not so keen,
 Because thou art not seen

Although thy breath be rude
 Heigh ho! sing heigh ho! unto the green holly 180
 Most friendship is feigning most loving mere folly
 Then heigh ho! the holly!
 This life is most jolly

Freeze freeze thou bitter sky
 That dost not bite so nigh
 As benefits forgot
 Though thou the waters warp
 Thy sting is not so sharp 188
 As friend remember'd not

Heigh ho! sing heigh ho! unto the green holly
 Most friendship is feigning most loving mere folly
 Then heigh ho! the holly! 192
 This life is most oily

Duke S If that you were the good Sir Rowland's son,
 As you have whisper'd faithfully you were,
 And as mine eye doth his effigies witness 196
 Most truly himn'd and living in your face,
 Be truly welcome hither I am the duke That lov'd your father the residue of your fortune,

Go to my cave and tell me Good old man, 200 Thou art right welcome as thy master is Support him by the arm Give me your hand,
 And let me all your fortunes understand

ACT III

SCENE I—A Room in the Palace

Enter DUKE FREDERICK, OLIVER, Lords, and Attendants

Duke F Not seen him since! Sir, sir, that cannot be
 But were I not the better part made mercy,
 I should not seek an absent argument
 Of my revenge, thou present But look to it 4 Find out thy brother, wheresoe'er he is,

Seek him with candle, bring him, dead or living, Within this twelvemonth, or turn thou no more
To seek a living in our territory 8 Thy lands and all things that thou dost call thine

Worth seizure, do we seize into our hands, Till thou canst quit thee by thy brother's mouth
Of what we think against thee 12

Oh! O that your highness knew my heart in
this!

I never lov'd my brother in my life Duke F More villain thou Well, push him out of doors,

And let my officers of such a nature 16
Make an extent upon his house and lands
Do this expediently and turn him going
[Exeunt

SCENE II — The Forest of Arden

Enter ORLANDO, with a paper

Orl Hang there, my verse, in witness of my
love.

And thou, thrice-crowned queen of night, survey

With thy chaste eye, from thy pale sphere above, Thy huntress' name, that my full life doth sway 4

O Rosahnd! these trees shall be my books,
And in their barks my thoughts I'll character,
That every eye, which in this forest looks,

Shall see thy virtue witness'd everywhere 8
Run, run, Orlando carve on every tree
The fair, the chaste, and unexpressive she
[Exit

Enter CORIN and TOUCHSTONE

Cor And how like you this shepherd's life, Master Touchstone? 12

Touch Truly, shepherd, in respect of itself, it is a good life, but in respect that it is a shepherd's life, it is naught In respect that it is solitary, I like it very well, but in respect that it is private, it is a very vile life Now, in respect it is in the fields, it pleaseth me well, but in respect it is not in the court, it is tedious As it is a spare life, look you, it fits my humour well, but as there is no more plenty in it, it goes much against my stomach. Hast any philosophy in thee, shepherd? 23

Cor No more but that I know the more one sickens the worse at ease he is, and that he that wants money, means, and content, is without three good friends, that the property of rain is to wet, and fire to burn, that good pasture makes fat sheep, and that a great cause of the night is lack of the sun, that he that hath learned no wit by nature nor art may complain of good breeding, or comes of a very dull kindred 33

Touch. Such a one is a natural philosopher.
Wast ever in court, shepherd?

Cor No, truly 36

Touch Then thou art damned.

Cor Nay, I hope

Touch Truly, thou art damned like an ill-roasted egg, all on one side 40

Cor For not being at court? Your reason

Touch Why, if thou never wast at court, thou never sawest good manners, if thou never sawest good manners, then thy manners must be wicked, and wickedness is sin, and sin is damnation.
Thou art in a parlous state, shepherd 46

Cor Not a whit, Touchstone those that are good manners at the court, are as ridiculous in the country as the behaviour of the country is most mockable at the court You told me you salute not at the court, but you kiss your hands, that courtesy would be uncleanly if courtiers were shepherds 53

Touch Instance, briefly, come, instance

Cor Why, we are still handling our ewes, and they fells, you know are greasy 56

Touch Why, do not your courtier's hands sweat? and is not the grease of a mutton as wholesome as the sweat of a man? Shallow, shallow A better instance, I say, come 60

Cor Besides, our hands are hard

Touch Your lips will feel them the sooner shallow again. A moresounder instance, come

Cor And they are often tarred over with the surgery of our sheep, and would you have us kiss tar? The courtier's hands are perfumed with civet 67

Touch Most shallow man! Thou worms-meat, in respect of a good piece of flesh, indeed! Learn of the wise, and perpend civet is of a baser birth than tar, the very uncleanly flux of a cat Mend the instance, shepherd 72

Cor You have too courtly a wit for me I'll rest

Touch Wilt thou rest damned? God help thee, shallow man! God make incision in thee!
thou art raw 77

Cor Sir, I am a true labourer I earn that I eat, get that I wear, owe no man hate, envy no man's happiness, glad of other men's good, content with my harm, and the greatest of my pride is to see my ewes graze and my lambs suck. 82

Touch That is another simple sin in you, to bring the ewes and the rams together, and to offer to get your living by the copulation of cattle, to be bawd to a bell-wether, and to betray a she-lamb of a twelvemonth to a crookedpated, old, cuckoldy ram, out of all reasonable match. If thou be'st not damned for this, the devil himself will have no shepherds I cannot see else how thou shouldst 'scape

Cor Here comes young Master Ganymede, my new mistress's brother. 93

Enter ROSALIND, reading a paper.

Ros From the east to western Ind,
No jewel is like Rosalind.
Her worth, being mounted on the wind, 96
Through all the world bears Rosalind.
All the pictures fairest lin'd
Are but black to Rosalind Let no face be kept in mind,
But the fair of Rosalind. 100

Touch. I'll rime you so, eight years together, dinners and suppers and sleeping hours excepted it is the right butter-women's rank to market

Ros Out, fool!

Touch For a taste —

If a hart do lack a hind,
Let him seek out Rosalind
If the cat will after kind
So be sure will Rosalind Winter garments must be linn'd
So must slender Rosalind
They that reap must sheaf and bind,
Then to cart with Rosalind Sweetest nut hath sourest rind,
Such a nut is Rosalind
He that sweetest rose will find Must find love's prick and Rosalind.

This is the very false gallop of verses why do you infect yourself with them?

Ros Peace! you dull fool I found them on a tree

Touch Truly, the tree yields bad fruit

Ros I'll graff it with you, and then I shall graff it with a medlar then it will be the earliest fruit in the country, for you'll be rotten ere you be half ripe, and that's the right virtue of the medlar

Touch You have said, but whether wisely or no, let the forest judge

Enter CELIA, reading a paper

Ros Peace!

Here comes my sister, reading stand aside

Cel Why should this a desert be?

For it is unpeopled? No Tongues I'll hang on every tree,
That shall civil sayings show
Some how brief the life of man Runs his erring pilgrimage
That the stretching of a span Buckles in his sum of age
Some of violated vows
Twixt the souls of friend and friend
But upon the fairest boughs,
Or at every sentence' end,
Will I Rosalinda write,
Teaching all that read to know
The quintessence of every sprite
Heaven would in little show Therefore Heaven Nature charg'd
That one body should be fill'd
With all graces wide enlarg'd Nature presently distill'd Helen's cheek, but not her heart, Cleopatra's majesty
Atalanta's better part,
Sad Lucretia's modesty
Thus Rosalind of many parts
By heavenly synod was devis'd
Of many faces, eyes, and hearts,
To have the touches dearest priz'd Heaven would that she these gifts should have,
And I to live and die her slave.

Ros O most gentle pulpitier! what tedious homily of love have you wearied your parishioners withal, and never cried, 'Have patience, good people!'

Cel How now! back, friends! Shepherd, go off a little go with him, surrah Touch Come, shepherd, let us make an honourable retreat, though not with bag and baggage, yet with scrip and scrippage

[Exeunt CORIN and TOUCHSTONE]

Cel Didst thou hear these verses?

Ros O, yes, I heard them all, and more too, for some of them had in them more feet than the verses would bear

Cel That's no matter the feet might bear the verses

Ros Ay, but the feet were lame, and could not bear themselves without the verse, and therefore stood lamely in the verse

Cel But didst thou hear without wondering, how thy name should be hanged and carved upon these trees?

Ros I was seven of the nine days out of the wonder before you came, for look here what I found on a palm-tree I was never so be-rimed since Pythagoras' time, that I was an Irish rat, which I can hardly remember

Cel Trow you who hath done this?

Ros Is it a man?

Cel And a chain, that you once wore, about his neck Change you colour?

Ros I prithee, who?

Cel O Lord, Lord! it is a hard matter for friends to meet, but mountains may be removed with earthquakes, and so encounter

Ros Nay, but who is it?

Cel Is it possible?

Ros Nay, I prithee now, with most petitionary vehemence, tell me who it is Cel O wonderful, wonderful, and most wonderful wonderful! and yet again wonderful! and after that, out of all whooping!

Ros Good my complexion! dost thou think, though I am caparison'd like a man, I have a doublet and hose in my disposition? One inch of delay more is a South-sea of discovery, I prithee, tell me who is it quickly, and speak apace I would thou couldst stammer, that thou mightst pour this concealed man out of thy mouth, as wine comes out of a narrow-mouth'd bottle, either too much at once, or none at all I prithee, take the cork out of thy mouth, that I may drink thy tidings

Cel So you may put a man in your belly

Ros Is he of God's making? What manner of man? Is his head worth a hat, or his chin worth a beard?

Cel Nay, he hath but a little beard

Ros Why, God will send more, if the man will be thankful Let me stay the growth of his beard, if thou delay me not the knowledge of his chin

Cel It is young Orlando that tripp'd up the wrestler's heels and your heart both, in an instant.

Ros Nay, but the devil take mocking speak, sad brow and true maid

Cel I' faith, coz, 'tis he.

Ros Orlando?

Cel Orlando

Ros Alas the day! what shall I do with my doublet and hose? What did he when thou sawest him? What said he? How looked he? Wherein went he? What makes he here? Did he ask for me? Where remains he? How parted he with thee, and when shalt thou see him again? Answer me in one word 238

Cel You must borrow me Gargantua's mouth first 'tis a word too great for any mouth of this age's size To say ay and no to these particulars is more than to answer in a catechism 242

Ros But doth he know that I am in this forest and in man's apparel? Looks he as freshly as he did the day he wrestled? 245

Cel It is as easy to count atomies as to resolve the propositions of a lover, but take a taste of my finding him, and relish it with good observance I found him under a tree, like a dropped acorn

Ros It may well be called Jove's tree, when it drops forth such fruit 252

Cel Give me audience, good madam.

Ros Proceed

Cel There lay he, stretch'd along like a wounded knight 256

Ros Though it be pity to see such a sight, it well becomes the ground

Cel Cry 'holla!' to thy tongue, I prithee, it curvets unseasonably He was furnish'd like a hunter 261

Ros O, ommonus! he comes to kill my heart

Cel I would sing my song without a burthen thou bringest me out of tune 264

Ros Do you not know I am a woman? when I think, I must speak. Sweet, say on Cel You bring me out. Soft! comes he not here? 268

Ros 'Tis he slink by, and note him.

Enter ORLANDO and JAUQUES.

Jaq I thank you for your company, but, good faith, I had as lief have been myself alone

Orl And so had I, but yet, for fashion's sake, I thank you too for your society 273

Jaq God be wi' you let's meet as little as we can

Orl I do desire we may be better strangers

Jaq I pray you, mar no more trees with writing love-songs in their barks

Orl I pray you mar no more of my verses with reading them ill-favourably 280

Jaq Rosalind is your love's name?

Orl Yes, just

Jaq I do not like her name

Orl There was no thought of pleasing you when she was christened. 285

Jaq What stature is she of?

Orl Just as high as my heart

Jaq You are full of pretty answers Have you not been acquainted with goldsmiths' wives, and comm'd them out of rings?

Orl Not so, but I answer you right painted cloth, from whence you have studied your questions. 293

Jaq You have a numble wit I think 'twas made of Atalanta's heels Will you sit down with me? and we two will rail against our mistress the world, and all our misery 297

Orl I will chide no breather in the world but myself, against whom I know most faults.

Jaq The worst fault you have is to be in love 301

Orl 'Tis a fault I will not change for your best virtue I am weary of you

Jaq By my troth, I was seeking for a fool when I found you 305

Orl He is drowned in the brook look but in, and you shall see him

Jaq There I shall see mine own figure 308

Orl Which I take to be either a fool or a cipher

Jaq I'll tarry no longer with you Farewell, good Signior Love 312

Orl I am glad of your departure Adieu, good Monsieur Melancholy [Exit JAUQUES]

Ros I will speak to him like a saucy lackey, and under that habit play the knave with him Do you hear, forester? 317

Orl Very well what would you?

Ros I pray you, what is't o'clock?

Orl You should ask me, what time o' day, there's no clock in the forest 321

Ros Then there is no true lover in the forest, else sighing every minute and groaning every hour would detect the lazy foot of Time as well as a clock. 325

Orl And why not the swift foot of Time? had not that been as proper?

Ros By no means, sir Time travels in divers paces with divers persons I'll tell you who Time ambles withal, who Time trots withal, who Time gallops withal, and who he stands still withal 332

Orl I prithee, who doth he trot withal?

Ros Marry, he trots hard with a young maid between the contract of her marriage and the day it is solemnized, if the interim be but a se'n'might, Time's pace is so hard that it seems the length of seven year 338

Orl Who ambles Time withal?

Ros With a priest that lacks Latin, and a rich man that hath not the gout, for the one sleeps easily because he cannot study, and the other lives merrily because he feels no pain, the one lacking the burden of lean and wasteful learning, the other knowing no burden of heavy tedious penury These Time ambles withal

Orl Who doth he gallop withal? 348

Ros With a thief to the gallows, for though he go as softly as foot can fall he thinks himself too soon there

Orl Who stays it still withal? 352

Ros With lawyers in the vacation, for they sleep between term and term, and then they perceive not how Time moves

Orl Where dwell you, pretty youth? 356

Ros With this shepherdess, my sister, here in the skirts of the forest, like fringe upon a petticoat

Orl Are you native of this place? 360

Ros As the cony, that you see dwell where she is kindled.

Orl Your accent is something finer than you could purchase in so removed a dwelling 364

Ros I have been told so of many: but indeed an old religious uncle of mine taught me to speak, who was in his youth an inland man, one that knew courtship too well, for there he fell in love I have heard him read many lectures against it, and I thank God, I am not a woman, to be touched with so many giddy offences as he hath generally taxed their whole sex withal

Orl Can you remember any of the principal evils that he laid to the charge of women?

Ros There were none principal, they were all like one another as half-pence are, every one fault seeming monstrous till his fellow fault came to match it

Orl I prithee, recount some of them

Ros No, I will not cast away my physic, but on those that are sick There is a man haunts the forest, that abuses our young plants with carving 'Rosalind' on their barks, hangs odes upon hawthorns, and elegies on brambles, all forsooth, deifying the name of Rosalind if I could meet that fancy-monger, I would give him some good counsel, for he seems to have the quotidian of love upon him

Orl I am he that is so love-shaked I pray you, tell me your remedy

Ros There is none of my uncle's marks upon you he taught me how to know a man in love, in which cage of rushes I am sure you are not prisoner

Orl What were his marks?

Ros A lean cheek, which you have not, a blue eye and sunken, which you have not, an unquestionable spirit, which you have not, a beard neglected, which you have not but I pardon you for that, for, simply, your having in beard is a younger brother's revenue Then, your hose should be ungartered, your bonnet unbanded, your sleeve unbuttoned, your shoe untied, and everything about you demonstrating a careless desolation But you are no such man you are rather point-device in your accountments, as loving yourself than seeming the lover of any other

Orl Fair youth, I would I could make thee believe I love

Ros Me believe it? you may as soon make her that you love believe it, which, I warrant, she is apter to do than to confess she does, that is one of the points in the which women still give the lie to their consciences But, in good sooth, are you he that hangs the verses on the trees, wherein Rosalind is so admired?

Orl I swear to thee, youth, by the white hand of Rosalind, I am that he, that unfortunate he Ros But are you so much in love as your rimes speak?

Orl Neither mine nor reason can express how much

Ros Love is merely a madness, and, I tell you, deserves as well a dark house and a whip as madmen do, and the reason why they are not so punished and cured is, that the lunacy is so ordinary that the whippers are in love too Yet I profess curing it by counsel

Orl Did you ever cure any so?

Ros Yes, one, and in this manner He was to imagine me his love, his mistress, and I set him every day to woo me at which time would I, being but a moonish youth, grieve, be effeminate, changeable, longing and liking, proud, fantastical, apish, shallow, inconstant, full of tears, full of smiles, for every passion something, and for no passion truly anything, as boys and women are, for the most part, cattle of this colour, would now like him, now loathe him, then entertain him, then forswear him, now weep for him, then spit at him, that I drave my suitor from his mad humour of love to a living humour of madness, which was, to forswear the full stream of the world, and to live in a nook merely monastic And thus I cured him, and thus way will I take upon me to wash your liver as clean as a sound sheep's heart, that there shall not be one spot of love in't

Orl I would not be cured, youth

Ros I would cure you, if you would but call me Rosalind, and come every day to my cote and woo me

Orl Now, by the faith of my love, I will tell me where it is Ros Go with me to it and I'll show it you, and by the way you shall tell me where in the forest you live Will you go?

Orl With all my heart, good youth.

Ros Nay, you must call me Rosalind Come, sister, will you go? [Exeunt]

SCENE III — Another Part of the Forest

Enter TOUCHSTONE and AUDREY, JAKES behind

Touch Come apace, good Audrey I will fetch up your goats, Audrey And how, Audrey? am I the man yet? doth my simple feature content you?

Aud Your features! Lord warrant us! what features?

Touch I am here with thee and thy goats, as the most capricious poet, honest Ovid, was among the Goths Jaq [Aside] O knowledge ill-inhabited, worse than Jove in a thatch'd house!

Touch When a man's verses cannot be understood, nor a man's good wit seconded with the forward child Understanding, it strikes a man more dead than a great reckoning in a little room Truly, I would the gods had made thee poetical

Aud I do not know what 'poetical' is Is it honest in deed and word? Is it a true thing?

Touch No, truly, for the truest poetry is the most feigning, and lovers are given to poetry, and what they swear in poetry may be said as lovers they do feign

Aud Do you wish then that the gods had made me poetical?

Touch I do, truly, for thou swearest to me thou art honest now, if thou wert a poet, I might have some hope thou didst feign 29

Aud Would you not have me honest?

Touch No, truly, unless thou wert hard-favour'd, for honesty coupled to beauty is to have honey a sauce to sugar 33

Jaq [Aside] A material fool

Aud Well, I am not fair, and therefore I pray the gods make me honest 36

Touch Truly, and to cast away honesty upon a foul slut were to put good meat into an unclean dish

Aud I am not a slut, though I thank the gods I am foul 41

Touch Well, praised be the gods for thy foulness! slut-tishness may come hereafter. But be it as it may be, I will marry thee and to that end I have been with Sir Oliver Martext, the vicar of the next village who hath promised to meet me in this place of the forest, and to couple us

Jaq [Aside] I would fain see this meeting

Aud Well, the gods give us joy! 49

Touch Amen! A man may, if he were of a fearful heart, stagger in this attempt, for here we have no temple but the wood, no assembly but horn-beasts. But what though? Courage! As horns are odious, they are necessary. It is said, 'many a man knows no end of his goods' right, many a man has good horns, and knows no end of them. Well, that is the dowry of his wife, 'tis none of his own getting. Horns? Even so. Poor men alone? No, no, the noblest deer hath them as huge as the rascal. Is the single man therefore blessed? No. As a walled town is more worthier than a village, so is the forehead of a married man more honourable than the bare brow of a bachelor and by how much defence is better than no skull, by so much is a horn more precious than to want. Here comes Sir Oliver 67

Enter SIR OLIVER MARTEXT

Sir Oliver Martext, you are well met. Will you dispatch us here under this tree, or shall we go with you to your chapel?

Sir Oli Is there none here to give the woman? 72

Touch I will not take her on gift of any man

Sir Oli Truly, she must be given, or the marriage is not lawful 76

Jaq [Coming forward] Proceed, proceed. I'll give her

Touch Good even, good Master. What-yecall't? how do you, sir? You are very well met. God 'ild you for your last company. I am very glad to see you even a toy in hand here, sir nay, pray be covered

Jaq Will you be married, motley? 84

Touch As the ox hath his bow, sir, the horse his curb, and the falcon her bells, so man hath his desires, and as pigeons bill, so wedlock would be nibbling 88

Jaq And will you, being a man of your breeding, be married under a bush, like a beggar? Get you to church, and have a good priest that can tell you what marriage is. This fellow will but join you together as they join wainscot, then one of you will prove a shrunk panel, and like green tumber, warp, warp 95

Touch [Aside] I am not in the mind but I were better to be married of him than of another for he is not like to marry me well, and not being well married, it will be a good excuse for me hereafter to leave my wife 100

Jaq Go thou with me, and let me counsel thee

Touch Come, sweet Audrey. We must be married, or we must live in bawdry. Farewell, good Master Oliver. not 104

O sweet Oliver!
O brave Oliver!
Leave me not behind thee but,—

Wind away
Begone I say
I will not to wedding with thee

108

[Exeunt JAQES, TOUCHSTONE, and AUDREY
Sir Oli 'Tis no matter ne'er a fantastical knave of them all shall flout me out of my calling
[Exit]

SCENE IV — Another Part of the Forest

Enter ROSALIND and CELIA

Ros Never talk to me. I will weep

Cel Do, I prithee, but yet have the grace to consider that tears do not become a man

Ros But have I not cause to weep? 4

Cel As good cause as one would desire, therefore weep

Ros His very hair is of the dissembling colour

Cel Something browner than Judas's, marry, his kisses are Judas's own children 9

Ros I' faith, his hair is of a good colour

Cel An excellent colour. Your chesnut was ever the only colour 12

Ros And his kissing is as full of sanctity as the touch of holy bread

Cel He hath bought a pair of cast lips of Diana. A nun of winter's sisterhood kisses not more religiously, the very vice of chastity is in them

Ros But why did he swear he would come this morning, and comes not?

Cel Nay, certainly, there is no truth in him

Ros Do you think so? 21

Cel Yes. I think he is not a pick-purse nor a horse-stealer, but for his verity in love, I do think him as concave as a covered goblet or a worm-eaten nut 25

Ros Not true in love?

Cel Yes, when he is in, but I think he is not in 28

Ros You have heard him swear downright he was Cel 'Was' is not 'is' besides, the oath of a lover is no stronger than the word of a tapster, they are both the confirmers of false reckonings. He attends here in the forest on the duke your father 35

Ros I met the duke yesterday and had much question with him. He asked me of what parentage I was, I told him, of as good as he, so he laughed, and let me go. But what talk we of fathers, when there is such a man as Orlando?

Cel O, that's a brave man! he writes brave verses, speaks brave words, swears brave oaths, and breaks them bravely, quite traverse athwart the heart of his lover, as a pusny tilter, that spurs his horse but on one side, breaks his staff like a noble goose. But all's brave that youth mounts and folly guides. Who comes here?

Enter CORIN

Cor Mistress and master, you have oft inquired.

After the shepherd that complain'd of love,
Who you saw sitting by me on the turf,
Praising the proud disdainful shepherdess
That was his mistress.

Cel Well, and what of him? 2
Cor If you will see a pageant truly play'd, Between the pale complexion of true love
And the red glow of scorn and proud disdain, Go hence a little, and I shall conduct you, 56
If you will mark it.

Ros O! come, let us remove
The sight of lovers feedeth those in love Bring us to this sight, and you shall say I'll prove a busy actor in their play. [Exeunt]

SCENE V—Another Part of the Forest

Enter SILVIUS and PHEBE

Sil Sweet Phebe, do not scorn me, do not, Phebe
Say that you love me not, but say not so
In bitterness. The common executioner, Whose heart the accustom'd sight of death makes hard, 4
Falls not the axe upon the humbled neck
But first begs pardon. Will you sterner be Than he that dies and lives by bloody drops?

Enter ROSALIND, CELIA, and CORIN, behind

Phe I would not be thy executioner 8
I fly thee, for I would not injure thee Thou tell'st me there is murder in mine eye
'Tis pretty, sure, and very probable, That eyes, that are the frailest and softest
things, 12
Who shut their coward gates on atomies,
Should be call'd tyrants, butchers, murderers!
Now I do frown on thee with all my heart,
And, if mine eyes can wound, now let them kill
thee, 16
Now counterfeit to swoond, why now fall down,
Or, if thou canst not, O! for shame for shame,
Lie not, to say mine eyes are murderers Now show the wound mine eye hath made in
thee, 20
Scratch thee but with a pin, and there remains
Some scar of it, lean but upon a rush,
The cicatrice and capable impressure Thy palm some moment keeps, but now mine
eyes, 24

Which I have darted at thee, hurt thee not, Nor, I am sure, there is no force in eyes
That can do hurt.

Sil O dear Phebe,
If ever,—as that ever may be near,— 28
You meet in some fresh cheek the power of fancy,
Then shall you know the wounds invisible
That love's keen arrows make.

Phe But, till that time Come not thou near me, and, when that time comes, 32
Afflict me with thy mocks, pity me not,
As, till that time I shall not pity thee.
Ros [Advancing] And why, I pray you?
Who might be your mother,
That you insult, exult and all at once, 36
Over the wretched? What though you have no beauty,—

As by my faith, I see no more in you Than without candle may go dark to bed,— Must you be therefore proud and pitiless? 40 Why, what means this? Why do you look on
me?

I see no more in you than in the ordinary
Of nature's sale-work. O! 's my little life!
I think she means to tangle my eyes too. 44
No, faith, proud mistress, hope not after it.
'Tis not your inky brows, your black silk hair,
Your bugle eyeballs, nor your cheek of cream,
That can entame my spirits to your worship. 48
You foolish shepherd, wherefore do you follow
her,

Like foggy south puffing with wind and rain?
You are a thousand times a properer man Than she a woman. 'Tis such fools as you 52
That make the world full of ill-favour'd children.
'Tis not her glass, but you, that flatters her,
And out of you she sees herself more proper Than any of her lineaments can show her. 56
But, mistress, know yourself down on your knees,
And thank heaven, fasting, for a good man's
love.

For I must tell you friendly in your ear,
Sell when you can, you are not for all markets.
Cry the man mercy, love him, take his offer. 61
Foul is most foul, being foul to be a scoffer.
So take her to thee, shepherd. Fare you well.
Phe Sweet youth, I pray you, chide a year
together. 64

I had rather hear you chide than this man woo.
Ros He's fallen in love with her foulness and she'll fall in love with my answer. If it be so, as fast as she answers thee with frowning looks, I'll saUCE her with bitter words. Why look you so upon me?

Phe For no ill will I bear you.
Ros I pray you, do not fall in love with me,
For I am falsest than words made in wine. 73 Besides, I like you no. If you will know my
house,
'Tis at the tuft of olives here hard by.
Will you go, sister? Shepherd, ply her hard. 76
Come, sister. Shepherdess, look on him better,

And be not proud though all the world could
see,
None could be so abus'd in sight as he Come, to our flock 80

[Exeunt ROSALIND, CELIA, and CORIN Phe Dead shepherd, now I find thy saw of might

'Who ever lov'd that lov'd not at first sight?'

Sil Sweet Phebe,—

Phe Ha! what sayst thou, Silvius?

Sil Sweet Phebe, pity me 84

Phe Why, I am sorry for thee, gentle Silvius

Sil Wherever sorrow is, relief would be

If you do sorrow at my grief in love,

By giving love your sorrow and my grief 88

Were both exterrmin'd Phe Thou hast my love is not that neighbourly?

Sil I would have you

Phe Why, that were covetousness

Silvius, the time was that I hated thee, 92

And yet it is not that I bear thee love

But since that thou canst talk of love so well,

Thy company, which erst was irksome to me,

I will endure, and I'll employ thee too, 96

But do not look for further recompense

Than thine own gladness that thou art employ'd.

Sil So holy and so perfect is my love,

And I in such a poverty of grace, 100

That I shall think it a most plenteous crop

To glean the broken ears after the man

That the main harvest reaps loose now and then

A scatter'd smile, and that I'll live upon 104

Phe Know'st thou the youth that spoke to me erewhile?

Sil Not very well, but I have met him oft,

And he hath bought the cottage and the bounds

That the old carlot once was master of 108

Phe Think not I love him, though I ask for

him.

'Tis but a peevish boy, yet he talks well,

But what care I for words? yet words do well,

When he that speaks them pleases those that

hear 112

It is a pretty youth not very pretty

But, sure, he's proud, and yet his pride becomes him

He'll make a proper man the best thing in him

Is his complexion, and faster than his tongue

Did make offence his eye did heal it up 117

He is not very tall, yet for his years he's tall

His leg is but so so, and yet 'tis well

There was a pretty redness in his lip, 120

A little riper and more lustrous red

Than that mix'd in his cheek, 'twas just the difference

Between the constant red and mingled damask

There be some women, Silvius, had they mark'd 124

him

In parcels as I did, would have gone near

To fall in love with him, but, for my part,

I love him not nor hate him not, and yet

Have more cause to hate him than to love him

For what had he to do to chide at me? 129

He said mine eyes were black and my hair black,

And, now I am remember'd, scorn'd at me
I marvel why I answer'd not again 132

But that's all one, omittance is no quittance

I'll write to him a very taunting letter,

And thou shalt bear it wilt thou, Silvius?

Sil Phebe, with all my heart

Phe I'll write it straight,

The matter's in my head and in my heart

I will be bitter with him and passing short

Go with me, Silvius. [Exeunt

ACT IV

SCENE I —The Forest of Arden

Enter ROSALIND, CELIA, and JACQUES

Jaq I prithee, pretty youth, let me be better acquainted with thee

Ros They say you are a melancholy fellow

Jaq I am so, I do love it better than laughing 5

Ros Those that are in extremity of either are abominable fellows, and betray themselves to every modern censure worse than drunkards 8

Jaq Why, 'tis good to be sad and say nothing

Ros Why, then, 'tis good to be a post

Jaq I have neither the scholar's melancholy, which is emulation, nor the musician's, which is fantastical nor the courtier's, which is proud, nor the soldier's, which is ambitious, nor the lawyer's, which is politic, nor the lady's, which is nice, nor the lover's, which is all these but it is a melancholy of mine own, compounded of many samples, extracted from many objects, and indeed the sundry contemplation of my travels, which, by often rumination, wraps me in a most humorous sadness 21

Ros A traveller! By my faith, you have great reason to be sad I fear you have sold your own lands to see other men's, then, to have seen much and to have nothing, is to have rich eyes and poor hands 26

Jaq Yes, I have gained my experience

Ros And your experience makes you sad I had rather have a fool to make me merry than experience to make me sad and to travel for it

too! 31

Enter ORLANDO

Orl Good day, and happiness, dear Rosalind!

Jaq Nay then, God be wi' you, an you talk in blank verse [Exit

Ros Farewell, Monsieur Traveller look you

hup, and wear strange suits, disable all the benefits of your own country, be out of love with your nativity, and almost chide God for making you that countenance you are, or I will scarce think you have swam in a gondola Why, how now, Orlando! where have you been all this while? You a lover! An you serve me such another trick never come in my sight more

Orl My fair Rosalind, I come within an hour of my promise 45

Ros Break an hour's promise in love! He that will divide a minute into a thousand parts, and break but a part of the thousandth part of a minute in the affairs of love, it may be said of him that Cupid hath clapped him o' the shoulder, but I'll warrant him heart-whole

Orl Pardon me, dear Rosalind 52

Ros Nay, any ou be so tardy, come no more in my sight I had as lief be wooed of a snail Orl Of a snail!

Ros Ay, of a snail, for though he comes slowly, he carries his house on his head, a better jointure, I think, than you make a woman besides, he brings his destiny with him

Orl What's that? 60

Ros Why, horrors, that such as you are fain to be beholding to your wives for but he comes armed in his fortune and prevents the slander of his wife 64

Orl Virtue is no horn-maker, and my Rosalind is virtuous

Ros And I am your Rosalind?

Cel It pleases him to call you so, but he hath a Rosalind of a better leer than you 69

Ros Come, woo me, woo me, for now I am in a holiday humour, and like enough to consent What would you say to me now, an I were your very very Rosalind? 73

Orl I would kiss before I spoke

Ros Nay, you were better speak first, and when you were gravelled for lack of matter, you might take occasion to kiss Very good orators, when they are out, they will spit, and for lovers lacking,—God warn us!—matter, the cleanest shift is to kiss 80

Orl How if the kiss be denied?

Ros Then she puts you to entreaty, and there begins new matter

Orl Who could be out, being before his beloved mistress? 85

Ros Marry, that should you, if I were your mistress, or I should think my honesty ranker than my wit 88

Orl What, of my suit?

Ros Not out of your apparel, and yet out of your suit Am not I your Rosalind?

Orl I take some joy to say you are, because I would be talking of her 93

Ros Well, in her person I say I will not have you

Orl Then in mine own person I die 96

Ros No, faith, die by attorney The poor world is almost six thousand years old and in all this time there was not any man died in his own person, videlicet, in a love-cause Troilus had his brains dashed out with a Grecian club, yet he did what he could to die before, and he is one of the patterns of love Leander, he would have lived many a fair year, though Hero had turned nun, if it had not been for a hot midsummer night, for, good youth, he went but forth to wash him in the Hellespont, and being taken with the cramp was drowned, and the foolish coroners of that age found it was 'Hero of Sestos' But these are all lies men have died from time to time, and worms have eaten them, but not for love. 112

Orl I would not have my right Rosalind of this mind, for, I protest, her frown might kill me

Ros By this hand, it will not kill a fly But come, now I will be your Rosalind in a more coming-on disposition, and ask me what you will, I will grant it

Orl Then 'ove me, Rosalind 120

Ros Yes, faith will I, Fridays and Saturdays and all

Orl And wilt thou have me?

Ros Ay, and twenty such 124

Orl What sayest thou?

Ros Are you not good?

Orl I hope so

Ros Why then, can one desire too much of a good thing?—Come, sister, you shall be the priest and marry us—Give me your hand, Orlando What do you say, sister?

Orl Pray thee, marry us 132

Cel I cannot say the words

Ros You must begin,—'Will you, Orlando,'—Cel Go to—Will you, Orlando, have to wife this Rosalind? 136

Orl I will

Ros Ay but when?

Orl Why now as fast as she can marry us

Ros Then you must say, 'I take thee, Rosalind, for wife' 141

Orl I take thee, Rosalind, for wife

Ros I might ask you for your commission, but, I do take thee, Orlando, for my husband there's a girl goes before the priest, and, certainly, a woman's thought runs before her actions

Orl So do all thoughts, they are winged 148

Ros Now tell me how long you would have her after you have possessed her?

Orl For ever and a day

Ros Say 'a day,' without the 'ever' No, no, Orlando, men are April when they woo, December when they wed maids are May when they are maids but the sky changes when they are wives I will be more jealous of thee than a Barbary cock-pigeon over his hen, more clamorous than a parrot against rain, more newfangled than an ape, more giddy in my desires than a monkey I will weep for nothing, like Diana in the fountain, and I will do that when you are disposed to be merry, I will laugh like a hyen, and that when thou art inclined to sleep

Orl But will my Rosalind do so? 164

Ros By my life, she will do as I do

Orl O! but she is wise

Ros Or else she could not have the wit to do this the wiser, the waywarder make the doors upon a woman's wit, and it will out at the casement, shut that, and 'twill out at the key-hole, stop that, 'twill fly with the smoke out at the chimney 172

Orl A man that hath a wife with such a wit, he might say, 'Wit, whither wilt?'

Ros Nay, you might keep that check for it till you met your wife's wit going to your neighbour's bed 177

Orl And what wit could wit have to excuse that?

Ros Marry, to say she came to seek you there You shall never take her without her answer, unless you take her without her tongue. O!
that woman that cannot make her fault her husband's occasion, let her never nurse her child herself, for she will breed it like a fool. 185 Orl For these two hours, Rosalind, I will leave thee

Ros Alas! dear love, I cannot lack thee two hours. 189

Orl I must attend the duke at dinner by two o'clock I will be with thee again

Ros Ay, go your ways, go your ways, I knew what you would prove, my friends told me as much, and I thought no less that flattering tongue of yours won me 'tis but one cast away, and so, come, death! Two o'clock is your hour?

Orl Ay, sweet Rosalind. 197

Ros By my troth, and in good earnest, and so God mend me, and by all pretty oaths that are not dangerous, if you break one jot of your promise or come one minute behind your hour, I will think you the most pathological break-promise, and the most hollow lover, and the most unworthy of her you call Rosalind, that may be chosen out of the gross band of the unfaithful. Therefore, beware my censure, and keep your promise

Orl With no less religion than if thou wert indeed my Rosalind so, adieu. 209

Ros Well, Time is the old justice that examines all such offenders, and let Time try Adieu. [Exit ORLANDO]

Cel You have simply misused our sex in your love-prate we must have your doublet and hose plucked over your head, and show the world what the bird hath done to her own nest. 216

Ros O coz, coz, coz, my pretty little coz, that thou didst know how many fathom deep I am in love! But it cannot be sounded my affection hath an unknown bottom, like the bay of Portugal

Cel Or rather, bottomless, that as fast as you pour affection in, it runs out. 222

Ros No, that same wicked bastard of Venus, that was begot of thought, conceived of spleen, and born of madness, that blind rascally boy that abuses every one's eyes because his own are out, let him be judge how deep I am in love. I'll tell thee, Athena, I cannot be out of the sight of Orlando. I'll go find a shadow and sigh till he come. 230

Cel And I'll sleep

[Exeunt]

SCENE II — Another Part of the Forest

Enter JACQUES, Lords, and Foresters

Jaq Which is he that killed the deer?

First Lord Sir, it was I

Jaq Let's present him to the duke, like a Roman conqueror, and it would do well to set the deer's horns upon his head for a branch of victory.
Have you no song, forester, for this purpose? 6

Second Lord Yes, sir

Jaq Sing it 'tis no matter how it be in tune so it make noise enough

SONG

What shall he have that kill'd the deer?
His leather skin and horns to wear
Then sung him home. 12

[The rest shall bear this burden

Take thou no scorn to wear the horn
It was a crest ere thou wast born Thy father's father wore it,
And thy father bore it. 16
The horn the horn the lusty horn
Is not a thing to laugh to scorn

[Exeunt]

SCENE III — Another Part of the Forest

Enter ROSALIND and CELIA

Ros How say you now? Is it not past two o'clock? And here much Orlando!

Cel I warrant you, with pure love and a troubled brain, he hath ta'en his bow and arrows, and is gone forth to sleep. Look, who comes here

Enter SILVIUS

Sil My errand is to you, fair youth
My gentle Phebe did bid me give you this. 8

[Giving a letter]
I know not the contents, but, as I guess
By the stern brow and waspish action
Which she did use as she was writing of it,
It bears an angry tenour. Pardon me, 12
I am but as a guiltless messenger

Ros Patience herself would startle at this letter,

And play the swaggerer. Bear this, bear all
She says I am not fair, that I lack manners, 16
She calls me proud, and that she could not love
me

Were man as rare as phoenix 'Od's my will!
Her love is not the hare that I do hunt
Why writes she so to me? Well, shepherd, well,
This is a letter of your own device. 21

Sil No, I protest, I know not the contents
Phebe did write it

Ros Come, come, you are a fool,
And turn'd into the extremity of love. 24
I saw her hand she has a leathern hand,
A freestone-colour'd hand, I verily did think That her old gloves were on, but 'twas her hands
She has a housewife's hand, but that's no matter. 28

I say she never did invent this letter,
This is a man's invention, and his hand

Sil Sure, it is hers

Ros Why 'tis a boisterous and a cruel style,
A style for challengers, why, she defies me, 33
Like Turk to Christian woman's gentle brain Could not drop forth such giant-rude invention.

Such Ethiop words, blacker in their effect. 36 Than in their countenance. Will you hear the letter?

Sil So please you, for I never heard it yet,
Yet heard too much of Phebe's cruelty

Ros She Phebes me Mark how the tyrant writes [Reads]

Art thou god to shepherd turn d
That a maiden's heart hath burn d?

Can a woman rail thus?

Sil Call you this railing?

Ros [reads]

Whv thy godhead laid apart,
Warr st thou with a woman's heart?

Did you ever hear such railing?

Whiles the eye of man did woo me
That could do no vengeance to me

Meaning me a beast

If the scorn of your bright eyne
Have power to raise such love in mine
Alack! in me what strange effect
Would they work in mild aspect.
Whiles you chid me I did love
How then might your prayers move!
He that brings this love to thee
Little knows this love in me
And by him seal up thy mind
Whether that thy youth and kind Will the faithful offer take Of me and all that I can make,
Or else by him my love deny
And then I'll study how to die

Sil Call you this chiding?

Cel Alas, poor shepherd!

Ros Do you pity him? no, he deserves no pity Wilt thou love such a woman? What, to make thee an instrument and play false strains upon thee! not to be endured! Well, go your way to her, for I see love hath made thee a tame snake, and say this to her that if she love me, I charge her to love thee if she will not, I will never have her, unless thou entreat for her If you be a true lover, hence, and not a word, for here comes more company [Exit SILVIUS]

Enter OLIVER

Ol Good morrow, fair ones Pray you if you know,

Where in the purlieus of this forest stands
A sheepcote fenc'd about with olive-trees?

Cel West of this place, down in the neighbour bottom

The rank of osiers by the murmuring stream
Left on your right hand brings you to the place
But at this hour the house doth keep itself, There's none within

Ol If that an eye may profit by a tongue,
Then should I know you by description,
Such garments, and such years 'The boy is fair,
Of female favour, and bestows himself'
Like a ripe sister but the woman low,
And browner than her brother' Are not you
The owner of the house I did inquire for?

Cel It is no boast, being ask'd, to say, we are Ol Orlando doth commend him to you

both,

And to that youth he calls his Rosalind He sends this bloody napkin Are you he?

Ros I am what must we understand by
this?

Ol Some of my shame, if you will know of
me

What man I am, and how, and why, and where This handkercher was stain'd

Cel I pray you, tell it.

Ol When last the young Orlando parted
from you

He left a promise to return again

Within an hour, and, pacing through the forest, Chewing the food of sweet and bitter fancy,

Lo, what befell! he threw his eye aside,

And mark what object did present itself

Under an oak, whose boughs were moss'd with age,

And high top bald with dry antiquity,

A wretched ragged man, o'ergrown with hair,

Lay sleeping on his back about his neck

A green and gilded snake had wreath'd itself,

Who with her head nuzzle in threats approach'd

The opening of his mouth, but suddenly,

Seeing Orlando, it unlink'd itself,

And with indentèd ghdes did slip away

Into a bush, under which bush's shade

A lioness, with udders all drawn dry,

Lay couching, head on ground, with catlike watch,

When that the sleeping man should stir, for 'tis

The royal disposition of that beast

To prey on nothing that doth seem as dead

This seen, Orlando did approach the man,

And found it was his brother, his elder brother

Cel O! I have heard him speak of that same

brother,

And he did render him the most unnatural

That liv'd 'mongst men

Ol And well he might so do,

For well I know he was unnatural

Ros But, to Orlando did he leave him there,

Food to the suck'd and hungry lioness?

Ol Twice did he turn his back and pur-pos'd so,

But kindness, nobler ever than revenge,

And nature, stronger than his just occasion,

Made him give battle to the lioness,

Who quickly fell before him in which hurtling

From miserable slumber I awak'd.

Cel Are you his brother?

Ros Was it you he rescu'd?

Cel Was't you that did so oft contrive to kill him?

Ol 'Twas I, but 'tis not I I do not shame

To tell you what I was, since my conversion

So sweetly tastes, being the thing I am

Ros But, for the bloody napkin?

Ol By and by.

When from the first to last, betwixt us two,

Tears our recountments had most kindly bath'd,

As how I came into that desert place —

In brief, he led me to the gentle duke,

Who gave me fresh array and entertainment,

Committing me unto my brother's love,

Who led me instantly unto his cave,

There stripp'd himself, and here, upon his arm

The lioness had torn some flesh away,

Which all this while had bled, and now he fainted,

And cried, in fainting, upon Rosalind Brief, I recover'd him, bound up his wound, 152
And, after some small space, being strong at heart,

He sent me hither, stranger as I am,
To tell this story, that you might excuse
His broken promise, and to give this napkin, Dy'd in his blood, unto the shepherd youth 157
That he in sport doth call his Rosalind

Cel [ROSALIND swoons] Why, how now, Ganymede! sweet Ganymede!

Oh Many will swoon when they do look on
blood 160

Cel There is more in it Cousin! Ganymede!
Oh Look, he recovers

Ros I would I were at home

Cel We'll lead you thither
I pray you, will you take him by the arm? 164

Oh Be of good cheer, youth You a man!
You lack a man's heart

Ros I do so, I confess it Ah, sirrah! a body would think this was well counterfeited I pray you, tell your brother how well I counterfeited Heigh-ho!

Oh. This was not counterfeited there is too great testimony in your complexion that it was a passion of earnest 173

Ros Counterfeit, I assure you

Oh Well then, take a good heart and counterfeit to be a man 176

Ros So I do, but, 'faith, I should have been a woman by right

Cel Come, you look paler and paler pray you, draw homewards Good sir, go with us 180

Oh That will I, for I must bear answer back
How you excuse my brother, Rosalind

Ros I shall devise something But, I pray you, commend my counterfeiting to him Will you go? [Exeunt

ACT V

SCENE I—The Forest of Arden

Enter TOUCHSTONE and AUDREY

Touch We shall find a time, Audrey patience, gentle Audrey

Aud Faith, the priest was good enough, for all the old gentleman's saying 4

Touch A most wicked Sir Oliver, Audrey, a most vile Martext But, Audrey, there is a youth here in the forest lays claim to you

Aud Ay, I know who 'tis he hath no interest in me in the world Here comes the man you mean, 10

Enter WILLIAM.

Touch It is meat and drink to me to see a lown By my troth, we that have good wits have nuch to answer for we shall be flouting, we annot hold.

Will Good even, Audrey

Aud God ye good even, William. 16

Will And good even to you, sir

Touch Good even, gentle friend. Cover thy head, cover thy head, nay, prithee, be covered How old are you, friend? 20

Will Five-and-twenty, sir

Touch A ripe age Is thy name William?

Will William, sir

Touch A fair name Wast born i' the forest
here? 25

Will Ay, sir, I thank God

Touch 'Thank God,' a good answer Art rich? 28

Will Faith, sir, so so

Touch 'So so,' is good, very good, very excellent good and yet it is not, it is but so so Art thou wise? 32

Will Ay, sir, I have a pretty wit

Touch Why, thou sayest well I do now remember a saying, 'The fool doth think he is wise, but the wise man knows himself to be a fool' The heathen philosopher, when he had a desire to eat a grape, would open his lips when he put it into his mouth, meaning thereby that grapes were made to eat and lips to open You do love this maid? 41

Will I do, sir

Touch Give me your hand Art thou learned?
Will No, sir 44

Touch Then learn this of me to have, is to have, for it is a figure in rhetoric, that drink, being poured out of a cup into a glass, by filling the one doth empty the other, for all your writers do consent that ipse is he now, you are not ipse, for I am he 50

Will Which he, sir?

Touch He, sir, that must marry this woman Therefore, you clown, abandon,—which is in the vulgar, leave,—the society,—which in the boorish is, company,—of this female,—which in the common is, woman, which together is, abandon the society of this female, or, clown, thou perishest, or, to thy better understanding, diest, or, to wit, I kill thee, make thee away, translate thy life into death, thy liberty into bondage I will deal in poison with thee, or in bastinado, or in steel, I will bandy with thee in faction, I will o'errun thee with policy, I will kill thee a hundred and fifty ways therefore tremble, and depart 64

Aud Do, good William

Will God rest you merry, sir [Exit

Enter CORIN

Cor Our master and mistress seek you come, away, away! 68

Touch Trip, Audrey! trip, Audrey! I attend,
I attend [Exeunt

SCENE II—Another Part of the Forest.

Enter ORLANDO and OLIVER.

Or! Is't possible that on so little acquaintance you should like her? that, but seeing, you should love her? and, loving, woo? and, wooing, she should grant? and will you persevere to enjoy
her? 5

Oh Neither call the giddiness of it in question, the poverty of her, the small acquaintance, my sudden wooing, nor her sudden consenting, but say with me, I love Aliena, say with her, that she loves me, consent with both, that we may enjoy each other it shall be to your good, for my father's house and all the revenue that was old Sir Rowland's will I estate upon you, and here live and die a shepherd 14

Orl You have my consent Let your wedding be to-morrow thither will I invite the duke and all's contented followers Go you and prepare Aliena, for, look you, here comes my Rosalind

Enter ROSALIND

Ros God save you, brother 20

Orl And you, fair sister [Exit]

Ros O! my dear Orlando, how it grieves me to see thee wear thy heart in a scarf

Orl It is my arm 24

Ros I thought thy heart had been wounded with the claws of a lion

Orl Wounded it is, but with the eyes of a lady 28

Ros Did your brother tell you how I counterfeted to swoon when he showed me your handkercher?

Orl Ay, and greater wonders than that 32

Ros O! I know where you are Nay, 'tis true there was never anything so sudden but the fight of two rams, and Cæsar's thrasonical brag of 'I came, saw, and overcame' for your brother and my sister no sooner met but they looked, no sooner looked but they loved, no sooner loved but they sighed, no sooner sighed but they asked one another the reason, no sooner knew the reason but they sought the remedy and in these degrees have they made a pair of stairs to marriage which they will climb incontinent, or else be incontinent before marriage They are in the very wrath of love, and they will together clubs cannot part them 46

Orl They shall be married to-morrow, and I will bid the duke to the nuptial But, O! how bitter a thing it is to look into happiness through another man's eyes By so much the more shall I to-morrow be at the height of heart-heaviness, by how much I shall think my brother happy in having what he wishes for 53

Ros Why then, to-morrow I cannot serve your turn for Rosalind?

Orl I can live no longer by thinking 56

Ros I will weary you then no longer with idle talking Know of me then,—for now I speak to some purpose,—that I know you are a gentleman of good conceit I speak not this that you should bear a good opinion of my knowledge, inasmuch I say I know you are, neither do I labour for a greater esteem than may in some little measure draw a belief from you, to do yourself good, and not to grace me Believe then, if you please, that I can do strange things I have, since I was three years old, conversed with a magician, most profound in his art and yet not damnable If you do love Rosalind so near the heart as your gesture cries it out, when your brother marries Aliena, shall you marry her

I know into what straits of fortune she is driven, and it is not impossible to me, if it appear not inconvenient to you, to set her before your eyes to-morrow, human as she is, and without any danger 76

Orl Speakest thou in sober meanings?

Ros By my life, I do, which I tender dearly, though I say I am a magician Therefore, put you in your best array, bid your friends, for if you will be married to-morrow, you shall, and to Rosalind, if you will Look, here comes a lover of mine, and a lover of hers

Enter SILVIUS and PHEBE

Phe Youth, you have done me much ungentleness, 84

To show the letter that I write to you

Ros I care not if I have it is my study

To seem despitelful and ungentle to you

You are there follow'd by a faithful shepherd

Look upon him, love him, he worships you 89

Phe Good shepherd, tell this youth what 'tis to love

Sil It is to be all made of sighs and tears, And so am I for Phebe 92

Phe And I for Ganymede

Orl And I for Rosalind

Ros And I for no woman

Sil It is to be all made of faith and service, And so am I for Phebe 97

Phe And I for Ganymede

Orl And I for Rosalind

Ros And I for no woman 100

Sil It is to be all made of fantasy, All made of passion, and all made of wishes, All adoration, duty, and observance, All humbleness, all patience, and impatience, All purity, all trial, all obeisance, 105

And so am I for Phebe

Phe And so am I for Ganymede

Orl And so am I for Rosalind 108

Ros And so am I for no woman

Phe [To ROSALIND] If this be so, why blame you me to love you? 113

Sil [To PHEBE] If this be so, why blame you me to love you?

Orl If this be so, why blame you me to love you?

Ros Why do you speak to, 'Why blame you me to love you?' 117

Orl To her that is not here, nor doth not hear

Ros Pray you, no more of this 'tis like the howling of Irish wolves against the moon [To SILVIUS] I will help you, if I can [To PHEBE] I would love you, if I could To-morrow meet me all together [To PHEBE] I will marry you, if ever I marry woman, and I'll be married to-morrow [To ORLANDO] I will satisfy you, if ever I satisfied man, and you shall be married to-morrow [To SILVIUS] I will content you, if what pleases you contents you, and you shall be married to-morrow [To ORLANDO] As you love Rosalind, meet [To SILVIUS] As you love Phebe, meet and as I love no woman, I'll meet So, fare you well I have left you commands 134

Sil I'll not fail, if I live

Phe Nor I

Orl Nor I

[Exeunt

SCENE III—Another Part of the Forest

Enter TOUCHSTONE and AUDREY

Touch To-morrow is the joyful day, Audrey, to-morrow will we be married

Aud I do desire it with all my heart, and I hope it is no dishonest desire to desire to be a woman of the world Here come two of the banished duke's pages 6

Enter two Pages

First Page Well met, honest gentleman

Touch By my troth, well met. Come, sit, sit, and a song 9

Sec Page We are for you sit r' the middle

First Page Shall we clap into't roundly, without hawking or spitting, or saying we are hoarse, which are the only prologues to a bad voice?

Sec Page I' faith, r' faith, and both in a tune, like two gypsies on a horse 17

SONG

It was a lover and his lass,

With a hey, and a ho, and a hey nonno,

That o'er the green corn field did pass

In the spring time the only pretty ring time 20

When birds do sing, hey ding a ding, ding,

Sweet lovers love the spring.

Between the acres of the rye

With a hey and a ho and a hey nonno,

These pretty country folks would be

In the spring time, &c.

This carol they began that hour

With a hey and a ho and a hey nonno,

How that a life was but a flower

In the spring time, &c

And therefore take the present time

With a hey and a ho and a hey nonno;

For love is crowned with the prime

In the spring time, &c.

Touch Truly, young gentlemen, though there was no great matter in the ditty, yet the note was very untuneable

First Page You are deceived, sir we kept time, we lost not our time 40

Touch By my troth, yes, I count it but time lost to hear such a foolish song God be wi' you, and God mend your voices! Come, Audr-y

[Exeunt

SCENE IV—Another Part of the Forest

Enter DUKE Senior, AMIENS, JACQUES, ORLANDO, OLIVER, and CELIA

Duke S Dost thou believe, Orlando, that the boy can do all this that he hath promised?

Orl I sometimes do believe, and sometimes do not,

As those that fear they hope, and know they fear 4

Enter ROSALIND, SILVIUS, and PHEBE

Ros Patience once more, whiles our compact is urg'd

[To the DUKE] You say, if I bring in your Rosalind,

You will bestow her on Orlando here?

Duke S That would I, had I kingdoms to give with her 8

Ros [To ORLANDO] And you say, you will have her when I bring her?

Orl That would I, were I of all kingdoms king

Ros [To PHEBE] You say, that you'll marry me, if I be willing?

Phe That will I, should I die the hour after

Ros But if you do refuse to marry me, 13

You'll give yourself to this most faithful shepherd?

Phe So is the bargain

Ros [To SILVIUS] You say, that you'll have Phebe, if she will? 16

Sil Though to have her and death were both one thing

Ros I have promis'd to make all this matter even Keep you your word, O duke, to give your daughter,

You yours, Orlando, to receive his daughter, 20

Keep your word, Phebe, that you'll marry me, Or else, refusing me, to wed this shepherd,

Keep your word, Silvius, that you'll marry her, If she refuse me and from hence I go, 24

To make these doubts all even

[Exeunt ROSALIND and CELIA.]

Duke S I do remember in this shepherd boy Some lively touches of my daughter's favour.

Orl My lord, the first time that I ever saw him, 28

Methought he was a brother to your daughter, But, my good lord, this boy is forest-born,

And hath been tutor'd in the rudiments Of many desperate studies by his uncle, 32

Whom he reports to be a great magician, Obscured in the circle of this forest

Enter TOUCHSTONE and AUDREY

Jaq There is, sure, another flood toward, and these couples are coming to the ark Here comes a pair of very strange beasts, which in all tongues are called fools 38

Touch Salutation and greeting to you all!

Jaq Good my lord, bid him welcome This is the motley-minded gentleman that I have so often met in the forest. he hath been a courtier, he swears 43

Touch If any man doubt that, let him put me to my purgation I have trod a measure, I have flattered a lady, I have been politic with my friend, smooth with mine enemy, I have undone three tailors, I have had four quarrels, and like to have fought one 49

Jaq And how was that ta'en up?
Touch Faith, we met, and found the quarrel was upon the seventh cause

Jaq How seventh cause? Good my lord, like this fellow

Duke S I like him very well Touch God 'ld you, sir, I desire you of the like I press in here, sir, amongst the rest of the country copulatives, to swear, and to forswear, according as marriage binds and blood breaks A poor virgin, sir, an ill-favoured thing, sir, but mine own a poor humour of mine, sir, to take that that no man else will Rich honesty dwells like a miser, sir, in a poor house, as your pearl in your foul oyster

Duke S By my faith, he is very swift and sententious

Touch According to the fool's bolt, sir, and such dulcet diseases

Jaq But, for the seventh cause, how did you find the quarrel on the seventh cause?

Touch Upon a he seven times removed — beary your body more seeming, Audrey — as thus, sir I did dislike the cut of a certain courtier's beard he sent me word, if I said his beard was not cut well, he was in the mind it was this is called 'the retort courteous' If I sent him word again, it was not well cut, he would send me word, he cut it to please himself this is called the 'quip modest' If again, it was not well cut, he disabled my judgment this is called the 'reply churlish' If again, it was not well cut, he would answer, I spake not true this is called the 'reproof valiant' if again, it was not well cut, he would say, I lie this is called the 'countercheck quarrelsome' and so to the 'lie circumstantial,' and the 'lie direct'

Jaq And how oft did you say his beard was not well cut?

Touch I durst go no further than the 'lie circumstantial,' nor he durst not give me the 'lie direct,' and so we measured swords and parted

Jaq Can you nominate in order now the degrees of the lie?

Touch O sir, we quarrel in print, by the book, as you have books for good manners I will name you the degrees The first, the 'retort courteous,' the second, the 'quip modest,' the third, the 'reply churlish,' the fourth, the 'reproof valiant,' the fifth, the 'countercheck quarrelsome,' the sixth, the 'lie with circumstance,' the seventh, the 'lie direct' All these you may avoid but the lie direct, and you may avoid that too, with an 'if' I knew when seven justices could not take up a quarrel, but when the parties were met themselves, one of them thought but of an 'if,' as 'If you said so, then I said so,' and they shook hands and swore brothers Your 'if' is the only peace-maker, much virtue in 'if'

Jaq Is not this a rare fellow, my lord? he's as good at any thing, and yet a fool

Duke S He uses his folly like a stalking-horse, and under the presentation of that he shoots his wit.

Enter HYMEN, leading ROSALIND in woman's clothes, and CELIA

Still Music

Hym Then is there mirth in heaven,
 When earthly things made even 116
 Atone together

*Good duke, receive thy daughter, Hymen from heaven brought her,
 Yea, brought her hither, 120*

That thou mightst join her hand with his, Whose heart within her bosom is

Ros [To DUKE S] To you I give myself, for I am yours

[To ORLANDO] To you I give myself, for I am
 yours 124

Duke S If there be truth in sight, you are my daughter

Orl If there be truth in sight, you are my Rosalind

Phe If sight and shape be true,
 Why then, my love adieu! 128

Ros [To DUKE S] I'll have no father, if you be not he

[To ORLANDO] I'll have no husband, if you be not he

[To PHEBE] Nor ne'er wed woman, if you be not she

Hym Peace, ho! I bar confusion 132
 'Tis I must make conclusion

*Of these most strange events
 Here s eight that must take hands*

To join in Hymen's bands, 136
 If truth holds true contents

[To ORLANDO and ROSALIND] You and you no cross shall part

[To OLIVER and CELIA] You and you are heart in heart

[To PHEBE] You to his love must accord,
 Or have a woman to your lord 141

[To TOUCHSTONE and AUDREY] You and you are sure together,

*As the winter to foul weather
 Whiles a wedlock hymn we sing, 144*

Feed yourselves with questioning, That reason wonder may diminish,

How thus we met, and these things finish.

SONG

Wedding is great Juno's crown 148
 O ble sed bond of board and bed!

'Tis Hymen peoples every town, High wedlock then be honoured.

Honour high honour and renown. 152
 To Hymen, god of every town!

Duke S O my dear niece! welcome thou art
 to me

Even daughter, welcome in no less degree

Phe [To SILVIUS] I will not eat my word, now thou art mine, 156

Thy faith my fancy to thee doth combine.

Enter JAKUES DE BOYS.

Jaq de B Let me have audience for a word or two

I am the second son of old Sir Rowland,

That bring these tidings to this fair assembly
 Duke Frederick, hearing how that every day 161
 Men of great worth resorted to this forest, Address'd a mighty power, which were on foot
 In his own conduct, purposely to take 164
 His brother here and put him to the sword
 And to the skirts of this wild wood he came,
 Where, meeting with an old religious man,
 After some question with him, was converted 168
 Both from his enterprise and from the world,
 His crown bequeathing to his banish'd brother,
 And all their lands restor'd to them again
 That were with him exil'd This to be true, 172
 I do engage my life

Duke S Welcome, young man,
 Thou offer'st fairly to thy brothers' wedding
 To one, his lands withheld, and to the other
 A land itself at large, a potent dukedom 176
 First, in this forest, let us do those ends
 That here were well begun and well begot,
 And after, every of this happy number That have endur'd shrewd days and nights with us, 180

 Shall share the good of our returned fortune,
 According to the measure of their states
 Meantime, forget this new-fall'n dignity,
 And fall into our rustic revelry 184
 Play, music! and you, brides and bridegrooms
 all,

With measure heap'd in joy, to the measures fall Jaq Sir, by your patience If I heard you rightly,

The duke hath put on a religious life, 188
 And thrown into neglect the pompous court?

Jaq de B He hath Jaq To him will I out of these convertites
 There is much matter to be heard and learn'd [To DUKE S] You to your former honour I bequeath, 193

Your patience and your virtue well deserve it [To ORLANDO] You to a love that your true faith doth merit

[To OLIVER] You to your land, and love, and great allies 196

[To SILVIUS] You to a long and well-deserved bed

[To TOUCHSTONE] And you to wrangling, for thy loving voyage

Is but for two months victual'd So, to your pleasures

I am for other than for dancing measures 200
 Duke S Stay, Jaques, stay

Jaq To see no pastime, I what you would have

I'll stay to know at your abandon'd cave [Exit Duke S Proceed, proceed we will begin these rites, 204

As we do trust they'll end, in true delights
 [A dance Exeunt

EPILOGUE

SPOKEN BY ROSALIND

It is not the fashion to see the lady the epilogue, but it is no more unhandsome than to see the lord the prologue If it be true that good wine needs no bush, 'tis true that a good play needs no epilogue yet to good wine they do use good bushes, and good plays prove the better by the help of good epilogues What a case am I in then, that am neither a good epilogue, nor cannot insinuate with you in the behalf of a good play! I am not furnished like a beggar, therefore to beg will not become me my way is, to conjure you and I'll begin with the women I charge you, O women! for the love you bear to men, to like as much of this play as please you and I charge you, O men! for the love you bear to women,—as I perceive by your simpering none of you hate them,—that between you and the women, the play may please If I were a woman I would kiss as many of you as had beards that pleased me, complexions that liked me, and breaths that I defied not, and, I am sure, as many as have good beards, or good faces, or sweet breaths, will, for my kind offer, when I make curtsy, bid me farewell

INDUCTION

SCENE I — Before an Alehouse on a Heath

Enter Hostess and SLY

Sly I'll pheeze you, in faith.

Host A pair of stools, you rogue!

Sly Y'are a baggage the Slys are no rogues, look in the chronicles, we came in with Richard Conqueror Therefore, paucas pallabris, let the world slide Sessa!

Host You will not pay for the glasses you have burst?

Sly No, not a denier Go by, Jeronimy, go to thy cold bed, and warm thee

Host I know my remedy I must go fetch the third-borough [Exit]

Sly Third, or fourth, or fifth borough, I'll answer him by law I'll not budge an inch, boy let him come, and kindly [Lies down on the ground, and falls asleep]

Horns wind Enter a Lord from hunting, with Huntsmen and Servants

Lord Huntsman, I charge thee, tender well my hounds

Brach Merriman, the poor cur is emboss'd, And couple Clowder with the deep-mouth'd brach Saw'st thou not, boy, how Silver made it good At the hedge-corner, in the coldest fault?

I would not lose the dog for twenty pound

First Hunt Why, Bellman is as good as he, my lord,

He cried upon it at the merest loss, And twice to-day pick'd out the dullest scent

Trust me, I take him for the better dog

Lord Thou art a fool if Echo were as fleet,

I would esteem him worth a dozen such

But sup them well, and look unto them all

To-morrow I intend to hunt again.

First Hunt. I will, my lord

Lord [Sees sly] What's here? one dead, or drunk? See, doth he breathe?

Sec Hunt He breathes, my lord. Were he not warm'd with ale,

This were a bed but cold to sleep so soundly

Lord O monstrous beast! how like a swine he lies!

Grim death, how foul and loathsome is thine image!

Sirs, I will practise on this drunken man

What think you, if he were convey'd to bed,

Wrapp'd in sweet clothes, rings put upon his fingers,

A most delicious banquet by his bed,

And brave attendants near him when he wakes,

Would not the beggar then forget himself?

First Hunt Believe me, lord, I think he cannot choose

Sec Hunt It would seem strange unto him when he wak'd

Lord Even as a flattering dream or worthless fancy

Then take him up and manage well the jest

Carry him gently to my fairest chamber,

And hang it round with all my wanton pictures,

Balm his foul head in warm distilled waters,

And burn sweet wood to make the lodging sweet

Procure me music ready when he wakes,

To make a dulcet and a heavenly sound,

And if he chance to speak, be ready straight,

And with a low submissive reverence

Say, 'What is it your honour will command?'

Let one attend him with a silver basin

Full of rose-water, and bestrew'd with flowers,

Another bear the ewer, the third a diaper,

And say, 'Will't please your lordship cool your hands?'

Some one be ready with a costly suit,

And ask him what apparel he will wear,

Another tell him of his hounds and horse,

And that his lady mourns at his disease

Persuade him that he hath been lunatic,

And, when he says he is — say that he dreams,

For he is nothing but a mighty lord

This do, and do it kindly, gentle sirs.

It will be pastime passing excellent,

If it be husbanded with modesty

First Hunt My lord, I warrant you we will play our part,
As he shall think, by our true diligence,
He is no less than what we say he is Lord Take him up gently, and to bed with
him, 72

And each one to his office when he wakes [Sly is borne out A trumpet sounds
Sirrah, go see what trumpet 'tis that sounds

[Exit Servant
Behike, some noble gentleman that means,
Travelling some journey, to repose him here 76

Re-enter Servant

How now! who is it?
Serv An it please your honour,
Players that offer service to your lordship Lord Bid them come near

Enter Players

Now, fellows, you are welcome

Players We thank your honour 80

Lord Do you intend to stay with me tonight?

A Player So please your lordship to accept our duty

Lord With all my heart This fellow I remember,

Since once he play'd a farmer's eldest son 84
'Twas where you woo'd the gentlewoman so
well

I have forgot your name, but, sure, that part
Was aptly fitted and naturally perform'd

A Player I think 'twas Soto that your honour
means 88

Lord 'Tis very true thou didst it excellent Well, you are come to me in happy time,
The rather for I have some sport in hand
Wherein your cunning can assist me much 92
There is a lord will hear you play to-night,
But I am doubtful of your modesties,
Lest, over-eying of his odd behaviour,—
For yet his honour never heard a play,— 96
You break into some merry passion
And so offend him, for I tell you, sirs,
If you should smile he grows impatient

A Player Fear not, my lord we can contain ourselves 100

Were he the veriest antick in the world

Lord Go, sirrah, take them to the buttery,
And give them friendly welcome every one Let them want nothing that my house affords

[Exeunt one with the Players

Sirrah, go you to Barthol'mew my page, 105
And see him dress'd in all suits like a lady That done, conduct him to the drunkard's chamber,

And call him 'madam,' do him obeisance 108
Tell him from me,—as he will win my love,—
He bear himself with honourable action,
Such as he hath observ'd in noble ladies
Unto their lords, by them accomplished 112
Such duty to the drunkard let him do
With soft low tongue and lowly courtesy;
And say, 'What is't your honour will command,

Wherein your lady and your humble wife 116
May show her duty, and make known her
love?'

And then, with kind embracements, tempting kisses,

And with declining head into his bosom,
Bid him shed tears, as being overjoy'd 120

To see her noble lord restor'd to health,
Who for this seven years hath esteemed him

No better than a poor and loathsome beggar
And if the boy have not a woman's gift 124

To ram a shower of commanded tears,
An onion will do well for such a shift,

Which in a napkin being close convey'd,
Shall in despite enforce a watery eye 128

See this dispatch'd with all the haste thou canst.
Anon I'll give thee more instructions

[Exit Servant.

I know the boy will well usurp the grace,
Voice, gait, and action of a gentlewoman 132

I long to hear him call the drunkard husband,
And how my men will stay themselves from laughter

When they do homage to this simple peasant.
I'll in to counsel them haply, my presence 136

May well abate the over merry spleen
Which otherwise would grow into extremes

[Exeunt

SCENE II —A Bedchamber in the Lord's House

Sly is discovered in a rich nightgown, with Attendants some with apparel, others with basin, ewer, and other appurtenances, and Lord, dressed like a servant

Sly For God's sake! a pot of small ale

First Serv Will't please your lordship drink a cup of sack?

Sec Serv Will't please your honour taste of these conserves?

Thrd Serv What raiment will your honour wear to-day? 4

Sly I am Christophero Sly, call not me honour, nor lordship I ne'er drank sack in my life, and if you give me any conserves, give me conserves of beef Ne'er ask me what raiment I'll wear, for I have no more doublets than backs, no more stockings than legs, nor no more shoes than feet nay, sometime more feet than shoes, or such shoes as my toes look through the overleather 13

Lord Heaven cease this idle humour in your honour!

O, that a mighty man, of such descent,
Of such possessions, and so high esteem, 16
Should be infused with so foul a spirit!

Sly What! would you make me mad? Am not I Christopher Sly, old Sly's son, of Burton-heath, by birth a pedlar, by education a card-maker, by transmutation a bear-herd, and now by present profession a tinker? Ask Marian Hacket, the fat ale-wife of Wincot, if she know me not if she say I am not fourteen pence on the score for sheer ale, score me up for the lyngest knave in Christendom. What! I am not bestraught here's—

First Serv O! this it is that makes your lady mourn 28

Sec Serv O! this it is that makes your servants droop

Lord Hence comes it that your kindred shuns your house,

As beaten hence by your strange lunacy.

O noble lord, bethink thee of thy birth, 32

Call home thy ancient thoughts from banishment,

And banish hence these abject lowly dreams

Look how thy servants do attend on thee,

Each in his office ready at thy beck 36

Wilt thou have music? hark! Apollo plays,

[Music]

And twenty caged nightingales do sing

Or wilt thou sleep? we'll have thee to a couch

Softer and sweeter than the lustful bed 40

On purpose trimm'd up for Semiramis

Say thou wilt walk, we will bestrew the ground

Or wilt thou ride? thy horses shall be trapp'd,

Their harness studded all with gold and pearl

Dost thou love hawking? thou hast hawks will soar 45

Above the morning lark or wilt thou hunt?

Thy hounds shall make the welkin answer them,

And fetch shrill echoes from the hollow earth 48

First Serv Say thou wilt course, thy greyhounds are as swift

As breathed stags, ay, fleetier than the roe

Sec Serv Dost thou love pictures? we will fetch thee straight

Adonis painted by a running brook, 52

And Cytherea all in sedges hid,

Which seem to move and wanton with her

breath,

Even as the waving sedges play with wind

Lord We'll show thee 10 as she was a maid,

And how she was beguiled and surpris'd, 57

As lively painted as the deed was done

Third Serv Or Daphne roaming through a thorny wood,

Scratching her legs that one shall swear she bleeds, 60

And at that sight shall sad Apollo weep,

So workmanly the blood and tears are drawn

Lord Thou art a lord and nothing but a lord

Thou hast a lady far more beautiful 64

Than any woman in this waning age

First Serv And till the tears that she hath shed for thee

Like envious floods o'er-run her lovely face,

She was the fairest creature in the world, 68

And yet she is inferior to none

Sly Am I a lord? and have I such a lady?

Or do I dream? or have I dream'd till now?

I do not sleep, I see, I hear, I speak, 72

I smell sweet savours, and I feel soft things

Upon my life, I am a lord indeed,

And not a tinker, nor Christophero Sly

Well, bring our lady hither to our sight, 76

And once again, a pot o' the smallest ale.

Sec Serv Will't please your mightiness to wash your hands?

[Servants present a ewer, basin, and napkin

O, how we joy to see your wit restor'd!

O, that once more you knew but what you are!

These fifteen years you have been in a dream, 81

Or, when you wak'd, so wak'd as if you slept

Sly These fifteen years! by my fay, a goodly nap

But did I never speak of all that time? 84

First Serv O! yes, my lord, but very idle

words,

For though you lay here in this goodly chamber,

Yet would you say ye were beaten out of door,

And rail upon the hostess of the house, 88

And say you would present her at the leet,

Because she brought stone jugs and no seal'd quarts

Sometimes you would call out for Cicely Hacket.

Sly Ay, the woman's maid of the house 92

Third Serv Why, sir, you know no house, nor no such maid,

Nor no such men as you have reckon'd up,

As Stephen Sly, and old John Naps of Greece,

And Peter Turf, and Henry Pimpernell, 96

And twenty more such names and men as these,

Which never were nor no man ever saw

Sly Now, Lord be thanked for my good amends! 100

All Amen

Sly I thank thee, thou shalt not lose by it

Enter the Page, as a lady, with Attendants

Page How fares my noble lord?

Sly Marry, I fare well, for here is cheer

enough 104

Where is my wife?

Page Here, noble lord what is thy will with

her? 108

Sly Are you my wife, and will not call me

husband?

My men should call me lord I am your good-

man

Page My husband and my lord, my lord and husband, 108

I am your wife in all obedience

Sly I know it well. What must I call her?

Lord Madam

Sly Al'ce madam, or Joan madam? 112

Lord Madam, and nothing else so lords

call ladies

Sly Madam wife, they say that I have dream'd

And slept above some fifteen year or more

Page Ay, and the time seems thirty unto me,

Being all this time abandon'd from your bed 117

Sly 'Tis much Servants, leave me and her

alone

Madam, undress you, and come now to bed.

Page Thrice noble lord, let me entreat of you to pardon me yet for a night or two, 121

Or, if not so, until the sun be set

For your physicians have expressly charg'd,

In peril to incur your former malady, 124

That I should yet absent me from your bed

I hope this reason stands for my excuse

Sly Ay, it stands so, that I may hardly tarry so long, but I would be loath to fall into my dreams again. I will therefore tarry, in spite of the flesh and the blood

Enter a Servant

Serv Your honour's players, hearing your amendment,
 Are come to play a pleasant comedy, 132
 For so your doctors hold it very meet,
 Seeing too much sadness hath congeal'd your blood,
 And melancholy is the nurse of frenzy
 Therefore they thought it good you hear a play,
 And frame your mind to mirth and merriment,
 Which bars a thousand harms and lengthens life Sly Marry, I will, let them play it Is not a commony a Christmas gambold or a tumbling-trick? 141

Page No, my good lord, it is more pleasing stuff

Sly What! household stuff?

Page It is a kind of history 144

Sly Well, we'll see't. Come, madam wife, sit by my side,
 And let the world slip we shall ne'er be younger [Flourish.]

ACT I

SCENE I—Padua A public Place

Enter LUCENTIO and TRANIO

Luc Tranio, since for the great desire I had To see fair Padua, nursery of arts,
 I am arriv'd for fruitful Lombardy,
 The pleasant garden of great Italy, 4
 And by my father's love and leave am arm'd
 With his good will and thy good company,
 My trusty servant well approv'd in all,
 Here let us breathe, and haply institute
 A course of learning and ingenious studies
 Pisa, renowned for grave citizens,
 Gave me my being and my father first,
 A merchant of great traffic through the world,
 Vincentio, come of the Bentivoli 13
 Vincentio's son, brought up in Florence,
 It shall become to serve all hopes conceiv'd,
 To deck his fortune with his virtuous deeds 16
 And therefore, Tranio, for the time I study, Virtue and that part of philosophy
 Will I apply that treats of happiness
 By virtue specially to be achiev'd

Tell me thy mind, for I have Pisa left
 And am to Padua come, as he that leaves
 A shallow plash to plunge him in the deep,
 And with satiety seeks to quench his thirst 24

Tra Mi perdonate, gentle master mine,
 I am in all affected as yourself,
 Glad that you thus continue your resolve
 To suck the sweets of sweet philosophy
 Only, good master, while we do admire
 This virtue and this moral discipline,
 I et's be no stoics nor no stocks, I pray,
 Or so devote to Aristotle's checks 32
 As Ovid be an outcast quite abjur'd Balk logic with acquaintance that you have,
 And practise rhetoric in your common talk,

Music and poesy use to quicken you, 36
 The mathematics and the metaphysics, Fall to them as you find your stomach serves
 you,
 No profit grows where is no pleasure ta'en,
 In brief, sir, study what you most affect 40

Luc Gramercies, Tranio, well dost thou advise

If Biondello, thou wert come ashore,
 We could at once put us in readiness,
 And take a lodging fit to entertain 44
 Such friends as time in Padua shall beget
 But stay awhile what company is this?
Tra Master, some show to welcome us to town

Enter BAPTISTA, KATHARINA, BIANCA, GREMIO, and HORTENSIO LUCENTIO and TRANIO stand aside

Bap Gentlemen, importune me no further,
 For how I firmly am resolv'd you know, 49
 That is, not to bestow my youngest daughter Before I have a husband for the elder
 If either of you both love Katharina, 52
 Because I know you well and love you well, Leave shall you have to court her at your pleasure

Gre To cart her rather she's too rough for me

There, there, Hortensio, will you any wife? 56 Kath [To BAPTISTA.] I pray you, sir, is it your will

To make a stale of me amongst these mates?
Hor Mates, maid! how mean you that? no mates for you,

Unless you were of gentler, milder mould 60
Kath I faith, sir, you shall never need to fear

I wis it is not half way to her heart, But if it were, doubt not her care should be
 To comb your noddle with a three-legg'd stool,
 And paint your face, and use you like a fool 65

Hor From all such devils, good Lord deliver us!

Gre And me too, good Lord!

Tra Hush, master! here is some good pastime toward 68

That wench is stark mad or wonderful froward

Luc But in the other's silence do I see Maid's mild behaviour and sobriety

Peace, Tranio! 72

Tra Well said, master, mum! and gaze your fill

Bap Gentlemen, that I may soon make good What I have said,—Bianca, get you in
 And let it not displease thee, good Bianca, 76
 For I will love thee ne'er the less, my girl.

Kath A pretty peat! it is best

Put finger in the eye, an she knew why Bian Sister, content you in my discontent.

Sir, to your pleasure humbly I subscribe 81
 My books and instruments shall be my company,

On them to look and practise by myself
Luc Hark, Tranio! thou mayst hear Minerva speak. 84

Hor Signior Baptista, will you beso strange?
 Sorry am I that our good will effects Bianca's grief

Gre Why will you mew her up,
 Signior Baptista, for this fiend of hell, 88
 And make her bear the penance of her tongue?

Bap Gentlemen, content ye, I am resolv'd Go in, Bianca [Exit BLANCA

And for I know she taketh most delight 92
 In music, instruments, and poetry, Schoolmasters will I keep within my house,
 Fit to instruct her youth If you, Hortensio,
 Or Signior Gremio, you, know any such, 96
 Prefer them hither, for to cunning men
 I will be very kind, and liberal
 To mine own children in good bringing up,
 And so, farewell Katharina, you may stay, 100
 For I have more to commune with Bianca

[Exit Kath Why, and I trust I may go too, may I
 not?

What! shall I be appointed hours, as though,
 belike, 103

I knew not what to take, and what to leave?
 Ha! [Exit

Gre You may go to the devil's dam your gifts are so good, here's none will hold you.
 Their love is not so great, Hortensio, but we may blow our nails together, and fast it fairly out our cake's dough on both sides Farewell yet, for the love I bear my sweet Bianca, if I can by any means light on a fit man to teach her that wherein she delights, I will wish him to her father 113

Hor So will I, Signior Gremio but a word,
 I pray Though the nature of our quarrel yet never brooked parle, know now, upon advice, it toucheth us both,—that we may yet again have access to our fair mistress and be happy rivals in Bianca's love,—to labour and effect one thing specially 120

Gre What's that, I pray?

Hor Marry, sir, to get a husband for her sister

Gre A husband! a devil 124

Hor I say, a husband

Gre I say, a devil Thinkest thou, Hortensio, though her father be very rich, any man is so very a fool to be married to hell? 128

Hor Tush, Gremio! though it pass your patience and mine to endure her loud alarms, why, man, there be good fellows in the world, an a man could light on them, would take her with all faults, and money enough 133

Gre I cannot tell, but I had as lief take her dowry with this condition, to be whipped at the high-cross every morning 136

Hor Faith, as you say, there's small choice in rotten apples But, come, since this bar in law makes us friends, it shall be so far forth friendly maintained, till by helping Baptista's eldest daughter to a husband, we set his youngest free for a husband, and then have to 't afresh Sweet Bianca! Happy man be his dole! He that runs fastest gets the ring How say you, Signior Gremio? 145

Gre I am agreed and would I had given him the best-horse in Padua to begin his wooing, that would thoroughly woo her, wed her, and bed her, and rid the house of her Come on 149

[Exit GREMIO and HORTENSIO

Tra I pray, sir, tell me, is it possible
 That love should of a sudden take such hold?

Luc O Tranio! till I found it to be true, 152
 I never thought it possible or likely,

But see, while idly I stood looking on,
 I found the effect of love in idleness,
 And now in plainness do confess to thee, 156

That art to me as secret and as dear
 As Anna to the Queen of Carthage was,

Tranio, I burn, I pine, I perish, Tranio,
 If I achieve not this young modest girl 160

Counsel me, Tranio, for I know thou canst Assist me, Tranio, for I know thou wilt

Tra Master, it is no time to chide you now, Affection is not rated from the heart 164

If love have touch'd you, nought remains but so,
Redime te captum, quam queas minimo

Luc Gramercies, lad, go forward this contents 167

The rest will comfort, for thy counsel's sound.

Tra Master, you look'd so longly on the maid,

Perhaps you mark'd not what's the pith of all

Luc O yes, I saw sweet beauty in her face,
 Such as the daughter of Agenor had, 172

That made great Jove to humble him to her
 hand,

When with his knees he kiss'd the Cretan strand

Tra Saw you no more? mark'd you not how her sister

Began to scold and raise up such a storm 176
 That mortal ears might hardly endure the din?

Luc Tranio, I saw her coral lips to move,
 And with her breath she did perfume the air,

Sacred and sweet was all I saw in her 180

Tra Nay, then, 'tis time to stir him from his trance

I pray, awake, sir if you love the maid, Bend thoughts and wits to achieve her Thus it stands

Her elder sister is so curst and shrewd, 184
 That till the father rids his hands of her,

Master, your love must live a maid at home,
 And therefore has he closely mew'd her up, 187

Because she will not be annoy'd with suitors

Luc Ah, Tranio, what a cruel father's he!
 But art thou not advs'd he took some care

To get her cunning schoolmasters to instruct
 her?

Tra Ay, marry, am I, sir, and now 'tis plotted 192

Luc I have it, Tranio

Tra Master, for my hand,
 Both our inventions meet and jump in one.

Luc Tell me thine first.

Tra You will be schoolmaster,
 And undertake the teaching of the maid 196

That's your device

Luc It is may it be done?

Tra Not possible, for who shall bear your part,

And be in Padua here Vincentio's son?
 Keep house and ply his book, welcome his friends, 200
 Visit his countrymen, and banquet them?
Luc Basta content thee, for I have it full
 We have not yet been seen in any house,
 Nor can we be distinguish'd by our faces 204
 For man, or master then, it follows thus Thou shalt be master, Tranio, in my stead, Keep house, and port, and servants, as I should I will some other be, some Florentine, 208
 Some Neapolitan, or meaner man of Pisa
 'Tis natch'd and shall be so Tranio, at once Uncase thee, take my colour'd hat and cloak
 When Biondello comes, he waits on thee, 212
 But I will charm him first to keep his tongue [They exchange habits]

Tra So had you need
 In brief then, sir, sith it your pleasure is,
 And I am tied to be obedient, 216
 For so your father charg'd me at our parting,
 'Be serviceable to my son,' quoth he,
 Although I think 'twas in another sense
 I am content to be Lucentio, 220
 Because so well I love Lucentio Luc Tranio, be so, because Lucentio loves,
 And let me be a slave to achieve that maid Whose sudden sight hath thrall'd my wounded
 eye 224
 Here comes the rogue

Enter BIONDELLO

Sirrah, where have you been?
Bion Where have I been! Nay, how now!
 where are you?
 Master, has my fellow Tranio stol'n your clothes,
 Or you stol'n his? or both? pray, what's the news? 228
Luc Sirrah, come hither 'tis no time to jest,
 And therefore frame your manners to the time
 Your fellow Tranio, here, to save my life, Puts my apparel and my countenance on, 232
 And I for my escape have put on his,
 For in a quarrel since I came ashore
 I kill'd a man, and fear I was descried
 Wait you on him, I charge you, as becomes, 236
 While I make way from hence to save my life
 You understand me?

Bion I, sir! ne'er a whit
Luc And not a jot of Tranio in your mouth Tranio is changed to Lucentio 240 Bion The better for him would I were so
 too!
Tra So would I, faith, boy, to have the next wish after,
 That Lucentio indeed had Baptista's youngest daughter
 But, sirrah, not for my sake, but your master's,
 I advise 244
 You use your manners discreetly in all kind of companies

When I am alone, why, then I am Tranio,
 But in all places else your master, Lucentio Luc Tranio, let's go One thing more rests, that thyself execute, to make one among these wooters if thou ask me why, sufficeth my reasons are both good and weighty [Exeunt]

The Presenters above speak

First Serv My lord, you nod, you do not mind the play 252
Sly Yes, by Saint Anne, I do A good matter, surely comes there any more of it?
Page My lord, 'tis but begun Sh 'Tis a very excellent piece of work, madam lady would 'twere done! 257
[They sit and mark.]

SCENE II — The Same Before HORTENSIO'S House

Enter PETRUCHIO and GRUMIO

Pet Verona, for awhile I take my leave,
 To see my friends in Padua, but, of all My best beloved and approved friend, Hortensio, and I trow this is his house 4
 Here, sirrah Grumio, knock, I say Gru Knock, sir! whom should I knock? is there any man has rebused your worship?
Pet Villain, I say, knock me here soundly 8
Gru Knock you here, sir! why, sir, what am I, sir, that I should knock you here, sir?
Pet Villain, I say, knock me at this gate,
 And rap me well, or I'll knock your knave's pate 12
Gru My master is grown quarrelsome I should knock you first,
 And then I know after who comes by the worst Pet Will it not be?
 Faith, sirrah, an you'll not knock, I'll ring it, I'll try how you can sol fa, and sing it 17
[He wrings GRUMIO by the ears]
Gru Help, masters, help! my master is mad Pet Now, knock when I bid you, sirrah villain!

Enter HORTENSIO

Hor How now! what's the matter? My old friend Grumio! and my good friend Petruchio!
 How do you all at Verona?
Pet Signior Hortensio, come you to part the fray?
Con tutto il cuore ben trovato, may I say 24 Hor Alla nostra casa ben venuto, molto onorato signor mio Petruchio Rise, Grumio, rise we will compound this quarrel
Gru Nay, 'tis no matter, sir, what he 'leges in Latin If this be not a lawful cause for me to leave his service, look you, sir, he bid me knock him and rap him soundly, sir well, was it fit for a servant to use his master so, being, perhaps, for aught I see, two-and-thirty, a pip out? 33 Whom would to God, I had well knock'd at first,
 Then had not Grumio come by the worst Pet A senseless villain! Good Hortensio,
 I bade the rascal knock upon your gate, 37
 And could not get him for my heart to do it Gru Knock at the gate! O heavens! Spake you not these words plain, 'Sirrah, knock me here, rap me here, knock me well, and knock me soundly? And come you now with 'knocking at the gate?' 43

Pet Sirrah, be gone, or talk not, I advise you Hor Petruchio, patience, I am Grumio's pledge 45

Why, this 's a heavy chance 'twixt him and you, Your ancient, trusty, pleasant servant Grumio And tell me now, sweet friend, what happy gale Blows you to Padua here from old Verona? 49

Pet Such wind as scatters young men through the world

To seek their fortunes further than at home, Where small experience grows But in a few, 52 Signior Hortensio, thus it stands with me Antonio, my father, is deceas'd,

And I have thrust myself into this maze, Haply to wive and thrive as best I may 56 Crowns in my purse I have and goods at home, And so am come abroad to see the world

Hor Petruchio, shall I then come roundly to thee,

And wish thee to a shrewd ill-favour'd wife? 60 Thou 'dst thank me but a little for my counsel, And yet I'll promise thee she shall be rich, And very rich but thou 'rt too much my friend, And I'll not wish thee to her 64

Pet Signior Hortensio, 'twixt such friends as we,

Few words suffice, and therefore, if thou know One rich enough to be Petruchio's wife,

As wealth is burden of my wooing dance, 68 Be she as foul as was Florentius' love, As old as Sibyl, and as curst and shrewd

As Socrates' Xanthippe, or a worse, She moves me not, or not removes, at least, 72

Affection's edge in me, were she as rough As are the swelling Adriatic seas

I come to wive it wealthily in Padua, If wealthily, then happily in Padua, 76

Gru Nay, look you, sir, he tells you flatly what his mind is why, give him gold enough and marry him to a puppet or an aglet-baby, or an old trot with ne'er a tooth in her head, though she have as many diseases as two-and-fifty horses why, nothing comes amiss, so money comes withal

Hor Petruchio, since we are stepp'd thus far in, 84

I will continue that I broach'd in jest. I can, Petruchio, help thee to a wife

With wealth enough, and young and beauteous, Brought up as best becomes a gentlewoman 88

Her only fault,—and that is faults enough,—Is, that she is intolerable curst

And shrewd and froward, so beyond all measure, That, were my state far worse than it is, 92

I would not wed her for a mine of gold

Pet Hortensio, peace! thou know'st not gold's effect

Tell me her father's name, and 'tis enough, For I will board her, though she chide as loud

As thunder when the clouds in autumn crack

Hor Her father is Baptista Minola, 98 An affable and courteous gentleman,

Her name is Katharina Minola, 100

Renown'd in Padua for her scolding tongue

Pet I know her father, though I know not her,

And he knew my deceased father well. I will not sleep, Hortensio, till I see her, 104

And therefore let me be thus bold with you, To give you over at this first encounter,

Unless you will accompany me thither

Gru I pray you, sir, let him go while the humour lasts O my word, an she knew him as well as I do, she would think scolding would do little good upon him She may, perhaps, call him half a score knaves or so why, that's nothing an he begin once, he'll rail in his rope-tricks I'll tell you what, sir, an she stand him but a little, he will throw a figure in her face, and so disfigure her with it that she shall have no more eyes to see withal than a cat. You know him not, sir

Hor Tarry, Petruchio, I must go with thee, For in Baptista's keep my treasure is, 120

He hath the jewel of my life in hold, His youngest daughter, beautiful Bianca,

And her withholds from me and other more, Suitors to her and rivals in my love, 124

Supposing it a thing impossible, For those defects I have before rehears'd,

That ever Katharina will be woo'd Therefore this order hath Baptista ta'en, 128

That none shall have access unto Bianca, Till Katharine the curst have got a husband.

Gru Katharine the curst! A title for a maid of all titles the worst. 132

Hor Now shall my friend Petruchio do me grace,

And offer me, disguis'd in sober robes, To old Baptista as a schoolmaster

Well seen in music, to instruct Bianca, 136 That so I may, by this device, at least

Have leave and leisure to make love to her, And unsuspected court her by herself

Gru Here's no knavery! See to beguile the old folks, how the young folks lay their heads together!

Enter GRUMIO, and LUCENTIO disguis'd, with books under his arm.

Master, master, look about you who goes there, ha? 144

Hor Peace, Grumio! 'tis the rival of my love

Petruchio, stand by awhile.

Gru A proper stripling, and an amorous! Gre O! very well, I have perus'd the note

Hark you, sir, I'll have them very fairly bound All books of love, see that at any hand,

And see you read no other lectures to her You understand me Over and beside 152

Signior Baptista's liberality, I'll mend it with a largess. Take your papers too,

And let me have them very well perfum'd, For she is sweeter than perfume itself 156

To whom they go to. What will you read to her?

Luc Whate'er I read to her, I'll plead for
you,
 As for my patron, stand you so assur'd,
 As firmly as yourself were still in place, 160
 Yea, and perhaps with more successful words
 Than you, unless you were a scholar, sir Gre O! this learning, what a thing it is Gru O! this woodcock, what an ass it is 164
Pet Peace, sirrah!
Hor Grumio, mum! God save you, Signior Gremio!
Gre And you're well met, Signior Hortensio Trow you whither I am going? To Baptista
 Minola 168
 I promis'd to inquire carefully
 About a schoolmaster for the fair Bianca,
 And, by good fortune, I have lighted well
 On this young man, for learning and behaviour
 Fit for her turn, well read in poetry 173
 And other books, good ones, I warrant ye Hor 'Tis well and I have met a gentleman Hath promis'd me to help me to another, 176
 A fine musician to instruct our mistress
 So shall I no whit be behind in duty
 To fair Bianca, so below'd of me Gre Below'd of me, and that my deeds shall prove 180
Gru [Aside] And that his bags shall prove Hor Gremio, 'tis now no time to vent our
 love
 Listen to me, and if you speak me fair,
 I'll tell you news indifferent good for either 184
 Here is a gentleman whom by chance I met,
 Upon agreement from us to his liking,
 Will undertake to woo curst Katharine,
 Yea, and to marry her, if her dowry please 188
Gre So said, so done, is well
 Hortensio, have you told him all her faults?
Pet I know she is an irksome, brawling scold
 If that be all, masters, I hear no harm 192 Gre No, sayst me so, friend? What country-
 man?
Pet Born in Verona, old Antonio's son
 My father dead, my fortune lyes for me,
 And I do hope good days and long to see 196 Gre O, sir, such a life, with such a wife, were strange!
 But if you have a stomach, to't i' God's name
 You shall have me assisting you in all But will you woo this wild-cat?
Pet Will I live? 200
Gru Will he woo her? ay, or I'll hang her Pet Why came I hither but to that intent?
 Think you a little dun can daunt mine ears?
 Have I not in my time heard lions roar? 204
 Have I not heard the sea, puff'd up with winds, Rage like an angry boar chafed with sweat?
 Have I not heard great ordnance in the field,
 And heaven's artillery thunder in the skies? 208
 Have I not in a pitched battle heard Loud 'larums, neighing steeds, and trumpets' clang?
 And do you tell me of a woman's tongue,
 That gives not half so great a blow to hear 212
 As will a chestnut in a farmer's fire?

Tush, tush! fear boys with bugs
Gru [Aside] For he fears none
Gre Hortensio, hark
 This gentleman is happily arriv'd, 216
 My mind presumes, for his own good and ours
Hor I promis'd we would be contributors,
 And bear his charge of wooing, whatsoe'er Gre And so we will, provided that he win
 her 220
Gru [Aside] I would I were as sure of a good dinner
Enter TRANIO, bravely apparelled, and BIONDELLO
Tra Gentlemen, God save you! If I may be bold,
 Tell me, I beseech you, which is the readiest way
 To the house of Signior Baptista Minola? 224 Bion He that has the two fair daughters is't he you mean?
Tra Even he, Biondello!
Gre Hark you, sir, you mean not her to—Tra Perhaps, him and her, su what have you to do? 228
Pet Not her that chides, sir, at any hand, I pray
Tra I love no chiders, sir Biondello, let's
 away
Luc [Aside] Well begun, Tranio
Hor Sir, a word ere you go
 Are you a suitor to the maid you talk of, yea
 or no? 232
Tra And if I be, sir, is it any offence?
Gre No, if without more words you will get you hence
Tra Why, sir, I pray, are not the streets as free
 For me as for you?
Gre But so is not she 236
Tra For what reason, I beseech you?
Gre For this reason, if you'll know,
 That she's the choice love of Signior Gremio Hor That she's the chosen of Signior Hortensio 240
Tra Softly, my masters! if you be gentle-
 men,
 Do me this right, hear me with patience
 Baptista is a noble gentleman,
 To whom my father is not all unknown, 244
 And were his daughter fairer than she is,
 She may more suitors have, and me for one Fair Leda's daughter had a thousand wooers,
 Then well one more may fair Bianca have, 248
 And so she shall, Lucentio shall make one, Though Paris came in hope to speed alone Gre What! this gentleman will out-talk us
 all.
Luc Sir, give him head. I know he'll prove a jade 252
Pet Hortensio, to what end are all these words?
Hor Sir, let me be so bold as ask you,
 Did you yet ever see Baptista's daughter?
Tra No, sir, but hear I do that he hath two,
 The one as famous for a scolding tongue 257
 As is the other for beauteous modesty.

Pet Sir, the first's for me, let her go by Gre Yea, leave that labour to great Hercules,
 And let it be more than Alcides' twelve

Pet Sir, understand you this of me in sooth
 The youngest daughter, whom you hearken for,
 Her father keeps from all access of suitors, 264
 And will not promise her to any man
 Until the elder sister first be wed,
 The younger then is free, and not before

Tra If it be so, sir, that you are the man 268
 Must stand us all, and me among the rest,
 And if you break the ice, and do this feat,
 Achieve the elder, set the younger free
 For our access, whose hap shall be to have her
 Will not so graceless be to be ingrate 273

Hor Sir, you say well, and well you do conceive,

And since you do profess to be a suitor,
 You must, as we do, gratify this gentleman, 276
 To whom we all rest generally beholding

Tra Sir, I shall not be slack in sign wherof, Please ye we may contrive this afternoon,
 And quaff carouses to our mistress' health, 280
 And do as adversaries do in law,
 Strive mightily, but eat and drink as friends

Gru } O excellent motion! Fellows, let's be Bian } gone

Hor The motion's good indeed, and be it so — 284

Petruchio, I shall be your ben venuto [Exeunt

ACT II

SCENE I — Padua A Room in BAPTISTA'S House

Enter KATHARINA and BIANCA.

Bian Good sister, wrong me not, nor wrong yourself,

To make a bondmaid and a slave of me,
 That I disdain but for these other gawds, Unbind my hands, I'll pull them off myself, 4
 Yea, all my raiment, to my petticoat,
 Or what you will command me will I do,
 So well I know my duty to my elders

Kath Of all thy suitors, here I charge thee, tell Whom thou lov'st best see thou dissemble not

Bian Believe me, sister, of all the men alive
 I never yet beheld that special face

Which I could fancy more than any other 12

Kath Mimon, thou best. Is't not Hortensio?

Bian If you affect him, sister, here I swear I'll plead for you myself, but you shall have him.

Kath O! then, belike, you fancy riches more
 You will have Gremio to keep you fair 17

Bian Is it for him you do envy me so?

Nay, then you jest, and now I well perceive
 You have but jested with me all this while 20

I prithee, sister Kate, untie my hands

Kath If that be jest, then all the rest was so.
 [Strikes her

Enter BAPTISTA

Bap Why, how now, dame! whence grows this insolence?

Bianca, stand aside Poor girl! she weeps. 24
 Go ply thy needle, meddle not with her

For shame, thou hilding of a devilish spirit, Why dost thou wrong her that did ne'er wrong
 thee?

When did she cross thee with a bitter word? 28

Kath Her silence flouts me, and I'll be re-veng'd [Flies after BIANCA.

Bap What! in my sight? Bianca, get thee in.
 [Exit BIANCA.

Kath What! will you not suffer me? Nay, now I see

She is your treasure, she must have a husband,
 I must dance bare-foot on her wedding-day, 33
 And, for your love to her, lead apes in hell

Talk not to me I will go sit and weep

Till I can find occasion of revenge [Exit

Bap Was ever gentleman thus griev'd as I?
 But who comes here?

Enter GREMIO, with LUCENTIO in the habit of a mean man, PETRUCHIO, with HORTENSIO as a Musician, and TRANIO, with BIONDELLO bearing a lute and books

Gre Good morrow, neighbour Baptista.

Bap Good morrow, neighbour Gremio God save you, gentlemen! 41

Pet And you, good sir Pray, have you not a
 daughter

Call'd Katharina, fair and virtuous?

Bap I have a daughter, sir, call'd Katharina

Gre You are too blunt go to it orderly 45

Pet You wrong me, Signior Gremio give me leave

I am a gentleman of Verona, sir,
 That, hearing of her beauty and her wit, 48

Her affability and bashful modesty,

Her wondrous qualities and mild behaviour,

Am bold to show myself a forward guest

Within your house, to make mine eye the witness 52

Of that report which I so oft have heard

And, for an entrance to my entertainment,

I do present you with a man of mine,
 [Presenting HORTENSIO

Cunning in music and the mathematics, 56

To instruct her fully in those sciences,

Whereof I know she is not ignorant.

Accept of him, or else you do me wrong

His name is Licio, born in Mantua 60

Bap You're welcome, sir, and he, for your good sake

But for my daughter Katharina, this I know,

She is not for your turn, the more my grief

Pet I see you do not mean to part with her,

Or else you like not of my company 65

Bap Mistake me not, I speak but as I find

Whence are you, sir? what may I call your name?

Pet Petruchio is my name, Antonio's son,

A man well known throughout all Italy 69

Bap I know him well you are welcome for his sake

Gre Saving your tale, Petruchio, I pray,

Let us, that are poor petitioners, speak too 72

Backward! you are marvellous forward.

Pet O, pardon me, Signior Gremio, I would fain be doing.

Gre. I doubt it not, sir, but you will curse your wooing Neighbour, this is a gift very grateful, I am sure of it. To express the like kindness myself, that have been more kindly beholding to you than any, freely give unto you this young scholar, [Presenting LUCENTIO] that has been long studying at Rheims, as cunning in Greek, Latin, and other languages, as the other in music and mathematics His name is Cambio, pray accept his service 84

Bap A thousand thanks, Signior Gremio, welcome, good Cambio — [To TRANIO] But, gentle sir, methinks you walk like a stranger may I be so bold to know the cause of your coming? 88

Tra Pardon me, sir, the boldness is mine own, That, being a stranger in this city here, Do make myself a suitor to your daughter, Unto Bianca, fair and virtuous 92
Nor is your firm resolve unknown to me, In the preferment of the eldest sister This liberty is all that I request, That, upon knowledge of my parentage, 96
I may have welcome 'mongst the rest that woo, And free access and favour as the rest And, toward the education of your daughters, I here bestow a simple instrument, 100
And this small packet of Greek and Latin books If you accept them, then their worth is great.

Bap Lucentio is your name, of whence, I pray?

Tra Of Pisa, sir; son to Vincentio 104

Bap A mighty man of Pisa; by report I know him well you are very welcome, sir [To HORTENSIO.] Take you the lute, [To LUCENTIO] and you the set of books, You shall go see your pupils presently 108 Holla, within!

Enter a Servant

Sirrah, lead these gentlemen To my two daughters, and then tell them both These are their tutors bid them use them well

[Exit Servant, with HORTENSIO, LUCENTIO, and BIONDELLO]

We will go walk a little in the orchard, 112
And then to dinner. You are passing welcome, And so I pray you all to think yourselves.

Pet Signior Baptista, my business asketh haste,

And every day I cannot come to woo 116
You knew my father well, and in him me, Left solely heir to all his lands and goods, Which I have better'd rather than decreas'd
Then tell me, if I get your daughter's love, 120
What dowry shall I have with her to wife?

Bap After my death the one half of my lands, And in possession twenty thousand crowns

Pet And, for that dowry, I'll assure her of Her widowhood, be it that she survive me, 125
In all my lands and leases whatsoever Let specialness be therefore drawn between us, That covenants may be kept on either hand. 128

Bap Ay, when the special thing is well obtain'd,

That is, her love, for that is all in all.

Pet Why, that is nothing, for I tell you, father,

I am as peremptory as she proud-minded, 132
And where two raging fires meet together They do consume the thing that feeds their fury
Though little fire grows great with little wind, Yet extreme gusts will blow out fire and all, 136
So I to her, and so she yields to me,
For I am rough and woo not like a babe

Bap Well mayst thou woo, and happy be thy speed!

But be thou arm'd for some unhappy words 140

Pet Ay, to the proof, as mountains are for winds,

That shake not, though they blow perpetually

Re-enter HORTENSIO, with his head broke

Bap. How now, my friend! why dost thou look so pale?

Hor. For fear, I promise you, if I look pale Bap What, will my daughter prove a good musician? 145

Hor. I think she'll sooner prove a soldier! Iron may hold with her, but never lutes

Bap Why, then thou canst not break her to the lute? 148

Hor Why, no, for she hath broke the lute to me

I did but tell her she mistook her frets, And bow'd her hand to teach her fingering, When, with a most impatient devilish spirit, 152
'Frets, call you these?' quoth she, 'I'll fume with them.'

And, with that word, she struck me on the head, And through the instrument my pate made way, And there I stood amazed for a while, 156

As on a pillory, looking through the lute, While she did call me rascal fiddler, And twangling Jack, with twenty such vile terms As she had studied to misuse me so 160

Pet Now, by the world, it is a lusty wench! I love her ten times more than e'er I did O! how I long to have some chat with her!

Bap [To HORTENSIO] Well, go with me, and be not so discomfited 164

Proceed in practice with my younger daughter, She's apt to learn, and thankful for good turns. Signior Petruchio, will you go with us,

Or shall I send my daughter Kate to you? 168

Pet. I pray you do, I will attend her here,

[Exeunt BAPTISTA, GREMIO, TRANIO, and HORTENSIO]

And woo her with some spirit when she comes Say that she rail, why then I'll tell her plain
She sings as sweetly as a nightingale 172

Say that she frown, I'll say she looks as clear As morning roses newly wash'd with dew Say she be mute and will not speak a word, 176
Then I'll commend her volubility,

And say she uttereth piercing eloquence If she do bid me pack, I'll give her thanks,
As though she bid me stay by her a week

If she deny to wed, I'll crave the day 180
When I shall ask the banns, and when be married

But here she comes, and now, Petruchio, speak.

Enter KATHARINA

Good morrow, Kate, for that's your name, I hear

Kath Well have you heard, but something hard of hearing 184

They call me Katharine that do talk of me

Pet You he, in faith, for you are call'd plain Kate,

And bonny Kate, and sometimes Kate the curst,

But, Kate, the prettiest Kate in Christendom,

Kate of Kate-Hall, my super-dainty Kate, 189

For dainties are all cates and therefore, Kate,

Take this of me, Kate of my consolation,

Hearing thy mildness prais'd in every town, 192

Thy virtues spoke of, and thy beauty sounded,—

Yet not so deeply as to thee belongs,—

Myself am mov'd to woo thee for my wife

Kath Mov'd! in good time let him that mov'd you hither 196

Remove you hence I knew you at the first,

You were a moveable

Pet Why, what's a moveable?

Kath A joint-stool

Pet Thou hast hit it come, sit on me

Kath Asses are made to bear, and so are you

Pet Women are made to bear, and so are you. 201

Kath No such jade as bear you, if me you mean.

Pet Alas! good Kate, I will not burden thee,

For, knowing thee to be but young and light,—

Kath Too light for such a swan as you to catch, 205

And yet as heavy as my weight should be

Pet Should be! should buz!

Kath Well ta'en, and like a buzzard

Pet O slow-wing'd turtle! shall a buzzard take thee? 208

Kath Ay, for a turtle, as he takes a buzzard.

Pet Come, come, you wasp, I' faith you are too angry

Kath If I be waspish, best beware my sting

Pet My remedy is, then, to pluck it out. 212

Kath Ay, if the fool could find it where it lies

Pet Who knows not where a wasp does wear his sting?

In his tail

Kath In his tongue

Pet Whose tongue?

Kath Yours, if you talk of tails; and so farewell. 216

Pet What! with my tongue in your tail?

nay, come again

Good Kate, I am a gentleman.

Kath That I'll try [Striking him

Pet I swear I'll cuff you if you strike again 220

Kath So may you lose your arms

If you strike me, you are no gentleman,

And if no gentleman, why then no arms

Pet A herald, Kate? O! put me in thy books

Kath What is your crest? a coxcomb? 224

Pet A combless cock, so Kate will be my hen.

Kath No cock of mine, you crow too like a craven.

Pet Nay, come, Kate, come, you must not look so sour

Kath It is my fashion when I see a crab 228

Pet Why, here's no crab, and therefore look not sour

Kath There is, there is.

Pet Then show it me

Kath Had I a glass, I would.

Pet What, you mean my face?

Kath Well am'd of such a young one

Pet Now, by Saint George, I am too young for you. 233

Kath Yet you are wither'd

Pet 'Tis with cares

Kath I care not

Pet Nay, hear you, Kate in sooth, you 'scape not so.

Kath I chafe you, if I tarry let me go 236

Pet No, not a whit I find you passing gentle

'Twas told me you were rough and coy and sullen,

And now I find report a very liar,

For thou art pleasant, gamesome, passing courteous, 240

But slow in speech, yet sweet as spring-time flowers

Thou canst not frown, thou canst not look askance,

Nor bite the lip, as angry wenches will,

Nor hast thou pleasure to be cross in talk, 244

But thou with mildness entertain'st thy wooers,

With gentle conference, soft and affable

Why does the world report that Kate doth limp?

O slanderous world! Kate, like the hazel-twigs,

Is straight and slender, and as brown in hue 249

As hazel nuts, and sweeter than the kernels

O! let me see thee walk thou dost not halt

Kath Go, fool, and whom thou keep'st command 252

Pet Did ever Dian so become a grove

As Kate this chamber with her princely gaze?

O! be thou Dian, and let her be Kate,

And then let Kate be chaste, and Dian sportful!

Kath Where did you study all this goodly speech? 257

Pet It is extempore, from my mother-wit.

Kath A witty mother! witless else her son.

Pet Am I not wise?

Kath Yes, keep you warm. 260

Pet Marry, so I mean, sweet Katharine, in thy bed.

And therefore, setting all this chat aside,

Thus in plain terms your father hath consented

That you shall be my wife, your dowry 'greed on, 264

And will you, nill you, I will marry you.

Now, Kate, I am a husband for your turn,

For, by this light, whereby I see thy beauty,—

Thy beauty that doth make me like thee well,—

Thou must be married to no man but me 269

For I am he am born to tame you, Kate;

And bring you from a wild Kate to a Kate

Conformable as other household Kates 272

Here comes your father never make denial,

I must and will have Katharine to my wife.

Re-enter BAPTISTA, GREMIO, and TRANIO
Bap Now, Signior Petruccio, how speed you with my daughter?
Pet How but well, sir? how but well? 276
It were impossible I should speed amiss Bap Why, how now, daughter Katharine! in your dumps?
Kath Call you me daughter? now, I promise you
 You have show'd a tender fatherly regard, 280
 To wish me wed to one half lunatic,
 A mad cap ruffian and a swearing Jack,
 That thinks with oaths to face the matter out Pet Father, 'tis thus yourself and all the world, 284
 That talk'd of her, have talk'd amiss of her
 If she be curst, it is for policy,
 For she's not froward, but modest as the dove,
 She is not hot, but temperate as the morn, 288
 For patience she will prove a second Grissel,
 And Roman Lucrece for her chastity,
 And to conclude, we have 'greed so well together,
 That upon Sunday is the wedding-day 292
Kath I'll see thee hang'd on Sunday first Gre Hark, Petruccio she says she'll see thee hang'd first Tra Is thus your speeding? nay then, good night our part!
Pet Be patient, gentlemen, I choose her for myself 296
 If she and I be pleas'd, what's that to you?
 'Tis bargain'd 'twixt us twain, being alone,
 That she shall still be curst in company
 I tell you, 'tis incredible to believe 300
 How much she loves me O! the kindest Kate
 She hung about my neck, and kiss on kiss
 She vied so fast, protesting oath on oath,
 That in a twink she won me to her love 304
 O! you are novices 'tis a world to see,
 How tame, when men and women are alone,
 A meacock wretch can make the curstest shrew
 Give me thy hand, Kate I will unto Venice 308
 To buy apparel 'gainst the wedding-day
 Provide the feast, father, and bid the guests,
 I will be sure my Katharine shall be fine
Bap I know not what to say, but give me your hands 312
 God send you joy, Petruccio! 'tis a match.
Gre } Amen, say we we will be witnesses
Tra }
Pet Father, and wife, and gentlemen, adieu
 I will to Venice, Sunday comes apace 316
 We will have rings, and things, and fine array,
 And, kiss me, Kate, we will be married o' Sunday day [Exeunt PETRUCHIO and KATHARINA, severally Gre Was ever match clapp'd up so suddenly?
Bap Faith, gentlemen, now I play a merchant's part, 320
 And venture madly on a desperate mart
Tra 'Twas a commodity lay fretting by you
 'Twill bring you gain, or perish on the seas Bap The gam I seek is, quiet in the match.
Gre No doubt but he hath got a quiet catch.

But now, Baptista, to your younger daughter Now is the day we long have looked for I am your neighbour, and was suitor first 328
Tra And I am one that love Bianca more Than words can witness, or your thoughts can guess Gre Youngling, thou canst not love so dear as I 331 Tra Greybeard, thy love doth freeze
Gre But thine doth fry Skipper, stand back 'tis age that nourisheth Tra But youth in ladies' eyes that flourisheth.
Bap Content you, gentlemen, I'll compound this strife
 'Tis deeds must win the prize, and he, of both,
 That can assure my daughter greatest dower 337
 Shall have my Bianca's love Say, Signior Gremio, what can you assure her?
Gre First, as you know, my house within the city 340
 Is richly furnished with plate and gold Basins and ewers to lave her dainty hands,
 My hangings all of Tyrian tapestry,
 In ivory coffers I have stuff'd my crowns, 344
 In cypress chests my arras counterpoints, Costly apparel, tents, and canopies,
 Fine linen, Turkey cushions boss'd with pearl, Valance of Venice gold in needle-work, 348
 Pewter and brass, and all things that belong
 To house or housekeeping then, at my farm
 I have a hundred mulch-kine to the pail,
 Six score fat oxen standing in my stalls, 352
 And all things answerable to this portion Myself am struck in years, I must confess,
 And if I die to-morrow, this is hers,
 If whilst I live she will be only mine 356
Tra That 'only' came well in Sir, list to me
 I am my father's heir and only son
 If I may have your daughter to my wife,
 I'll leave her houses three or four as good, 360 Within rich Pisa walls, as any one Old Signior Gremio has in Padua,
 Besides two thousand ducats by the year
 Of fruitful land, all of which shall be her jointure 364
 What, have I pinch'd you, Signior Gremio?
Gre Two thousand ducats by the year of land!
 My land amounts not to so much in all
 That she shall have, besides an argosy 368
 That now is lying in Marseilles' road
 What, have I chok'd you with an argosy?
Tra Gremio, 'tis known my father hath no less 371
 Than three great argosies, besides two galliasses,
 And twelve tight galleys, these I will assure her,
 And twice as much, whate'er thou offer'st next.
Gre Nay, I have offer'd all, I have no more,
 And she can have no more than all I have 376
 If you like me, she shall have me and mine.
Tra Why, then the maid is mine from all the world,
 By your firm promise Gremio is out-vied.
Bap I must confess your offer is the best,
 And, let your father make her the assurance, 381
 She is your own, else, you must pardon me
 If you should die before him, where's her dower?

Tra That's but a cavi! he is old, I young Gre And may not young men die as well as old? 385 Bar Well, gentlemen,
 I am thus resolv'd On Sunday next, you know,
 My daughter Katharine is to be married 388
 Now, on the Sunday following, shall Bianca
 Be bride to you, if you make this assurance,
 If not, to Signior Gremio
 And so, I take my leave, and thank you both 392 Gre Adieu, good neighbour [Exit BAPTISTA]
Tra Now I fear thee not Surrah young gamester, your father were a fool
 To give thee all, and in his waning age
 Set foot under thy table Tut! a toy! 396
 An old Italian fox is not so kind, my boy [Exit] Tra A vengeance on your crafty wither'd hide!
 Yet I have fac'd it with a card of ten
 'Tis in my head to do my master good 400
 I see no reason, but suppos'd Lucentio
 Must get a father, call'd 'suppos'd Vincentio,'
 And that's a wonder fathers, commonly Do get their children, but in this case of woo-
 ing, 404
 A child shall get a sure, if I fail not of my cunning [Exit]

ACT III

SCENE I — Padua A Room in BAPTISTA'S House

Enter LUCENTIO, HORTENSIO, and BIANCA

Luc Fiddler, forbear, you grow too forward, sir Have you so soon forgot the entertainment
 Her sister Katharine welcom'd you withal?
Hor But, wrangling pedant, this is 4
 The patroness of heavenly harmony
 Then give me leave to have prerogative,
 And when in music we have spent an hour,
 Your lecture shall have leisure for as much 8
Luc Preposterous ass, that never read so far
 To know the cause why music was ordain'd!
 Was it not to refresh the mind of man
 After his studies or his usual pain? 12
 Then give me leave to read philosophy,
 And while I pause, serve in your harmony Hor Surrah, I will not bear these braves of thine
Bian Why, gentlemen, you do me double
 wrong, 16
 To strive for that which resteth in my choice
 I am no breaching scholar in the schools,
 I'll not be tied to hours nor 'pointed times,
 But learn my lessons as I please myself 20
 And, to cut off all strife, here sit we down Take you your instrument, play you the whiles,
 His lecture will be done ere you have tun'd Hor You'll leave his lecture when I am in tune? [Retires]
Luc That will be never, tune your instrument. 25

Bian Where left we last?
Luc Here, madam —
Hic ibat Simois hic est Sigeia tellus 28
Hic steterat Priami regia celsa senis Bian Construe them
Luc Hic ibat, as I told you before, Simois, I am Lucentio, hic est, son unto Vincentio of Pisa, Sigeia tellus, disguised thus to get your love, Hic steterat, and that Lucentio that comes a wooing, Priami, is my man Tranio, regia, bearing my port, celsa senis, that we might beguile the old pantaloon. 37 Hor [Returning] Madam, my instrument's in tune
Bian Let's hear — [HORTENSIO plays]
O fie! the treble jars 40
Luc Spit in the hole, man, and tune again
Bian Now let me see if I can construe it Hic ibat Simois, I know you not, hic est Sigeia tellus, I trust you not, Hic steterat Priami, take heed he hear us not, regia, presume not, celsa senis, despair not Hor Madam, 'tis now in tune
Luc All but the base Hor The base is right, 'tis the base knave that jars 48
 How fiery and forward our pedant is!
 [Aside] Now, for my life, the knave doth court my love
Pedascule, I'll watch you better yet
Bian In time I may believe, yet I mistrust Luc Mistrust it not, for, sure, Æacides 53
 Was Ajax, call'd so from his grandfather Bian I must believe my master, else, I pro-mune you,
 I should be arguing still upon that doubt 56
 But let it rest Now, Licio, to you Good masters, take it not unkindly, pray,
 That I have been thus pleasant with you both Hor [To LUCENTIO] You may go walk, and give me leave a while 60
 My lessons make no music in three parts Luc Are you so formal, sir? [Aside] Well,
 I must wait,
 And watch withal, for, but I be deceiv'd,
 Our fine musician groweth amorous 64 Hor Madam, before you touch the instrument,
 To learn the order of my fingering,
 I must begin with rudiments of art,
 To teach you gamut in a briefer sort, 68
 More pleasant, pithy, and effectual,
 Than hath been taught by any of my trade
 And there it is in writing, fairly drawn.
Bian Why, I am past my gamut long ago 72
Hor Yet read the gamut of Hortensio Bian
 'Gamut' I am, the ground of all accord,
 'A re,' to plead Hortensio's passion,
 'B mi,' Bianca, take him for thy lord, 76
 'C fa ut,' that loves with all affection
 'D sol re,' one clef, two notes have'd
 'E la mi,' show pity, or I die
 Call you this gamut? tut, I like it not 80
 Old fashions please me best I am not so nice,
 To change true rules for odd inventions.

Enter a Servant

Serv Mistress, your father prays you leave your books,
And help to dress your sister's chamber up 84
You know to-morrow is the wedding-day
Bian Farewell, sweet masters both I must be gone. [Exeunt BIANCA and Servant]
Luc Faith, mistress, then I have no cause to stay [Exit] Hor But I have cause to pry into this pedant 88
Methinks he looks as though he were in love
Yet if thy thoughts, Bianca, be so humble
To cast thy wandering eyes on every stale, Seize thee that list if once I find thee ranging, 92
Hortensio will be quit with thee by changing [Exit]

SCENE II — The Same Before BAPTISTA'S House

Enter BAPTISTA, GREMIO, TRANIO, KATHARINA, BIANCA, LUCENTIO, and Attendants

Bap [To TRANIO] Signior Lucentio, this is the 'pointed day
That Katharine and Petruchio should be married,
And yet we hear not of our son-in-law
What will be said? what mockery will it be 4
To want the bridegroom when the priest attends
To speak the ceremonial rites of marriage?
What says Lucentio to this shame of ours?
Kath No shame but mine I must, forsooth, 8 be forc'd

To give my hand oppos'd against my heart
Unto a mad-bram rudesby, full of spleen,
Who woo'd in haste and means to wed at leisure
I told you, I, he was a frantic fool, 12
Hiding his bitter jests in blunt behaviour,
And to be neted for a merry man,
He'll woo a thousand, 'point the day of marriage,

Make friends invite, and proclaim the banns, 16
Yet never means to wed where he hath woo'd
Now must the world point at poor Katharine,
And say, 'Lo! there is mad Petruchio's wife,
If it would please him come and marry her' 20
Tra Patience, good Katharine, and Baptista too

Upon my life, Petruchio means but well, Whatever fortune stays him from his word
Though he be blunt, I know him passing wise, Though he be merry, yet withal he's honest. 25 Kath Would Katharine had never seen him though! [Exit weeping, followed by BIANCA and others]

Bap Go, girl I cannot blame thee now to weep,
For such an injury would vex a very saint, 28
Much more a shrew of thy impatient humour

Enter BONDELLO.

Bion Master, master! news! old news, and such news as you never heard of!

Bap Is it new and old too? how may that be? 32

Bion Why, is it not news to hear of Petruchio's coming?

Bap Is he come? 36

Bion Why, no, sir

Bap What then?

Bion He is coming

Bap When will he be here? 40

Bion When he stands where I am and sees you there

Tra But, say, what to thine old news? 43

Bion Why, Petruchio is coming, in a new hat and an old jerkin, a pair of old breeches thrice turned, a pair of boots that have been candle-cases, one buckled, another laced, an old rusty sword ta'en out of the town-armoury, with a broken hilt, and chapeless, with two broken points his horse hipped with an old mothy saddle and stirrups of no kindred, besides, possessed with the glanders and like to mose in the chine, troubled with the lampass, infected with the fashions, full of windgalls, sped with spavins, rayed with the yellows, past cure of the fives, stark spoiled with the staggers, begnawn with the bots, swayed in the back, and shoulder-shotten, near-legged before, and with a half-checked bit, and a head-stall of sheep's leather, which, being restrained to keep him from stumbling, hath been often burst and now repaired with knots, one girth six times pieced, and a woman's crupper of velure, which hath two letters for her name fairly set down in studs, and here and there pieced with packthread 65

Bap Who comes with him?

Bion O, sir! his lackey, for all the world caparisoned like the horse, with a linen stock on one leg and a kersey boot-hose on the other, gartered with a red and blue list, an old hat, and the 'humour of forty fancies' pricked in't for a feather a monster, a very monster in apparel, and not like a Christian footboy or a gentleman's lackey

Tra 'Tis some odd humour pricks him to this fashion,

Yet oftentimes he goes but mean-apparell'd 76

Bap I am glad he is come, howsoe'er he comes

Bion Why, sir, he comes not

Bap Didst thou not say he comes?

Bion Who? that Petruchio came? 80

Bap Ay, that Petruchio came

Bion No, sir, I say his horse comes, with him on his back

Bap Why, that's all one 84

Bion Nay, by Saint Jany,

I hold you a penny,

A horse and a man

Is more than one, 88

And yet not many.

Enter PETRUCHIO and GREMIO.

Pet Come, where be these gallants? who is at home?

Bap You are welcome, sir.

Pet And yet I come not well.

Bap And yet you halt not.

Tra Not so well apparell'd 92
As I wish you were Pet Were it better, I should rush in thus.
 But where is Kate? where is my lovely bride?
 How does my father? Gentles, methinks you frown 95
 And wherefore gaze this goodly company,
 As if they saw some wondrous monument,
 Some comet, or unusual prodigy?
Bap Why, sir, you know this is your wedding-
 day 100
 First were we sad, fearing you would not come,
 Now sadder, that you come so unprovided.
 Fie! doff this habit, shame to your estate,
 An eye-sore to our solemn festival. 104
Tra And tell us what occasion of import Hath all so long detain'd you from your wife,
 And sent you hither so unlike yourself?
Pet Tedious it were to tell, and harsh to hear Sufficeth, I am come to keep my word, 109
 Though in some part enforced to digress,
 Which, at more leisure, I will so excuse
 As you shall well be satisfied withal 112
 But where is Kate? I stay too long from her
 The morning wears, 'tis time we were at church.
Tra See not your bride in these unreverent robes
 Go to my chamber, put on clothes of mine 116
Pet Not I, believe me thus I'll visit her Bap But thus, I trust, you will not marry her Pet Good sooth, even thus, therefore ha' done with words
 To me she's married, not unto my clothes 120
 Could I repair what she will wear in me
 As I can change these poor accoutrements,
 'Twere well for Kate and better for myself
 But what a fool am I to chat with you 124
 When I should bid good morrow to my bride,
 And seal the title with a lovely kiss!
[Exeunt PETRUCHIO, GRUMIO, and BIONDELLO]
Tra He hath some meaning in his mad attire
 We will persuade him, be it possible, 128
 To put on better ere he go to church.
Bap I'll after him, and see the event of this [Exeunt BAPTISTA, GREMIO, and Attendants]
Tra But to her love concerneth us to add
 Her father's liking which to bring to pass, 132
 As I before imparted to your worship, I am to get a man,—whate'er he be
 It skills not much, we'll fit him to our turn,—
 And he shall be Vincentio of Pisa, 136
 And make assurance here in Padua,
 Of greater sums than I have promised
 So shall you quietly enjoy your hope,
 And marry sweet Bianca with consent. 140 Luc Were it not that my fellow schoolmaster
 Doth watch Bianca's steps so narrowly,
 'Twere good, methinks, to steal our marriage,
 Which once perform'd, let all the world say no, 144
 I'll keep mine own, despite of all the world.
Tra That by degrees we mean to look into,
 And watch our vantage in this business
 We'll over-reach the greybeard, Gremio, 148
 The narrow-prying father, Minola,

The quaint musician, Amorus Licio,
 All for my master's sake, Lucentio

Re-enter GREMIO

Signior Gremio, came you from the church? 152
Gre As willingly as e'er I came from school Tra And is the bride and bridegroom coming home?
Gre A bridegroom say you? 'Tis a groom
 indeed, 155
 A grumbling groom, and that the girl shall find.
Tra Curster than she? why, 'tis impossible.
Gre Why, he's a devil, a devil, a very fiend.
Tra Why, she's a devil, a devil, the devil's dam
Gre Tut! she's a lamb, a dove, a fool to him.
 I'll tell you, Sir Lucentio when the priest 161 Should ask, if Katharine should be his wife,
 'Ay, by gogs-wouns!' quoth he, and swore so
 loud,
 That, all amaz'd, the priest let fall the book, 164
 And, as he stoop'd again to take it up,
 The mad-brain'd bridegroom took him such a cuff
 That down fell priest and book and book and priest
 'Now take them up,' quoth he, 'if any list.' 168 Tra What said the wench when he arose
 again?
Gre Trembled and shook, for why he stamp'd and swore,
 As if the vicar meant to cozen him.
 But after many ceremonies done, 172
 He calls for wine 'A health!' quoth he, as if He had been aboard, carousing to his mates
 After a storm, quaff'd off the muscadell,
 And threw the sops all in the sexton's face, 176
 Having no other reason
 But that his beard grew thin and hungerly,
 And seem'd to ask him sops as he was drinking
 This done, he took the bride about the neck, 180
 And kiss'd her lips with such a clamorous smack
 That at the parting all the church did echo:
 And I, seeing this, came thence for very shame,
 And after me, I know, the rout is coming 184
 Such a mad marriage never was before.
 Hark, hark! I hear the minstrels play. [Music.]
Re-enter PETRUCHIO, KATHARINA, BIANCA, BAP-TISTA, HORTENSIO, GRUMIO, and Tran.
Pet Gentlemen and friends, I thank you for your pains
 I know you think to dine with me to-day, 188
 And have prepar'd great store of wedding cheer;
 But so it is, my haste doth call me hence,
 And therefore here I mean to take my leave.
Bap Is't possible you will away to-night? 192
Pet I must away to-day, before night come.
 Make it no wonder if you knew my business,
 You would entreat me rather go than stay
 And, honest company, I thank you all, 196
 That have beheld me give away myself
 To this most patient, sweet, and virtuous wife.
 Dine with my father, drink a health to me,
 For I must hence, and farewell to you all. 200

Tra Let us entreat you stay till after dinner Pet It may not be Gre Let me entreat you Pet It cannot be Kath Let me entreat you
Pet I am content
Kath Are you content to stay? 204
Pet I am content you shall entreat me stay,
 But yet not stay, entreat me how you can.
Kath Now, if you love me, stay Pet Grumio, my horse!
Gru Ay, sir, they be ready the oats have eaten the horses 209

Kath Nay, then,
 Do what thou canst, I will not go to-day,
 No, nor to-morrow, nor till I please myself 212
 The door is open, sir, there lies your way,
 You may be jogging whiles your boots are green,
 For me, I'll not be gone till I please myself
 'Tis like you'll prove a jolly surly groom, 216
 That take it on you at the first so roundly

Pet O Kate! content thee prithe, be not angry

Kath I will be angry what hast thou to do?
 Father, be quiet, he shall stay my leisure 220

Gre Ay, marry, sir, now it begins to work Kath Gentlemen, forward to the bridal dinner

I see a woman may be made a fool,
 If she had not a spirit to resist 224

Pet They shall go forward, Kate, at thy command

Obeys the bride, you that attend on her,
 Go to the feast, revel and domineer,
 Carouse full measure to her mardenhead, 228
 Be mad and merry, or go hang yourselves
 But for my bonny Kate, she must with me
 Nay, look not big, nor stamp, nor stare, nor fret,
 I will be master of what is mine own 232
 She is my goods, my chattels, she is my house,
 My household stuff, my field, my barn,
 My horse, my ox, my ass, my anything,
 And here she stands, touch her whoever dare,
 I'll bring mine action on the proudest he 237
 That stops my way in Padua Grumio, Draw forth thy weapon, we're beset with thieves,

Rescue thy mistress, if thou be a man 240 Fear not sweet wench, they shall not touch thee, Kate

I'll buckler thee against a million

[Exeunt PETRUCHIO, KATHARINA, and GRUMIO

Bap Nay, let them go, a couple of quiet ones

Gre Went they not quickly I should die with laughing 244

Tra. Of all mad matches never was the like Luc Mistress, what's your opinion of your sister?

Bian That, being mad herself, she's madly mated.

Gre I warrant him, Petruchio is Kated 248

Bap Neighbours and friends, though bride and bridegroom wants

For to supply the places at the table,
 'You know there wants no junkets at the feast

Lucentio, you shall supply the bridegroom's
 place, 252

And let Bianca take her sister's room

Tra Shall sweet Bianca practise how to bride it?

Bap She shall, Lucentio Come, gentlemen, let's go [Exeunt

ACT IV

SCENE I—A Hall in PETRUCHIO'S Country
 House

Enter GRUMIO

Gru Fie, fie, on all tired jades, on all mad masters, and all foul ways! Was ever man so beaten? was ever man so rayed? was ever man so weary? I am sent before to make a fire, and they are coming after to warm them Now, were not I a little pot and soon hot, my very lips might freeze to my teeth, my tongue to the roof of my mouth, my heart in my belly, ere I should come by a fire to thaw me, but I,
 with blowing the fire, shall warm myself, for, considering the weather, a taller man than I will take cold Holla, ho! Curtis 12

Enter CURTIS

Curt Who is that calls so coldly?
Gru A piece of ice if thou doubt it, thou mayst slide from my shoulder to my heel with no greater a run but my head and my neck A fire good Curtis 17

Curt Is my master and his wife coming, Grumio?

Gru O! ay, Curtis, ay, and therefore fire, fire, cast on no water 21

Curt Is she so hot a shrew as she's reported?

Gru She was, good Curtis, before this frost, but, thou knowest, winter tames man, woman, and beast, for it hath tamed my old master, and my new mistress, and myself fellow Curtis

Curt Away, you three-nch-fool! I am no
 beast 28

Gru Am I but three inches? why, thy horn is a foot, and so long am I at the least. But wilt thou rake a fire, or shall I complain on thee to our mistress, whose hand—she being now at hand,—thou shalt soon feel, to thy cold comfort, for being slow in thy hot office?

Curt I prithe, good Grumio, tell me, how goes the world? 36

Gru A cold world, Curtis, in every office but thine, and therefore, fire Do thy duty, and have thy duty, for my master and mistress are almost frozen to death 40

Curt There's fire ready, and therefore, good Grumio, the news?

Gru Why, 'Jack, boy! ho, boy!' and as much news as thou wilt 44

Curt Come, you are so full of cony-catching.
Gru Why therefore fire for I have caught extreme cold Where's the cook? is supper ready, the house trimmed, rushes strewed, cobwebs swept, the serving-men in their new fustian, their white stockings, and every officer has wedding-garment on? Be the Jacks fair within, the Jills fair without, and carpets laid, and everything in order? 53

Curt All ready, and therefore, I pray thee, news? 54

Gru First, know, my horse is tired, my master and mistress fallen out 57

Curt How?

Gru Out of their saddles into the dirt, and thereby hangs a tale 60

Curt Let's ha't, good Grumio

Gru Lend thine ear

Curt Here

Gru [Striking him] There 64

Curt This is to feel a tale, not to hear a tale

Gru And therefore it is called a sensible tale, and this cuff was but to knock at your ear and beseech listening. Now I begin Imprimis, we came down a foul hill, my master riding behind my mistress,— Curt Both of one horse?

Gru What's that to thee? 72

Curt Why, a horse

Gru Tell thou the tale but hadst thou not crossed me thou shouldst have heard how her horse fell, and she under her horse, thou shouldst have heard in how miry a place, how she was bemolled how he left her with the horse upon her, how he beat me because her horse stumbled, how she waded through the dirt to pluck him off me how he swore, how she prayed, that never prayed before, how I cried, how the horses ran away, how her bridle was burst, how I lost my crupper, with many things of worthy memory, which now shall die in oblivion, and thou return unexperienced to thy grave

Curt By this reckoning he is more shrew than she 88

Gru Ay, and that, thou and the proudest of you all shall find when he comes home. But what talk I of this? Call forth Nathaniel, Joseph, Nicholas, Philip, Walter, Sugarsop, and the rest let their heads be sleekly combed, their blue coats brushed, and their garters of an indifferent knit let them curtsy with their left legs, and not presume to touch a hair of my master's horsetail till they kiss their hands. Are they all ready? 97

Curt They are

Gru Call them forth

Curt Do you hear? ho! you must meet my master to countenance my mistress 101

Gru Why, she hath a face of her own

Curt Who knows not that?

Gru Thou, it seems, that callest for company to countenance her 105

Curt I call them forth to credit her

Gru Why, she comes to borrow nothing of them. 108

Enter several Servants

Nath Welcome home, Grumio!

Phil How now, Grumio?

Jos What, Grumio!

Nich Fellow Grumio! 112

Nath How now, old lad!

Gru Welcome, you, how now, you, what, you, fellow, you, and thus much for greeting. Now, my spruce companions, is all ready, and all things neat? 117

Nath All things is ready. How near is our master?

Gru E'en at hand, alighted by this, and therefore be not,—Cock's passion, silence! I hear my master

Enter PETRUCHIO and KATHARINA

Pet Where be these knaves? What! no man at door

To hold my sturup nor to take my horse? 124

Where is Nathaniel, Gregory, Philip?—

All Serv Here, here, sir, here, sir

Pet Here, sir! here, sir! here, sir! here, sir!

You logger-headed and unpolish'd grooms! 128

What, no attendance? no regard? no duty?

Where is the foolsh knave I sent before?

Gru Here, sir, as foolish as I was before

Pet You peasant swain! you whoreson malt-horse drudge! 132

Did I not bid thee meet me in the park,

And bring along these rascal knaves with thee?

Gru Nathaniel's coat, sir, was not fully made,

And Gabriel's pumps were all unpink'd i' the heel, 136

There was no link to colour Peter's hat,

And Walter's dagger was not come from sheathing,

There were none fine but Adam, Ralph, and Gregory,

The rest were ragged, old, and beggarly, 140

Yet, as they are, here are they come to meet you

Pet Go, rascals, go, and fetch my supper in [Exeunt some of the Servants]

Where is the life that late I led?

Where are those?— Sit down, Kate, and welcome 144

Soud, soud, soud, soud!

Re-enter Servants with supper

Why, when, I say?—Nay, good sweet Kate, be merry—

Off with my boots, you rogues! you villains! When?

It was the friar of orders grey, 148

As he forth walked on his way

Out, you rogue! you pluck my foot awry

[Strikes him]

Take that, and mend the plucking off the other

Be merry, Kate. Some water, here, what, ho!

Where's my spaniel Troilus? Surrah, get you hence 153

And bid my cousin Ferdinand come hither

[Exit Servant]

One, Kate, that you must kiss, and be acquainted with

Where are my slippers? Shall I have some water? 156

Come, Kate, and wash, and welcome heartily—

[Servant lets the ewer fall PETRUCHIO strikes him.

You whoreson villain! will you let it fall?

Kath Patience, I pray you, 'twas a fault unwilling

Pet. A whoreson, beetle-headed, flap-ear'd knave! 160
Come, Kate, sit down, I know you have a stomach.
Will you give thanks, sweet Kate, or else shall I—

What's this? mutton?

First Serv

Ay

Pet

Who brought it?

First Serv

I

Pet 'Tis burnt, and so is all the meat 164
What dogs are these! Where is the rascal cook?
How durst you, villains, bring it from the dresser,

And serve it thus to me that love it not? 167

[Throws the meat, &c. at them]

There, take it to you, trenchers, cups, and all You heedless joltheads and unmanner'd slaves!
What! do you grumble? I'll be with you straight

Kath I pray you, husband, be not so disquiet
The meat was well if you were so contented 172

Pet I tell thee, Kate, 'twas burnt and dried away,

And I expressly am forbid to touch it,
For it engenders choler, planteth anger,
And better 'twere that both of us did fast, 176
Since, of ourselves, ourselves are choleric,
Than feed it with such over-roasted flesh
Be patient, to-morrow't shall be mended,
And for this night we'll fast for company 180

Come, I will bring thee to thy bridal chamber

[Exeunt PETRUCHIO, KATHARINA, and CURTIS]

Nath Peter, didst ever see the like?

Peter He kills her in her own humour

Re-enter CURTIS.

Gru Where is he? 184

Curt In her chamber, making a sermon of continency to her,
And rails, and swears, and rates, that she, poor
soul,

Knows not which way to stand, to look, to speak,
And sits as one new-risen from a dream 189 Away, away! for he is coming hither [Exeunt]

Re-enter PETRUCHIO

Pet Thus have I politically begun my reign,
And 'tis my hope to end successfully 192
My falcon now is sharp and passing empty,
And till she stoop she must not be full-gorg'd,
For then she never looks upon her lure Another way I have to man my haggard, 196
To make her come and know her keeper's call,
That is, to watch her, as we watch these kites That bate and beat and will not be obedient She eat no meat to-day, nor none shall eat, 200 Last night she slept not, nor to-night she shall
not

As with the meat, some undeserved fault
I'll find about the making of the bed, 203
And here I'll fling the pillow, there the bolster,
This way the coverlet, another way the sheets Ay, and amid this hurly I intend That all is done in reverend care of her,
And in conclusion she shall watch all night 208
'And if she chance to nod I'll rail and brawl,

And with the clamour keep her still awake.
This is a way to kill a wife with kindness,
And thus I'll curb her mad and headstrong humour 212
He that knows better how to tame a shrew,
Now let him speak 'tis charity to show [Exit]

SCENE II.—Padua Before BAPTISTA'S House

Enter TRANIO and HORTENSIO

Tra Is't possible, friend Licio, that Mistress Bianca

Doth fancy any other but Lucentio?

I tell you, sir, she bears me fair in hand

Hor Sir, to satisfy you in what I have said, 4 Stand by, and mark the manner of his teaching [They stand aside]

Enter BLANCA and LUCENTIO

Luc Now, mistress, profit you in what you read?

Bian What, master, read you? first resolve me that

Luc I read that I profess, the Art to Love. 8
Bian And may you prove, sir, master of your art!

Luc While you, sweet dear, prove mistress of my heart 10

Hor Quick proceeders, marry! Now, tell me, I pray,

You that durst swear that your mistress Bianca Lov'd none in the world so well as Lucentio 13

Tra O despitful love! unconstant woman-kind!

I tell thee, Licio, this is wonderful

Hor Mistake no more I am not Licio, 16 Nor a musician, as I seem to be,
But one that scorns to live in this disguise,
For such a one as leaves a gentleman,
And makes a god of such a culion 20

Know, sir, that I am call'd Hortensio Tra Signior Hortensio, I have often heard

Of your entire affection to Bianca,
And since mine eyes are witness of her lightness,

I will with you, if you be so contented, 25
Forswear Bianca and her love for ever

Hor See, how they kiss and court! Signior Lucentio,

Here is my hand, and here I firmly vow 28
Never to woo her more, but I do forswear her,
As one unworthy all the former favours

That I have fondly flatter'd her withal

Tra And here I take the like unfeigned oath, Never to marry with her though she would entreat. 33

Fie on her! see how beastly she doth court him Hor Would all the world, but he had quite forsworn!

For me, that I may surely keep mine oath, 36
I will be married to a wealthy widow
Ere three days pass, which hath as long lov'd me

As I have lov'd this proud disdainful haggard.
And so farewell, Signior Lucentio. 40

Kindness in women, not their beauteous looks,

Shall win my love and so I take my leave,
In resolution as I swore before

[Exit HORTENSIO LUCENTIO and BIANCA advance]

Tra Mistress Bianca, bless you with such grace

As longeth to a lover's blessed case!

Nay, I have ta'en you napping, gentle love,

And have forsworn you with Hortensio

Bian Tranio, you jest But have you both forsworn me?

Tra Mistress, we have

Luc Then we are rid of Licio

Tra I' faith, he'll have a lusty widow now,
That shall be woo'd and wedded in a day

Bian God give him joy!

Tra Ay, and he'll tame her

Bian He says so, Tranio

Tra Faith, he is gone unto the taming-school

Bian The taming-school! what, is there such a place?

Tra Ay, mistress, and Petruchio is the master,

That teacheth tricks eleven and twenty long,
To tame a shrew, and charm her chattering tongue

[Enter BIONDELLO, running]

Bion O master, master! I have watch'd so long

That I'm dog-weary, but at last I spied

An ancient angel coming down the hill
Will serve the turn

Tra What is he, Biondello?

Bion Master, a mercatante, or a pedant,
I know not what, but formal in apparel,

In gait and countenance surely like a father

Luc And what of him, Tranio?

Tra If he be credulous and trust my tale,
I'll make him glad to seem Vincentio,

And give assurance to Baptista Minola,
As if he were the right Vincentio

Take in your love, and then let me alone

[Exit LUCENTIO and BIANCA.]

[Enter a Pedant.]

Ped God save you, sir!

Tra And you, sir! you are welcome

Travel you far on, or are you at the furthest?

Ped Sir, at the furthest for a week or two;

But then up further, and as far as Rome,
And so to Tripoli, if God lend me life.

Tra What countryman, I pray?

Ped Of Mantua

Tra Of Mantua, sir! marry, God forbid!

And come to Padua, careless of your life?

Ped My life, sir! how, I pray? for that goes hard.

Tra 'Tis death for any one in Mantua

To come to Padua. Know you not the cause?

Your ships are stay'd at Venice, and the duke,—
For private quarrel, 'twixt your duke and him,— Hath publish'd and proclaim'd it openly

'Tis marvel, but that you are but newly come,
You might have heard it else proclaim'd about.

Ped Alas, sir, it is worse for me than so,

For I have bills for money by exchange
From Florence, and must here deliver them.

Tra Well, sir, to do you courtesy,

This will I do, and thus I will advise you

First, tell me, have you ever been at Pisa?

Ped Ay, sir, in Pisa have I often been,
Pisa, renowned for grave citizens

Tra Among them, know you one Vincentio?

Ped I know him not, but I have heard of him,
A merchant of incomparable wealth.

Tra He is my father, sir, and, sooth to say,
In countenance somewhat doth resemble you

Bion [Aside] As much as an apple doth an oyster, and all one

Tra To save your life in this extremity,

This favour will I do you for his sake,

And think it not the worst of all your fortunes
That you are like to Sir Vincentio

His name and credit shall you undertake,
And in my house you shall be friendly lodg'd,

Look that you take upon you as you should!

You understand me, sir, so shall you stay Till you have done your business in the city

If this be courtesy, sir, accept of it.

Ped O sir, I do, and will repute you ever
The patron of my life and liberty

Tra Then go with me to make the matter good

This, by the way, I let you understand

My father is here look'd for every day,
To pass assurance of a dower in marriage

'Twixt me and one Baptista's daughter here
In all these circumstances I'll instruct you Go with me to clothe you as becomes you

[Exit]

SCENE III — A Room in PETRUCHIO'S House

[Enter KATHARINA and GRUMIO.]

Gru No, no, forsooth, I dare not, for my life.

Kath The more my wrong the more his spite appears

What, did he marry me to famish me?

Beggars, that come unto my father's door,

Upon entreaty have a present alms,

If not, elsewhere they meet with charity:

But I, who never knew how to entreat,

Nor never needed that I should entreat,

Am starv'd for meat, giddy for lack of sleep,

With oaths kept waking, and with brawling fed,
And that which spites me more than all these wants,

He does it under name of perfect love,

As who should say, if I should sleep or eat

'Twere deadly sickness, or else present death.

I prithee go and get me some repast,

I care not what, so it be wholesome food.

Gru What say you to a neat's foot?

Kath 'Tis passing good I prithee let me have it

Gru I fear it is too choleric a meat

How say you to a fat tripe finely broil'd?

Kath I like it well good Grumio, fetch it me

Gru I cannot tell, I fear 'tis choleric

What say you to a piece of beef and mustard?

Kath. A dish that I do love to feed upon. 24
Gru. Ay, but the mustard is too hot a little.
Kath. Why, then the beef, and let the mustard rest Gru. Nay, then I will not you shall have the mustard.
 Or else you get no beef of Grumio 28
Kath. Then both, or one, or anything thou wilt.
Gru. Why then, the mustard without the beef Kath. Go, get thee gone, thou false deluding slave, [Beats him]
 That feed'st me with the very name of meat 32
 Sorrow on thee and all the pack of you,
 That triumph thus upon my misery!
 Go, get thee gone, I say

Enter PETRUCHIO with a dish of meat and HORTENSIO

Pet. How fares my Kate? What, sweeting, all am I? 36
Hor. Mistress, what cheer?
Kath. Faith, as cold as can be Pet. Pluck up thy spirits, look cheerfully upon me Here, love, thou seest how diligent I am,
 To dress thy meat myself and bring it thee 40 [Sets the dish on a table]
 I am sure, sweet Kate, this kindness merits thanks.
 What! not a word? Nay then, thou lov'st it not,
 And all my pains is sorted to no proof
 Here, take away this dish
Kath. I pray you, let it stand. 44
Pet. The poorest service is repaid with thanks,
 And so shall mine, before you touch the meat.
Kath. I thank you, sir
Hor. Signior Petruchio, fie! you are to blame.
 Come, Mistress Kate, I'll bear you company 49
Pet. [Aside] Eat it up all, Hortensio, if thou lov'st me.
 Much good do it unto thy gentle heart!
 Kate, eat apace and now, my honey love, 52
 Will we return unto thy father's house,
 And revel it as bravely as the best,
 With silken coats and caps and golden rings,
 With ruffs and cuffs and farthingales and things, With scarfs and fans and double change of bravery, 57
 With amber bracelets, beads and all this knavery
 What! hast thou din'd? The tailor stays thy leisure,
 To deck thy body with his ruffling treasure. 60

Enter Tailor
 Come, tailor, let us see these ornaments, Lay forth the gown.—

Enter Haberdasher
 What news with you, sir?
Hob. Here is the cap your worship did bespeak.
Pet. Why, this was moulded on a porringer,
 A velvet dish, fie, fie! 'tis lewd and filthy 65
 Why, 'tis a cockle or a walnut-shell,

A knack, a toy, a trick, a baby's cap
 Away with it! come, let me have a bigger 68
Kath. I'll have no bigger this doth fit the time, And gentlewomen wear such caps as these.
Pet. When you are gentle, you shall have one too,
 And not till then
Hor. [Aside] That will not be in haste.
Kath. Why, sir, I trust I may have leave to speak. 73
 And speak I will, I am no child, no babe
 Your betters have endur'd me say my mind,
 And if you cannot, best you stop your ears 76
 My tongue will tell the anger of my heart,
 Or else my heart, concealing it, will break
 And rather than it shall, I will be free
 Even to the uttermost, as I please, in words 80
Pet. Why, thou sayst true, it is a paltry cap,
 A custard-coffin, a bauble, a silken pie
 I love thee well in that thou lik'st it not.
Kath. Love me or love me not, I like the cap,
 And it I will have, or I will have none 85
 [Exit Haberdasher]
Pet. Thy gown? why, ay come, tailor, let us see't.
 O mercy, God! what masquing stuff is here?
 What's this? a sleeve? 'tis like a demi-cannon
 What! up and down, carv'd like an apple-tart?
 Here's snp and nip and cut and shish and slash,
 Like to a censer in that thou lik'st it not.
 Why, what, I' devil's name, tailor, call'st thou this? 92
Hor. [Aside] I see, she's like to have neither cap nor gown.
Tai. You bid me make it orderly and well,
 According to the fashion and the time
Pet. Marry, and did but if you be remember'd, 96
 I did not bid you mar it to the time.
 Go, hop me over every kennel home,
 For you shall hop without my custom, sir
 I'll none of it hence! make your best of it 100 Kath. I never saw a better-fashion'd gown,
 More quaint, more pleasing, nor more commendable Belike you mean to make a puppet of me
Pet. Why, true, he means to make a puppet of thee 104
Tai. She says your worship means to make a puppet of her Pet. O monstrous arrogance! Thou heest, thou thread, 108
 Thou thumble,
 Thou yard, three-quarters, half-yard, quarter, nail!
 Thou flea, thou nit, thou winter-cricket thou!
 Brav'd in mine own house with a skein of thread!
 Away! thou rag, thou quantity, thou remnant,
 Or I shall so be-mete thee with thy yard 113
 As thou shalt think on prating whilst thou liv'st!
 I tell thee, I, that thou hast marr'd her gown.
Tai. Your worship is deceiv'd the gown is made 116
 Just as my master had direction.
 Grumio gave order how it should be done.

Gru I gave him no order, I gave him the stuff
Tai But how did you desire it should be made? 120
Gru Marry, sir, with needle and thread
Tai But did you not request to have it cut?
Gru Thou hast faced many things
Tai I have 124
Gru Face not me thou hast braved many men, brave not me I will neither be faced nor braved I say unto thee, I bid thy master cut out the gown, but I did not bid him cut it to pieces ergo, thou hest 129
Tai Why, here is the note of the fashion to testify Pet Read it. 132
Gru The note lies in's throat if he say I said so Tai Imprimis A loose-bodied gown
Gru Master, if ever I said loose-bodied gown, sew me in the skirts of it, and beat me to death with a bottom of brown thread. I said, a gown.
Pet Proceed
Tai With a small compassed cape Gru I confess the cape 140
Tai With a trunk sleeve
Gru I confess two sleeves
Tai The sleeves curiously cut
Pet Ay, there's the villany 144
Gru Error i' the bill, sir, error i' the bill I commanded the sleeves should be cut out and sewed up again, and that I'll prove upon thee, though thy little finger be armed in a thimble
Tai This is true that I say an I had thee in place where thou shouldst know it 150
Gru I am for thee straight take thou the bill, give me thy mete-yard, and spare not me
Hor God-a-mercy, Grumio! then he shall have no odds Pet Well, sir, in brief, the gown is not for me 156
Gru You are i' the right, sir, 'tis for my mistress Pet Go take it up unto thy master's use Gru Villain, not for thy life! take up my mistress' gown for thy master's use! 161 Pet Why sir what's your conceit in that?
Gru O, sir, the conceit is deeper than you think for Take up my mistress' gown to his master's use!
 O, fie, fie, fie! 165
Pet [Aside] Hortensio, say thou wilt see the tailor paid [To Tailor] Go take it hence, be gone, and say no more Hor [Aside to Tailor] Tailor, I'll pay thee for thy gown to-morrow 168 Take no unkindness of his hasty words Away! I say, commend me to thy master [Exit Tailor]
Pet Well, come, my Kate, we will unto your father's,
 Even in these honest mean habiliments 172
 Our purses shall be proud, our garments poor
 For 'tis the mind that makes the body rich,
 And as the sun breaks through the darkest clouds,
 So honour peereth in the meanest habit. 176

What is the jay more precious than the lark
 Because his feathers are more beautiful?
 Or is the adder better than the eel
 Because his painted skin contents the eye? 180
 O, no, good Kate, neither art thou the worse
 For this poor furniture and mean array
 If thou account'st it shame, lay it on me,
 And therefore frolic we will hence forthwith,
 To feast and sport us at thy father's house 185
 Go, call my men, and let us straight to him,
 And bring our horses unto Long-lane end,
 There will we mount, and thither walk on foot.
 Let's see, I think 'tis now some seven o'clock,
 And well we may come there by dinner-time Kath I dare assure you, sir, 'tis almost two,
 And 'twill be supper-time ere you come there 192
Pet It shall be seven ere I go to horse.
 Look, what I speak, or do, or think to do,
 You are still crossing it. Sirs, let's alone
 I will not go to-day, and ere I do, 196
 It shall be what o'clock I say it is Hor Why, so this gallant will command the sun.
 [Exeunt]

SCENE IV — Padua Before BAPTISTA'S House

Enter TRANIO, and the Pedant dressed like VINCENTIO

Tra Sir, this is the house please it you that I call?
Ped Ay, what else? and, but I be deceived, Signior Baptista may remember me, Near twenty years ago, in Genoa, 4
 Where we were lodgers at the Pegasus
Tra 'Tis well, and hold your own, in any case,
 With such austerity as 'longeth to a father Ped I warrant you. But, sir, here comes your boy, 8
 'Twere good he were school'd.

Enter BIONDELLO

Tra Fear you not him. Sirrah Biondello, Now do your duty thoroughly, I advise you Imagine twere the right Vincentio 12
Bion Tut! fear not me
Tra But hast thou done thy errand to Baptista?
Bion I told him that your father was at Venice,
 And that you look'd for him this day in Padua.
Tra Thou'rt a tall fellow hold thee that to drink 17
 Here comes Baptista Set your countenance, sir

Enter BAPTISTA and LUCENTIO

Signior Baptista, you are happily met.
 [To the Pedant] Sir, this is the gentleman I told you of 20
 I pray you, stand good father to me now, Give me Bianca for my patrimony Ped Soft, son!
 Sir, by your leave. having come to Padua 24

To gather in some debts, my son Lucentio
 Made me acquainted with a weighty cause
 Of love between your daughter and himself
 And,—for the good report I hear of you, 28
 And for the love he beareth to your daughter,
 And she to him,—to stay him not too long,
 I am content, in a good father's care,
 To have him match'd, and, if you please to like No worse than I, upon some agreement 33 Me shall you find ready and willing With one consent to have her so bestow'd,
 For curious I cannot be with you, 36
 Signor Baptista, of whom I hear so well Bap Sir, pardon me in what I have to say Your plainness and your shortness please me
 well

Right true it is, your son Lucentio here 40
 Doth love my daughter and she loveth him,
 Or both dissemble deeply their affections
 And therefore, if you say no more than this,
 That like a father you will deal with him 44
 And pass my daughter a sufficient dower,
 The match is made, and all is done
 Your son shall have my daughter with consent Tra I thank you, sir Where, then, do you know best 48

We be affied and such assurance ta'en
 As shall with either part's agreement stand?

Bap Not in my house, Lucentio, for, you
 know,

Pitchers have ears, and I have many servants. 52 Besides, old Gremio is hearkening still,
 And happily we might be interrupted.

Tra Then at my lodging an it like you
 There doth my father lie, and there this night
 We'll pass the business privately and well 57
 Send for your daughter by your servant here,
 My boy shall fetch the scrivener presently
 The worst is this, that, at so slender warning, 60
 You're like to have a thin and slender pittance

Bap It likes me well. Cambio, hie you home.

And bid Bianca make her ready straight,
 And, if you will, tell what hath happened 64
 Lucentio's father is arriv'd in Padua,
 And how she's like to be Lucentio's wife.

Luc I pray the gods she may with all my heart!

Tra Dally not with the gods, but get thee
 gone 68

Signior Baptista, shall I lead the way?
 Welcome! one mess is like to be your cheer
 Come, sir we will better it in Pisa.

Bap I follow you. 72
 [Exit TRANIO, PEDANT, and BAPTISTA.]

Bion Cambio!

Luc What sayst thou, Biondello?

Bion You saw my master wink and laugh upon you? 76

Luc Biondello, what of that?

Bion Faith, nothing, but he has left me here behind to expound the meaning or moral of his signs and tokens. 80

Luc I pray thee, moralize them.

Bion Then thus Baptista is safe, talking with the deceiving father of a deceitful son.

Luc And what of him? 84

Bion His daughter is to be brought by you to the supper

Luc And then?

Bion The old priest at Saint Luke's church is at your command at all hours 89

Luc And what of all this?

Bion I cannot tell, expect they are busied about a counterfeit assurance take you assurance of her, cum privilegio ad imprimendum solum To the church! take the priest, clerk, and some sufficient honest witnesses

 If this be not that you look for, I have no more to say, 96

But bid Bianca farewell for ever and a day [Going]

Luc Hearest thou, Biondello?

Bion I cannot tarry I knew a wench married in an afternoon as she went to the garden for parsley to stuff a rabbit, and so may you, sir, and so, adieu, sir My master hath appointed me to go to Saint Luke's, to bid the priest be ready to come against you come with your appendix [Exit]

Luc I may, and will, if she be so contented
 She will be pleas'd, then wherefore should I doubt?

Hap what hap may, I'll roundly go about her
 It shall go hard if Cambio go without her 109

[Exit]

SCENE V—A public Road

Enter PETRUCHIO, KATHARINA, HORTENSIO, and Servants.

Pet Come on, I' God's name, once more toward our father's

Good Lord, how bright and goodly shines the moon!

Kath The moon! the sun it is not moonlight now

Pet I say it is the moon that shines so bright.

Kath I know it is the sun that shines so bright. 5

Pet Now, by my mother's son, and that's
 myself,

It shall be moon, or star, or what I list,
 Or ere I journey to your father's house 8

Go one and fetch our horses back again Evermore cross'd and cross'd, nothing but cross'd!

Hor Say as he says, or we shall never go

Kath Forward, I pray, since we have come so far, 12

And be it moon, or sun, or what you please
 An if you please to call it a rush-candle,

Henceforth I vow it shall be so for me.

Pet I say it is the moon.

Kath I know it is the moon 16

Pet Nay, then you lie, it is the blessed sun.

Kath Then God be bless'd, it is the blessed sun

But sun it is not when you say it is not,
 And the moon changes even as your mind. 20

What you will have it nam'd, even that it is,
And so, it shall be so for Katharine

Hor Petruchio, go thy ways, the field is won

Pet Well, forward, forward! thus the bowl should run, 24

And not unluckily against the bias
But soft! what company is coming here?

Enter VINCENTIO, in a travelling dress

[To VINCENTIO] Good morrow, gentle mistress where away?

Tell me, sweet Kate, and tell me truly too, 28
Hast thou beheld a fresher gentlewoman?

Such war of white and red within her cheeks!
What stars do spangle heaven with such beauty,

As those two eyes become that heavenly face? 32
Fair lovely maid, once more good day to thee

Sweet Kate, embrace her for her beauty's sake Hor A' will make the man mad, to make a woman of him. 36

Kath Young budding virgin, fair and fresh and sweet,

Whither away, or where is thy abode?
Happy the parents of so fair a child,

Happier the man, whom favourable stars 40
Allot thee for his lovely bed-fellow!

Pet Why, how now, Kate! I hope thou art not mad

This is a man, old, wrinkled, faded, wither'd,
And not a maiden, as thou sayst he is 44

Kath Pardon, old father, my mistaking eyes,
That have been so bedazzled with the sun

That everything I look on seemeth green
Now I perceive thou art a reverend father, 48

Pardon, I pray thee, for my mad mistaking Pet Do, good old grandsire, and withal make known

Which way thou travellest if along with us,

We shall be joyful of thy company 52
Vin Fair sir, and you my merry mistress,

That with your strange encounter much amaz'd me,

My name is called Vincentio, my dwelling, Pisa,

And bound I am to Padua, there to visit 56
A son of mine, which long I have not seen

Pet What is his name?
Vin Lucentio, gentle sir

Pet Happily met, the happier for thy son
And now by law, as well as reverend age, 60

I may entitle thee my loving father
The sister to my wife, this gentlewoman,

Thy son by this hath married. Wonder not,
Nor be not griev'd she is of good esteem, 64

Her dowry wealthy, and of worthy birth, Beside, so qualified as may beseeem

The spouse of any noble gentleman.
Let me embrace with old Vincentio, 68

And wander we to see thy honest son,
Who will of thy arrival be full joyous

Vin But is this true? or is it else your pleasure, Like pleasant travellers, to break a jest

Upon the company you overtake?
Hor I do assure thee, father, so it is.

Pet Come, go along, and see the truth hereof,

For our first merriment hath made thee jealous [Exeunt all but HORTENSIO

Hor Well, Petruchio, this has put me in heart 77

Have to my widow! and if she be froward, Then 't is thou taught Hortensio to be unto-ward [Exit

ACT V

SCENE I.—Padua Before LUCENTIO'S House

Enter on one side BIONDELLO, LUCENTIO, and BIANCA, GREMIO walking on the other side

Bion Softly and swiftly, sir, for the priest is ready

Luc I fly, Biondello! but they may chance to need thee at home therefore leave us 4

Bion Nay, faith, I'll see the church o' your back, and then come back to my master as soon as I can [Exeunt LUCENTIO, BIANCA, and BIONDELLO

Gre I marvel Cambio comes not all this while 8

Enter PETRUCHIO, KATHARINA, VINCENTIO, and Attendants

Pet Sir, here's the door, this is Lucentio's house

My father's bears more toward the marketplace,

Thither must I, and here I leave you, sir Vin You shall not choose but drink before you go 12

I think I shall command your welcome here,

And, by all likelihood, some cheer is toward [Knocks

Gre They're busy within, you were best knock louder 16

Enter Pedant above, at a window
Ped What's he that knocks as he would beat down the gate?

Vin Is Signior Lucentio within, sir?

Ped He's within, sir, but not to be spoken
withal. 21

Vin What if a man bring him a hundred pound or two, to make merry withal?

Ped Keep your hundred pounds to yourself he shall need none so long as I live 25

Pet Nay, I told you your son was well beloved in Padua. Do you hear, sir? To leave frivolous circumstances, I pray you tell Signior Lucentio that his father is come from Pisa, and is here at the door to speak with him Ped Thou liest his father is come from Padua, and here looking out at the window 32

Vin Art thou his father?

Ped Ay, sir, so his mother says, if I may believe her

Pet [To VINCENTIO] Why, how now, gentleman! why, this is flat knavery, to take upon you another man's name.

Ped Lay hands on the villain! I believe, a' means to cozen somebody in this city under my countenance

41

Re-enter BIONDELLO

Bion I have seen them in the church together. God send 'em good shipping! But who is here? mine old master, Vincentio! now we are undone and brought to nothing

45

Vin. [Seeing BIONDELLO] Come hither, crack-hemp

Bion. I hope I may choose, sir
Vin. Come hither, you rogue. What, have you forgot me?

48

Bion Forgot you! no, sir. I could not forget you, for I never saw you before in all my life Vin What, you notorious villain! didst thou never see thy master's father, Vincentio?

52

Bion. What, my old, worshipful old master? yes, marry, sir. see where he looks out of the window

57

Vin. Is't so, indeed? [Beats BIONDELLO]
Bion Help, help, help! here's a madman will murder me

[Exit

Ped. Help, son! help, Signior Baptista!

61

Pet Prithce, Kate, let's stand aside, and see the end of this controversy

[They retire

Re-enter Pedant below, BAPTISTA, TRANIO, and Servants

Tra Sir, what are you that offer to beat my servant?

65

Vin. What am I, sir! nay, what are you, sir? O immortal gods! O fine villain! A silken doublet! a velvet hose! a scarlet cloak! and a copatain hat! O, I am undone! I am undone! while I play the good husband at home, my son and my servant spend all at the university

Tra. How now! what's the matter?

Bap. What, is the man lunatic?
Tra. Sir, you seem a sober ancient gentleman by your habit, but your words show you a madman. Why, sir, what 'cerns it you if I wear pearl and gold? I thank my good father, I am able to maintain it.

Vin. Thy father! O villain! he is a sail-maker in Bergamo

80

Bap. You mistake, sir, you mistake, sir. Pray, what do you think is his name?

Vin. His name! as if I knew not his name. I have brought him up ever since he was three years old, and his name is Tranio

85

Ped. Away, away, mad ass! his name is Lucentio, and he is mine only son, and heir to the lands of me, Signior Vincentio

88

Vin. Lucentio! O! he hath murdered his master. Lay hold on him, I charge you in the duke's name. O my son, my son! tell me, thou villain, where is my son Lucentio?

92

Tra. Call forth an officer

Enter one with an Officer

Carry this mad knave to the gaol. Father Baptista, I charge you see that he be forthcoming

Vin. Carry me to the gaol!

96

Gre Stay, officer. he shall not go to prison.
Bap Talk not, Signior Gremio. I say he shall go to prison

99

Gre Take heed, Signior Baptista, lest you be cony-catched in this business. I dare swear this is the right Vincentio

Ped Swear, if thou darest

Gre Nay, I dare not swear it 104

Tra Then thou wert best say, that I am not Lucentio

Gre Yes. I know thee to be Signior Lucentio

Bap Away with the dotard! to the gaol with him!

109

Vin Thus strangers may be haied and abused. O monstrous villain!

Re-enter BIONDELLO, with LUCENTIO and BIANCA

Bion. O! we are spoiled, and yonder he is deny him, forswear him, or else we are all undone

114

Luc [Kneeling] Pardon, sweet father

Vin Lives my sweetest son?

[BIONDELLO, TRANIO, and Pedant run out.

Bian [Kneeling] Pardon, dear father

Bap How hast thou offended?

Where is Lucentio?

Luc Here's Lucentio,

117

Right son to the right Vincentio, That have by marriage made thy daughter mine,

While counterfet supposes blear'd thine eyne

Gre Here's packing, with a witness, to deceive us all!

Vin. Where is that damned villain Tranio, That fac'd and brav'd me in this matter so?

124

Bap Why, tell me, is not this my Cambio?

Bian Cambio is chang'd into Lucentio

Luc Love wrought these miracles. Bianca's love

Made me exchange my state with Tranio,

While he did bear my countenance in the town,

And happily I have arriv'd at last

Unto the wished haven of my bliss

What Tranio did, myself enforc'd him to,

Then pardon him, sweet father, for my sake

Vin I'll slit the villain's nose, that would have sent me to the gaol

Bap [To LUCENTIO] But do you hear, sir?

Have you married my daughter without asking my good will?

138

Vin Fear not, Baptista, we will content you, go to. But I will in, to be revenged for this villany

[Exit

Bap And I, to sound the depth of this knavery

[Exit

Luc Look not pale, Bianca, thy father will not frown.

[Exeunt LUCENTIO and BIANCA

Gre My cake is dough, but I'll in among the rest,

Out of hope of all, but my share of the feast.

[Exit

PETRUCHIO and KATHARINA advance

Kath Husband, let's follow, to see the end of this ado

149

Pet First kiss me, Kate, and we will.

Kath What! in the midst of the street?
Pet What! art thou ashamed of me? 152 Kath No, sir, God forbid, but ashamed to kiss
Pet Why, then let's home again. Come, sirrah, let's away
Kath Nay, I will give thee a kiss now pray thee, love, stay
Pet Is not this well? Come, my sweet Kate Better once than never, for never too late 157
 [Exeunt]

SCENE II — A Room in LUCENTIO'S House

A Banquet set out Enter BAPTISTA, VINCENTIO, GREMIO, the Pedant, LUCENTIO, BIANCA, PETRUCHIO, KATHARINA, HORTENSIO, and Widow TRANIO, BIONDELLO, GRUMIO, and Others, attending
Luc At last, though long, our jarring notes agree
 And time it is, when raging war is done,
 To smile at 'scapes and perils overblown.
 My fair Bianca, bid my father welcome, 4
 While I with self-same kindness welcome thine Brother Petruchio, sister Katharina,
 And thou, Hortensio, with thy loving widow, Feast with the best, and welcome to my house
 My banquet is to close our stomachs up, 9
 After our great good cheer Pray you, sit down,
 For now we sit to chat as well as eat.

[They sit at table]

Pet Nothing but sit and sit, and eat and eat! 12
Bap Padua affords this kindness, son Petruchio
Pet Padua affords nothing but what is kind Hor For both our sakes I would that word were true
Pet Now, for my life, Hortensio fears his widow 16
Wid Then never trust me, if I be afraid Pet You are very sensible, and yet you miss my sense
 I mean, Hortensio is afraid of you.
Wid He that is giddy thinks the world turns round 20
Pet Roundly replied
Kath Mistress, how mean you that?
Wid Thus I conceive by him Pet Conceive by me! How likes Hortensio
 that?
Hor My widow says, thus she conceives her tale 24
Pet Very well mended. Kiss him for that, good widow Kath 'He that is giddy thinks the world turns round'
 I pray you, tell me what you meant by that.
Wid Your husband, being troubled with a shrew, 28
 Measures my husband's sorrow by his woe
 And now you know my meaning.
Kath A very mean meaning Wid Right, I mean you.

Kath And I am mean, indeed, respecting
 you 32
Pet To her, Kate
Hor To her, widow!
Pet A hundred marks, my Kate does put her
 down
Hor That's my office 36
Pet Spoke like an officer ha' to thee, lad.
 [Drinks to HORTENSIO] Bap How likes Gremio these quick-witted folks?
Gre Believe me, sir, they butt together well.
Bian Head and butt! a hasty-witted body Would say your head and butt were head and horn. 41
Vin Ay, mistress bride, hath that awaken'd
 you?
Bian Ay, but not frighted me, therefore I'll sleep again.
Pet Nay, that you shall not, since you have begun, 44
 Have at you for a bitter jest or two Bian Am I your bird? I mean to shift my bush,
 And then pursue me as you draw your bow
 You are welcome all 48
 [Exeunt BIANCA, KATHARINA, and Widow]
Pet She hath prevented me Here, Signior Tranio,
 This bird you aim'd at, though you hit her not Therefore a health to all that shot and miss'd.
Tra O sir! Lucentio shipp'd me, like his greyhound, 52
 Which runs himself, and catches for his master Pet A good swift simile, but something cur-rish.
Tra 'Tis well, sir, that you hunted for yourself 55
 'Tis thought your deer does hold you at a bay Bap O ho, Petruchio! Tranio hits you now
Luc I thank thee for that gird, good Tranio Hor Confess, confess, hath he not hit you
 here?
Pet A' has a little gall'd me, I confess, 60
 And, as the jest did glance away from me,
 'Tis ten to one it maim'd you two outright.
Bap Now, in good sadness, son Petruchio,
 I think thou hast the veriest shrew of all. 64 Pet Well, I say no and therefore, for assurance,
 Let's each one send unto his wife,
 And he whose wife is most obedient
 To come at first when he doth send for her, 68 Shall win the wager which we will propose.
Hor Content What is the wager?
Luc Twenty crowns
Pet Twenty crowns!
 I'll venture so much of my hawk or hound, 72
 But twenty times so much upon my wife Luc A hundred then Hor Content.
Pet A match! 'tis done.
Hor Who shall begin?
Luc That will I.
 Go, Brondello, bid your mistress come to me. 76
Bion I go [Exit]

Bap Son, I will be your half, Bianca comes Luc I'll have no halves, I'll bear it all myself

Re-enter BIONDELLO.

How now! what news?

Bion Sir, my mistress sends you word
 That she is busy and she cannot come 81
Pet How! she is busy, and she cannot come!
 Is that an answer?

Gre Ay and a kind one too
 Pray God, sir, your wife send you not a worse
Pet I hope, better 85
Hor Surrah Biondello, go and entreat my wife

To come to me forthwith [Exit BIONDELLO] Pet O ho! entreat her!
Nay, then she must needs come
Hor I am afraid, sir, 88
 Do what you can, yours will not be entreated

Re-enter BIONDELLO

Now, where's my wife?

Bion She says you have some goodly jest in hand

She will not come she bids you come to her 92

Pet Worse and worse, she will not come! O vile, Intolerable, not to be endur'd!

Surrah Grumio, go to your mistress, say,
 I command her come to me [Exit GRUMIO]

Hor I know her answer 96

Pet What?

Hor She will not.

Pet The fouler fortune mine, and there an end.

Re-enter KATHARINA.

Bap Now, by my holdame, here comes Katharina! 100

Kath What is your will, sir, that you send for me?

Pet Where is your sister, and Hortensio's wife?

Kath They sit conferring by the parlour fire

Pet Go, fetch them hither. If they deny to come, 104

Swinge me them soundly forth unto their husbands

Away, I say, and bring them hither straight.

[Exit KATHARINA]
Luc Here is a wonder, if you talk of a wonder

Hor And so it is I wonder what it bodes

Pet Marry, peace it bodes, and love, and quiet life, 109

An awful rule and right supremacy,
 And, to be short, what not that's sweet and happy

Bap Now fair befall thee, good Petruchio!
 The wager thou hast won, and I will add 113

Unto their losses twenty thousand crowns, Another dowry to another daughter,

For she is chang'd, as she had never been. 116

Pet Nay, I will win my wager better yet,
 And show more sign of her obedience,

Her new-built virtue and obedience

See where she comes, and brings your froward wives 120

As prisoners to her womanly persuasion.

Re-enter KATHARINA, with BIANCA and Widow

Katharine, that cap of yours becomes you not Off with that bauble, throw it under foot

[KATHARINA pulls off her cap, and throws it down]

Wid Lord! let me never have a cause to sigh, 124

Till I be brought to such a silly pass!

Bian Fie! what a foolish duty call you this?

Luc I would your duty were as foolish too

The wisdom of your duty, fair Bianca, 128
 Hath cost me an hundred crowns since supper-time

Bian The more fool you for laying on my duty

Pet Katharine, I charge thee, tell these head-strong women

What duty they do owe their lords and husbands 132

Wid Come, come, you're mocking we will have no telling

Pet Come on, I say, and first begin with her

Wid She shall not

Pet I say she shall and first begin with her 136

Kath Fie, fie! unknot that threatening unkind brow,

And dart not scornful glances from those eyes,
 To wound thy lord, thy king, thy governor

It blots thy beauty as frosts do bite the meads, Confounds thy fame as whirlwinds shake fair buds, 141

And in no sense is meet or amiable

A woman mov'd is like a fountain troubl'd,

Muddy, ill-seeming, thick, bereft of beauty, 144

And while it is so, none so dry or thirsty

Will deign to sip or touch one drop of it

Thy husband is thy lord, thy life, thy keeper,

Thy head, thy sovereign, one that cares for thee, 148

And for thy maintenance commits his body

To painful labour both by sea and land,

To watch the night in storms, the day in cold,

Whilst thou liest warm at home, secure and safe, 152

And craves no other tribute at thy hands

But love, fair looks, and true obedience,

Too little payment for so great a debt

Such duty as the subject owes the prince, 156

Even such a woman oweth to her husband,

And when she's froward, peevish, sullen, sour,

And not obedient to his honest will,

What is she but a foul contending rebel, 160

And graceless traitor to her loving lord?—

I am asham'd that women are so simple

To offer war where they should kneel for peace,

Or seek for rule, supremacy, and sway, 164

When they are bound to serve, love, and obey

Why are our bodies soft, and weak, and smooth,

Unapt to toil and trouble in the world,

But that our soft conditions and our hearts 168

Should well agree with our external parts?
 Come, come, you froward and unable worms!
 My mind hath been as big as one of yours,
 My heart as great, my reason haply more, 172
 To bandy word for word and frown for frown,
 But now I see our lances are but straws,
 Our strength as weak, our weakness past compare,
 That seeming to be most which we indeed least
 are 176
 Then vail your stomachs, for it is no boot,
 And place your hands below your husband's foot
 In token of which duty, if he please,
 My hand is ready, may it do him ease 180 Pet Why, there's a wench! Come on, and kiss me, Kate

Luc Well, go thy ways, old lad, for thou shalt ha't Vin 'Tis a good hearing when children are toward Luc But a harsh hearing when women are froward 184
Pet Come, Kate, we'll to bed
 We three are married, but you two are sped.
 'Twas I won the wager, [To LUCENTIO] though you hit the white,
 And, being a winner, God give you good
 night! 188
 [Exeunt PETRUCHIO and KATHARINA.] Hor Now, go thy ways, thou hast tam'd a curst shrew
Luc 'Tis a wonder, by your leave, she will be tam'd so [Exeunt.]

ACT I

SCENE I.—Rousillon A Room in the COUNTESS'S Palace

Enter BERTRAM, the COUNTESS OF ROUSILLON, HELENA, and LAFEU, all in black

Count In delivering my son from me, I bury a second husband

Ber And I, in going, madam, weep o'er my father's death anew, but I must attend his majesty's command, to whom I am now in ward, evermore in subjection

Laf You shall find of the king a husband, madam, you, sir, a father He that so generally is at all times good, must of necessity hold his virtue to you, whose worthiness would stir it up where it wanted rather than lack it where there is such abundance

Count What hope is there of his majesty's amendment?

Laf He hath abandoned his physicians, madam, under whose practices he hath persecuted time with hope, and finds no other advantage in the process but only the losing of hope by time

Count This young gentlewoman had a father,—O, that 'had! how sad a passage 'tis!— whose skill was almost as great as his honesty, had it stretched so far, would have made nature immortal, and death should have play for lack of work. Would, for the king's sake, he were living! I think it would be the death of the king's disease.

Laf How called you the man you speak of,
madam?

Count He was famous, sir, in his profession, and it was his great right to be so Gerard de Narbon.

Laf He was excellent indeed, madam the king very lately spoke of him admiringly and mourningly He was skilful enough to have lived still, if knowledge could be set up against mortality

Ber What is it, my good lord, the king languishes of?

Laf A fistula, my lord

Ber I heard not of it before

Laf I would it were not notorious. Was this gentlewoman the daughter of Gerard de Narbon?

Count His sole child, my lord, and bequeathed to my overlooking I have those hopes of her good that her education promises her dispositions she inherits, which makes fair gifts fairer, for where an unclean mind carries vir-tuous qualities, there commendations go with pity, they are virtues and traitors too in her they are the better for their simpleness, she derives her honesty and achieves her goodness

Laf Your commendations, madam, get from her tears

Count 'Tis the best brine a maiden can season her praise in. The remembrance of her father never approaches her heart but the tyranny of her sorrows takes all livelhood from her cheek. No more of this, Helena, go to, no more, lest it be rather thought you affect a sorrow, than have it

Hel I do affect a sorrow indeed, but I have it too

Laf Moderate lamentation is the right of the dead, excessive grief the enemy to the living.

Hel If the living be enemy to the grief, the excess makes it soon mortal

Ber Madam, I desire your holy wishes

Laf How understand we that?

Count Be thou blest, Bertram, and succeed thy father

In manners, as in shape! thy blood and virtue Contend for empire in thee, and thy goodness Share with thy birthright! Love all, trust a few,
Do wrong to none be able for thine enemy
Rather in power than use, and keep thy friend
Under thy own life's key be check'd for silence, But never tax'd for speech What heaven more will

That thee may furnish, and my prayers pluck
down,

Fall on thy head! Farewell, my lord,

'Tis an unseason'd courtier, good my lord,

Advise him.

Laf He cannot want the best

That shall attend his love

Count Heaven bless him! Farewell, Bertram

Ber. [To HELENA.] The best wishes that can be forged in your thoughts be servants to you!

 Be comfortable to my mother, your mistress, and make much of her Laf Farewell, pretty lady you must hold the credit of your father

[Exeunt BERTRAM and LAFEU]

Hel O! were that all I think not on my
 father,
 And these great tears grace his remembrance
 more

Than those I shed for him What was he like?
 I have forgot him my imagination
 Carries no favour in't but Bertram's
 I am undone there is no living, none,
 If Bertram be away It were all one
 That I should love a bright particular star
 And think to wed it, he is so above me
 In his bright radiance and collateral light Must I be comforted, not in his sphere
 The ambition in my love thus plagues itself
 The hind that would be mated by the lion Must die for love 'Twas pretty, though a plague,

To see him every hour, to sit and draw
 His arched brows, his hawking eye, his curls,
 In our heart's table heart too capable Of every line and trick of his sweet favour
 But now he's gone, and my idolatrous fancy Must sanctify his reliques Who comes here?
 One that goes with him I love him for his sake,
 And yet I know him a notorious liar,
 Think him a great way fool, solely a coward,
 Yet these fix'd evils sit so fit in him,
 That they take place, when virtue's steely bones Look bleak in the cold wind withal, full oft we
 see
 Cold wisdom waiting on superfluous folly

Enter PAROLLES

Par Save you, fair queen!

Hel And you, monarch!

Par No

Hel And no

Par Are you meditating on virginity?

Hel Ay You have some stain of soldier in you, let me ask you a question Man is enemy to virginity, how may we barricado it against him?

Par Keep him out

Hel But he assails, and our virginity, though valiant in the defence, yet is weak Unfold to us some war-like resistance

Par There is none man, sitting down before you, will undermine you and blow you up

Hel Bless our poor virginity from under-miners and blowers up! Is there no military policy, how virgins might blow up men?

Par Virginity being blown down, man will quicklier be blown up marry in blowing him down again, with the breach yourselves made, you lose your city It is not politic in the commonwealth of nature to preserve virginity. Loss of virginity is rational increase, and there was never virgin got till virginity was first lost That you were made of is metal to make virgins

Virginity, by being once lost, may be ten times found by being ever kept, it is ever lost 'Tis too cold a companion away with't!

Hel I will stand for't a little, though therefore I die a virgin

Par There's little can be said in't, 'tis against the rule of nature To speak on the part of virginity is to accuse your mothers, which is most infallible disobedience He that hangs himself is a virgin virginity murders itself, and should be buried in highways, out of all sanctified limit, as a desperate offensiveness against nature Virginity breeds mates, much like a cheese, consumes itself to the very paring, and so dies with feeding his own stomach Besides, virginity is peevish, proud, idle, made of self-love, which is the most inhibited sin in the canon Keep it not, you cannot choose but lose by't! Out with't! within the year it will make itself two, which is a goodly increase, and the principal itself not much the worse Away with't!

Hel How might one do, sir, to lose it to her own liking?

Par Let me see marry, ill, to like him that ne'er it likes 'Tis a commodity that will lose the gloss with lying, the longer kept, the less worth off with't, while 'tis vendible, answer the time of request Virginity, like an old courtesan, wears her cap out of fashion, richly suited, but unsuitable just like the brooch and the tooth-pick, which wear not now Your oats are better in your pie and your porridge than in your cheek and your virginity, your old virginity, is like one of our French withered pears, it looks ill, it eats drily, marry, 'tis a withered pear, it was formerly better, marry, yet 'tis a withered pear
 Will you anything with it?

Hel Not my virginity yet
 There shall your master have a thousand loves,
 A mother, and a mistress, and a friend,
 A phoenix, captain, and an enemy,
 A guide, a goddess, and a sovereign,
 A counsellor, a traitress, and a dear,
 His humble ambition, proud humility,
 His jarring concord, and his discord dulcet,
 His faith, his sweet disaster, with a world
 Of pretty, fond, adoptive christendoms, That blinking Cupid gossips Now shall he—
 I know not what he shall God send him well!
 The court's a learning-place, and he is one—

Par What one, i' faith?

Hel That I wish well 'Tis pity—

Par What's pity?

Hel That wishing well had not a body in't,
 Which might be felt, that we, the poorer born,
 Whose baser stars do shut us up in wishes,
 Might with effects of them follow our friends,
 And show what we alone must think, which never

Returns us thanks

Enter a Page.

Page Monsieur Parolles, my lord calls for
 you

Par Little Helen farewell if I can remember thee I will think of thee at court.

Hel Monsieur Parolles, you were born under a charitable star 208

Par Under Mars, I

Hel I especially think, under Mars

Par Why under Mars?

Hel The wars have so kept you under that you must needs be born under Mars 213

Par When he was predominant

Hel When he was retrograde, I think rather

Par Why think you so? 216

Hel You go so much backward when you
fight

Par That's for advantage

Hel So is running away, when fear proposes the safety but the composition that your valour and fear makes in you is a virtue of a good wing, and I like the wear well 223

Par I am so full of businesses I cannot answer thee acutely I will return perfect courtier, in the which, my instruction shall serve to naturalize thee, so thou wilt be capable of a courtier's counsel, and understand what advice shall thrust upon thee, else thou diest in thine unthankfulness, and thine ignorance makes thee away farewell When thou hast leisure, say thy prayers, when thou hast none, remember thy friends Get thee a good husband, and use him as he uses thee so, farewell [Exit 223]

Hel Our remedies oft in ourselves do lie
Which we ascribe to heaven the fated sky 236 Gives us free scope, only doth backward pull
Our slow designs when we ourselves are dull
What power is it which mounts my love so high,
That makes me see, and cannot feed mine eye?
The mightiest space fortune nature brings 241
To join like likes and kiss like native things Impossible be strange attempts to those That weigh their pains in sense, and do suppose What hath been cannot be who ever strove 245
To show her merit, that did miss her love?
The king's disease,—my project may deceive
me,

But my intents are fix'd and will not leave me

[Exit

SCENE II.—Paris A Room in the KING'S Palace

Flourish of Cornets Enter the KING OF FRANCE, with letters, Lords and Others attending King The Florentines and Senoys are by the ears,

Have fought with equal fortune, and continue
A braving war

First Lord. So 'tis reported, sir

King Nay, 'tis most credible we here receive it 4

A certainty, vouch'd from our cousin Austria,
With caution that the Florentine will move us
For speedy aid, wherein our dearest friend Prejudicates the business, and would seem 8
To have us make denial

First Lord His love and wisdom, Approv'd so to your majesty, may plead
For amplest credence.

King He hath arm'd our answer,
And Florence is denied before he comes 12
Yet, for our gentlemen that mean to see
The Tuscan service, freely have they leave To stand on either part

Sec Lord It well may serve
A nursery to our gentry, who are sick 16
For breathing and exploit

King What's he comes here?

Enter BERTRAM, LAFEU, and PAROLLES

First Lord It is the Count Rousillon, my good lord,

Young Bertram

King You'h, thou bear'st thy father's face, Frank nature, rather curious than in haste, 20 Hath well compos'd thee Thy father's moral parts

Mayst thou inherit too! Welcome to Paris

Ber My thanks and duty are your majesty's

King I would I had that corporal soundness
now, 24

As when thy father and myself in friendship
First tried our soldiership! He did look far Into the service of the time and was

Discipled of the bravest he lasted long, 28

But on us both did haggish age steal on,

And wore us out of act It much repairs me

To talk of your good father In his youth

He had the wit which I can well observe 32

To-day in our young lords, but they may jest

Till their own scorn return to them unnoted

Ere they can hide their levity in honour

So like a courtier, contempt nor bitterness 36

Were in his pride or sharpness, if they were,

His equal had awak'd them, and his honour,

Clock to itself, knew the true minute when

Exception bid him speak, and at this time 40

His tongue obey'd his hand who were below
him

He us'd as creatures of another place,

And bow'd his eminent top to their low ranks,

Making them proud of his humility, 44

In their poor praise he humbled Such a man

Might be a copy to these younger times,

Which, follow'd well, would demonstrate them
now

But goes backward

Ber His good remembrance, sir, 48

Lies richer in your thoughts than on his tomb,

So in approof lives not his epitaph

As in your royal speech.

King Would I were with him! He would always say,— 52

Methinks I hear him now his plausible words

He scatter'd not in ears, but grafted them,

To grow there and to bear 'Let me not live,'—

Thus his good melancholy oft began, 56

On the catastrophe and heel of pastime,

When it was out,—'Let me not live,' quoth he,

'After my flame lacks oil, to be the snuff' 59

Of younger spirits, whose apprehensive senses

All but new things disdain, whose judgments are Mere fathers of their garments, whose con-stances

Expire before their fashions' This he wish'd
I, after him, do after him wish too, 64
Since I nor wax nor honey can bring home,
I quickly were dissolved from my hive,
To give some labourers room

Sec Lord You are lov'd, sir,
They that least lend it you shall lack you first, 68 King I fill a place, I know't How long is't,
count,

Since the physician at your father's died?
He was much fam'd

Ber Some six months since, my lord.

King If he were living, I would try him yet Lend me an arm the rest have worn me out 73
With several applications nature and sickness

Debate it at their leisure Welcome, count, My son's no dearer

Ber Thank your majesty 76 [Exeunt Flourish]

SCENE III —Rousillon A Room in the COUNTESS'S Palace

Enter COUNTESS, Steward, and Clown

Count I will now hear what say you of this gentlewoman?

Stew Madam, the care I have had to even your content, I wish might be found in the calendar of my past endeavours for then we wound our modesty and make foul the clearness of our deservings, when of ourselves we publish
them 8

Count What does this knave here? Get you gone, sirrah the complaints I have heard of you I do not all believe 'tis my slowness that I do not for I know you lack not folly to commit them, and have ability enough to make such knaveries yours

Clo 'Tis not unknown to you, madam, I am a poor fellow 16

Count Well, sir

Clo No, madam, 'tis not so well that I am poor, though many of the rich are damned But, if I may have your ladyship's good will to go to the world, Isabel the woman and I will do as we may Count Wilt thou needs be a beggar?

Clo I do beg your good will in this case

Count In what case? 24

Clo In Isabel's case and mine own. Service is no heritage, and I think I shall never have the blessing of God till I have issue o' my body, for they say barnes are blessings 28

Count Tell me thy reason why thou wilt marry

Clo My poor body, madam, requires it I am driven on by the flesh, and he must needs go that the devil drives 33

Count Is this all your worship's reason?

Clo Faith, madam, I have other holy reasons, such as they are. 36

Count May the world know them?

Clo I have been, madam, a wicked creature, as you and all flesh and blood are, and, indeed,
I do marry that I may repent 40

Count Thy marriage, sooner than thy wickedness

Clo I am out o' friends, madam, and I hope to have friends for my wife's sake 44

Count Such friends are thine enemies, knave

Clo You're shallow, madam, in great friends, for the knaves come to do that for me which I am aware of He that ears my land spares my team, and gives me leave to in the crop if I be his cuckold, he's my drudge He that comforts my wife is the cherisher of my flesh and blood, he that cherishes my flesh and blood loves my flesh and blood, he that loves my flesh and blood is my friend ergo, he that kisses my wife is my friend If men could be contented to be what they are, there were no fear in marriage, for young Charbon the puritan, and old Poysam the papist, howsome'er their hearts are severed in religion, their heads are both one, they may jowl horns together like any deer i' the herd 60

Count Wilt thou ever be a foul-mouthed and calumnious knave?

Clo A prophet I, madam, and I speak the truth the next way 64

For I the ballad will repeat,

Which men full true shall find Your marriage comes by destiny,
Your cuckoo sings by kind. 68

Count Get you gone, sir I'll talk with you more anon.

Stew May it please you, madam, that he bid
Helen come to you of her I am to speak 72

Count Sirrah tell my gentlewoman I would speak with her, Helen I mean

Clo Was this fair face the cause quoth she,
Why the Grecians sacked Troy? 76

Fond done done fond

Was this King Priam's joy?

With that she sigh'd as she stood,

With that she sigh'd as she stood, 80

And gave this sentence then

Among nine bad if one be good,

Among nine bad if one be good

There's yet one good in ten 84

Count What! one good in ten? you corrupt the song, sirrah

Clo One good woman in ten, madam, which is a purifying o' the song Would God would serve the world so all the year! we'd find no fault with the tithe-woman if I were the parson One in ten, quoth a'! An we might have a good woman born but for every blazing star, or at an earthquake, 'twould mend the lottery with a man may draw his heart out ere a' pluck one Count You'll be gone, sir knave, and do as I command you! 96

Clo That man should be at woman's command, and yet no hurt done! Though honesty be no puritan, yet it will do no hurt, it will wear the surplice of humility over the black gown of a big heart. I am going forsooth the business is for Helen to come hither [Exit.]

Count Well, now

Stew I know, madam, you love your gentlewoman entirely 105

Count Faith, I do her father bequeathed her to me, and she herself, without other advantage, may lawfully make title to as much love as she finds there is more owing her than is paid, and more shall be paid her than she'll demand 111

Stew Madam, I was very late more near her than I think she wished me alone she was, and did communicate to herself her own words to her own ears, she thought, I dare vow for her, they touched not any stranger's sense. Her matter was, she loved your son. Fortune, she said, was no goddess, that had put such difference betwixt their two estates, Love no god, that would not extend his might, only where qualities were level, Dian no queen of virgins, that would suffer her poor knight surprised, without rescue in the first assault or ransom afterward. This she delivered in the most bitter touch of sorrow that e'er I heard virgin exclaim in, which I held my duty speedily to acquaint you withal, since in the loss that may happen, it concerns you something to know it 128

Count You have discharged this honesty keep it to yourself. Many likelihoods informed me of this before, which hung so tottering in the balance that I could neither believe nor misdoubt. Pray you leave me stall this in your bosom, and I thank you for your honest care. I will speak with you further anon. [Exit Steward]

Enter HELENA

Even so it was with me when I was young 136
If ever we are nature's, these are ours, this thorn

Doth to our rose of youth rightly belong,
Our blood to us, this to our blood is born
It is the show and seal of nature's truth, 140
Where love's strong passion is impress'd in youth

By our remembrances of days foregone,
Such were our faults, or then we thought them none

Her eye is sick on't. I observe her now 144

Hel What is your pleasure, madam?

Count You know, Helen, I am a mother to you

Hel Mine honourable mistress

Count Nay, a mother
Why not a mother? When I said, 'a mother,' Methought you saw a serpent what's in 'mother' 149

That you start at it? I say, I am your mother, And put you in the catalogue of those

That were enwombed mine 'tis often seen 152
Adoption strives with nature, and choice breeds
A native slip to us from foreign seeds,
You ne'er oppress'd me with a mother's groan,
Yet I express to you a mother's care 156

God's mercy, maiden! does it curd thy blood
To say I am thy mother? What's the matter,
That this distemper'd messenger of wet,
The many colour'd Iris, rounds thine eye? 160
Why? that you are my daughter?

Hel

That I am not.

Count I say, I am your mother

Hel

Pardon, madam,

The Count Rousillon cannot be my brother
I am from humble, he from honour'd name, 164
No note upon my parents, his all noble
My master my dear lord he is, and I
His servant live, and will his vassal die
He must not be my brother

Count

Nor I your mother? 168

Hel

You are my mother, madam would you were,—

So that my lord your son were not my brother,— Indeed my mother! or were you both our mothers,

I care no more for than I do for heaven, 172
So I were not his sister Can't no other,
But I your daughter, he must be my brother?

Count

Yes, Helen, you might be my daughter-in-law

God shield you mean it not! daughter and mother 176

So strive upon your pulse What, pale again?
My fear hath catch'd your fondness now I see

The mystery of your loneliness, and find Your salt tears' head now to all sense 'tis gross
You love my son invention is asham'd, 181
Against the proclamation of thy passion,
To say thou dost not therefore tell me true,
But tell me then, 'tis so, for, look, thy cheeks 184
Confess it, th' one to th' other, and thine eyes
See it so grossly shown in thy behaviours
That in their kind they speak it only sin

And hellish obstinacy tie thy tongue 188
That truth should be suspected Speak, is't so?
If it be so, you have wound a goodly clew,
If it be not, forswear't howe'er, I charge thee,
As heaven shall work in me for thine avail, 192
To tell me truly

Hel

Good madam, pardon me!

Count

Do you love my son?

Hel

Your pardon, noble mistress!

Count

Love you my son?

Hel

Do not you love him, madam?

Count

Go not about, my love hath in't a bond 196

Whereof the world takes note come, come, disclose

The state of your affection, for your passions
Have to the full appeach'd

Hel

Then, I confess,

Here on my knee, before high heaven and you 200

That before you, and next unto high heaven,
I love your son

My friends were poor, but honest, so's my love
Be not offended, for it hurts not him 204

That he is lov'd of me I follow him not By any token of presumptuous suit,

Nor would I have him till I do deserve him,
Yet never know how that desert should be 208

I know I love in vain, strive against hope,
Yet, in this captious and intemperate sieve

I still pour in the waters of my love,
And lack not to lose still Thus, Indian-like, 212 Religious in mine error, I adore

The sun, that looks upon his worshipper,
But knows of him no more My dearest madam,
Let not your hate encounter with my love 216
For loving where you do but, if yourself,
Whose aged honour cites a virtuous youth,
Did ever in so true a flame of liking 219
Wish chastely and love dearly, that your Dian
Was both herself and Love, O! then, give pity
To her, whose state is such that cannot choose But lend and give where she is sure to lose,
That seeks not to find that her search implies,
But, riddle-like, lives sweetly where she dies 225

Count Had you not lately an intent, speak truly,
To go to Paris?

Hel Madam, I had Count Wherefore? tell true

Hel I will tell truth, by grace itself I swear
You know my father left me some prescriptions
Of rare and prov'd effects, such as his reading
And manifest experience had collected For general sovereignty, and that he will'd me
In heedfull'st reservation to bestow them, 233
As notes whose faculties inclusive were More than they were in note Amongst the rest,

There is a remedy, approv'd, set down 236
To cure the desperate languishings whereof
The king is render'd lost.

Count This was your motive
For Paris, was it? speak

Hel My lord your son made me to think of
this, 240

Else Paris, and the medicine, and the king,
Had from the conversation of my thoughts Happily been absent then

Count But think you, Helen,
If you should tender your supposed aid, 244
He would receive it? He and his physicians Are of a mind, he, that they cannot help him, They, that they cannot help How shall they credit

A poor unlearned virgin, when the schools, 248
Embowell'd of their doctrine, have left off
The danger to itself?

Hel There's something in't, More than my father's skill, which was the great'st

Of his profession, that his good receipt 252
Shall for my legacy be sanctified By the luckiest stars in heaven and, would your honour

But give me leave to try success, I'd venture 255
The well-lost life of mine on his Grace's cure,
By such a day, and hour

Count Dost thou believe't?

Hel Ay, madam, knowingly

Count Why, Helen, thou shalt have my leave and love,

Means, and attendants, and my loving greetings 260

To those of mine in court, I'll stay at home
And pray God's blessing into thy attempt.

Be gone to-morrow, and be sure of this, 263
What I can help thee to thou shalt not miss.

[Exeunt

ACT II

SCENE I — Paris A Room in the KING's Palace

Flourish Enter the KING, with divers young Lords taking leave for the Florentine war, BERTRAM, PAROLLES, and Attendants

King Farewell, young lords these war-like principles

Do not throw from you and you, my lords, farewell

Share the advice betwixt you, if both gain, all The gift doth stretch itself as 'tis receiv'd, 4
And is enough for both

First Lord 'Tis our hope, sir,

After well enter'd soldiers, to return
And find your Grace in health

King No, no, it cannot be, and yet my heart
Will not confess he owes the malady 9

That doth my life besiege Farewell, young
lords,

Whether I live or die, be you the sons
Of worthy Frenchmen let higher Italy— 12

Those bated that inherit but the fall
Of the last monarchy—see that you come

Not to woo honour, but to wed it, when The bravest questant shrinks, find what you seek 16

That fame may cry you loud I say, farewell.

Sec Lord Health, at your bidding, serve your majesty!

King Those girls of Italy, take heed of them
They say, our French lack language to deny 20

If they demand beware of being captives,
Before you serve

Both Lords Our hearts receive your warnings

King Farewell Come hither to me
[Exit attended]

First Lord O my sweet lord, that you will stay behind us! 24

Par 'Tis not his fault, the spark.

Sec Lord O! 'tis brave wars

Par Most admirable I have seen those wars

Ber I am commanded here, and kept a coil with

'Too young,' and 'the next year,' and 'tis too early' 28

Par An thy mind stand to't, boy, steal away bravely

Ber I shall stay here the forehorse to a smock,

Creaking my shoes on the plain masonry,
Till honour be bought up and no sword worn 32

But one to dance with! By heaven! I'll steal
away

First Lord There's honour in the theft.

Par Commit it, count.

Sec Lord I am your accessary, and so farewell

Ber I grow to you, and our parting is a tortured body 37

First Lord Farewell, captain.

Sec Lord Sweet Monsieur Parolles!

Par Noble heroes, my sword and yours are kin. Good sparks and lustrous, a word, good metals you shall find in the regiment of the Spurio, ore Captain Spurio, with his cicatrice, an emblem of war, here on his sinister cheek it was this very word entrenched it say to him, I live, and observe his reports for me 46

Sec Lord We shall, noble captain

[Exeunt Lords]

Par Mars dote on you for his novices!
What will ye do?

Ber Stay, the king 50

Re enter KING, PAROLLES and BERTRAM retire

Par Use a more spacious ceremony to the noble lords, you have restrained yourself within the list of too cold an adieu be more expressive to them, for they wear themselves in the cap of the time, there do muster true gait, eat, speak, and move under the influence of the most received star, and though the devil lead the measure, such are to be followed After them, and take a more dilated farewell

Ber And I will do so 60

Par Worthy fellows, and like to prove most sinewy swordmen

[Exeunt BERTRAM and PAROLLES]

Enter LAFEU

Laf [Kneeling] Pardon, my lord, for me and for my tidings

King I'll see thee to stand up 64

Laf Then here's a man stands that has brought his pardon

I would you had kneel'd, my lord, to ask me
mercy,

And that at my bidding you could so stand up King I would I had, so I had broke thy pate,
And ask'd thee mercy for't 69

Laf Good faith, across but, my good lord,
'tis thus,

Will you be cur'd of your infirmity?

King No 72

Laf O' will you eat no grapes, my royal fox?
Yes, but you will my noble grapes an if My royal fox could reach them. I have seen a medicine

That's able to breathe life into a stone, 76
Quicken a rock, and make you dance canary

With spritely fire and motion, whose simple touch

Is powerful to arise King Pepin, nay,
To give great Charlemain a pen in's hand 80

And write to her a love-line

King What 'her' is this?

Laf Why, Doctor She My lord, there's one arriv'd

If you will see her now, by my faith and honour,
If seriously I may convey my thoughts 84

In this my light deliverance, I have spoke With one, that in her sex, her years, profession,

Wisdom, and constancy, hath amaz'd me more Than I dare blame my weakness. Will you see 88

her,
For that is her demand, and know her business?

That done, laugh well at me

King Now, good Lafeu,

Bring in the admiration, that we with thee

May spend our wonder too, or take off thine 92
By word ring how thou took'st it

Laf Nay, I'll fit you,
And not be all day neither [Exit]

King Thus he his special nothing ever prologues

Re-enter LAFEU, with HELENA

Laf Nay, come your ways
King This haste hath wings indeed 97

Laf Nay, come your ways,
This is his majesty say your mind to him

A traitor you do look like but such traitors
His majesty seldom fears I am Cressid's uncle,

That dare leave two together Fare you well 101
[Exit]

King Now, fair one, does your business follow us?

Hel Ay, my good lord
Gerard de Narbcn was my father 104

In what he did profess well found

King I knew him.
Hel The rather will I spare my praises towards him,

Knowing him is enough On's bed of death
Many receipts he gave me, chiefly one, 108

Which, as the dearest issue of his practice,
And of his old experience the only darling,

He bade me store up as a triple eye,
Safer than mine own two more dear I have so,

And, hearing your high majesty is touch'd 113
With that malignant cause wherein the honour

Of my dear father's gift stands chief in power,
I come to tender it and my appliance, 116

With all bound humbleness

King We thank you, maiden,
But may not be so credulous of cure,

When our most learned doctors leave us, and The congregated college have concluded 120

That labouring art can never ransom nature
From her maidable estate, I say we must not

So stain our judgment, or corrupt our hope,
To prostitute our past-cure malady 124

To empirics, or to disserve so
Our great self and our credit, to esteem

A senseless help when help past sense we deem Hel My duty then, shall pay me for my pains

I will no more enforce mine office on you, 129
Humbly entreating from your royal thoughts

A modest one, to bear me back again
King I cannot give thee less, to be call'd 132 grateful

Thou thought'st to help me, and such thanks
I give

As one near death to those that wish him live,
But what at full I know, thou know'st no part,

I knowing all my peril, thou no art 136

Hel What I can do can do no hurt to try,
Since you set up your rest 'gainst remedy

He that of greatest works is finisher
Oft does them by the weakest minister 140

So holy writ in babes hath judgment shown, When judges have been babes, great floods have flow'd

From simple sources, and great seas have dried
When miracles have by the greatest been demed.

Of expectation fails, and most oft there 145
Where most it promises, and oft it hits
Where hope is coldest and despair most fits King I must not hear thee fare thee well, kind maid. 148

Thy pains, not us'd, must by thyself be paid
Proffers not took reap thanks for their reward
Hel Inspired merit so by breath is barr'd
It is not so with Him that all things knows, 152
As 'tis with us that square our guess by shows, But most it is presumption in us when The help of heaven we count the act of men.
Dear sir, to my endeavours give consent, 156
Of heaven, not me, make an experiment
I am not an impostor that proclaim Myself against the level of mine aim,
But know I think, and think I know most sure,
My art is not past power nor you past cure 161

King Art thou so confident? Within what space

Hop'st thou my cure?

Hel The great'st grace lending grace,
Ere twice the horses of the sun shall bring 164
Their fiery torcher his diurnal ring
Ere twice in murk and occidental damp
Moist Hesperus hath quench'd his sleepy lamp,
Or four and twenty times the pilot's glass 168
Hath told the thievish minutes how they pass,
What is infirm from your sound parts shall fly, Health shall live free, and sickness freely die

King Upon thy certainty and confidence What dar'st thou venture?

Hel Tax of impudence, 173
A strumpet's boldness, a divulged shame,
Traduc'd by odious ballads my maiden's name Sear'd otherwise, nay worse—if worse—extended 176

With vilest torture let my life be ended King Methinks in thee some blessed spirit doth speak,

His powerful sound within an organ weak,
And what impossibility would slay 180
In common sense, sense saves another way
Thy life is dear for all that life can rate Worth name of life in thee hath estimate Youth, beauty, wisdom, courage, virtue, all 184
That happiness and prime can happy call Thou this to hazard needs must intimate Skill infinite or monstrous desperate Sweet practiser, thy physic I will try, 188
That ministers thine own death if I die

Hel If I break time, or flinch in property
Of what I spoke, unpitied let me die, And well deserv'd. Not helping, death's my fee, 192

But, if I help, what do you promise me?

King Make thy demand.

Hel But will you make it even?
King Ay, by my sceptre, and my hopes of heaven.

Hel Then shalt thou give me with thy kingly
hand 196

What husband in thy power I will command Exempted be from me the arrogance
To choose from forth the royal blood of France,
My low and humble name to propagate 200

With any branch or image of thy state,
But such a one, thy vassal, whom I know
Is free for me to ask, thee to bestow

King Here is my hand, the premises observ'd, 204

Thy will by my performance shall be serv'd
So make the choice of thy own time, for I, Thy resolv'd patient, on thee still rely More should I question thee, and more I must, Though more to know could not be more to trust 209

From whence thou cam'st, how tended on, but rest

Unquestion'd welcome and undoubted blest
Give me some help here, ho! If thou proceed 212
As high as word, my deed shall match thy deed [Flourish Exeunt

SCENE II — Rousillon A Room in the COUNTESS'S Palace

Enter COUNTESS and Clown.

Count Come on, sir, I shall now put you to the height of your breeding

Clo I will show myself highly fed and lowly taught I know my business is but to the court 5

Count To the court! why what place make you special, when you put off that with such contempt? 'But to the court!' 8

Clo Truly, madam, if God have lent a man any manners, he may easily put it off at court he that cannot make a leg, put off's cap, kiss his hand, and say nothing, has neither leg, hands, lip, nor cap, and indeed such a fellow, to say precisely, were not for the court But, for me, I have an answer will serve all men

Count Marry, that's a bountiful answer that fits all questions 17

Clo It is like a barber's chair that fits all buttocks, the pin-buttock, the quatch-buttock, the brawn-buttock, or any buttock 20

Count Will your answer serve fit to all questions?

Clo As fit as ten groats is for the hand of an attorney, as your French crown for your taffeta punk, as Tib's rush for Tom's forefinger, as a pancake for Shrove-Tuesday, a morris for May-day, as the nail to his hole, the cuckold to his horn, as a scolding queen to a wrangling knave, as the nun's lip to the friar's mouth, nay, as the pudding to his skin.

Count Have you, I say, an answer of such fitness for all questions? 32

Clo From below your duke to beneath your constable, it will fit any question.

Count It must be an answer of most monstrous size that must fit all demands 36

Clo But a trifle neither, in good faith, if the learned should speak truth of it. Here it is, and all that belongs to't ask me if I am a courtier, it shall do you no harm to learn. 40

Count To be young again, if we could. I will be a fool in question, hoping to be the wiser by your answer I pray you, sir, are you a court-tier? 44

Clo O Lord, sir! there's a simple putting off More, more, a hundred of them.

Count Sir, I am a poor friend of yours, that loves you.

Clo O Lord, sir! Thick, thick, spare not
me

Count I think, sir, you can eat none of this homely meat.

Clo O Lord, sir! Nay, put me to't, I warrant you

Count You were lately whipped, sir, as I think.

Clo O Lord sir! Spare not me

Count Do you cry, 'O Lord, sir!' at your whipping and 'Spare not me' Indeed your
'O Lord, sir!' is very sequent to your whipping you would answer very well to a whipping, if you were but bound to t

Clo I ne'er had worse luck in my life in my 'O Lord, sir!' I see things may serve long, but not serve ever

Count I play the noble housewife with the time,

To entertain't so merrily with a fool Clo O Lord, sir! why, there't serves well
again

Count An end, sir to your business Give Helen this,

And urge her to a present answer back Commend me to my kinsmen and my son.

This is not much

Clo Not much commendation to them Count Not much employment for you you understand me?

Clo Most fruitfully I am there before my legs

Count Haste you again [Exeunt severally]

SCENE III.—Paris A Room in the KING'S Palace

Enter BERTRAM, LAFEU, and PAROLLES

Laf They say miracles are past, and we have our philosophical persons, to make modern and familiar, things supernatural and causeless Hence is it that we make trifles of terrors, en-sconcing ourselves into seeming knowledge, when we should submit ourselves to an unknown fear

Par Why, 'tis the rarest argument of wonder that hath shot out in our latter times

Ber And so 'tis.

Laf To be relinquished of the artists,—

Par So I say

Laf Both of Galen and Paracelsus

Par So I say

Laf Of all the learned and authentic fellows,—

Par Right, so I say

Laf That gave him out incurable,—

Par Why, there 'tis, so say I too

Laf Not to be helped,—

Par Right, as 'twere, a man assured of a—

Laf Uncertain life, and sure death.

Par Just, you say well so would I have said

Laf I may truly say it is a novelty to the world

Par It is, indeed if you will have it in showing, you shall read it in—what do you call
there—

Laf A showing of a heavenly effect in an earthly actor

Par That's it I would have said, the very same

Laf Why, your dolphin is not luster 'fore me, I speak in respect—

Par Nay, 'tis strange, 'tis very strange, that is the brief and the tedious of it, and he is of a most facinorous spirit, that will not acknowledge it to be the—

Laf Very hand of heaven—

Par Ay, so I say

Laf In a most weak and debile minister, great power, great transcendence which should, indeed, give us a further use to be made than alone the recovery of the king, as to be generally thankful.

Par I would have said it, you say well Here comes the king

Enter KING, HELENA, and Attendants

Laf Lustig, as the Dutchman says I'll like a maid the better, whilst I have a tooth in my head Why, he's able to lead her a coranto

Par Mort du vinaigre! Is not this Helen?

Laf 'Fore God, I think so

King Go, call before me all the lords in court [Exit an Attendant]

Sit, my preserver, by thy patient's side

And with this healthful hand, whose banish'd sense

Thou hast repeal'd, a second time receive

The confirmation of my promised gift,
Which but attends thy naming Enter several Lords.

Fair maid, send forth thine eye this youthful parcel

Of noble bachelors stand at my bestowing, O'er whom both sov'reign power and father's voice

I have to use thy frank election make,

Thou hast power to choose, and they none to forsake

Hel To each of you one fair and virtuous mistress

8 Fall, when Love please! marry, to each, but one

Laf I'd give bay Curtal, and his furniture, My mouth no more were broken than these boys'

12 And wint as little beard.

King Peruse them well
Not one of those but had a noble father

68 Hel Gentlemen, Heaven hath through me restor'd the king to health

All We understand it, and thank heaven for you.

Hel I am a simple maid, and therein wealthiest

That I protest I simply am a maid
 Please it your majesty, I have done already The blushes in my cheeks thus whisper me,
 'We blush, that thou shouldst choose, but, be refus'd,

Let the white death sit on thy cheek for ever,
 We'll ne'er come there again

King Make choice, and see,
 Who shuns thy love, shuns all his love in
 me

Hel Now, Dian, from thy altar do I fly, 80
 And to imperial Love, that god most high,
 Do my sighs stream Sir, will you hear my suit?

First Lord And grant it

Hel Thanks, sir, all the rest is mute

Laf I had rather be in this choice than throw ames-ace for my life 85

Hel The honour, sir, that flames in your fair
 eyes,

Before I speak, too threateningly replies
 Love make your fortunes twenty times above 88
 Her that so wishes, and her humble love!

Sec Lord No better, if you please

Hel My wish receive,
 Which great Love grant! and so I take my leave

Laf Do all they deny her? An they were sons of mine, I'd have them whipp'd or I would send them to the Turk to make eunuchs of Hel [To third Lord] Be not afraid that I your hand should take,

I'll never do you wrong for your own sake 96
 Blessing upon your vows! and in your bed
 Find fairer fortune, if you ever wed!

Laf These boys are boys of ice, they'll none have her sure they are bastards to the English the French ne'er got 'em 100

Hel You are too young, too happy, and too
 good,

To make yourself a son out of my blood
Fourth Lord Fair one, I think not so 104

Laf There's one grape yet I am sure thy father drunk wine But if thou be'st no an ass, I am a youth of fourteen I have known thee
 already 108

Hel [To BERTRAM] I dare not say I take you, but I give

Me and my service, ever whilst I live,
 Into your guiding power This is the man

King Why then, young Bertram, take her, she's thy wife 112

Ber My wife, my hege! I shall beseech your highness

In such a business give me leave to use
 The help of mine own eyes

King Know'st thou not, Bertram,
 What she has done for me?

Ber Yes, my good lord; 116
 But never hope to know why I should marry her

King Thou know'st she has rais'd me from my sickly bed.

Ber But follows it, my lord, to bring me
 down

Must answer for your raising? I know her well
 She had her breeding at my father's charge 120

A poor physician's daughter my wife! Disdain Rather corrupt me ever!

King 'Tis only title thou disdain'st in her,
 the which 124

I can build up Strange is it that our bloods,
 Of colour weight, and heat, pour'd all together,
 Would quite confound distinction yet stand off
 In differences so mighty If she be 128

All that is virtuous, save what thou dislik'st,
 A poor physician's daughter, thou dislik'st
 Of virtue for the name, but do not so From lowest place when virtuous things proceed, 132

The place is dignified by the doer's deed
 Where great additions swell, and virtue none,
 It is a dropsied honour Good alone
 Is good without a name vileness is so 136

The property by what it is should go,
 Not by the title She is young wise, fair,
 In these to nature she's immediate heir,
 And these breed honour that is honour's scorn
 Which challenges itself as honour's born, 140

And is not like the sire honours thrive
 When rather from our acts we them derive Than our foregoers The mere word's a slave, Debosh'd on every tomb, on every grave 145

A lying trophy, and as oft is dumb
 Where dust and darn'd oblivion is the tomb Of honour'd bones indeed What should be said? 148

If thou canst like this creature as a maid, I can create the rest virtue and she Is her own dower, honour and wealth from
 me

Ber I cannot love her, nor will strive to do't.
King Thou wrong'st thyself if thou shouldst strive to choose 153

Hel That you are well restor'd, my lord, I'm glad

Let the rest go King My honour's at the stake, which to defeat 156

I must produce my power Here, take her hand,
 Proud scornful boy, unworthy this good gift,
 That dost in vile misprision shackle up My love and her desert, thou canst not dream
 We, pouring us in her defective scale, 160

Shall weigh thee to the beam, that wilt not
 know,

It is in us to plant thine honour where We please to have it grow Check thy contempt Obey our will, which travels in thy good 165

Believe not thy disdain, but presently
 Do thine own fortunes that obedient right Which both thy duty owes and our power claims, 168

Or I will throw thee from my care for ever
 Into the staggers and the careless lapse Of youth and ignorance, both my revenge and hate

Loosing upon thee, in the name of justice, 172
 Without all terms of pity Speak, thine answer

Ber Pardon, my gracious lord, for I submit My fancy to your eyes. When I consider 175
 What great creation and what dole of honour Flies where you bid it, I find that she, which late

Was in my nobler thoughts most base, is now

The praised of the king, who, so ennobled,
Is, as t were, born so

King Take her by the hand 180
And tell her she is thine to whom I promise
A counterpoise, if not to thy estate
A balance more replete

Ber I take her I ard King Good fortune and the favour of the king 184

Smile upon this contract, whose ceremony
Shall seem expedient on the now-born brief,
And be perform'd to-night the solemn feast Shall n ore attend upon the coming space, 188 Expecting absent friends As thou lov'st her,
Thy love's to me religious, else, does err

[*Exeunt KING, BERTRAM, HELENA, Lords,
and Attendants*]

Laf Do you hear, monsieur? a word with you Par Your pleasure, sir? 192

Laf Your lord and master did well to make his recantation

Par Recantation! My lord! my master!

Laf Ay, is it not a language I speak? 196

Par A most harsh one, and not to be understood without bloody succeeding My master!

Laf Are you companion to the Count
Rousillon? 200

Par To any count, to all counts, to what is man

Laf To what is count's man count's master is of another style 204

Par You are too old, sir, let it satisfy you, you are too old

Laf I must tell thee, sirrah, I write man, to which title age cannot bring thee 208

Par What I dare too well do, I dare not do Laf I did think thee, for two ordinarities, to be a pretty wise fellow thou didst make tolerable vent of thy travel, it might pass yet the scarfs and the bannerets about thee did manifoldly dissuade me from believing thee a vessel of too great a burden I have now found thee, when I lose thee again, I care not, yet art thou good for nothing but taking up, and that thou'rt scarce worth.

Par Hadst thou not the privilege of antiquity upon thee,— 220

Laf Do not plunge thyself too far in anger, lest thou hasten thy trial, which if—Lord have mercy on thee for a hen! So my good window of lattice, fare thee well thy casement I need not open, for I look through thee Give me thy hand.

Par My lord, you give me most egregious indignity 228

Laf Ay, with all my heart, and thou art worthy of it.

Par I have not, my lord, deserved it.

Laf Yes, good faith, every dram of it, and I will not bate thee a scruple. 233

Par Well, I shall be wiser

Laf E'en as soon as thou canst, for thou hast to pull at a smack o' the contrary If ever thou be'st bound in thy scarf and beaten, thou shalt find what it is to be proud of thy bondage I have a desire to hold my acquaintance with thee, or rather my knowledge, that I may say in the default, he is a man I know 241

Par My lord, you do me most insupportable vexation

Laf I would it were hell-pains for thy sake, and my poor doing eternal for doing I am past, as I will by thee, in what motion age will give me leave [Exit]

Par Well, thou hast a son shall take this disgrace off me, scurvy old, filthy, scurvy lord!
Well, I must be patient, there is no fettering of authority I'll beat him, by my life, if I can meet him with any convenience, an he were double and double a lord I'll have no more pity of his age than I would have of—I'll beat him, an if I could but meet him again! 255

Re-enter LAFEU

Laf Sirrah, your lord and master's married, there's news for you you have a new mistress

Par I most unfeignedly beseech your lordship to make some reservation of your wrongs he is my good lord whom I serve above is my master 261

Laf Who? God?

Par Ay, sir

Laf The devil it is that's thy master Why dost thou garter up thy arms o' this fashion?
dost make hose of thy sleeves? do other servants so? Thou wert best set thy lower part where thy nose stands. By mine honour, if I were but two hours younger, I'd beat thee methinks thou art a general offence, and every man should beat thee I think thou wast created for men to breathe themselves upon thee 272

Par This is hard and undeserved measure,
my lord

Laf Go to, sir, you were beaten in Italy for picking a kernel out of a pomegranate, you are a vagabond and no true traveller you are more sancy with lords and honourable personages than the heraldry of your birth and virtue gives you commission. You are not worth another word, else I'd call you knave I leave you [Exit]

Par Good, very good, it is so then good, very good. Let it be concealed awhile

Re-enter BERTRAM

Ber Undone, and forfeited to cares for ever!

Par What is the matter, sweet heart? 285

Ber Although before the solemn priest I have sworn,

I will not bed her

Par What, what, sweet heart? 288

Ber O my Parolles, they have married me!

I'll to the Tuscan wars, and never bed her

Par France is a dog-hole, and it no more merits

The tread of a man's foot. To the wars! 292

Ber There's letters from my mother what the import is

I know not yet

Par Ay, that would be known. To the wars, my boy! to the wars!

He wears his honour in a box, unseen, 296
That hugs his kiddy-wicky here at home,

Spending his manly marrow in her arms,
Which should sustain the bound and high curvet
Of Mars's fiery steed To other regions! 300
France is a stable, we that dwell in t'jades, Therefore, to the war!

Ber It shall be so I'll send her to my house, Acquaint my mother with my hate to her, 304
And wherefore I am fled, write to the king
That which I durst not speak his present gift Shall furnish me to those Italian fields
Where noble fellows strike War is no strife 308
To the dark house and the detested wife

Par Will this capriccio hold in thee? art sure?

Ber Go with me to my chamber, and advise
me
I'll send her straight away to-morrow 312
I'll to the wars she to her single sorrow

Par Why, these balls bound, there's noise in it 'Tis hard

A young man married is a man that's married Therefore away, and leave her bravely go 316
The king has done you wrong but, hush! 'tis so [Exeunt]

SCENE IV—Same Another Room in the Palace

Enter HELENA and Clown

Hel My mother greets me kindly is she well?
Clo She is not well, but yet she has her health she's very merry, but yet she is not well but thanks be given she's very well, and wants nothing in the world, but yet she is not
well

Hel If she be very well what does she ail that she's not very well? 8

Clo Truly she's very well indeed, but for two things

Hel What two things? 11

Clo One that she's not in heaven, whither God send her quickly! the other, that she's in earth, from whence God send her quickly!

Enter PAROLLES

Par Bless you my fortunate lady!
Hel I hope sir I have your good will to have mine own good fortunes 17

Par You had my prayers to lead them on, and to keep them on, have them still O! my knave, how does my old lady? 20

Clo So that you had her wrinkles, and I her money, I would she did as you say

Par Why, I say nothing

Clo Marry, you are the wiser man, for many a man's tongue shakes out his master's undoing
To say nothing to do nothing, to know nothing, and to have nothing, is to be a great part of your title, which is within a very little of nothing. 28

Par Away! thou'rt a knave

Clo You should have said, sir, before a knave thou'rt a knave, that is, before me thou'rt a knave this had been truth sir 32

Par Go to, thou art a witty fool, I have found thee.

Clo Did you find me in yourself, sir? or were you taught to find me? The search sir, was profitable, and much fool may you find in you, even to the world's pleasure and the increase of laughter

Par A good knave, a faith, and well fed 40
Madam, my lord will go away to-night,
A very serious business calls on him
The great prerogative and rite of love,
Which, as your due time claims, he does acknowledge 44

But puts it off to a compell'd restraint Whose want, and whose delay, is strew'd with sweets,

Which they distil now in the curbed time,
To make the coming hour overflow with joy, 48
And pleasure drown the brim

Hel What's his will else?

Par That you will take your instant leave of the king,

And make this haste as your own good proceeding

Strengthen'd with what apology you think 52
May make it probable need

Hel What more commands he?

Par That having thus obtain'd, you presently Attend his further pleasure

Hel In everything I wait upon his will. 56

Par I shall report it so

Hel I pray you. Come sirrah
[Exeunt]

SCENE V—Another Room in the Same

Enter LAFEU and BERTRAM.

Laf But I hope your lordship thinks not him a soldier

Ber Yes my lord and of very valiant proof

Laf You have it from his own deliverance 4

Ber And by other warranted testimony

Laf Then my dial goes not true I took this lark for a bunting

Ber I do assure you, my lord, he is very great in knowledge, and accordingly valiant 9

Laf I have then sinned against his experience and transgressed against his valour, and my state that way is dangerous, since I cannot yet find in my heart to repent Here he comes, I pray you, make us friends, I will pursue the amity

Enter PAROLLES

Par [To BERTRAM] These things shall be done, sir 17

Laf Pray you, sir who's his tailor?

Par Sir?

Laf O! I know him well Ay, sir he sir, is a good workman, a very good tailor 21

Ber [Aside to PAROLLES] Is she gone to the king?

Par She is 24

Ber Will she away to-night?

Par As you'll have her

Ber I have writ my letters, casketed my treasure,

Given orders for our horses, and to-night, 28
When I should take possession of the bride, End ere I do begin.

Laf A good traveller is something at the latter end of a dinner, but one that lies three thirds, and uses a known truth to pass a thousand nothings with, should be once heard and thrice beaten. God save you, captain 35

Ber Is there any unkindness between my lord and you, monsieur?

Par I know not how I have deserved to run into my lord's displeasure 39

Laf You have made shift to run into 't, boots and spurs and all, like him that leaped into the custard, and out of it you'll run again, rather than suffer question for your residence

Ber It may be you have mistaken him, my lord. 45

Laf And shall do so ever, though I took him at his prayers. Fare you well, my lord, and believe this of me, there can be no kernel in this light nut, the soul of this man is his clothes. Trust him not in matter of heavy consequence, I have kept of them tame, and know their natures. Farewell, monsieur. I have spoken better of you than you have or will to deserve at my hand, but we must do good against evil. [Exit

Par An idle lord, I swear

Ber I think not so 56

Par Why, do you not know him?

Ber Yes, I do know him well, and common speech

Gives him a worthy pass. Here comes my clog

Enter HELENA.

Hel I have, sir, as I was commanded from you, 60
Spoke with the king, and have procur'd his leave

For present parting, only, he desires
Some private speech with you

Ber I shall obey his will You must not marvel, Helen, at my course, 64
Which holds not colour with the time, nor does The ministration and required office
On my particular prepar'd I was not For such a business, therefore am I found 68
So much unsettled. This drives me to entreat you

That presently you take your way for home,
And rather muse than ask why I entreat you,
For my respects are better than they seem, 72
And my appointments have in them a need Greater than shows itself at the first view
To you that know them not. This to my mother

[Giving a letter]
'Twill be two days ere I shall see you, so 76
I leave you to your wisdom.

Hel Sir, I can nothing say,
But that I am your most obedient servant.

Ber Come, come, no more of that.

Hel And ever shall
With true observance seek to eke out that 80
Wherein toward me my homely stars have fail'd
To equal my great fortune

Ber Let that go
My haste is very great. Farewell, his home.

Hel Pray sir, your pardon

Ber Well, what would you say?

Hel I am not worthy of the wealth I owe, 85 Nor dare I say 'tis mine, and yet it is,
But, like a timorous thief, most fain would steal
What law does vouch mine own.

Ber What would you have?

Hel Something, and scarce so much nothing indeed 89

I would not tell you what I would, my lord — Faith, yes,

Strangers and foes do sunder, and not kiss 92

Ber I pray you, stay not, but in haste to horse

Hel I shall not break your bidding, good my lord

Ber [To PAROLLES] Where are my other men, monsieur? [To HELENA] Farewell

[Exit HELENA.]
Go thou toward home, where I will never come Whilst I can shake my sword or hear the drum, Away! and for our flight

Par Bravely, coragio! 98
[Exit]

ACT III

SCENE I — Florence. A Room in the DUKE'S Palace

Flourish Enter the DUKE, attended, two French Lords, and Soldiers

Duke So that from point to point now have you heard

The fundamental reasons of this war,
Whose great decision hath much blood let forth,
And more thirsts after

First Lord Holy seems the quarrel 4
Upon your Grace's part, black and fearful
On the opposer

Duke Therefore we marvel much our cousin France

Would in so just a business shut his bosom 8
Against our borrowing prayers

First Lord Good my lord,
The reasons of our state I cannot yield,
But like a common and an outward man,
That the great figure of a council frames 12
By self-unable motion therefore dare not Say what I think of it, since I have found Myself in my uncertain grounds to fail
As often as I guess'd.

Duke Be it his pleasure 16

Sec Lord But I am sure the younger of our nature,

That surfeit on their ease, will day by day
Come here for physic.

Duke Welcome shall they be,
And all the honours that can fly from us 20
Shall on them settle. You know your places well

When better fall, for your avails they fell.

To-morrow to the field [Flourish. Exit]

SCENE II — Rousillon A Room in the COUNTESS'S PalaceEnter COUNTESS and Clown.Count It hath happened all as I would have had it, save that he comes not along with her*Clo* By my troth, I take my young lord to be a very melancholy man*Count* By what observance, I pray you?Clo Why he will look upon his boot and sing, mend the ruff and sing, ask questions and sing, pick his teeth and sing. I know a man that had this trick of melancholy sold a goodly manor for a song*Count* [Opening a letter] Let me see what he writes, and when he means to come*Clo* I have no mind to Isbel since I was at court. Our old ling and our Isbels o' the country are nothing like your old ling and your Isbels o' the court. The brains of my Cupid's knocked out, and I begin to love, as an old man loves money, with no stomach*Count* What have we here?Clo E'en that you have there [Exit]Count I have sent you a daughter-in-law she hath recovered the king, and undone me I have wedded her, not bedded her and sworn to make the 'not' eternal. You shall hear I am run away know it before the report come. If there be breadth enough in the world, I will hold a long distance. My duty to you*Your unfortunate son,BERTRAM*This is not well rash and unbridled boy, To fly the favours of so good a king!
To pluck his indignation on thy head
By the misprising of a maid too virtuous
For the contempt of empire!Re-enter ClownClo O madam! yonder is heavy news within between two soldiers and my young lady*Count* What is the matter?Clo Nay, there is some comfort in the news, some comfort, your son will not be killed so soon as I thought he would*Count* Why should he be killed?Clo So say I madam, if he run away, as I hear he does the danger is in standing to't, that's the loss of men, though it be the getting of children. Here they come will tell you more, for my part, I only hear your son was run away

[Exit]

Enter HELENA and GentlemenFirst Gen Save you, good madam*Hel* Madam, my lord is gone, for ever gone*Sec. Gen* Do not say so*Count* Think upon patience. Pray you, gentlemen,I have felt so many quirks of joy and grief, That the first face of neither, on the start, Can woman me unto't where is my son, I pray you?Sec. Gen. Madam, he's gone to serve the Duke of Florence

We met him thitherward, for thence we came,

And, after some dispatch in hand at court, 56

Thither we bend again

Hel Look on his letter, madam, here's my passport*When thou canst get the ring upon my finger, which never shall come off, and show me a child begotten of thy body that I am father to, then call me husband but in such a 'then' I write a 'never'*

This is a dreadful sentence 64

Count Brought you this letter, gentlemen?First Gen Ay, madam,

And for the contents' sake are sorry for our pains

Count I prithee, lady, have a better cheer,
If thou engrossed all the griefs are thine, 68Thou robbst me of a moiety he was my son,
But I do wash his name out of my blood,
And thou art all my child. Toward Florence is he?Sec. Gen Ay, madam*Count* And to be a soldier? 72*Sec. Gen* Such is his noble purpose, and, believe't,The duke will lay upon him all the honour That good convenience claims*Count* Return you thither?First Gen Ay, madam, with the swiftest wing of speed 76*Hel* Till I have no wife, I have nothing in France

'Tis bitter

Count Find you that there?Hel Ay, madam*First Gen* 'Tis but the boldness of his hand, happily, which his heart was not consenting to 80*Count* Nothing in France until he have no wife!There's nothing here that is too good for him
But only she, and she deserves a lord

That twenty such rude boys might tend upon, 84

And call her hourly mistress. Who was with him?First Gen A servant only, and a gentleman Which I have some time known*Count* Parolles, was it not?First Gen Ay, my good lady, he 88*Count* A very tainted fellow, and full of wickednessMy son corrupts a well-derived nature
With his inducement.First Gen Indeed, good lady,
The fellow has a deal of that too much, 92

Which holds him much to have

Count Y are welcome, gentlemen
I will entreat you, when you see my son,

To tell him that his sword can never win 96

The honour that he loses more I'll entreat you Written to bear along.Sec. Gen We serve you, madam,
In that and all your worthiest affairs*Count* Not so, but as we change our courtesies.
Will you draw near? 101[Exeunt COUNTESS and Gentlemen.] Hel 'Till I have no wife, I have nothing in France.

Nothing in France until he has no wife!
 Thou shalt have none, Rousillon, none in France, 104
 Then hast thou all again Poor lord! is't I
 That chase thee from thy country, and expose Those tender limbs of thine to the event
 Of the non-sparing war? and is it I 108 That drive thee from the sportive court, where thou
 Wast shot at with fair eyes, to be the mark
 Of smoky muskets? O you leaden messengers,
 That ride upon the violent speed of fire, 112
 Fly with false aim, move the still-piecing air
 That sings with piercing, do not touch my lord!
 Whoever snoots at him, I set him there,
 Whoever charges on his forward breast, 116
 I am the catfish that do hold him to t,
 And, though I kill him not, I am the cause
 His death was so effected better 'twere
 I met the ravin lion when he roared 120
 With sharp constraint of hunger, better 'twere
 That all the miseries which nature owes Were mine at once No, come thou home, Rousillon,
 Whence honour but of danger wins a scar, 124
 As oft it loses all I will be gone,
 My being here it is that holds thee hence Shalt I stay here to do t? no, no, although
 The air of paradise did fan the house, 128
 And angels offic'd all I will be gone,
 That pitiful rumour may report my flight,
 To console thine ear Come, night, end, day!
 For with the dark, poor thief, I'll steal away 132
 [Exit]

SCENE III—Florence Before the DUKE'S Palace

Flourish Enter DUKE, BERTRAM, PAROLLES, Soldiers Drum and Trumpets

Duke The general of our horse thou art, and we,
 Great in our hope lay our best love and credence Upon thy promising fortune

Ber Sir, it is A charge too heavy for my strength, but yet 4
 We'll strive to bear it for your worthy sake
 To the extreme edge of hazard

Duke Then go thou forth,
 And fortune play upon thy prosperous helm
 As thy auspicious mistress!

Ber This very day, 8
 Great Mars, I put myself into thy file Make me but like my thoughts, and I shall prove
 A lover of thy drum, hater of love. [Exeunt]

SCENE IV—Rousillon A Room in the COUNTESS'S Palace

Enter COUNTESS and Steward

Count Alas! and would you take the letter
 of her?
 Might you not know she would do as she has done
 By sending me a letter? Read it again

Stew I am Saint Jaques' pilgrim, thither gone Ambitious love hath so in me offended 5
 That bare-foot plod I the cold ground upon With santed vow my faults to have amended Write, write, that from the bloody course of war,
 My dearest master, your dear son, may hue Bless him at home in peace whilst I from far
 His name with zealous fervour sanctify 12
 His taken labours bid him me forgive,
 I, his despitful Juno, sent him forth
 From courtly friends, with camping foes to live, Where death and danger dog the heels of worth
 He is too good and fair for Death and me 16
 Whom I myself embrace, to set him free Count Ah, what sharp stings are in her mildest words!
 Rinaldo, you did never lack advice so much,
 As letting her pass so had I spoke with her, 20
 I could have well diverted her intents,
 Which thus she hath prevented Stew Pardon me, madam
 If I had given you this at over-night She might have been contented, and yet she writes, 24
 Pursuit would be but vain Count What angel shall Bless this unworthy husband? he cannot thrive, Unless her prayers, whom heaven delights to
 hear,
 And loves to grant, relieve him from the wrath
 Of greatest justice Write write Rinaldo, 29
 To this unworthy husband of his wife,
 Let every word weigh heavy of her worth
 That he does weigh too light my greatest grief
 Though little he do feel it set down sharply 33 Dispatch the most convenient messenger
 When haply he shall hear that she is gone,
 He will return, and hope I may that she, 36
 Hearing so much, will speed her foot again, Led hither by pure love Which of them both
 Is dearest to me I have no skill in sense
 To make distinction Provide this messenger
 My heart is heavy and mine age is weak, 41 Grief would have tears, and sorrow bids me speak [Exeunt]

SCENE V—Without the Walls of Florence

A tucket afar off Enter a Widow of Florence, DIANA, VIOLENTA, MARIANA, and other Citizens

Wid Nay, come for if they do approach the city we shall lose all the sight

Dia They say the French Count has done most honourable service 4

Wid It is reported that he has taken their greatest commander, and that with his own hand he slew the duke's brother We have lost our labour, they are gone a contrary way hark! you may know by their trumpets 9

Mar Come, let's return again, and suffice ourselves with the report of it Well, Diana, take heed of this French earl the honour of a maid is her name, and no legacy is so rich as honesty

Wid I have told my neighbour how you have been solicited by a gentleman his companion. 15

Mar I know that knave, hang him! one Parolles a filthy officer he is in those suggestions for the young earl. Beware of them, Diana, their promises, enticements, oaths, tokens, and all these engines of lust, are not the things they go under many a maid hath been seduced by them, and the misery is, example, that so terrible shows in the wrack of maidenhood, cannot for all that dissuade succession, but that they are limed with the twigs that threaten them. I hope I need not to advise you further, but I hope your own grace will keep you where you are, though there were no further danger known but the modesty which is so lost. 29

Dia You shall not need to fear me

Wid I hope so. Look, here comes a pilgrim. I know she will lie at my house, thither they send one another. I'll question her. 33

Enter HELENA in the dress of a Pilgrim

God save you, pilgrim! whither are you bound?

Hel To Saint Jaques le Grand

Where do the palmers lodge, I do beseech you?

Wid At the Saint Francis, here beside the port. 37

Hel Is this the way?

Wid Ay, marry, is't. Hark you!

[A march afar off]

They come this way. If you will tarry, holy pilgrim,

But till the troops come by,

I will conduct you where you shall be lodg'd. 40

The rather, for I think I know your hostess

As ample as myself

Hel Is it yourself?

Wid If you shall please so, pilgrim. 44

Hel I thank you, and will stay upon your

leisure

Wid You came, I think, from France?

Hel I did so. I did so.

Wid Here you shall see a countryman of

yours

That has done worthy service

Hel His name I pray you. 48

Dia The Count Rousillon know you such a one?

Hel But by the ear, that hears most nobly of

him,

His face I know not.

Dia Whatsoe'er he is,

He's bravely taken here. He stole from France,

As 'tis reported, for the king had married him. 53

Against his liking. Think you it is so?

Hel Ay, surely, mere the truth. I know his

lady

Dia There is a gentleman that serves the

count. 56

Reports but coarsely of her

Hel What's his name?

Dia Monsieur Parolles

Hel O! I believe with him,

In argument of praise, or to the worth

Of the great count himself, she is too mean. 60

To have her name repeated all her deserving

Is a reserved honesty, and that I have not heard examin'd.

Dia

Alas, poor lady!

'Tis a hard bondage to become the wife. 64

Of a detesting lord

Wid Ay, right, good creature, wheresoe'er

she is,

Her heart weighs sadly. This young maid might do her

A shrewd turn if she pleas'd

Hel

How do you mean? 68

May be the amorous count solicits her

In the unlawful purpose

Wid

He does, indeed,

And brokes with all that can in such a suit

Corrupt the tender honour of a maid. 72

But she is arm'd for him and keeps her guard

In honestest defence

Mar

The gods forbid else!

Enter, with drum and colours, a party of the Florentine army, BERTRAM and PAROLLES.

Wid So, now they come

That is Antonio, the duke's eldest son, 76

That, Escalus

Hel Which is the Frenchman?

Dia

He,

That with the plume 'tis a most gallant fellow,

I would he lov'd his wife. If he were honest,

He were much goodlier, is't not a handsome

gentleman? 80

Hel I like him well

Dia 'Tis pity he is not honest. Yond's that same knave

That leads him to these places were I his lady

I would poison that vile rascal

Hel

Which is he? 84

Dia That jack-an-apes with scarfs. Why is he melancholy?

Hel Perchance he's hurt i' the battle

Par Lose our drum! well. 88

Mar He's shrewdly vexed at something

Look, he has spied us

Wid Marry, hang you!

Mar And your courtesy, for a ring-carrier!

[Exeunt BERTRAM, PAROLLES, Officers,

and Soldiers.]

Wid The troop is past. Come, pilgrim, I will bring you. 93

Where you shall host of enjoin'd penitents

There's four or five, to great Saint Jaques bound,

Already at my house

Hel

I humbly thank you. 96

Please it this matron and this gentle maid

To eat with us to-night, the charge and thanking

Shall be for me, and, to requite you further,

I will bestow some precepts of this virgin. 100

Worthy the note

Both We'll take your offer kindly

[Exeunt]

SCENE VI—Camp before Florence

Enter BERTRAM and the two French Lords

First Lord Nay, good my lord, put b

to't let him have his way

Sec Lord If your lordship find him not a hiding, hold me no more in your respect. 4

First Lord On my life, my lord, a bubble
Ber Do you think I am so far deceived in him?

First Lord Believe it, my lord, in mine own direct knowledge, without any malice, but to speak of him as my kinsman he is a most notable coward, an infinite and endless liar, an hourly promise-breaker, the owner of no one good quality worthy your lordship's entertainment. 12

Sec Lord It were fit you knew him, lest, reposing too far in his virtue, which he hath not, he might at some great and trusty business in a main danger fail you. 16

Ber I would I knew in what particular action to try him.

Sec Lord None better than to let him fetch off his drum, which you hear him so confidently undertake to do. 21

First Lord I, with a troop of Florentines, will suddenly surprise him: such I will have whom I am sure he knows not from the enemy. We will bind and hoodwink him so, that he shall suppose no other but that he is carried into the leaguer of the adversaries, when we bring him to our own tents. Be but your lordship present at his examination: if he do not, for the promise of his life and in the highest compulsion of base fear, offer to betray you and deliver all the intelligence in his power against you, and that with the divine forfeit of his soul upon oath, never trust my judgment in anything. 34

Sec Lord O! for the love of laughter, let him fetch his drum: he says he has a stratagem for it. When your lordship sees the bottom of his success in't, and to what metal this counterfeit lump of ore will be melted, if you give him not John Drum's entertainment, your inclining cannot be removed. Here he comes. 41

First Lord O! for the love of laughter, hinder not the honour of his design: let him fetch off his drum in any hand. 44

Enter PAROLLES

Ber How now, monsieur! this drum sticks sorely in your disposition.

Sec Lord A pox on't! let it go 'tis but a drum. 48

Par 'But a drum!' Is't 'but a drum?' A drum so lost! There was excellent command, to charge in with our horse upon our own wings, and to read our own soldiers! 52

Sec Lord That was not to be blamed in the command of the service: it was a disaster of war that Caesar himself could not have prevented if he had been there to command. 56

Ber Well, we cannot greatly condemn our success: some dishonour we had in the loss of that drum, but it is not to be recovered. 60

Par It might have been recovered.

Ber It might, but it is not now.

Par It is to be recovered. But that the merit of service is seldom attributed to the true and exact performer, I would have that drum or another, or hic jacet. 65

Ber Why, if you have a stomach to't, monsieur, if you think your mystery in stratagem can bring this instrument of honour again into its native quarter, be magnanimous in the enterprise and go on, I will grace the attempt for a worthy exploit: if you speed well in it, the duke shall both speak of it, and extend to you what further becomes his greatness, even to the utmost syllable of your worthiness.

Par By the hand of a soldier, I will undertake it. 76

Ber But you must not now slumber in it.

Par I'll about it this evening, and I will presently pen down my dilemmas, encourage myself in my certainty, put myself into my mortal preparation, and by midnight look to hear further from me.

Ber May I be bold to acquaint his Grace you are gone about it? 84

Par I know not what the success will be, my lord, but the attempt I vow.

Ber I know thou'rt valiant, and, to the possibility of thy soldiership, will subscribe for thee Farewell. 89

Par I love not many words. [Exit]

First Lord No more than a fish loves water. Is not this a strange fellow, my lord, that so confidently seems to undertake this business, which he knows is not to be done, damns himself to do, and dares better be damned than to do it? 95

Sec Lord You do not know him, my lord, as we do: certain it is, that he will steal himself into a man's favour, and for a week escape a great deal of discoveries, but when you find him out you have him ever after. 100

Ber Why, do you think he will make no deed at all of this that so seriously he does address himself unto?

First Lord None in the world, but return with an invention and clap upon you two or three probable lies. But we have almost embossed him, you shall see his fall to-night, for, indeed, he is not for your lordship's respect. 108

Sec Lord We'll make you some sport with the fox ere we case him. He was first smoked by the old Lord Lafew when his disguise and he is parted, tell me what a sprat you shall find him, which you shall see this very night. 113

First Lord I must go look my twigs: he shall be caught.

Ber Your brother he shall go along with me.

First Lord As't please your lordship I'll leave you. [Exit]

Ber Now will I lead you to the house, and show you.

The lass I spoke of.

Sec Lord But you say she's honest. 120

Ber That's all the fault. I spoke with her but once.

And found her wondrous cold, but I sent to her,

By this same coxcomb that we have: the wind, Tokens and letters which she did re-send, 124 And this is all I have done. She's a fair creature, Will you go see her?

Sec Lord With all my heart, my lord. [Exeunt]

SCENE VII.—Florence A Room in the Widow's HouseEnter HELENA and Widow

Hel If you misdoubt me that I am not she,
I know not how I shall assure you further,
But I shall lose the grounds I work upon

Wid Though my estate be fall'n, I was well born,

Nothing acquainted with these businesses,
And would not put my reputation now
In any staining act

Hel Nor would I wish you
First, give me trust, the county is my husband,
And what to your sworn counsel I have spoken
Is so from word to word, and then you cannot,
By the good aid that I of you shall borrow,
Err in bestowing it

Wid I should believe you
For you have show'd me that which well approves You're great in fortune

Hel Take this purse of gold,
And let me buy your friendly help thus far,
Which I will over-pay and pay again
When I have found it The county woos your daughter,

Lays down his wanton siege before her beauty
Resolv'd to carry her let her in fine consent,
As we'll direct her how 'tis best to bear it Now, his important blood will nought deny That she'll demand a ring the county wears,
That downward hath succeeded in his house
From son to son, some four or five descents
Since the first father wore it this ring he holds In most rich choice yet, in his idle fire,
To buy his will, it would not seem too dear, Howe'er repented after

Wid Now I see
The bottom of your purpose

Hel You see it lawful then It is no more,
But that your daughter, ere she seems as won,
Desires this ring, appoints him an encounter,
In fine, delivers me to fill the time,
Herself most chastely absent After this,
To marry her, I'll add three thousand crowns
To what is past already

Wid I have yielded
Instruct my daughter how she shall persevere,
That time and place with this deceit so lawful May prove coherent Every night he comes With musics of all sorts and songs compos'd
To her unworthiness it nothing steads us
To chide him from our eaves, for he persists
As if his life lay on't

Hel Why then to-might Let us assay our plot, which, if it speed,
Is wicked meaning in a lawful deed,
And lawful meaning in a lawful act,
Where both not sin, and yet a sinful fact.
But let's about it. [Exeunt]

ACT IV

SCENE I.—Without the Florentine Camp

Enter First French Lord, with five or six Soldiers in ambush

First Lord He can come no other way but by this hedge-corner When you sally upon him, speak what terrible language you will though you understand it not yourselves, no matter, for we must not seem to understand him unless some one among us, whom we must produce for an interpreter

First Lord Good captain, let me be the interpreter

First Lord Art not acquainted with him?
knows he not thy voice?

First Lord No, sir, I warrant you

First Lord But what linsey woolsey hast thou to speak to us again?

First Lord Even such as you speak to me

First Lord He must think us some band of strangers; the adversary's entertainment Now, he hath a smack of all neighbouring languages, therefore we must every one be a man of his own fancy, not to know what we speak one to another, so we seem to know, is to know straight our purpose though's language, gabble enough, and good enough. As for you, interpreter, you must seem very politic But couch, ho!
here he comes, to beguile two hours in a sleep, and then to return and swear the lies he forges

Enter PAROLLES

Par Ten o'clock within these three hours
'twill be time enough to go home What shall I say I have done? It must be a very plausible invention that carries it They begin to smoke me, and disgraces have of late knocked too often at my door I find my tongue is too foolhardy; but my heart hath the fear of Mars before it and of his creatures, not daring the reports of my tongue.

First Lord This is the first truth that e'er thine own tongue was guilty of Par What the devil should move me to undertake the recovery of this drum, being not ignorant of the impossibility, and knowing I had no such purpose? I must give myself some hurts and say I got them in exploit Yet slight ones will not carry it they will say, 'Came you off with so little?' and great ones I dare not give Wherefore, what's the instance? Tongue, I must put you into a butter-woman's mouth, and buy myself another of Bajazet's mute, if you prattle me into these perils

First Lord Is it possible he should know what he is, and be that he is?

Par I would the cutting of my garments would serve the turn or the breaking of my Spanish sword

First Lord We cannot afford you so

Par Or the baring of my beard, and to say it was in stratagem

First Lord 'Twould not do

Par Or to drown my clothes, and say I was stripped

First Lord Hardly serve

Par Though I swore I leaped from the window of the citadel—

First Lord How deep?

Par Thirty fathom.

First Lord Three great oaths would scarce make that be believed.

Par I would I had any drum of the enemy's I would swear I recovered it.

First Lord Thou shalt hear one anon 68

Par A drum now of the enemy's!

[Alarum within

First Lord Throca movousus, cargo, cargo, cargo

All Cargo, cargo, villanda par corbo, cargo [They seize and blindfold him

Par O! ransom, ransom! Do not hide mine
eyes 72

First Sold Boskos thromuldo boskos

Par I know you are the Muskos' regiment,
And I shall lose my life for want of language

If there be here German, or Dane, low Dutch, 76

Italian, or French, let him speak to me

I will discover that which shall undo

The Florentine

First Sold Boskos vauvado

I understand thee, and can speak thy tongue

Kerelybonto Sir, 81

Betake thee to thy faith, for seventeen poniards

Are at thy bosom

Par O!

First Sold O! pray, pray, pray

Manka revama dulce

First Lord Oscorbudulchos volvorco

First Sold The general is content to spare 85 thee yet,

And, hoodwink'd as thou art, will lead thee on

To gather from thee haply thou may'st inform

Something to save thy life

Par O! let me live, 88

And all the secrets of our camp I'll show,

Their force, their purposes, nay, I'll speak that

Which you will wonder at First Sold But wilt thou faithfully? 9

Par If I do not, damn me

First Sold Acordo linta 92

Come on, thou art granted space

[Exit, with PAROLLES guarded

A short alarum within

First Lord Go, tell the Count Rousillon, and

my brother,

We have caught the woodcock, and will keep him muffled

Till we do hear from them.

Sec Sold Captain, I will 96

First Lord A' will betray us all unto ourselves

Inform on that.

Sec Sold So I will, sir

First Lord Till then, I'll keep him dark and safely lock'd. [Exeunt

SCENE II.—*Florence. A Room in the Widow's
House*

Enter BERTRAM and DIANA

Ber They told me that your name was

Fontibell

Dia No, my good lord, Diana

Ber Titled goddess,

And worth it, with addition! But, fair soul,
In your fine frame hath love no quality? 4

If the quick fire of youth light not your mind,

You are no maiden, but a monument

When you are dead, you should be such a one

As you are now for you are cold and stern, 8

And now you should be as your mother was

When your sweet self was got

Dia She then was honest

Ber

So should you be

Dia

No

My mother did but duty, such, my lord, 12

As you owe to your wife

Ber

No more o' that!

I prithee do not strive against my vows

I was compell'd to her, but I love thee

By love's own sweet constraint, and will for ever

Do thee all rights of service

Dia

Ay, so you serve us 17

Till we serve you, but when you have our roses,

You barely leave our thorns to prick ourselves

And mock us with our bareness

Ber

How have I sworn! 20

'Tis not the many oaths that make the truth,

But the plain single vow that is vow'd true.

What is not holy, that we swear not by,

But take the Highest to witness then, pray you, 24

tell me,

If I should swear by God's great attributes

I lov'd you dearly, would you believe my oaths,

When I did love you ill? this has no holding,

To swear by him whom I protest to love, 28

That I will work against him therefore your oaths

Are words and poor conditions, but unseal'd,

At least in my opinion

Ber

Change it, change it.

Be not so holy-cruel love is holy, 32

And my integrity ne'er knew the crafts

That you do charge men with. Stand no more

off,

But give thyself unto my sick desires,

Who then recover say thou art mine, and ever

My love as it begins shall so persevere 37

Dia

I see that men make ropes in such a scarr

That we'll forsake ourselves Give me that ring

Ber

I'll lend it thee, my dear, but have no power 40

To give it from me

Dia

Will you not, my lord?

Ber. It is an honour 'longing to our house,

Bequeathed down from many ancestors,

Which were the greatest obloquy i' the world 44

In me to lose.

Dia

Mine honour's such a ring.

My chastity's the jewel of our house,

Bequeathed down from many ancestors,

Which were the greatest obloquy i' the world 48

In me to lose Thus your own proper wisdom

Brings in the champion honour on my part

Against your vain assault.

Ber.

Here, take my ring

My house, mine honour, yea, my life, be thine, 52

And I'll be bid by thee.

Dia.

When midnight comes, knock at my chamber-window

I'll order take my mother shall not hear
Now will I charge you in the band of truth, 56
When you have conquer'd my yet maiden bed, Remain there but an hour, nor speak to me My reasons are most strong, and you shall know them

When back again this ring shall be deliver'd 60
And on your finger in the night I'll put Another ring, that what in time proceeds
May token to the future our past deeds

Adieu, till then, then, fail not You have won
A wife of me, though there my hope be done 65 Ber A heaven on earth I have won by wooing thee [Exit

Dia For which live long to thank both heaven and me!

You may so in the end 68
My mother told me just how he would woo
As if she sat in s heart, she says all men Have the like oaths he had sworn to marry
me

When his wife's dead, therefore I'll lie with him When I am buried Since Frenchmen are so braid, 73

Marry that will, I live and die a maid
Only in this disguise I think't no sin
To cozen him that would unjustly win. [Exit

SCENE III—The Florentine Camp

Enter the two French Lords, and two or three Soldiers

First Lord You have not given him his mother's letter?

Sec Lord I have delivered it an hour since there is something in't that stings his nature, for on the reading it he changed almost into another man

First Lord He has much worthy blame laid upon him for shaking off so good a wife and so sweet a lady 9

Sec Lord Especially he hath incurred the everlasting displeasure of the king, who had even tuned his bounty to sing happiness to him.
I will tell you a thing, but you shall let it dwell darkly with you

First Lord When you have spoken it, 'tis dead, and I am the grave of it 16

Sec Lord He hath perverted a young gentlewoman here in Florence, of a most chaste renown, and this night he fleshes his will in the spoil of her honour he hath given her his monumental ring, and thinks himself made in the unchaste composition.

First Lord Now, God delay our rebellion!
as we are ourselves, what things are we! 24

Sec Lord Merely our own traitors and as in the common course of all treasons, we still see them reveal themselves, till they attain to their abhorred ends, so he that in this action contrives against his own nobility, in his proper stream o'erflows himself 30

First Lord Is it not most damnable in us, to be trumpeters of our unlawful intents? We shall not then have his company to-night?

Sec Lord Not till after midnight, for he is dieted to his hour 35

First Lord That approaches apace I would gladly have him see his company anatomized, that he might take a measure of his own judgments, wherein so curiously he had set this counterfeit 40

Sec Lord We will not meddle with him till he come, for his presence must be the whip of the other

First Lord In the meantime what hear you of these wars? 45

Sec Lord I hear there is an overture of peace

First Lord Nay, I assure you, a peace concluded 48

Sec Lord What will Count Rousillon do then? will he travel higher, or return again into France? 53

First Lord I perceive by this demand, you are not altogether of his council

Sec Lord Let it be forbid, sir, so should I be a great deal of his act

First Lord Sir, his wife some two months since fled from his house her pretence is a pilgrimage to Saint Jaques le Grand, which holy undertaking with most austere sanctimony she accomplished, and, there residing, the tenderness of her nature became as a prey to her grief, in fine, made a groan of her last breath, and now she sings in heaven.

Sec Lord How is this justified? 64

First Lord The stronger part of it by her own letters, which make her story true, even to the point of her death her death itself, which could not be her office to say is come, was faithfully confirmed by the rector of the place 69

Sec Lord Hath the count all this intelligence?

First Lord Ay, and the particular confirmations, point from point, to the full arming of the verity 73

Sec Lord I am heartily sorry that he'll be glad of this

First Lord How mightily sometimes we make us comforts of our losses! 77

Sec Lord And how mightily some other times we drown our gain in tears! The great dignity that his valour hath here acquired for him shall at home be encountered with a shame as ample 82

First Lord The web of our life is of a mingled yarn, good and ill together our virtues would be proud if our faults whipped them not, and our crimes would despair if they were not cherished by our virtues.

Enter a Servant.

How now! where's your master? 88

Serv He met the duke in the street, sir, of whom he hath taken a solemn leave his lordship will next morning for France. The duke hath offered him letters of commendations to the king.

Sec Lord. They shall be no more than needful there, if they were more than they can commend.

First Lord They cannot be too sweet for the king's tartness. Here's his lordship now. 96

Enter BERTRAM

How now, my lord! is't not after midnight?

Ber I have to-night dispatched sixteen businesses, a month's length a-piece, by an abstract of success I have conge'd with the duke, done my adieu with his nearest, buried a wife, mourned for her, writ to my lady mother I am returning, entertained my convoy, and between these main parcels of dispatch effected many nicer needs the last was the greatest, but that I have not ended yet 106

Sec Lord If the business be of any difficulty, and this morn'g your departure hence, it requires haste of your lordship

Ber I mean, the business is not ended, as fearing to hear of it hereafter But shall we have this dialogue between the fool and the soldier? Come, bring forth this counterfeit model he has deceived me, like a double-meaning prophesier 115

Sec Lord Bring him forth [Exeunt Soldiers] Has sat i' the stocks all night, poor gallant knave

Ber No matter, his heels have deserved it, in usurping his spurs so long How does he carry himself? 121

First Lord I have told your lordship already, the stocks carry him But to answer you as you would be understood, he weeps like a wench that had shed her milk he hath confessed himself to Morgan,—whom he supposes to be a friar,—from the time of his remembrance to this very instant disaster of his setting i' the stocks and what think you he hath confessed?

Ber Nothing of me, has a? 130

Sec Lord His confession is taken, and it shall be read to his face if your lordship be in't, as I believe you are, you must have the patience to hear it.

Re-enter Soldiers with PAROLLES

Ber A plague upon him! muffled! he can say nothing of me hush! hush! 136

First Lord Hoodman comes! Porto tararossa

First Sold He calls for the tortures what will you say without 'em? 140

Par I will confess what I know without constraint if ye pinch me like a pasty, I can say no more

First Sold Bosko chumurcho 144

First Lord Boblibindo chumurcho

First Sold You are a merciful general Our general bids you answer to what I shall ask you out of a note 148

Par And truly, as I hope to live.

First Sold First, demand of him how many horse the duke is strong What say you to that?

Par Five or six thousand, but very weak and unserviceable the troops are all scattered, and the commanders very poor rogues, upon my reputation and credit, and as I hope to live. 155

First Sold Shall I set down your answer so?

Par Do I'll take the sacrament on't, how and which way you will.

Ber All's one to him What a past-saving slave is this! 160

First Lord You are deceived, my lord this is Monsieur Parolles, the gallant militarist,—that was his own phrase,—that had the whole theorick of war in the knot of his scarf, and the practice in the chape of his dagger 165

Sec Lord I will never trust a man again for keeping his sword clean, nor believe he can have everything in him by wearing his apparel neatly 169

First Sold Well, that's set down

Par Five or six thousand horse I said,—I will say true—or thereabouts, set down, for I'll speak truth 173

First Lord He's very near the truth in this

Ber But I con him no thanks for't, in the nature he delivers it 176

Par Poor rogues, I pray you, say

First Sold Well, that's set down

Par I humbly thank you, sir A truth's a truth, the rogues are marvellous poor 180

First Sold Demand of him, of what strength they are a-foot What say you to that?

Par By my troth, sir, if I were to live this present hour, I will tell true Let me see Spurio, a hundred and fifty, Sebastian, so many, Corambus, so many, Jaques, so many, Gultian, Cosmo, Lodowick, and Grati, two hundred fifty each, mine own company, Chitopher, Vaumond, Benti, two hundred fifty each so that the muster-file, rotten and sound, upon my life, amounts not to fifteen thousand poll, half of the which dare not shake the snow from off their cassocks, lest they shake themselves to pieces

Ber What shall be done to him? 194

First Lord Nothing, but let him have thanks Demand of him my condition, and what credit I have with the duke 197

First Sold Well, that's set down You shall demand of him, whether one Captain Dumain be i' the camp, a Frenchman what his reputation is with the duke what his valour, honesty, and expertness in wars or whether he thinks it were not possible, with well-weighing sums of gold, to corrupt him to a revolt What say you to this? what do you know of it? 205

Par I beseech you let me answer to the particular of the interrogatories demand them singly 208

First Sold Do you know this Captain Dumain?

Par I know him a' was a botcher's 'prentice in Paris, from whence he was whipped for getting the shrieve's fool with child a dumb innocent, that could not say him nay 214

[DUMAIN lifts up his hand in anger]

Ber Nay, by your leave, hold your hands, though I know his brams are forfeit to the next tile that falls 217

First Sold Well, is this captain in the Duke of Florence's camp?

Par Upon my knowledge he is, and lousy 220

First Lord Nay, look not so upon me, we shall hear of your lordship anon.

First Sold What is his reputation with the duke?

Par The duke knows him for no other but a poor officer of mine, and writ to me this other day to turn him out o' the band. I think I have his letter in my pocket.

First Sold Marry, we'll search.

Par In good sadness, I do not know either it is there, or it is upon a file with the duke's other letters in my tent.

First Sold Here 'tis, here's a paper, shall I read it to you?

Par I do not know if it be it or no.

Ber Our interpreter does it well.

First Lord Excellently.

First Sold Dian, the count's a fool, and full of gold—

Par That is not the duke's letter, sir, that is an advertisement to a proper maid in Florence, one Diana, to take heed of the allurements of one Count Rousillon, a foolish idle boy, but for all that very ruttish. I pray you, sir, put it up again.

First Sold Nay, I'll read it first, by your favour.

Par My meaning in't I protest, was very honest in the behalf of the maid, for I knew the young count to be a dangerous and lascivious boy, who is a whale to virginity, and devours up all the fry it finds.

Ber Damnable both-sides rogue!

First Sold When he swears oaths, bid him drop gold, and take it

After he scores, he never pays the score
Half won is match well made match, and well make it,

He ne'er pays after-debts, take it before,

And say a soldier, Dian, told thee this,
Men are to melt with, boys are not to kiss,

For count of this, the count's a fool, I know it,
Who pays before, but not when he does owe it

Thine, as he vow'd to thee in thine ear,

PAROLLES

Ber He shall be whipped through the army with this rime in's forehead.

First Lord This is your devoted friend, sir, the manifold linguist and the armpotent soldier.

Ber I could endure anything before but a cat, and now he's a cat to me.

First Sold I perceive, sir, by your general's looks, we shall be fain to hang you.

Par My life, sir, in any case! not that I am afraid to die, but that, my offences being many, I would repent out the remainder of nature. Let me live, sir, in a dungeon, i' the stocks, or anywhere so I may live.

First Sold We'll see what may be done, so you confess freely therefore, once more to this Captain Dumain. You have answered to his reputation with the duke and to his valour what is his honesty?

Par He will steal, sir, an egg out of a cloister, for rapes and ravishments he parallels Nessus, he professes not keeping of oaths, in breaking

'em he is stronger than Hercules, he will he, sir, with such volubility, that you would think truth were a fool, drunkenness is his best virtue, for he will be swine-drunk, and in his sleep he does little harm, save to his bed-clothes about him, but they know his conditions, and lay him in straw. I have but little more to say, sir, of his honesty. He has everything that an honest man should not have, what an honest man should have, he has nothing.

First Lord I begin to love him for this.

Ber For this description of thine honesty? A pox upon him for me! he is more and more a cat.

First Sold What say you to his expertness in war?

Par Faith, sir, he has led the drum before the English tragedians,—to belie him I will not,—and more of his soldiery I know not, except, in that country, he had the honour to be the officer at a place there called Mile-end, to instruct for the doubling of files. I would do the man what honour I can, but of this I am not certain.

First Lord He hath out-villamed villany so far, that the rarity redeems him.

Ber A pox on him! he's a cat still.

First Sold His qualities being at this poor price, I need not ask you, if gold will corrupt him to revolt.

Par Sir, for a carder he will sell the fee-simple of his salvation, the inheritance of it, and cut the entail from all remainders, and a perpetual succession for it perpetually.

First Sold What's his brother, the other Captain Dumain?

Sec Lord Why does he ask him of me?

First Sold What's he?

Par E'en a crow o' the same nest, not altogether so great as the first in goodness, but greater a great deal in evil. He excels his brother for a coward, yet his brother is reputed one of the best that is. In a retreat he out-runs any lackey, marry, in coming on he has the cramp.

First Sold If your life be saved, will you undertake to betray the Florentine?

Par Ay, and the captain of his horse, Count Rousillon.

First Sold I'll whisper with the general, and know his pleasure.

Par [Aside] I'll no more drumming, a plague of all drums! Only to seem to deserve well, and to beguile the supposition of that lascivious young boy the count, have I run into this danger. Yet who would have suspected an ambush where I was taken?

First Sold There is no remedy, sir, but you must die. The general says, you, that have so traitorously discovered the secrets of your army, and made such pestiferous reports of men very nobly held, can serve the world for no honest use, therefore you must die. Come, headsman, off with his head.

Par O Lord, sir, let me live, or let me see my death!

First Sold That shall you, and take your leave of all your friends [Unmuffling him]
So, look about you know you any here? 352

Ber Good morrow, noble captain

Sec Lord God bless you, Captain Parolles

First Lord God save you, noble captain

Sec Lord Captain, what greeting will you to my Lord Lafeu? I am for France 357

First Lord Good captain, will you give me a copy of the sonnet you writ to Diana in behalf of the Count Rousillon? an I were not a very coward I d compel it of you, but fare you well

[Exeunt BERTRAM and Lords]

First Sold You are undone, captain, all but your scarf, that has a knot on't yet

Par Who cannot be crushed with a plot? 364

First Sold If you could find out a country where but women were that had received so much shame, you might begin an impudent nation. Fare ye well sir, I am for France too we shall speak of you there [Exit]

Par Yet am I thankful if my heart were great 'Twould burst at this Captain I'll be no more,
But I will eat and drink, and sleep as soft 372
As captain shall simply the thing I am Shall make me live Who knows himself a braggart,

Let him fear this, for it will come to pass
That every braggart shall be found an ass 376 Rust, sword! cool, blushes! and Parolles, live Safest in shame! being fool'd, by foolery thrive!
There's place and means for every man alive
I'll after them. [Exit]

SCENE IV — Florence A Room in the Widow's House

Enter HELENA, Widow, and DIANA

Hel That you may well perceive I have not wrong'd you,

One of the greatest in the Christian world Shall be my surety, 'fore whose throne 'tis needful,

Ere I can perfect mine intents, to kneel. 4

Time was I did him a desired office

Dear almost as his life, which gratitude

Through flinty Tartar's bosom would peep

forth,

And answer, thanks I duly am inform'd 8

His Grace is at Marseilles, to which place

We have convenient convoy You must know,

I am supposed dead the army breaking,

My husband hies him home, where, heaven aiding, 12

And by the leave of my good lord the king,

We'll be before our welcome.

Wid Gentle madam,

You never had a servant to whose trust

Your business was more welcome

Hel Nor you mistress, 16

Ever a friend whose thoughts more truly labour

To recompense your love Doubt not but

heaven

Hath brought me up to be your daughter's dower,

As it hath fated her to be my motive 20

And helper to a husband But, O strange men!

That can such sweet use make of what they

hate,

When saucy trusting of the cozen'd thoughts

Defies the pitchy night so lust doth play 24

With what it loathes for that which is away

But more of this hereafter You, Diana,

Under my poor instructions yet must suffer

Something in my behalf

Dia Let death and honesty

Go with your impositions, I am yours 29

Upon your will to suffer

Hel Yet I pray you

But with the word the time will bring on summer,

When briars shall have leaves as well as thorns,

And be as sweet as sharp We must away, 33

Our waggon is prepar'd, and time revives us

All's well that ends well still the fine s the crown

Whate'er the course, the end is the renown 36

[Exeunt]

SCENE V — Rousillon A Room in the COUNTESS'S Palace

Enter COUNTESS, LAFEU, and Clown

Laf No, no no, your son was mus'd with a snipt taffeta fellow there, whose villanous saffron would have made all the unbaked and doughy youth of a nation in his colour your daughter-in-law had been alive at this hour, and your son here at home, more advanced by the king than by that red-tailed humble-bee I speak of 7

Count I would I had not known him it was the death of the most virtuous gentlewoman that ever nature had praise for creating If she had partaken of my flesh, and cost me the dearest groans of a mother, I could not have owed her a more rooted love 13

Laf 'Twas a good lady, 'twas a good lady we may pick a thousand salads ere we light on such another herb 16

Clo Indeed, sir, she was the sweet-majoram of the salad, or, rather the herb of grace

Laf They are not salad-herbs, you knave, they are nose-herbs 20

Clo I am no great Nebuchadnezzar, sir, I have not much skill in grass

Laf Whether dost thou profess thyself, a knave, or a fool? 24

Clo A fool, sir, at a woman's service, and a knave at a man's

Laf Your distinction?

Clo I would cozen the man of his wife, and do his service 29

Laf So you were a knave at his service, indeed

Clo And I would give his wife my bauble, sir, to do her service 33

Laf I will subscribe for thee, thou art both knave and fool.

Clo At your service. 36

Laf No, no, no

Clo Why, sir, if I cannot serve you, I can serve as great a prince as you are

Laf Who's that? a Frenchman? 40

Clo Faith, sir, a' has an English name, but his phynomy is more hotter in France than there

Laf What prince is that? 44

Clo The black prince, sir, alias, the prince of darkness alias, the devil

Laf Hold thee there's my purse I give thee not this to suggest thee from thy master thou talkest of serve him still 49

Clo I am a woodland fellow, sir, that always loved a great fire, and the master I speak of, ever keeps a good fire But, sure he is the prince of the world, let his nobility remain in's court I am for the house with the narrow gate, which I take to be too little for pomp to enter some that humble themselves may, but the many will be too chill and tender, and they'll be for the flowery way that leads to the broad gate and the great fire 59

Laf Go thy ways, I begin to be aweary of thee, and I tell thee so before because I would not fall out with thee Go thy ways let my horses be well looked to, without any tricks 63

Clo If I put any tricks upon 'em, sir, they shall be jade s tricks, which are their own right by the law of nature [Exit 67

Laf A shrewd knave and an unhappy 67
Count So he is My lord that's gone made himself much sport out of him by his authority he remains here, which he thinks is a patent for his sauciness, and, indeed, he has no pace, but runs where he will 72

Laf I like him well, 'tis not amiss And I was about to tell you, since I heard of the good lady's death, and that my lord your son was upon his return home, I moved the king my master to speak in the behalf of my daughter, which, in the minority of them both, his majesty, out of a self-gracious remembrance, did first propose His highness hath promised me to do it, and to stop up the displeasure he hath conceived against your son, there is no fitter matter How does your ladyship like it? 83

Count With very much content, my lord, and I wish it happily effected

Laf His highness comes post from Marseilles, of as able body as when he numbered thirty he will be here to-morrow, or I am deceived by him that in such intelligence hath seldom failed 89

Count It rejoices me that I hope I shall see him ere I die I have letters that my son will be here to-night I shall beseech your lordship to remain with me till they meet together 93

Laf Madam, I was thinking with what manners I might safely be admitted

Count You need but plead your honourable privilege 97

Laf Lady, of that I have made a bold charter, but I thank my God it holds yet

Re-enter Clown.

Clo O madam! yonder's my lord your son with a patch of velvet on's face whether there be a scar under it or no the velvet knows but 'tis a goodly patch of velvet His left cheek is a cheek of two pile and a half, but his right cheek is worn bare 105

Laf A scar nobly got, or a robe scar, is a good livery of honour, so be like is that

Clo But it is your carbonadoed face 108

Laf Let us go see your son I pray you I long to talk with the young noble soldier

Clo Faith, there s a dozen of em, with delicate fine hats and most courteous feathers which bow the head and nod at every man [Exeunt

ACT V

SCENE I—Marseilles A Street

Enter HELENA, Widow and DIANA, with two Attendants

Hel But this exceeding posting, day and night, Must wear your spirits low we cannot help it
But since you have made the days and nights as one

To wear your gentle limbs in my affairs, 4
Be bold you do so grow in my requital
As nothing can unroot you In happy time,

Enter a gentle Astringer

This man may help me to his majesty's ear
If he would spend his power God save you, sir

Gent And you 9

Hel Sir, I have seen you in the court of France

Gent I have been sometimes there

Hel I do presume, sir, that you are not fallen From the report that goes upon your goodness,
And therefore, goaded with most sharp occasions,

Which lay nice manners by, I put you to The use of your own virtues, for the which 16
I shall continue thankful

Gent What's your will? 17

Hel That it will please you
To give this poor petition to the king, And aid me with that store of power you have To come into his presence. 21

Gent The king's not here

Hel Not here, sir!

Gent Not, indeed
He hence remov'd last night, and with more haste

Than is his use

Wid Lord, how we lose our pains! 24

Hel All's well that ends well yet, Though time seems so adverse and means unfit
I do beseech you, whither is he gone?

Gent Marry, as I take it, to Roussillon, 28 Whither I am going

Hel I do beseech you, sir,
Since you are like to see the king before me,
Commend the paper to his gracious hand,
Which I presume shall render you no blame 32
But rather make you thank your pains for it.

I will come after you with what good speed
Our means will make us means

Gent This I'll do for you Hel And you shall find yourself to be well thank'd, 36
Whate'er falls more We must to horse again
Go, go, provide [Exeunt]

SCENE II — Rousillon The inner Court of the COUNTESS'S Palace

Enter CLOWN and PAROLLES

Par Good Monsieur Lavache, give my Lord Lafeu this letter I have ere now, sir, been better known to you, when I have held familiarity with fresher clothes, but I am now, sir, muddled in Fortune's mood, and smell somewhat strong of her strong displeasure 6

Clo Truly, Fortune's displeasure is but sluttish if it smell so strongly as thou speakest of I will henceforth eat no fish of Fortune's butter-ing Prithee, allow the wind

Par Nay, you need not to stop your nose, sir I spake but by a metaphor 12

Clo Indeed, sir, if your metaphor stunk, I will stop my nose, or against any man's metaphor Prithee, get thee further

Par Pray you, sir, deliver me this paper 16 Clo Foh! prithee, stand away a paper from Fortune's close-stool to give to a nobleman!
Look, here he comes himself

Enter LAFEU

Here is a purr of Fortune's s, sir, or of Fortune's cat—but not a musk-cat—that has fallen into the unclean fishpond of her displeasure, and, as he says, is muddled withal Pray you, sir, use the carp as you may, for he looks like a poor, decayed, ingenuous, foolish, rascally knave I do pity his distress in my smiles of comfort, and leave him to your lordship [Exit]

Par My lord, I am a man whom Fortune hath cruelly scratched 29

Laf And what would you have me to do? 'tis too late to pare her nails now Wherein have you played the knave with Fortune that she should scratch you, who of herself is a good lady, and would not have knaves thrive long under her? There's a carducu for you Let the justices make you and Fortune friends, I am for other business 37

Par I beseech your honour to hear me one single word

Laf You beg a single penny more come, you shall ha't, save your word 41

Par My name, my good lord, is Parolles

Laf You beg more than one word then Cox my passion! give me your hand How does your drum? 45

Par O, my good lord! you were the first that found me

Laf Was I, in sooth? and I was the first that lost thee 49

Par It lies in you, my lord, to bring me in some grace, for you did bring me out.

Laf Out upon thee, knave! dost thou put upon me at once both the office of God and the devil? one brings thee in grace and the other brings thee out [Trumpets sound] The king's coming, I know by his trumpets Surrah, inquire further after me, I had talk of you last night though you are a fool and a knave, you shall eat go to, follow 59

Par I praise God for you [Exeunt]

SCENE III — The Same A Room in the COUNTESS'S Palace

Flourish Enter KING, COUNTESS, LAFEU, Lords, Gentlemen, Guards, &c

King We lost a jewel of her, and our esteem
Was made much poorer by it but your son,
As mad in folly, lack'd the sense to know Her estimation home

Count 'Tis past, my liege, 4
And I beseech your majesty to make it Natural rebellion, done the blaze of youth,
When oil and fire too strong for reason's force, O'erbear it and burns on

King My honour'd lady, 8
I have forgiven and forgotten all,
Though my revenges were high bent upon him,
And watch'd the time to shoot.

Laf This I must say,—
But first I beg my pardon,—the young lord 12
Did to his majesty, his mother, and his lady, Offence of mighty note, but to himself
The greatest wrong of all he lost a wife

Whose beauty did astonish the survey 16
Of richest eyes, whose words all ears took captive,
Whose dead perfection hearts that scorn'd to serve

Humbly call'd mistress
King Praising what is lost Makes the remembrance dear Well, call him
hither, 20

We are reconcil'd, and the first view shall kill All repetition Let him not ask our pardon
The nature of his great offence is dead,
And deeper than oblivion we do bury 24
The incensing relics of it let him approach,
A stranger, no offender, and inform him So 'tis our will he should

Gent I shall, my liege [Exit]

King What says he to your daughter? have you spoke? 28

Laf All that he is hath reference to your highness

King Then shall we have a match I have letters sent me,
That set him high in fame.

Enter BERTRAM

Laf He looks well on't

King I am not a day of season, 32
For thou mayst see a sunshine and a hail
In me at once, but to the brightest beams

Distraught clouds give way so stand thou forth,

The time is fair again

Ber My high-repent'd blames, 36

Dear sovereign, pardon to me

King All is whole,

Not one word more of the consumed time

Let's take the instant by the forward top,

For we are old, and on our quick'st decrees 40

The inaudible and noiseless foot of time

Steals ere we can effect them You remember

The daughter of this lord?

Ber Admiringly, my liege 44

At first I stuck my choice upon her, ere my

heart

Durst make too bold a herald of my tongue

Where the impression of mine eye infixing,

Contempt his scornful perspective did lend

me,

Which warp'd the line of every other favour, 49

Scorn'd a fair colour, or express'd it stolen,

Extended or contracted all proportions

To a most hideous object thence it came 52

That she, whom all men prais'd, and whom

myself,

Since I have lost, have lov'd, was in mine eye

The dust that did offend it

King Well excus'd

That thou didst love her, strikes some scores

away 56

From the great compt But love that comes too

late,

Like a remorseful pardon slowly carried,

To the great sender turns a sour offence,

Crying, That's good that's gone' Our rasher

faults 60

Make trivial price of serious things we have,

Not knowing them until we know their grave

Oft our displeasures, to ourselves unjust,

Destroy our friends and after weep their dust 64

Our own love waking cries to see what's done,

While shameful hate sleeps out the afternoon

Be this sweet Helen's knell, and now forget

her

Send forth your amor's token for fair Maudlin 68

The main consents are had, and here we'll stay

To see our widower's second marriage-day

Count Which better than the first, O dear heaven, bless!

Or, ere they meet, in me, O nature, cesse! 72

Laf Come on, my son, in whom my house's

name

Must be digested, give a favour from you

To sparkle in the spirits of my daughter,

That she may quickly come.

[BERTRAM gives a ring

By my old beard, 76

And every hair that's on't, Helen that's dead,

Was a sweet creature such a ring as this,

The last that e'er I took her leave at court,

I saw upon her finger

Ber Hers it was not. 80

King Now, pray you, let me see it, for mine

eye,

While I was speaking, oft was fasten'd to't.—

This ring was mine, and, when I gave it Helen,

I bade her, if her fortunes ever stood 84

Necessitated to help, that by this token

I would relieve her Had you that craft to reave

her

Of what should stead her most?

Ber My gracious sovereign,

Howe'er it pleases you to take it so, 88

The ring was never hers

Count Son, oh my life,

I have seen her wear it, and she reckon'd it

At her life's rate

Laf I am sure I saw her wear it

Ber You are deceiv'd, my lord, she never saw it 92

In Florence was it from a casement thrown

me,

Wrapp'd in a paper, which contain'd the name

Of her that threw it. Noble she was, and thought

I stood engag'd but when I had subscrib'd 96

To mine own fortune, and inform'd her fully

I could not answer in that course of honour

As she had made the overture, she ceas'd,

In heavy satisfaction, and would never 100

Receive the ring again.

King Plutus himself,

That knows the tinct and multiplying medicine,

Hath not in nature's mystery more science

Than I have in this ring 'twas mine, 'twas

Helen's, 104

Whoever gave it you Then, if you know

That you are well acquainted with yourself,

Confess 'twas hers, and by what rough enforcement

You got it from her She call'd the saints to surety, 108

That she would never put it from her finger

Unless she gave it to yourself in bed,

Where you have never come, or sent it us

Upon her great disaster

Ber She never saw it 112

King Thou speak'st it falsely, as I love mine

honour,

And mak'st conjectural fears to come into me

Which I would fain shut out If it should prove That thou art so inhuman,—'twill not prove

so,— 116

And yet I know not thou didst hate her deadly,

And she is dead, which nothing, but to close

Her eyes myself, could win me to believe,

More than to see this ring Take him away 120

[Guards seize BERTRAM.

My fore-past proofs, howe'er the matter fall,

Shall tax my fears of little vanity,

Having vainly fear'd too little Away with him!

We'll sift this matter further

Ber If you shall prove 124

This ring was ever hers, you shall as easy

Prove that I husbanded her bed in Florence,

Where yet she never was. [Exit guarded.

King. I am wrapp'd in dismal thinkings.

Enter the gentle Astringer

Gent Gracious sovereign, 128

Whether I have been to blame or no, I know not.

Here's a petition from a Florentine,

Who hath, for four or five removes come short
To tender it herself I undertook it, ¹³²
Vanquish'd thereto by the fair grace and speech
Of the poor suppliant, who by this I know Is here attending her business looks in her
With an importing visage, and she told me, ¹³⁶
In a sweet verbal brief, it did concern
Your highness with herself

King Upon his many protestations to marry me when his wife was dead, I blush to say it, he won me Now is the Count Rousillon a widower his vows are forfeited to me, and my honour's paid to him He stole from Florence, taking no leave, and I follow him to his country for justice Grant it me, O king! in you it best lies otherwise a seducer flows, and a poor maid is undone ¹⁴⁷

DIANA CAPILET

Laf I will buy me a son-in-law in a fair, and toll for this I'll none of him

King The heavens have thought well on thee, Lafeu,
To bring forth this discovery Seek these suitors ¹⁵²
Go speedily and bring again the count.

[Exeunt the gentle Astringer, and some Attendants.]

I am afraid the life of Helen, lady,

Was foully snatch'd

Count Now, justice on the doers!

Re-enter BERTRAM, guarded

King I wonder, sir, with wives are monsters to you, ¹⁵⁶
And that you fly them as you swear them lordship,
Yet you desire to marry

Re-enter the gentle Astringer, with Widow and DIANA.

What woman's that?

Dia I am, my lord, a wretched Florentine, Derived from the ancient Capilet ¹⁶⁰
My suit, as I do understand, you know,
And therefore know how far I may be pited

Wid I am her mother, sir, whose age and
honour

Both suffer under this complaint we bring, ¹⁶⁴
And both shall cease, without your remedy

King Come hither, county, do you know these women?

Ber My lord, I neither can nor will deny But that I know them do they charge me further? ¹⁶⁸

Dia Why do you look so strange upon your wife?

Ber She's none of mine, my lord.

Dia If you shall marry,
You give away this hand, and that is mine,
You give away heaven's vows, and those are mine, ¹⁷²

You give away myself, which is known mine,
For I by vow am so embodied yours
That she which marries you must marry me,
Either both or none ¹⁷⁶

Laf [To BERTRAM] Your reputation comes too short for my daughter you are no husband for her

Ber My lord, this is a fond and desperate creature, ¹⁸⁰

Whom sometime I have laugh'd with let your highness

Lay a more noble thought upon mine honour
Than for to think that I would sink it here

King Sir, for my thoughts, you have them all to friend, ¹⁸⁴

Till your deeds gain them fairer prove your honour,

Than in my thought it lies

Dia Good my lord,

Ask him upon his oath, if he does think
He had not my virginity ¹⁸⁸

King What sayst thou to her?

Ber She's impudent, my lord,
And was a common gamester to the camp

Dia He does me wrong, my lord, if I were
so,

He might have bought me at a common price
Do not believe him O! behold this ring, ¹⁹³

Whose high respect and rich validity Did lack a parallel, yet for all that

He gave it to a commoner o' the camp, ¹⁹⁶
If I be one.

Count He blushes, and 'tis it
Of six preceding ancestors, that gem
Confer'd by testament to the sequent issue, Hath it been o' d and worn This is his wife
That ring is a thousand proofs

King Methought you said ²⁰¹

You saw one here in court could witness it Dia I did, my lord, but loath am to produce

So bad an instrument his name's Parolles ²⁰⁴

Laf I saw the man to-day, if man he be

King Find him, and bring him hither

[Exit an Attendant]

Ber What of him?

He's quoted for a most perfidious slave,
With all the spots of the world tax'd and debosh'd ²⁰⁸

Whose nature sickens but to speak a truth

Am I or that or thus for what he'll utter,

That will speak anything?

King She hath that ring of yours

Ber I think she has certain it is I lik'd her,

And boarded her the wanton way of youth ²¹³

She knew her distance and did angle for me,

Madding my eagerness with her restraint,

As all impediments in fancy's course ²¹⁶

Are motives of more fancy, and, in fine,

Her infinite cunning, with her modern grace,

Subdued me to her rate she got the ring,

And I had that which any inferior might ²²⁰

At market-price have bought

Dia I must be patient,

You, that have turn'd off a first so noble wife,

May justly diet me I pray you yet,—

Since you lack virtue I will lose a husband,—²²⁴

Send for your ring, I will return it home,

And give me mine again.

Ber I have it not

King What ring was yours, I pray you?

Dia Sir, much like
The same upon your finger 228 King Know you this ring? this ring was his
of late
Dia And this was it I gave him, be ye a-bed King The story then goes false you threw it
him
Out of a casement
Dia I have spoke the truth 232

Re-enter Attendant with PAROLLES

Ber My lord, I do confess the ring was hers King You boggle shrewdly, every feather starts you

Is this the man you speak of?

Dia Ay my lord
King Tell me, surrah, but tell me true, I charge you, 236

Not fearing the displeasure of your master,—
Which, on your just proceeding I'll keep off,— By him and by this woman here what know
you?

Par So please your majesty, my master hath been an honourable gentleman tricks he hath had in him, which gentlemen have King Come, come, to the purpose did he love this woman? 244

Par Faith, sir, he did love her, but how?
King How, I pray you?

Par He did love her, sir, as a gentleman loves a woman 248

King How is that?

Par He loved her, sir, and loved her not.

King As thou art a knave, and no knave
What an equivocal companion is this! 252

Par I am a poor man, and at your majesty's command

Laf He is a good drum, my lord, but a naughty orator 256

Dia Do you know he promised me marriage?

Par Faith, I know more than I'll speak.

King But wilt thou not speak all thou knowest? 260

Par Yes, so please your majesty I did go between them, as I said, but more than that, he loved her, for, indeed, he was mad for her, and talked of Satan, and of limbo, and of Furies, and I know not what yet I was in that credit with them at that time, that I knew of their going to bed, and of other motions, as promising her marriage, and things which would derive me ill will to speak of therefore I will not speak what I know 270

King Thou hast spoken all already, unless thou canst say they are married but thou art too fine in thy evidence, therefore stand aside.
This ring you say, was yours?

Dia Ay, my good lord.

King Where did you buy it? or who gave it
you? 276

Dia It was not given me, nor I did not buy it.

King Who lent it you?

Dia It was not lent me neither

King. Where did you find it, then?

Dia. I found it not.

King If it were yours by none of all these ways 280

How could you give it him?

Dia I never gave it him

Laf This woman's an easy glove, my lord

she goes off and on at pleasure

King This ring was mine I gave it his first
wife 284

Dia It might be yours or hers, for aught I
know

King Take her away, I do not like her now

To prison with her, and away with him

Unless thou tell'st me where thou hadst this ring

Thou diest within this hour

Dia I'll never tell you 289

King Take her away

Dia I'll put in bail, my hege

King I think thee now some common customer

Dia By Jove, if ever I knew man, 'twas you

King Wherefore hast thou accus'd him all this while? 293

Dia Because he's guilty, and he is not guilty
He knows I am no maid, and he'll swear to't,

I'll swear I am a maid, and he knows not 296

Great king, I am no strumpet, by my life,

I am either maid, or else this old man's wife

[Pointing to LAFEU]

King She does abuse our ears to prison with her!

Dia Good mother, fetch my bail [Exit Widow] Stay, royal sir 300

The jeweller that owes the ring is sent for,

And he shall surety me But for this lord,

Who hath abus'd me, as he knows himself,

Though yet he never harm'd me, here I quit him

He knows himself my bed he hath defil'd 305

And at that time he got his wife with child

Dead though she be, she feels her young one kick

So there's my riddle one that's dead is quick

And now behold the meaning.

Re-enter Widow, with HELENA.

King Is there no exorcist 309
Beguiles the truer office of mine eyes?

Is't real that I see?

Hel. No, my good lord,

'Tis but the shadow of a wife you see; 312

The name and not the thing

Ber Both, both. O! pardon.

Hel O my good lord! when I was like this

maid,

I found you wondrous kind. There is your ring,

And, look you, here's your letter, this it says

When from my finger you can get this ring, 317

And are by me with child, &c This is done

Will you be mine, now you are doubly won?

Ber If she, my hege, can make me know this clearly, 320

I'll love her dearly, ever, ever dearly

Hel If it appear not plain, and prove untrue,

Deadly divorce step between me and you!

O! my dear mother, do I see you living? 324

Laf Mine eyes smell onions, I shall weep anon. [To PAROLLES] Good Tom Drum, lend me a handkercher so, I thank thee. Wait on me home, I'll make sport with thee let thy curtsies alone, they are scurvy ones 329

King Let us from point to point this story know,

To make the even truth in pleasure flow
[To DIANA.] If thou be'st yet a fresh uncropped flower, 332

Choose thou thy husband, and I'll pay thy dower,

For I can guess that by thy honest aid
Thou keptst a wife herself, thyself a maid
Of that, and all the progress, more and less, 336

Resolvedly more leisure shall express.
All yet seems well and if it end so meet
The bitter past, more welcome is the sweet [Flourish] Exeunt

EPILOGUE

Spoken by the KING

*The king's a beggar, now the play is done A't is well ended if this suit be won
That you express content which we will pay,
With strife to please you, day exceeding day 4
Ours be your patience then, and yours our parts
Your gentle hands lend us, and take our hearts

ACT I

SCENE I — A Room in the DUKE's Palace

Enter DUKE, CURIO, Lords, Musicians attending

Duke If music be the food of love, play on,
 Give me excess of it, that, surfeiting,
 The appetite may sicken, and so die
 That strain again! it had a dying fall
 O! it came o'er my ear like the sweet sound
 That breathes upon a bank of violets, Stealing and giving odour Enough! no more
 'Tis not so sweet now as it was before
 O spirit of love! how quick and fresh art thou,
 That, notwithstanding thy capacity
 Receiveth as the sea, nought enters there,
 Of what validity and pitch soe'er,
 But falls into abatement and low price,
 Even in a minute so full of shapes is fancy,
 That it alone is high fantastical

Cur Will you go hunt, my lord?

Duke What, Curio? 16

Cur The hart

Duke Why, so I do, the noblest that I have.
 O! when mine eyes did see Olivia first,
 Methought she purg'd the air of pestilence
 That instant was I turn'd into a hart,
 And my desires, like fell and cruel hounds, E'er since pursue me

Enter VALENTINE:

How now! what news from her?

Val So please my lord, I might not be admitted, 24

But from her handmaid do return this answer
 The element itself till seven years' heat, Shall not behold her face at ample view
 But like a cloistress, she will veiled walk,
 And water once a day her chamber round
 With eye-offending brine all this, to season A brother's dead love, which she would keep fresh

And lasting in her sad remembrance 32
 Duke O! she that hath a heart of that fine
 frame

To pay this debt of love but to a brother,
 How will she love, when the rich golden shaft
 Hath kill'd the flock of all affections else 36

That live in her, when liver, brain, and heart, These sovereign thrones, are all supplied, and fill'd

Her sweet perfections with one self king
 Away before me to sweet beds of flowers, 40 Love-thoughts lie rich when canopied with bowers. [Exeunt

SCENE II — The Sea-coast

Enter VIOLA, Captain, and Sailors.

Vio What country, friends, is this?

Cap This is Illyria, lady

Vio And what should I do in Illyria?

My brother he is in Elysium.

Perchance he is not drown'd what think you, sailors? 4

Cap It is perchance that you yourself were sav'd

Vio O my poor brother! and so perchance may he be

Cap True, madam and, to comfort you with chance,

Assure yourself, after our ship did split, 8
 When you and those poor number sav'd with
 you

Hung on our driving boat, I saw your brother, Most provident in peril, bind himself,— Courage and hope both teaching him the practice,— 12

To a strong mast that liv'd upon the sea,
 Where, like Arion on the dolphin's back,
 I saw him hold acquaintance with the waves
 So long as I could see.

Vio For saying so there's gold. 16

Mine own escape unfoldeth to my hope,
 Whereto thy speech serves for authority,
 The like of him. Know'st thou this country?

Cap Ay, madam, well, for I was bred and
 born 20

Not three hours' travel from this very place.

Vio Who governs here?

Cap A noble duke, in nature as in name.

Vio What is his name? 24

Cap Orsino

Vio Orsino! I have heard my father name
 him
 He was a bachelor then.

Cap And so is now, or was so very late, 28
For but a month ago I went from hence,
And then 'twas fresh in murmur,—as, you
know,

What great ones do the less will prattle of,—
That he did seek the love of fair Olivia. 32

Vio What's she?

Cap A virtuous maid, the daughter of a count
That died some twelvemonth since, then leaving
her

In the protection of his son, her brother, 36
Who shortly also died for whose dear love,
They say she hath abjur'd the company
And sight of men

Vio O! that I serv'd that lady,
And might not be deliver'd to the world, 40
Till I had made mine own occasion mellow, What my estate is

Cap That were hard to compass,
Because she will admit no kind of suit,
No, not the duke's 44

Vio There is a fair behaviour in thee, captain,
And though that nature with a beauteous wall
Doth oft close in pollution, yet of thee
I will believe thou hast a mind that suns 48
With this thy fair and outward character
I prithee,—and I'll pay thee bounteously,— Conceal me what I am, and be my aid For such disguise as haply shall become

The form of my intent. I'll serve this duke 52
Thou shalt present me as a eunuch to him
It may be worth thy pains, for I can sing
And speak to him in many sorts of music 56
That will allow me very worth his service.
What else may hap to time I will commit,
Only shape thou thy silence to my wit.

Cap Be you his eunuch, and your mute I'll
be 60
When my tongue blabs, then let mine eyes not
see.

Vio I thank thee lead me on. [Exeunt

SCENE III.—A Room in OLIVIA'S House

Enter SIR TOBY BELCH and MARIA.

Sir To What a plague means my niece, to take the death of her brother thus? I am sure care's an enemy to life

Mar By my troth, Sir Toby, you must come in earlier o' nights your cousin, my lady, takes great exceptions to your ill hours. 6

Sir To Why, let her except before excepted.
Mar Ay, but you must confine yourself within the modest limits of order

Sir To Confine! I'll confine myself no finer than I am. These clothes are good enough to drink in, and so be these boots too an they be not, let them hang themselves in their own straps. 14

Mar That quaffing and drinking will undo you I heard my lady talk of it yesterday, and of a foolish knight that you brought in one night here to be her wooer

Sir To Who? Sir Andrew Aguecheek?

Mar Ay, he. 20

Sir To He's as tall a man as any's in Illyria.
Mar What's that to the purpose?

Sir To Why, he has three thousand ducats a year 24

Mar Ay, but he'll have but a year in all these ducats he's a very fool and a prodigal.

Sir To Fie, that you'll say so! he plays o' the viol-de-gamboys, and speaks three or four languages word for word without book, and hath all the good gifts of nature 30

Mar He hath indeed, almost natural, for, besides that he's a fool, he's a great quarreller, and but that he hath the gift of a coward to allay the gust he hath in quarrelling, 'tis thought among the prudent he would quickly have the gift of a grave 36

Sir To By this hand, they are scoundrels and subtractors that say so of him Who are they?

Mar They that add, moreover, he's drunk nightly in your company 40

Sir To With drinking healths to my mece I'll drink to her as long as there is a passage in my throat and drink in Illyria. He's a coward and a coystil, that will not drink to my mece till his brains turn o' the toe like a parish-top What, wench! Castiliano vulgo! for here comes Sir Andrew Agueface

Enter SIR ANDREW AGUECHEEK.

Sir And Sir Toby Belch! how now, Sir Toby Belch! 49

Sir To Sweet Sir Andrew!

Sir And Bless you, fair shrew

Mar And you too, sir 52

Sir To Accost, Sir Andrew, accost.

Sir And What's that?

Sir To My mece's chambermaid

Sir And Good Mistress Accost, I desire better acquaintance 57

Mar My name is Mary, sir

Sir And Good Mistress Mary Accost,—

Sir To You mistake, knight 'accost' is, front her, board her, woo her, assail her 61

Sir And By my troth, I would not undertake her in this company Is that the meaning of 'accost'? 64

Mar Fare you well, gentlemen

Sir To An thou let her part so, Sir Andrew, would thou mightst never draw sword again!

Sir And An you part so, mistress, I would I might never draw sword again. Fair lady, do you think you have fools in hand? 70

Mar Sir, I have not you by the hand.

Sir And Marry, but you shall have, and here's my hand.

Mar Now, sir, 'thought is free' I pray you, bring your hand to the buttery-bar and let it
drink. 76

Sir And Wherefore, sweetheart? what's your metaphor?

Mar It's dry, sir

Sir And Why, I think so I am not such an ass but I can keep my hand dry But what's your jest?

Mar A dry jest, sir

Sir And Are you full of them? 84

Mar Ay, sir, I have them at my fingers' ends marry, now I let go your hand, I am barren

[Exit]

Sir To O knight! thou lackest a cup of canary when did I see thee so put down? 88

Sir And Never in your life, I think, unless you see canary put me down. Methinks sometimes I have no more wit than a Christian or an ordinary man has, but I am a great eater of beef, and I believe that does harm to my wit 93

Sir To No question

Sir And An I thought that, I'd forswear it I'll ride home to-morrow, Sir Toby 96

Sir To Pourquoi, my dear knight?

Sir And What is 'pourquoi?' do or not do? I would I had bestowed that time in the tongues that I have in fencing, dancing, and bear-baiting O! had I but followed the arts! 101

Sir To Then hadst thou had an excellent head of hair

Sir And Why, would that have mended my hair? 105

Sir To Past question, for thou seest it will not curl by nature

Sir And But it becomes me well enough, does't not? 109

Sir To Excellent, it hangs like flax on a distaff, and I hope to see a housewife take thee between her legs and spin it off 112

Sir And Faith, I'll home to-morrow, Sir Toby your niece will not be seen, or if she be, it's four o' one she'll none of me The count himself here hard by woos her 116

Sir To She'll none o' the count, she'll not match above her degree, neither in estate, years, nor wit, I have heard her swear it Tut, there's life in't, man 120

Sir And I'll stay a month longer I am a fellow o' the strangest mind i' the world, I delight in masques and revels sometimes altogether 125

Sir To Art thou good at these kickchawes, knight? 125

Sir And As any man in Illyria, whatsoever he be, under the degree of my betters and yet I will not compare with an old man 128

Sir To What is thy excellence in a galliard, knight?

Sir And Faith, I can cut a caper

Sir To And I can cut the mutton to't. 132

Sir And And I think I have the back-trick simply as strong as any man in Illyria

Sir To Wherefore are these things hid? wherefore have these gifts a curtain before 'em? are they like to take dust, like Mistress Mall's picture? why dost thou not go to church in a galliard, and come home in a coranto? My very walk should be a jig I would not so much as make water but in a sink-a-pace What dost thou mean? is it a world to hide virtues in? I did think, by the excellent constitution of thy leg, it was formed under the star of a galliard 144

Sir And Ay 'tis strong, and it does indifferent well in a flame-coloured stock. Shall we set about some revels?

Sir To What shall we do else? were we not born under Taurus? 149

Sir And Taurus! that's sides and heart.

Sir To No, sir, it is legs and thighs Let me see thee caper Ha! higher ha, ha! excellent! [Exeunt]

SCENE IV—A Room in the DUKE'S Palace

Enter VALENTINE, and VIOLA in man's attire

Val If the duke continue these favours towards you, Cesario, you are like to be much advanced he hath known you but three days, and already you are no stranger 4

Vio You either fear his humour or my negligence, that you call in question the continuance of his love Is he inconstant, sir, in his favours? 8

Val No, believe me

Vio I thank you Here comes the count.

Enter DUKE, CURIO, and Attendants.

Duke Who saw Cesario? ho!

Vio On your attendance, my lord, here.

Duke Stand you awhile aloof Cesario, 12 Thou know'st no less but all, I have unclasp'd To thee the book even of my secret soul Therefore, good youth, address thy gait unto her, Be not denied access, stand at her doors, 16 And tell them, there thy fixed foot shall grow Till thou have audience

Vio Sure, my noble lord,

If she be so abandon'd to her sorrow As it is spoke, she never will admit me 20

Duke Be clamorous and leap all civil bounds Rather than make unprofitable return

Vio Say I do speak with her, my lord, what then?

Duke O! then unfold the passion of my love, Surprise her with discourse of my dear faith 25 It shall become thee well to act my woes, She will attend it better in thy youth Than in a nuncio of more grave aspect, 28

Vio I think not so, my lord

Duke

Dear lad, believe it, For they shall yet belie thy happy years That say thou art a man Diana's lip Is not more smooth and rubious, thy small pipe Is as the maiden's organ, shrill and sound, 33 And all is semblative a woman's part.

I know thy constellation is right apt For this affair Some four or five attend him, All, if you will, for I myself am best 37 When least in company Prosper well in this, And thou shalt live as freely as thy lord, To call his fortunes thine.

Vio I'll do my best 40

To woo your lady [Aside] yet, a fearful strife! Whoe'er I woo, myself would be his wife.

[Exeunt]

SCENE V—A Room in OLIVIA'S House

Enter MARIA and Clown.

Mar Nay, either tell me where thou hast been, or I will not open my lips so wide as a bristle may enter in way of thy excuse. My lady will hang thee for thy absence. 4

Clo Let her hang me he that is well hanged in this world needs to fear no colours

Mar Make that good

Clo He shall see none to fear 8

Mar A good lenten answer I can tell thee where that saying was born, of, 'I fear no colours'

Clo Where, good Mistress Mary?

Mar In the wars, and that may you be bold to say in your foolery 13

Clo Well, God give them wisdom that have it, and those that are fools, let them use their talents 16

Mar Yet you will be hanged for being so long absent, or, to be turned away, is not that as good as a hanging to you?

Clo Many a good hanging prevents a bad marriage, and, for turning away, let summer bear it out 22

Mar You are resolute then?

Clo Not so, neither, but I am resolved on two points 25

Mar That if one break, the other will hold, or, if both break, your gaskins fall

Clo Apt, in good faith, very apt. Well, go thy way if Sir Toby would leave drinking thou wert as witty a piece of Eve's flesh as any in Illyria 30

Ma Peace, you rogue no more o' that Here come my lady make your excuse wisely, you were best [Exit] 31

Clo Wit, an't be thy will, put me into good fooling! Those wits that think they have thee, do very oft prove fools, and I, that am sure I lack thee, may pass for a wise man for what says Quinapalus? 'Better a witty fool than a foolish wit'

Enter OLIVIA with MALVOLIO

God bless thee, lady! 40

Oh Take the fool away

Clo Do you not hear, fellows? Take away the lady

Oh Go to, you're a dry fool, I'll no more of you besides, you grow dishonest 45

Clo Two faults, madonna, that drink and good counsel will amend for give the dry fool drink, then is the fool not dry, bid the dishonest man mend himself if he mend, he is no longer dishonest, if he cannot, let the botcher mend him Any thing that's mended is but patched virtue that transgresses is but patched with sin, and sin that amends is but patched with virtue If that this simple syllogism will serve, so, if it will not, what remedy? As there is no true cuckold but calamity, so beauty is a flower The lady bade take away the fool, therefore, I say again, take her away 53

Oh Sir, I bade them take away you

Clo Misprision in the highest degree! Lady, cucullus non facit monachum, that's as much to say as I wear not motley in my brain Good madonna, give me leave to prove you a fool

Oh Can you do it?

Clo Dexteriously, good madonna 64

Oh Make your proof

Clo I must catechise you for it, madonna good my mouse of virtue, answer me 68

Oh Well, sir for want of other idleness, I'll bide your proof

Clo Good madonna, why mournest thou?

Oh Good fool, for my brother's death 72

Clo I think his soul is in hell, madonna

Oh I know his soul is in heaven, fool

Clo The more fool madonna, to mourn for your brother's soul being in heaven Take away the fool gentlemen 77

Oh What thank you of this fool, Malvolio?
doth he not mend?

Mal Yes, and shall do, till the pangs of death snake him infirmity, that decays the wise, doth ever make the better fool 82

Clo God send you, sir, a speedy infirmity, for the better increasing your folly! Sir Toby will be sworn that I am no fox, but he will not pass his word for two pence that you are no fool

Oh How say you to that, Malvolio? 87

Mal I marvel your ladyship takes delight in such a barren rascal I saw him put down the other day with an ordinary fool that has no more brain than a stone Look you now he's out of his guard already, unless you laugh and rumster occasion to him, he is gagged I protest, I take these wise men, that crow so at these set kind of fools, no better than the fools' zanyes 95

Oh O! you are sick of self-love, Malvolio, and taste with a distempered appetite To be generous, guiltless, and of free disposition, is to take those things for bird-bolts that you deem cannon-boules There is no slander in an allowed fool, though he do nothing but rail nor no railing in a known discreet man, though he do nothing but reprove

Clo Now, Mercury endue thee with leasing, for thou speakest well of fools! 103

Re-enter MARIA

Mar Madam, there is at the gate a young gentleman much desires to speak with you

Oh From the Count Orsino, is it? 108

Mar I know not, madam 'tis a fair young man, and well attended

Oh Who of my people hold him in delay?

Mrr Sir Toby, madam, your kinsman 112

Oh Fetch him off, I pray you he speaks nothing but madman Fie on him! [Exit MARIA] Go you Malvolio if it be a suit from the count, I am sick, or not at home what you will, to dismiss it [Exit MALVOLIO] Now you see, sir, how your fooling grows old, and people dislike it

Clo Thou hast spoken for us, madonna, as if thv eldest son should be a fool, whose skull Jove cram with brains! for here comes one of thy kin has a most weak pia mater

Enter SIR TOBY BELCH

Oh By mine honour, half drunk What is he at the gate, cousin? 124

Sr To A gentleman.

Oh A gentleman! what gentleman?

Sr To 'Tis a gentleman here,—a plague o' these pickle herring! How now, sot! 128

Clo Good Sir Toby

Oh Cousin, cousin, how have you come so early by this lethargy?

Sir To Lechery! I defy lechery! There's one at the gate 133

Clo Ay, marry, what is he?

Sir To Let him be the devil, an he will, I care not give me faith, say I Well, it's all one [Exit

Oh What s a drunken man like, fool? 137

Clo Like a drowned man, a fool, and a madman one draught above heat makes him a fool, the second mads him, and a third drowns him

Oh Go thou and seek the crowner, and let him sit o' my coz, for he's in the third degree of drink, he's drowned go, look after him 144

Clo He is but mad yet, madonna, and the fool shall look to the madman [Exit

Re-enter MALVOLIO

Mal Madam, yond young fellow swears he will speak with you I told him you were sick he takes on him to understand so much, and therefore comes to speak with you I told him you were asleep he seems to have a foreknowledge of that too, and therefore comes to speak with you What is to be said to him, lady? he's fortified against any demal 154

Oh Tell him he shall not speak with me

Mal Ha's been told so, and he says, he'll stand at your door like a sheriff's post, and be the supporter to a bench, but he'll speak with you

Oh What kind o' man is he? 160

Mal Why, of mankind

Oh What manner of man?

Mal Of very ill manner he'll speak with you, will you or no 164

Oh Of what personage and years is he?

Mal Not yet old enough for a man, nor young enough for a boy, as a squash is before 'tis a peascod, or a codling when 'tis almost an apple 'tis with him in standing water, between boy and man He is very well-favoured, and he speaks very shrewishly one would think his mother's milk were scarce out of him 172

Oh Let him approach Call in my gentlewoman

Mal Gentlewoman, my lady calls [Exit

Re-enter MARIA

Oh Give me my veil come, throw it o'er my face 176

We'll once more hear Orsino's embassy

Enter VIOLA and Attendants

Vio The honourable lady of the house, which is she?

Oh Speak to me, I shall answer for her You will? 181

Vio Most radiant, exquisite, and unmatchable beauty—I pray you tell me if this be the lady of the house, for I never saw her I would be loath to cast away my speech, for, besides that it is excellently well penned, I have taken great pains to con it. Good beauties, let me sustain no scorn, I am very comptible, even to the least sinister usage 189

Oh Whence came you, sir?

Vio I can say little more than I have studied, and that question's out of my part Good gentle one, give me modest assurance if you be the lady of the house, that I may proceed in my speech

Oh Are you a comedian? 195

Vio No, my profound heart, and yet, by the very fangs of malice I swear I am not that I play Are you the lady of the house?

Oh If I do not usurp myself, I am 199

Vio Most certain, if you are she you do usurp yourself, for, what is yours to bestow is not yours to reserve But this is from my commission I will on with my speech in your praise, and then show you the heart of my message 204

Oh Come to what is important in't I forgive you the praise

Vio Alas! I took great pains to study it, and 'tis poetical 208

Oh It is the more like to be feigned I pray you keep it in I heard you were saucy at my gates, and allowed your approach rather to wonder at you than to hear you If you be not mad, be gone, if you have reason, be brief 'tis not that time of moon with me to make one in so skipping a dialogue 215

Mar Will you hoist sail, sir? here lies your way

Vio No, good swabber, I am to hull here a little longer Some mollification for your giant, sweet lady

Oh Tell me your mind 220

Vio I am a messenger

Oh Sure, you have some hideous matter to deliver, when the courtesy of it is so fearful. Speak your office 224

Vio It alone concerns your ear I bring no overture of war, no taxation of homage I hold the olive in my hand, my words are as full of peace as matter 228

Oh Yet you began rudely What are you? what would you?

Vio The rudeness that hath appear'd in me have I learn'd from my entertainment What I am and what I would, are as secret as maiden-head to your ears, divinity, to any other's, profanation. 235

Oh Give us the place alone we will hear this divinity [Exit MARIA and Attendants] Now, sir, what is your text?

Vio Most sweet lady,—

Oh A comfortable doctrine, and much may be said of it Where lies your text? 241

Vio In Orsino's bosom

Oh In his bosom! In what chapter of his bosom? 244

Vio To answer by the method, in the first of his heart.

Oh O! I have read it it is heresy Have you no more to say? 248

Vio Good madam, let me see your face

Oh Have you any commission from your lord to negotiate with my face? you are now out of your text but we will draw the curtain and show you the picture [Unveiling] Look you, sir, such a one I was as this present is't not well done?

Vio Excellently done, if God did all 256

Oh 'Tis in grain, sir, 'twill endure wind and weather

Vio 'Tis beauty truly blent, whose red and white

Nature's own sweet and cunning hand laid on Lady, you are the cruell'st she alive, 261

If you will lead these graces to the grave And leave the world no copy

Oh O' sir, I will not be so hard-hearted, I will give out divers schedules of my beauty it shall be inventoried, and every particle and utensil labelled to my will as Item, Two lips, indifferent red, Item, Two grey eyes, with lids to them, Item, One neck, one chin, and so forth. Were you sent hither to praise me?

Vio I see you what you are you are too proud

But, if you were the devil, you are fair 272
My lord and master loves you O' such love Could be but recompens'd, though you were crown'd

The nonpareil of beauty

Oh How does he love me?

Vio With adorations, with fertile tears 276
With groans that thunder love, with sighs of fire

Oh Your lord does know my mind, I cannot love him,

Yet I suppose him virtuous, know him noble, Of great estate of fresh and stainless youth, 280
In voices well divulg'd, free, learn'd, and valiant, And, in dimension and the shape of nature
A gracious person, but yet I cannot love him
He might have took his answer long ago 284

Vio If I did love you in my master's flame, With such a suffering, such a deadly life, In your denial I would find no sense, I would not understand it

Oh Why, what would you?

Vio Make me a willow cabin at your gate, And call upon my soul within the house, Write loyal cantons of contemned love, And sing them loud even in the dead of night, Holla your name to the reverberate hills, 293
And make the babbling gossip of the air Cry out, 'Olivia!' O! you should not rest Between the elements of air and earth, 296
But you should pity me!

Oh You might do much. What is your parentage?

Vio Above my fortune, yet my state is well I am a gentleman.

Oh Get you to your lord 300
I cannot love him. Let him send no more, Unless, perchance, you come to me again, To tell me how he takes it Fare you well
I thank you for your pains spend this for me

Vio I am no fee'd post, lady, keep your purse 305

My master, not myself, lacks recompense Love make his heart of flint that you shall love, And let your fervour, like my master's, be 308 Plac'd in contempt! Farewell, fair cruelty

[Exit

Oh 'What is your parentage'?

'Above my fortunes, yet my state is well I am a gentleman I'll be sworn thou art 312 Thy tongue, thy face, thy limbs, actions, and spirit,

Do give thee five fold blazon Not too fast soft! soft!

Unless the master were the man How now! Even so quickly may one catch the plague? 316 N'thinks I feel this youth's perfections With an inviol. and subtle stealth To creep in at mine eyes Well, let it be What, ho! Mal 315

Re-enter MALVOLIO

Mal Here, madam, at your service 320

Oh Run after that same peevish messenger, The county's man he left this ring behind him, Would I, or not tell him I'll none of it Desire him not to flatter with his lord, 324

Nor hold him up with hopes I'm not for him If that the youth will come this way to-morrow, I'll give him reasons for't He thee, Malvolio

Mal Madam, I will [Exit

Oh I do I know not what, and fear to find 329 Mine eye too great a flatterer for my mind

Fate, show thy force ourselves we do not owe, What is decreed must be, and be this so! [Exit

ACT II

SCENE I — The Sea-coast

Enter ANTONIO and SEBASTIAN

Ant Will you stay no longer? nor will you not that I go with you?

Seb By your patience, no My stars shine darkly over me, the malignancy of my fate might, perhaps distemper yours, therefore I shall crave of you your leave that I may bear my evils alone It were a bad recompense for your love to lay any of them on you 8

Ant Let me yet know of you whither you are bound

Seb No, sooth, sir my determinate voyage is mere extravagancy But I perceive in you so excellent a touch of modesty that you will not extort from me what I am willing to keep in, therefore it charges me in manners the rather to express myself You must know of me then, Antonio, my name is Sebastian, which I called Rodrigo My father was that Sebastian of Messina, whom I know you have heard of He left behind him myself and a sister, both born in an hour if the heavens had been pleased, would we had so ended! but you, sir, altered that, for some hour before you took me from the breach of the sea was my sister drowned. 24

Ant Alas the day!

Seb A lady, sir, though it was said she much resembled me, was yet of many accounted beautiful but, though I could not with such estimable wonder overfar believe that, yet thus far I will boldly publish her she bore a mind that envy could not but call fair She is drowned already sir with salt water, though I seem to drown her remembrance again with more 33

Ant Pardon me sir, your bad entertainment
Seb O good Antonio! forgive me your trouble! 36

Ant If you will not murder me for my love, let me be your servant.

Seb If you will not undo what you have done, that is, kill him whom you have recovered desire it not. I are ye well at once my bosom is full of kindness, and I am yet so near the manners of my mother that upon the least occasion more rime eyes will tell tales of me I am bound o the Count Orsino's court farewell. [Exit]

Ant The gentleness of all the gods go with thee!

I have many enemies in Orsino's court, 48
Else would I very shortly see thee there,
But, come what may, I do adore thee so,
That danger shall seem sport and I will go. [Exit]

SCENE II — 4 Street

Enter VIOLA, MALVOLIO following

Mal Were not you even now with the Countess Olivia?

Vio Even now, sir, on a moderate pace I have since arrived but hither. 4

Mal She returns this ring to you, sir, you might have saved me my pains, to have taken it away yourself. She adds, moreover, that you should put your lord into a desperate assurance she will none of him. And one thing more, that you be never so hardy to come again in his affairs, unless it be to report your lord's taking of this. Receive it so. 12

Vio She took the ring of me. I'll none of it.
Mal Come, sir, you peevishly threw it to her, and her will is it should be so returned if it be worth stooping for, there it lies in your eye if not, be it his that finds it. [Exit]

Vio I left no ring with her, what means this lady?

Fortune forbid my outside have not charm'd her! 19

She made good view of me, indeed, so much That sure methought her eyes had lost her tongue.

For she did speak in starts distractedly She loves me, sure the cunning of her passion Invites me in this churlish messenger. 24

None of my lord's ring! why, he sent her none I am the man if it be so, as 'tis,
Poor lady, she were better love a dream

Disguise, I see, thou art a wickedness, 28
Wherein the pregnant enemy does much

How easy is it for the proper-false In women's waxen hearts to set their forms!

Alas! our frailty is the cause, not we! 32
For such as we are made of, such we be

How will this fadge? My master loves her dearly,

And I, poor monster, fond as much on him,

And she, mistaken, seems to dote on me 36
What will become of this? As I am man,
My state is desperate for my master's love,
As I am woman—now alas the day!—
What thriftless sighs shall poor Olivia breathe!
O time! thou must untangle this, not I, 41
It is too hard a knot for me to untie. [Exit]

SCENE III — A Room in OLIVIA'S House

Enter SIR TOBY BELCH and SIR ANDREW AGUECHEEK

Sir To Approach, Sir Andrew, not to be a-bed after midnight is to be up betimes, and diluculo surgere, thou knowest,—

Sir And Nay, by my troth, I know not, but I know, to be up late is to be up late. 5

Sir To A false conclusion. I hate it as an unfilled can. To be up after midnight and to go to bed then, is early, so that to go to bed after midnight is to go to bed betimes. Does not our life consist of the four elements?

Sir And Faith so they say, but, I think, it rather consists of eating and drinking. 12

Sir To Thou art a scholar. Let us therefore eat and drink. Marian, I say! a stoup of wine!

Enter Clown

Sir And Here comes the fool, I' faith.
Clo How now my hearts! Did you never see the picture of 'we three'? 17

Sir To Welcome, ass. Now let's have a catch.

Sir And By my troth, the fool has an excellent breast. I had rather than forty shillings I had such a leg, and so sweet a breath to sing, as the fool has. In sooth thou wast in very gracious fooling last night, when thou spokest of Picrogramitus, of the Varrians passing the equinoctial of Queubus 'twas very good, I faith. I sent thee sixpence for thy reman, hadst it? 27

Clo I did impetuous thy gratuity, for Malvolio's nose is no whipsnook, my lady has a white hand and the Myrmidons are no bottle-ale houses.

Sir And Excellent! Why, this is the best fooling when all is done. Now, a song. 33

Sir To Come on, there is sixpence for you let's have a song.

Sir And There's a testril of me too if one knight give a— 37

Clo Would you have a love-song, or a song of good life?

Sir To A love-song, a love-song. 40

Sir And Ay, ay, I care not for good life.

Clo O mistress mine! where are you roaming?
O! stay and hear your true love's coming,
That can sing both high and low. 44

Tripe no further pretty sweetening Journeys end in lovers meeting
Every wise man's son doth know

Sir And Excellent good, I' faith. 48

Sir To Good, good

Clo What is love? tis not hereafter
Present mirth hath present laughter
What's to come is still unsure
In delay there lies no plenty Then come kiss me, sweet and twenty,
Youth's a stuff will not endure

Sir And A mellifluous voice, as I am true knight 57

Sir To A contagious breath

Sir And Very sweet and contagious, 't' faith

Sir To To hear by the nose, it is dulcet in contagion. But shall we make the welkin dance indeed? Shall we rouse the night-owl in a catch that will draw three souls out of one weaver? shall we do that? 64

Sir And An you love me, let's do it. I am dog at a catch

Clo By'r lady, sir, and some dogs will catch well 68

Sir And Most certain. Let our catch be, 'Thou knave' 68

Clo 'Hold thy peace, thou knave,' knight? I shall be constrain'd in't to call thee knave, knight 73

Sir And 'Tis not the first time I have constrained one to call me knave. Begin, fool. It begins, 'Hold thy peace' 76

Clo I shall never begin if I hold my peace

Sir And Good, 't' faith. Come, begin [They sing a catch]

Enter MARIA

Mar What a caterwauling do you keep here! If my lady have not called up her steward Malvolio and bid him turn you out of doors, never trust me 82

Sir To My lady's a Cateian, we are politicians, Malvolio's a Peg-a-Ramsey, and 'Three merry men be we'. Am not I consanguineous? am I not of her blood? Tillyvally, lady! 82

There dwelt a man in Babylon, lady, lady!

Clo Beshrew me, the knight's in admirable fooling 89

Sir And Ay, he does well enough if he be disposed, and so do I too. He does it with a better grace, but I do it more natural

Sir To O! the twelfth day of December,—

Mar For the love o' God, peace! 94

Enter MALVOLIO

Mal My masters, are you mad? or what are you? Have you no wit, manners, nor honesty, but to gabble like tinkers at this time of night? Do ye make an alchouse of my lady's house, that ye squeak out your coziers' catches without any mitigation or remorse of voice? Is there no respect of place persons nor time in you? 101

Sir To We'd keep time, sir, in our catches. Sneek up!

Mal Sir Toby, I must be round with you. My lady bade me tell you, that, though she harbours you as her kinsman, she's nothing allied to your disorders. If you can separate yourself and your misdeameours, you are welcome to the house, if not, an it would please you to take leave of her, she is very willing to bid you farewell

52 Sir To Farewell, dear heart, since I must needs be gone 112

Mar Nay, good Sir Toby

Clo His eyes do show his days are almost done

Mal Is't even so?

Sir To But I will never die 116

Clo Sir Toby, there you lie

Mal This is much credit to you.

Sir To Shall I bid him go?

Clo What an if you do? 120

Sir To Shall I bid him go, and spare not?

Clo O! no, no, no, no, you dare not

Sir To 'Out o' time!' Sir, ye lie. Art any more than a steward? Dost thou think, because thou art virtuous, there shall be no more cakes and ale?

Clo Yes, by Saint Anne, and ginger shall be hot in the mouth too 128

Sir To Thou'rt the right. Go, sir, rub your chain with crumbs. A stoup of wine, Maria!

Mal Mistress Mary, if you prized my lady's favour at anything more than contempt, you would not give means for this uncivil rule. She shall know of it, by this hand [Exit] 135

Mar Go shake your ears

Sir And 'Twere as good a deed as to drink when a man's a-hungry, to challenge him the field, and then to break promise with him and make a fool of him

Sir To Do't, knight. I'll write thee a challenge, or I'll deliver thy indignation to him by word of mouth 142

Mar Sweet Sir Toby, be patient for to night since the youth of the count's was to-day with my lady, she is much out of quiet. For Monsieur Malvolio, let me alone with him. If I do not gull him into a nayword, and make him a common recreation, do not think I have wit enough to lie straight in my bed. I know I can do it

Sir To Possess us, possess us, tell us something of him 152

Mar Marry, sir, sometimes he is a kind of puritan

Sir And O! if I thought that, I'd beat him like a dog 156

Sir To What, for being a puritan? thy exquisite reason, dear knight?

Sir And I have no exquisite reason for't, but I have reason good enough 160

Mar The devil a puritan that he is, or anything constantly but a time-pleaser, an affectioned ass, that cons state without book, and utters it by great swarths the best persuaded of himself, so crammed, as he thinks, with excellences, that it is his ground of faith that all that look on him love him, and on that ace in him will my revenge find notable cause to work 169

Sir To What wilt thou do?

Mar I will drop in his way some obscure epistles of love, wherein, by the colour of his beard, the shape of his leg, the manner of his gait, the expresse of his eye, forehead, and complexion, he shall find himself most feelingly personated. I can write very like my lady your niece, on a forgotten matter we can hardly make distinction of our hands.

Sir To Excellent! I smell a device

Sir And I have't in my nose too 180

Sir To He shall think, by the letters that thou wilt drop, that they come from my niece, and that she is in love with him

Mar My purpose is, indeed, a horse of that colour 185

Sir And And your horse now would make him an ass

Mar Ass I doubt not 188

Sir And O! 'twill be admirable

Mar Sport royal, I warrant you. I know my physick will work with him. I will plant you two, and let the fool make a third, where he shall find the letter observe his construction of it. For this night, to bed, and dream on the event. Farewell. [Exit]

Sir To Good night, Pentheseilea 196

Sir And Before me, she's a good wench

Sir To She's a beagle, true-bred, and one that adores me. What o' that?

Sir And I was adored once too 200

Sir To Let's to bed, knight. Thou hadst need send for more money

Sir And If I cannot recover your niece, I am a foul way out 204

Sir To Send for money, knight. If thou hast her not! 't's the end, call me cut

Sir And If I do not, never trust me, take it how you will 208

Sir To Come, come. I'll go burn some sack, 't's too late to go to bed now. Come, knight. [Exeunt]

SCENE IV—A Room in the DUKE's Palace

Enter DUKE, VIOLA, CURIO, and Others

Duke Give me some music. Now, good morrow, friends

Now, good Cesario, but that piece of song, that old and antique song we heard last night, Methought it did relieve my passion much. More than light airs and recollected terms. Of these most brisk and giddy-paced times. Come, but one verse

Cur He is not here, so please your lordship, that should sing it 9

Duke Who was it?

Cur Feste, the jester, my lord. A fool that the Lady Olivia's father took much delight in. He is about the house 13

Duke Seek him out, and play the tune the while. [Exit CURIO. Music.]

Come hither, boy. If ever thou shalt love, In the sweet pangs of it remember me, 16

For such as I am all true lovers are. Unstand and skittish. All motions else

Save in the constant image of the creature That is below'd. How dost thou like this tune? 20

Viola It gives a very echo to the seat

Where love is thron'd

Duke Thou dost speak masterly

My life upon't, young though thou art, thine eye

Hath stay'd upon some favour that it loves, 24 Hath it not, boy?

Viola A little, by your favour

Duke What kind of woman is it?

Viola Of your complexion

Duke She is not worth thee, then. What years, I faith?

Viola About your years, my lord 28

Duke Too old, by heaven. Let still the woman take

An elder than herself, so wears she to him,

So sways she level in her husband's heart

For, boy, however we do praise ourselves, 32

Our fancies are more giddy and unfirm,

More longing, wavering, sooner lost and worn,

Than women's are

Viola I think it well, my lord

Duke Then, let thy love be younger than thyself, 36

Or thy affection cannot hold the bent,

For women are as roses, whose fair flower

Being once display'd, doth fall that very hour

Viola And so they are. Alas, that they are so, 40

To die, even when they to perfection grow!

Re-enter CURIO with Clown.

Duke O, fellow! come, the song we had last night

Mark it, Cesario, it is old and plain,

The spinsters and the knitters in the sun, 44

And the free maids that weave their thread with bones,

Do use to chant it. It is silly sooth,

And dallies with the innocence of love,

Like the old age 48

Clo Are you ready, sir?

Duke Ay, prithee, sing. [Music]

Clo Come away, come away, death

And in sad cypress let me be laid, 52

Fly away, fly away, breath

I am slain by a fair cruel maid

My shroud of white stuck all with yew, 56

O! prepare it

My part of death no one so true

Did share it

Not a flower, not a flower sweet

On my black coffin let there be strown, 60

Not a friend, not a friend greet

My poor corse where my bones shall be thrown.

A thousand thousand sighs to save,

Lay me O! where 64

Sad true lover never find my grave,

To weep there.

Duke There's for thy pains

Clo No pains, sir, I take pleasure in singing, 69

Duke I'll pay thy pleasure then.

Clo Truly, sir, and pleasure will be paid, one time or another 72

Duke Give me now leave to leave thee Clo Now, the melancholy god protect thee, and the taylor make thy doublet of changeable taffeta, for thy mind is a very opal! I would have men of such constancy put to sea, that their business might be everything and their intent everywhere, for that's it that always makes a good voyage of nothing Farewell [Exit]

Duke Let all the rest give place

[Exeunt CURIO and Attendants

Once more, Cesario, 81

Get thee to yond same sovereign cruelty
 Tell her, my love, more noble than the world, Prizes not quantity of dirty lands, 84
 The parts that fortune hath bestow'd upon

her,
 Tell her, I hold as giddily as fortune,
 But 'tis that miracle and queen of gems
 That nature pranks her in attracts my soul. 88

Vio But if she cannot love you, sir?

Duke I cannot be so answer'd

Vio Sooth, but you must Say that some lady, as perhaps, there is,

 Hath for your love as great a pang of heart 92
 As you have for Olivia you cannot love her,
 You tell her so, must she not then be answer'd?

Duke There is no woman's sides

Can bide the beating of so strong a passion 96
 As love doth give my heart, no woman's heart
 So big, to hold so much, they lack retention
 Alas! their love may be call'd appetite, 100
 No motion of the liver, but the palate,
 That suffer surfeit, cloyment, and revolt,
 But mine is all as hungry as the sea,
 And can digest as much Make no compare Between that love a woman can bear me 104
 And that I owe Olivia

Vio Ay, but I know,—

Duke What dost thou know?

Vio Too well what love women to men may owe

In faith, they are as true of heart as we 108
 My father had a daughter lov'd a man,
 As it might be, perhaps, were I a woman,
 I should your lordship

Duke And what's her history?

Vio A blank, my lord She never told her
 love, 112

But let concealment, like a worm i' the bud,
 Feed on her damask cheek she pin'd in thought,
 And with a green and yellow melancholy, 116
 She sat like Patience on a monument, Smiling at grief Was not this love indeed?

We men may say more, swear more, but indeed
 Our shows are more than will, for still we prove Much in our vows, but little in our love 120

Duke But died thy sister of her love, my boy?

Vio I am all the daughters of my father's
 house,

And all the brothers too, and yet I know not Sir, shall I to this lady?

Duke Ay, that's the theme, 124
 To her in haste, give her this jewel, say
 My love can give no place, bide no deny

[Exeunt

SCENE V —OLIVIA'S Garden

Enter SIR TOBY BELCH, SIR ANDREW AGUECHEEK, and FABIAN

Sir To Come thy ways, Signior Fabian.

Fab Nay, I'll come if I lose a scruple of this sport, let me be boiled to death with melancholy 4

Sir To Wouldst thou not be glad to have the niggardly rascally sheep-biter come by some notable snare?

Fab I would exult, man you know he brought me out o' favour with my lady about a bear-baiting here 10

Sir To To anger him we'll have the bear again, and we will fool him black and blue, shall we not, Sir Andrew? 13

Sir And An we do not, it is pity of our lives

Sir To Here comes the little villain 16

Enter MARIA

How now my metal of India!
Mal Get ye all three into the box-tree Malvolio's coming down this walk he has been yonder the sun practising behaviour to his own shadow i' this half-hour Observe him, for the love of mockery, for I know this letter will make a contemplative idiot of him Close, in the name of jesting! Lie thou there [Throws down a letter] for here comes the trout that must be caught with tickling [Exit]

Enter MALVOLIO

Mal 'Tis but fortune, all is fortune Maria once told me she did afflict me, and I have heard herself come thus near, that should she fancy, it should be one of my complexion Besides, she uses me with a more exalted respect than anyone else that follows her What should I think on? 33

Sir To Here's an over-weening rogue!

Fab O peace! Contemplation makes a rare turkey-cock of him how he jets under his advanced plumes! 37

Sir And 'Slight, I could so beat the rogue!

Sir To Peace! I say

Mal To be Count Malvolio! 40

Sir To Ah, rogue!

Sir And Pistol him, pistol him

Sir To Peace! peace! 43

Mal There is example for't the lady of the Strachy married the yeoman of the wardrobe

Sir And Fie on him, Jezebel!

Fab O, peace! now he's deeply in, look how imagination blows him 49

Mal Having been three months married to her sitting in my state,—

Sir To O! for a stone-bow, to hit him in the eye! 53

Mal Calling my officers about me, in my branched velvet gown, having come from a daybed, where I have left Olivia sleeping,— 56

Sir To Fire and brimstone!

Fab O, peace! peace!

Mal And then to have the humour of state and after a demure travel of regard, telling them I know my place, as I would they should do theirs, to ask for my kinsman Toby,— Sir To Bolts and shackles!

Fab O, peace peace, peace! now, now 64

Mal Seven of my people, with an obedient start, make out for him I frown the while, and perchance wind up my watch, or play with my—some rich jewel. Toby approaches, curtsies there to me,—

Sir To Shall this fellow live?

Fab Though our silence be drawn from us with cars, yet peace! 72

Mal I extend my hand to him thus, quenching my familiar smile with an austere regard of control—

Sir To And does not Toby take you a blow o' the lips then? 77

Mal Saying, 'Cousin Toby, my fortunes having cast me on your niece give me this pre-ogative of speech,'— 80

Sir To What, what?

Mal 'You must amend your drunkenness'

Sir To Out, scab!

Fab Nay, patience, or we break the smews of our plot 85

Mal 'Besides, you waste the treasure of your time with a foolish knight,'—

Sir And That's me, I warrant you 88

Mal 'One Sir Andrew,'—

Sir And I knew 'twas I, for many do call me fool

Mal [Seeing the letter] What employment have we here? 93

Fab Now is the woodcock near the gun

Sir To O, peace! and the spirit of humours intimate reading aloud to him! 96

Mal [Taking up the letter] By my life, this is my lady's hand! these be her very C's, her U's, and her T's, and thus makes she her great P's It is, in contempt of question, her hand 100

Sir And Her C's, her U's, and her T's why that—

Mal [Reads] To the unknown beloved, thus and my good wishes her very phrases! By your leave, wax Soft! and the impressure her Lucrece, with which she uses to seal 'tis my lady To whom should this be?

Fab This wins him, liver and all. 108

Mal

Jove knows I love

But who?

Lips do not move

No man must know 112

'No man must know' What follows? the numbers altered! 'No man must know' if this should be thee, Malvolio!

Sir To Marry, hang thee, brock! 116

Mal I may command where I adore,

But silence like a Lucrece knife

With bloodless stroke my heart doth gore

M, O, A, I, doth sway my life 120

Fab A fustian riddle!

Sir To Excellent wench, say I

Mal 'M, O, A, I, doth sway my life' Nay, but first, let me see, let me see, let me see 124

Fab What dish o' poison has she dressed him!

Sir To And with what wing the staniel checks at it! 128

Mal 'I may command where I adore' Why, she may command me I serve her, she is my lady Why, this is evident to any formal capacity, there is no obstruction in this And the end, what should that alphabetical position portend? if I could make that resemble something in me,—Softly!—M O, A, I,— 135

Sir To O' ay, make up that he is now at a cold scent

Fab Sowter will cry upon't, for all this, though it be as rank as a fox 139

Mal M, Malvolio, M, why, that begins my name

Fab Did not I say he would work it out? the cur is excellent at faults 143

Mal M,—But then there is no consonancy in the sequel, that suffers under probation A should follow, but O does

Fab And O shall end, I hope

Sir To Ay, or I'll cudgel him, and make him cry, O! 149

Mal And then I comes behind.

Fab Ay, an you had any eye behind you, you might see more detraction at your heels than fortunes before you 153

Mal M, O, A, I this simulation is not as the former, and yet, to crush this a little, it would bow to me, for every one of these letters are in my name Soft! here follows prose 157

If this fall into thy hand revolve In my stars I am above thee but be not afraid of greatness some are born great some achieve greatness and some have greatness thrust upon them Thy Fates open their hands let thy blood and spirit embrace them and to mure thyself to what thou art like to be cast thy humble slough and appear fresh Be opposite with a kinsman surly with servants let thy tongue tang arguments of state put thyself into the trick of singularity She thus advises thee that sighs for thee Remember who commended thy yellow stockings, and wished to see thee ever cross-gartered I say remember Go to thou art made, if thou desirest to be so if not let me see thee a steward still the fellow of servants and not worthy to touch Fortune's fingers. Farewell She that would alter services with thee 174

THE FORTUNATE UNHAPPY

Daylight and champion discovers not more this is open I will be proud, I will read politic authors, I will baffle Sir Toby, I will wash off gross acquaintance, I will be point-devise the very man. I do not now fool myself, to let imagination jade me, for every reason excites to this, that my lady loves me She did commend my yellow stockings of late, she did praise my leg being cross-gartered, and in this she manifests herself to my love, and, with a kind of injunction drives me to these habits of her liking I thank my stars I am happy. I will be strange, stout, in yellow stockings, and cross-gartered, even with the swiftness of putting on.

Jove and my stars be praised! Here is yet a postscript 191

Thou canst not choose but know who I am. If thou entertainest my love let it appear in thy smiling thy smile become thee well therefore in my presence still smile dear my sweet I prithee

Jove, I thank thee I will smile I will do everything that thou wilt have me [Exit

Fab I will not give my part of this sport for a pension of thousands to be paid from the Sophy 200

Sir To I could marry this wench for this device

Sir And So could I too

Sir To And ask no other dowry with her but such another jest 205

Sir And Nor I neither

Fab Here comes my noble gull-catcher

Re-enter MARIA

Sir To Wilt thou set thy foot o' my neck?

Sir And Or o' mine either? 209

Sir To Shall I play my freedom at tray-trip, and become thy bond-slave?

Sir And I' faith, or I either? 212

Sir To Why, thou hast put him in such a dream, that when the image of it leaves him he must run mad

Mar Nay, but say true, does it work upon
him? 217

Sir To Like aqua-vitæ with a midwife

Mar If you will, then see the fruits of the sport, mark his first approach before my lady, he will come to her in yellow stockings, and 'tis a colour she abhors, and cross-gartered, a fashion she detests, and he will smile upon her, which will now be so unsuitable to her disposition, being addicted to a melancholy as she is, that it cannot but turn him into a notable contempt
If you will see it, follow me 227

Sir To To the gates of Tartar, thou most excellent devil of wit!

Sir And I'll make one too [Exeunt

ACT III

SCENE I — OLIVIA'S Garden

Enter VIOLA, and Clown with a tabor

Viola Save thee, friend, and thy music. Dost thou live by thy tabor?

Clow No, sir, I live by the church.

Viola Art thou a churchman? 4

Clow No such matter, sir I do live by the church, for I do live at my house, and my house doth stand by the church.

Viola So thou mayst say, the king lies by a beggar, if a beggar dwell near him, or, the church stands by thy tabor, if thy tabor stand by the church 11

Clow You have said, sir To see this age!

A sentence is but a cheveril glove to a good wit how quickly the wrong side may be turned outward! 15

Viola Nay, that's certain they that dally nicely with words may quickly make them wanton

Clow I would therefore my sister had had no name, sir 20

Viola Why, man?

Clow Why, sir, her name's a word, and to dally with that word might make my sister wanton. But indeed, words are very rascals since bonds disgraced them. 25

Viola Thy reason, man?

Clow Troth, sir, I can yield you none without words, and words are grown so false, I am loath to prove reason with them 29

Viola I warrant thou art a merry fellow, and carest for nothing

Clow Not so, sir, I do care for something, but in my conscience, sir, I do not care for you if that be to care for nothing, sir, I would it would make you invisible

Viola Art not thou the Lady Olivia's fool? 36

Clow No, indeed, sir, the Lady Olivia has no folly she will keep no fool, sir, till she be married, and fools are as like husbands as purchards are to herrings—the husband's the bigger I am indeed not her fool, but her corrupter of words

Viola I saw thee late at the Count Orsino's. 43

Clow Foolery, sir, does walk about the orb like the sun, it shines every where I would be sorry, sir, but the fool should be as oft with your master as with my mistress I think I saw your wisdom there 48

Viola Nay an thou pass upon me, I'll no more with thee Hold, there's sixpence for thee

[Gives a piece of money]

Clow Now Jove, in his next commodity of hair, send thee a beard! 52

Viola By my troth, I'll tell thee, I am almost sick for one, though I would not have it grow on my chin Is thy lady within?

Clow [Pointing to the coin] Would not a pair of these have bred, sir? 57

Viola Yes, being kept together and put to use

Clow I would play Lord Pandarus of Phrygia, sir, to bring a Cressida to this Troilus 60

Viola I understand you, sir, 'tis well begg'd

Clow The matter, I hope, is not great, sir, begging but a beggar Cressida was a beggar My lady is within, sir I will conster to them whence you come, who you are and what you would are out of my welkin, I might say 'element,' but the word is overworn [Exit

Viola This fellow's wise enough to play the fool, 68

And to do that well craves a kind of wit
He must observe their mood on whom he jests,
The quality of persons, and the time,

And, like the haggard, check at every feather
That comes before his eye This is a practice

As full of labour as a wise man's art, 74

For folly that he wisely shows is fit,
But wise men folly-fall'n, quite taunt their wit.

Enter SIR TOBY BELCH and SIR ANDREW AGUECHEEK

Sir To Save you, gentleman

Vio And you sir

Sir And Dieu vous garde, monsieur

Vio Et vous aussi votre serviteur 80

Sir And I hope, sir, you are, and I am yours

Sir To Will you encounter the house? my niece is desirous you should enter, if your trade be to her 85

Vio I am bound to your niece sir I mean she is the list of my voyage

Sir To Taste your legs, sir put them to motion 89

Vio My legs do better understand me, sir than I understand what you mean by bidding me taste my legs 92

Sir To I mean, to go, sir, to enter

Vio I will answer you with gait and entrance But we are prevented

Enter OLIVIA and MARIA

Most excellent accomplished lady, the heavens rain odours on you! 97

Sir And That youth's a rare courtier 'Rain odours!' well

Vio My matter hath no voice, lady, but to your own most pregnant and vouchsafed ear 101

Sir And 'Odours,' 'pregnant,' and 'vouchsafed' I'll get 'em all three all ready

Oh Let the garden door be shut, and leave me to my hearing 105

[Exeunt SIR TOBY, SIR ANDREW, and MARIA Give me your hand sir

Vio My duty, madam, and most humble service

Oh What is your name? 108

Vio Cesario is your servant's name, fair princess

Oh My servant, sir! 'Twas never merry world

Since lowly feigning was call'd compliment You're servant to the Count Orsino, youth 112

Vio And he is yours, and his must needs be yours

Your servant's servant is your servant, madam.

Oh For him, I think not on him for his thoughts,

Would they were blanks rather than fill'd with me! 116

Vio Madam, I come to whet your gentle thoughts

On his behalf Oh O! by your leave, I pray you,

I bade you never speak again of him But, would you undertake another suit, 120

I had rather hear you to solicit that Than music from the spheres

Vio Dear lady,—

Oh Give me leave beseech you I did send, After the last enchantment you did here, 125

A ring in chase of you so did I abuse Myself, my servant, and I fear me, you

Under your hard construction must I sit, 128

To force that on you, in a shameful cunning, Which you knew none of yours what might you think?

Have you not set mine honour at the stake, And baited it with all th' unmuzzled thoughts That tyrannous heart can think? To one of your receiving 133

Enough is shown, a cypress, not a bosom, Hideth my heart So, let me hear you speak

Vio I pity you 136

Oh That's a degree to love

Vio No, not a grize, for tis a vulgar proof That very oft we pity enemies

Oh Why, then methinks tis time to smile again 140

O world! how apt the poor are to be proud If one should be a prey, how much the better To fall before the lion than the wolf!

[Clock strikes The clock upbraids me with the waste of time Be not afraid, good youth, I will not have you

And yet when wit and youth is come to harvest, Your wife is like to reap a proper man

There lies your way, due west Vio Then westward-ho! 148

Grace and good disposition attend your ladyship!

You'll nothing, madam, to my lord by me?

Oh Stay I prithee, tell me what thou think'st of me 152

Vio That you do think you are not what you are

Oh If I think so, I think the same of you Vio Then think you right I am not what I am

Oh I would you were as I would have you be! 156

Vio Would it be better, madam, than I am?

I wish it might, for now I am your fool

Oh O! what a deal of scorn looks beautiful

In the contempt and anger of his lip 160

A murderous guilt shows not itself more soon

Than love that would seem hid, love's night is noon

Cesario, by the roses of the spring, By maidhood, honour, truth, and every thing,

I love thee so, that, maugre all thy pride, 165

Nor wit nor reason can my passion hide Do not extort thy reasons from this clause,

For that I woo, thou therefore hast no cause, But rather reason thus with reason fetter, 169

Love sought is good, but giv'n unsought is better

Vio By innocence I swear, and by my youth, I have one heart, one bosom, and one truth, 172

And that no woman has nor never none Shall mistress be of it, save I alone

And so adieu, good madam never more Will I my master's tears to you deplore 176

Oh Yet come again, for thou perhaps mayst move

That heart, which now abhors, to like his love. [Exeunt]

SCENE II — A Room in OLIVIA'S House

Enter SIR TOBY BELCH, SIR ANDREW AGUE-CHEEK, and FABIAN

Sir And No, faith, I'll not stay a jot longer
Sir To Thy reason, dear venom, give thy reason

Fab You must needs yield your reason, Sir

Sir And Marry, I saw your niece do more favours to the count's serving-man than ever she bestowed upon me, I saw t'r the orchard

Sir To Did she see thee the while, old boy? tell me that.

Sir And As plain as I see you now

Fab This was a great argument of love in her toward you

Sir And 'Slight' will you make an ass o' me?

Fab I will prove it legitimate, sir, upon the oaths of judgment and reason

Sir To And they have been grand-jurymen since before Noah was a sailor

Fab She did show favour to the youth in your sight only to exasperate you, to awake your dormouse valour, to put fire in your heart, and brimstone in your liver. You should then have accosted her, and with some excellent jests, fire-new from the mint, you should have banged the youth into dumbness. This was looked for at your hand, and this was balked the double gilt of this opportunity you let time wash off, and you are now sailed into the north of my lady's opinion, where you will hang like an icicle on a Dutchman's beard, unless you do redeem it by some laudable attempt, either of valour or policy

Sir And An't be any way, it must be with valour, for policy I hate. I had as lief be a Brownist as a politician.

Sir To Why, then, build me thy fortunes upon the basis of valour. Challenge me the count's youth to fight with him, hurt him in eleven places. My niece shall take note of it, and assure thyself, there is no love-broker in the world can more prevail in man's commendation with woman than report of valour.

Fab There is no way but this, Sir Andrew

Sir And Will either of you bear me a challenge to him?

Sir To Go, write it in a martial hand, be curst and brief, it is no matter how witty so it be eloquent, and full of invention. Taunt him with the licence of ink if thou thou'st him some thrice, it shall not be amiss, and as many lies as will be in thy sheet of paper, although the sheet were big enough for the bed of Ware in England, set 'em down go, about it. Let there be gall enough in thy ink, though thou write with a goose-pen, no matter about it

Sir And Where shall I find you?

Sir To We'll call thee at the cubiculo go

[Exit SIR ANDREW

Fab This is a dear manakin to you, Sir Toby.

Sir To I have been dear to him, lad, some two thousand strong, or so

Fab We shall have a rare letter from him, but you'll not deliver it

Sir To Never trust me, then, and by all means stir on the youth to an answer. I think oxen and wainropes cannot hale them together. I or Andrew, if he were opened, and you find so much blood in his liver as will clog the foot of a flea. I'll eat the rest of the anatomy

Fab And his opposite, the youth, bears in his visage no great presage of cruelty

Sir To Look, where the youngest wren of mine comes

Enter MARIA

Mar If you desire the spleen, and will laugh yourselves into stitches, follow me. Yond gull Malvolio is turned heathen, a very renegado, for there is no Christian, that means to be saved by believing rightly, can ever believe such impossible passages of grossness. He is in yellow stockings

Sir To And cross-gartered?

Mar Most villainously like a pedant that keeps a school; the church. I have dogged him like his murderer. He does obey every point of the letter that I dropped to betray him. He does smile his face into more lines than are in the new map with the augmentation of the Indies. You have not seen such a thing as 'tis, I can hardly forbear hurling things at him. I know my lady will strike him if she do, he'll smile and take't for a great favour

Sir To Come, bring us, bring us where he is [Exeunt

SCENE III — A Street

Enter SEBASTIAN and ANTONIO

Seb I would not by my will have troubled you,

But since you make your pleasure of your pains,

I will no further chide you

Ant I could not stay behind you. My desire, more sharp than filed steel, did spur me forth, and not all love to see you, — though so much as might have drawn one to a longer voyage, — But jealousy what might befall your travel, Being skillless in these parts, which to a stranger, Unguided and unfriended, often prove Rough and unhospitable. My willing love, The rather by these arguments of fear, Set forth in your pursuit

Seb My kind Antonio, I can no other answer make but thanks, And thanks, and ever thanks, for oft good turns

Are shuffled off with such uncurrent pay. But, were my worth, as is my conscience, firm, You should find better dealing. What's to do? Shall we go see the reliques of this town?

Ant To-morrow, sir, best first go see your lodging

Seb I am not wearv, and 'tis long to night
I pray you, let us satisfy our eyes
With the memorials and the things of fame
That do renown this city

Ant Would you'd pardon me,
I do not without danger walk these streets 25
Once, in a sea fight gainst the Count his galleys,
I did some service, of such note indeed,
That were I ta'en here it would scarce be answer'd 28

Seb Belike you slew great number of his people?

Ant The offence is not of such a bloody nature,

Albeit the quality of the time and quarrel Might well have given us bloody argument 32
It might have since been answer'd in repaying What we took from them, which, for traffic's sake,

Most of our city did only myself stood out,
For which, if I be lapt in this place, 36
I shall pay dear

Seb Do not then walk too open Ant It doth not fit me Hold, sir, here's my purse

In the south suburbs, at the Elephant,
Is best to lodge I will bespeak our diet, 40 Whiles you beguile the time and feed your knowledge

With viewing of the town there shall you have
me

Seb Why I your purse?
Ant Haply your eye shall light upon some toy 44

You have desire to purchase, and your store,
I think, is not for idle markets, sir

Seb I'll be your purse-bearer and leave you for an hour 48

Ant To the Elephant
Seb I do remember [Exeunt

SCENE IV — OLIVIA'S Garden

Enter OLIVIA and MARIA.

Ol I have sent after him he says he'll come,
How shall I feast him? what bestow of him?
For youth is bought more oft than begg'd or borrow'd.

I speak too loud 4
Where is Malvolio? he is sad, and civil,
And suits well for a servant with my fortunes
Where is Malvolio?

Mar. He's coming, madam, but in very strange manner He is sure possess'd, madam. 9

Ol Why, what's the matter? does he rave?

Mar No, madam, he does nothing but smile your ladyship were best to have some guard about you if he come, for sure the man is tainted in 's wits

Ol Go call him hither [Exit MARIA 16

I am as mad as he,
If sad and merry madness equal be.

Re-enter MARIA, with MALVOLIO

How now, Malvolio!

Mal. Sweet lady, ho, ho.

Ol Smil'st thou?

20

I sent for thee upon a sad occasion

Mal Sad, lady! I could be sad this does make some obstruction in the blood, this crossgartering, but what of that? if it please the eye of one, it is with me as the very true sonnet is, Please one and please all

Ol Why, how dost thou, man? what is the matter with thee? 28

Mal Not black in my mind, though yellow in my legs It did come to his hands, and commands shall be executed I think we do know the sweet Roman hand 32

Ol Wilt thou go to bed, Malvolio?

Mal To bed! ay, sweetheart, and I'll come
to thee

Ol God comfort thee! Why dost thou smile so and kiss thy hand so oft? 37

Mar How do you, Malvolio?

Mal At your request! Yes, nightingales answer daws 40

Mar Why appear you with this ridiculous boldness before my lady?

Mal 'Be not afraid of greatness' 'Twas well writ 44

Ol What meanest thou by that, Malvolio?

Mal 'Some are born great,'—

Ol Ha!

Mal 'Some achieve greatness,'— 48

Ol What sayst thou?

Mal 'And some have greatness thrust upon them'

Ol Heaven restore thee! 52

Mal Remember who commended thy yellow stockings,—

Ol Thy yellow stockings!

Mal 'And wished to see thee cross gartered'
Ol Cross-gartered! 57

Mal 'Go to, thou art made, if thou desirest to be so,'—

Ol Am I made? 60

Mal 'If not, let me see thee a servant still,'

Ol Why, this is very midsummer madness.

Enter Servant.

Ser Madam, the young gentleman of the Count Orsino's is returned I could hardly entreat him back he attends your ladyship's
pleasure 66

Ol. I'll come to him [Exit Servant.]
Good Maria, let this fellow be looked to.
Where's my cousin Toby? Let some of my people have a special care of him I would not have him miscarry for the half of my dowry 71

[Exeunt OLIVIA and MARIA.]

Mal Oh, ho! do you come near me now?
no worse man than Sir Toby to look to me!
This concurs directly with the letter she sends him on purpose, that I may appear stubborn to him, for she incites me to that in the letter.
'Cast thy humble slough,' says she, 'be opposite with a kinsman, surly with servants, let thy tongue tang with arguments of state, put thyself into the trick of singularity,' and consequently sets down the manner how, as, a sad face, a reverend carriage, a slow tongue, in the habit of some sir of note, and so forth I have lured her, but it is Jove's doing, and Jove make me thankful! And when she went away now, 'Let this fellow be looked to,' fellow! not Malvolio, nor after my degree, but fellow Why, everything adheres together, that no dram of a scruple, no scruple of a scruple, no obstacle, no incredulous or unsafe circumstance—What can be said? Nothing that can be can come between me and the full prospect of my hopes Well, Jove, not I, is the doer of this, and he is to be thanked 94

Re-enter MARIA, with SIR TOBY BELCH and FABIAN

Sir To Which way is he, in the name of sanctity? If all the devils in hell be drawn in little and Legion himself possess'd him, yet I'll speak to him.

Fab Here he is, here he is How is't with you, sir? how is't with you, man? 100

Mal Go off, I discard you let me enjoy my private, go off

Mar Lo, how hollow the fiend speaks within him! did not I tell you? Sir Toby, my lady prays you to have a care of him. 105

Mal Ah, ha! does she so?

Sir To Go to, go to peace! peace! we must deal gently with him, let me alone How do you, Malvolio? how is't with you? What, man! defy the devil consider, he's an enemy to mankind

Mal Do you know what you say? 112

Mar La you! an you speak ill of the devil, how he takes it at heart. Pray God, he be not bewitched!

Fab Carry his water to the wise-woman 116

Mar Marry, and it shall be done to-morrow morning, if I live My lady would not lose him for more than I'll say

Mal How now, mistress! 120

Mar O Lord!

Sir To Prithce, hold thy peace, this is not the way do you not see you move him? let me alone with him 124

Fab No way but gentleness, gently, gently the fiend is rough, and will not be roughly used

Sir To Why, how now, my bawcock! how dost thou, chuck? 128

Mal Sir!

Sir To Ay, Biddy, come with me What, man! 'tis not for gravity to play at cherry-pit with Satan hang him, foul collier! 132

Mar Get him to say his prayers, good Sir Toby, get him to pray

Mal My prayers, mmx!

Mar No, I warrant you, he will not hear of godliness 137

Mal Go, hang yourselves all! you are idle shallow things I am not of your element. You shall know more hereafter [Exit]

Sir To Is't possible? 141

Fab If this were played upon a stage now, I could condemn it as an improbable fiction

Sir To His very genius hath taken the infection of the device, man. 145

Mar Nay, pursue him now, lest the device take air and taint

Fab Why, we shall make him mad indeed 149

Mar The house will be the quieter

Sir To Come, we'll have him in a dark room, and bound, My niece is already in the belief that he's mad we may carry it thus, for our pleasure and his penance, till our very pastime, tired out of breath, prompt us to have mercy on him, at which time we will bring the device to the bar, and crown thee for a finder of madmen But see, but see 157

Fab More matter for a May morning

Sir And Here's the challenge, read it I warrant there's vinegar and pepper in t 160

Fab Is't so saucy?

Sir And Ay, is't, I warrant him do but read

Sir To Give me Youth, whatsoever thou art, thou art but a scurvy fellow 165

Fab Good, and valiant

Sir To Wonder not, nor admire not in thy mind, why I do call thee so, for I will show thee no reason for't 169

Fab A good note, that keeps you from the blow of the law

Sir To Thou comest to the Lady Olivia, and in my sight she uses thee kindly but thou liest in thy throat, that is not the matter I challenge thee for

Fab Very brief, and to exceeding good sense —less 177

Sir To I will waylay thee going home, where, if it be thy chance to kill me,—

Fab Good 180

Sir To Thou killest me like a rogue and a villan

Fab Still you keep o' the windy side of the law good 184

Sir To Fare thee well, and God have mercy upon one of our souls! He may have mercy upon mine, but my hope is better and so look to thyself Thy friend, as thou usest him, and thy sworn enemy,

ANDREW AGUECHEEK

If this letter move him not, his legs cannot. I'll give't him 192

Mar You may have very fit occasion for't he is now in some commerce with my lady, and will by and by depart 195

Sir To Go, Sir Andrew, scout me for him at the corner of the orchard like a bum-bailly so soon as ever thou seest him, draw, and, as thou drawest, swear horrible, for it comes to pass off that a terrible oath, with a swaggering accent sharply twanged off, gives manhood more approbation than ever proof itself would have earned him Away!

Sir And Nay, let me alone for swearing 204

[Exit]

Sir To Now will not I deliver his letter for the behaviour of the young gentleman gives him out to be of good capacity and breeding, his employment between his lord and my niece confirms no less therefore this letter, being so excellently ignorant, will breed no terror in the youth he will find it comes from a clodpole. But, sir, I will deliver his challenge by word of mouth, set upon Aguecheek a notable report of valour, and drive the gentleman,—as I know his youth will aptly receive it,—into a most hideous opinion of his rage, skill, fury, and impetuosity. Thus will so fright them both that they will kill one another by the look, like cockatrices.

Fab Here he comes with your niece give them way till he take leave, and presently after him.

Sir To I will meditate the while upon some horrid message for a challenge.

[Exeunt SIR TOBY, FABIAN, and MARIA.]

Re-enter OLIVIA, with VIOLA.

Oli I have said too much unto a heart of stone,

And laid mine honour too uncharly out. There's something in me that reproves my fault, But such a headstrong potent fault it is That it but mocks reproof.

Vio With the same haviour that your passion bears.

Goes on my master's griefs.

Oli Here, wear this jewel for me, 'tis my picture,

Refuse it not, it hath no tongue to vex you, 232 And I beseech you come again to-morrow.

What shall you ask of me that I'll deny, That honour sav'd may upon asking give?

Vio Nothing but this, your true love for my master.

Oli How with mine honour may I give him that.

Which I have given to you?

Vio I will acquit you.

Oli Well, come again to-morrow fare thee well.

A fiend like thee might bear my soul to hell.

[Exit]

Re-enter SIR TOBY BELCH and FABIAN.

Sir To Gentleman, God save thee.

Vio And you, sir.

Sir To That defence thou hast, betake thee to't of what nature the wrongs are thou hast done him, I know not, but thy interceptor, full of despite, bloody as the hunter, attends thee at the orchard-end. Dismount thy tuck, be yare in thy preparation, for thy assailant is quick, skilful, and deadly.

Vio You mistake, sir. I am sure no man hath any quarrel to me. My remembrance is very free and clear from any image of offence done to any man.

Sir To You'll find it otherwise, I assure you therefore, if you hold your life at any price, betake you to your guard, for your opposite hath in him what youth, strength, skill, and wrath, can furnish man withal.

Vio I pray you, sir, what is he?

Sir To He is knight dubbed with unhatched rapier, and on carpet consideration, but he is a devil in private brawl. Souls and bodies hath he divorced three, and his incensement at this moment is so unplaceable that satisfaction can be none but by pangs of death and sepulchre. Hobnob, is his word give t or take t.

Vio I will return again into the house and desire some conduct of the lady. I am no fighter. I have heard of some kind of men that put quarrels purposely on others to taste their valour, belike this is a man of that quirk.

Sir To Sir, no, his indignation derives itself out of a very competent injury therefore get you on and give him his desire. Back you shall not to the house unless you undertake that with me which with as much safety you might answer him therefore, on, or strip your sword stark naked, for meadle you must, that's certain, or forswear to wear iron about you.

Vio This is as uncivil as strange. I beseech you, do me this courteous office, as to know of the knight what my offence to him is. It is something of my negligence, nothing of my purpose.

Sir To I will do so. Signior Fabian, stay you by this gentleman till my return.

Vio Pray you, sir, do you know of this matter?

Fab I know the knight is incensed against you, even to a mortal abatement, but nothing of the circumstance more.

Vio I beseech you, what manner of man is he?

Fab Nothing of that wonderful promise, to read him by his form, as you are like to find him in the proof of his valour. He is, indeed, sir, the most skilful, bloody, and fatal opposite that you could possibly have found in any part of Illyria. Will you walk towards him? I will make your peace with him if I can.

Vio I shall be much bound to you for't. I am one that had rather go with sir priest than sir knight, I care not who knows so much of my mettle.

[Exeunt]

Re-enter SIR TOBY, with SIR ANDREW.

Sir To Why, man, he's a very devil, I have not seen such a firago. I had a pass with him, rapier, scabbard and all, and he gives me the stuck in with such a mortal motion that it is inevitable, and on the answer, he pays you as surely as your feet hit the ground they step on. They say he has been fencer to the Sophy.

Sir And Pox on't, I'll not meddle with him.

Sir To Ay, but he will not now be pacified. Fabian can scarce hold him yonder.

Sir And Plague on't, an I thought he had been valiant and so cunning in fence I'd have seen him damned ere I'd have challenged him. Let him let the matter slip, and I'll give him my horse, grey Capilet.

Sir To I'll make the motion. Stand here, make a good show on't; this shall end without the perdition of souls.—Aside—Marry, I'll ride your horse as well as I ride you.

Re-enter FABIAN and VIOLA

[To FABIAN] I have his horse to take up the quarrel. I have persuaded him the youth's a devil.

Fab He is as horribly conceited of him, and pants and looks pale, as if a bear were at his heels.

Sir To There's no remedy, sir, he will fight with you for his oath's sake. Marry, he hath better bethought him of his quarrel, and he finds that now scarce to be worth talking of, therefore draw for the supportance of his vow: he protests he will not hurt you.

Viola [Aside] Pray God defend me! A little thing would make me tell them how much I lack of a man.

Fab Give ground, if you see him furious.

Sir To Come, Sir Andrew, there's no remedy the gentleman will, for his honour's sake, have one bout with you, he cannot by the duello avoid it, but he has promised me, as he is a gentleman and a soldier, he will not hurt you. Come on, to't.

Sir And. Pray God, he keep his oath!

[Draws]
Viola I do assure you, 'tis against my will.

[Draws]

Enter ANTONIO

Ant Put up your sword. If this young gentleman

Have done offence, I take the fault on me. 348
If you offend him, I for him defy you.

[Drawing]
Sir To You, sir! why, what are you?

Ant One, sir, that for his love dares yet do more.

Than you have heard him brag to you he will. 352
Sir To Nay, if you be an undertaker, I am for you.

[Draws]
Fab O, good sir Toby, hold! here come the officers.

Sir To I'll be with you anon.

Viola [To SIR ANDREW] Pray, sir, put your sword up, if you please.

Sir And. Marry, will I, sir, and, for that I promised you, I'll be as good as my word. He will bear you easily and reins well.

Enter two Officers.

First Off. This is the man, do thy office.
Sec Off. Antonio, I arrest thee at the suit 364 Of Count Orsino.

Ant You do mistake me, sir.

First Off. No, sir, no jot. I know your favour well.

Though now you have no sea-cap on your head. Take him away: he knows I know him well. 368

Ant I must obey—[To VIOLA.] This comes with seeking you.

But there's no remedy. I shall answer it. What will you do, now my necessity

Makes me to ask you for my purse? It grieves me much more for what I cannot do for you. 373 Than what befalls myself. You stand amazed.

But be of comfort.

Sec Off

Come, sir, away
Ant I must entreat of you some of that money.

Viola What money, sir?

For the fair kindness you have show'd me here, And part, being prompted by your present trouble,

Out of my lean and low ability 380

I'll lend you something: my having is not much. I'll make division of my present with you.

Hold, there is half my coffer.

Ant Will you deny me now?

Is't possible that my deserts to you 384

Can lack persuasion? Do not tempt my misery, Lest that it make me so unsound a man

As to upbraid you with those kindnesses

That I have done for you.

Viola I know of none, 388

Nor know I you by voice or any feature.

I hate ingratitude more in a man

Than lying, vainness, babbling drunkenness,

Or any taint of vice whose strong corruption 392

Inhabits our frail blood.

Ant O heavens themselves!

Sec Off Come, sir, I pray you, go.

Ant Let me speak a little. This youth that you see here

I snatch'd one-half out of the jaws of death, 396

Reliev'd him with such sanctity of love,

And to this image, which methought did promise

Most venerable worth, did I devotion.

First Off What's that to us? The time goes by away! 400

Ant But O! how vile an idol proves thus god.

Thou hast, Sebastian, done good feature shame

In nature: there's no blemish but the mind.

None can be call'd deform'd but the unkind. 404

Virtue is beauty, but the beauteous evil

Are empty trunks o'erflourish'd by the devil.

First Off The man grows mad away with him! Come, come, sir.

Ant Lead me on. 408

[Exeunt Officers with ANTONIO]

Viola Methinks his words do from such passion fly.

That he believes himself, so do not I.

Prove true, imagination, O, prove true,

That I, dear brother, be now ta'en for you! 412

Sir To Come hither, knight, come hither,

Fabian, we'll whisper o'er a couplet or two of most sage saws.

Viola Henam'd Sebastian, I my brother know

Yet living in my glass; even such and so. 417

In favour was my brother, and he went

Still in this fashion, colour, ornament,

For him I imitate. O! if it prove, 420

Tempests are kind, and salt waves fresh in love!

[Exit]

Sir To A very dishonest paltry boy, and more a coward than a hare. His dishonesty appears in leaving his friend here in necessity, and denying him, and for his cowardship, ask Fabian. 425

Fab A coward, a most devout coward, religious in it.

Sir And. 'Shld, I'll after him again and beat

him. 429

Sir To Do, cuff him soundly, but never draw thy sword
Sir And An I do not,— [Exit
Fab Come, let's see the event 433
Sir To I dare lay any money 'twill be nothing yet [Exeunt

ACT IV

SCENE I—The Street adjoining OLIVIA's House

Enter SEBASTIAN and Clown

Clo Will you make me believe that I am not sent for you?

Seb Go to, go to, thou art a foolish fellow. Let me be clear of thee 4

Clo Well held out, i' faith! No, I do not know you, nor I am not sent to you by my lady to bid you come speak with her, nor your name is not Master Cesario, nor this is not my nose neither. Nothing that is so is so 9

Seb I prithee, vent thy folly somewhere else. Thou know'st not me.

Clo Vent my folly! He has heard that word of some great man, and now applies it to a fool. Vent my folly! I am afraid this great lubber, the world, will prove a cockney. I prithee now, ungird thy strangeness and tell me what I shall vent to my lady. Shall I vent to her that thou art coming?

Seb I prithee, foolish Greek, depart from me. There's money for thee if you tarry longer. 20 I shall give worse payment.

Clo By my troth, thou hast an open hand. These wise men that give fools money get themselves a good report after fourteen years' purchase 25

Enter SIR ANDREW

Sir And Now, sir, have I met you again? there's for you [Striking SEBASTIAN

Seb Why, there's for thee, and there, and there, and there! [Beating SIR ANDREW Are all the people mad? 29

Enter SIR TOBY and FABIAN

Sir To Hold, sir, or I'll throw your dagger o'er the house.

Clo Thus will I tell my lady straight. I would not be in some of your coats for twopence [Exit

Sir To [Holding SEBASTIAN] Come on, sir hold 35

Sir And Nay, let him alone, I'll go another way to work with him. I'll have an action of battery against him if there be any law in Illyria. Though I struck him first, yet it's no matter for that 40

Seb Let go thy hand.
Sir To Come, sir, I will not let you go. Come, my young soldier, put up your iron. You are well fleshed, come on 44

Seb I will be free from thee [Disengaging himself] What wouldst thou now?
 If thou dar'st tempt me further, draw thy sword

Sir To What, what! Nay then, I must have an ounce or two of this malapert blood from you. Draws Enter OLIVIA.

Oh Hold, Toby! on thy life I charge thee, hold! 49

Sir To Madam!
Oh Will it be ever thus? Ungracious wretch!

Fit for the mountains and the barbarous caves, Where manners ne'er were preach'd. Out of my sight! 53

Be not offended, dear Cesario

Rudesby, be gone!

[Exeunt SIR TOBY, SIR ANDREW, and FABIAN

I prithee, gentle friend, Let thy fair wisdom, not thy passion, away 56 In this uncivil and unjust extent

Against thy peace. Go with me to my house, And hear thou there how many fruitless pranks This ruffian hath botch'd up, that thou thereby Mayst smile at this. Thou shalt not choose but go 61

Do not deny. Beshrew his soul for me, He started one poor heart of mine in thee

Seb What relish is in this? how runs the stream? 64

Or I am mad, or else this is a dream. Let fancy still my sense in Lethe steep!

If it be thus to dream, still let me sleep!
Oh Nay, come, I prithee. Would thou'dst be rul'd by me!

Seb Madam, I will Oh Madam, I will

O! say so, and so bel!

[Exeunt

SCENE II—A Room in OLIVIA's House

Enter MARIA and Clown, M. VOLIO in a dark chamber adjoining

Mar Nay, I prithee, put on this gown and this beard, make him believe thou art Sir Topas the curate. do it quickly, I'll call Sir Toby the whilst [Exit

Clo Well, I'll put it on and I will dissemble myself in't and I would I were the first that ever dissembled in such a gown. I am not tall enough to become the function well, nor lean enough to be thought a good student, but to be said an honest man and a good housekeeper goes as fairly as to say a careful man and a great scholar. The competitors enter 12

Enter SIR TOBY BELCH and MARIA.

Sir To God bless thee, Master parson.
Clo Bonos dies, Sir Toby for, as the old hermit of Prague, that never saw pen and ink, very wittily said to a piece of King Gorboduc, 'That, that is, is, so I, being Master parson, am Master parson, for, what is 'that,' but 'that,' and 'is,' but 'is?' 20

Sir To To him, Sir Toby.
Clo What ho! I say. Peace in this prison!

Sir To The knave counterfeits well, a good knave

Mal [Within] Who calls there? 24

Clo Sir Topas, the curate, who comes to visit Malvolio the lunatic

Mal Sir Topas, Sir Topas, good Sir Topas, go to my lady 28

Clo Out, hyperbolical fiend! how vexest thou this man! Talkest thou nothing but of ladies?

Sir To Well said, Master Parson

Mal [Within] Sir Topas, never was man thus wronged Good Sir Topas, do not think I am mad they have laid me here in hideous darkness 35

Clo Fie, thou dishonest Satan! I call thee by the most modest terms, for I am one of those gentle ones that will use the devil himself with courtesy Sayst thou that house is dark?

Mal As hell, Sir Topas 40

Clo Why, it hath bay-windows transparent as baricadoes, and the clerestories toward the south-north are as lustrous as ebony, and yet complainest thou of obstruction? 44

Mal I am not mad, Sir Topas I say to you, this house is dark.

Clo Madman, thou errest I say, there is no darkness but ignorance, in which thou art more puzzled than the Egyptians in their fog 49

Mal I say this house is as dark as ignorance, though ignorance were as dark as hell, and I say, there was never man thus abused I am no more mad than you are make the trial of it in any constant question

Clo What is the opinion of Pythagoras concerning wild fowl? 56

Mal That the soul of our grandam might haply inhabit a bird

Clo What thinkest thou of his opinion?

Mal I think nobly of the soul, and no way approve his opinion. 61

Clo Fare thee well remain thou still in darkness thou shalt hold the opinion of Pythagoras ere I will allow of thy wits, and fear to kill a woodcock, lest thou dispossess the soul of thy grandam Fare thee well

Mal Sir Topas! Sir Topas!

Sir To My most exquisite Sir Topas! 68

Clo Nay, I am for all waters

Mar Thou mightst have done this without thy beard and gown he sees thee not

Sir To To him in thine own voice, and bring me word how thou findest him I would we were well rid of this knavery If he may be conveniently delivered, I would he were, for I am now so far in offence with my mece that I cannot pursue with any safety this sport to the upshot. Come by and by to my chamber

[Exeunt SIR TOBY and MARIA

Clo Hey Robin, jolly Robin, Tell me how thy lady does. 80

Mal Fool!

Clo My lady is unkm'd, perdy!

Mal Fool!

Clo Alas, why is she so?

Mal Fool, I say!

Clo She loves another

Who calls, ha?

Mal Good fool, as ever thou wilt deserve well at my hand, help me to a candle, and pen, ink, and paper As I am a gentleman, I will live to be thankful to thee for't.

Clo Master Malvolio! 92

Mal Ay, good fool

Clo Alas, sir, how fell you beside your five wits?

Mal Fool, there was never man so notoriously abused I am as well in my wits, fool, as thou art

Clo But as well? then you are mad indeed, if you be no better in your wits than a fool 100

Mal They have here propertyed me keep me in darkness, send ministers to me, asses! and do all they can to face me out of my wits

Clo Advise you what you say the minister is here Malvolio, Malvolio, thy wits the heavens restore! endeavour thyself to sleep, and leave thy vain babble 108

Mal Sir Topas!

Clo Maintain no words with him, good fellow—Who, I, sir? not I, sir God be wi' you good Sir Topas Marry, amen I will, sir, I will 112

Mal Fool, fool, fool, I say!

Clo Alas, sir, be patient What say you, sir? I am shent for speaking to you

Mal Good fool, help me to some light and some paper I tell thee I am as well in my wits as any man in Illyria

Clo Well-a-day, that you were, sir! 119

Mal By this hand, I am Good fool, some ink, paper, and light, and convey what I will set down to my lady it shall advantage thee more than ever the bearing of letter did 123

Clo I will help you to't But tell me true, are you not mad indeed? or do you but counterfeit?

Mal Believe me, I am not I tell thee true 128

Clo Nay, I'll ne'er believe a madman till I see his brains I will fetch you light and paper and ink

Mal Fool, I'll requite it in the highest degree I prithe, be gone 133

Clo

I am gone sir,

And anon sir

I'll be with you again 136

In a trice

Like to the old Vice

Your need to sustain

Who with dagger of lath,

In his rage and his wrath,

Cries, Ah ah! to the devil

Like a mad lad 144

[Exit

SCENE III—OLIVIA'S Garden

Enter SEBASTIAN

Seb This is the air, that is the glorious sun, This pearl she gave me, I do feel't and see't, And though 'tis wonder that enwraps me thus, Yet 'tis not madness. Where's Antonio then? I could not find him at the Elephant, Yet there he was, and there I found this credit, That he did range the town to seek me out. 5

His counsel now might do me golden service, 8
 For though my soul disputes well with my sense
 That this may be some error, but no madness, Yet doth this accident and flood of fortune
 So far exceed all instance, all discourse, 12
 That I am ready to distrust mine eyes,
 And wrangle with my reason that persuades me
 To any other trust but that I am mad
 Or else the lady's mad yet if 'twere so, 16
 She could not sway her house, command her
 followers,
 Take and give back affairs and their dispatch
 With such a smooth, discreet, and stable bearing
 As I perceive she does There's something in't
 That is deceivable But here the lady comes 21

Enter OLIVIA and a Priest

Oli Blame not this haste of mine If you mean well,
 Now go with me and with this holy man
 Into the chantry by, there, before him, 24
 And underneath that consecrated roof,
 Hight me the full assurance of your faith
 That my most jealous and too doubtful soul
 May live at peace He shall conceal it 28
 Whiles you are willing it shall come to note, What time we will our celebration keep According to my birth What do you say?
Seb I'll follow this good man, and go with
 you, 32
 And, having sworn truth, ever will be true Oli Then lead the way, good father, and heavens so shine
 That they may fairly note this act of mine!
[Exeunt]

ACT V

SCENE I—The Street before OLIVIA's House
Enter Clown and FABIAN

Fab Now, as thou lovest me, let me see his letter
Clo Good Master Fabian, grant me another request. 4
Fab Anything
Clo Do not desire to see this letter Fab This is, to give a dog, and, in recompense desire my dog again 8
Enter DUKE, VIOLA, CURIO, and Attendants.
Duke Belong you to the Lady Olivia, friends?
Clo Av, sir, we are some of her trappings Duke I know thee well how dost thou, my good fellow? 12
Clo Truly, sir, the better for my foes and the worse for my friends Duke Just the contrary, the better for thy friends 16
Clo No, sir, the worse
Duke How can that be?
Clo Marry, sir, they praise me and make an ass of me, now my foes tell me plainly I am an ass so that by my foes, sir, I profit in the knowledge of myself, and by my friends I am abused so that, conclusions to be as kisses, if your four negatives make four two affirmatives, why then, the worse for my friends and the better for my

 foes 26

Duke Why, this is excellent Clo By my troth, sir, no, though it please you to be one of my friends Duke Thou shalt not be the worse for me there's gold
Clo But that it would be double-dealing, sir,
 I would you could make it another 33
Duke O, you give me ill counsel Clo Put your grace in your pocket, sir, for this once, and let your flesh and blood obey it 36 Duke Well, I will be so much a sinner to be a double-dealer there's another Clo Primo, secundo, tertio, is a good play, and the old saying is, 'the third pays for all' the triplex, sir, is a good tripping measure, or the bells of Saint Bennet, sir, may put you in mind, one, two, three 43 Duke You can fool no more money out of me at this throw if you will let your lady know I am here to speak with her, and bring her along with you, it may awake my bounty further 47 Clo Marry, sir, lullaby to your bounty till I come again I go, sir, but I would not have you to think that my desire of having is the sin of covetousness, but as you say, sir, let your bounty take a nap I will awake it anon [Exit] Vio Here comes the man, sir, that did rescue
 me

Enter ANTONIO and Officers

Duke That face of his I do remember well, Yet when I saw it last, it was besmear'd 56
 As black as Vulcan in the smoke of war
 A bawbling vessel was he captain of,
 For shallow draught and hulk unprizable,
 With which such scathful grapple did he make
 With the most noble bottom of our fleet, 61
 That very envy and the tongue of loss Cried fame and honour on him What's the matter?
First Off Orsino, this is that Antonio 64
 That took the Phoenix and her freight from Candy,
 And thus is he that did the Tiger board,
 When your young nephew Titus lost his leg Here in the streets, desperate of shame and state, 68
 In private brabble did we apprehend him.
Vio He did me kindness, sir, drew on my side,
 But in conclusion put strange speech upon me
 I know not what 'twas but distraction 72
Duke Notable pirate! thou salt-water thief!
 What foolish boldness brought thee to their mercies
 Whom thou, in terms so bloody and so dear, Hast made thine enemies?
Ant Orsino, noble sir, 76
 Be pleas'd that I shake off these names you give
 me
 Antonio never yet was thief or pirate,
 Though I confess, on base and ground enough, Orsino's enemy A witchcraft drew me hither

That most ingrateful boy there by your side, 81
 From the rude sea s'enrag'd and foamy mouth Did I redeem, a wrack past hope he was His life I gave him, and did thereto add 84
 My love, without retention or restraint,
 All his in dedication, for his sake
 Did I expose myself, pure for his love,
 Into the danger of this adverse town,
 Drew to defend him when he was beset
 Where being apprehended, his false cunning,
 Not meaning to partake with me in danger Taught him to face me out of his acquaintance, 92

And grew a twenty years removed thing While one would wink, denied me mine own purse,
 Which I had recommended to his use
 Not half an hour be ore

Vio How can this be 96

Duke When came he to this town?

Ant To-day, my lord, and for three months before,—

No interim, not a minute's vacancy,—
 Both day and night did we keep company 100

Enter OLIVIA and Attendants

Duke Here comes the countess now heaven walks on earth!

But for thee, fellow, fellow, thy words are madness

Three months this youth hath tended upon me,
 But more of that anon Take him aside 104

Oh What would my lord, but that he may not have,

Wherein Olivia may seem serviceable?
Cesario you do not keep promise with me 108

Vio Madam!

Duke Gracious Olivia—

Oh What do you say, Cesario? Good my
 lord,—

Vio My lord would speak, my duty hushes
 me

Oh If it be aught to the old tune, my lord,
 It is as fat and folsome to mine ear 113

As howling after music

Duke Still so cruel?

Oh Still so constant, lord

Duke What, to perverseness? you uncivil
 lady, 116

To whose ingrate and unpropitious altars
 My soul the faithfulst offerings hath breath'd out

That e'er devotion tender'd! What shall I do?
Oh Even what it please my lord, that shall become him 120

Duke Why should I not, had I the heart to
 do it,

Like to the Egyptian thief at point of death,
 Kill what I love? a savage jealousy

That sometimes savours nobly But hear me
 this 124

Since you to non-regardance cast my faith,
 And that I partly know the instrument That screws me from my true place in your favour,

Live you, the marble-breasted tyrant still, 128
 But this your minion, whom I know you love,
 And whom, by heaven I swear, I tender dearly,
 Him will I tear out of that cruel eye,
 Where he sits crowned in his master's spite 132 Come, boy, with me, my thoughts are ripe in mischief,

I'll sacrifice the lamb that I do love,
 To spite a raven's heart within a dove [Going Vio And I, most jocund, apt, and willingly,
 To do you rest, a thousand deaths would die 137

[Following]

Oh Where goes Cesario?

Vio After him I love
 More than I love these eyes, more than my life,
 More, by all mores, than e'er I shall love wife
 If I do feign, you witnesses above 141

Punish my life for tainting of my love!
Oh Ah me, detested! how am I beguil'd!

Vio Who does beguile you? who does do you wrong? 144

Oh Hast thou forgot thyself? Is it so long?

Call forth the holy father [Exit an Attendant
Duke [To VIOLA] Come away

Oh Whither, my lord? Cesario, husband, stay

Duke Husband?

Oh Ay, husband can I e that deny? 148

Duke Her husband, sirrah?

Vio No, my lord, not I

Oh Alas! it is the baseness of thy fear

That makes thee strangle thy propriety
 Fear not, Cesario, take thy fortunes up 152

Be that thou know'st thou art, and then thou art

As great as that thou fear'st.

Enter Priest

O, welcome, father!

Father, I charge thee, by thy reverence,
 Here to unfold,—though lately we intended 156

To keep in darkness what occasion now Reveals before 'tis ripe,—what thou dost know Hath newly pass'd between this youth and
 me

Priest A contract of eternal bond of love, 160
 Confirm'd by mutual joinder of your hands, Attested by the holy close of lips,
 Strengthen'd by interchangement of your rings,
 And all the ceremony of this compact 164

Seal'd in my function, by my testimony Since when, my watch hath told me, toward my grave

I have travell'd but two hours Duke O, thou-dissembling cub! what wilt thou be 168

When time hath sow'd a grizzle on thy case?
 Or will not else thy craft so quickly grow
 That thine own trip shall be thine overthrow?

Farewell, and take her, but direct thy feet 172
 Where thou and I henceforth may never meet.

Vio My lord, I do protest,—

Oh O! do not swear

Hold little faith, though thou hast too much fear

Enter SIR ANDREW AGUECHEEK, with his head broken

Sir And For t' love of God, a surgeon! send o'is presently to Sir Toby 177 Ou What's the matter?

Sir And He has broke my head across, and has given Sir Toby a bloody coxcomb too For the love of God, your help! I had rather than forty pound I were at home 182

Oh Who has done this, Sir Andrew?

Sir And The count's gentleman, one Cesario we took him for a coward, but he's the very devil incarnate 186

Duke My gentleman, Cesario?

Sir And O d's lights! here he is You broke my head for no hang! and that that I did, I was set on to do't by Sir Toby

Vio Why do you speak to me? I never hurt you

You drew your sword upon me without cause, But I bespake you fair, and hurt you not 193

Sir And If a bloody coxcomb be a hurt you have hurt me I think you set nothing by a bloody coxcomb Here comes Sir Toby halting, 197

Enter SIR TOBY BEICHI, drunk, led by the Clown you shall hear more but if he had not been in drink he would have tickled your other garter than he did 200

Duke How now, gentlemen! how is't with you?

Sir To That's all one he has hurt me, and there's the end on't Sot, didst see Dick surgeon, sot? 205

Clow O! he's drunk, Sir Toby an hour ago his eyes were set at eight the morning

Sir To Then he's a rogue, and a passy measures pavin I hate a drunker rogue 209

Oh Away with him! Who hath made this havoc with them?

Sir And I'll help you, Sir Toby, because we'll be dressed together 213

Sir To Will you help an ass-head and a coxcomb and a knave, a thin faced knave, a gull! 216

Oh Get him to bed and let his hurt be look'd to [Exeunt CLOWN, FABIAN, SIR TOBY, and SIR ANDREW]

Enter SEBASTIAN

Seb I am sorry, madam, I have hurt your kinsman,

But, had it been the brother of my blood, 220 I must have done no less with wit and safety

You throw a strange regard upon me, and by that I do perceive it hath offended you Pardon me sweet one, even for the vows 224

We made each other but so late ago

Duke One face, one voice, one habit, and two persons,

A natural perspective that is, and is not!

Seb Antonio! O my dear Antonio! 228

How have the hours rack'd and tortur'd me Since I have lost thee!

Ant Sebastian are you?

Seb Fear'st thou that, Antonio?

Ant How have you made division of yourself? 232

An apple clef in two is not more twin Than these two creatures Which is Sebastian?

O! Most wonderful

Seb Do I stand there? I never had a brother, 236

Nor can there be that deity in my nature, Of here and every where I had a sister

Whom the blind waves and surges have devoured

Of chance, what kin are you to me? 240

What countryman? what name? what parentage?

Vio Of Messaline Sebastian was my father Such a Sebastian was my brother too,

So well he suited to his wavery tomb 244

If spirits can assume both form and suit You come to fright us

Seb A spirit I am indeed, But am in that dimension grossly clad

Which from the womb I did participate 248

Were you a woman, as the rest goes even, I should my tears let fall upon your cheek,

And say, 'Thrice welcome, drowned Viola!' 252

Vio My father had a mole upon his brow

Seb And so had mine 253

Vio And died that day when Viola from his birth

Had number'd thirteen years

Seb O! that record is lively in my soul 256

He finished indeed his mortal act That day that made my sister thirteen years

Vio If nothing lets to make us happy both But this my masculine usurp'd attire, 260

Do not embrace me till each circumstance Of place, time, fortune do cohere and jump

That I am Viola which to confirm, I'll bring you to a captain in this town, 264

Where lie my maiden weeds by whose gentle help

I was preserv'd to serve this noble count All the occurrence of my fortune since

Hath been between this lady and this lord 268

Seb [To OLIVIA] So comes it, lady, you have been mistook!

But nature to her bias drew in that. You would have been contracted to a maid

Nor are you therein, by my life, deceiv'd, 272

You are betroth'd both to a maid and man

Duke Benot amaz'd right noble is his blood. If this be so as yet the glass seems true,

I shall have share in this most happy wrack [To VIOLA] Boy, thou hast said to me a thousand times 277

Thou never shouldst love woman like to me.

Vio And all those sayings will I over-swear, And all those swearings keep as true in soul 280

As doth that orb'd continent the fire That severs day from night

Duke Give me thy hand, And let me see thee in thy woman's weeds

Vio The captain that did bring me first on shore 284

Hath my maid's garments he upon some action

Is now in durance at Malvolio's suit,
A gentleman and follower of my lady's

Oh He shall enlarge him. Fetch Malvolio
hither 288

And yet, alas, now I remember me,
They say, poor gentleman, he's much distract.
A most extracting frenzy of mine own
From my remembrance clearly banish'd his 292

Re-enter Clown with a letter, and FABIAN

How does he, sirrah?

Clo Truly, madam, he holds Belzebub at the stave's end as well as a man in his case may do He has here writ a letter to you I should have given it to you to-day morning, but as a madman's epistles are no gospels, so it skills not much when they are delivered.

Oh Open it, and read it 300

Clo Look then to be well edified, when the fool delivers the madman.

By the Lord, madam,—

Oh How now! art thou mad? 304

Clo No, madam, I do but read madness an your ladyship will have it as it ought to be, you must allow vox

Oh Prithce, read i' thy right wits 308

Clo So I do, madonna, but to read his right wits is to read thus therefore perpend, my princess, and give ear

Oh [To FABIAN] Read it you, sirrah 312

Fab By the Lord, madam, you wrong me, and the world shall know it though you have put me into darkness, and given your drunken cousin rule over me, yet have I the benefit of my senses as well as your ladyship I have your own letter that induced me to the semblance I put on with the which I doubt not but to do myself much right, or you much shame Think of me as you please I leave my duty a little unthought of, and speak out of my injury

THE MADLY USED MALVOLIO

Oh Did he write this? 324

Clo Ay, madam

Duke This savours not much of distraction

Oh See him deliver'd, Fabian, bring him hither [Exit FABIAN]

My lord, so please you, these things further thought on, 328

To think me as well a sister as a wife,
One day shall crown the alliance on't, so please
you,

Here at my house and at my proper cost

Duke Madam, I am most apt to embrace your offer 332

[To VIOLA] Your master quits you, and, for your service done him,

So much against the mettle of your sex,
So far beneath your soft and tender breeding,

And since you call'd me master for so long, 336
Here is my hand you shall from this time be Your master's mistress

Oh A sister! you are she

Re enter FABIAN, with MALVOLIO

Duke Is this the madman?

Oh Ay, my lord, this same

How now, Malvolio!

Mal Madam, you have done me wrong,

Notorious wrong

Oh Have I, Malvolio? no 341

Mal Lady, you have Pray you peruse that letter

You must not now deny it is your hand
Write from it, if you can, in hand or phrase,
Or say 'tis not your seal nor your invention 345
You can say none of this Well, grant it then,
And tell me, in the modesty of honour, Why you have given me such clear lights of favour, 348

Bademe comes smiling and cross-garter'd to you,
To put on yellow stockings, and to frown

Upon Sir Toby and the lighter people,
And, acting this in an obedient hope, 352

Why have you suffer'd me to be imprison'd, Kept in a dark house, visited by the priest,

And made the most notorious geck and gull
That e'er invention play'd on? tell me why 356

Oh Alas! Malvolio, this is not my writing, Though, I confess, much like the character,

But, out of question, 'tis Maria's hand
And now I do bethink me, it was she 360

First told me thou wast mad, then cam'st in smiling,

And in such forms which here were presuppos'd
Upon thee in the letter Prithce, be content

This practice hath most shrewdly pass'd upon
thee, 364

But when we know the grounds and authors of
it,

Thou shalt be both the plaintiff and the judge
Of thine own cause

Fab

Good madam, hear me speak,
And let no quarrel nor no brawl to come 368

Taint the condition of this present hour,
Which I have wonder'd at In hope it shall not,

Most freely I confess, myself and Toby Set this device against Malvolio here, 372

Upon some stubborn and uncourteous parts
We had conceiv'd against him Maria writ

The letter at Sir Toby's great importance,
In recompense whereof he hath married her

How with a sportful malice it was follow'd, 377
May rather pluck on laughter than revenge,

If that the injuries be justly weigh'd
That have on both sides past 380

Oh Alas, poor fool, how have they baffled
thee!

Clo Why, 'some are born great, some achieve greatness, and some have greatness thrown upon them.' I was one, sir, in this interlude, one Sir Topas, sir, but that's all one By the Lord, fool, I am not mad But do you remember?

'Madam, why laugh you at such a barren rascal?

an you smile not, he's gagged' and thus the whirligig of time brings in his revenges 389

Mal I'll be reveng'd on the whole pack of you [Exit]

Oh He hath been most notoriously abus'd

Duke Pursue him, and entreat him to a peace,— 392
 He hath not told us of the captain yet
 When that is known and golden time convents,
 A solemn combination shall be made
 Of our dear souls Meantime, sweet sister, 396
 We will not part from hence Cesario, come,
 For so you shall be, while you are a man,
 But when in other habits you are seen,
 Orsino's mistress, and his fancy's queen 400 [Exeunt all except Clown]

SONG

Clo When that I was and a little tiny boy
 With hey ho the wind and the rain
 A foolish thing was but a toy
 For the rain it raineth every day 404

But when I came to man's estate,
 With hey ho the wind and the rain,
 Ganst knaves and thieves men shut their gates,
 For the rain it raineth every day 408
 But when I came alas! to wive,
 With hey ho the wind and the rain
 By swaggering could I never thrive,
 For the rain it raineth every day 412
 But when I came unto my beds
 With hey ho the wind and the rain
 With toss pots still had drunken heads
 For the rain it raineth every day 416

A great while ago the world begun
 With hey ho, the wind and the rain
 But that's all one our play is done
 And we'll strive to please you every day 420

ACT I

SCENE I — Sicilia. An Antechamber in LEONTES' Palace

Enter CAMILLO and ARCHIDAMUS

Arch If you shall chance, Camillo, to visit Bohemia, on the like occasion whereon my services are now on foot, you shall see, as I have said, great difference betwixt our Bohemia and your Sicilia.

Cam I think, this coming summer, the King of Sicilia means to pay Bohemia the visitation which he justly owes him.

Arch Wherein our entertainment shall shame us we will be justified in our loves for, indeed,—

Cam Beseech you,—

Arch Verily, I speak it in the freedom of my knowledge we cannot with such magnificence—in so rare—I know not what to say. We will give you sleepy drinks, that your senses, unintelligent of our insufficiency, may, though they cannot praise us, as little accuse us.

Cam You pay a great deal too dear for what's given freely.

Arch Believe me. I speak as my understanding instructs me, and as mine honesty puts it to utterance.

Cam Sicilia cannot show himself over-kind to Bohemia. They were trained together in their childhoods, and there rooted betwixt them then such an affection which cannot choose but branch now. Since their more mature dignities and royal necessities made separation of their society, their encounters, though not personal, have been royally attorneyed with interchange of gifts, letters, loving embassies that they have seemed to be together, though absent, shook hands, as over a vast, and embraced, as it were, from the ends of opposed winds. The heavens continue their loves!

Arch I think there is not in the world either malice or matter to alter it. You have an unspeakable comfort of your young Prince Mamilus: it is a gentleman of the greatest promise that ever came into my note.

Cam I very well agree with you in the hopes of him. It is a gallant child, one that indeed physics the subject, makes old hearts fresh, they that went on crutches ere he was born desire yet their life to see him a man.

Arch Would they else be content to die?

Cam Yes if there were no other excuse why they should desire to live.

Arch If the king had no son, they would desire to live on crutches till he had one.

[Exeunt]

SCENE II — The Same. A Room of State in the Palace

Enter LEONTES, POLIXENES, HERMIONE, MAMILLIUS, CAMILLO, and Attendants

Pol Nine changes of the watery star have been

The shepherd's note since we have left our throne

Without a burden, time as long again

Would be fill'd up, my brother, with our thanks, And yet we should for perpetuity

Go hence in debt and therefore, like a cipher, Yet standing in rich place I multiply

With one. We thank you many thousands more That go before it.

Leon Stay your thanks awhile,

And pay them when you part.

Pol Sir, that's to-morrow. I am question'd by my fears, of what may chance

Or breed upon our absence, that may blow us. No sneaping winds at home, to make us say,

'This is put forth too truly!' Besides, I have stay'd

To tire your royalty.

Leon We are tougher, brother, Than you can put us to't.

Pol No longer stay.

Leon One seven-night longer
Pol Very sooth, to-morrow Leon We'll part the time between s then, and in that I'll no gainsaying
Pol Press me not, beseech you, so There is no tongue that moves, none, none 1 the world, 20
 So soon as yours could win me so it should now, Were there necessity in your request although
 'Twere needful I demed it My affairs
 Do even drag me homeward, which to hinder 24
 Were in your love a whip to me, my stay
 To you a charge and trouble to save both,
 Farewell, our brother
Leon Tongue-tied, our queen? speak you Her I had thought, sir, to have held my peace until 28
 You had drawn oaths from him not to stay
 You, sir,
 Charge him too coldly tell him, you are sure
 All in Bohemia s well this satisfaction
 The by-gone day proclaim'd say this to him, 32
 He s beat from his best ward
Leon Well said Hermione Her To tell he longs to see his son were strong
 But let him say so then, and let him go,
 But let him swear so, and he shall not stay, 36
 We'll thwack him hence with distaffs [To POLIXENES] Yet of your royal presence I'll adventure
 The borrow of a week When at Bohemia
 You take my lord, I'll give him my commission
 To let him there a month behind the gest 41
 Prefix'd for s parting yet, good deed, Leontes,
 I love thee not a jar o' the clock behind
 What lady she her lord You'll stay?
Pol No, madam 44
Her Nay, but you will?
Pol I may not, verily
Her Verily!
 You put me off with lumber vows but I Though you would seek to unsphere the stars with oaths, 48
 Should yet say, 'Sir no going' Verily
 You shall not go a lady s 'verily's'
 As potent as a lord's Will you go yet?
 Force 'ne to keep you as a prisoner, 52
 Not like a guest, so you shall pay your fees When you depart, and save your thanks. How say you?
 My prisoner, or my guest? by your dread 'verily,'
 One of them you shall be Pol Your guest, then, madam 56
 To be your prisoner should import offending,
 Which is for me less easy to commit Than you to punish Her Not your gaoler then,
 But your kind hostess Come, I'll question you Of my lord's tricks and yours when you were boys 61
 You were pretty lordings then.
Pol We were, fair queen,
 Two lads that thought there was no more behind

But such a day to-morrow as to-day, 64
 And to be boy eternal.
Her Was not my lord the verner wag o' the two?
Pol We were as twinn'd lambs that did frisk
 i' the sun
 And bleat the one at the other what we chang'd 68
 Was innocence for innocence, we knew not
 The doctrine of ill doing, no nor dream'd
 That any did Had we pursu'd that life,
 And our weak spirits ne'er been higher rear'd 72
 With stronger blood, we should have answer'd
 heaven
 Boldly, 'not guilty,' the imposition clear'd Hereditary ours
Her By this we gather
 You have tripp'd since
Pol O! my most sacred lady, 76 Temptations have since then been born to's for
 In those unfledg'd days was my wife a girl,
 Your precious self had then not cross'd the eyes
 Of my young play fellow
Her Grace to boot! 80
 Of this make no conclusion, lest you say Your queen and I are devils, yet, go on The offences we have made you do we'll answer,
 If you first sunn'd with us and that with us 84
 You did continue fault, and that you slipp'd not With any but with us
Leon Is he won yet?
Her He'll stay my lord
Leon At my request he would not Hermione, my dearest, thou never spok'st 88
 To better purpose
Her Never?
Leon Never but once Her What! have I twice said well? when was't before?
 I pr thee tell me, cram's with praise, and make's As fat as tame things one good deed, dying tongueless 92
 Slaughters a thousand waiting upon that.
 Our praises are our wages you may ride's
 With one soft kiss a thousand furlongs ere With spur we heat an acre But to the goal 96
 My last good deed was to entreat his stay
 What was my first? it has an elder sister, Or I mistake you O! would her name were Grace
 But once before I spoke to the purpose when?
 Nay, let me have t, I long Leon Why, that was when Three crabbed months had sour'd themselves to death,
 Ere I could make thee open thy white hand And clap thyself my love then didst thou utter, 104
 'I am yours for ever'
Her 'Tis grace indeed.
 Why, lo you now, I have spoke to the purpose twice
 The one for ever earn'd a royal husband,
 The other for some while a friend 108
 [G ving her hand to POLIXENES.]
Leon. [Aside] Too hot, too hot!

To mingle friendship far is mingling bloods
 I have tremor cordis on me my heart dances,
 But not for joy, not joy This entertainment 112
 May a free face put on, derive a liberty
 From heartiness, from bounty, fertile bosom,
 And well become the agent t may I grant
 But to be paddling palms and pinching fingers,
 As now they are, and making practis'd smiles, 117
 As in a looking-glass, and then to sigh, as 'twere
 The mort o' the deer, O! that is entertainment
 My bosom likes not, nor my brows Mamilius, Art thou my boy?

Mam Ay, my good lord

Leon I fecks? 121
 Why, that s my bawcock. What' hast smutch d thy nose?

They say it is a copy out of mine. Come, captain,
 We must be neat, not neat, but cleanly, captain
 And yet the steer, the heifer, and the calf, 125
 Are all call'd neat Still virginalling Upon his palm! How now, you wanton calf!
 Art thou my calf?

Mam Yes, if you will, my lord 128

Leon Thou want'st a rough pash and the shoes that I have,

To be full like me yet they say we are Almost as like as eggs, women say so,
 That will say anything but were they false 132
 As o'er-dy'd blacks, as wind, as waters, false
 As dice are to be wish'd by one that fixes
 No bourn 'twixt his and mine, yet were it true
 To say this boy were like me Come, sir page, Look on me with your welkin eye sweet villain!
 Most dear'st! my collop! Canst thou dam?—may't
 be?

Affection! thy intention stabs the centre
 Thou dost make possible things not so held, 140 Communicat'st with dreams,—how can this
 be?

With what's unreal thou co-active art,
 And fellow'st nothing then, 'tis very credent Thou mayst co-join with something, and thou dost, 144

And that beyond commission, and I find it,
 And that to the infection of my brains
 And hardening of my brows

Pol What means Sicilia?

Her He something seems unsettled

Pol How, my lord? 148

What cheer? how is't with you, best brother?

Her You look

As if you held a brow of much distraction
 Are you mov'd, my lord?

Leon No, in good earnest
 How sometimes nature will betray its folly, 152
 Its tenderness, and make itself a pastime
 To harder bosoms! Looking on the lines
 Of my boy's face, methoughts I did recoil Twenty-three years, and saw myself unbreech'd,
 In my green velvet coat, my dagger muzzled, Lest it should bite its master, and so prove,
 As ornaments oft do, too dangerous
 How like, methought, I then was to this kernel, This squash, this gentleman. Mine honest friend, 161
 Will you take eggs for money?

Mam No my lord, I'll fight
Leon You will? why, happy man be his dole!
 My brother,

Are you so fond of your young prince as we 164
 Do seem to be of ours?

Pol If at home, sir,
 He's all my exercise, my mirth, my matter,
 Now my sworn friend and then mine enemy, 168
 My parasite, my soldier, statesman, all
 He makes a July's day short as December,
 And with his varying childness cures in me
 Thoughts that would thicken my blood

Leon So stands this squire Offic'd with me We two will walk, my lord, 172
 And leave you to your graver steps Hermione, How thou lov'st us, show in our brother's welcome

Let what is dear in Sicily be cheap
 Next to thyself and my young rover, he's 176 Apparent to my heart

Her If you would seek us,
 We are yours i' the garden shall attend you
 there?

Leon To your own bents dispose you you'll be found,

Be you beneath the sky —[Aside] I am angling
 now, 180

Though you perceive me not how I give line Go to, go to!
 How she holds up the neb, the bill to him!
 And arms her with the boldness of a wife 184
 To her allowing husband!

[Exeunt POLIXENES, HERMIONE and Attendants

Gone already!

Inch-thick, knee-deep, o'er head and ears a fork'd one!

Go play, boy, play, thy mother plays, and I Play too, but so disgrac'd a part, whose issue Will hiss me to my grave contempt and clamour 189

Will be my knell Go play, boy, play There have been,

Or I am much deceiv'd, cuckolds ere now,
 And many a man there is even at this present, Now, while I speak thus, holds his wife by the arm, 193

That little thinks she has been sluc'd in's absence,

And his pond fish'd by his next neighbour, by Sir Smile, his neighbour nay, there's comfort in't, 196

Whiles other men have gates, and those gates open'd,

As mine, against their will Should all despair
 That have revolted wives the tenth of mankind

Would hang themselves. Physic for't there is none, 200

It is a bawdy planet, that will strike
 Where 'tis predominant, and 'tis powerful, think it,

From east, west, north, and south be it concluded,

No barricado for a belly-know't, 204
 It will let in and out the enemy

With bag and baggage Many a thousand on's
Have the disease, and feel't not How now, boy!

Mam I am like you, they say

Leon Why, that's some comfort 208
What! Camillo there?

Cam Ay, my good lord.

Leon Go play, Mamillius, thou'rt an honest man [Exit MAMILLIUS]

Camillo, this great sir will yet stay longer 212

Cam You had much ado to make his anchor

hold
When you cast out, it still came home

Leon Didst note it?

Cam He would not stay at your petitions, made His business more maternal

Leon Didst perceive it? 216

[Aside] They're here with me already, whispering, rounding

' Sicilia is a so-forth.' 'Tis far gone,

When I shall gust it last How came't, Camillo,

That he did stay?

Cam At the good queen's entreaty 220

Leon At the queen's, be't 'good' should be pertinent,

But so it is, it is not Was this taken

By any understanding pate but thine?

For thy conceit is soaking, will draw in 224

More than the common blocks not noted, is't,

But of the finer natures' by some severals

Of head-piece extraordinary' lower messes

Perchance are to this business purblind? say

Cam Business, my lord! I think most understand 229

Bohemia stays here longer

Leon Ha!

Cam Stays here longer

Leon Ay, but why?

Cam To satisfy your hughness and the entreates 232

Of our most gracious mistress

Leon Satisfy!

The entreaties of your mistress! satisfy!

Let that suffice I have trusted thee, Camillo,

With all the nearest things to my heart, as

well
My chamber-councils, wherein, priest-like, thou

Hast cleans'd my bosom I from thee departed

Thy penitent reform'd, but we have been

Deceiv'd in thy integrity, deceiv'd 240

In that which seems so

Cam Be it forbid, my lord!

Leon To bide upon't, thou art not honest, or,

If thou inclinst that way, thou art a coward,

Which hoxes honesty behind, restraining 244

From course requir'd, or else thou must be counted

A servant grafted in my serious trust,

And therein negligent' or else a fool

That seest a game play'd home, the rich stake

drawn, 248

And tak'st it all for jest.

Cam My gracious lord,

I may be negligent, foolish, and fearful,

In every one of these no man is free,

But that his negligence, his folly, fear, 250

Among the infinite doings of the world,
Sometime puts forth. In your affairs, my lord,
If ever I were wilful-negligent,

It was my folly, if industriously 256

I play'd the fool, it was my negligence,

Not weighing well the end, if ever fearful

To do a thing, where I the issue doubted,

Whereof the execution did cry out 260

Against the non-performance, 'twas a fear

Which oft infects the wisest these, my lord,

Are such allow'd infirmities that honesty

Is never free of but, beseech your Grace, 264

Be plainer with me, let me know my trespass

By its own visage, if I then deny it,

'Tis none of mine

Leon Ha! not you seen, Camillo,—

But that's past doubt, you have, or your eyeglass 268

Is thicker than a cuckold's horn,—or heard,—

For to a vision so apparent rumour

Cannot be mute,—or thought,—for cogitation

Resides not in that man that does not think,—

My wife is slippery? If thou wilt confess,— 273

Or else be impudently negative,

To have nor eyes, nor ears, nor thought,—then

say

My wife's a hobby-horse, deserves a name 276

As rank as any flax-wench that puts to Before her troth-plight say't and justify't.

Cam I would not be a stander-by, to hear

My sovereign mistress clouded so, without 280

My present vengeance taken 'shrew my heart,

You never spoke what did become you less

Than this, which to reiterate were sin

As deep as that, though true

Leon Is whispering nothing? 284

Is leaning cheek to cheek? is meeting noses?

Kissing with inside lip? stopping the career

Of laughter with a sigh?—a note infallible

Of breaking honesty,—horsing foot on foot? 288

Skulking in corners? wishing clocks more swift?

Hours, minutes? noon, midnight? and all eyes

Blind with the pin and web but theirs, theirs only,

That would unseen be wicked? is this nothing?

Why, then the world and all that's in't is nothing, 293

The covering sky is nothing, Bohemia nothing,

My wife is nothing, nor nothing have these nothings,

If this be nothing

Cam Good my lord, be cur'd 296

Of this disease'd opinion, and betimes,

For 'tis most dangerous.

Leon Say it be, 'tis true.

Cam No, no, my lord.

Leon It is, you he, you lie

I say thou heest, Camillo, and I hate thee, 300

Pronounce thee a gross lout, a mindless slave,

Or else a hovering temporizer, that Canst with thine eyes at once see good and evil,

Inclining to them both were my wife's liver 304

Infected as her life, she would not live

The running of one glass

Cam Who does infect her?

Leon Why, he that wears her like her medal, hanging
 About his neck, Bohemia who, if I 308
 Had servants true about me, that bare eyes
 To see alike mine honour as their profits,
 Their own particular thrifts, they would do that Which should undo more doing ay, and thou,
 His cup-bearer,—whom I from meaner form 313
 Have bench'd and rear'd to worship, who mayst
 see Plainly, as heaven sees earth, and earth sees
 heaven,
 How I am galled,—mightst bespice a cup, 316
 To give mine enemy a lasting wink,
 Which draught to me were cordial

Cam Sir, my lord,
 I could do this, and that with no rash potion,
 But with a lingering dram that should not work Maliciously like poison but I cannot 321
 Believe this crack to be in my dread mistress, So sovereignly being honourable
 I have lov'd thee,—

Leon Make that thy question, and go rot!
 Dost think I am so muddy, so unsettled, 325
 To appoint myself in this vexation, sully
 The purity and whiteness of my sheets,
 Which to preserve is sleep, which being spotted Is goads, thorns, nettles, tails of wasps? 329
 Give scandal to the blood o' the prince my son,
 Who I do think is mine, and love as mine, Without ripe moving to't? Would I do this?
 Could man so blench?

Cam I must believe you, sir 333
 I do, and will fetch off Bohemia for't, Provided that when he's remov'd, your highness 335
 Will take again your queen as yours at first,
 Even for your son's sake, and thereby for sealing
 The injury of tongues in courts and kingdoms Known and allied to yours

Leon Thou dost advise me
 Even so as I mine own course have set down I'll give no blemish to her honour, none 341

Cam. My lord,
 Go then, and with a countenance as clear
 As friendship wears at feasts keep with Bohemia,
 And with your queen I am his cupbearer, 345
 If from me he have wholesome beverage,
 Account me not your servant.

Leon This is all
 Do't, and thou hast the one half of my heart, Do't not, thou split'st thine own

Cam. I'll do't, my lord 349 Leon. I will seem friendly, as thou hast advis'd me [Exit

Cam O miserable lady! But, for me,
 What case stand I in? I must be the poisoner
 Of good Polixenes, and my ground to do't 353
 Is the obedience to a master, one Who in rebellion with himself will have All that are his so too. To do this deed 356
 Promotion follows If I could find example
 Of thousands that had struck anointed kings,
 And flourish'd after, I'd not do't, but since Nor brass nor stone nor parchment bears not one, 360

Let villany itself forswear't I must Forsake the court to do't, or no, is certain To me a break-neck Happy star reign now!
 Here comes Bohemia

Re-enter POLIXENES

Pol This is strange methinks 364
 My favour here begins to warp Not speak?—
 Good day, Camillo

Cam Hail, most royal sir!

Pol What is the news i' the court?

Cam None rare, my lord

Pol The king hath on him such a countenance 368

As he had lost some province and a region
 Lov'd as he loves himself even now I met him With customary compliment, when he,
 Waving his eyes to the contrary, and falling 372 A lip of much contempt, speeds from me and So leaves me to consider what is breeding That changes thus his manners

Cam I dare not know, my lord 376

Pol How! dare not! do not! Do you know, and dare not

Be intelligent to me? 'Tis thereabouts,
 For, to yourself, what you do know, you must,
 And cannot say you dare not Good Camillo,
 Your chang'd complexions are to me a murmur Which shows me mine chang'd too, for I must
 be

A party in this alteration, finding Myself thus alter'd with't

Cam There is a sickness 384 Which puts some of us in distemper, but I cannot name the disease, and it is caught
 Of you that yet are well

Pol How! caught of me?

Make me not sighted like the basilisk 388
 I have look'd on thousands, who have sped the better

By my regard, but kill'd none so Camillo,—
 As you are certainly a gentleman, thereto
 Clerk-like experienc'd, which no less adorns 392
 Our gentry than our parents' noble names,
 In whose success we are gentle,—I beseech you, If you know aught which does behove my knowledge

Thereof to be inform'd, imprison it not 396
 In ignorant concealment

Cam. I may not answer

Pol A sickness caught of me, and yet I well!
 I must be answer'd Dost thou hear, Camillo,
 I conjure thee, by all the parts of man 400
 Which honour does acknowledge,—whereof the least

Is not this suit of mine,—that thou declare
 What incidency thou dost guess of harm
 Is creeping toward me, how far off, how near,
 Which way to be prevented if to be, 405
 If not, how best to bear it.

Cam Sir, I will tell you,
 Since I am charg'd in honour and by him That I think honourable Therefore mark my counsel, 408
 Which must be even as swiftly follow'd as

I mean to utter it, or both yourself and me Cry 'lost,' and so good night!

Pol On, good Camillo

Cam I am appointed him to murder you. 42

Pol By whom, Camillo?

Cam By the king

Pol For what?

Cam He thinks, nay, with all confidence he swears,

As he had seen 't or been an instrument
To vice you to 't, that you have touch'd his queen Forbiddenly

Pol O, then my best blood turn 417
To an infected jelly, and my name
Be yok'd with his that d'd betray the Best!
Turn then my freshest reputation to 420
A savour that may strike the coldest nostril
Where I arrive, and my approach be shunn'd, Nay, hated too, worse than the great'st infection

That ever was heard or read!

Cam Swear his thought over
By each particular star in heaven and 425
By all their influences you may as well
Forbid the sea for to obey the moon
As or by oath remove or counsel shake 428
The fabric of his folly, whose foundation
Is pl'd upon his faith and will continue
The standing of his body

Pol How should this grow?
Cam I know not but I am sure 'tis safer to Avoid what's grown than question how 'tis
born 433

If therefore you dare trust my honesty,
That lies enclosed in this trunk, which you Shall bear along unpawn'd, away to-night! 436
Your followers I will whisper to the business,
And will by twos and threes at several posterns Clear them o' the city For myself, I'll put My fortunes to your service, which are here 440
By this discovery lost. Be not uncertain,
For, by the honour of my parents, I Have utter'd truth, which, if you seek to prove,
I dare not stand by nor shall you be safer 444
Than one condemn'd by the king's own mouth, thereon

His execution sworn.

Pol I do believe thee
I saw his heart in his face Give me thy hand
Be pilot to me and thy places shall 448 Still neighbour mine My ships are ready and My people did expect my hence departure
Two days ago This jealousy
Is for a precious creature as she's rare 452
Must it be great, and, as his person's mighty Must it be violent, and, as he does conceive
He is dishonour'd by a man which ever Profess'd to him why, his revenges must 456
In that be made more bitter Fear o'ershades
me

Good expedition be my friend, and comfort
The gracious queen, part of his theme, but nothing

Of his ill-taken suspicion! Come, Camillo, 460
I will respect thee as a father if Thou bear'st my life off hence let us avoid.

Cam It is in mine authority to command
The keys of all the posterns please your highness 464
To take the urgent hour Come, sir, away!
[Exeunt]

ACT II

SCENE I—Sicilia A Room in the Palace

Enter HERMIONE, VAMILLIUS, and Ladies

Her Take the boy to you he so troubles me,
'Tis past enduring

First Lady Come, my gracious lord, Shall I be your playfellow?

Mam No, I'll none of you.

First Lady Why, my sweet lord?

Mam You'll kiss me hard and speak to me as if

I were a baby still I love you better

Sec Lady And why so, my lord?

Mam Not for because Your brows are blacker, yet black brows, they say, 8

Become some women best, so that there be not Too much hair there, but in a semicircle,
Or a half-moon made with a pen.

Sec Lady Who taught you this?

Mam I learn'd it out of women's faces Pray now, 12

What colour are your eyebrows?

First Lady Blue, my lord

Mam Nay, that's a mock I have seen a lady's nose

That has been blue, but not her eyebrows

Sec Lady Hark ye,

The queen your mother rounds apace we shall

Present our services to a fine new prince 17

One of these days, and then you'd wanton with us,

If we would have you.

First Lady She is spread of late

Into a goodly bulk good time encounter her! 20

Her What wisdom stirs amongst you? Come sir, now

I am for you again pray you, sit by us,

And tell's a tale.

Mam Merry or sad shall't be?

Her As merry as you will.

Mam A sad tale's best for winter 24
I have one of sprites and goblins.

Her Let's have that, good sir

Come on, sit down come on, and do your best To fright me with your sprites, you're powerful at it

Mam There was a man—

Her Nay, come, sit down, then on 28

Mam Dwelt by a churchyard. I will tell it softly,

Yond crickets shall not hear it.

Her Come on then,

And give't me in mine ear

Enter LEONTES, ANTIGONUS, Lords, and Others

Leon Was he met there? his train? Camillo with him?

First Lord Behind the tuft of pines I met them never Saw I men scour so on their way I ey'd them Even to their ships

Leon How blest am I
In my just censure, in my true opinion! 36
Alack, for lesser knowledge! How accurs'd
In being so blest! There may be in the cup
A spider steep'd, and one may drink, depart,
And yet partake no venom, for his knowledge 40
Is not infected, but if one present
The abhorr'd ingredient to his eye, make known How he hath drunk, he cracks his gorge, his sides,

With violent hefts I have drunk, and seen the spider 44

Camillo was his help in this, his pandar
There is a plot against my life, my crown, All's true that is mistrusted that false villain Whom I employ'd was pre-employ'd by him 48
He has discover'd my design, and I Remain a pinch'd thing, yea, a very trick
For them to play at will How came the posterns
So easily open?

First Lord By his great authority, 52
Which often hath no less prevail'd than so On your command

Leon I know't too well.
[To HERMIONE] Give me the boy I am glad you did not nurse him 55
Though he does bear some signs of me, yet you Have too much blood in him

Her What is this? sport?
Leon Bear the boy hence, he shall not come about her,

Away with him!—[Exit MAMILLIUS, attended] and let her sport herself With that she's big with, for 'tis Polixenes 60 Has made thee swell thus

Her But I'd say he had not,
And I'll be sworn you would believe my saying,
Howe'er you lean to the nayward.

Leon You, my lords,
Look on her, mark her well, be but about 64
To say, 'she is a goodly lady,' and The justice of your hearts will thereto add
'Tis pity she's not honest, honourable Praise her but for this her without-door form,— Which, on my faith deserves high speech,—and
straight 69

The shrug, the hum or ha, these petty brands
That calumny doth use,—O, I am out!—
That mercy does, for calumny will sear 72
Virtue itself these shrugs, these hums and ha's, When you have said 'she's goodly,' come between,

Ere you can say 'she's honest' But be't known,
From him that has most cause to grieve it should be, 76
She's an adulteress

Her Should a villain say so,
The most replenish'd villain in the world,
He were as much more villain you, my lord,
Do but mistake

Leon You have mistook, my lady, 80
Polixenes for Leontes O thou thing!

Which I'll not call a creature of thy place,
Lest barbarism, making me the precedent,
Should a like language use to all degrees, 84
And mannerly distinguishment leave out Betwixt the prince and beggar I have said She's an adulteress, I have said with whom 88 More, she's a traitor, and Camillo is A federary with her, and one that knows What she should shame to know herself
But with her most vile principal, that she's A bed-swerver, even as bad as those 92
That vulgar give bold set titles, ay, and privy
To this their late escape

Her No, by my life,
Privy to none of this How will this grieve you When you shall come to clearer knowledge that You thus have publish'd me! Gentle my lord, 97
You scarce can right me thoroughly then to say You did mistake

Leon No, if I mistake
In those foundations which I build upon, 100
The centre is not big enough to bear
A schoolboy's top Away with her to prison!
He who shall speak for her is afar off guilty
But that he speaks

Her There's some ill planet reigns 104
I must be patient till the heavens look With an aspect more favourable Good my
lords,

I am not prone to weeping, as our sex
Commonly are, the want of which vain dew 108 Perchance shall dry your pities, but I have That honourable grief lodg'd here which burns Worse than tears drown Beseech you all, my
lords,

With thoughts so qualified as your charities 112 Shall best instruct you, measure me, and so
The king's will be perform'd!

Leon [To the Guards] Shall I be heard?
Her Who is't that goes with me? Beseech your highness,

My women may be with me, for you see 116
My plight requires it Do not weep good fools, There is no cause when you shall know your mistress

Has deserv'd prison, then abound in tears
As I come out this action I now go on 120
Is for my better grace Adieu, my lord
I never wish'd to see you sorry, now I trust I shall. My women, come, you have leave

Leon. Go, do our bidding hence! 124
[Exeunt Queen guarded, and Ladies.]

First Lord Beseech your highness call the queen again

Ant Be certain what you do, sir, lest your justice
Prove violence in the which three great ones suffer,

Yourself, your queen, your son
First Lord For her, my lord, 128
I dare my life lay down, and will do't, sir, Please you to accept it,—that the queen is spotless

I the eyes of heaven and to you I mean,
In this which you accuse her

Ant If it prove 132
 She s otherwise, I'll keep my stables where I lodge my wife, I'll go in couples with her,
 Than when I feel and see her no further trust
 her,
 For every inch of woman in the world, 136
 Ay, every dram of woman s flesh is false,
 If she be.

Leon Hold your peaces!

First Lord Good my lord,—

Ant It is for you we speak, not for ourselves
 You are abus'd, and by some putter-on 140 That will be damn'd for't, would I knew the villain,
 I would land-damn him. Be she honour-flaw'd,—

I have three daughters, the eldest is eleven,
 The second and the third, nine and some five, 144
 If this prove true, they'll pay for't by mine
 honour,

I'll geld them all, fourteen they shall not see,
 To bring false generations they are co-heirs,
 And I had rather glib myself than they 148
 Should not produce fair issue

Leon Cease! no more
 You smell this business with a sense as cold
 As a dead man's nose, but I do see't and feel't,
 As you feel doing thus, and see withal 152
 The instruments that feel.

Ant If it be so,
 We need no grave to bury honesty
 There's not a grain of it the face to sweeten
 Of the whole dungy earth.

Leon What! lack I credit? 156
First Lord I had rather you did lack than I,
 my lord,

Upon this ground, and more it would content
 me
 To have her honour true than your suspicion,
 Be blam'd for't how you might.

Leon Why, what need we 160
 Commune with you of this, but rather follow
 Our forceful instigation? Our prerogative Calls not your counsels, but our natural goodness

Imparts this, which if you,—or stupified 164
 Or seeming so in skill,—cannot or will not Relish a truth like us, inform yourselves
 We need no more of your advice the matter,
 The loss, the gain, the ordering on't, is all 168 Properly ours.

Ant And I wish, my Hege,
 You had only in your silent judgment tried it, Without more overture.

Leon How could that be?
 Either thou art most ignorant by age, 172
 Or thou wert born a fool. Camillo's flight, Added to their familiarity,
 Which was as gross as ever touch'd conjecture,
 That lack'd sight only, nought for approbation

But only seeing, all other circumstances 177
 Made up to the deed, doth push on this proceeding:

Yet, for a greater confirmation,—
 For in an act of this importance 'twere 180

Most piteous to be wild,—I have dispatch'd in post

To sacred Delphos, to Apollo's temple, Cleomenes and Dion, whom you know
 Of stuff'd sufficiency Now, from the oracle 184
 They will bring all, whose spiritual counsel had,
 Shall stop or spur me Have I done well?

First Lord Well done, my lord

Leon Though I am satisfied and need no
 more 188

Than what I know, yet shall the oracle Give rest to the minds of others, such as he Whose ignorant credulity will not Come up to the truth. So have we thought it
 good 192

From our free person she should be confin'd, Lest that the treachery of the two fled hence Be left her to perform. Come, follow us
 We are to speak in public, for this business 196
 Will raise us all

Ant [Aside] To laughter, as I take it,
 If the good truth were known. [Exeunt]

SCENE II.—The Same The outer Room of a Prison

Enter PAULINA and Attendants.

Paul The keeper of the prison, call to him, Let him have knowledge who I am.—[Exit an Attendant] Good lady,
 No court in Europe is too good for thee,
 What dost thou then in prison?

Re-enter Attendant with the Gaoler

Now, good sir, 4

You know me, do you not?
Gaol For a worthy lady
 And one whom much I honour

Paul Pray you then,
 Conduct me to the queen.

Gaol I may not, madam to the contrary 8
 I have express commandment.

Paul Here's ado,
 To lock up honesty and honour from The access of gentle visitors! Is't lawful, pray
 you,

To see her women? any of them? Emilia? 12
Gaol So please you, madam,
 To put apart these your attendants, I Shall bring Emilia forth.

Paul I pray now, call her Withdraw yourselves. [Exeunt Attendants.]

Gaol And madam, 16
 I must be present at your conference

Paul Well, be't so, prithee [Exit Gaoler] Here's such ado to make no stain a stain,
 As passes colouring.

Re-enter Gaoler, with EMILIA.

Dear gentlewoman, 20

How fares our gracious lady?

Emil As well as one so great and so forlorn May hold together On her frights and griefs,— Which never tender lady hath borne greater,—
 She is something before her time deliver'd. 25

Paul A boy?
Emil A daughter, and a goodly babe,
 Lusty and like to live the queen receives Much comfort in't, says, 'My poor prisoner, 'tis I am innocent as you.'

Paul I dare be sworn These dangerous unsafe lures i' the king, beshrew them!

He must be told on't and he shall the office
 Becomes a woman best, I'll take't upon me 32
 If I prove honey-mouth'd, let my tongue blister, And never to my red-look'd anger be
 The trumpet any more Pray you, Emilia, Commend my best obedience to the queen 36
 If she dares trust me with her little babe, I'll show it to the king and undertake to be Her advocate to the loud st We do not know How he may soften at the sight of the child 40
 The silence often of pure innocence
 Persuades when speaking fails

Emil Most worthy madam,
 Your honour and your goodness is so evident
 That your free undertaking cannot miss 44
 A thriving issue there is no lady living So meet for this great errand. Please your lady-ship

To visit the next room, I'll presently Acquaint the queen of your most noble offer, 48
 Who but to-day hammer'd of this design,
 But durst not tempt a minister of honour,
 Lest she should be demer'd.

Paul Tell her, Emilia,
 I'll use that tongue I have if wit flow from't 52 As boldness from my bosom, let it not be doubted

I shall do good.

Emil Now be you blest for it!
 I'll to the queen Please you, come something nearer

Gaol Madam, if't please the queen to send the babe, 56

I know not what I shall incur to pass it, Having no warrant.

Paul You need not fear it, sir
 The child was prisoner to the womb, and is
 By law and process of great nature thence 60 Freed and enfranchis'd, not a party to The anger of the king, nor guilty of,
 If any be, the trespass of the queen.

Gaol I do believe it 64

Paul Do not you fear upon mine honour, I Will stand betwixt you and danger [Exeunt

SCENE III.—The Same A Room in the Palace

Enter LEONTES, ANTIGONUS, Lords, and other
 Attendants

Leon Nor night, nor day, no rest, it is but weakness
 To bear the matter thus, mere weakness If
 The cause were not in being,—part o' the cause,
 She the adulteress, for the harlot king 4
 Is quits beyond mine arm, out of the blank And level of my brain, plot-proof, but she

I can hook to me say, that she were gone,
 Given to the fire, a moiety of my rest 8
 Might come to me again Who's there?

First Atten [Advancing] My lord?

Leon How does the boy?

First Atten He took good rest to-night,

'Tis hop'd his sickness is discharg'd

Leon To see his nobleness! 12

Conceiving the dishonour of his mother,
 He straight declin'd, droop'd, took it deeply,
 Fasten'd and fix'd the shame on't in himself,
 Threw off his spirit, his appetite, his sleep, 16
 And downright languish'd Leave me solely go,

See how he fares [Exit Attendant]—Fie, fie!
 no thought of him,

The very thought of my revenges that way
 Recoil upon me in himself too mighty, 20
 And in his parties, his alliance, let him be Until a time may serve for present vengeance,
 Take it on her Camillo and Polixenes Laugh at me, make their pastime at my sorrow 24

They should not laugh, if I could reach them, nor Shall she with my power

Enter PAULINA, with a Child

First Lord You must not enter Paul Nay, rather, good my lords, be second
 to me

Fear you his tyrannous passion more, alas, 28
 Than the queen's life? a gracious innocent soul,
 More free than he is jealous

Ant That's enough Sec Atten Madam, he hath not slept tonight, commanded

None should come at him.

Paul Not so hot, good sir, 32
 I come to bring him sleep 'Tis such as you,
 That creep like shadows by him and do sigh
 At each his needless heavings, such as you Nourish the cause of his awaking I 36
 Do come with words as medicinal as true, Honest as either, to purge him of that humour
 That presses him from sleep

Leon What noise there, ho?

Paul No noise, my lord, but needful conference 40

About some gossips for your highness.

Leon How!

Away with that audacious lady! Antigonus, I charg'd thee that she should not come about
 me

I knew she would.

Ant I told her so, my lord, 44
 On your displeasure's peril, and on mine,
 She should not visit you.

Leon What! canst not rule her?

Paul From all dishonesty he can, in this,
 Unless he take the course that you have done,
 Commit me for committing honour, trust it, 49
 He shall not rule me

Ant La you now! you hear,

When she will take the rein I let her run,

But she'll not stumble.

Paul Good my liege, I come, 52

And I beseech you, hear me, who professes Myself your loyal servant, your physician,
Your most obedient counsellor, yet that dares Less appear so in comforting your evils 56
Than such as most seem yours I say, I come From your good queen.

Leon Good queen!

Paul Good queen, my lord, good queen, I say, good queen,
And would by combat make her good, so were I
A man, the worst about you

Leon Force her hence 61

Paul Let him that makes but trifles of his
eyes

First hand me on mine own accord I'll off,
But first I'll do my errand The good queen, 64 For she is good, hath brought you forth a daughter

Here 'us, commends it to your blessing

[Laying down the Child

Leon Out!

A mankind witch! Hence with her, out o' door

A most intelligencing bawd!

Paul Not so, 68

I am as ignorant in that as you
In so entiling me, and no less honest

Than you are mad, which is enough, I'll warrant,

As this world goes, to pass for honest

Leon Traitors' 72

Will you not push her out? Give her the bastard.

[To ANTIGONUS] Thou dotard! thou art womantir'd, unroosted

By thy dame Partlet here Take up the bastard, Take't up, I say, give't to thy crone

Paul For ever 76

Unvenerable be thy hands, if thou Tak'st up the princess by that forced baseness

Which he has put upon't!

Leon He dreads his wife.

Paul So I would you did, then, 'twere past all doubt, 80

You'd call your children yours

Leon A nest of traitors!

Ant I am none, by this good light.

Paul Nor I, nor any

But one that's here, and that's himself, for he
The sacred honour of himself, his queen's, 84

His hopeful son's, his babe's, betrays to slander, Whose sting is sharper than the sword's, and will not,—

For, as the case now stands, it is a curse
He cannot be compell'd to't,—once remove 88

The root of 'his opinion, which is rotten

As ever oak or stone was sound

Leon A callat

Of boundless tongue, who late hath beat her husband

And now baits me! This brat is none of mine,
It is the issue of Polixenes 93

Hence with it, and together with the dam
Commit them to the fire!

Paul It is yours,

And, might we lay the old proverb to your charge, 96

'So like you, 'tis the worse' Behold, my lords, Although the print be little, the whole matter
And copy of the father, eye, nose, lip, The trick of's frown, his forehead, nay, the valley, 100

The pretty dimples of his chin and cheek, his smiles,

The very mould and frame of hand, nail, finger
And thou, good goddess Nature, which hast made it

So like to him that got it, if thou hast 104
The ordering of the mind too, 'mongst all colours

No yellow in't, lest she suspect, as he does,
Her children not her husband's Leon A gross hag!

And, lozel, thou art worthy to be hang'd, 108
That wilt not stay her tongue

Ant Hang all the husbands
That cannot do that feat, you'll leave yourself Hardly one subject

Leon Once more, take her hence,
Paul A most unworthy and unnatural lord
Can do no more

Leon I'll ha' thee burn'd

Paul I care not

It is a heretic that makes the fire,
Not she which burns in't. I'll not call you tyrant,

But this most cruel usage of your queen,— 116
Not able to produce more accusation Than your own weak-hing'd fancy,—something savours

Of tyranny, and will ignoble make you, Yea, scandalous to the world

Leon On your allegiance, 120
Out of the chamber with her! Were I a tyrant, Where were her life? she durst not call me so If she did know me one Away with her!

Paul I pray you do not push me, I'll be gone 124

Look to your babe, my lord, 'tis yours Jove send her

A better guiding spirit! What need these hands?
You, that are thus so tender o'er his follies,
Will never do him good, not one of you. 128

So, so farewell, we are gone [Exit Leon Thou, traitor, hast set on thy wife to
this

My could! away with't!—even thou, that hast
A heart so tender o'er it, take it hence 132

And see it instantly consum'd with fire Even thou and none but thou. Take it up straight

Within this hour bring me word 'tis done,—
And by good testimony,—or I'll seize thy life,
With what thou else call'st thine If thou refuse
And wilt encounter with my wrath, say so,
The bastard brains with these my proper hands
Shall I dash out. Go, take it to the fire, 140
For thou sett'st on thy wife

Ant I did not, sir,
These lords, my noble fellows, if they please,
Can clear me in't.

First Lord We can, my royal hege,
He is not guilty of her coming hither 144

Leon You are hars all First Lord Beseech your highness, give us better credit
 We have always truly serv'd you, and beseech
 you

So to esteem of us, and on our knees we beg, 148
 As recompense of our dear services Past and to come, that you do change this purpose

Which being so horrible, so bloody, must Lead on to some foul issue We all kneel 152

Leon I am a feather for each wind that blows Shall I live on to see this bastard kneel
 And call me father? Better burn it now Than curse it then But, be it, let it live 156
 It shall not neither—[To ANTIGONUS] You,

sir, come you hither,
 You that have been so tenderly officious
 With Lady Margery, your midwife there,
 To save this bastard's life,—for 'tis a bastard, So sure as thy beard's grey,—what will you adventure 161

To save this brat's life?

Ant Any thing, my lord,
 That my ability may undergo,
 And nobleness impose at least, thus much 164
 I'll pawn the little blood which I have left,
 To save the innocent any thing possible

Leon It shall be possible Swear by this sword

Thou wilt perform my bidding

Ant I will, my lord 168

Leon Mark and perform it,—seest thou!— for the fault

Of any point in 't shall not only be Death to thyself, but to thy lewd-tongu'd wife, Whom for this time we pardon We enjoin thee,
 As thou art liegman to us, that thou carry 173
 This female bastard hence and that thou bear it To some remote and desert place quite out Of our dominions, and that there thou leave it, Without more mercy, to its own protection, 177
 And favour of the climate As by strange fortune
 It came to us, I do in justice charge thee,
 On thy soul's peril and thy body's torture 180
 That thou commend it strangely to some place, Where chance may nurse or end it. Take it up Ant I swear to do this, though a present

 death

Had been more merciful Come on, poor babe Some powerful spirit instruct the kites and ravens 185

To be thy nurses! Wolves and bears, they say, Casting their savageness aside have done
 Like offices of pity Sir, be prosperous 188 In more than this deed doth require! And blessing

Against this cruelty fight on thy side, Poor thing, condemn'd to loss!

Leon [Exit with the Child.
 No, I'll not rear
 Another's issue

Enter a Servant.

Serv Please your highness, posts 192
 From those you sent to the oracle are come

An hour since Cleomenes and Dion, Being well arriv'd from Delphos, are both landed,

Hasting to the court
First Lord So please you, sir, their speed Hath been beyond account

Leon Twenty-three days
 They have been absent 'tis good speed, foretells
 The great Apollo suddenly will have 199
 The truth of this appear Prepare you, lords, Summon a session, that we may arraign
 Our most disloyal lady, for, as she hath Been publicly accus'd, so shall she have A just and open trial While she lives 204
 My heart will be a burden to me Leave me,
 And think upon my bidding [Exeunt

ACT III

SCENE I—A Sea-port in Sicily

Enter CLEOMENES and DION

Cleo The climate's delicate, the air most sweet,

Fertile the isle, the temple much surpassing
 The common praise it bears

Dion I shall report,
 For most it caught me, the celestial habits, 4 Methinks I so should term them,—and the reverence

Of the grave wearers O, the sacrifice!
 How ceremonious, solemn, and unearthly
 It was 't the offering!

Cleo But of all, the burst 8
 And the ear-deafening voice o' the oracle, Kin to Jove's thunder, so surpris'd my sense,
 That I was nothing

Dion If the event o' the journey
 Prove as successful to the queen,—O, be 't so!—
 As it hath been to us rare, pleasant, speedy, 13
 The time is worth the use on 't

Cleo Great Apollo
 Turn all to the best! These proclamations, So forcing faults upon Hermione, 16
 I little like

Dion The violent carriage of it Will clear or end the business when the oracle, Thus by Apollo's great divine seal'd up,
 Shall the contents discover, something rare 20 Even then will rush to knowledge—Go—fresh horses!

And gracious be the issue! [Exeunt

SCENE II—Sicily A Court of Justice

LEONTES, Lords, and Officers

Leon This sessions, to our great grief we pronounce,

Even pushes 'gainst our heart the party tried
 The daughter of a king, our wife, and one Of us too much belov'd. Let us be clear'd 4
 Of being tyrannous, since we so openly Proceed in justice, which shall have due course, Even to the guilt or the purgation.
 Produce the prisoner 8

Offi It is his highness' pleasure that the queen Appear in person here in court Silence!

Enter HERMIONE guarded PAULINA and Ladies attending

Leon Read the indictment

Offi Hermione, queen to the worthy Leontes, King of Sicilia, thou art here accused and arraigned of high treason, in committing adultery with Polixenes, King of Bohemia, and conspiring with Camillo to take away the life of our sovereign lord the king, thy royal husband the preterite whereof being by circumstances partly laid open, thou, Hermione, contrary to the faith and allegiance of a true subject, didst counsel and aid them, for their better safety, to fly away by night

Her Since what I am to say must be but that Which contradicts my accusation, and The testimony on my part no other
But what comes from myself, it shall scarce boot me

To say 'Not guilty' mine integrity Being counted falsehood, shall, as I express it, Be so receiv'd But thus if powers divine Behold our human actions, as they do,
I doubt not then but innocence shall make False accusation blush, and tyranny Tremble at patience You, my lord, best know,— Who least will seem to do so,—my past life Hath been as continent, as chaste, as true,
As I am now unhappy, which is more Than history can pattern, though devis'd
And play'd to take spectators For behold me,
A fellow of the royal bed, which owe A moiety of the throne, a great king's daughter,
The mother to a hopeful prince, here standing To prate and talk for life and honour 'fore
Who please to come and hear For life, I prize it As I weigh grief, which I would spare for honour,

'Tis a derivative from me to mine,
And only that I stand for I appeal
To your own conscience, sir, before Polixenes Came to your court, how I was in your grace, How merited to be so, since he came,
With what encounter so uncourtly I Have stram'd, to appear thus if one jot beyond The bound of honour, or in act or will That way inclining, harden'd be the hearts
Of all that hear me, and my near'st of kin Cry fie upon my grave!

Leon I ne'er heard yet
That any of these bolder vices wanted
Less impudence to gainsay what they did Than to perform it first

Her That's true enough,
Though 'tis a saying, sir, not due to me.

Leon You will not own it.

Her More than mistress of 60
Which comes to me in name of fault, I must not At all acknowledge For Polixenes,— With whom I am accus'd,—I do confess
I lov'd him as in honour he requir'd,
With such a kind of love as might become

A lady like me, with a love even such,
So and no other, as yourself commanded Which not to have done I think had been in me
Both disobedience and ingratitude 69
To you and toward your friend, whose love had spoke,

Even since it could speak, from an infant, freely
That it was yours Now, for conspiracy, 72
I know not how it tastes though it be disn'd
For me to try how all I know of it Is that Camillo was an honest man,
And why he left your court, the gods themselves, Wotting no more than I, are ignorant 77

Leon You knew of his departure, as you know What you have under'ten to do in 's absence

Her Sir,
You speak a language that I understand not My life stands in the level of your dreams,
Which I'll lay down

Leon Your actions are my dreams
You had a bastard by Polixenes, 84
And I but dream'd it. As you were past all shame,—

Those of your fact are so,—so past all truth Which to deny concerns more than avails, for as Thy brat hath been cast out, like to itself, 88
No father owning it,—which is, indeed,
More criminal in thee than it,—so thou Shalt feel our justice, in whose easiest passage Look for no less than death

Her Sir, spare your threats 92
The bug which you would fright me with I seek.
To me can life be no commodity
The crown and comfort of my life, your favour,
I do give lost, for I do feel it gone, 96
But know not how it went My second joy,
And first-fruits of my body, from his presence
I am barr'd, like one infectious. My third comfort,

Starr'd most unluckily, is from my breast, 100
The innocent milk in its most innocent mouth, Hal'd out to murder myself on every post Proclaim'd a strumpet with immodest hatred
The child-bed privilege denied, which 'longs 104
To women of all fashion lastly, hurned
Here to this place, 't' the open air, before I have got strength of limit Now, my liege, Tell me what blessings I have here alive, 108
That I should fear to die? Therefore proceed.
But yet hear this mistake me not, no life,
I prize it not a straw—but for mine honour,
Which I would free, if I shall be condemn'd 112
Upon surmises, all proofs sleeping else
But what your jealousies awake, I tell you
'Tis rigour and not law. Your honours all,
I do refer me to the oracle 116
Apollo be my judge!

First Lord This your request
Is altogether just therefore, bring forth,
And in Apollo's name, his oracle.

[Exeunt certain Officers]
Her The Emperor of Russia was my father
O' that he were alive, and here beholding 121
His daughter's trial, that he did but see The flatness of my misery, yet with eyes
Of pity, not revenge! 124

Re-enter Officers, with CLEOMENES and DION

Offi You here shall swear upon this sword
Of justice,
That you Cleomenes and Dion, have Been both at Delphos, and from thence have brought

This seal d-up oracle, by the hand deliver'd 128
Of great Apollo's priest, and that since then You have not dar'd to break the holy seal
Nor read the secrets in t.

Cleo } All this we swear

Dion }
Leon Break up the seals, and read 132

Offi Hermione is chaste, Polixenes blameless Camillo a true subject Leontes a jealous tyrant his innocent babe truly begotten, and the king shall live without an heir if that which is lost be not found! 137

Lords Now blessed be the great Apollo! 137

Her Praised!

Leon Hast thou read truth?

Offi Ay, my lord, even so
As it is here set down 140

Leon There is no truth at all i' the oracle
The sessions shall proceed this is mere falsehood.

Enter a Servant.

Serv My lord the king, the king!

Leon What is the business?

Serv O sir! I shall be hated to report it 144
The prince your son, with mere conceit and fear

Of the queen's speed, is gone

Leon How! gone!

Serv Is dead.

Leon Apollo's angry, and the heavens
themselves

Do strike at my injustice [HERMIONE swoons]

How now, there! 148

Paul This news is mortal to the queen — look down,

And see what death is doing.

Leon Take her hence

Her heart is but o'ercharg'd, she will recover

I have too much believ'd mine own suspicion

Beseech you, tenderly apply to her 153

Some remedies for life —

[Exeunt PAULINA, and Ladies, with HERMIONE.]

Apollo, pardon

My great profaneness 'gainst thine oracle!

I'll reconcile me to Polixenes, 156

New woo my queen, recall the good Camillo,

Whom I proclaim a man of truth, of mercy,

For, being transported by my jealousies

To bloody thoughts and to revenge, I chose 160

Camillo for the munster to poison

My friend Polixenes which had been done,

But that the good mind of Camillo tardied

My swift command, though I with death and 164

with

Reward did threaten and encourage him,

Not doing it, and being done he, most humane

And fill'd with honour, to my kingly guest

Unclass'd my practice, quit his fortunes here, 168

Which you knew great, and to the certain hazard
Of all incertainties himself commended,
No richer than his honour how he glusters Thorough my rust! and how his piety 172
Does my deeds make the blacker!

Re-enter PAULINA

Paul Woe the while!
O, cut my lace, lest my heart, cracking it,
Break too!

First Lord What fit is this, good lady?

Paul What studied torments, tyrant, hast 176

for me?

What wheels? racks? fires? What flaying? or what boiling

In leads, or oils? what old or newer torture

Must I receive, whose every word deserves

To taste of thy most worst? Thy tyranny, 180

Together working, with thy jealousies,

Fancies too weak for boys, too green and idle

For girls of mine, O! think what they have done,

And then run mad indeed, stark mad, for all 184

Thy by-gone fooleries were but spices of it.

That thou betray'dst Polixenes, 'twas nothing,

That did but show thee of a fool, inconstant

And damnable ingrateful, nor was't much 188

Thou wouldst have poison'd good Camillo's

honour

To have him kill a king, poor trespasses,

More monstrous standing by whereof I reckon

The casting forth to crows thy baby daughter 192

To be or none or little, though a devil

Would have shed water out of fire ere done't

Nor is't directly laid to thee, the death

Of the young prince, whose honourable 196

thoughts,—

Thoughts high for one so tender,—cleft the heart

That could conceive a gross and foolish sure

Blemish'd his gracious dam this is not, no,

Laid to thy answer but the last,—O lords! 200

When I have said, cry, 'woe!'—the queen, the

queen,

The sweetest, dearest creature's dead, and vengeance for't

Not dropp'd down yet.

First Lord The higher powers forbid!

Paul I say she's dead, I'll swear't if word 204

nor oath

Prevail not, go and see if you can bring

Tincture or lustre in her lip, her eye,

Heat outwardly, or breath within, I'll serve you

As I would do the gods But, O thou tyrant! 208

Do not repent these things, for they are heavier

Than all thy woes can stir, therefore betake thee

To nothing but despair A thousand knees

Ten thousand years together, naked, fasting, 212

Upon a barren mountain, and still winter

In storm perpetual, could not move the gods

To look that way thou wert

Leon Go on, go on,

Thou canst not speak too much I have deserv'd

All tongues to talk their bitterest.

First Lord Say no more 217

Howe'er the business goes, you have made fault

I' the boldness of your speech.

Paul I am sorry for't

All faults I make, when I shall come to know
 them, 220
 I do repent Alas! I have show'd too much
 The rashness of a woman he is touch'd To the noble heart. What's gone and what's past help
 Should be past grief do not receive affliction 224
 At my petition, I beseech you, rather Let me be punish'd, that have minded you
 Of what you should forget. Now, good my liege, Sir, royal sir, forgive a foolish woman 228
 The love I bore your queen,—lo, fool again!—
 I'll speak of her no more, nor of your children, I'll not remember you of my own lord,
 Who is lost too take your patience to you, 232
 And I'll say nothing

Leon Thou didst speak but well, When most the truth, which I receive much better

Than to be pitied of thee Prithee, bring me
 To the dead bodies of my queen and son 236
 One grave shall be for both upon them shall The causes of their death appear, unto Our shame perpetual Once a day I'll visit
 The chapel where they lie, and tears shed there Shall be my recreation so long as nature 241
 Will bear up with this exercise, so long I daily vow to use it. Come and lead me Unto these sorrows. [Exit

Like very sanctity, she did approach
 My cabin where I lay, thrice bow'd before me,
 And, gasping to begin some speech, her eyes 24
 Became two spouts the fury spent, anon
 Did thus break from her 'Good Antigonus, Since fate, against thy better disposition,
 Hath made thy person for the thrower-out 28
 Of my poor babe, according to thine oath, Places remote enough are in Bohemia, There weep and leave it crying, and, for the babe
 Is counted lost for ever, Perdita, 32
 I prithee, call't for this ungentle business, Put on thee by my lord, thou ne'er shalt see Thy wife Paulina more, and so, with shrieks,
 She melted into air Affrighted much, 36
 I did in time collect myself, and thought
 This was so and no slumber Dreams are toys, Yet for this once, yea, superstitiously,
 I will be squar'd by this I do believe 40 Hermione hath suffer'd death, and that Apollo would, thus being indeed the issue Of King Polixenes, it should here be laid,
 Either for life or death, upon the earth 44
 Of its right father Blossom, speed thee well!

[Laying down Child
 There he, and there thy character there these, [Laying down a bundle

Which may, if fortune please, both breed thee, pretty,
 And still rest thine The storm begins poor wretch! 48

That for thy mother's fault art thus expos'd
 To loss and what may follow Weep I cannot,
 But my heart bleeds, and most accurs'd am I
 To be by oath enjoin'd to this Farewell! 52
 The day frowns more and more thou art like to have

A lullaby too rough I never saw
 The heavens so dim by day A savage clarnour!
 Well may I get aboard! This is the chase 56
 I am gone for ever [Exit, pursued by a bear

Enter a Shepherd.

Shep I would there were no age between sixteen and three-and-twenty, or that you'd would sleep out the rest, for there is nothing in the between but getting wenches with child, wronging the ancientry, stealing, fighting Hark you now! Would any but these boiled brains of nineteen and two-and-twenty hunt this weather? They have scared away two of my best sheep, which I fear the wolf will sooner find than the master if anywhere I have them, 'tis by the sea-side, browsing of ivy Good luck, an't be thy will! what have we here? [Taking up the Child] Mercy on's, a barme, a very pretty barme! A boy or a child, I wonder? A pretty one, a very pretty one, sure some scape though I am not bookish, yet I can read waiting-gentlewoman in the scape. This has been some star-work, some trunk work, some behind-door work, they were warmer that got this than the poor thing is here I'll take it up for pity yet I'll tarry till my son come, he hollaed but even now Whoa, ho, ho! 79

SCENE III — Bohemia A desert Country near the Sea

Enter ANTIGONUS, with the Child, and a Mariner

Ant Thou art perfect, then, our ship hath touch'd upon
 The desarts of Bohemia?

Mar Ay, my lord, and fear
 We have landed in ill time the skies look grimly And threaten present blusters In my conscience, 4
 The heavens with that we have in hand are angry,

And frown upon's Ant Their sacred wills be done! Go, get aboard,

Look to thy bark I'll not be long before 8
 I call upon thee

Mar Make your best haste and go not Too far! the land 'tis like to be loud weather, Besides, this place is famous for the creatures
 Of prey that keep upon't.

Ant Go thou away 12
 I'll follow instantly

Mar I am glad at heart
 To be so rid of the business [Exit

Ant Come, poor babe
 I have heard, but not believ'd, the spirits of the dead

May walk again if such thing be, thy mother 16
 Appear'd to me last night, for ne'er was dream
 So like a waking. To me comes a creature, Sometimes her head on one side, some another,
 I never saw a vessel of like sorrow, 20
 So fill'd, and so becoming in pure white robes,

Enter Clown.

Clo Hillos, loa!Shep What! art so near? If thou'lt see a thing to talk on when thou art dead and rotten, come hither. What ailest thou, man? ⁸³*Clo* I have seen two such sights by sea and by land! but I am not to say it is a sea, for it is now the sky 'twixt the firmament and it you cannot thrust a bodkin's point.Shep Why, boy, how is it? ⁸⁸*Clo* I would you did but see how it chafes, how it rages, how it takes up the shore! but that's not to the point. O! the most piteous cry of the poor souls, sometimes to see 'em, and not to see 'em, now the ship boring the moon with her mainmast, and anon swallowed with yest and froth, as you'd thrust a cork into a hog's head. And then for the land-service to see how the bear tore out his shoulderbone, how he cried to me for help and said his name was Antigonus, a nobleman. But to make an end of the ship to see how the sea flap-dragoned it but, first, how the poor souls roared, and the sea mocked them, and how the poor gentleman roared, and the bear mocked him, both roaring louder than the sea or weather. ¹⁰⁴*Shep* Name of mercy! when was this, boy?Clo Now, now, I have not winked since I saw these sights. The men are not yet cold under water, nor the bear half dined on the gentleman. He's at it now. ¹⁰⁹*Shep* Would I had been by, to have helped the old man!Clo I would you had been by the ship's side, to have helped her there your charity would have lacked footing. ¹¹⁴*Shep* Heavy matters! heavy matters! but look thee here, boy. Now bless thyself thou mettest with things dying, I with things new born. Here's a sight for thee, look thee, a bearing-cloth for a squire's child! Look thee here take up, take up, boy, open't. So, let's see it was told me, I should be rich by the fairies this is some changeling—Open't. What's within, boy? ¹²³*Clo* You're a made old man if the sins of your youth are forgiven you, you're well to live. Gold! all gold! ¹²³*Shep* This is fairy gold, boy, and 'twill prove so up with't, keep it close home, home, the next way. We are lucky, boy, and to be so still, requires nothing but secrecy. Let my sheep go. Come, good boy, the next way home.Clo Go you the next way with your findings. I'll go see if the bear be gone from the gentleman, and how much he hath eaten, they are never curst but when they are hungry. If there be any of him left, I'll bury it. ¹³⁶*Shep* That's a good deed. If thou mayst discern by that which is left of him what he is, fetch me to the sight of him.Clo Marry, will I, and you shall help to put him i' the ground. ¹⁴¹*Shep* 'Tis a lucky day, boy, and we'll do good deeds on't. ¹⁴¹

[Exeunt]

ACT IV

Enter Time, the Chorus

Time I, that please some, try all, both joy and terror*Of good and bad, that make and unfold error,
Now take upon me, in the name of Time,
To use my wings. Impute it not a crime
To me or my swift passage, that I slide O'er sixteen years, and leave the growth untried
Of that wide gap since it is in my power
To o'erthrow law, and in one self-born hour
To plant and o'erwhelm custom. Let me pass
The same I am, ere ancient'st order was Or what is now receiv'd I witness to The times that brought them in: so shall I do To the freshest things now reigning, and make stale* ¹³*The glistering of this present, as my tale Now seems to it. Your patience this allowing,
I turn my glass and give my scene such growing* ¹⁶*As you had slept between Leontes leaving,— The effects of his fond jealousies so grieving,
That he shuts up himself,—imagine me, Gentle spectators, that I now may be In fair Bohemia, and remember well,* ²⁰*I mention'd a son o' the king's, which Florizel
I now name to you and with speed so pace
To speak of Perdita, now grown in grace Equal with wondering what of her ensues
I list not prophesy but let Time's news Be known when tis brought forth. A shepherd's daughter,* ²⁴*And what to her adheres, which follows after,
Is th' argument of Time. Of this allow,
If ever you have spent time worse ere now
If never, yet that I time himself doth say He wishes earnestly you never may* ²⁹

[Exit]

SCENE I.—Bohemia. A Room in the Palace of POLIXENES

Enter POLIXENES and CAMILLO

Pol I pray thee, good Camillo, be no more importunate 'tis a sickness denying thee anything, a death to grant thee. ³*Cam* It is fifteen years since I saw my country though I have for the most part been aured abroad, I desire to lay my bones there. Besides, the penitent king, my master, hath sent for me, to whose feeling sorrows I might be some allay, or I o'erween to think so, which is another spur to my departure. ¹⁰*Pol* As thou lovest me, Camillo, wipe not out the rest of thy services by leaving me now. The need I have of thee thine own goodness hath made better not to have had thee than thus to want thee. Thou, having made me businesses which none without thee can sufficiently manage, must either stay to execute them thyself or take away with thee the very services thou hast done, which if I have not enough considered,—as too much I cannot,—to be more thankful to thee shall be my study, and my profit thereon, the heaping friendships Of that fatal country, Sicilia, prithe speak no more, whose very naming punishes me with the remembrance of that penitent, as thou callest him, and reconciled king, my brother, whose loss of his most precious queen and children are even now to be afresh lamented Say to me, when sawest thou the Prince Florizel, my son? Kings are no less unhappy, their issues not being gracious, than they are in losing them when they have approved their virtues

Cam Sir, it is three days since I saw the prince What his happier affairs may be, are to me unknown, but I have missingly noted he is of late much retired from court, and is less frequent to his princely exercises than formerly he hath appeared

Pol I have considered so much, Camillo, and with some care, so far, that I have eyes under my service which look upon his removedness, from whom I have this intelligence, that he is seldom from the house of a most homely shepherd, a man, they say, that from very nothing, and beyond the imagination of his neighbours, is grown into an unspeakable estate

Cam I have heard, sir, of such a man, who hath a daughter of most rare note the report of her is extended more than can be thought to begin from such a cottage

Pol That's likewise part of my intelligence, but I fear, the angle that plucks our son thither Thou shalt accompany us to the place, where we will, not appearing what we are, have some question with the shepherd, from whose simplicity I think it not uneasy to get the cause of my son's resort thither Prithe, be my present partner in this business, and lay aside the thoughts of Sicilia.

Cam I willingly obey your command Pol My best Camillo!—We must disguise ourselves

[Exeunt]

SCENE II.—The Same A Road near the Shepherd's Cottage

Enter AUTOLYCUS, singing

When daffodils begin to peer,
With heigh! the doxy over the dale,
Why then comes in the sweet o' the year,
For the red blood reigns in the winter's pale.

The white sheet bleaching on the hedge
With heigh! the sweet birds, O how they sing!
Doth set my pugging tooth on edge
For a quart of ale is a dish for a king.

The lark, that turra-lurra chants,
With, heigh! with heigh! the thrush and the jay,
Are summer songs for me and my aunts,
While we lie tumbling in the hay

I have served Prince Florizel, and in my time wore three-pile, but now I am out of service

But shall I go mourn for that, my dear?
The pale moon shines by night
And when I wander here and there,
I then do most go right.

If tinkers may have leave to live,
And bear the sow-skin bowget,
Then my account I well may give,
And in the stocks avouch it.

My traffic is sheets, when the kite builds, look to lesser linen. My father named me Autolycus, who being, as I am, littered under Mercury, was likewise a snapper-up of unconsidered trifles With die and drab I purchased this caparison, and my revenue is the silly cheat Gallows and knock are too powerful on the highway beating and hanging are terrors to me for the life to come, I sleep out the thought of it. A prize! a prize!

Enter Clown

Clo Let me see Every 'leven wether tod's, every tod yields pound and odd shilling fifteen hundred shorn, what comes the wool to?

Aut [Aside] If the springe hold, the cock's mine

Clo I cannot do't without compters Let me see, what am I to buy for our sheep-shearing feast? 'Three pound of sugar, five pound of currants, rice,' what will this sister of mine do with rice? But my father hath made her mistress of the feast, and she lays it on. She hath made me four-and-twenty nosegays for the shearers, three-man song-men all, and very good ones, but they are most of them means and bases but one puritan amongst them, and he sings psalms to hornpipes I must have saffron, to colour the warden pies, mace, dates,—none, that's out of my note —nutmegs seven, a race or two of ginger,—but that I may beg,—four pound of prunes, and as many of raisins o' the sun

Aut O! that ever I was born!

[Groveling on the ground]

Clo P the name of me!

Aut O! help me, help me! pluck but off these rags, and then death, death!

Clo Alack, poor soul! thou hast need of more rags to lay on thee, rather than have these off

Aut O, sir! the loathsomeness of them offends me more than the stripes I have received, which are mighty ones and millions.

Clo Alas, poor man! a million of beating may come to a great matter

Aut I am robbed, sir, and beaten, my money and apparel ta'en from me, and these detestable things put upon me.

Clo What, by a horseman or a footman?

Aut A footman, sweet sir, a footman.

Clo Indeed, he should be a footman, by the garments he hath left with thee if this be a horseman's coat, it hath seen very hot service Lend me thy hand, I'll help thee come, lend me thy hand.

[Helping him up]
Aut O! good sir, tenderly, O!

Clo Alas, poor soul!

Aut O! good sir, softly, good sir! I fear, sir, my shoulder-blade is out.

Clo How now! canst stand?

Aut Softly, dear sir, [Picks his pocket] good sir, softly You ha' done me a charitable office.

Clo Dost lack any money? I have a little money for thee.

Aut No, good sweet sir—no, I beseech you, sir I have a kinsman not past three-quarters of a mile hence, unto whom I was going I shall there have money, or anything I want offer me no money, I pray you! that kills my heart. 89

Clo What manner of fellow was he that robbed you?

Aut A fellow, sir, that I have known to go about with trol-my-dames I knew him once a servant of the prince I cannot tell, good sir, for which of his virtues it was, but he was certainly whipped out of the court 96

Clo His vices, you would say there's no virtue whipped out of the court they cherish it, to make it stay there, and yet it will no more but abide 100

Aut Vices, I would say, sir I know this man well he hath been since an ane-bearer, then a process-server, a bailiff then he compassed a motion of the Prodigal Son, and married a tinker's wife within a mile where my land and living lies, and having flo vn over many knavish professions, he settled only in rogue some call him Autol, cus 108

Clo Out upon him! Prig for my life, prig he haunts wakes, fairs, and bear-baitings

Aut Very true, sir, he, sir, he that's the rogue that put me into this apparel 112

Clo Not a more cowardly rogue in all Bohemia if you had but looked big and spit at him, he'd have run.

Aut I must confess to you, sir, I am no fighter I am false of heart that way, and that he knew I warrant him 118

Clo How do you now?

Aut Sweet sir, much better than I was I can stand and walk. I will even take my leave of you, and pace softly towards my kinsman's

Clo Shall I bring thee on the way?

Aut No, good faced sir, no sweet sir 124

Clo Then fare thee well I must go buy spices for our sheep-shearing

Aut Prosper you, sweet sir!—[Exit Clown] Your purse is not hot enough to purchase your spice. I'll be with you at your sheep-shearing too If I make not this cheat bring out another, and the shearers prove sheep let me be unrolled, and my name put in the book of virtue 132

Jog on, jog on, the footpath way,
And merrily bent the stile-a,
A merry heart goes all the day,
Your sad tires in a mile-a.

[Exit]

SCENE III—The Same A Lawn before the Shepherd's Cottage

Enter FLORIZEL and PERDITA.

Flo These your unusual weeds to each part of you Do give a life no shepherdess, but Flora Peering in April's front. Thus your sheep-shearing

Is as a meeting of the petty gods, 4

And you the queen on't

Per Sir, my gracious lord, To chide at your extremes it not becomes me

O' pardon, that I name them Your high self, The gracious mark o' the land, you have obscur'd With a swain's wearing, and me, poor lowly maid, 9

Most goddess-like prank'd up But that our feasts

In every mess have folly, and the feeders Digest it with a custom, I should blush 12

To see you so attired,—swoon, I think, To show myself a glass

Flo I bless the time When my good falcon made her flight across Thy father's ground

Per Now, Jove afford you cause! 16 To me the difference forges dread, your greatness

Hath not been us'd to fear Even now I tremble To think, your father, by some accident,

Should pass this way as you did O, the Fates! How would he look, to see his work, so noble, 21

Vicely bound up? What would he say? Or how Should I, in these my borrow'd flaunts, behold

The sternness of his presence?

Flo Apprehend 24 Nothing but jollity The gods themselves, Humbling their duties to love, have taken

The shapes of beasts upon them Jupiter Became a bull, and bellow'd, the green Neptune

A ram, and bleat'd, and the fire-rob'd god, 29 Golden Apollo, a poor humble swain,

As I seem now Their transformations Were never for a piece of beauty rarer, 32

Nor in a way so chaste since my desires Run not before mine honour, nor my lusts

Burn hotter than my faith.

Per O' but, sir, Your resolution cannot hold, when 'tis 36

Oppos'd, as it must be, by the power of the king One of these two must be necessities,

Which then will speak, that you must change this purpose,

Or I my life

Flo Thou dearest Perdita, 40 With these forc'd thoughts I prithee, darken not

The mirth o' the feast or I'll be thine, my fair, Or not my father's, for I cannot be Mine own, nor anything to any, if 44 I be not thine to this I am most constant,

Though destiny say no Be merry, gentle, Strangle such thoughts as these with any thing

That you behold the while Your guests are coming 48

Lift up your countenance, as it were the day Of celebration of that nuptial which

We two have sworn shall come

Per O lady Fortune, Stand you auspicious!

Flo See, your guests approach 52 Address yourself to entertain them sprightly,

And let's be red with mirth.

Enter Shepherd, with POLIXENES and CAMILLO disguised, Clown, MORSA, DORCAS, and Others

Shep Fie, daughter! when my old wife liv'd, upon

This day she was both pantler, butler, cook, 56

Both dame and servant, welcom'd all, serv'd
all,
Would sing her song and dance her turn, now
here,

At upper end o' the table, now i' the middle,
On his shoulder, and his, her face o' fire 60
With laour and the thing she took to quench it,
She would to each one sip You are retir'd,
As if you were a feasted one and not
The hostess of the meeting pray you, bid 64
These unknown friends to's welcome, for it is A way to make us better friends, more known Come, quench your blushes and present yourself That which you are, mistress o' the feast come on, 68
And bid us welcome to your sheep-shearing,
As your good flock shall prosper

Per [To POLIXENES] Sir, welcome
It is my father's will I should take on me
The hostess-ship o' the day —[To CAMELLO]
You're welcome sir 72 Give me those flowers there, Dorcas Reverend sirs,
For you there's rosemary and rue, these keep Seeming and savour all the winter long Grace and remembrance be to you both, 76
And welcome to our shearing!

Pol Shepherdess,—
A fair one are you,—well you fit our ages
With flowers of winter

Per Sir, the year growing ancient,
Not yet on summer's death, nor on the birth 80
Of trembling winter, the fairest flowers o' the season

Are our carnations, and streak'd gillyvors,
Which some call nature's bastards of that kind Our rustic garden's barren, and I care not 84
To get slips of them

Pol Wherefore, gentle maiden,
Do you neglect them?

Per For I have heard it said
There is an art which in their pinedness shares With great creating nature

Pol Say there be, 88
Yet nature is made better by no mean
But nature makes that mean so, 'er that art,
Which you say adds to nature, is an art That nature makes. You see, sweet maid, we marry 92

A gentler scion to the wildest stock,
And make conceive a bark of baser kind
By bud of nobler race: this is an art Which does mend nature, change it rather, but The art itself is nature

Per So it is. 97
Pol Then make your garden rich in gillyvors,
And do not call them bastards.

Per I'll not put
The dibble in earth to set one slip of them, 100
No more than, were I painted, I would wish This youth should say, 'twere well, and only therefore

Desire to breed by me. Here's flowers for you, Hot lavender, mints, savory marjoram, 104
The margold, that goes to bed wi' the sun,
And with him rises weeping these are flowers

Of middle summer, and I think they are given To men of middle age You're very welcome 108 Cam I should leave grazing, were I of your flock,

And only live by gazing

Per Out, alas!

You'd be so lean, that blasts of January Would blow you through and through. Now, my fair st friend, 112

I would I had some flowers o' the spring that might

Become your time of day, and yours, and yours,
That wear upon your virgin branches yet
Your maidenheads growing O Proserpina! 116
For the flowers now that frighted thou let'st fall
From Dis's waggon! daffodils,

That come before the swallow dares, and take The winds of March with beauty, violets dum,
But sweeter than the lids of Juno's eyes 121
Or Cytherea's breath, pale prime-roses,
That die unmarried, ere they can behold
Bright Phoebus in his strength, a malady 124 Most incident to maids, bold oxlips and
The crown imperial, lilies of all kinds,
The flower-de-luce being one O! these I lack
To make you garlands of, and my sweet friend,
To strew him o'er and o'er!

Flo What! like a corse? 129 Per No, like a bank for love to lie and play
on,

Not like a corse, or if,—not to be buried, But quick and in mine arms Come, take your flowers 132

Methinks I play as I have seen them do
In Whitsun pastorals sure this robe of mine Does change my disposition.

Flo What you do Still betters what is done. When you speak, sweet, 136

I'd have you do it ever when you sing,
I'd have you buy and sell so, so give alms,
Pray so, and, for the ordering your affairs,
To sing them too when you do dance, I wish
you 140

A wave o' the sea, that you might ever do Nothing but that, move still, still so,
And own no other function each your doing,
So singular in each particular, 144
Crowns what you are doing in the present deed,
That all your acts are queens.

Per O Doricles!
Your praises are too large but that your youth,
And the true blood which fairly peeps through it,
Do plainly give you out an unstain'd shepherd,
With wisdom I might fear, my Doricles,
You woo'd me the false way

Flo I think you have
As little skill to fear as I have purpose 152
To put you to't. But, come, our dance, I pray Your hand, my Perdita so turtles pair
That never mean to part.

Per I'll swear for 'em.

Pol This is the prettiest low-born lass that ever 156
Ran on the green-sord nothing she does or seems

But snacks of something greater than herself,
Too noble for this place

Cam He tells her something That makes her blood look out. Good sooth,
she is 160

The queen of curds and cream.

Clo Come on, strike up Dor Mopsa must be your mistress marry, garlic, 160

To mend her kissing with.

Mop Now, in good time!
Clo Not a word, a word we stand upon our manners 164

Come, strike up [Music Here a dance of Shepherds and Shepherdesses]

Pol Pray, good shepherd, what fair swain is thus

Which dances with your daughter?

Shep They call him Doricles, and boasts himself 168

To have a worthy feeding, but I have it

Upon his own report and I believe it

He looks like sooth. He says he loves my daughter

I think so too, for never gaz'd the moon 172

Upon the water as he'll stand and read

As 'twere my daughter's eyes, and, to be plain,

I think there is not half a kiss to choose

Who loves another best

Pol She dances feately 176

Shep So she does any thing, though I report it

That should be silent If young Doricles

Do light upon her she shall bring him that

Which he not dreams of 180

Enter a Servant

Serv O master! if you did but hear the pedlar at the door, you would never dance again after a tabor and pipe, no, the bagpiper could not move you He sings several tunes faster than you'll tell money, he utters them as he had eaten ballads and all men's ears grew to his tunes 186

Clo He could never come better he shall come in I love a ballad but even too well, if it be doleful matter merrily set down, or a very pleasant thing indeed and sung lamentably 190

Serv He hath songs for man or woman, of all sizes, no milliner can so fit his customers with gloves he has the prettiest love-songs for maids, so without bawdry, which is strange, with such delicate burthens of dildos and fadings, 'jump her and thump her,' and where some stretchmouthed rascal would, as it were, mean mischief and break a foul gap into the matter, he makes the maid to answer, 'Whoop, do me no harm, good man,' puts him off, slights him with 'Whoop, do me no harm, good man' 201

Pol This is a brave fellow

Clo Believe me, thou talkest of an admirable concerted fellow Has he any unbranded wares?

Serv He hath ribands of all the colours in the rainbow, points more than all the lawyers in Bohemia can learnedly handle, though they come to him by the gross, inkles, caddises, cambrics, lawns why, he sings 'em over, as they were gods or goddesses. You would think a smock were a she-angel, he so chants to the sleeve hand and the work about the square on't

Clo Prithce, bring him in, and let him approach singing 214

Per Forewarn him that he use no scurrilous words in s tunes [Exit Servant]

Clo You have of these pedlars, that have more in them than you'd think, sister

Per Ay, good brother, or go about to think

Enter AUTOLYCUS, singing

Lawn as white as driven snow 220

Cyprus black as e'er was crow

Gloves as sweet as damask roses

Masks for faces and for noses

Bugle bracelet, necklace amber, 224

Perfume for a lady's chamber

Golden quoits and stomachers,

For my lads to give their dears

Pins and poking sticks of steel, 228

What maids lack from head to heel

Come buy of me come come buy, come buy

Buy lads, or else your lasses cry

Come buy 232

Clo If I were not in love with Mopsa, thou shouldst take no money of me, but being enthralled as I am, it will also be the bondage of certain ribands and gloves 236

Mop I was promised them against the feast, but they come not too late now

Dor He hath promised you more than that, or there be liars 240

Mop He hath paid you all he promised you may be he has paid you more, which will shame you to give him again 243

Clo Is there no manners left among maids?
will they wear their plackets where they should bear their faces? Is there not milking-time, when you are going to bed, or kiln-hole, to whistle off these secrets, but you must be tittle-tattling before all our guests? 'Tis well they are whispering clamour your tongues, and not a word more

Mop I have done Come, you promised me a tawdry lace and a pair of sweet gloves 252

Clo Have I not told thee how I was cozened by the way, and lost all my money?

Aut And indeed, sir, there are cozeners abroad, therefore it behoves men to be wary 256

Clo Fear not thou, man, thou shalt lose nothing here

Aut I hope so, sir, for I have about me many parcels of charge 260

Clo What hast here? ballads?

Mop Pray now, buy some I love a ballad in print, a-life, for then we are sure they are true

Aut Here's one to a very doleful tune, how a usurer's wife was brought to bed of twenty money-bags at a burden, and how she longed to eat adders' heads and toads carbonadoed.

Mop Is it true, thank you? 268

Aut Very true, and but a month old.

Dor Bless me from marrying a usurer!

Aut Here's the midwife's name to't, one Mistress Taleporter, and five or six honest waves that were present Why should I carry lies abroad?

Mop Pray you now, buy it. 274

Clo Come on, lay it by and let's first see moe ballads, we'll buy the other things anon.

Aut Here's another ballad of a fish that appeared upon the coast on Wednesday the fourscore of April, forty thousand fathom above water, and sung this ballad against the hard hearts of maids it was thought she was a woman and was turned into a cold fish for she would not exchange flesh with one that loved her The ballad is very pitiful and as true 284

Dor Is it true too, think you?

Aut Five justices hands at it, and witnesses more than my pack will hold

Clo Lay it by too another 288

Aut This is a merry ballad, but a very pretty one

Mop Let's have some merry ones

Aut Why, this is a passing merry one, and goes to the tune of 'Two maids wooing a man' there's scarce a maid westward but she sings it
'tis in request, I can tell you. 295

Mop We can both sing it if thou'lt bear a part thou shalt hear, 'tis in three parts

Dor We nad the tune on't a month ago

Aut I can bear my part, you must know 'tis my occupation have at it with you. 300

Aut Get you hence, for I must go Where it fits not you to know

Dor Whither?

Mop O! whither?

Dor Whither?

Mop It becomes thy oath full well,

Thou to me thy secrets tell

Dor Me too let me go thither

Mop Or thou go st to the grange or mill

Dor If to either thou dost ill

Aut Neither

Dor What, neither?

Aut Neither

Dor Thou hast sworn my love to be

Mop Thou hast sworn it more to me

Then whither go st? say whither? 316

Clo We'll have this song out anon by ourselves my father and the gentlemen are in sad talk, and we'll not trouble them come, bring away thy pack after me Wenches, I'll buy for you both. Pedlar, let's have the first choice. Follow me, girls [Exit with DORCAS and MOPSA.

Aut And you shall pay well for 'em.

Will you buy any tape,

Or lace for your cape 324

My dainty duck, my dear-a?

Any silk, any thread,

Any toys for your head 328

Of the new st and fin st, fin'st wear-a?

Come to the pedlar,

Money's a meddler

That doth utter all men's ware-a 332

[Exit

Re-enter Servant.

Serv Master, there is three carters, three shepherds, three neat-herds, three swine-herds, that have made themselves all men of hair, they call themselves Satyrs, and they have a dance which the wenches say is a gallimaufry of gambols, because they are not in't, but they themselves are o the mind,—if it be not too rough for some that know little but bowling,— it will please plentifully 341

Shep Away! we'll none on't here has been too much homely foolery already I know, sir, we weary you 344

Pol You weary those that refresh us pray, let's see these four threes of herdsmen

Serv One three of them, by their own report, sir, hath danced before the king, and not the worst of the three but jumps twelve foot and a half by the squier 350

Shep Leave your prating since these good men are pleased let them come in but quickly
now

Serv Why, they stay at door, sir [Exit

Re-enter Servant, with Twelve Rustics habited like Satyrs They dance, and then exeunt

Pol [To Shep] O, father! you'll know more of that hereafter

[To CAMILLO] Is it not too far gone? 'Tis time to part them. 356

He's simple and tells much. [To FLORIZEL.]

How now, fair shepherd!

Your heart is full of something that does take Your mind from feasting Sooth, when I was young,

And handed love as you do, I was wont 360 To load my she with knacks I would have ransack'd

The pedlar's silken treasury and have pour'd it To her acceptance, you have let him go

And nothing marted with him If your lass 364 Interpretation should abuse and call this

Your lack of love or bounty, you were stranted
For a reply, at least if you make a care

Of happy holding her

Flo Old sir, I know 368

She prizes not such trifles as these are The gifts she looks from me are pack'd and lock'd

Up in my heart, which I have given already,
But not deliver'd. O! hear me breathe my life

Before this ancient sir, who, it should seem, 373 Hath sometime lov'd I take thy hand, this

hand,
As soft as dove's down, and as white as it,

Or Ethiopian's tooth, or the fann'd snow 376
That's bolted by the northern blasts twice o'er

Pol What follows this?

How prettily the young swain seems to wash
The hand was fair before! I have put you out

But to your protestation let me hear 381
What you profess

Flo Do, and be witness to't.

Pol And this my neighbour too?

Flo And he, and more Than he, and men, the earth, the heavens, and
all, 384

That, were I crown'd the most imperial monarch, Thereof most worthy, were I the fairest youth

That ever made eye sweats, had force and knowledge

More than was ever man's, I would not prize
 them
 Without her love for her employ them all Commend them and condemn them to her service
 Or 'o their own perdition.

Pol Fairly offer'd
Cam This shows a sound affection
Shep But, my daughter, 392
 Say you the like to him?

Per I cannot speak
 So well, nothing so well, no, nor mean better
 By the pattern of mine own thoughts I cut out The purity of his

Shep Take hands a bargain, 396
 And, friends unknown, you shall bear witness to t

I give my daughter to him, and will make Her portion equal his

Flo O! that must be 399
 If the virtue of your daughter one being dead,
 I shall have more than you can dream of yet, Enough then for your wonder But, come
 on,

Contract us 'fore these witnesses Shep Come, your hand,

And, daughter, yours
Pol Soft, swain, awhile, beseech you

Have you a father?
Flo I have, but what of him?

Pol Knows he of this?
Flo He neither does nor shall.

Pol Methinks a father
 Is, at the nuptial of his son, a guest 408

That best becomes the table Pray you, once
 more,

Is not your father grown incapable
 Of reasonable affairs? is he not stupid

With age and altering rheums? can he speak?
 hear? 412

Know man from man? dispute his own estate?
 Lies he not bed-rid? and again does nothing

But what he did being childish?
Flo No, good sir

He has his health and ampler strength indeed
 Than most have of his age

Pol By my white beard, 417
 You offer him, if this be so, a wrong

Something unfishal Reason my son Should choose himself a wife, but as good

reason 420
 The father,—all whose joy is nothing else

But fair posterity,—should hold some counsel
 In such a business.

Flo I yield all this;
 But for some other reasons, my grave sir, 424

Which 'tis not fit you know, I not acquaint
 My father of this business.

Pol Let him know't.
Flo He shall not.

Pol Pruthee, let him.
Flo No, he must not.

Shep Let him, my son he shall not need to grieve 428

At knowing of thy choice Flo Come, come, he must not.

Mark our contract.

Pol Mark your divorce young sir, [Discovering himself]

Whom son I dare not call thou art too base
 To be acknowledg'd thou a sceptre's heir 432

That thus affect st a sheep-hook! Thou old traitor,

I am sorry that by hanging thee I can But shorten thy life one week And thou, fresh piece

 Of excellent witchcraft, who of force must know
 The royal fool thou cop'st with,—

Shep O, my heart! 437
Pol I'll have thy beauty scratch'd with briars, and made More homely than thy state For thee, fond

boy,
 If I may ever know thou dost but sigh 440

That thou no more shalt see this knack,—as never

I mean thou shalt,—we'll bar thee from succession,

Not hold thee of our blood, no, not our kin,
 Far than Deucalion off mark thou my words

Follow us to the court. Thou, churl, for this time, 445

Though full of our displeasure, yet we free thee
 From the dead blow of it. And you, enchant-

ment,—
 Worthy enough a herdsman, yea, hum too, 448

That makes himself but for our honour therein, Unworthy thee,—if ever henceforth thou

These rural latches to his entrance open,
 Or hoop his body more with thy embraces, 452

I will devise a death as cruel for thee
 As thou art tender to't. [Exit

Per Even here undone!
 I was not much afraid, for once or twice

I was about to speak and tell him plainly, 456
 The self-same sun that shines upon his court

Hides not his visage from our cottage, but Looks on alike Will t'please you, sir, be gone?

I told you what would come of this beseech
 you, 460

Of your own state take care this dream of
 mine—

Being now awake, I'll queen it no inch further,
 But milk my ewes and weep

Cam. Why, how now, father!
 Speak, ere thou diest.

Shep I cannot speak, nor think, 464
 Nor dare to know that which I know O sir!

You have undone a man of fourscore three,
 That thought to fill his grave in quiet, yea,

To die upon the bed my father died, 468
 To lie close by his honest bones but now

Some hangman must put on my shroud and lay me

Where no priest shovels in dust. O cursed wretch!

That knew st this was the prince, and would st
 adventure 472

To mangle faith with him. Undone! undone!
 If I might die within this hour, I have liv'd

To die when I desire. [Exit
Flo Why look you so upon me?

I am but sorry, not afraid, delay'd, 476

But nothing alter'd What I was, I am More straining on for plucking back, not following

My leash unwillingly

Cam Gracious my lord,
You know your father's temper at this time 480
He will allow no speech, which I do guess You do not purpose to him, and as hardly Will he endure your sight as yet, I fear Then, till the fury of his highness settle, 484 Come not before him

Flo I not purpose it.

I think, Camillo?

Cam Even he my lord Per How often have I told you 'twould be thus!

How often said my dignity would last 488
But till 'twere known!

Flo It cannot fail but by The violation of my faith, and then Let nature crush the sides o' the earth together And mar the seeds within! Lift up thy looks From my succession wipe me, father, I 493 Am heir to my affection

Cam Be advis'd.
Flo I am, and by my fancy if my reason
Will thereto be obedient, I have reason, 496
If not, my senses, better pleas'd with madness,
Do bid it welcome

Cam This is desperate, sir
Flo So call it, but it does fulfil my vow,
I needs must think it honest Camillo, 500
Not for Bohemia, nor the pomp that may Be thereat glean'd, for all the sun sees or The close earth wombs or the profound sea hides

In unknown fathoms, will I break my oath 504
To this my fair belov'd Therefore, I pray you As you have ever been my father's honour'd
friend,

When he shall miss me,—as, in faith, I mean not
To see him any more,—cast your good counsels
Upon his passion let myself and fortune 509
Tug for the time to come This you may know
And so deliver, I am put to sea
With her whom here I cannot hold on shore,
And most opportune to our need, I have 513
A vessel rides fast by, but not prepar'd
For this design What course I mean to hold Shall nothing benefit your knowledge, nor 516 Concern me the reporting

Cam O my lord!
I would your spirit were easier for advice,
Or stronger for your need

Flo Hark, Perdita. [Takes her aside
[To CAMILLO] I'll hear you by and by

Cam He's irremovable 520 Resolv'd for flight Now were I happy if His going I could frame to serve my turn,
Save him from danger, do him love and honour,
Purchase the sight again of dear Sicilia 524
And that unhappy king, my master, whom I so much thirst to see

Flo Now, good Camillo,
I am so fraught with curious business that I leave out ceremony

Cam Sir, I think 528
You have heard of my poor services, I' the love
That I have borne your father?

Flo Very nobly
Have you deserv'd it is my father's music
To speak your deeds, not little of his care 532
To have them recompens'd as thought on

Cam Well, my lord,
If you may please to think I love the king And through him what's nearest to him, which is

Your gracious self, embrace but my direction,
If your more ponderous and settled project 537
May suffer alteration, on mine honour I'll point you where you shall have such receiving

As shall become your highness, where you
may 540

Enjoy your mistress,—from the whom, I see,
There's no disjunction to be made, but by,
As, heavens forfend! your ruin,—marry her,
And with my best endeavours in your absence
Your discontenting father strive to qualify, 545
And bring him up to liking

Flo How, Camillo,
May this, almost a miracle, be done?
That I may call thee something more than man,
And, after that trust to thee

Cam Have you thought on 549
A place whereto you'll go?

Flo Not any yet,
But as the unthought-on accident is guilty
To what we wildly do, so we profess 552 Ourselves to be the slaves of chance and flies
Of every wind that blows

Cam Then list to me
This follows, if you will not change your purpose

But undergo this flight, make for Sicilia, 556
And there present yourself and your fair princess,—

For so, I see, she must be,—'foie Leontes, She shall be habited as it becomes The partner of your bed. Methinks I see 560
Leontes opening his free arms and weeping His welcomes forth, asks thee, the son, forgiveness

As 'twere I' the father's person, kisses the hands Of your fresh princess, o'er and o'er divides
him 564

'Twixt his unkindness and his kindness the one
He chides to hell, and bids the other grow Faster than thought or time

Flo Worthy Camillo,
What colour for my visitation shall I 568
Hold up before him?

Cam Sent by the king your father
To greet him and to give him comforts Sir,
The manner of your bearing towards him with What you as from your father shall deliver, 572 Things known betwixt us three, I'll write you
down

The which shall point you forth at every sitting What you must say that he shall not perceive
But that you have your father's bosom there 576
And speak his very heart.

Flo I am bound to you.

There is some sap in this

Cam A course more promising
Than a wild dedication of yourselves To unpath'd waters, undream'd shores, most certain 580

To miseries enough no hope to help you,
But as you shake off one to take another, Nothing so certain as your anchors, who Do their best office, if they can but stay you 584
Where you'll be loath to be Besides, you know Prosperity's the very bond of love, Whose fresh complexion and whose heart together

Affliction alters

Per One of these is true 588
I think affliction may subdue the cheek,
But not take in the mind

Cam. Yea, say you so?
There shall not at your father's house these seven years
Be born another such.

Flo My good Camillo, 592
She is as forward of her breeding as She is i' the rear o' her birth.

Cam I cannot say 'tis pity
She lacks instructions, for she seems a mistress
To most that teach

Per Your pardon, sir, for this 596
I'll blush you thanks

Flo My prettiest Perdita!
But O! the thorns we stand upon. Camillo, Preserver of my father, now of me,
The med'cine of our house, how shall we do? 600
We are not furnish'd like Bohemia's son, Nor shall appear in Sicilia.

Cam My lord, Fear none of this I think you know my fortunes

Do all lie there it shall be so my care 604
To have you royally appointed as if The scene you play were mine For instance, sir, That you may know you shall not want, one word. [They talk aside]

Enter AUTOLYCUS

Aut Ha, ha! what a fool Honesty is! and Trust, his sworn brother, a very simple gentleman! I have sold all my trumpery not a counterfeit stone, not a riband, glass, pomander, brooch, table-book, ballad, knife, tape, glove, shoe-tie, bracelet, horn-ring, to keep my pack from fasting they throng who should buy first, as if my trinkets had been hallowed and brought a benediction to the buyer by which means I saw whose purse was best in picture, and what I saw, to my good use I remembered My clown—who wants but something to be a reasonable man,—grew so in love with the wenches' song that he would not stir his petticoats till he had both tune and words, which so drew the rest of the herd to me that all their other senses stuck in ears you might have punched a placket, it was senseless, 'twas nothing to geld a codpiece of a purse, I would have filed keys off that hung in chains no hearing, no feeling, but my sir's song, and admiring the nothing of it, so that, in this time of lethargy I picked and cut most of their festival purses, and had not the old man come in with a whoo-bub against his daughter and the king's son, and scared my choughs from the chaff, I had not left a purse alive in the whole army 634

[CAMILLO, FLORIZEL, and PERDITA come forward]

Cam Nay, but my letters, by this means being there

So soon as you arrive, shall clear that doubt 636 Flo And those that you'll procure from King Leontes—

Cam Shall satisfy your father Per Happy be you!

All that you speak shows fair Cam [Seeing AUTOLYCUS] Whom have we
here?

We'll make an instrument of this omit 640
Nothing may give us aid

Aut [Aside] If they have overheard me now, why, hanging

Cam How now, good fellow! Why shakest thou so? Fear not, man, here's no harm intended to thee

Aut I am a poor fellow, sir 647

Cam Why, be so still, here's nobody will steal that from thee, yet, for the outside of thy poverty we must make an exchange, therefore, discase thee instantly,—thou must think, there's a necessity in't,—and change garments with this gentleman though the pennyworth on his side be the worst, yet hold thee, there's some boot

Aut I am a poor fellow, sir—[Aside] I know ye well enough 656

Cam Nay, prithee, dispatch the gentleman is half flayed already

Aut Are you in earnest, sir? [Aside] I smell the trick on't. 660

Flo Dispatch, I prithee

Aut Indeed, I have had earnest, but I cannot with conscience take it

Cam. Unbuckle, unbuckle— 664

[FLORIZEL and AUTOLYCUS exchange garments]

Fortunate mistress,—let my prophecy
Come home to ye!—you must retire yourself
Into some covert take your sweetheart's hat
And pluck it o'er your brows, muffle your face Dismantle you, and, as you can, dislaken 669
The truth of your own seeming, that you may,—
For I do fear eyes over you,—to shipboard Get undescried

Per I see the play so lies 672
That I must bear a part

Cam No remedy
Have you done there?

Flo Should I now meet my father
He would not call me son.

Cam. Nay, you shall have no hat
[Giving it to PERDITA]

Come, lady, come Farewell, my friend

Aut Adieu, sir. 676

Flo O Perdita, what have we twain forgot!
Pray you, a word [They converse apart]

Cam [Aside] What I do next shall be to tell the king
Of this escape, and whither they are bound, 680
Wherein my hope is I shall so prevail
To force him after in whose company
I shall review Sicilia, for whose sight
I have a woman's longing.

Flo Fortune speed us! 684
Thus we set on, Camillo, to the sea-side

Cam The swifter speed the better

[Exeunt FLORIZEL, PERDITA, and CAMILLO]

Aut I understand the business, I hear it To have an open ear, a quick eye, and a nimble hand, is necessary for a cut-purse a good nose is requisite also, to smell out work for the other senses I see this is the time that the unjust man doth thrive What an exchange had this been without boot! what a boot is here with this exchange! Sure, the gods do this year connive at us, and we may do anything extempore The prince himself is about a piece of iniquity, stealing away from his father with his clog at his heels If I thought it were a piece of honesty to acquaint the king withal, I would not do't I hold it the more knavery to conceal it, and therein am I constant to my profession Aside, aside here is more matter for a hot bram Every lane's end, every shop, church, session, hanging, yields a careful man work 704

Re-enter Clown and Shepherd.

Clo See, see, what a man you are now! There is no other way but to tell the king she's a changeling and none of your flesh and blood

Shep Nay, but hear me 708

Clo Nay, but hear me

Shep Go to, then

Clo She being none of your flesh and blood, your flesh and blood has not offended the king, and so your flesh and blood is not to be punished by him Show those things you found about her, those secret things, all but what she has with her this being done, let the law go whistle
I warrant you 717

Shep I will tell the king all, every word, yea, and his son's pranks too, who, I may say, is no honest man neither to his father nor to me, to go about to make me the king's brother-in-law 722

Clo Indeed, brother-in-law was the furthest off you could have been to him, and then your blood had been the dearer by I know not how much an ounce

Aut [Aside] Very wisely, puppies! 727

Shep Well, let us to the king there is that in this fardel will make him scratch his beard

Aut [Aside] I know not what impediment this complaint may be to the flight of my master 732

Clo Pray heartily he be at palace

Aut [Aside] Though I am not naturally honest, I am so sometimes by chance let me pocket up my pedlar's excrement [Takes off his false beard.] How now, rustic! whither are you bound? 738

Shep To the palace, an it like your worship 740

Aut Your affairs there, what, with whom, the condition of that fardel, the place of your dwelling, your names your ages, of what having, breeding, and anything that is fitting to be known, discover 745

Clo We are but plain fellows, sir

Aut A lie, you are rough and hairy Let me have no lying, it becomes none but tradesmen, and they often give us soldiers the lie, but we pay them for it with stamped coin, not stabbing steel, therefore they do not give us the lie 752

Clo Your worship had like to have given us one, if you had not taken yourself with the manner 755

Shep Are you a courtier, an't like you, sir?

Aut Whether it like me or no, I am a courtier Seest thou not the air of the court in these enfoldings? hath not my gait in it the measure of the court? receives not thy nose court-odour from me? reflect I not on thy base-ness court-contempt? Think'st thou, for that I insinuate, or toaze from thee thy business, I am therefore no courtier? I am courtier, cap-a-pe, and one that will either push on or pluck back thy business there whereupon I command thee to open thy affair

Shep My business, sir, is to the king 768

Aut What advocate hast thou to him?

Shep I know not, an't like you

Clo Advocate's the court-word for a pheasant say you have none 772

Shep None, sir, I have no pheasant, cock nor hen

Aut How bless'd are we that are not simple
men!

Yet nature might have made me as these are,
Therefore I'll not disdain 776

Clo This cannot be but a great courtier

Shep His garments are rich, but he wears them not handsomely

Clo He seems to be the more noble in being fantastical a great man I'll warrant, I know by the picking on's teeth

Aut The fardel there? what's i' the fardel?
Wherefore that box? 784

Shep Sir, there lies such secrets in this fardel and box which none must know but the king, and which he shall know within this hour if I may come to the speech of him 788

Aut Age thou hast lost thy labour.

Shep Why, sir?

Aut The king is not at the palace, he is gone aboard a new ship to purge melancholy and air himself for, if thou be'st capable of things serious, thou must know the king is full of grief

Shep So 'tis said, sir, about his son, that should have married a shepherd's daughter 797

Aut If that shepherd be not now in hand-fast, let him fly the curses he shall have, the torture he shall feel, will break the back of man, the heart of monster 801

Clo Think you so, sir?

Aut Not he alone shall suffer what wit can make heavy and vengeance bitter, but those that are germane to him, though removed fifty times, shall all come under the hangman which though it be great pity, yet it is necessary. An old sheep-whistling rogue, a ram-tender, to offer to have his daughter come into grace! Some say he shall be stoned, but that death is too soft for him, say I draw out throne into a sheep cote! all deaths are too few, the sharpest too easy. 813

Clo Has the old man e'er a son, sir, do you hear, an't like you, sir?

Aut He has a son, who shall be flayed alive then 'nointed over with honey, set on the head of a wasp's nest, then stand till he be three quarters and a dram dead then recovered again with aqua-vite or some other hot infusion, then, raw as he is, and in the hottest day prognostication proclaims, shall he be set against a brick-wall, the sun looking with a southward eye upon him, where he is to behold him with flies blown to death. But what talk we of these traitorly rascals, whose miseries are to be smiled at, their offences being so capital? Tell me,—for you seem to be honest plain men,—what you have to the king being something gently considered, I'll bring you where he is aboard, tender your persons to his presence, whisper him in your behalfs, and if it be in man besides the king to effect your suits, here is a man shall do it. 833

Clo He seems to be of great authority close with him give him gold, and though authority be a stubborn bear, yet he is oft led by the nose with gold. Show the inside of your purse to the outside of his hand, and no more ado. Remember, 'stoned,' and 'flayed alive!' 839

Shep An't please you, sir, to undertake the business for us, here is that gold I have. I'll make it as much more and leave this young man in pawn till I bring it you.

Aut After I have done what I promised? 845

Shep Ay, sir.

Aut Well give me the moiety. Are you a party in this business? 848

Clo In some sort, sir but though my case be a pitiful one, I hope I shall not be flayed out of it.

Aut O! that's the case of the shepherd's son hang him, he'll be made an example. 853

Clo Comfort, good comfort! we must to the king and show our strange sights he must know 'tis none of your daughter nor my sister, we are gone else. Sir, I will give you as much as this old man does when the business is performed, and remain, as he says, your pawn till it be brought you. 860

Aut I will trust you. Walk before toward the sea-side go on the right hand, I will but look upon the hedge and follow you.

Clo We are blessed in this man, as I may say, even blessed. 865

Shep Let's before as he bids us. He was provided to do us good.

[Exeunt Shepherd and Clown.]

Aut If I had a mind to be honest I see Fortune would not suffer me she drops booties in my mouth. I am courted now with a double occasion, gold, and a means to do the prince my master good, which who knows how that may turn back to my advancement? I will bring these two moles, these blind ones, aboard him if he think it fit to shore them again, and that ne complaint they have to the king concerns him nothing, let him call me rogue for being so far officious, for I am proof against that title and what shame else belongs to't. To him will I present them there may be matter in it. [Exit]

ACT V

SCENE I—Sicilia A Room in the Palace of LEONTES

Enter LEONTES, CLEOMENES, DION, PAULINA, and Others

Cleo Sir, you have done enough, and have perform'd

A saint-like sorrow no fault could you make Which you have not redeem'd, indeed, paid down

More penitence than done trespass At the last, 4

Do as the heavens have done, forget your evil, With them forgive yourself

Leon Whilst I remember Her and her virtues, I cannot forget My blemishes in them, and so still think of 8 The wrong I did myself, which was so much, That harmless it hath made my kingdom, and Destroy'd the sweet'st companion that e'er man Bred his hopes out of

Paul True, too true, my lord, 12 If one by one you wedded all the world, Or from the all that are took something good, To make a perfect woman, she you kill'd Would be unparallel d

Leon I think so. Kill'd! 16 She I kill'd! I did so, but thou strik'st me Soresly to say I did it is as bitter Upon thy tongue as in my thought Now, good now Say so but seldom

Cleo Not at all, good lady 20 You might have spoken a thousand things that would Have done the time more benefit, and grac'd Your kindness better

Paul You are one of those Would have him wed again

Dion If you would not so, 24 You pity not the state, nor the remembrance Of his most sovereign name consider little What dangers, by his highness' fall of issue, May drop upon his kingdom and devour 28 Uncertain lookers-on. What were more holy Than to rejoice the former queen is well?

What holier than for royalty's repair, For present comfort, and for future good, 32 To bless the bed of majesty again

With a sweet fellow to 't

Paul There is none worthy Respecting her that's gone Besides the gods
Will have fulfill'd their secret purposes, 36
For he not the divine Apollo said,
Is't not the tenour of his oracle,
That King Leon is shall not have an heir Till his lost child be found? which that it shall Is all as monstrous to our human reason 41
As my Augur's to break his grave
And come again to me, who on my life,
Did perish with the infant 'Tis your counsel 44
My lord should to the heavens be contrary, Oppose against their wills—[To LEONTES]

Care not for issue
The crown will find an heir great Alexander Left his to the worthiest so his successor 48
Was like to be the best

Leo Good Paulina
Who hast the memory of Hermione
I know in honour O! that ever I Had quer'd me to thy counsel! then, even now
I might have look'd on in my queen's full eyes
Have taken treasure from her lips—

Paul And left them
More rich, for what they yielded

Leo Thou speak'st truth
No more such wives therefore, no wife one worse, 56
And better us'd, would make her sanctified spirit Again possess her corpse and on this stage—
Where we're offenders now,—appear soul vex'd,
And begin, 'Why to me?'

Paul Had she such power, 60
She had just cause

Leo She had and would incense me
To murder her I married

Paul I should so
Were I the ghost that walk'd, I'd bid you mark
Her eyes and tell me for what dull part 64 You chose her then I'd shriek, that even your ears

Should rift to hear me, and the words that follow'd
Should be Remember mine

Leo Stars stars!
And all eyes else dead coals Fear thou no wife, I'll have no wife, Paulina

Paul Will you swear 69
Never to marry but by my free leave?

Leo Never Paulina so be bless'd my spirit!

Paul Then, good my lords, bear witness to his oath 72

Cleo You tempt him over much Paul Unless another,

As like Hermione as is her picture, Affront his eye

Cleo Good madam,— Paul I have done.

Yet, if my lord will marry,—if you will, sir, 76
No remedy, but you will,—give me the office
To choose you a queen she shall not be so young As was your former but she shall be such As, walk'd your first queen's ghost, it should take joy

To see her in your arms

Leon My true Paulina,
We shall not marry till thou bidd'st us
Paul That
Shall be when your first queen's again in breath, 84 Never till then

Enter a Gentleman

Gent One that gives out himself Prince Florizel

Son of Polixenes, vouch his princess,—she
The fairest I have yet beheld,—desires access To your high presence

Leon What with him he comes not 88
Like to his father's greatness his approach,
So out of circumstance and sudden tells us
'Tis not a visitation fram'd, but forc'd
By need and accident What train?

Gent But few, 92
And those but mean

Leon His princess, say you, with him?
Gent Ay, the most peerless piece of earth, I think

That ere the sun shone bright on Paul O Hermione!

As every present time doth boast itself 96
Above a better gone, so must thy grave
Give way to what's seen now Sir you yourself
Have said and writ so,—but your writing now Is colder than that theme,—'She had not been, Nor was not to be equal'd, thus your verse for Flow'd with her beauty once 'tis shrewdly ebb'd
To say you have seen a better

Gent Pardon, madam
The one I have almost forgot—your pardon—
The other, when she has obtain'd your eye, 105
Will have your tongue too This is a creature
Would she begin a sect, might quench the zeal
Of all professors else, make proselytes 108
Of who she but bid follow

Paul How! not women?
Gent Women will love her, that she is a woman

More worth than any man men, that she is The rarest of all women

Leo Go Cleomenes 112
Yourself assisted with your honour'd friends, Bring them to our embracement Still tis
strange,

[Exeunt CLEOMENES, Lords, and Gentleman
He thus should steal upon us

Paul Had our prince—
Jewel of children—seen this hour, he had pair'd
Well with this lord there was not full a month
Between their births

Leo Prithce, no more cease! thou know'st
He ties to me again when talk'd of sure, 120
When I shall see this gentleman, thy speeches Will bring me to consider that which may Unfurnish me of reason. They are come

Re-enter CLEOMENES, with FLORIZEL, PERDITA,
and Others

Your mother was most true to wedlock, prince,
For she did print your royal father off 125
Concerning you Were I but twenty-one,
Your father's image is so hit in you,

His very air, that I should call you brother, 128
 As I did him, and speak of something wildly
 By us perform'd before Most dearly welcome!
 And you, fair princess,—goddess! O, alas!
 I lost a couple, that twixt heaven and earth 132 Might thus have stood begetting wonder as You, gracious couple, do and then I lost—
 All mine own folly—the society,
 Amity too, of your brave father, whom, 136
 Though bearing misery I desire my life
 Once more to look on him

Flo By his command
 Have I here touch'd Sicilia, and from him
 Give you all greetings that a king at friend, 140
 Can send his brother and, but infirmity,— Which waits upon worn times,—hath something seiz'd

His wish'd ability, he had himself 143
 The land and waters 'twixt your throne and his Measur'd to look upon you, whom he loves—
 He bade me say so—more than all the sceptres
 And those that bear them living

Leon O, my brother!— Good gentleman,—the wrongs I have done thee stir 148

Affresh within me, and these thy offices
 So rarely kind, are as interpreters
 Of my behind-hand slackness! Welcome hither,
 As is the spring to the earth And hath he too
 Expos'd this paragon to the fearful usage— 153
 At least ungentle—of the dreadful Neptune,
 To greet a man not worth her pains, much less
 The adventure of her person?

Flo Good my lord, 156
 She came from Libya

Leon Where the war like Smalus,
 That noble honour'd lord, is fear'd and lov'd?

Flo Most royal sir, from thence, from him, whose daughter

His tears proclaim'd his, parting with her thence— 160

A prosperous south-wind friendly—we have cross'd,

To execute the charge my father gave me
 For visiting your highness my best train
 I have from your Sicilian shores dismiss'd, 164
 Who for Bohemia bend to signify
 Not only my success in Libya, sir,
 But my arrival and my wife's, in safety Here where we are

Leon The blessed gods 168
 Purge all infection from our air whilst you Do climate here! You have a holy father,
 A graceful gentleman, against whose person,
 So sacred as it is, I have done sin 172
 For which the heavens, taking angry note, Have left me issueless, and your father's bless'd—

As he from heaven merits it—with you, 175 Worthy his goodness What might I have been, Might I a son and daughter now have look'd on,
 Such goodly things as you!

Enter a Lord

Lord Most noble sir,
 That which I shall report will bear no credit,

Were not the proof so nigh Please you, great
 sir, 180

Bohemia greets you from himself by me, Desires you to attach his son, who has—
 His dignity and duty both cast off—Flew from his father, from his hopes, and with A shepherd's daughter

Leon Where's Bohemia? speak 185 Lord Here in your city, I now came from
 him

I speak amazedly and it becomes
 My marvel and my message To your court 188 Whiles he was hastening,—in the chase it seems
 Of this fair couple,—meets he on the way
 The father of this seerning lady and Her brother, having both their country quitted
 With this young prince

Flo Camillo has betray'd me, 193
 Whose honour and whose honesty till now Endur'd all weathers

Lord Lay't so to his charge
 He's with the king your father

Leon Who? Camillo? 196

Lord Camillo, sir I spake with him, who
 now

Has these poor men in question Never saw I Wretches so quake they kneel, they kiss the earth,

Forswear themselves as often as they speak 200
 Bohemia stops his ears, and threatens them
 With divers deaths in death

Per O my poor father!

The heaven sets spies upon us, will not have Our contract celebrated

Leon You are married? 204

Flo We are not, sir, nor are we like to be,

The stars, I see, will kiss the valleys first

The odds for high and low's alike

Leon My lord,

Is this the daughter of a king?

Flo She is, 208

When once she is my wife

Leon That 'once,' I see, by your good father's speed,

Will come on very slowly I am sorry,

Most sorry, you have broken from his liking 212

Where you were tied in duty, and as sorry

Your choice is not so rich in worth as beauty,

That you might well enjoy her

Flo Dear, look up

Though Fortune, visible an enemy, 216

Should chase us with my father, power no
 jot

Hath she to change our loves Beseech you,
 sir,

Remember since you ow'd no more to time

Than I do now, with thought of such affections, 220

Step forth mine advocate, at your request

My father will grant precious things as trifles

Leon Would he do so, I'd beg your precious
 mistress,

Which he counts but a trifle

Paul Sir, my hege, 224

Your eye hath too much youth in 't not a month

'Fore your queen died, she was more worth such gazes

Than what you look on now

Leon I thought of her
Even in these looks I made [To FLORIZEL]

But your petition 228

Is yet unanswered I will to your father

Your honour not o'erturn'd by your desires,

I am friend to them and you, upon which errand

I now go toward him I therefore follow me, 232

And mark what way I make come, good my lord. [Exeunt]

SCENE II—The Same Before the Palace

Enter AUTOLYCUS and a Gentleman.

Aut Beseech you, sir, were you present at this relation?

Gent I was by at the opening of the fardel, heard the old shepherd deliver the manner how he found it whereupon, after a little amazement, we were all commanded out of the chamber, only this methought I heard the shepherd say, he found the child 8

Aut I would most gladly know the issue of it

Gent I make a broken delivery of the business, but the changes I perceived in the king and Camillo were very notes of admiration they seemed almost, with staring on one another, to tear the cases of their eyes, there was speech in their dumbness, language in their very gesture, they looked as they had heard of a world ransom'd, or one destroyed a notable passion of wonder appeared in them but the wisest beholder, that knew no more but seeing, could not say if the importance were joy or sorrow but in the extremity of the one it must needs be 21

Enter another Gentleman

Here comes a gentleman that haply knows more
The news, Rogero?

Sec Gent. Nothing but bonfires the oracle is fulfilled, the king's daughter is found such a deal of wonder is broken out within this hour that ballad-makers cannot be able to express it

Enter a third Gentleman.

Here comes the lady Paulina's steward: he can deliver you more How goes it now, sir? this news which is called true is so like an old tale, that the verity of it is in strong suspicion has the king found his heir? 32

Thurd Gent Most true, if ever truth were pregnant by circumstance that which you hear you'll swear you see, there is such unity in the proofs The mantle of Queen Hermione, her jewel about the neck of it, the letters of Antigonus found with it, which they know to be his character, the majesty of the creature in resemblance of the mother, the affection of nobleness which nature shows above her breeding and many other evidences proclaim her with all certainty to be the king's daughter Did you see the meeting of the two kings? 44

Sec Gent No

Thurd Gent Then have you lost a sight, which was to be seen, cannot be spoken of There might you have beheld one joy crown another, so, and in such manner that, it seemed, sorrow wept to take leave of them, for their joy waded in tears There was casting up of eyes, holding up of hands, with countenances of such distraction that they were to be known by garment, not by favour Our king, being ready to leap out of himself for joy of his found daughter, as if that joy were now become a loss, cries, 'O, thy mother, thy mother!' then asks Bohemia forgiveness, then embraces his son-in-law, then again worries he his daughter with clipping her, now he thanks the old shepherd, which stands by like a weather-bitten conduct of many kings' reigns I never heard of such another encounter, which lames report to follow it and undoes description to do it. 64

Sec Gent What, pray you, became of Antigonus that carried hence the child?

Thurd Gent Like an old tale still, which will have matter to rehearse, though credit be asleep and not an ear open He was torn to pieces with a bear this avouches the shepherd's son, who has not only his innocence—which seems much —to justify him, but a handkerchief and rings of his that Paulina knows 73

First Gent What became of his bark and his followers?

Thurd Gent Wracked, the same instant of their master's death, and in the view of the shepherd so that all the instruments which aided to expose the child were even then lost when it was found But, O! the noble combat that 'twixt joy and sorrow was fought in Paulina She had one eye declined for the loss of her husband, another elevated that the oracle was fulfilled she lifted the princess from the earth, and so locks her in embracing, as if she would pin her to her heart that she might no more be in danger of losing 87

First Gent The dignity of this act was worth the audience of kings and princes, for by such was it acted

Thurd Gent One of the prettiest touches of all, and that which angled for mine eyes,— caught the water though not the fish,—was when at the relation of the queen's death, with the manner how she came to it,—bravely confessed and lamented by the king—how attentiveness wounded his daughter, till, from one sign of dour to another, she did, with an 'alas!' I would fain say, bleed tears, for I am sure my heart wept blood Who was most marble there changed colour, some swooned, all sorrowed if all the world could have seen't, the woe had been universal. 103

First Gent Are they returned to the court?

Thurd Gent No, the princess hearing of her mother's statue, which is in the keeping of Paulina—a piece many years in doing, and now newly performed by that rare Italian master, Julio Romano, who, had he himself eternity and could put breath into his work, would beguile Nature of her custom, so perfectly he is her ape he so near to Hermione hath done Hermione that they say onc would speak to her and stand in hope of answer thither with all greediness of affection are they gone, and there they intend to sup 110

Sec Gent I thought she had some great matter there in hand, for she hath privately twice or thrice a day, ever since the death of Hermione, visited that removed house. Shall we thither and with our company piece the rejoicing? 122

First Gent Who would be thence that has the benefit of access? every wink of an eye some new grace will be born our absence makes us unthritty to our knowledge. Let's along. 126

[Exit Gentlemen]

Aut Now, had I not the dash of my former life in me, would preferment drop on my head.
I brought the old man and his son aboard the prince, told him I heard them talk of a fardel and I know not what but he at that time, over-fond of the shepherd's daughter—so he 'her took her to be—who began to be much sea sick, and himself little better extremity of weather continuing, this mystery remained undiscovered.
But 'tis all one to me, for had I been the finder out of this secret, it would not have relished among my other discredits. Here come those I have done good to against my will, and already appearing in the blossoms of their fortune. 141

[Enter Shepherd and Clown]

Shep Come, boy, I am past moe children, but thy sons and daughters will be all gentlemen born. 144

Clo You are well met, sir. You denied to fight with me this other day, because I was no gentleman born. see you these clothes? say, you see them not and think me still no gentleman born. you were best say these robes are not gentleman born. Give me the lie, do, and try whether I am not now gentleman born.

Aut I know you are now, sir, a gentleman
born. 153

Clo Ay, and have been so any time these four hours.

Shep And so have I, boy. 156

Clo So you have. but I was a gentleman born before my father, for the king's son took me by the hand and called me brother, and then the two kings called my father brother, and then the prince my brother and the princess my sister called my father father and so we wept and there was the first gentleman-like tears that ever we shed. 164

Shep We may live, son, to shed many more.

Clo Ay, or else 'twere hard luck, being in so preposterous estate as we are.

Aut I humbly beseech you, sir, to pardon me all the faults I have committed to your worship, and to give me your good report to the prince my master.

Shep Præthee, son, do, for we must be gentle, now we are gentlemen. 173

Clo Thou wilt amend thy life?

Aut Ay, an it like your good worship.
Clo Give me thy hand. I will swear to the prince thou art as honest a true fellow as any is in Bohemia. 178

Shep You may say it, but not swear it.
Clo Not swear it, now I am a gentle man.
Let hoors and franklins say it, I'll swear it.

Shep How it it be false, son? 182

Clo If it be ne'er so false, a true gentleman may swear it in the behalf of his friend. and I'll swear to the prince thou art a tall fellow of thy hands and that thou wilt not be drunk, but I know thou art no tall fellow of thy hands and that thou wilt be drunk. but I'll swear it, and I would thou wouldst be a tall fellow of thy hands.

Aut I will prove so, sir, to my power. 191

Clo Ay, by any means prove a tall fellow if I do not wonder how thou darrest venture to be drunk, not being a tall fellow, trust me not.
Hark! the kings and the princes, our kindred, are going to see the queen's picture. Come, follow us. we'll be thy good masters. 197

[Exit]

SCENE III.—*The Same. A Chapel in PAULINA'S
House*

Enter LEONTES, POLIXENES, FLORIZEL, PERDITA, CAMELLO, PAULINA, Lords, and Attendants

Leon O grave and good Paulina, the great comfort

That I have had of thee!

Paul What sovereign sir,
I did not well, I meant well. All my services
You have paid home, but that you have vouchsaf'd, 4

With your crown'd brother and these your contracted

Hears of your kingdoms, my poor house to visit,

It is a surplus of your grace, which never

My life may last to answer

Leon O Paulina! 8

We honour you with trouble but we came
To see the statue of our queen your gallery Have we pass'd through, not without much content

In many singularities, but we saw not 12
That which my daughter came to look upon,
The statue of her mother

Paul As she liv'd peerless,
So her dead likeness, I do well believe,
Exceeds whatever yet you look'd upon. 16
Or hand of man hath done, therefore I keep it Lonely, apart. But here it is prepare To see the life as lively mock'd as ever Still sleep mock'd death behold! and say 'tis
well. 20

[PAULINA draws back a curtain, and discovers HERMIONE as a statue.]

I like your silence. it the more shows off Your wonder, but yet speak first you, my hege 1

Comes it not something near?

Leon Her natural posture!
Chide me, dear stone, that I may say, indeed Thou art Hermione, or rather, thou art she In thy not chiding, for she was as tender 26
As infancy and grace But yet Paulina, Hermione was not so much wrinkled, nothing So aged as this seems

Pol O! not by much 29
Paul So much the more our carver's excellence

Which lets go by some sixteen years and makes
her

As she liv'd now

Leon As now she might have done, 32
So much to my good comfort, as it is Now piercing to my soul O! thus she stood,
Even with such life of majesty—warm life,
As now it coldly stands,—when first I woo'd
her 36

I am ashamed does not the stone rebuke me
For being more stone than it? O royal piece!
There's magic in thy majesty, which has My evil's conjur'd to remembrance, and 40
From thy admiring daughter took the spirits, Standing like stone with thee

Per And give me leave
And do not say 'tis superstition, that 43
I kneel and then implore her blessing Lady,
Dear queen that ended when I but began,
Give me that hand of yours to kiss

Paul O, patience!
The statue is but newly fix'd, the colour's

Not dry 48
Cam My lord, your sorrow was too sore laid on,

Which sixteen winters cannot blow away,
So many summers dry scarce any joy
Did ever so long live, no sorrow 52
But kill'd itself much sooner

Pol Dear my brother
Let him that was the cause of this have power To take off so much grief from you as he Will piece up in himself

Paul Indeed my lord, 56
If I had thought the sight of my poor image Would thus have wrought you,—for the stone is mine,—

I did not have show'd it

Leon Do not draw the curtain Paul No longer shall you gaze on it, lest your fancy 60
May think anon it moves

Leon I'll be let be!
Would I were dead, but that, methinks, 64 ready—

What was he that did make it? See my lord, Would you not deem it breath'd and that those veins 64
Did verily bear blood?

Pol Masterly done
The very life seems warm upon her lip

Leon The fixture of her eye has motion in't,
As we are mock'd with art

Paul I'll draw the curtain, 68
My lord's almost so far transported that He'll think anon it lives.

Leon O sweet Paulina!
Make me to think so twenty years together
Not settled senses of the world can match 72
The pleasure of that madness Let't alone

Paul I am sorry, sir, I have thus far sturr'd you but

I could afflict you further

Leon Do, Paulina, 76
For this affliction has a taste as sweet
As any cordial comfort Still methinks,
There is an air comes from her what fine chisel Could ever yet cut breath? Let no man mock
me,

For I will kiss her

Paul Good my lord, forbear 80
The kisses upon her lip is wet You'll mar it if you kiss it, stain your own
With oily painting Shall I draw the curtain?
Leon No, not these twenty years

Per So long could I 84 Stand by, a looker-on

Paul Either forbear,
Quit presently the chapel, or resolve you
For more amazement If you can behold it,
I'll make the statue move indeed, descend, 88
And take you by the hand, but then you'll think—

Which I protest against—I am assisted By wicked powers

Leon What you can make her do,
I am content to look on what to speak, 92
I am content to hear, for 'tis as easy
To make her speak as move

Paul It is requir'd
You do awake your faith Then, all stand still,
Or those that think it is unlawful business 96
I am about, let them depart

Leon Proceed
No foot shall stir

Paul Music, awake her strike! [Music
'Tis time descend, bestow no more approach, Strike all that look upon with marvel Come,
I'll fill your grave up stir, nay, come away, Bequeath to death your numbness, for from
him

Dear life redeems you. You perceive she stirs [HERMIONE comes down
Start not, her actions shall be holy as 104
You hear my speech is lawful do not shun her Until you see her die again, for then You kill her double Nay present your hand When she was young you woo'd her, now in age 108
Is she become the suitor!

Leon [Embracing her] O! she's warm
If this be magic let it be an art Lawful as eating

Pol She embraces him
Cam She hangs about his neck 112
If she pertain to life let her speak too

Pol Ay, and make't manifest where she has
liv'd,

Or how stol'n from the dead

Paul That she is living
Were it but told you, should be rood at 116
Like an old tale, but it appears she lives,

Though yet she speak not. Mark a little while Please you to interpose, fair madam kneel And pray your mother's blessing Turn, good lady, 120

Our Perdita is found

[Presenting PERDITA, who kneels to HERMIONE

Her You gods, look down,
And from your sacred vials pour your graces Upon my daughter's head! Tell me, mine own, Where hast thou been preserv'd? where liv'd?
how found 124

Thy father's court? for thou shalt hear that I, Knowing by Paulina that the oracle Gave hope thou wast in being, have preserv'd Myself to see the issue

Paul There's time enough for that, 128
Lest they desire upon this push to trouble
Your joys with like relation. Go together,
You precious winners all your exultation
Partake to every one I, an old turtle, 132 Will wing me to some wither'd bough, and
there

My mate, that's never to be found again,
Lament till I am lost

Leon

O! peace, Paulina!

Thou shouldst a husband take by my consent, 136

As I by thine a wife this is a match,
And made between's by vows Thou hast found
mine,

But how, is to be question'd for I saw her,
As I thought dead, and have in vain said many 140

A prayer upon her grave I'll not seek far,—
For him, I partly know his mind,—to find thee
An honourable husband Come, Camillo, And take her by the hand, whose worth and
honesty 144

Is richly noted, and here justified
By us, a pair of kings Let's from this place What! look upon my brother both your pardons,

That e'er I put between your holy looks 148
My ill suspicion This' your son-in-law,
And son unto the king,—whom heavens direct-
ing,

Is troth-plight to your daughter Good Paulina, Lead us from hence, where we may leisurely 152
Each one demand and answer to his part Perform'd in this wide gap of time since first We were dissever'd hastily lead away [Exeunt]

LADY FAULCONBRIDGE

Lords, Ladies, Citizens of Angiers, Sheriff, Heralds, Officers, Soldiers, Messengers, and other Attendants

SCENE — Sometimes in England, and sometimes in France

ACT I

SCENE I — A Room of State in the Palace

Enter KING JOHN, QUEEN ELINOR, PEMBROKE, ESSEX, SALISBURY, and Others, with CHATILLON

K John Now, say, Chatillon, what would France with us?

Chat Thus, after greeting, speaks the King of France,

In my behaviour, to the majesty,
The borrow'd majesty of England here

Eh A strange beginning, 'borrow'd majesty!'

K John Silence, good mother, hear the embassy

Chat Philip of France, in right and true behalf

Of thy deceased brother Geoffrey's son,

Arthur Plantagenet, lays most lawful claim
To this fair island and the territories,

To Ireland, Poitiers, Anjou, Touraine, Mame, Desiring thee to lay aside the sword

Which sways usurpingly these several titles,
And put the same into young Arthur's hand,

Thy nephew and right royal sovereign.
K John What follows if we disallow of this?

Chat The proud control of fierce and bloody war,

To enforce these rights so forcibly withheld
K John Here have we war for war, and blood for blood, Controlment for controlment so answer France.

Chat Then take my king's defiance from my mouth,

The furthest limit of my embassy
K John. Bear mine to him, and so depart in peace

Be thou as lightning in the eyes of France; 24
For ere thou canst report I will be there,
The thunder of my cannon shall be heard
So, hence! Be thou the trumpet of our wrath

And sullen presage of your own decay 28
An honourable conduct let him have Pembroke, look to't Farewell, Chatillon.

[Exit CHATILLON and PEMBROKE.
Eh What now, my son! have I not ever said

How that ambitious Constance would not cease Till she had kindled France and all the world 33

Upon the right and party of her son?
This might have been prevented and made whole

With very easy arguments of love, 36
Which now the manage of two kingdoms must With fearful bloody issue arbitrate

K John Our strong possession and our right for us

Eh Your strong possession much more than your right, 40

Or else it must go wrong with you and me
So much my conscience whispers in your ear,

Which none but heaven and you and I shall hear

Enter a Sheriff, who whispers ESSEX.

Essex My liege, here is the strangest controversy, 44

Come from the country to be judg'd by you,
That e'er I heard shall I produce the men?

K John Let them approach. [Exit Sheriff
Our abbey and our priory shall pay 48

This expedition's charge

Re-enter Sheriff, with ROBERT FAULCONBRIDGE and PHILIP, his Bastard Brother.

What men are you?

Bast Your faithful subject I, a gentleman
Born in Northamptonshire, and eldest son,

As I suppose, to Robert Faulconbridge, 52
A soldier, by the honour-giving hand
Of Cœur-de-Lion knighted in the field.

K John. What art thou?

Rob. The son and heir to that same Faulconbridge. 56

K John. Is that the elder, and art thou the heir?

You came not of one mother then, it seems.

Bast Most certain of one mother, mighty
king,
That is well known and, as I think one father
But for the certain knowledge of that ruth 61
I put you o'er to heaven and to my mother
Of that I doubt, as all men's children may

Elu Out on thee, rude man! thou dost shame thy mother 64

And wound her honour with this diffidence Bast I, madam? no, I have no reason for it,
That is my brother's plea and none of mine,
The which if he can prove, a' pops me out 68
At least from fair five hundred pound a year Heaven guard my mother's honour and my land!

K John A good blunt fellow Why, being younger born,
Doth he lay claim to thine inheritance? 72

Bast I know not why, except to get the land
But once he slander'd me with bastardy
But where I be as true-begot or no,
That still I lay upon my mother's head, 76
But that I am as well begot, my liege,— Fair fall the bones that took the pains for me!—
Compare our faces and be judge yourself
If old Sir Robert did beget us both, 80
And were our father, and this son like him,
O old Sir Robert, father, on my knee
I give heaven thanks I was not like to thee!

K John Why, what a madcap hath heaven lent us here! 84

Elu He hath a trick of Cœur-de-Lion's face,
The accent of his tongue affecteth him
Do you not read some tokens of my son
In the large composition of this man? 88

K John Mine eye hath well examined his
parts,

And finds them perfect Richard Surran, speak What doth move you to claim your brother's
land? 92

Bast Because he hath a half-face, like my father

With half that face would he have all my land,
A half-fac'd groat five hundred pound a year!

Rob My gracious liege, when that my father
liv'd,

Your brother did employ my father much,— 96 Bast Well, sir, by this you cannot get my
land

Your tale must be how he employ'd my mother
Rob And once dispatch'd him in an embassy
To Germany, there with the emperor 100

To treat of high affairs touching that time
The advantage of his absence took the king,
And in the mean time sojourn'd at my father's,
Where how he did prevail I shame to speak, 104 But truth is truth large lengths of seas and shores

Between my father and my mother lay,—
As I have heard my father speak himself,— When this same lusty gentleman was got Upon his death-bed he by will bequeath'd 108
His lands to me, and took it on his death
That this my mother's son was none of his,
An if he were, he came into the world 112
Full fourteen weeks before the course of time

Then, good my liege, let me have what is mine,
My father's land, as was my father's will 115

K John Surran, your brother is legitimate,
Your father's wife did after wedlock bear him,
And if she did play false, the fault was hers,
Which fault lies on the hazards of all husbands
That marry wives Tell me, how if my brother,
Who, as you say, took pains to get this son, 121
Had of your father claim'd this son for his?

In sooth, good friend, your father might have kept

This calf bred from his cow from all the world,
In sooth he might then, if he were my brother's, My brother might not claim him, nor your
father,

Being none of his, refuse him this concludes.
My mother's son did get your father's heir 128
Your father's heir must have your father's land Rob Shall then my father's will be of no force

To dispossess that child which is not his?
Bast Of no more force 'o dispossess me, sir,
Than was his will to get me as I think 133

Elu Where hadst thou rather be a Faulconbridge

And like thy brother, to enjoy thy land,
Or the reputed son of Cœur-de-Lion, 136
Lord of thy presence and no land beside?

Bast Madam, an if my brother had my shape,
And I had his, Sir Robert has, like him,
And if my legs were two such riding-rods, 140
My arms such eel-skins stuff'd, my face so thin
That in mine ear I durst not stick a rose Lest men should say, 'Look, where three-farthings goes!'

And, to his shape, were heir to all this land, 144
Would I might never stir from off this place, I'd give it every foot to have this face
I would not be Sir Nob in any case

Elu I like thee well wilt thou forsake thy fortune, 148

Bequeath thy land to him, and follow me?
I am a soldier and now bound to France

Bast Brother, take you my land, I'll take my chance 152

Your face hath got five hundred pounds a year, Yet sell your face for five pence and 'tis dear.
Madam, I'll follow you unto the death

Elu Nay, I would have you go before me
thither

Bast Our country manners give our betters way 156

K John What is thy name?

Bast Philip, my liege, so is my name begun, Philip, good old Sir Robert's wife's eldest son

K John From henceforth bear his name whose form thou bearest 160

Kneel thou down Philip, but arise more great, Arise Sir Richard, and Plantagenet

Bast Brother by the mother's side, give me your hand

My father gave me honour, yours gave land 164
Now blessed be the hour by night or day,
When I was got, Sir Robert was away!

Elu The very spirit of Plantagenet!
I am thy grandam, Richard call me so. 168

Bast Madam, by chance but not by truth,
what though?

Something about, a little from the right,
In at the window, or else o'er the battlements
Who dares not stir by day must walk by night,
And have is have, however men do catch;
Near or far off, well won is still well shot,
And I am I, howe'er I was begot

K. John Go, Faulconbridge now hast thou thy desire,
A landless knight makes thee a landed squire Come, madam, and come, Richard we must speed

For France, for France, for it is more than need Bast Brother, adieu good fortune come to
thee!

For thou wast got in the way of honesty
[Exeunt all but the Bastard]

A foot of honour better than I was,
But many a many foot of land the worse
Well, now can I make any Joan a lady
'Good den, Sir Richard!' 'God-a-mercy, fellow!'

And if his name be George, I'll call him Peter,
For new-made honour doth forget men's names
'Tis too respectful and too sociable

For your conversion Now your traveller
He and his toothpick at my worst mess,
And when my knightly stomach is sufficed,
Why then I suck my teeth, and catechize

My picked man of countries My dear sir,— Thus, leaning on mine elbow I begin,—
'I shall beseech you,—that is question now,
And then comes answer like an absey-book

'O, sir,' says answer, 'at your best command,
At your employment, at your service, sir'
'No, sir,' says question, 'I, sweet sir at yours'
And so, ere answer knows what question would,

Saving in dialogue of compliment,
And talking of the Alps and Apennines,
The Pyrenean and the river Po,

It draws toward supper in conclusion so
But this is worshipful society
And fits the mounting spirit like myself,

For he is but a bastard to the time,
That doth not smack of observation
And so am I, whether I smack or no,
And not alone in habit and device,

Exterior form, outward accoutrement,
But from the inward motion to deliver Sweet, sweet, sweet poison for the age's tooth

Which, though I will not practise to deceive, Yet, to avoid deceit, I mean to learn
For it shall s'rew the footsteps of my rising

But who comes in such haste in riding-robes?
What woman post is this? hath she no husband
That will take pains to blow a horn before her?

Enter LADY FAULCONBRIDGE and JAMES GURNEY

Ome! 'tis my mother How now, good lady!
What brings you here to court so hastily?

Lady F Where is that slave, thy brother?
where is he,
That holds in chase mine honour up and down?

Bast My brother Robert? old Sir Robert's son?

Color-and the giant, that same mighty man?
Is he Sir Robert's son that you seek so?

Lady F Sir Robert's son! Ay, thou un-reverend boy,

Sir Robert's son why scorn'st thou at Sir Robert?

He is Sir Robert's son, and so art thou.

Bast James Gurney, wilt thou give us leave awhile?

Gur Good leave, good Philip

Bast I bid! parrow! James,
There's toys abroad anon I'll tell thee more

[Exit GURNEY]

Madam, I was not old Sir Robert's son
Sir Robert might have ent his part in me

Upon Good-Friday and ne'er broke his fast
Sir Robert could do well marry, to confess Could he get me? Sir Robert could not do it

We know his handiwork therefore, good mother,

To whom am I beholding for these limbs?
Sir Robert never help to make this leg

Lady F Hast thou conspired with thy brother
too,

That for thine own gain shouldst defend mine honour?

What means this scorn, thou most untoward
knave?

Bast Knight, knight, good mother, Basilisco
like

What! I am dubb'd, I have it on my shoulder
But, mother, I am not Sir Robert's son,

I have disclaim'd Sir Robert and my land, Legitimation, name, and all is gone

Then, good my mother, let me know my father
Some proper man, I hope, who was it, mother?

Lady F Hast thou denied thyself a Faulcon-
bridge?

Bast As faithfully as I deny the devil Lady F King Richard Cœur-de-Lion was thy father

By long and vehement suit I was seduc'd
To make room for him in my husband's bed

Heaven lay not my transgression to my charge!
Thou art the issue of my dear offence,

Which was so strongly urg'd past my defence
Bast Now, by this light, were I to get again,

Madam, I would not wish a better father
Some sins do bear their privilege on earth,

And so doth yours, your fault was not your folly

Needs must you lay your heart at his dispose,
Subjected tribute to commanding love,

Against whose fury and unmatched force
The aweless lion could not wage the fight,

Nor keep his princely heart from Richard's
hand.

He that perforce robs lions of their hearts
May easily win a woman's. Ay, my mother,

With all my heart I thank thee for my father!
Who lives and dares but say thou didst not well

When I was go? I'll send his soul to hell.
Come, lady, I will show thee to my kin,

And they shall say, when Richard me begot,
If thou hadst said him nay, it had been sin
Who says it was, he lies I say, 'twas not 276
[Exeunt]

ACT II

SCENE I.—France Before the Walls of Angiers

Enter, on one side, the DUKE OF AUSTRIA, and Forces on the other, PHILIP, King of France, and Forces, LEWIS, CONSTANCE, ARTHUR, and Attendants

K Ph Before Angiers well met, brave Austria

Arthur, that great forerunner of thy blood, Richard, that robb'd the lion of his heart
And fought the holy wars in Palestine,
By this brave duke came early to his grave
And, for amends to his posterity,
At our importance hither is he come,
To spread his colours, boy, in thy behalf, 8
And to rebuke the usurpation
Of thy unnatural uncle, English John Embrace him, love him, give him welcome
hither

Arth God shall forgive you Cœur-de-Lion's death 12

The rather that you give his offspring life,
Shadowing their right under your wings of war

I give you welcome with a powerless hand,
But with a heart full of unstained love 16
Welcome before the gates of Angiers, duke

K Ph A noble boy! Who would not do thee right?

Aust Upon thy cheek lay I this zealous kiss,
As seal to this indenture of my love, 20
That to my home I will no more return Till Angiers, and the right thou hast in France, Together with that pale, that white-fac'd shore,
Whose foot spurns back the ocean's roaring tides 24

And coops from other lands her islanders, Even till that England, hedg'd in with the main,
That water-walled bulwark, still secure
And confident from foreign purposes, 28
Even till that utmost corner of the west Salute thee for her king till then, fair boy,
Will I not think of home but follow arms

Const O! take his mother's thanks, a widow's thanks, 32

Till your strong hand shall help to give him strength

To make a more requital to your love

Aust The peace of heaven is theirs that lift their swords

In such a just and charitable war 36

K Ph Well then, to work our cannon shall be bent

Against the brows of this resisting town.

Call for our chiefest men of discipline,

To cull the plots of best advantages 40

We'll lay before this town our royal bones,

Wade to the market-place in Frenchmen's blood,

But we will make it subject to this boy
Const Stay for an answer to your embassy, Lest unadvis'd you stain your swords with blood 45

My Lord Chatillon may from England bring That right in peace which here we urge in war,

And then we shall repent each drop of blood 48
That hot rash haste so indirectly shed

Enter CHATILLON

K Ph A wonder, lady! lo, upon thy wish,
Our messenger, Chatillon, is arriv'd!

What England says, say briefly, gentle lord, 52
We coldly pause for thee, Chatillon, speak

Chat Then turn your forces from this paltry siege

4 And stir them up against a mightier task England, impatient of your just demands, 56
Hath put himself in arms the adverse winds, Whose leisure I have stay'd, have given him time

To land his legions all as soon as I,
His marches are expedient to this town, 60

His forces strong, his soldiers confident
With him along is come the mother-queen,

An Ate, stirring him to blood and strife,
With her her niece, the Lady Blanch of Spain,

With them a bastard of the king's deceas'd, 65
And all the unsettled humours of the land,

Rash, inconsiderate, fiery voluntaries,
With ladies' faces and fierce dragons' spleens, 68

Have sold their fortunes at their native homes, Bearing their birthrights proudly on their backs,

To make a hazard of new fortunes here
In brief, a braver choice of dauntless spirits 72

Than now the English bottoms have waft o'er Did never float upon the swelling tide,

To do offence and scathe in Christendom

[Drums heard within]

The interruption of their churlish drums 76
Cuts off more circumstance they are at hand,

To parley or to fight, therefore prepare

K Ph How much unlook'd for is this expedition!

Aust By how much unexpected, by so much
We must awake endeavour for defence, 81

For courage mounteth with occasion
Let them be welcome then, we are prepar'd

Enter KING JOHN, ELINOR, BLANCH, the BASTARD, Lords, and Forces

K John Peace be to France, if France in peace permit 84

Our just and lineal entrance to our own,
If not, bleed France, and peace ascend to heaven,

Whiles we, God's wrathful agent, do correct
Their proud contempt that beats his peace to heaven. 88

K Ph Peace be to England, if that war return

From France to England, there to live in peace.
England we love, and, for that England's sake

With burden of our armour here we sweat 92
This toil of ours should be a work of thine,

But thou from loving England art so far
That thou hast under-wrought his lawful king,
Cut off the sequence of posterity,
Out-faced infant state, and done a rape
Upon the maiden virtue of the crown Look here upon thy brother Geoffrey's face These eyes, these brows, were moulded out of his,

This little abstract doth contain that large Which died in Geoffrey, and the hand of time Shall draw this brief into as huge a volume
That Geoffrey was thy elder brother born,
And thus his son, England was Geoffrey's right
And thus is Geoffrey's In the name of God
How comes it then that thou art call'd a king,
When living blood doth in these temples beat,
Which owe the crown that thou o'ermasterest?

K John From whom hast thou this great commission, France,

To draw my answer from thy articles?

K Phi From that supernal judge, that stirs good thoughts

In any breast of strong authority,
To look into the blots and stains of right That judge hath made me guardian to this boy

Under whose warrant I impeach thy wrong,
And by whose help I mean to chastise it

K John Alack! thou dost usurp authority
K Phi Excuse, it is to beat usurping down

Elu Who is it thou dost call usurper, France?

Const Let me make answer, thy usurping
son.

Elu Out, insolent! thy bastard shall be king, That thou mayst be a queen, and check the world!

Const My bed was ever to thy son as true
As thine was to thy husband, and this boy

Liker in feature to his father Geoffrey Than thou and John in manners, being as like

As rain to water, or devil to his dam.
My boy a bastard! By my soul I think

His father never was so true begot
It cannot be an if thou wert his mother

Elu There's a good mother, boy, that blots
thy father

Const There's a good grandam, boy, that would blot thee

Aust Peace!

Bast Hear the crier

Aust What the devil art thou?
Bast One that will play the devil, sir, with
you,

An a' may catch your hide and you alone
You are the hare of whom the proverb goes,

Whose valour plucks dead lions by the beard
I'll smoke your skin-coat an I catch you right.

Sirrah, look to't, I' faith, I will, I' faith.
Blanch. O! well did he become that lion's robe,

That did disrobe the lion of that robe
Bast It lies as sightly on the back of him

As great Alcides' shows upon an ass
But, ass, I'll take that burden from your back, Or lay on that shall make your shoulders crack.

Aust What cracker is this same that deafs our ears

With this abundance of superfluous breath? 148 King,—Lewis, determine what we shall do
straight

K Phi Women and fools, break off your conference

King John, this is the very sum of all England and Ireland, Anjou, Touraine, Maine,

In right of Arthur do I clam of thee
Wilt thou resign them and lay down thy arms?

K John My life as soon I do defy thee,
France

Arthur of Britaine, yield thee to my hand,
And out of my dear love I'll give thee more Than e'er the coward hand of France can win Submit thee, boy

Elu Come to thy grandam child
Const Do, child, go to it grandam, child,

Give grandam kingdom, and it grandam will Give it a plum, a cherry, and a fig

There's a good grandam Arth Good my mother, peace!

I would that I were low laid in my grave
I am not worth this coil that's made for me

Elu His mother shames him so, poor boy, he weeps

Const Now shame upon you, whe'r she does
or no!

His grandam's wrongs, and not his mother's shames,

Draw those heaven-moving pearls from his poor
eyes,

Which heaven shall take in nature of a fee, Ay, with these crystal beads heaven shall be brib'd

To do him justice and revenge on you Elu Thou monstrous slanderer of heaven and earth!

Const Thou monstrous injurer of heaven and earth!

Call not me slanderer, thou and thine usurp
The dominations royalties and rights

Of this oppressed boy this is thy eld st son's son, Infortunate in nothing but in thee

Thy sins are visited in this poor child,
The canon of the law is laid on him,

Being but the second generation
Removed from thy sun-conceiving womb

K John Bedlam, have done
Const I have but this to say,

That he's not only plagued for her sin,
But God hath made her sin and her the plague

On this removed issue, plagu'd for her,
And with her plague, her sin, his injury

Her injury, the beadle to her sin,
All punish'd in the person of this child,

And all for her A plague upon her!
Elu Thou unadvised scold, I can produce

A will that bars the title of thy son.
Const Ay, who doubts that? a will! a wicked
will,

A woman's will, a canker'd grandam's will!
K Phi Peace, lady! pause, or be more temperate

It ill beseems this presence to cry am

To these ill-tuned repetitions
Some trumpet summon hither to the walls
These men of Angiers let us hear them speak Whose title they admit, Arthur's or John's 200

Trumpet sounds Enter Citizens upon the Walls

First Cit Who is it that hath warn'd us to the walls?

K Phi 'Tis France, for England

K John England for itself

You men of Angiers, and my loving subjects,—

K Phi You loving men of Angiers, Arthur's subjects, 204

Our trumpet call'd you to this gentle parle,— K John For our advantage, therefore hear us first.

These flags of France, that are advanced here Before the eye and prospect of your town, 208

Have hither march'd to your endamagement

The cannons have their bowels full of wrath,

And ready mounted are they to spit forth

Their iron indignation 'gainst your walls 212

All preparation for a bloody siege

And merciless proceeding by these French

Confronts your city's eyes, your winking gates,

And but for our approach those sleeping stones,

That as a waist do girdle you about, 217

By the compulsion of their ordinance

By this time from their fixed beds of lime

Had been dishabited, and wide havoc made 220

For bloody power to rush upon your peace

But on the sight of us your lawful king,—

Who painfully with much expedient march

Have brought a countercheck before your gates,

To save unscratch'd your city's threaten'd 225

cheeks,—

Behold, the French amaz'd vouchsafe a parle,

And now, instead of bullets wrapp'd in fire,

To make a shaking fever in your walls, 228

They shoot but calm words folded up in smoke,

To make a faithless error in your ears

Which trust accordingly, kind citizens,

And let us in, your king, whose labour'd spirits,

Forwearing in this action of swift speed, 233

Crave harbourage within your city walls

K Phi When I have said, make answer to us both

Lo! in this right hand, whose protection 236

Is most divinely vow'd upon the right

Of him it holds, stands young Plantagenet,

Son to the elder brother of this man,

And king o'er him and all that he enjoys 240

For this down-trodden equity, we tread

In war-like march these greens before your town,

Being no further enemy to you

Than the constraint of hospitable zeal, 244

In the relief of this oppressed child,

Religiously provokes Be pleased then

To pay that duty which you truly owe

To him that owes it, namely, this young prince,

And then our arms, like to a muzzled bear, 249

Save in aspect, have all offence seal'd up,

Our cannons' malice vainly shall be spent

Against the invulnerable clouds of heaven, 252

And with a blessed and unvar'd retire,

With unhack'd swords and helmets all un-bruis'd,

We will bear home that lusty blood again

Which here we came to spout against your 256

town,

And leave your children, wives, and you, in peace

But if you fondly pass our proffer'd offer,

'Tis not the roundure of your old-fac'd walls

Can hide you from our messengers of war, 260

Though all these English and their discipline

Were harbour'd in their rude circumference

Then tell us, shall your city call us lord,

In that behalf which we have challeng'd it? 264

Or shall we give the signal to our rage

And stalk in blood to our possession?

First Cit In brief, we are the King of England's subjects

For him, and in his right we hold this town 268

K John Acknowledge then the king, and let me in.

First Cit That can we not, but he that proves

the king,

To him will we prove loyal till that time

Have we ramm'd up our gates against the world.

K John Doth not the crown of England prove the king? 273

And if not that, I bring you witnesses,

Twice fifteen thousand hearts of England's breed.—

Bast Bastards, and else 276

K John To verify our title with their lives

K Phi As many and as well-born bloods as those,—

Bast Some bastards too

K Phi Stand in his face to contradict his claim. 280

First Cit Till thou compound whose right is worthiest,

We for the worthiest hold the right from both

K John Then God forgive the sins of all those souls

That to their everlasting residence, 284

Before the dew of evening fall, shall fleet,

In dreadful trial of our kingdom's king!

K Phi Amen, Amen! Mount, chevaliers!

to arms!

Bast Saint George, that swing'd the dragon, and e'er since 288

Sits on his horse back at mine hostess' door,

Teach us some fence! [To AUSTRIA] Sirrah, were I at home,

At your den, sirrah, with your honess,

I would set an ox-head to your lion's hide, 292

And make a monster of you.

Aust Peace! no more

Bast O! tremble, for you hear the lion roar

K John Up higher to the plain, where we'll set forth

In best appointment all our regiments. 296

Bast Speed then, to take advantage of the field

K Phi It shall be so, [To LEWIS.] and at the other hill

Command the rest to stand. God, and our right! [Exeunt]

Alarums and excursions then a retreat Enter a French Herald, with trumpets, to the gates

F Her. You men of Angiers, open wide your gates, 300

And let young Arthur, Duke of Britaine, in,
Who, by the hand of France this day hath made Much work for tears in many an English mother, Whose sons he scatter'd on the bleeding ground,
Many a widow's husband grovelling lies, 305
Coldly embracing the discolour'd earth,
And victory, with little loss, doth play
Upon the dancing banners of the French, 308
Who are at hand, triumphantly display'd,
To enter conquerors and to proclaim Arthur of Britaine England's king and yours.

Enter Engl sh Herald, with trumpets

E Her Rejoice, you men of Angiers, ring your bells, 312

King John, your king and England's, doth approach, Commander of this hot malicious day
Their armours, that march'd hence so silver-bright,

Hither return all gilt with Frenchmen's blood,
There stuck no plume in any English crest 317
That is removed by a staff of France,
Our colours do return in those same hands That did display them when we first march'd
forth, 320

And, like a jolly troop of huntsmen, come
Our lusty English, all with purpled hands
Dy'd in the dying slaughter of their foes
Open your gates and give the victors way 324

First Cit Heralds, from off our towers we might behold,

From first to last, the onset and retire
Of both your armies, whose equality
By our best eyes cannot be censured 328
Blood hath bought blood, and blows have answer'd blows,

Strength match'd with strength, and power confronted power

Both are alike, and both alike we like One must prove greatest while they weigh so even, 332

We hold our town for neither, yet for both.

Re-enter the two KINGS, with their powers, severally

K John France, hast thou yet more blood to cast away?

Say, shall the current of our right run on?
Whose passage, vex'd with thy impediment, 336
Shall leave his native channel and o'erswell
With course disturb'd even thy confining shores, Unless thou let his silver water keep
A peaceful progress to the ocean. 340

K Phi England, thou hast not sav'd one drop of blood,

In this hot trial, more than we of France,
Rather, lost more and by this hand I swear,
That sways the earth this climate overlooks, 344
Before we will lay down our just-borne arms, We'll put thee down, gainst whom these arms
we bear,

Or add a royal number to the dead,
Gracing the scroll that tells of this war's loss 348
With slaughter coupled to the name of kings.

Bast Ha, majesty! how high thy glory towers
When the rich blood of kings is set on fire!
O! now doth Death line his dead chaps with steel, 352

The swords of soldiers are his teeth, his fangs,
And now he feasts, mousing the flesh of men,
In undetermin'd differences of kings.

Why stand these royal fronts amazed?
Cry 'havoc!' kings, back to the stained field,
You equal-potents, fierv-kindled spirits!
Then let confusion of one part confirm

The other's peace, till then, blows, blood, and
death! 360

K John Whose party do the townsmen yet admit?

K Phi Speak, citizens, for England, who's your king?

First Cit The King of England, when we know the king

K Phi Know him in us, that here hold up his right. 364

K John In us, that are our own great deputy
And bear possession of our person here,
Lord of our presence, Angiers, and of you.

First Cit A greater power than we denies all
this, 368

And, till it be undoubted, we do lock
Our former scruple in our strong-barr'd gates, Kings of ourselves, until our fears, resolv'd,
Be by some certain king purg'd and depos'd. 372

Bast By heaven, these scroyles of Angiers flout you, kings,

And stand securely on their battlements
As in a theatre, whence they gape and point
At your industrious scenes and acts of death. 376

Your royal presences be rul'd by me
Do like the munnies of Jerusalem,

Be friends awhile and both conjointly bend
Your sharpest deeds of malice on this town. 380

By east and west let France and England mount Their battering cannon charged to the mouths, Till their soul-fearing clamours have brawl'd
down

The flinty ribs of this contemptuous city* 384
I'd play incessantly upon these jades. —

Even till unfenced desolation
Leave them as naked as the vulgar air

That done, dis sever your united strengths, 388
And part your mingled colours once again;

Turn face to face and bloody point to point;
Then, in a moment, Fortune shall cull forth

Out of one side her happy minion, 392
To whom in favour she shall give the day,

And kiss him with a glorious victory
How like you this wild counsel, mighty states?

Smacks it not something of the policy? 396

K John Now, by the sky that hangs above our heads,

I like it well. France, shall we knit our powers
And lay this Angiers even with the ground,

Then after fight who shall be king of it? 400

Bast An if thou hast the mettle of a king,
Being wrong'd as we are by this peevish town,

Turn thou the mouth of thy artillery,
As we will ours, against these saucy walls, 404 And when that we have dash'd them to the ground,

Why then defy each other, and, pell-mell,
Make work upon ourselves, for heaven or hell K. Phi. Let it be so. Say, where will you assault? 408

K. John. We from the west will send destruction

Into this city's bosom

Ass. I from the north

K. Phi. Our thunder from the south

Shall ram their drift of bullets on this town 412

Bast. O, prudent discipline! From north to south

Austria and France shoot in each other's mouth I'll stir them to it. Come, away, away!

First Cit. Hear us, great kings vouchsafe a while to stay, 416

And I shall show you peace and fair-fac'd league,

Win you this city without stroke or wound,
Rescue those breathing lives to die in beds,

That here come sacrifices for the field 420
Persever not, but hear me, mighty kings

K. John. Speak on with favour we are bent to hear

First Cit. That daughter there of Spain, the Lady Blanch,

Is near to England look upon the years 424
Of Lewis the Dauphin and that lovely maid.

If lusty love should go in quest of beauty,
Where should he find it fairer than in Blanch?

If zealous love should go in search of virtue,
Where should he find it purer than in Blanch?

If love ambitious sought a match of birth,
Whose veins bound richer blood than Lady Blanch?

Such as she is, in beauty, virtue, birth, 432
Is the young Dauphin every way complete

If not complete of, say he is not she,
And she again wants nothing, to name want,

If want it be not that she is not he 436
He is the half part of a blessed man,

Left to be finished by such a she,
And she a fair divided excellence,

Whose fulness of perfection lies in him. 440
O' two such silver currents when they join,

Do glorify the banks that bound them in,
And two such shores to two such streams made
one,

Two such controlling bounds shall you be,
kings, 444

To these two princes, if you marry them.

This union shall do more than battery can
To our fast-closed gates, for at this match,

With swifter spleen than powder can enforce, 448
The mouth of passage shall we fling wide ope,

And give you entrance, but without this match,
The sea enraged is not half so deaf,

Lions more confident, mountains and rocks 452
More free from motion, no, not death himself

In mortal fury half so peremptory,
As we to keep this city

Bast.

Here's a stay,

That shakes the rotten carcase of old Death 456
Out of his rags! Here's a large mouth, indeed, That spits forth death and mountains, rocks and seas,

Talks as familiarly of roaring lions
As maids of thirteen do of puppy-dogs 460

What cannoneer begot this lusty blood?
He speaks plain cannon fire, and smoke and bounce,

He gives the bastinado with his tongue,
Our ears are cudgell'd, not a word of his 464

But buffets better than a fist of France
'Zounds! I was never so bethump'd with words

Since I first call'd my brother's father dad Eli [Aside to KING JOHN] Son, list to this conjunction, make this match, 468

Give with our niece a dowry large enough
For by this knot thou shalt so surely tie

Thy now unsur'd assurance to the crown,
That you green boy shall have no sun to ripe 472

The bloom that promiseth a mighty fruit.
I see a yielding in the looks of France,

Mark how they whisper urge them while their souls

Are capable of this ambition, 476
Lest zeal, now melted by the windy breath

Of soft petitions, pity and remorse, Cool and congeal again to what it was First Cit. Why answer not the double majesties 480

This friendly treaty of our threaten'd town?
K. Phi. Speak England first, that hath been forward first

To speak unto this city what say you?
K. John. If that the Dauphin there, thy princely son 484

Can in this book of beauty read 'I love,'
Her dowry shall weigh equal with a queen

For Anjou, and fair Touraine, Maine, Poitiers,
And all that we upon this side the sea,— 488

Except this city now by us besieged,— Find hable to our crown and dignity,

Shall gild her bridal bed and make her rich
In titles, honours, and promotions, 492

As she in beauty, education, blood,
Holds hand with any princess of the world

K. Phi. What sayst thou, boy? look in the lady's face

Lew. I do, my lord, and in her eye I find 496
A wonder, or a wondrous miracle,

The shadow of myself form'd in her eye,
Which, being but the shadow of your son

Becomes a sun, and makes your son a shadow
I do protest I never lov'd myself 501

Till now mix'd I beheld myself,
Drawn in the flattering table of her eye

[Whispers with BLANCH]
Bast. Drawn in the flattering table of her eye!

Hang'd in the frowning wrinkle of her brow!
And quarter'd in her heart! he doth espy

Himself love's traitor this is pity now,
That hang'd and drawn and quarter'd, there should be 505

In such a love so vile a lout as he Blanch. My uncle's will in this respect 1
mine

If he see aught in you that makes him like,
That anything he sees, which moves his liking,
I can with ease translate it to my will, 513
Or if you will, to speak more properly, I will enforce it easily to my love
Further I will not flatter you, my lord, 516
That all I see in you is worthy love,
Than this that nothing do I see in you, Though churlish thoughts themselves should be your judge,

That I can find should merit any hate 520 K John What say these young ones? What say you, my niece?

Blanch That she is bound in honour still to do

What you in wisdom still vouchsafe to say K John Speak then, Prince Dauphin, can you love this lady? 524

Lew Nay, ask me if I can refrain from love,
For I do love her most unfeignedly

K John Then do I give Volquessen, Touraine, Maine,

Poitiers, and Anjou, these five provinces, 528
With her to thee, and this addition more,
Full thirty thousand marks of English coin.

Philip of France, if thou be pleas'd withal, Command thy son and daughter to join hands

K Phi It likes us well. Young princes, close your hands 533

Aust And your lips too, for I am well assur'd
That I did so when I was first assur'd.

K Phi Now, citizens of Angiers, ope your gates, 536

Let in that amity which you have made,
For at Saint Mary's chapel presently

The rites of marriage shall be solemniz'd.
Is not the Lady Constance in this troop? 540

I know she is not, for this match made up Her presence would have interrupted much

Where is she and her son? tell me, who knows Lew She is sad and passionate at your highness' tent. 544

K Phi And, by my faith, this league that we have made

Will give her sadness very little cure
Brother of England, how may we content

This widow lady? In her right we came, 548
Which we, God knows, have turn'd another way,
To our own vantage.

K John. We will heal up all,
For we'll create young Arthur Duke of Britaine

And Earl of Richmond, and this rich fair town
We make him lord of. Call the Lady Constance

Some speedy messenger bid her repair
To our solemnity I trust we shall, 556

If not fill up the measure of her will,
Yet in some measure satisfy her so,

That we shall stop her exclamation.
Go we, as well as haste will suffer us,

To this unlook'd-for unprepared pomp 560 [Exeunt all except the BASTARD The Citizens retire from the walls Bast Mad world! mad kings! mad composition!

John, to stop Arthur's title in the whole,
Hath willingly departed with a part,

And France, whose armour conscience buckled
on, 564

Whom zeal and charity brought to the field
As God's own soldier, rounded in the ear

With that same purpose-changer, that sly devil,
That broker, that still breaks the pate of faith,

That daily break-vow, he that wins of all, 569
Of kings, of beggars, old men, young men, maids,

Who having no external thing to lose But the word 'maid,' cheats the poor maid of
that, 572

That smooth-fac'd gentleman, tickling Commodity,

Commodity, the bias of the world,
The world, who of itself is peized well,

Made to run even upon even ground, 576
Till this advantage, this vile-drawing bias,
This sway of motion, this Commodity,

Makes it take head from all indifferency,
From all direction, purpose, course, intent 580

And this same bias, this Commodity,
Thus bawd, this broker, this all-changing word,

Clapp'd on the outward eye of fickle France,
Hath drawn him from his own determin'd aid,

From a resolv'd and honourable war, 585
To a most base and vile-concluded peace
And why rail I on this Commodity?

But for because he hath not woo'd me yet 588
Not that I have the power to clutch my hand
When his fair angels would salute my palm,

But for my hand, as unattempted yet,
Like a poor beggar, raileth on the rich 592

Well, whiles I am a beggar, I will rail,
And say there is no sin but to be rich,

And being rich, my virtue then shall be
To say there is no vice but beggary 596

Since kings break faith upon Commodity, Gain, be my lord, for I will worship thee! [Exit

ACT III

SCENE I—France The French King's Tent

Enter CONSTANCE, ARTHUR, and SALISBURY

Const Gone to be married! gone to swear a peace!

False blood to false blood join'd! gone to be friends!

Shall Lewis have Blanch, and Blanch those provinces?

It is not so, thou hast misspoke, misheard; 4
Be well advis'd, tell o'er thy tale again

It cannot be, thou dost but say 'tis so * I trust I may not trust thee, for thy word is but the vain breath of a common man 8 Believe me, I do not believe thee, man,

I have a king's oath to the contrary
Thou shalt be punish'd for thus frightening me,

For I am sick and capable of fears, 12 Oppress'd with wrongs, and therefore full of fears,

A widow, husbandless, subject to fears,
A woman, naturally born to fears,

And though thou now confess thou dost but jest, 16

With my vex'd spirits I cannot take a truce,
But they will quake and tremble all this day What dost thou mean by shaking of thy head?

Why dost thou look so sadly on my son? 20
What means that hand upon that breast of thine?

Why holds thine eye that lamentable rheum,
Like a proud river peering o'er his bounds?
Be these sad signs confirmers of thy words? 24
Then speak again, not all thy former tale,
But this one word, whether thy tale be true

Sal As true as I believe you think them false

That give you cause to prove my saying true 28 Const O! if thou teach me to believe this sorrow,

Teach thou this sorrow how to make me die,
And let belief and life encounter so
As doth the fury of two desperate men 32
Which in the very meeting fall and die Lewis marry Blanch! O boy! then where art thou?

France friend with England what becomes of
me?

Fellow, be gone! I cannot brook thy sight 36
This news hath made thee a most ugly man

Sal What other harm have I, good lady,
done,

But spoke the harm that is by others done?

Const Which harm within itself so heinous is
As it makes harmful all that speak of it 41

Arth I do beseech you, madam, be content.

Const If thou, that bidd'st me be content,
wert grim,

Ugly and slanderous to thy mother's womb 44
Full of unpleasing blots and sightless stains, Lame, foolish, crooked, swart, prodigious, Patch'd with foul moles and eye-offending marks,

I would not care, I then would be content 48
For then I should not love thee, no, nor thou Become thy great birth, nor deserve a crown.

But thou art fair, and at thy birth, dear boy, Nature and Fortune join'd to make thee great
Of Nature's gifts thou mayst with lilies boast 53
And with the half-blown rose But Fortune, O!
She is corrupted, chang'd, and won from
thee

She adulterates hourly with thine uncle John, 56
And with her golden hand hath pluck'd on France

To tread down fair respect of sovereignty,
And made his majesty the bawd to theirs.
France is a bawd to Fortune and King John, 60
That strumpet Fortune, that usurping John!
Tell me, thou fellow, is not France forsworn?
Envenom him with words, or get thee gone

And leave those woes alone which I alone 64
Am bound to underbear

Sal Pardon me, madam,

I may not go without you to the kings Const Thou mayst, thou shalt I will not go
with thee

I will instruct my sorrows to be proud, 68
For grief is proud and makes his owner stoop

To me and to the state of my great grief
Let kings assemble, for my grief's so great That no supporter but the huge firm earth 72
Can hold it up here I and sorrows sit,
Here is my throne, bid kings come bow to it [Sits herself on the ground]

Enter KING JOHN, KING PHILIP, LEWIS, BLANCH, ELINOR, the BASTARD, DUKE OF AUSTRIA, and Attendants

K Phi 'Tis true, fair daughter, and this blessed day

Ever in France shall be kept festival 76
To solemnize this day the glorious sun
Stays in his course and plays the alchemist, Turning with splendour of his precious eye
The meagre cloddy earth to glittering gold 80
The yearly course that brings this day about Shall never see it but a holiday

Const [Rising] A wicked day, and not a holy day!

What hath this day deserv'd? what hath it done
That it in golden letters should be set 85
Among the high tides in the calendar?

Nay, rather turn this day out of the week,
This day of shame, oppression, perjury 88

Or, if it must stand still, let wives with child Pray that their burdens may not fall this day,

Least that their hopes prodigiously be cross'd
But on this day let seamen fear no wrack, 92

No bargains break that are not this day made,
This day all things begun come to ill end;

Yea, faith itself to hollow falsehood change!

K Phi By heaven, lady, you shall have no
cause 96

To curse the fair proceedings of this day
Have I not pawn'd to you my majesty?

Const You have beguil'd me with a counterfeit

Resembling majesty, which, being touch'd and tried, 100

Proves valueless you are forsworn, forsworn,
You came in arms to spill mine enemies' blood,

But now in arms you strengthen it with yours
The grappling vigour and rough frown of war

Is cold in amity and painted peace, 105
And our oppression hath made up this league

Arm, arm, you heavens, against these perjur'd kings!

A widow cries, be husband to me, heavens! 108
Let not the hours of this ungodly day

Wear out the day in peace, but, ere sunset,
Set armed discord 'twixt these perjur'd kings!

Hear me! O, hear me!

Aust Lady Constance, peace!

Const War! war! no peace! peace is to me a war, 113

O, Lymoges! O, Austria! thou dost shame
That bloody spoil thou slave, thou wretch, thou coward!

Thou little valiant, great in villany! 116

Thou ever strong upon the stronger side!

Thou Fortune's champion, that dost never fight But when her humorous ladyship is by

To teach thee safety! thou art perjur'd too, 120

And sooth'st up greatness. What a fool art thou,

A ramping fool, to brag, and stamp and swear Upon my party! Thou cold-blooded slave, Hast thou not spoke like thunder on my side?
Been sworn my soldier? bidding me depend Upon thy stars, thy fortune, and thy strength?
And dost thou now fall over to my foes?

Thou wear a lion's hide! doff it for shame, 128
And hang a calf's-skin on those recreant limbs Aust O! that a man should speak those words to me

East And hang a calf's-skin on those recreant limbs

Aust Thou dar'st not say so, villain, for thy life 132

East And hang a calf's-skin on those recreant limbs

K John We like not this, thou dost forget thyself

Enter PANDULPH.

K Phil Here comes the holy legate of the pope

Pand Hail, you anointed deputies of heaven!
To thee, King John, my holy errand is 137

I Pandulph of fair Milan cardinal,
And from Pope Innocent the legate here,

Do in his name religiously demand 140
Why thou against the church, our holy mother,

So wilfully dost spurn, and, force perforce,
Keep Stephen Langton, chosen Archbishop

Of Canterbury, from that holy see? 144
Thus, in our foresaid holy father's name,

Pope Innocent, I do demand of thee K John What earthly name to interrogatories

Can task the free breath of a sacred king? 148

Thou canst not, cardinal, devise a name
So slight, unworthy and ridiculous,

To charge me to an answer, as the pope Tell him thus tale, and from the mouth of England 152

Add thus much more that no Italian priest

Shall tithes or toll in our dominions,
But as we under heaven are supreme head,

So under him that great supremacy, 156
Where we do reign, we will alone uphold,

Without the assistance of a mortal hand
So tell the pope, all reverence set apart

To him, and his usurp'd authority 160
K Phil Brother of England, you blaspheme

in this K John Though you and all the kings of Christendom

Are led so grossly by this meddling priest, Dreading the curse that money may buy out,

And, by the merit of vile gold, dross, dust, 165
Purchase corrupted pardon of a man,

Who in that sale sells pardon from himself,
Though you and all the rest so grossly led 168

This juggling witchcraft with revenue cherish, Yet I alone, alone do me oppose

Against the pope, and count his friends my foes

Pand Then, by the lawful power that I have,
Thou shalt stand cur'd and excommunicate

And blessed shall he be that doth revolt

From his allegiance to a heretic,
And meritorious shall that hand be call'd, 176
Canonized and worshipp'd as a saint,
That takes away by any secret course Thy hateful life

Const O! lawful let it be
That I have room with Rome to curse awhile.

Good father cardinal, cry thou amen 181
To my keen curses, for without my wrong

There is no tongue hath power to curse him right

Pand There's law and warrant, lady, for my curse 184

Const And for mine too when law can do no right,

Let it be lawful that law bar no wrong
Law cannot give my child his kingdom here,

For he that holds his kingdom holds the law
Therefore, since law itself is perfect wrong, 189

How can the law forbid my tongue to curse?
Pand Philip of France, on peril of a curse,

Let go the hand of that arch-heretic, 192
And raise the power of France upon his head,

Unless he do submit himself to Rome.
Eli Look st thou pale, France? do not let go thy hand

Const Look 'o that, devil, lest that France

repent, 196
And by disjoining hands hell lose a soul

Aust King Philip, listen to the cardinal.
East And hang a calf's-skin on his recreant limbs Aust Well, ruffian, I must pocket up these wrongs, 200

Because—
East Your breeches best may carry them.

K John Philip, what sayst thou to the cardinal?

Const What should he say, but as the cardinal?

Low Bethink you, father, for the difference
Is purchase of a heavy curse from Rome, 205

Or the light loss of England for a friend Forego the easier

Blanch That's the curse of Rome.
Const O Lewis, stand fast! the devil tempts thee here, 208

In likeness of a new untrussed bride.

Blanch The Lady Constance speaks not from her faith,

But from her need
Const O! if thou grant my need,

Which only lives but by the death of faith, 212
That need must needs infer this principle,

That faith would live again by death of need O! then, tread down my need, and faith mounts

up
Keep my need up, and faith is trodden down.

K John The king is mov'd, and answers not to this. 217

Const O! be remov'd from him, and answer
well.

Aust Do so, King Philip. hang no more in doubt.

East Hang nothing but a calf's-skin, most sweet lout. 220

K Ph I am perplex'd, and know not what to say

Pand What canst thou say but will perplex thee more,

If thou stand excommunicate and curs'd?

K Ph Good reverend father, make my person yours, ²²⁴

And tell me how you would bestow yourself

This royal hand and mine are newly knit,

And the conjunction of our inward souls

Marr'd in league, coupl'd and link'd together

With all religious strength of sacred vows, ²²⁹

The latest breath that gave the sound of words

Was deep-sworn faith, peace, amity, true love,

Between our kingdoms and our royal selves, ²³²

And even before this truce, but new before,

No longer than we well could wash our hands

To clasp this royal bargain up of peace,

Heaven knows, they were besmear'd and over-stain'd ²³⁶

With slaughter's pencil, where revenge did paint

The fearful difference of incensed kings

And shall these hands so lately purg'd of blood,

So newly join'd in love, so strong in both, ²⁴⁰

Unyoke this seizure and this kind regret?

Play fast and loose with faith? so jest with

heaven,

Make such unconstant children of ourselves,

As now again to snatch our palm from palm,

Unswear faith sworn, and on the marriage-bed

Of smiling peace to march a bloody host,

And make a riot on the gentle brow

Of true sincerity? O! holy sir, ²⁴⁸

My reverend father, let it not be so!

Out of your grace, devise, ordain, impose

Some gentle order, and then we shall be bless'd

To do your pleasure and continue friends ²⁵²

Pand All form is formless, order orderless,

Save what is opposite to England's love

Therefore to arms! be champion of our church,

Or let the church, our mother, breathe her curse,

A mother's curse, on her revolting son. ²⁵⁷

France, thou mayst hold a serpent by the tongue,

A chafed lion by the mortal paw,

A fasting tiger safer by the tooth, ²⁶⁰

Than keep in peace that hand which thou dost

hold.

K Ph I may disjoin my hand, but not my faith.

Pand So mak'st thou faith an enemy to faith

And like a civil war sett'st oath to oath, ²⁶⁴

Thy tongue against thy tongue O! let thy vow

First made to heaven, first be to heaven per-

form'd,

That is, to be the champion of our church.

What since thou swor'st is sworn against thyself

And may not be performed by thyself, ²⁶⁹

For that which thou hast sworn to do amiss

Is not amiss when it is truly done,

And being not done, where doing tends to ill,

The truth is then most done not doing it. ²⁷³

The better act of purposes mistook

Is to mistake agam, though indirect,

Yet induction thereby grows direct, ²⁷⁶

And falsehood falsehood cures, as fire cools fire

Within the scorched veins of one new-burn'd,

It is religion that doth make vows kept,

But thou hast sworn against religion ²⁸⁰

By what thou swear'st, against the thing thou swear'st,

And mak'st an oath the surety for thy truth

Against an oath the truth thou art unsure

To swear, swears only not to be forsworn, ²⁸⁴

Else what a mockery should it be to swear!

But thou dost swear only to be forsworn,

And most forsworn, to keep what thou dost

swear

Therefore thy later vows against thy first ²⁸⁸

Is in thyself rebellion to thyself,

And better conquest never canst thou make

Than arm thy constant and thy nobler parts

Against these giddy loose suggestions ²⁹²

Upon which better part our prayers come in,

If thou vouchsafe them, but, if not, then know

The peril of our curses light on thee

So heavy as thou shalt not shake them off, ²⁹⁶

But in despair die under their black weight

Aust Rebellion, flat rebellion!

Bast Will't not be?

Will not a calf's-skin stop that mouth of thine?

Lew Father, to arms!

Blanch Upon thy wedding-day? ³⁰⁰

Against the blood that thou hast married?

What! shall our feast be kept with slaughter'd

men?

Shall braying trumpets and loud churlish drums,

Clamours of hell, be measures to our pomp? ³⁰⁴

O husband, hear me! ay, alack! how new

Is husband in my mouth, even for that name,

Which till this time my tongue did ne'er pronounce,

Upon my knee I beg, go not to arms ³⁰⁸

Against mine uncle

Const O! upon my knee,

Made hard with kneeling, I do pray to thee,

Thou virtuous Dauphin, alter not the doom

Forethought by heaven. ³¹²

Blanch Now shall I see thy love what motive may

Be stronger with thee than the name of wife?

Const That which upholdeth him that thee upholds,

His honour O! thine nonour, Lewis, thine honour ³¹⁶

Lew I muse your majesty doth seem so cold,

When such profound respects do pull you on

Pand I will denounce a curse upon his head

K Ph Thou shalt not need England, I'll fall from thee ³²⁰

Const O fair return of banish'd majesty!

Eli O foul revolt of French inconstancy!

K John France, thou shalt rue this hour within this hour

Bast Old Time the clock-setter, that bald sexton Time, ³²⁴

Is it as he will? well then, France shall rue.

Blanch The sun's o'ercast with blood fair day, adieu!

Which is the side that I must go withal?

I am with both each army hath a hand; ³²⁸

And in their rage, I having hold of both.

They whirl asunder and dismember me
 Husband, I cannot pray that thou mayst win Uncle, I needs must pray that thou mayst lose, Father, I may not wish the fortune thine, 333
 Grandam, I will not wish thy wishes thrive
 Whoever wins on that side shall I lose Assured loss before the match be play'd 336
Lew Lady, with me, with me thy fortune lies Blanch There where my fortune lies, there my life dies

K John Cousin, go draw our puissance together

[Exit BASTARD
 France, I am burn'd up with inflaming wrath,
 A rage whose heat hath this condition, 341

That nothing can allay, nothing but blood,
 The blood, and dearest-valu'd blood of France

K Phi Thy rage shall burn thee up, and thou shalt turn 344

To ashes, ere our blood shall quench that fire
 Look to thyself, thou art in jeopardy

K John No more than he that threatens To arms let's hie! [Exeunt]

SCENE II—The Same Plains near Angiers

Alarums, excursions Enter the BASTARD, with the DUKE OF AUSTRIA's head

Bast Now, by my life, this day grows wondrous hot,

Some airy devil hovers in the sky

And pours down mischief Austria's head lie
 there,

While Philip breathes 4

Enter KING JOHN, ARTHUR, and HUBERT

K John Hubert, keep this boy Philip, make up,

My mother is assailed in our tent,
 And ta'en, I fear

Bast My lord I rescu'd her,
 Her highness is in safety, fear you not 8

But on my hege for very little pains
 Will bring this labour to a happy end [Exeunt]

SCENE III—The Same

Alarums excursions retreat Enter KING JOHN, ELINOR, ARTHUR, the BASTARD, HUBERT, and Lords

K John [To ELINOR] So shall it be, your grace shall stay behind

So strongly guarded. [To ARTHUR] Cousin, look not sad

Thy grandam loves thee, and thy uncle will
 As dear be to thee as thy father was 4

Arth O! this will make my mother die with grief

K John [To the BASTARD] Cousin, away for England! haste before,

And, ere our coming, see thou shake the bags
 Of hoarding abbots, set at liberty 8

Imprison'd angels the fat ribs of peace Must by the hungry now be fed upon

Use our commission in his utmost force.

Bast Bell, book, and candle shall not drive me back 12

When gold and silver beckons me to come on I leave your highness Grandam, I will pray,—
 If ever I remember to be holy,

For your fair safety, so I kiss your hand. 16

Eli Farewell, gentle cousin.

K John Corz, farewell

[Exit BASTARD]

Eli Come hither, little kinsman, hark, a word [She takes ARTHUR aside]

K John Come hither, Hubert O my gentle

Hubert,

We owe thee much within this wall of flesh 20

There is a soul counts thee her creditor,

And with advantage means to pay thy love

And, my good friend, thy voluntary oath

Lives in this bosom, dearly cherish'd 24

Give me thy hand I had a thing to say,

But I will fit it with some better time

By heaven, Hubert, I am almost ashamed

To say what good respect I have of thee 28

Hub I am much bounden to your majesty

K John Good friend, thou hast no cause to say so yet,

But thou shalt have, and creep time ne'er so slow,

Yet it shall come for me to do thee good 32

I had a thing to say, out let it go

The sun is in the heaven, and the proud day,

Attended with the pleasures of the world,

Is all too wanton and too full of gawds 36

To give me audience if the midnigh bell

Did, with his iron tongue and brazen mouth,

Sound one into the drowsy race of night

If this same were a churchyard where we stand,

And thou possessed with a thousand wrongs, 41

Or if that surly spirit, melancholy,

Had bak'd thy blood and made it heavy-thick,

Which else runs tickling up and down the veins,

Making that idiot, laughter, keep men's eyes 45

And strain their cheeks to idle merriment,

A passion hateful to my purposes,

Or if that thou couldst see me without eyes, 48

Hear me without thine ears, and make reply

Without a tongue, using conceit alone,

Without eyes, ears, and harmful sound of words,

Then, in despite of brooded watchful day, 52

I would into thy bosom pour my thoughts

But ah! I will not yet I love thee well,

And, by my troth, I think thou lov'st me well.

Hub So well, that what you bid me undertake, 56

Though that my death were adjunct to my act,

By heaven, I would do it

K John Do not I know thou wouldst?

Good Hubert! Hubert, Hubert, throw thine eye

On yon young boy I'll tell thee what, my friend, 60

He is a very serpent in my way,

And wheresoe'er this foot of mine doth tread

He lies before me dost thou understand me?

Thou art his keeper

Hub And I'll keep him so 64

That he shall not offend your majesty

K John Death.

Hub My lord?

K John. A grave
Hub He shall not live.
K John Enough
 I could be merry now Hubert, I love thee, Well, I'll not say what I intend for thee 68
 Remember Madam, fare you well.
 I'll send those powers o'er to your majesty El My blessing go with thee!
K John For England, cousin, go
 Hubert shall be your man, attend on you 72
 With all true duty On toward Calais ho!
 [Exeunt]

SCENE IV — The Same The French King's Tent

Enter KING PHILIP, LEWIS, PANDULPH, and Attendants

K Ph So, by a roaring tempest on the flood,
 A whole armada of convicted sail
 Is scatter'd and disjoint'd from fellowship Pand Courage and comfort! all shall yet go
 well 4
K Ph What can go well when we have run
 so ill?

Are we not beaten? Is not Angiers lost?
 Arthur ta'en prisoner? divers dear friends slain?
 And bloody England into England gone, 8
 O'erbearing interruption, spite of France?
Lew What he hath won that hath he fortified

So hot a speed with such advice dispos'd,
 Such temperate order in so fierce a cause, 12
 Doth want example who hath read or heard Of any kindred action like to this?

K Ph Well could I bear that England had this praise,
 So we could find some pattern of our shame 16

Enter CONSTANCE.

Look, who comes here! a grave unto a soul, Holding the eternal spirit, against her will,
 In the vile prison of afflicted breath.
 I prithee lady, go away with me 20

Const Lo now! now see the issue of your peace.

K Ph Patience, good lady! comfort, gentle Constance!

Const No, I defy all counsel, all redress,
 But that which ends all counsel, true redress, 24
 Death, death O, amiable lovely death!
 Thou odoriferous stench! sound rottenness!
 Arise forth from the couch of lasting night,
 Thou hate and terror to prosperity, 28
 And I will kiss thy detestable bones,
 And put my eyeballs in thy vauky brows,
 And ring these fingers with thy household worms,
 And stop this gap of breath with fulsome dust,
 And be a carrion monster like thyself 32
 Come, grin on me, and I will think thou smilest And buss thee as thy wife! Misery's love, O! come to me.

K Ph. O fair affliction, peace! 36 Const No, no, I will not, having breath to cry—

O! that my tongue were in the thunder's mouth!

Then with a passion would I shake the world,
 And rouse from sleep that fell anatomy 40
 Which cannot hear a lady's feeble voice,
 Which scorns a modern invocation Pand Lady, you utter madness, and not sorrow

Const Thou art not holy to belie me so, 44
 I am not mad this hair I tear is mine,
 My name is Constance, I was Geoffrey's wife,
 Young Arthur is my son, and he is lost!
 I am not mad I would to heaven I were! 48
 For then 'tis like I should forget myself
 O! if I could, what grief should I forget Preach some philosophy to make me mad,
 And thou shalt be canoniz'd, cardinal, 52
 For being not mad but sensible of grief,
 My reasonable part produces reason
 How I may be deliver'd of these woes,
 And teaches me to kill or hang myself 56
 If I were mad, I should forget my son, Or madly think a babe of clouts were he I am not mad too well, too well I feel
 The different plague of each calamity 60

K Ph Bind up those tresses O! what love
 I note

In the fair multitude of those her hairs
 Where but by chance a silver drop hath fallen,
 Even to that drop ten thousand wry friends 64
 Do glue themselves in sociable grief,
 Like true, inseparable, faithful loves,
 Sticking together in calamity Const To England, if you will K Ph Bind up your hairs 68 Const Yes, that I will, and wherefore will I
 do it?

I tore them from their bonds, and cried aloud
 O! that these hands could so redeem my son
 As they have given these hairs their liberty! 72
 But now I envy at their liberty,
 And will again commit them to their bonds,
 Because my poor child is a prisoner
 And, father cardinal, I have heard you say 76
 That we shall see and know our friends in heaven.
 If that be true, I shall see my boy again,
 For since the birth of Cain the first male child,
 To him that did but yesterday expire, 80
 There was not such a gracious creature born
 But now will canker-sorrow eat my bud
 And chase the native beauty from his cheek,
 And he will look as hollow as a ghost, 84
 As dim and meagre as an ague's fit,
 And so he'll die, and, rising so again,
 When I shall meet him in the court of heaven
 I shall not know him therefore never, never 88 Must I behold my pretty Arthur more

Pand You hold too hemous a respect of grief

Const He talks to me, that never had a son K Ph You are as fond of grief as of your child 92
Const Grief fills the room up of my absent
 child,

Lies in his bed, walks up and down with me,
 Puts on his pretty looks, repeats his words,
 Remembers me of all his gracious parts, 96 Stuffs out his vacant garments with his form

Then have I reason to be fond of grief Fare you well had you such a loss as I,
 I could give better comfort than you do 100
 I will not keep this form upon my head
 When there is such disorder in my wit
 O Lord! my boy, my Arthur, my fair son!
 My life, my joy, my food, my all the world! 104
 My widow-comfort, and my sorrows' cure!

K. Phi I fear some outrage, and I'll follow
 her

Lew There's nothing in this world can make me joy

Life is as tedious as a twice-told tale, 108
 Vexing the dull ear of a drowsy man,
 And bitter shame hath spoil'd the sweet world's taste,

That it yields nought but shame and bitterness Pand Before the curing of a strong disease, Even in the instant of repair and health, 113
 The fit is strongest evils that take leave,
 On their departure most of all show evil

What have you lost by losing of this day? 116
Lew All days of glory, joy, and happiness

Pand If you had won it, certainly you had No, no when Fortune means to men most
 good,

She looks upon them with a threatening eye 120
 'Tis strange to think how much King John hath lost

In this which he accounts so clearly won
 Are not you griev'd that Arthur is his prisoner?

Lew As heartily as he is glad he hath him Pand Your mind is all as youthful as your blood 125

Now hear me speak with a prophetic spirit,
 For even the breath of what I mean to speak Shall blow each dust, each straw, each little rub,
 Out of the path which shall directly lead 120 Thy foot to England's throne, and therefore mark

John hath seiz'd Arthur, and it cannot be,
 That whiles warm life plays in that infant's
 veins 132

The misplac'd John should entertain an hour,
 One minute, nay, one quiet breath of rest.
 A sceptre snatch'd with an unruly hand
 Must be as boisterously maintain'd as gain'd,
 And he that stands upon a slippery place 137
 Makes nice of no vile hold to stay him up That John may stand, then Arthur needs must fall,

So be it, for it cannot be but so 140
Lew But what shall I gain by young Arthur's fall?

Pand You, in the right of Lady Blanch your
 wife,

May then make all the claim that Arthur did.
Lew And lose it, life and all, as Arthur did.

Pand How green you are and fresh in this old world! 145

John lays you plots, the times conspire with you,
 For he that steeps his safety in true blood Shall find but bloody safety and untrue 148
 This act so evilly borne shall cool the hearts
 Of all his people and freeze up their zeal,

That none so small advantage shall step forth
 To check his reign, but they will cherish it, 152
 No natural exhalation in the sky,
 No scope of nature, no distemper'd day,
 No common wind, no custom'd event,
 But they will pluck away his natural cause 156
 And call them meteors, prodigies, and signs, Abortives, presages, and tongues of heaven,
 Plainly denouncing vengeance upon John

Lew May be he will not touch young Arthur's life, 160

But hold himself safe in his imprisonment.
Pand O! sir, when he shall hear of your
 approach,

If that young Arthur be not gone already,
 Even at that news he dies, and then the hearts
 Of all his people shall revolt from him 165
 And kiss the lips of unacquainted change,
 And pick strong matter of revolt and wrath
 Out of the bloody fingers' ends of John 168

Methinks I see this hurly all on foot
 And, O! what better matter breeds for you Than I have nam'd The bastard Faulconbridge

Is now in England ransacking the church, 172 Offending charity if but a dozen French Were there in arms, they would be as a call To train ten thousand English to their side,

Or as a little snow, tumbled about, 176
 anon becomes a mountain O noble Dauphin!
 Go with me to the king his wonderful

What may be wrought out of their discontent
 Now that their souls are t'pful of offence 180
 For England go, I will v'het on the king

Lew Strong reasons make strong actions
 Let us go

If you say ay, the king will not say no
 {Exeunt

ACT IV

SCENE I—Northampton A Room in the Castle

Enter HUBERT and Two Attendants

Hub Heat me these irons hot, and look thou stand

Within the arras when I strike my foot
 Upon the bosom of the ground, rush forth,
 And bind the boy which you shall find with me

Fast to the chair be heedful Hence, and watch.
First Attend I hope your warrant will bear out the deed 6

Hub Uncleanly scruples! fear not you look to't. {Exeunt Attendants.

Young lad, come forth, I have to say with you.

Enter ARTHUR.

Arth Good morrow, Hubert.

Hub Good morrow, little prince

Arth As little prince,—having so great a title
 To be more prince,—as may be You are sad.

Hub Indeed, I have been merrier
Arth Mercy on me! 12

Methinks nobody should be sad but I
 Yet I remember, when I was in France,
 Young gentlemen would be as sad as night,

Only for wantonness By my christendom, 16
 So I were out of prison and kept sheep, I should be as merry as the day is long,
 And so I would be here, but that I doubt
 My uncle practises more harm to me 20
 He is afraid of me, and I of him
 Is it my fault that I was Geoffrey's son?
 No, indeed, is't not, and I would to heaven
 I were your son, so you would love me, Hubert Hub [Aside] If I talk to him with his innocent prate 25
 He will awe my mercy which lies dead
 Therefore I will be sudden and dispatch Arth Are you sick, Hubert? you look pale to-day 28
 In sooth, I would you were a little sick,
 That I might sit all night and watch with you I warrant I love you more than you do me Hub [Aside] His words do take possession of my bosom 32
 Read here, young Arthur [Showing a paper]
[Aside] How now, foolish rheum!
 Turning spiteous torture out of door!
 I must be brief, lest resolution drop Out at mine eyes in tender womanish tears 36
 Can you not read it? is it not fair writ?
Arth Too fairly, Hubert, for so foul effect Must you with hot irons burn out both mine
 eyes?
Hub Young boy, I must.
Arth And will you?
Hub And I will 40
Arth Have you the heart? When your head did but ache,
 I knit my handkercher about your brows,—
 The best I had, a princess wrought it me,—
 And I did never ask it you again 44
 And with my hand at midnight held your head,
 And like the watchful minutes to the hour,
 Still and anon cheer'd up the heavy time, Saying, 'What lack you?' and, 'Where lies your grief?' 48
 Or, 'What good love may I perform for you?'
 Many a poor man's son would have lain still,
 And ne'er have spoke a loving word to you,
 But you at your sick-service had a prince 52
 Nay, you may think my love was crafty love,
 And call it cunning do an if you will
 If heaven be pleas'd that you must use me ill Why then you must. Will you put out mine
 eyes? 56
 These eyes that never did nor never shall
 So much as frown on you?
Hub I have sworn to do it,
 And with hot irons must I burn them out Arth Ah! none but in this iron age would do it! 60
 The iron of itself, though heat red-hot, Approaching near these eyes, would drink my tears
 And quench this fiery indignation
 Even in the matter of mine innocence, 64
 Nay, after that, consume away in rust,
 But for containing fire to harm mine eye.
 Are you more stubborn-hard than hammer'd iron?

An if an angel should have come to me 68
 And told me Hubert should put out mine eyes, I would not have believ'd him, no tongue but Hubert's
Hub [Stamps] Come forth
Re-enter Attendants, with cord, irons, &c
 Do as I bid you do 72 Arth O! save me, Hubert, save me! my eyes are out
 Even with the fierce looks of these bloody men Hub Give me the iron, I say, and bind him
 here
Arth Alas! what need you be so boisterous-rough? 76
 I will not struggle, I will stand stone-still For heaven's sake, Hubert, let me not be bound!
 Nay, hear me Hubert drive these men away,
 And I will sit as quiet as a lamb, 80
 I will not stir, nor wince, nor speak a word, Nor look upon the iron angrily
 Thrust but these men away, and I'll forgive you, Whatever torment you do put me to 84
Hub Go, stand within let me alone with him First Attend I am best pleas'd to be from such a deed [Exeunt Attendants] Arth Alas! I then have chid away my friend
 He hath a stern look, but a gentle heart 88
 Let him come back, that his compassion may Give life to yours Hub Come, boy, prepare yourself
Arth Is there no remedy?
Hub None, but to lose your eyes Arth O heaven! that there were but a mote in yours 92
 A grain, a dust, a gnat, a wandering hair,
 Any annoyance in that precious sense, Then feeling what small things are boisterous
 there,
 Your vile intent must needs seem horrible 96 Hub Is this your promise? go to, hold your tongue
Arth Hubert, the utterance of a brace of tongues
 Must needs want pleading for a pair of eyes
 Let me not hold my tongue, let me not, Hubert Or Hubert, if you will, cut out my tongue, 100
 So I may keep mine eyes O! spare mine eyes, Though to no use but still to look on you Lo! by my troth, the instrument is cold 104
 And would not harm me
Hub I can heat it, boy Arth No, in good sooth, the fire is dead with grief,
 Being create for comfort, to be us'd
 In undeserv'd extremes see else yourself, 108
 There is no malice in this burning coal
 The breath of heaven hath blown his spirit out
 And strew'd repentant ashes on his head Hub But with my breath I can revive it,
 boy 112
Arth An if you do you will but make it blush
 And glow with shame of your proceedings,
 Hubert
 Nay, if perchance will sparkle in your eyes,
 And like a dog that is compell'd to fight, 116

Snatch at his master that doth tarre him on All things that you should use to do me wrong Deny their office only you do lack That mercy which fierce fire and iron extends, Creatures of note for mercy-lacking uses 121
Hub Well, see to live, I will not touch thine eyes

For all the treasure that thine uncle owes Yet am I sworn and I did purpose, boy, 124
 With this same very iron to burn them out

Arth O! now you look like Hubert, all this while

You were disguised.

Hub Peace! no more Adieu.
 Your uncle must not know but you are dead,
 I'll fill these dogged spies with false reports 129
 And, pretty child, sleep doubtless and secure,
 That Hubert for the wealth of all the world
 Will not offend thee

Arth O heaven! I thank you, Hubert

Hub Silence! no more, go closely in with me 133

Much danger do I undergo for thee [Exeunt

SCENE II.—The Same A Room of State in the Palace

Enter KING JOHN, crowned, PEMROKE, SALISBURY, and other Lords The KING takes his state

K John Here once again we sit, once again crown'd,

And look'd upon, I hope, with cheerful eyes

Pem This 'once again,' but that your highness pleas'd,

Was once superfluous you were crown'd before,
 And that high royalty was ne'er pluck'd off, 5
 The faiths of men ne'er stained with revolt, Fresh expectation troubled not the land
 With any long'd-for change or better state 8

Sal Therefore, to be possess'd with double pomp,

To guard a title that was rich before,
 To gild refined gold, to paint the lily,

To throw a perfume on the violet, 12

To smooth the ice, or add another hue

Unto the rainbow, or with taper light

To seek the beauteous eye of heaven to garnish,
 Is wasteful and ridiculous excess 16

Pem But that your royal pleasure must be done,

This act is as an ancient tale new told,

And in the last repeating troublesome,

Being urged at a time unseasonable. 20

Sal In this the antique and well-noted face
 Of plain old form is much disfigured,

And, like a shifted wind unto a sail,

It makes the course of thoughts to fetch about,

Startles and frights consideration. 25

Makes sound opinion sick and truth suspected,

For putting on so new a fashion'd robe.

Pem When workmen strive to do better than well 28

They do confound their skill in covetousness,

And oftentimes excusing of a fault

Doth make the fault the worse by the excuse
 As patches set upon a little breach 32

Discredit more in hiding of the fault

Than did the fault before it was so patch'd

Sal To this effect, before you were new-crown'd,

We breath'd our counsel but it pleas'd your highness 36

To overbear it, and we are all well pleas'd,

Since all and every part of what we would Doth make a stand at what your highness will.

K John Some reasons of this double coronation 40

I have possess'd you with and think them strong,
 And more, more strong,—when lesser is my fear,—

I shall induce you with meantime but ask

What you would have reform'd that is not well,

And well shall you perceive how willingly 45

I will both hear and grant you your requests

Pem Then I,—as one that am the tongue of these

To sound the purposes of all their hearts,— 48

Both for myself and them,—but, chief of all,

Your safety, for the which myself and them

Bend their best studies,—heartily request

The enfranchisement of Arthur, whose restraint

Doth move the murmuring lips of discontent 53

To break into this dangerous argument

If what in rest you have in right you hold,

Why then your fears,—which, as they say, attend

The steps of wrong,—should move you to mew up

Your tender kinsman, and to choke his days

With barbarous ignorance, and deny his youth

The rich advantage of good exercise? 60

That the time's enemies may not have this

To grace occasions, let it be our suit

That you have bid us ask, his liberty,

Which for our goods we do no further ask 64

Than whereupon our weal, on you depending,

Counts it your weal he have his liberty

Enter HUBERT

K John Let it be so I do commit his youth
 To your direction. Hubert, what news with you? 68

Pem This is the man should do the bloody deed, 69

He show'd his warrant to a friend of mine

The image of a wicked heinous fault

Lives in his eye, that close aspect of his 72

Does show the mood of a much troubled breast,

And I do fearfully believe 'tis done,

What we so fear'd he had a charge to do

Sal The colour of the king doth come and go

Between his purpose and his conscience, 77

Like heralds' twixt two dreadful battles set.

His passion is so ripe it needs must break.

Pem And when it breaks, I fear will issue thence 80

The foul corruption of a sweet child's death.

K John We cannot hold mortality's strong hand

Good lords, although my will to give is living,

The suit which you demand is gone and dead

He tells us Arthur is deceas'd to-night. 85

Sal Indeed we fear'd his sickness was past cure

Pem Indeed we heard how near his death he was Before the child himself felt he was sick 88

This must be answer'd, either here or hence

K John Why do you bend such solemn brows on me?

Think you I bear the shears of destiny?
Have I commandment on the pulse of life? 92

Sal It is apparent foul play, and 'tis shame
That greatness should so grossly offer it So thrive it in your game! and so, farewell

Pem Stay yet, Lord Salisbury, I'll go with thee, 96

And find the inheritance of this poor child,
His little kingdom of a forced grave.

That blood which ow'd the breadth of all this isle,

Three foot of it doth hold bad world the while! 100

This must not be thus borne this will break out
To all our sorrows, and ere long I doubt.

[Exeunt Lords.
K John They burn in indignation I repent
There is no sure foundation set on blood, 104
No certain life achiev'd by others' death.

Enter a Messenger

A fearful eye thou hast where is that blood
That I have seen inhabit in those cheeks?
So foul a sky clears not without a storm 108 Pour down thy weather how goes all in France?

Mess From France to England Never such a power

For any foreign preparation
Was levied in the body of a land 112
The copy of your speed is learn'd by them,
For when you should be told they do prepare,
The tidings come that they are arriv'd

K John O! where hath our intelligence been drunk? 116

Where hath it slept? Where is my mother's care

That such an army could be drawn in France,
And she not hear of it?

Mess My liege, her ear
Is stopp'd with dust the first of April died 120
Your noble mother, and, as I hear, my lord,
The Lady Constance in a frenzy died Three days before but this from rumour's tongue

I idly heard, if true or false I know not. 124 K John Withhold thy speed, dreadful occasion!

O! make a league with me, till I have pleas'd
My discontented peers What! mother dead!
How wildly then walks my estate in France! 128 Under whose conduct came those powers of France

That thou for truth giv'st out art landed here?
Mess Under the Dauphin.

K John Thou hast made me giddy
With these ill tidings.

Enter the BASTARD, and PETER OF POMFRET

Now, what says the world 132
To your proceedings? do not seek to stuff
My head with more ill news, for it is full

Bast But if you be afraid to hear the worst,
Then let the worst unheard fall on your head

K John Bear with me, cousin, for I was amaz'd 137

Under the tide, but now I breathe again
Aloft the flood, and can give audience

To any tongue, speak it of what it will. 140 Bast How I have sped among the clergy-
men,

The sums I have collected shall express
But as I travell'd hither through the land,

I find the people strangely fantasied, 144
Possess'd with rumours, full of idle dreams,
Not knowing what they fear, but full of fear

And here's a prophet that I brought with me From forth the streets of Pomfret, whom I found 148

With many hundreds treading on his heels,
To whom he sung, in rude harsh-sounding rimes,

That, ere the next Ascension-day at noon,
Your highness should deliver up your crown 152

K John Thou idle dreamer, wherefore didst
thou so?

Peter Foreknowing that the truth will fall out so

K John Hubert, away with him, imprison
him

And on that day at noon, whereon, he says, 156
I shall yield up my crown, let him be hang'd Deliver him to safety, and return,

For I must use thee [Exit HUBERT, with PETER.

O my gentle cousin,
Hear'st thou the news abroad, who are arriv'd?

Bast The French, my lord, men's mouths are full of it 161

Besides, I met Lord Bigot and Lord Salisbury,
With eyes as red as new-enkindled fire,

And others more, going to seek the grave 164
Of Arthur, whom they say is kill'd to-night
On your suggestion

K John Gentle kinsman, go,
And thrust thyself into their companies

I have a way to win their loves again, 168 Bring them before me

Bast I will seek them out K John Nay, but make haste, the better foot before

O! let me have no subject enemies
When adverse foreigners affright my towns 172

With dreadful pomp of stout invasion.
Be Mercury, set feathers to thy heels,

And fly like thought from them to me again.
Bast The spirit of the time shall teach me
speed 176

K John Spoke like a sprightly noble gentleman. [Exit BASTARD

Go after him, for he perhaps shall need
Some messenger between me and the peers,

And be thou he Mess With all my heart, my liege. [Exit.

K John My mother dead!

Re-enter HUBERT

Hub My lord, they say five moons were seen to-night

Four fixed, and the fifth did whirl about
The other four in wondrous motion 184

K John Five moons!

Hub Old men and beldams in the streets
Do prophesy upon it dangerously
Young Arthur's death is common in their mouths,

And when they talk of him, they shake their heads 188

And whisper one another in the ear,
And he that speaks, doth gripe the hearer's wrist
Whilst he that hears makes fearful action,
With wrinkled brows, with nods, with rolling eyes 192

I saw a smith stand with his hammer, thus,
The whilst his iron did on the anvil cool,
With open mouth swallowing a tailor's news,
Who, with his shears and measure in his hand,
Standing on shippers,—which his nimble haste
Had falsely thrust upon contrary feet,— Told of a many thousand warlike French,
That were embattailed and rank'd in Kent. 200
Another lean unwash'd artificer
Cuts off his tale and talks of Arthur's death

K John Why seek'st thou to possess me with these fears?

Why urgest thou so oft young Arthur's death?
Thy hand hath murder'd him I had a mighty cause 205

To wish him dead, but thou hadst none to kill him.

Hub No had, my lord! why, did you not provoke me?

K John It is the curse of kings to be attended 208

By slaves that take their humours for a warrant
To break within the bloody house of life,
And on the winking of authority

To understand a law, to know the meaning 212
Of dangerous majesty, when, perchance, it frowns

More upon humour than advis'd respect.

Hub Here is your hand and seal for what I did.

K John O! when the last account 'twixt heaven and earth 216

Is to be made, then shall this hand and seal
Witness against us to damnation.

How oft the sight of means to do ill deeds Makes ill deeds done! Hadst not thou been by,

A fellow by the hand of nature mark'd, 221
Quoted and sign'd to do a deed of shame,

This murder had not come into my mind,
But taking note of thy abhor'd aspect, 224

Finding thee fit for bloody villany,
Apt, liable to be employ'd in danger,

I faintly broke with thee of Arthur's death,
And thou, to be endeared to a king, 228

Made it no conscience to destroy a prince.

Hub My lord,—

K John Hadst thou but shook thy head or made a pause

When I spake darkly what I purposed, 232

Or turn'd an eye of doubt upon my face,
As bid me tell my tale in express words,
Deep shame had struck me dumb, made me break off,

And those thy fears might have wrought fears in me 236

But thou didst understand me by my signs
And didst in signs again parley with sin,
Yea, without stop, didst let thy heart consent,
And consequently thy rude hand to act 240
The deed which both our tongues held vile to name

Out of my sight, and never see me more!
My nobles leave me, and my state is brav'd,
Even at my gates, with ranks of foreign powers
Nay, in the body of this fleshly land, 245
This kingdom, thus confine of blood and breath, Hostility and civil tumult reigns Between my conscience and my cousin's death.

Hub Arm you against your other enemies,
I'll make a peace between your soul and you.
Young Arthur is alive this hand of mine
Is yet a maiden and an innocent hand, 252
Not painted with the crimson spots of blood.
Within this bosom never enter'd yet
The dreadful motion of a murderous thought,
And you have slander'd nature in my form, 256
Which, howsoever rude exteriorly,
Is yet the cover of a fairer mind
Than to be butcher of an innocent child.

K John Doth Arthur live? O! haste thee to the peers, 260

Throw this report on their incensed rage,
And make them tame to their obedience

Forgive the comment that my passion made Upon thy feature, for my rage was blind, 264

And foul imaginary eyes of blood
Presented thee more hideous than thou art.

O! answer not, but to my closet bring
The angry lords, with all expedient haste 268

I conjure thee but slowly, run more fast.
[Exeunt.]

SCENE III.—The Same Before the Castle

Enter ARTHUR, on the Walls

Arth The wall is high, and yet will I leap down.

Good ground, be pitiful and hurt me not!
There's few or none do know me, if they did,

This ship-boy's semblance hath disguis'd me quite 4

I am afraid, and yet I'll venture it.
If I get down, and do not break my limbs,

I'll find a thousand shifts to get away
As good to die and go, as die and stay 8

[Leaps down.]
O me! my uncle's spirit is in these stones

Heaven take my soul, and England keep my bones! [Dies]

Enter PEMBROKE, SALISBURY, and BIGOT

Sal Lords, I will meet him at Saint Edmundsbury

It is our safety, and we must embrace 12

This gentle offer of the perilous time.

- Pem* Who brought that letter from the cardinal? 64
- Sal* The Count Melun, a noble lord of France, whose private with me of the Dauphin's love, 16 is much more general than these lines import
- Big* To-morrow morning let us meet him then.
- Sal* Or rather then set forward, for 'twill be two long days' journey, lords, or e'er we meet
- Enter the BASTARD*
- Bast* Once more to-day well met, distemper'd lords! 21
- The king* by me requests your presence straight.
- Sal* The king hath dispossest himself of us. We will not line his thin bestained cloak 24
With our pure honours, nor attend the foot That leaves the print of blood where'er it walks
- Return* and tell him so we know the worst
- Bast* Whate'er you think, good words, I think, were best 28
- Sal* Our griefs, and not our manners, reason now
- Bast* But there is little reason in your grief, therefore 'twere reason you had manners now
- Pem* Sir, sir, impatience hath his privilege
- Bast* 'Tis true, to hurt his master, no man else 33
- Sal* This is the prison. [Seeing ARTHUR.] What is he lies here?
- Pem* O death, made proud with pure and princely beauty!
- The earth* had not a hole to hide this deed. 36
- Sal* Murder, as hating what himself hath done, Doth lay it open to urge on revenge
- Big* Or when he doom'd this beauty to a grave, Found it too precious-princely for a grave. 40
- Sal* Sir Richard, what think you? Have you beheld, Or have you read, or heard? or could you think?
- Or do you* almost think, although you see,
That you do see? could thought, without this object, 44
- Form* such another? This is the very top,
The height, the crest, or crest unto the crest,
Of murder's arms this is the bloodiest shame,
The wildest savagery, the vilest stroke, 48
That ever wall-eyed wrath or staring rage Presented to the tears of soft remorse
- Pem* All murders past do stand excus'd in this
- And this,* so sole and so unmatchable, 52
Shall give a holiness, a purity,
To the yet unbegotten sin of times,
And prove a deadly bloodshed but a jest,
Exemplary by this heinous spectacle. 56
- Bast* It is a damned and a bloody work,
The graceless action of a heavy hand,
If that it be the work of any hand
- Sal* If that it be the work of any hand! 60
We had a kind of light what would ensue
It is the shameful work of Hubert's hand,
The practice and the purpose of the king
- From whose obedience* I forbid my soul, 64
Kneeling before this ruin of sweet life,
And breathing to his breathless excellence
The incense of a vow, a holy vow,
Never to taste the pleasures of the world, 68
Never to be infected with delight,
Nor conversant with ease and idleness,
Till I have set a glory to this hand,
By giving it the worship of revenge 72
- Pem* } Our souls religiously confirm thy Big } words
- Enter HUBERT*
- Hub* Lords, I am hot with haste in seeking you
- Arthur* doth live the king hath sent for you.
- Sal* O! he is bold and blushes not at death.
- Avant*, thou hateful villain! get thee gone 77
- Hub* I am no villain
- Sal* [Drawing his sword] Must I rob the law?
- Bast* Your sword is bright, sir, put it up again
- Sal* Not till I sheathe it in a murderer's skin
- Hub* Stand back, Lord Salisbury, stand back, I say 81
- By heaven,* I think my sword's as sharp as yours
I would not have you, lord, forget yourself,
Nor tempt the danger of my true defence, 84
Lest I, by marking of your rage, forget Your worth, your greatness, and nobility
- Big* Out, dunghill! dar'st thou brave a nobleman?
- Hub* Not for my life, but yet I dare defend My innocent life against an emperor 89
- Sal* Thou art a murderer
- Hub* Do not prove me so, Yet I am none Whose tongue soe'er speaks
false,
Not truly speaks, who speaks not truly, lies 92
- Pem* Cut him to pieces
- Bast* Keep the peace, I say
- Sal* Stand by, or I shall gall you, Faulconbridge
- Bast* Thou wert better gall the devil, Salisbury
- If thou* but frown on me, or stir thy foot, 96
Or teach thy hasty spleen to do me shame, I'll strike thee dead. Put up thy sword betime Or I'll so maul you and your toasting-iron,
That you shall think the devil is come from hell
- Big* What wilt thou do, renowned Faulconbridge? 102
- Second* a villain and a murderer?
- Hub* Lord Bigot, I am none
- Big* Who kill'd this prince?
- Hub* 'Tis not an hour since I left him well
I honour'd him, I lov'd him, and will weep 105
My date of life out for his sweet life's loss
- Sal* Trust not those cunning waters of his eyes,
For villany is not without such rheum, 108
And he, long traded in it, makes it seem Like rivers of remorse and innocency Away with me, all you whose souls abhor
The uncleanly savours of a slaughter-house,
For I am stifled with this smell of sin. 11

Big Away toward Bury, to the Dauphin there!
Pem There tell the king he may inquire us out Hub Here's a good world! Knew you of this fair work?

Beyond the infinite and boundless reach
 Of mercy, if thou didst this deed of death, Art thou damn'd, Hubert

Hub Do but hear me, sir Bast Ha! I'll tell thee what,
 Thou art damn'd as black—nay, nothing is so black

Thou art more deep damn'd than Prince Lucifer
 There is not yet so ugly a fiend of hell
 As thou shalt be, if thou dost kill this child

Hub Upon my soul,— Bast It thou didst but consent
 To this most cruel act, do but despair,
 And if thou want'st a cord, the smallest thread
 That ever spider twisted from her womb
 Will serve to strangle thee, a rush will be a beam
 To hang thee on, or wouldst thou drown thyself,

Put but a little water in a spoon,
 And it shall be as all the ocean,
 Enough to stifle such a villain up
 I do suspect thee very grievously

Hub If I in act, consent, or sin of thought,
 Be guilty of the stealing that sweet breath
 Which was embounded in this beauteous clay, Let hell want pains enough to torture me
 I left him well.

Bast Go, bear him in thine arms
 I am amaz'd, methinks, and lose my way
 Among the thorns and dangers of this world
 How easy dost thou take all England up!
 From forth this morsel of dead royalty,
 The life, the right and truth of all this realm Is fled to heaven and England now is left To tug and scramble and to part by the teeth
 The unow'd interest of proud swelling state
 Now for the bare-pick'd bone of majesty
 Doth dogged war bristle his angry crest,
 And snarl in the gentle eyes of peace
 Now powers from home and discontents at home

Meet in one line, and vast confusion waits,—
 As doth a raven on a sick-fallen beast,—
 The imminent decay of wrested pomp Now happy he whose cloak and censure can Hold out this tempest. Bear away that child
 And follow me with speed I'll to the king
 A thousand businesses are brief in hand,
 And heaven itself doth frown upon the land.

[Exeunt]

ACT V

SCENE I.—The Same A Room in the Palace

Enter KING JOHN, PANDULPH with the crown, and Attendants.

K. John. Thus have I yielded up into your hand
 The circle of my glory.

Pand [Giving JOHN the crown] Take again
 From this my hand, as holding of the pope,
 Your sovereign greatness and authority K. John Now keep your holy word go meet the French,

And from his holiness use all your power
 To stop their marches 'fore we are inflam'd
 Our discontented counties do revolt,
 Our people quarrel with obedience,
 Swearing allegiance and the love of soul
 To stranger blood, to foreign royalty
 This inundation of mustemper'd humour Rests by you only to be qualified
 Then pause not, for the present time's so sick,
 That present medicine must be minister'd,
 Or overthrow incurable ensues

Pand It was my breath that blew this tempest up Upon your stubborn usage of the pope,
 But since you are a gentle convertite,
 My tongue shall hush again this storm of war
 And make fair weather in your blustering land.
 On this Ascension-day, remember well,
 Upon your oath of service to the pope,
 Go I to make the French lay down their arms

[Exit]
K. John Is this Ascension-day? Did not the prophet

Say that before Ascension-day at noon My crown I should give off? Even so I have I did suppose it should be on constraint,
 But, heaven be thank'd, it is but voluntary

Enter the BASTARD

Bast All Kent hath yielded, nothing there holds out
 But Dover Castle London hath receiv'd,
 Like a kind host, the Dauphin and his powers
 Your nobles will not hear you, but are gone
 To offer service to your enemy,
 And wild amazement hurries up and down
 The little number of your doubtful friends

K. John Would not my lords return to me again
 After they heard young Arthur was alive?

Bast They found him dead and cast into the streets,
 An empty casket, where the jewel of life
 By some damn'd hand was robb'd and taken away

K. John That villain Hubert told me he did live.
Bast So, on my soul, he did, for aught he knew

But wherefore do you droop? why look you sad?
 Be great in act, as you have been in thought,
 Let not the world see fear and sad distrust Govern the motion of a kingly eye.

Be stirring as the time, be fire with fire;
 Threaten the threatener, and outface the brow
 Of bragging horror so shall inferior eyes,
 That borrow their behaviours from the great,
 Grow great by your example and put on The dauntless spirit of resolution.

Away! and glister like the god of war
 When he intendeth to become the field.
 Show boldness and aspiring confidence.

What! shall they seek the hon in his den
And fright him there? and make him tremble
there?

O! let it not be said. Forage, and run
To meet displeasure further from the doors, 60
And grapple with him ere he comes so nigh.

K John The legate of the pope hath been
with me,

And I have made a happy peace with him,
And he hath promis'd to dismiss the powers 64
Led by the Dauphin.

Bast O inglorious league!
Shall we, upon the footing of our land,
Send fair-play orders and make compromise, Insinuation, parley and base truce 68

To arms invasive? shall a beardless boy,
A cocker'd silken wanton, brave our fields,
And flesh his spirit in a war-like soil,
Mocking the air with colours idly spread, 72
And find no check? Let us, my liege, to arms Perchance the cardinal cannot make your peace,
Or if he do, let it at least be said

They saw we had a purpose of defence 76

K John Have thou the ordering of this present time

Bast Away then, with good courage! yet, I
know,

Our party may well meet a prouder foe
[Exeunt]

SCENE II.—*A Plain, near St Edmundsbury
The French Camp*

Enter, in arms, LEWIS, SALISBURY, MELUN, PEMBROKE, BIGOT, and Soldiers.

Lew My Lord Melun, let this be copied out,
And keep it safe for our remembrance
Return the precedent to these lords again,
That, having our fair order written down, 4
Both they and we, perusing o'er these notes,
May know wherefore we took the sacrament,
And keep our faiths firm and inviolable.

Sal. Upon our sides it never shall be broken. 8
And, noble Dauphin, albeit we swear
A voluntary zeal, an unurg'd faith
To your proceedings, yet, believe me, prince, I am not glad that such a sore of time 12
Should seek a plaster by contemn'd revolt,
And heal the inveterate canker of one wound
By making many O! it grieves my soul
That I must draw this metal from my side 16
To be a widow-maker! O! and there Where honourable rescue and defence
Cries out upon the name of Salisbury
But such is the infection of the time, 20
That, for the health and physic of our right,
We cannot deal but with the very hand
Of stern injustice and confused wrong
And is't not pity, O my griev'd friends! 24
That we, the sons and children of this isle,
Were born to see so sad an hour as this,
Wherein we step after a stranger march Upon her gentle bosom, and fill up 28
Her enemies' ranks—I must withdraw and weep
Upon the spot of this enforced cause,—

To grace the gentry of a land remote,
And follow unacquainted colours here? 32
What, here? O nation! that thou couldst remove,

That Neptune's arms, who clippeth thee about,
Would bear thee from the knowledge of thyself,
And grapple thee unto a pagan shore, 36
Where these two Christian armies might combine

The blood of malice in a vein of league,
And not to spend it so unneighbourly!

Lew A noble temper dost thou show in this,
And great affections wrestling in thy bosom 41
Do make an earthquake of nobility

O! what a noble combat hast thou fought Between compulsion and a brave respect 44

Let me wipe off this honourable dew,
That silverly doth progress on thy cheeks

My heart hath melted at a lady's tears,
Being an ordinary inundation, 48

But this effusion of such manly drops,
This shower, blown up by tempest of the soul,
Startles mine eyes, and makes me more amaz'd

Than had I seen the vaulty top of heaven 52
Figur'd quite o'er with burning meteors

Lift up thy brow, renowned Salisbury,
And with a great heart heave away this storm

Commend these waters to those baby eyes 56
That never saw the giant world enrag'd,

Nor met with fortune other than at feasts,
Full warm of blood, of mirth, of gossiping

Come, come, for thou shalt thrust thy hand as deep 60

Into the purse of rich prosperity
As Lewis himself so, nobles, shall you all,
That knit your sinews to the strength of mine

Enter PANDULPH attended

And even there, methinks, an angel spake 64
Look, where the holy legate comes apace,
To give us warrant from the hand of heaven,
And on our actions set the name of right
With holy breath

Pand Hail, noble prince of France! 68
The next is this King John hath reconcil'd Himself to Rome; his spirit is come in

That so stood out against the holy church,
The great metropolis and see of Rome 72

Therefore thy threat'ning colours now wind up,
And tame the savage spirit of wild war,

That, like a lion foster'd up at hand,
It may lie gently at the foot of peace, 76

And be no further harmful than in show

Lew Your grace shall pardon me, I will not back

I am too high-born to be propertied,
To be a secondary at control, 80

Or useful serving-man and instrument
To any sovereign state throughout the world

Your breath first kindled the dead coal of wars Between this chastis'd kingdom and myself, 84

And brought in matter that should feed this fire,

And now 'tis far too huge to be blown out
With that same weak wind which enkindled it.

You taught me how to know the face of right, 88

Accquainted me with interest to this land,
Yea, thrust this enterprise into my heart,
And come you now to tell me John hath made His peace with Rome? What is that peace to
me? 92

I, by the honour of my marriage-bed,
After young Arthur, claim this land for mine,
And now it is half-conquer'd, must I back Because that John hath made his peace with Rome? 96

Am I Rome's slave? What penny hath Rome borne

What men provided, what munition sent,
To underprop this action? is't not I
That undergo this charge? who else but I, 100
And such as to my claim are liable,
Sweat in this business and maintain this war?

Have I not heard these islanders shout out,
Vive le roy! as I have bank'd their towns? 104

Have I not here the best cards for the game
To win this easy match play'd for a crown?

And shall I now give o'er the yielded set?
No, no, on my soul, it never shall be said 108

Pand You look but on the outside of this work

Lew Outside or inside I will not return Till my attempt so much be glorified

As to my ample hope was promised 112
Before I drew this gallant head of war,
And cull'd these fiery spirits from the world,
To outlook conquest and to win renown

Even in the jaws of danger and of death 116
[Trumpet sounds]

What lusty trumpet thus doth summon us?

Enter the BASTARD, attended

Bast According to the fair play of the world,
Let me have audience, I am sent to speak

My holy Lord of Milan, from the king 120
I come, to learn how you have dealt for him,
And, as you answer, I do know the scope
And warrant limed unto my tongue

Pand The Dauphin is too wilful-opposite,
And will not temporize with my entreaties 125
He flatly says he'll not lay down his arms

Bast By all the blood that ever fury breath'd, The youth says well. Now hear our English
king, 128

For thus his royalty doth speak in me
He is prepar'd, and reason too he should

This apish and unmannerly approach,
This harness'd masque and unadvised revel, 132
This unhair'd sauciness and boyish troops,
The king doth smile at, and is well prepar'd
To whip this dwarfish war, these pigmy arms,
From out the circle of his territories. 136

That hand which had the strength, even at your door,

To cudgel you and make you take the hatch,
To dive, like buckets, in concealed wells,

To crouch in litter of your stable planks, 140
To lie like pawns lock'd up in chests and trunks,
To hug with swine, to seek sweet safety out
In vaults and prisons, and to thrill and shake, Even at the crying of your nation's crow, 144
Thinking this voice an armed Englishman

Shall that victorious hand be feeble here
That in your chambers gave you chastisement?

No! Know, the gallant monarch is in arms, 148
And like an eagle o'er his airy towers,
To souse annoyance that comes near his nest

And you degenerate, you ingrate revolts,
You bloody Neroes, ripping up the womb 152
Of your dear mother England, blush for shame
For your own ladies and pale-visag'd maids Like Amazons come tripping after drums,
Their thimbles into armed gauntlets change, 156
Their needs to lances, and their gentle hearts
To fierce and bloody inclination

Lew There end thy brave, and turn thy face in peace,

We grant thou canst outscold us fare thee
well, 160

We hold our time too precious to be spent
With such a brabbler

Pand Give me leave to speak Bast No, I will speak.

Lew We will attend to neither Strike up the drums, and let the tongue of war 164

Plead for our interest and our being here Bast Indeed, your drums, being beaten, will cry out,

And so shall you, being beaten Do but start
An echo with the clamour of thy drum, 168
And even at hand a drum is ready brac'd
That shall reverberate all as loud as thine, Sound but another, and another shall
As loud as thine rattle the welkin's ear 172 And mock the deep mouth'd thunder for at hand,—

Not trusting to this halting legate here,
Whom he hath us'd rather for sport than need,—
Is warlike John, and in his forehead sits 176
A bare-ribb'd death, whose office is thus day
To feast upon whole thousands of the French

Lew Strike up our drums, to find this danger out.

Bast And thou shalt find it, Dauphin, do not doubt. [Exit

SCENE III.—The Same A Field of Battle

Alarums Enter KING JOHN and HUBERT

K John How goes the day with us? O! tell me, Hubert.

Hub Badly, I fear How fares your majesty?

K John This fever, that hath troubled me so long,

Lies heavy on me O! my heart is sick. 4

Enter a Messenger

Mess My lord, your valiant kinsman, Fauconbridge,

Desires your majesty to leave the field,
And send him word by me which way you go

K John Tell him, toward Swinstead, to the abbey there. 8

Mess Be of good comfort for the great supply

That was expected by the Dauphin here,
Are wrack'd three nights ago on Goodwin sands.

This news was brought to Richard but even now
 The French fight coldly, and retire themselves 13
K John Aye! this tyrant fever burns me up,
 And will not let me welcome this good news
 Set on toward Swinestead to my litter straight, Weakness possesseth me, and I am faint 17
 [Exeunt]

SCENE IV — The Same Another Part of the Same

Enter SALISBURY, PEMBROKE, BIGOT, and Others

Sal I did not think the king so stor'd with friends Pem Up once again, put spirit in the French
 If they miscarry we miscarry too
Sal That misbegotten devil, Faulconbridge,
 In spite of spite, alone upholds the day 5
Pem They say King John, sore sick, hath left the field

Enter MELUN wounded, and led by Soldiers

Mel. Lead me to the revolts of England here Sal When we were happy we had other names. 8
Pem. It is the Count Melun.
Sal Wounded to death
Mel. Fly, noble English, you are bought and sold, Unthread the rude eye of rebellion,
 And welcome home again discarded faith 12
 Seek out King John and fall before his feet,
 For if the French be lords of this loud day,
 He means to recompense the pains you take By cutting off your heads. Thus hath he sworn,
 And I with him, and many more with me, 17
 Upon the altar at Saint Edmundsbury,
 Even on that altar where we swore to you
 Dear amity and everlasting love. 20
Sal May this be possible? may this be true?
Mel. Have I not hideous death within my view, Retaining but a quantity of life,
 Which bleeds away, even as a form of wax 24
 Resolveth from his figure 'gainst the fire?
 What in the world should make me now deceive,
 Since I must lose the use of all decent?
 Why should I then be false, since it is true 28
 That I must die here and live hence by truth?
 I say again, if Lewis do win the day,
 He is forsworn, if e'er those eyes of yours
 Behold another day break in the east 32
 But even thus night, whose black contagious breath
 Already smokes about the burning crest
 Of the old, feeble, and day-wearied sun,
 Even thus ill night, your breathing shall expire, Paying the fine of rated treachery 37
 Even with a treacherous fine of all your lives,
 If Lewis by your assistance win the day
 Command me to one Hubert with your king, 40
 The love of him, and this respect besides,
 For that my grandsire was an Englishman, Awakes my conscience to confess all this.

In lieu whereof, I pray you, bear me hence 44
 From forth the noise and rumour of the field,
 Where I may think the remnant of my thoughts
 In peace, and part this body and my soul
 With contemplation and devout desires 48
Sal We do believe thee and beshrew my soul

But I do love the favour and the form Of this most fair occasion, by the which We will untread the steps of damned flight, 52
 And like a bated and retired flood,
 Leaving our rankness and irregular course,
 Stoop low within those bounds we have o'er-look'd
 And calmly run on in obedience, 56
 Even to our ocean, to our great King John My arm shall give thee help to bear thee hence,
 For I do see the cruel pangs of death
 Right in thine eye Away, my friends! New fight, 60
 And happy newness, that intends old right [Exeunt, leading off MELUN]

SCENE V — The Same The French Camp

Enter LEWIS and his Train

Lew The sun of heaven methought was loath to set,
 But stay'd and made the western welkin blush,
 When the English measur'd backward their own ground
 In faint retire O! bravely came we off, 4
 When with a volley of our needless shot,
 After such bloody toil, we bid good night,
 And wound our tottering colours clearly up,
 Last in the field, and almost lords of it! 8

Enter a Messenger

Mess Where is my prince, the Dauphin?
Lew Here what news?
Mess The Count Melun is slain, the English lords,
 By his persuasion, are again fall'n off,
 And your supply, which you have wish'd so long,
 Are cast away and sunk, on Goodwin sands 13
Lew Ah, foul shrewd news! Beshrew thy very heart!
 I did not think to be so sad to-night
 As this hath made me Who was he that said 16
 King John did fly an hour or two before
 The stumbling night did part our weary powers?
Mess Whoever spoke it, it is true, my lord
Lew Well, keep good quarter and good care to-night 20
 The day shall not be up so soon as I,
 To try the far adventure of to-morrow [Exeunt]

SCENE VI — An open Place in the neighbourhood of Swinestead Abbey

Enter the BASTARD and HUBERT, severally

Hub Who's there? speak, ho! speak quickly, or I shoot.
Bast A friend. What art thou?
Hub Of the part of England.

Bast Whither dost thou go?
Hub What's that to thee? Why may not I demand
 Of thine affairs as well as thou of mine?
Bast Hubert, I think?
Hub Thou hast a perfect thought
 I will upon all hazards well believe Thou art my friend, that know'st my tongue so well Who art thou?
Bast Who thou wilt and if thou please,
 Thou mayst befriend me so much as to think I come one way of the Plantagenets Hub Unkind remembrance! thou and eye-less night
 Have done me shame brave soldier, pardon
 me,
 That any accent breaking from thy tongue Should scape the true acquaintance of mine
 ear Bast Come, come, sans compliment, what news abroad?
Hub Why, here walk I in the black brow of
 night,
 To find you out.
Bast Brief then and what's the news?
Hub O! my sweet sir, news fitting to the
 night,
 Black, fearful, comfortless, and horrible Bast Show me the very wound of this ill
 news
 I am no woman, I'll not swoon at it Hub The king, I fear is poison'd by a monk
 I left him almost speechless, and broke out To acquaint you with this evil that you might
 The better arm you to the sudden time Than if you had at leisure known of this Bast How did he take it? who did taste to
 him?
Hub A monk, I tell you, a resolved villain, Whose bowels suddenly burst out the king
 Yet speaks and peradventure may recover Bast Whom didst thou leave to tend his majesty?
Hub Why, know you not? the lords are all come back,
 And brought Prince Henry in their company,
 At whose request the king hath pardon'd them,
 And they are all about his majesty Bast Withhold thine indignation, mighty
 heaven,
 And tempt us not to bear above our power!
 I'll tell thee, Hubert, half my power this night,
 Passing these flats, are taken by the tide,
 These Lincoln Washes have devoured them Myself, well-mounted, hardly have escap'd Away before! conduct me to the king
 I doubt he will be dead or ere I come [Exeunt.

SCENE VII —The Orchard of Swinstead
 Abbey

Enter PRINCE HENRY, SALISBURY, and BIGOT

P Hen It is too late the life of all his blood Is touch'd corruptibly, and his pure brain,—

Which some suppose the soul's frail dwelling-
 house,—
 Doth, by the idle comments that it makes, Foretell the ending of mortality

Enter PEMBROKE

Pem His highness yet doth speak and holds belief
 That, being brought into the open air,
 It would allay the burning quality
 Of that fell poison which assaileth him
P Hen Let him be brought into the orchard
 here

Doth he still rage? [Exit BIGOT
Pem He is more patient

Than when you left him even now he sung
P Hen O, vanity of sickness! fierce extremes
 In their continuance will not feel themselves Death, having prey'd upon the outward parts, Leaves them invisible, and his siege is now Against the mind, the which he pricks and wounds

With many legions of strange fantasies, Which, in their throng and press to that last
 hold,

Confound themselves 'Tis strange that death should sing

I am the cygnet to this pale faint swan,
 Who chants a doleful hymn to his own death,
 And from the organ-pipe of frailty sings
 His soul and body to their lasting rest

Sal Be of good comfort, prince, for you are born
 To set a form upon that indigest
 Which he hath left so shapeless and so rude

Re-enter BIGOT and Attendants carrying KING JOHN in a chair

K John Ay, marry, now my soul hath elbow-room,

It would not out at windows, nor at doors.
 There is so hot a summer in my bosom

That all my bowels crumble up to dust
 I am a scribbled form, drawn with a pen
 Upon a parchment, and against this fire

Do I shrink up
P Hen How fares your majesty?

K John Poison'd, ill-fare, dead, forsook, cast off,

And none of you will bid the winter come
 To thrust his icy fingers in my maw,

Nor let my kingdom's rivers take their course Through my burn'd bosom, nor entreat the north

To make his bleak winds kiss my parched lips
 And comfort me with cold I do not ask you much

I beg cold comfort, and you are so strait
 And so ingrateful you deny me that.

P Hen O! that there were some virtue in my tears,

That might relieve you.
K John The salt in them is hot

Within me is a hell, and there the poison
 Is as a fiend confin'd to tyrannize

On unreprieveable condemned blood.

Enter the BASTARD

Bast O! I am scalded with my violent motion
And spleen of speed to see your majesty

K John O cousin! thou art come to set mine
eye

The tackle of my heart is crack'd and burn'd, 52
And all the shrouds wherewith my life should sail

Are turned to one thread, one little hair,
My heart hath one poor string to stay it by,
Which holds but till thy news be uttered, 56
And then all this thou seest is but a clod
And module of confounded royalty

Bast The Dauphin is preparing hitherward, Where heaven he knows how we shall answer
him 60

For in a night the best part of my power,
As I upon advantage did remove,
Were in the Washes all unwarily
Devoured by the unexpected flood 64

Sal You breathe these dead news in as dead an ear

P Hen Even so must I run on, and even so stop

What surety of the world, what hope, what stay,
When this was now a king, and now is clay? 69

Bast Art thou gone so? I do but stay behind
To do the office for thee of revenge,
And then my soul shall wait on thee to heaven,
As it on earth hath been thy servant still 73
Now, now, you stars, that move in your right spheres,

Where be your powers? Show now your mended faiths,

And instantly return with me again, 76
To push destruction and perpetual shame
Out of the weak door of our fainting land Straight let us seek, or straight we shall be sought

The Dauphin rages at our very heels. 80

Sal It seems you know not then so much as we

The Cardinal Pandulph is within at rest,
Who half an hour since came from the Dauphin,
And brings from him such offers of our peace 84
As we with honour and respect may take,
With purpose presently to leave this war

Bast He will the rather do it when he sees Ourselves well snewed to our defence 88

Sal Nay, it is in a manner done already,
For many carriages he hath dispatch'd
To the sea-side, and put his cause and quarrel
To the disposing of the cardinal 92
With whom yourself, myself, and other lords,
If you think meet, this afternoon will post
To consummate this business happily

Bast Let it be so And you, my noble prince,
With other princes that may best be spar'd, 97
Shall wait upon your father's funeral.

P Hen At Worcester must his body be interr'd,

For so he will'd it
Bast Thither shall it then 100

And happily may your sweet self put on The lineal state and glory of the land!

To whom, with all submission, on my knee,
I do bequeath my faithful services 104
And true subjection everlastingly

Sal And the like tender of our love we make,
To rest without a spot for evermore

P Hen I have a kind soul that would give you thanks, 108

And knows not how to do it but with tears
Bast O! let us pay the time but needful woe

Since it hath been beforehand with our griefs
Thus England never did, nor never shall, 112 Lie at the proud foot of a conqueror

But when it first did help to wound itself
Now these her princes are come home again,
Come the three corners of the world in arms, 116 And we shall shock them. Nought shall make us rue,

If England to itself do rest but true. [Exeunt

DUCHESS OF YORK.

Lady attending on the Queen.

Lords, Herald, Officers, Soldiers, Gardeners, Keeper, Messenger, Groom, and other Attendants.

SCENE — Dispersedly in England and Wales.

ACT I

SCENE I — London. A Room in the Palace

Enter KING RICHARD, attended, JOHN OF GAUNT, and other Nobles

K Rich Old John of Gaunt, time-honour'd Lancaster,

Hast thou, according to thy oath and band,
Brought hither Henry Hereford thy bold son,
Here to make good the boisterous late appeal, 4
Which then our leisure would not let us hear, Against the Duke of Norfolk, Thomas Mowbray?

Gaunt I have, my hege

K Rich Tell me, moreover, hast thou sounded him, 8

If he appeal the duke on ancient malice, Or worthily, as a good subject should,
On some known ground of treachery in him?

Gaunt As near as I could sift him on that argument, 12

On some apparent danger seen in him
Aim'd at your highness, no inveterate malice

K Rich. Then call them to our presence face to face,

And frowning brow to brow, ourselves will hear
The accuser and the accused freely speak 17

[Exit some Attendants]
High-stomach'd are they both, and full of ire,
In rage deaf as the sea, hasty as fire

Re-enter Attendants, with BOLINGBROKE and MOWBRAY

Boling. Many years of happy days befall 20
My gracious sovereign, my most loving hege!

Mow Each day still better other's happiness,

Until the heavens, envying earth's good hap,
Add an immortal title to your crown! 24

K Rich We thank you both yet one but flatters us,

As well appeareth by the cause you come,
Namely, to appeal each other of high treason.
Cousin of Hereford, what dost thou object 28 Against the Duke of Norfolk, Thomas Mowbray?

Boling First,—heaven be the record to my speech!—

In the devotion of a subject's love,
Tendering the precious safety of my prince, 32
And free from other misbegotten hate,
Come I appellant to this princely presence.

Now, Thomas Mowbray, do I turn to thee,
And mark my greeting well, for what I speak 36
My body shall make good upon this earth,
Or my divine soul answer it in heaven

Thou art a traitor and a miscreant
Too good to be so and too bad to live, 40

Since the more fair and crystal is the sky,
The uglier seem the clouds that in it fly

Once more, the more to aggravate the note,
With a foul traitor's name stuff I thy throat, 44

And wish, so please my sovereign, ere I move, What my tongue speaks, my right drawn sword may prove.

Mow Let not my cold words here accuse my zeal

'Tis not the trial of a woman's war, 48
The bitter clamour of two eager tongues,

Can arbitrate this cause betwixt us twain,
The blood is hot that must be cool'd for this

Yet can I not of such tame patience boast 52
As to be hush'd and nought at all to say

First, the fair reverence of your highness curbs
me

From giving reins and spurs to my free speech, Which else would post until it had return'd. 56
These terms of treason doubled down his throat.
Setting aside his high blood's royalty,
And let him be no kinsman to my liege,
I do defy him, and I spit at him,
Call him a slanderous coward and a villain
Which to maintain I would allow him odds,
And meet him, were I tied to run afoot. 64
Even to the frozen ridges of the Alps,
Or any other ground inhabitable,
Wherever Englishman durst set his foot.
Meantime let this defend my loyalty
By all my hopes, most falsely doth he lie. 68

Boling Pale trembling coward, there I throw my gage,

Disclaiming here the kindred of the king,
And lay aside my high blood's royalty,
Which fear, not reverence, makes thee to except 72

If guilty dread have left thee so much strength
As to take up mine honour's pawn, then stoop
By that, and all the rites of knighthood else,
Will I make good against thee, arm to arm, 76
What I have spoke, or thou canst worse devise.

Mow I take it up, and by that sword I
swear,

Which gently laid my knighthood on my shoulder,

I'll answer thee in any fair degree, 80
Or chivalrous design of knightly trial
And when I mount, alive may I not light,
If I be traitor or unjustly fight!

K Rich. What doth our cousin lay to Mow-bray's charge? 84

It must be great that can inherit us
So much as of a thought of ill in him.

Boling Look, what I speak, my life shall prove it true,

That Mowbray hath receiv'd eight thousand nobles 88

In name of lendings for your highness' soldiers,
The which he hath detain'd for lewd employments,

Like a false traitor and injurious villain. 92

Besides I say and will in battle prove,
Or here or elsewhere to the furthest verge
That ever was survey'd by English eye,

That all the treasons for these eighteen years
Complotted and contrived in this land, 96

Fetch from false Mowbray their first head and spring

Further I say and further will maintain Upon his bad life to make all this good,

That he did plot the Duke of Gloucester's death, Suggest his soon-believing adversaries, 101

And consequently, like a traitor coward, Slur'd out his innocent soul through streams of blood

Which blood, like sacrificing Abel's, cries, 104

Even from the tongueless caverns of the earth,
To me for justice and rough chastisement,

And, by the glorious worth of my descent,
This arm shall do it, or this life be spent. 108

K Rich How high a pitch his resolution soars!

Thomas of Norfolk, what sayst thou to this?
Mow O! let my sovereign turn away his
face

And bid his ears a little while be deaf, 112

Till I have told this slander of his blood
How God and good men hate so foul a liar

K Rich Mowbray, impartial are our eyes and ears

Were he my brother, nay, my kingdom's heir,—
As he is but my father's brother's son,— 117

Now, by my sceptre's awe I make a vow,
Such neighbour nearness to our sacred blood Should nothing privilege him, nor partialize

The unstooping firmness of my upright soul.
He is our subject, Mowbray, so art thou

Free speech and fearless I to thee allow Mow Then, Bolingbroke, as low as to thy
heart, 124

Through the false passage of thy throat, thou liest

Three parts of that receipt I had for Calais Disburs'd I duly to his highness' soldiers,

The other part reserv'd I by consent, 128

For that my sovereign liege was in my debt
Upon remainder of a dear account,

Since last I went to France to fetch his queen.
Now swallow down that lie For Gloucester's
death, 132

I slew him not, but to mine own disgrace
Neglected my sworn duty in that case

For you, my noble Lord of Lancaster,
The honourable father to my foe, 136

Once did I lay an ambush for your life,
A trespass that doth vex my grieved soul,

But ere I last receiv'd the sacrament
I did confess it, and exactly begg'd 140

Your Grace's pardon, and I hope I had it
This is my fault as for the rest appeal'd,

It issues from the rancour of a villain,
A recreant and most degenerate traitor, 144

Which in myself I boldly will defend,
And interchangeably hurl down my gage

Upon this overweening traitor's foot,
To prove myself a loyal gentleman 148

Even in the best blood chamber'd in his bosom.
In haste whereof, most heartily I pray

Your highness to assign our trial day K Rich Wrath-kindled gentlemen, be rul'd by me, 152

Let's purge this choler without letting blood
Thus we prescribe, though no physician,

Deep malice makes too deep incision
Forget, forgive, conclude and be agreed, 156

Our doctors say this is no month to bleed
Good uncle, let this end where it begun,

We'll calm the Duke of Norfolk, you your son.

Gaunt To be a make-peace shall become my age 160

Throw down, my son, the Duke of Norfolk's gage

K Rich. And, Norfolk, throw down his.
Gaunt When, Harry, when?

Obedience bids I should not bid again.

K Rich Norfolk, throw down, we bid, there is no boot. 164 Mow Myself I throw, dread sovereign, at thy foot
My life thou shalt command, but not my shame
The one my duty owes, but my fair name,— Despite of death that lives upon my grave,— 168
To dark dishonour's use thou shalt not have I am disgrac'd, impeach'd, and baffled here, Pierc'd to the soul with slander's venom'd spear,
The which no balm can cure but his heart-
blood. 172
Which breath'd this poison
K Rich Rage must be withstood
Give me his gage lions make leopards tame Mow Yea, but not change his spots take but my shame,
And I resign my gage My dear lord, 176
The purest treasure mortal times afford
Is spotless reputation, that away,
Men are but gilded loam or painted clay
A jewel in a ten-times-barr'd-up chest 180
Is a bold spirit in a loyal breast Mine honour is my life, both grow in one,
Take honour from me, and my life is done
Then, dear my liege, mine honour let me try,
In that I live and for that will I die 185 K Rich Cousin, throw down your gage do you begin Boling O! God defend my soul from such deep sin
Shall I seem crest-fall'n in my father's sight, 188
Or with pale beggar-fear impeach my height Before this out-dar'd dastard? Ere my tongue Shall wound mine honour with such feeble wrong,
Or sound so base a parle, my teeth shall tear 192
The slavish motive of recanting fear,
And spit it bleeding in his high disgrace, Where shame doth harbour, even in Mowbray's face [Exit GAUNT K Rich We were not born to sue, but to command 196
Which since we cannot do to make you friends,
Be ready, as your lives shall answer it,
At Coventry, upon Saint Lambert's day
Thereshall your swords and lances arbitrate 200
The swelling difference of your settled hate Since we cannot atone you, we shall see Justice design the victor's chivalry Marshal, command our officers-at-arms 204
Be ready to direct these home alarms [Exit

SCENE II —The Same A Room in the DUKE OF LANCASTER'S Palace

Enter GAUNT and DUCHESS OF GLOUCESTER.

Gaunt Alas! the part I had in Woodstock's
blood

Doth more solicit me than your exclams,
To stir against the butchers of his life
But since correction lieth in those hands 4
Which made the fault that we cannot correct,
Put we our quarrel to the will of heaven,
Who, when they see the hours ripe on earth,

Will rain hot vengeance on offenders' heads 8

Duch Finds brotherhood in thee no sharper spur?

Hath love in thy old blood no living fire?

Edward's seven sons, whereof thyself art one,

Were as seven vials of his sacred blood, 12

Or seven fair branches springing from one root

Some of those seven are dried by nature's course,

Some of those branches by the Destinies cut,

But Thomas my dear lord, my life, my Gloucester,

One vial full of Edward's sacred blood, 17

One flourishing branch of his most royal root,

Is crack'd, and all the precious liquor spilt,

Is hack'd down, and his summer leaves all wither'd,

By envy's hand and murder's bloody axe. 21

Ah, Gaunt! his blood was thine that bed, that womb,

That metal, that self-mould, that fashion'd thee

Made him a man, and though thou liv'st and breath'st, 24

Yet art thou slain in him thou dost consent

In some large measure to thy father's death

In that thou seest thy wretched brother die,

Who was the model of thy father's life 28

Call it not patience, Gaunt, it is despair

In suffering thus thy brother to be slaughter'd

Thou snow'st the naked pathway to thy life,

Teaching stern murder how to butcher thee 32

That which in mean men we entitle patience

Is pale cold cowardice in noble breasts

What shall I say? to safeguard thine own life,

The best way is to venge my Gloucester's death.

Gaunt God's is the quarrel, for God's substitute, 37

His deputy anointed in his sight,

Hath caus'd his death, the which if wrongfully,

Let heaven revenge, for I may never lift 40

An angry arm against his minister

Duch Where then, alas! may I complain myself?

Gaunt To God, the widow's champion and defence

Duch Why then, I will. Farewell, old Gaunt.

Thou go'st to Coventry, there to behold 45

Our cousin Hereford and fell Mowbray fight

O! sit my husband's wrongs on Hereford's spear,

That it may enter butcher Mowbray's breast. 48

Or if misfortune miss the first career,

Be Mowbray's sins so heavy in his bosom

That they may break his foaming courser's back,

And throw the rider headlong in the lists, 52

A catiff recreant to my cousin Hereford!

Farewell, old Gaunt thy sometimes brother's

wife

With her companion grief must end her life.

Gaunt Sister, farewell, I must to Coventry

As much good stay with thee as go with me! 57

Duch Yet one word more Grief boundeth where it falls,

Not with the empty hollowness, but weight

I take my leave before I have begun, 60

For sorrow ends not when it seemeth done.

Commend me to my brother, Edmund York.

Lo! this is all nay, yet depart not so,

Though this be all, do not so quickly go, 64

I shall remember more. Bid him—ah, what?

With all good speed at Plashy visit me.
Alack! and what shall good old York there see
But empty lodgings and unfurnish'd walls, 68
Unpeopled offices, untrodden stones?
And what heart therefor welcome but my groans?
Therefore commend me, let him not come there,
To seek out sorrow that dwells every where 72
Desolate desolate will I hence, and die
The last leave of thee takes my weeping eye
[Exeunt

Before King Richard in his royal lists? 32 Against whom comest thou? and what's thy quarrel?
Speak like a true knight, so defend thee heaven!
Boling Harry of Hereford, Lancaster, and Derby,
Am I, who ready here do stand in arms, 36
To prove by God's grace and my body's valour,
In lists, on Thomas Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk,
That he's a traitor foul and dangerous,
To God of heaven, King Richard, and to me
And as I truly fight, defend me heaven! 41

SCENE III — Open Space, near Coventry Lists set out, and a Throne Heralds, &c, attending

Enter the Lord Marshal and AUMERLE

Mar My Lord Aumerle, is Harry Hereford
arm'd?

Aum Yea, at all points, and longs to enter in Mar The Duke of Norfolk, sprightly and
bold,

Stays but the summons of the appellant's trumpet 4

Aum Why then, the champions are pre-par'd, and stay

For nothing but his majesty's approach

Flourish Enter KING RICHARD, who takes his seat on his Throne, GAUNT, BUSHY, BAGOT, GREEN, and Others, who take their places A trumpet is sounded and answered by another trumpet within Then enter MOWBRAY, in armour, defendant, preceded by a Herald K Rich Marshal, demand of yonder champion

The cause of his arrival here in arms 8
Ask him his name, and orderly proceed
To swear him in the justice of his cause

Mar In God's name, and the king's, say who thou art,
And why thou com'st thus knightly clad in arms, Against what man thou com'st, and what thy quarrel 13

Speak truly, on thy knighthood and thine oath,
As so defend thee heaven and thy valour!

Mow My name is Thomas Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk, 16

Who hither come engaged by my oath,—
Which God defend a knight should violate!— Both to defend my loyalty and truth

To God, my king, and his succeeding issue, 20 Against the Duke of Hereford that appeals me,
And, by the grace of God and this mine arm,
To prove him, in defending of myself,

A traitor to my God, my king, and me 24
And as I truly fight, defend me heaven!
[He takes his seat,

Trumpet sounds Enter BOLINGBROKE, appellant, in armour, preceded by a Herald

K Rich Marshal, ask yonder knight in arms, Both who he is and why he cometh hither
Thus plated in habiliments of war, 28
And formally, according to our law, Depose him in the justice of his cause

Mar What is thy name? and wherefore com'st thou hither,

Mar On pain of death, no person be so bold
Or daring-hardy as to touch the lists,
Except the marshal and such officers 44
Appointed to direct these fair designs

Boling Lord marshal, let me kiss my sovereign's hand,

And bow my knee before his majesty
For Mowbray and myself are like two men
That vow a long and weary pilgrimage, 49
Then let us take a ceremonious leave
And loving farewell of our several friends

Mar The appellant in all duty greets your highness, 52
And craves to kiss your hand and take his leave

K Rich [Descends from his throne] We will descend and fold him in our arms Cousin of Hereford, as thy cause is right,
So be thy fortune in this royal fight! 56

Farewell, my blood, which if to-day thou shed, Lament we may, but not revenge thee dead
Boling O! let no noble eye profane a tear
For me, if I be gor'd with Mowbray's spear 60

As confident as is the falcon's flight
Against a bird, do I with Mowbray fight.
My loving lord I take my leave of you,
Of you, my noble cousin, Lord Aumerle, 64

Not sick, although I have to do with death
But lusty, young, and cheerily drawing breath
Lo! as at English feasts, so I regret
The damtiest last, to make the end most sweet O thou, the earthly author of my blood, 69
Whose youthful spirit, in me regenerate, Doth with a two-fold vigour lift me up
To reach at victory above my head, 72

Add proof unto mine armour with thy prayers,
And with thy blessings steel my lance's point,
That it may enter Mowbray's waxen coat,
And furnish new the name of John a Gaunt, 76
Even in the lusty haviour of his son

Gaunt God in thy good cause make thee prosperous!
Be swift like lightning in the execution,
And let thy blows, doubly redoubled, 80
Fall like amazing thunder on the casque
Of thy adverse pernicious enemy

Rouse up thy youthful blood, bevalant and live Boling Mine innocence and Saint George to thrive! [He takes his seat

Mow [Rising] However God or fortune cast my lot, 85

There lives or dies, true to King Richard's throne,
A loyal, just, and upright gentleman.
Never did captive with a freer heart 88
Cast off his chains of bondage and embrace

His golden uncontroll'd enfranchisement,
More than my dancing soul doth celebrate
This feast of battle with mine adversary 92
Most mighty liege, and my companion peers,
Take from my mouth the wish of happy years.
As gentle and as jocund as to jest,
Go I to fight: truth has a quiet breast. 96
K Rich. Farewell, my lord: securely I espy Virtue with valour couched in thine eye
Order the trial, marshal, and begin.

[The KING and the Lords return to their seats]

Mar. Harry of Hereford, Lancaster, and Derby, 100 Receive thy lance, and God defend the right!
Boling. [Rising.] Strong as a tower in hope,
I cry 'amen'

Mar. [To an Officer.] Go bear this lance to Thomas, Duke of Norfolk

First Her. Harry of Hereford, Lancaster, and Derby, 104 Stands here for God, his sovereign, and himself.
On pain to be found false and recreant,
To prove the Duke of Norfolk, Thomas Mowbray,

A traitor to his God, his king, and him, 108
And dares him to set forward to the fight

Sec Her. Here standeth Thomas Mowbray, Duke of Norfolk,

On pain to be found false and recreant,
Both to defend himself and to approve 112
Henry of Hereford, Lancaster, and Derby,
To God, his sovereign, and to him, disloyal, Courageously and with a free desire,
Attending but the signal to begin. 116

Mar. Sound, trumpet, and set forward, combatants [A charge sounded] Stay, stay, the king hath thrown his warder down

K Rich. Let them lay by their helmets and their spears,
And both return back to their chairs again 120
Withdraw with us, and let the trumpets sound While we return these dukes what we decree

[A long flourish.]

[To the Combatants.] Draw near,
And list what with our council we have done
For that our kingdom's earth should not be soil'd 125

With that dear blood which it hath fostered,
And for our eyes do hate the dire aspect
Of civil wounds plough'd up with neighbours' swords, 128

And for we think the eagle-winged pride
Of sky-aspiring and ambitious thoughts,
With rival-hating envy, set on you
To wake our peace, which in our country's cradle 132

Draws the sweet infant breath of gentle sleep,
Which so rous'd up with boisterous untun'd drums,

With harsh-resounding trumpets' dreadful bray,
And grating shock of wrathful iron arms, 136
Might from our quiet confines fright fair peace
And make us wade even in our kindred's blood
Therefore, we banish you our territories.

You, cousin Hereford, upon pain of life, 140
Till twice five summers have enrich'd our fields, Shall not regret our fair dominions,
But tread the stranger paths of banishment.

Boling. Your will be done: thus must my comfort be, 144

That sun that warms you here shall shine on me,
And those his golden beams to you here lent
Shall point on me and gild my banishment.

K Rich. Norfolk, for thee remains a heavier doom, 148

Which I with some unwillingness pronounce
The sly slow hours shall not determinate

The dateless limit of thy dear exile,
The hopeless word of 'never to return' 152

Breathe I against thee, upon pain of life Mow. A heavy sentence, my most sovereign liege,

And all unlook'd for from your highness' mouth

A dearer merit, not so deep a main 156
As to be cast forth in the common air,
Have I deserved at your highness' hands.

The language I have learn'd these forty years,
My native English, now I must forego, 160

And now my tongue's use is to me no more Than an unstring'd viol or a harp,

Or like a cunning instrument cas'd up,
Or, being open, put into his hands 164

That knows no touch to tune the harmony
Within my mouth you have engaul'd my tongue, Doubly portcullis'd with my teeth and lips,

And dull, unfeeling, barren ignorance 168
Is made my gaoler to attend on me
I am too old to fawn upon a nurse,

Too far in years to be a pupil now
What is thy sentence then but speechless death,

Which robs my tongue from breathing native breath? 173

K Rich. It boots thee not to be compassionate After our sentence plaining comes too late

Mow. Then, thus I turn me from my country's light, 176
To dwell in solemn shades of endless night.

[Retiring]

K Rich. Return again, and take an oath with thee

Lay on our royal sword your banish'd hands, Swear by the duty that you owe to God— 180

Our part therein we banish with yourselves—
To keep the oath that we administer

You never shall,—so help you truth and God!—
Embrace each other's love in banishment, 184

Nor never look upon each other's face,
Nor never write, regret, nor reconcile

This low'ring tempest of your home-red hate,
Nor never by advised purpose meet 188

To plot, contrive, or complot any ill
'Gainst us, our state, our subjects, or our land.

Boling. I swear

Mow. And I, to keep all this, 192

Boling. Norfolk, so far, as to mine enemy—
By this time, had the king permitted us,

One of our souls had wander'd in the air,
Banish'd this frail sepulchre of our flesh, 196

As now our flesh is banish'd from this land.

Confess thy treasons ere thou fly the realm, Since thou hast far to go, bear not along
 The clogging burden of a guilty soul 200
Mow No, Bolingbroke if ever I were traitor,
 My name be blotted from the book of life,
 And I from heaven banish'd as from hence!
 But what thou art, God, thou, and I do know, 204
 And all too soon, I fear, the king shall rue Farewell, my hege Now no way can I stray, Save back to England, all the world s my way.

[Exit]
K Rich Uncle, even in the glasses of thine
 eyes 208

I see thy griev'd heart thy sad aspect Hath from the number of his banish'd years Pluck'd four away — [To BOLINGBROKE] Six frozen winters spent,
 Return with welcome home from banishment Boling How long a time lies in one little
 word! 213

Four lagging winters and four wanton springs
 End in a word such is the breath of kings

Gaunt I thank my hege, that in regard of me
 He shortens four years of my son's exile, 217
 But little vantage shall I reap thereby For, ere the six years that he hath to spend Can change their moons and bring their times about, 220

My oil-dried lamp and time-bewasted light
 Shall be extinct with age and endless night,
 My inch of taper will be burnt and done,
 And blindfold death not let me see my son 224

K Rich Why, uncle, thou hast many years to live

Gaunt But not a minute, king, that thou canst give
 Shorten my days thou canst with sullen sorrow, And pluck nights from me, but not lend a morrow, 228

Thou canst help time to furrow me with age,
 But stop no wrinkle in his pilgrimage,
 Thy word is current with him for my death,
 But dead, thy kingdom cannot buy my breath

K Rich Thy son is banish'd upon good advice 233

Whereto thy tongue a party-verdict gave Why at our justice seem'st thou then to lower?

Gaunt Things sweet to taste prove in digestion sour 236

You urg'd me as a judge, but I had rather
 You would have bid me argue like a father
 O! had it been a stranger, not my child,
 To smooth his fault I should have been more mild 240

A partial slander sought I to avoid,
 And in the sentence my own life destroy'd Alas! I look'd when some of you should say,
 I was too strict to make mine own away, 244
 But you gave leave to my unwilling tongue Against my will to do myself this wrong K Rich Cousin, farewell, and, uncle, bid him so

Six years we banish him, and he shall go 248

[Flourish Exit KING RICHARD and Train Aum Cousin, farewell what presence must not know,

From where you do remain let paper show
Mar My lord, no leave take I, for I will ride,
 As far as land will let me, by your side 252 Gaunt O! to what purpose dost thou hoard thy words,

That thou return'st no greeting to thy friends?
Boling I have too few to take my leave of
 you

When the tongue's office should be prodigal 256
 To breathe the abundant dolour of the heart

Gaunt Thy grief is but thy absence for a time Boling Joy absent, grief is present for that time

Gaunt What is six winters? they are quickly
 gone 260

Boling To men in joy, but grief makes one hour ten

Gaunt Call it a travel that thou tak'st for pleasure

Boling My heart will sigh when I miscall
 it so,

Which finds it an enforced pilgrimage 264
Gaunt The sullen passage of thy weary steps

Esteem as foil wherein thou art to set
 The precious jewel of thy home return

Boling Nay, rather, every tedious stride I make 268

Will but remember me what a deal of world
 I wander from the jewels that I love

Must I not serve a long apprenticeship
 To foreign passages, and in the end, 272

Having my freedom, boast of nothing else
 But that I was a journeyman to grief?

Gaunt All places that the eye of heaven visits
 Are to a wise man ports and happy havens 276

Teach thy necessity to reason thus,
 There is no virtue like necessity

Think not the king did banish thee,
 But thou the king Woe doth the heavier sit,

Where it perceives it is but faintly borne 281
 Go, say I sent thee forth to purchase honour,

And not the king exil'd thee, or suppose Devouring pestilence hangs in our air, 284

And thou art flying to a fresher clime
 Look, what thy soul holds dear, imagine it

To lie that way thou go'st, not whence thou com'st

Suppose the singing birds musicians, 288
 The grass whereon thou tread'st the presence

strew'd,
 The flowers fair ladies, and thy steps no more

Than a delightful measure or a dance,
 For gnarling sorrow hath less power to bite 292

The man that mocks at it and sets it light Boling O! who can hold a fire in his hand

By thinking on the frosty Caucasus?
 Or cloy the hungry edge of appetite 296

By bare imagination of a feast?
 Or wallow naked in December snow

By thinking on fantastic summer's heat?
 O, no! the apprehension of the good 300

Gives but the greater feeling to the worse
 Fell sorrow's tooth doth never rankle more Than when it bites, but lanceth not the sore Gaunt Come, come, my son, I'll bring thee on thy way 304

Had I thy youth and cause, I would not stay Boling Then, England's ground, farewell, sweet soil, adieu
 My mother, and my nurse, that bears me yet!
 Where'er I wander, boast of this I can, 308
 Though banish'd, yet a true-born Englishman.
 [Exeunt]

SCENE IV—London. A Room in the KING'S Castle

Enter KING RICHARD, BAGOT, and GREEN at one door, AUMERLE at another

K Rich We did observe Cousin Aumerle,
 How far brought you high Hereford on his way?
Aum I brought high Hereford, if you call
 him so,

But to the next highway, and there I left him. 4 K Rich And say, what store of parting tears were shed?

Aum Faith, none for me, except the northeast wind,

Which then blew bitterly against our faces,
 Awak'd the sleeping rheum, and so by chance 8
 Did grace our hollow parting with a tear

K Rich What said our cousin when you parted with him?

Aum 'Farewell'

And, for my heart dismained that my tongue 12
 Should so profane the word, that taught me craft
 To counterfeit oppression of such grief
 That words seem'd buried in my sorrow's grave Marry, would the word 'farewell' have lengthen'd hours 16

And added years to his short banishment,
 He should have had a volume of farewells,
 But, since it would not, he had none of me

K Rich He is our cousin, cousin, but 'tis doubt, 20

When time shall call him home from banish-
 ment,

Whether our kinsman come to see his friends.
 Ourself and Bushy, Bagot here and Green
 Observ'd his courtship to the common people, How he did seem to dive into their hearts 25

With humble and familiar courtesy,
 What reverence he did throw away on slaves,
 Wooing poor craftsmen with the craft of smiles
 And patient underbearing of his fortune, 29

As 'twere to banish their affects with him.
 Off goes his bonnet to an oyster-wench,
 A brace of draymen bid God speed him well, 32

And had the tribute of his supple knee, With 'Thanks, my countrymen, my loving
 friends.'

As were our England in reversion his,
 And he our subjects' next degree in hope 36

Green Well, he is gone, and with him go these thoughts

Now for the rebels which stand out in Ireland, Expedient manage must be made, my hege,
 Ere further leisure yield them further means 40

For their advantage and your highness' loss
K Rich We will ourselves in person to this war
 And, for our coffers with too great a court
 And liberal largess are grown somewhat light,

We are enforc'd to farm our royal realm, 45
 The revenue whereof shall furnish us
 For our affairs in hand. If that come short, Our substitutes at home shall have blank charters, 48
 Whereto, when they shall know what men are rich,

They shall subscribe them for large sums of gold,
 And send them after to supply our wants,
 For we will make for Ireland presently 52

Enter BUSHY

Bushy, what news?

Bushy Old John of Gaunt is grievous sick,
 my lord,

Suddenly taken, and hath sent post-haste
 To entreat your majesty to visit him. 56

K Rich Where lies he?

Bushy At Ely House

K Rich Now, put it, God, in his physician's mind

To help him to his grave immediately! 60

The lining of his coffers shall make coats

To deck our soldiers for these Irish wars

Come, gentlemen, let's all go visit him

Pray God we may make haste, and come too late 64

All Amen.

[Exeunt]

ACT II

SCENE I—*London. An Apartment in Ely
 House*

GAUNT on a couch, the DUKE OF YORK and Others standing by him

Gaunt Will the king come, that I may breathe my last

In wholesome counsel to his unsta'd youth?

York Vex not yourself, nor strive not with your breath,

For all in vain comes counsel to his ear 4

Gaunt O! but they sav the tongues of dying
 men

Enforce attention like deep harmony Where words are scarce, they are seldom spent in vain,

For they breathe truth that breathe their words in pain. 8

He that no more must say is listen'd more Than they whom youth and ease have taught to glose,

More are men's ends mark'd than their lives before

The setting sun and music at the close, 12
 As the last taste of sweets, is sweetest last,

Writ in remembrance more than things long past

Though Richard my life's counsel would not hear,

My death's sad tale may yet undeaf his ear 16

York No, it is stopp'd with other flattering sounds,

As praises of his state then there are fond

Lascivious metres, to whose venom sound

The open ear of youth doth always listen 20

Report of fashions in proud Italy,
Whose manners still our tardy apish nation
Limps after in base imitation
Where doth the world thrust forth a vanity,— 24
So it be new there's no respect how vile,—
That is not quickly buzz'd into his ears?
Then all too late comes counsel to be heard,
Where will doth mutiny with wit's regard. 28 Direct not him whose way himself will choose "His breath thou lack'st, and that breath wilt thou lose

Gaunt. Methinks I am a prophet new inspir'd,
And thus expiring do foretell of him 32
His rash fierce blaze of riot cannot last,
For violent fires soon burn out themselves, Small showers last long, but sudden storms are short,

He tires betimes that spurs too fast betimes, 36
With eager feeding food doth choke the feeder Light vanity, insatiate cormorant, Consuming means, soon preys upon itself
This royal throne of kings, this scepter'd isle, 40
This earth of majesty, this seat of Mars,
This other Eden, demi-paradise,
This fortress built by Nature for herself Against infection and the hand of war, 44
This happy breed of men, this little world,
This precious stone set in the silver sea,
Which serves it in the office of a wall,
Or as a moat defensive to a house, 48
Against the envy of less happier lands,
This blessed plot, this earth, this realm, this England,

This nurse, this teeming womb of royal kings, Fear'd by their breed and famous by their birth, 52
Renowned for their deeds as far from home,—
For Christian service and true chivalry,—
As is the sepulchre in stubborn Jewry
Of the world's ransom, blessed Mary's Son 56
This land of such dear souls, this dear, dear land,
Dear for her reputation through the world,
Is now leas'd out,—I die pronouncing it,— Like to a tenement, or pelling farm 60
England, bound in with the triumphant sea,
Whose rocky shore beats back the envious siege
Of watery Neptune, is now bound in with shame,
With inky blots, and rotten parchment bonds 64
That England, that was wont to conquer others, Hath made a shameful conquest of itself
Ah! would the scandal vanish with my life,
How happy then were my ensuing death. 68

Enter KING RICHARD and QUEEN, AUMERLE, BUSHY, GREEN, BAGOT, ROSS, and WIL-LOUGHBY

York The king is come deal mildly with his youth,
For young hot colts, being rag'd, do rage the more

Queen. How fares our noble uncle, Lancaster?

K Rich. What comfort, man? How is 't with aged Gaunt?

Gaunt O! how that name befits my composition, 72

Old Gaunt indeed, and gaunt in being old.
Within me grief hath kept a tedious fast, 75
And who abstains from meat that is not gaunt?
For sleeping England long time have I watch'd, Watching breeds leanness, leanness is all gaunt.
The pleasure that some fathers feed upon
Is my strict fast, I mean my children's looks, 80
And therein fasting hast thou made me gaunt Gaunt am I for the grave, gaunt as a grave, Whose hollow womb inherits nought but bones K Rich. Can sick men play so nicely with their names? 84

Gaunt No, misery makes sport to mock itself

Since thou dost seek to kill my name in me,
I mock my name, great king, to flatter thee K Rich. Should dying men flatter with those that live? 88

Gaunt No, no, men living flatter those that die

K Rich. Thou, now a-dying, sayst thou flatterer'st me

Gaunt O, no! thou diest, though I the sicker
be

K Rich. I am in health I breathe, and see thee ill 92

Gaunt Now, he that made me knows I see
thee ill,

Ill in myself to see, and in thee seeing ill.
Thy death-bed is no lesser than thy land 96

Wherein thou liest in reputation sick
And thou, too careless patient as thou art, Committ'st thy anointed body to the cure
Of those physicians that first wounded thee
A thousand flatterers sit within thy crown, 100
Whose compass is no bigger than thy head,
And yet, incaged in so small a verge,

The waste is no whit lesser than thy land
O! had thy grandsire, with a prophet's eye, 104 Seen how his son's son should destroy his sons, From forth thy reach he would have laid thy shame,

Deposing thee before thou wert possess'd,
Which art possess'd now to depose thyself 108

Why, cousin, wert thou regent of the world,
It were a shame to let this land by lease,
But for thy world enjoying but this land,
Is it not more than shame to shame it so? 112
Landlord of England art thou now, not king Thy state of law is bond-slave to the law,
And—

K Rich. And thou a lunatic lean-witted fool, Presuming on an age's privilege, 116

Dar'st with thy frozen admonition
Make pale our cheek, chasing the royal blood
With fury from his native residence
Now, by my seat's right royal majesty, 120
Wert thou not brother to great Edward's son,—
This tongue that runs so roundly in thy head Should run thy head from thy unreverent shoulders

Gaunt O! spare me not, my brother Edward's son, 124

For that I was his father Edward's son
That blood already, like the pelican, Hast thou tapp'd out and drunkenly carous'd

My brother Gloucester, plain well-meaning soul,—
Whom fair befall in heaven 'mongst happy souls!—

May be a precedent and witness good That thou respect'st not spilling Edward's blood

Join with the present sickness that I have, 132
And thy unkindness be like crooked age,
To crop at once a too-long wither'd flower Live in thy shame, but die not shame with thee!
These words hereafter thy tormentors be! 136
Convey me to my bed, then to my grave Love they to live that love and honour have [Exit, borne out by his Attendants.]

K Rich And let them die that age and sullen
have,

For both hast thou, and both become the grave Hereford I do beseech your majesty, impute his words 141

To wayward sickness and age in him
He loves you, on my life, and holds you dear
As Harry, Duke of Hereford, were he here 144

K Rich Right, you say true as Hereford's love, so his,

As theirs, so mine, and all be as it is

Enter NORTHUMBERLAND

North My liege, old Gaunt commends him to your majesty

K Rich What says he? 148

North Nay, nothing, all is said
His tongue is now a stringless instrument, Words, life, and all, old Lancaster hath spent York Be York the next that must be bankrupt so! 152

Though death be poor, it ends a mortal woe K Rich The ripest fruit first falls, and so doth he

His time is spent, our pilgrimage must be.
So much for that Now for our Irish wars 156

We must supplant those rough rug-headed kerns,
Which live like venom where no venom else
But only they have privilege to live.

And for these great affairs do ask some charge,
Towards our assistance we do seize to us 162

The plate, coin, revenues, and moveables, Whereof our uncle Gaunt did stand possess'd.

York How long shall I be patient? Ah! how long 164

Shall tender duty make me suffer wrong?
Not Gloucester's death, nor Hereford's banish-
ment,

Not Gaunt's rebukes, nor England's private wrongs,

Nor the prevention of poor Bolingbroke 168
About his marriage, nor my own disgrace,

Have ever made me sour my patient cheek,
Or bend one wrinkle on my sovereign's face

I am the last of noble Edward's sons, 172
Of whom thy father, Prince of Wales, was first,

In war was never lion rag'd more fierce,
In peace was never gentle lamb more mild,

Than was that young and princely gentleman.
His face thou hast, for even so look'd he, 177

Accomplish'd with the number of thy hours,

But when he frown'd, it was against the French,
And not against his friends, his noble hand 180 Did win what he did spend, and spent not that Which his triumphant father's hand had won
His hands were guilty of no kindred's blood,
But bloody with the enemies of his kin. 184
O, Richard! York is too far gone with grief, Or else he never would compare between.

K Rich Why, uncle, what's the matter?
York

Pardon me, if you please, if not, I pleas'd 188
Not to be pardon'd, am content withal.
Seek you to seize and gripe into your hands
The royalties and rights of banish'd Hereford?
Is not Gaunt dead, and doth not Hereford live?
Was not Gaunt just, and is not Harry true? 193
Did not the one deserve to have an heir?
Is not his heir a well-deserving son?

Take Hereford's rights away, and take from Time

His charters and his customary rights, 197
Let not to-morrow then ensue to-day,

Be not thyself, for how art thou a king
But by fair sequence and succession? 200

Now, afore God—God forbid I say true!—
If you do wrongfully seize Hereford's rights,

Call in the letters-patent that he hath
By his attorneys-general to sue 204

His livery, and deny his offer'd homage,
You pluck a thousand dangers on your head,

You lose a thousand well-disposed hearts,
And prick my tender patience to those thoughts

Which honour and allegiance cannot think 209 K Rich Think what you will we seize into our hands

His plate, his goods, his money, and his lands.
York I'll not be by the while my liege, fare-
well 212

What will ensue hereof, there's none can tell,
But by bad courses may be understood

That their events can never fall out good [Exit K Rich. Go, Bushy, to the Earl of Wiltshire
straight 216

Bid him repair to us to Ely House
To see this business To-morrow next

We will for Ireland, and 'tis time, I trow—
And we create, in absence of ourself, 220

Our uncle York lord governor of England,
For he is just, and always lov'd us well.

Come on, our queen to-morrow must we part,
Be merry, for our time of stay is short. [Flourish [Exeunt KING, QUEEN, BUSHY, AUMERLE, GREEN, and BAGOT 225

North Well, lords, the Duke of Lancaster is dead. 225

Ross And living too, for now his son is duke.
Willow Barely in title, not in revenue.

North Richly in both, if justice had her right.
Ross My heart is great, but it must break with silence, 229

Ere't be disburden'd with a liberal tongue.
North Nay, speak thy mind, and let him ne'er speak more

That speaks thy words again to do thee harm!
Willow Tends that thou'dst speak to the Duke of Hereford? 233

If it be so, out with it boldly, man, Quick is mine ear to hear of good towards
him.

Ross No good at all that I can do for him, 236
Unless you call it good to pity him, Bereft and gelded of his patrimony

North Now, afore God, 'tis shame such wrongs are borne

In him, a royal prince, and many more 240
Of noble blood in this declining land

The king is not himself but basely led By flatterers, and what they will inform,

Merely in hate, 'gainst any of us all, 244
That will the king severely prosecute

'Gainst us, our lives, our children, and our heirs Ross The commons hath he pill'd with grievous taxes,

And quite lost their hearts the nobles hath he fin'd 248

For ancient quarrels, and quite lost their hearts

Will And daily new exactions are devis'd, As blanks, benevolences, and I wot not what.

But what, o' God's name, doth become of this?
North Wars have not wasted it, for warr'd

he hath no, 253
But basely yielded upon compromise

That which his ancestors achiev'd with blows.
More hath he spent in peace than they in wars

Ross The Earl of Wiltshire hath the realm in farm 257

Will The king's grown bankrupt, like a broken man

North Reproach and dissolution hangeth over him.

Ross He hath not money for these Irish wars,
His burdensome taxations notwithstanding, 261

But by the robbing of the banish'd duke North His noble kinsman most degenerate

king!
But, lords, we hear this fearful tempest sung, 264

Yet seek no shelter to avoid the storm,
We see the wind sit sore upon our sails,

And yet we strike not, but securely perish Ross We see the very wrack that we must

suffer, 268
And unavoids is the danger now,

For suffering so the causes of our wrack North Not so even through the hollow eyes of death

I spy life peering, but I dare not say 272

How near the tidings of our comfort is Will Nay, let us share thy thoughts, as thou dost ours.

Ross Be confident to speak, Northumber-

land
We three are but thyself and, speaking so, 276

Thy words are but as thoughts, therefore, be bold

North Then thus I have from Port le Blanc, a bay

In Brittany, receiv'd intelligence That Harry Duke of Hereford, Rainold Lord

Cobham, 280
That late broke from the Duke of Exeter,

His brother, Archbishop late of Canterbury,
Sir Thomas Erpingham, Sir John Ramston,

Sir John Norbery, Sir Robert Waterton, and Francis Quoint, 284

All these well furnish'd by the Duke of Britaine, With eight tall ships, three thousand men of war,

Are making hither with all due expedience,

And shortly mean to touch our northern shore
Perhaps they had ere this, but that they stay 289

The first departing of the king for Ireland.
If then we shall shake off our slavish yoke,

Imp out our drooping country's broken wing, Redeem from broking pawn the blemish'd

crown,
Wipe off the dust that hides our sceptre's gilt,

And make high majesty look like itself,
Away with me in post to Ravenspurgh, 296

But if you faint, as fearing to do so,
Stay and be secret, and myself will go

Ross To horse, to horse! urge doubts to them that fear

Will Hold out my horse, and I will first be there [Exeunt

SCENE II.—The Same A Room in the Palace

Enter QUEEN, BUSHY, and BAGOT

Bushy Madam, your majesty is too much
sad

You promis'd, when you parted with the king,
To lay aside life-harming heaviness,

And entertain a cheerful disposition 4 Queen To please the king I did, to please

myself
I cannot do it, yet I know no cause

Why I should welcome such a guest as grief, Save bidding farewell to so sweet a guest. 8

As my sweet Richard yet, again, methinks,
Some unborn sorrow, ripe in fortune's womb,

Is coming towards me, and my inward soul 11
With nothing trembles, at some thing it grieves

More than with parting from my lord the king Bushy Each substance of a grief hath twenty shadows,

Which show like grief itself, but are not so

For sorrow's eye, glazed with blinding tears, 16
Divides one thing entire to many objects,

Like perspectives, which rightly gaz'd upon Show nothing but confusion, ey'd awry

Distinguish form so your sweet majesty, 20
Looking awry upon your lord's departure,

Finds shapes of grief more than himself to wail,
Which, look'd on as it is, is nought but shadows

Of what it is not. Then, thrice-gracious queen, More than your lord's departure weep not more's not seen, 25

Or if it be, 'tis with false sorrow's eye,

Which for things true weeps things imaginary
Queen It may be so, but yet my inward soul

Persuades me it is otherwise how'er it be, 29
I cannot but be sad, so heavy sad,

As, though in thinking on no thought I think,
Makes me with heavy nothing faint and shrink.

Bushy 'Tis nothing but conceit, my gracious
lady

Queen 'Tis nothing less conceit is still deriv'd 33

From some forefather grief, mine is not so,
For nothing hath begot my something grief, 36
Or something hath the nothing that I grieve
'Tis in reversion that I do possess,
But what it is, that is not yet known, what I cannot name, 'tis nameless woe, I wot. 40

Enter GREEN

Green God save your majesty! and well met,
gentlemen

I hope the king is not yet shipp'd for Ireland.

Queen Why hop'st thou so? 'tis better hope he is, 43

For his designs crave haste, his haste good hope Then wherefore dost thou hope he is not shipp'd?

Green That he, our hope, might have retir'd his power,

And driven into despair an enemy's hope,
Who strongly hath set footing in this land 48

The banish'd Bolingbroke repeals himself,
And with uplifted arms is safe arriv'd

At Ravenspurgh.

Queen. Now God in heaven forbid!

Green. Ah! madam, 'tis too true and that is worse, 52

The Lord Northumberland, his son young Henry Percy,

The Lords of Ross, Beaumont, and Willoughby,
With all their powerful friends, are fled to him.

Bushy Why have you not proclaim'd Northumberland 56

And all the rest of the revolted faction traitors?

Green. We have whereupon the Earl of Worcester

Hath broke his staff, resign'd his stewardship,
And all the household servants fled with him 60

To Bolingbroke.

Queen So, Green, thou art the midwife to my woe,

And Bolingbroke my sorrow's dismal heir
Now hath my soul brought forth her prodigy, 64

And I, a gasping new-deliver'd mother,
Have woe to woe, sorrow to sorrow join'd.

Bushy Despair not, madam.

Queen Who shall hinder me?
I will despair, and be at enmity 68

With cozening hope he is a flatterer,
A parasite, a keeper-back of death,

Who gently would dissolve the bands of life,
Which false hope lingers in extremity 72

Enter YORK.

Green. Here comes the Duke of York.

Queen With signs of war about his aged neck

O! full of careful business are his looks.
Uncle, for God's sake, speak comfortable words.

York Should I do so, I should belie my thoughts 77

Comfort's in heaven, and we are on the earth,
Where nothing lives but crosses, cares, and grief

Your husband, he is gone to save far off, 80
Whilst others come to make him lose at home

Here am I left to underprop his land,
Who, weak with age, cannot support myself.

Now comes the sick hour that his surfeit made,
Now shall he try his friends that flatter'd him.

Enter a Servant.

Serv My lord, your son was gone before I came

York He was? Why, so! go all which way it will!

The nobles they are fled, the commons they are cold, 88

And will, I fear, revolt on Hereford's side

Sirrah, get thee to Plashy, to my sister Gloucester,

Bid her send me presently a thousand pound.

Hold, take my ring 92

Serv My lord, I had forgot to tell your lordship
To-day, as I came by, I called there,

But I shall grieve you to report the rest.

York What is't, knave? 96

Serv An hour before I came the duchess died

York God for his mercy! what a tide of woes Comes rushing on this woeful land at once!

I know not what to do I would to God,— 100
So my untruth had not provok'd him to it,—

The king had cut off my head with my brother's.

What! are there no posts dispatch'd for Ireland?

How shall we do for money for these wars? 104

Come, sister,—cousin, I would say,—pray, pardon me—

Go, fellow, get thee home, provide some carts
And bring away the armour that is there

[Exit Servant.]

Gentlemen, will you go muster men? If I know How or which way to order these affairs 109

Thus thrust disorderly into my hands,
Never believe me Both are my kinsmen

The one is my sovereign, whom both my oath
And duty bids defend, the other again 113

Is my kinsman, whom the king hath wrong'd,
Whom conscience and my kindred bids to right

Well, somewhat we must do Come, cousin, 116 I'll dispose of you. Gentlemen, go muster up your men,

And meet me presently at Berkeley Castle.

I should to Plashy too

But time will not permit. All is uneven, 120
And every thing is left at six and seven.

[Exit YORK and QUEEN]

Bushy The wind sits fair for news to go to Ireland,

But none returns For us to levy power Proportionable to the enemy 124

Is all impossible

Green. Besides, our nearness to the king in
love

Is near the hate of those love not the king

Bagot And that's the wavering commons, for their love 128

Lies in their purses, and whoso empties them,
By so much fills their hearts with deadly hate.

Bushy Wherean the king stands generally condemn'd.

Bagot If judgment be in them, then so do we,
Because we ever have been near the king. 133

Green Well, I'll for refuge straight to Bristol Castle,
The Earl of Wiltshire is already there Bushy Thither will I with you, for little office 136
Will the hateful commons perform for us, Except like curs to tear us all to pieces
Will you go along with us?
Bagot No, I will to Ireland to his majesty Farewell if heart's presages be not vain, 141
We three here part that ne'er shall meet again.
Bushy That's as York thrives to beat back Bolingbroke Green Alas, poor duke! the task he undertakes 144
Is numbering sands and drinking oceans dry
Where one on his side fights, thousands will fly Farewell at once, for once, for all, and ever Bushy Well, we may meet again.
Bagot I fear me, never 148
(Exeunt.)

SCENE III—The Wolds in Gloucestershire

Enter BOLINGBROKE and NORTHUMBERLAND, with Forces

Boling How far is it, my lord, to Berkeley now?
North Believe me, noble lord,
I am a stranger here in Gloucestershire
These high wild hills and rough uneven ways 4
Draw out our miles and make them wearisome,
But yet your fair discourse hath been as sugar,
Making the hard way sweet and delectable
But I bethink me what a weary way 8
From Ravenspurgh to Cotswold will be found In Ross and Willoughby, wanting your company,
Which, I protest, hath very much beguil'd 12
The tediousness and process of my travel
But theirs is sweeten'd with the hope to have The present benefit which I possess,
And hope to joy is little less in joy
Than hope enjoy'd by thus the weary lords 16
Shall make their way seem short, as mine hath done
By sight of what I have, your noble company Boling Of much less value is my company Than your good words. But who comes here?

Enter HENRY PERCY.

North. It is my son, young Harry Percy, 21
Sent from my brother Worcester, whencesoever Harry, how fares your uncle?
H. Percy I had thought, my lord, to have learn'd his health of you. 24 North Why, is he not with the queen?
H. Percy No, my good lord, he hath forsook the court, Broken his staff of office, and dispers'd
The household of the king
North What was his reason? 28
He was not so resolv'd when last we spake together

H. Percy Because your lordship was proclaimed traitor
But he, my lord, is gone to Ravenspurgh,
To offer service to the Duke of Hereford, 32
And sent me over by Berkeley to discover What power the Duke of York had levied there, Then with direction to repair to Ravenspurgh.
North Have you forgot the Duke of Hereford, boy? 36
H. Percy No, my good lord, for that is not forgot Which ne'er I did remember to my knowledge
I never in my life did look on him
North Then learn to know him now this is the duke 40
H. Percy My gracious lord, I tender you my service, Such as it is, being tender, raw, and young,
Which elder days shall ripen and confirm To more approved service and desert. 44
Boling I thank thee, gentle Percy, and be sure I count myself in nothing else so happy
As in a soul remembering my good friends,
And as my fortune ripens with thy love, 48
It shall be still thy true love's recompense
My heart thus covenant makes, my hand thus seals it.
North How far is it to Berkeley? and what str Keeps good old York there with his men of war?
H. Percy There stands the castle, by yon tuft of trees, 53 Mann'd with three hundred men, as I have heard,
And in it are the Lords of York, Berkeley, and Seymour, None else of name and noble estimate 56

Enter ROSS and WILLOUGHBY

North Here come the Lords of Ross and Willoughby, Bloody with spurring, fiery-red with haste.
Boling Welcome, my lords I wot your love pursues
A banish'd traitor, all my treasury 60
Is yet but unfelt thanks, which, more enrich'd, Shall be your love and labour's recompense
Ross Your presence makes us rich, most noble lord Willo And far surmounts our labour to attain it. 64
Boling Evermore thanks, the exchequer of the poor,
Which, till my infant fortune comes to years,
Stands for my bounty. But who comes here?

Enter BERKELEY

North. It is my Lord of Berkeley, as I guess.
Berk My lord of Hereford, my message is to you. 69
Boling My lord, my answer is—to Lancaster,
And I am come to seek that name in England,
And I must find that title in your tongue 72
Before I make reply to aught you say

Berk Mistake me not, my lord, 'tis not my meaning To raze one title of your honour out
To you, my lord, I come, what lord you will, 76
From the most gracious regent of this land,
The Duke of York, to know what pricks you on
To take advantage of the absent time
And fright our native peace with self-born arms

Enter YORK, attended

Boling I shall not need transport my words by you 81
Here comes his Grace in person

York Show me thy humble heart, and not thy knee,
Whose duty is deceivable and false 84

Boling My gracious uncle—York Tut, tut!

Grace me no grace, nor uncle me no uncle
I am no traitor's uncle, and that word 'grace'
In an ungracious mouth is but profane 89
Why have those banish'd and forbidden legs Dar'd once to touch a dust of England's ground?
But then, more 'why?' why have they dar'd to march 92

So many miles upon her peaceful bosom,
Fighting her pale-fac'd villages with war
And ostentation of despised arms?

Com'st thou because the anointed king is hence?
Why, foolish boy, the king is left behind, 97

And in my loyal bosom lies his power
Were I but now the lord of such hot youth

As when brave Gaunt thy father, and myself, 100 Rescu'd the Black Prince, that young Mars of
men,

From forth the ranks of many thousand French,
O! then, how quickly should this arm of mine,
Now prisoner to the palsy, chastise thee 104

And minister correction to thy fault!

Boling My gracious uncle, let me know my fault

On that condition stands it and wherein York Even in condition of the worst degree,
In gross rebellion and detested treason 109

Thou art a banish'd man, and here art come Before the expiration of thy time,

In braving arms against thy sovereign. 112
Boling As I was banish'd, I was banish'd Hereford,

But as I come, I come for Lancaster
And, noble uncle, I beseech your Grace

Look on my wrongs with an indifferent eye 116
You are my father, for methinks in you

I see old Gaunt alive O! then, my father,
Will you permit that I shall stand condemn'd

A wandering vagabond, my rights and royalties
Pluck'd from my arms perforce and given away

To upstart unthrifths? Wherefore was I born?
If that my cousin king be King of England,

It must be granted I am Duke of Lancaster 124
You have a son, Aumerle, my noble kinsman,

Had you first died, and he been thus trod down,
He should have found his uncle Gaunt a father,

To rouse his wrongs and chase them to the bay
I am demed to sue my livery here, 129

And yet my letters-patent give me leave
My father's goods are all distraint'd and sold,
And these and all are all amiss employ'd 132
What would you have me do? I am a subject,
And challenge law attorneys are denied me,
And therefore personally I lay my claim
To my inheritance of free descent. 136

North The noble duke hath been too much
abus'd

Ross It stands your Grace upon to do him right.

Will Base men by his endowments are made great

York My lords of England, let me tell you
this 140

I have had feeling of my cousin's wrongs,
And labour'd all I could to do him right,

But in this kind to come, in braving arms,
Be his own carver and cut out his way, 144

To find out right with wrong, it may not be,
And you that do abet him in this kind

Cherish rebellion and are rebels all North The noble duke hath sworn his coming is 148

But for his own, and for the right of that We all have strongly sworn to give him aid;

And let him ne'er see joy that breaks that oath!
York Well, well, I see the issue of these arms 152

I cannot mend it, I must needs confess,
Because my power is weak and all ill left,

But if I could, by him that gave me life,
I would attach you all and make you stoop 156

Unto the sovereign mercy of the king,
But since I cannot, be it known to you

I do remain as neuter So, fare you well,
Unless you please to enter in the castle 160

And there repose you for this night.
Boling An offer, uncle, that we will accept

But we must win your Grace to go with us
To Bristol Castle, which they say is held 164

By Bushy, Bagot, and their complices,
The caterpillars of the commonwealth,

Which I have sworn to weed and pluck away York It may be I will go with you, but yet

I'll pause, 168
For I am loath to break our country's laws

Nor friends nor foes, to me welcome you are Things past redress are now with me past care.

[Exeunt]

SCENE IV—A Camp in Wales

Enter SALISBURY and a Captain.

Cap My Lord of Salisbury, we have stay'd ten days,

And hardly kept our countrymen together,
And yet we hear no tidings from the king,

Therefore we will disperse ourselves farewell. 4 Sal Stay yet another day, thou trusty Welsh-
man

The king reposeth all his confidence in thee.
Cap 'Tis thought the king is dead. we will not stay

The bay-trees in our country are all wither'd 12
And meteors fright the fixed stars of heav'n,

The pale-fac'd moon looks bloody on the earth
And lean-look'd prophets whisper fearful change,
Rich men look sad and ruffians dance and leap,
The one in fear to lose what they enjoy, 13
The other to enjoy by rage and war
These signs forerun the death or fall of kings Farewell our countrymen are gone and fled, 16
As well as Richard their king is dead

[Exit mind
Sal Ah, Richard! with the eyes of heavy
I see thy glory like a shooting star
Fall to the base earth from the firmament 20
Thy sun sets weeping in the lowly west, Witnessing storms to come, woe, and unrest.
Thy friends are fled to wait upon thy foes,
And crossly to thy good all fortune goes [Exit

Green My comfort is, that heaven will take our souls 33
And plague iniustice with the pains of hell Boling My Lord Northumberland, see them dispatch'd

[Exeunt NORTHUMBERLAND and Others, with BUSHY and GREEN
Uncle, you say the queen is at your house, 36
For God's sake, fairly let her be entreated Tell her I send to her my kind commends,
Take special care my greetings be deliver'd York A gentleman of mine I have dispatch'd
With letters of your love to her at large 41 Boling Thanks, gentle uncle Come, lords,
away,
To fight with Glendower and his complices Awhile to work, and after holiday [Exeunt

ACT III

SCENE I — Bristol BOLINGBROKE'S Camp

Enter BOLINGBROKE, YORK, NORTHUMBERLAND, HENRY PERCY, WILLUGHBY, ROSS, Officers behind, with BUSHY and GREEN prisoners

Boling Bring forth these men Busby and Green, I will not vex your souls—Since presently your souls must part your bodies—

With too much urging your pernicious lives, 4
For 'twere no charity, yet, to wash your blood
From off my hands, here in the view of men
I will unfold some causes of your deaths
You have misled a prince, a royal king, 8
A happy gentleman in blood and lineaments,
By you unhappied and disfigur'd clean
You have in manner with your sinful hours
Made a divorce betwixt his queen and him, 12
Broke the possession of a royal bed,
And stain'd the beauty of a fair queen's cheeks With tears drawn from her eyes by your foul wrongs.

Myself, a prince by fortune of my birth, 16
Near to the king in blood, and near in love
Till you did make him misinterpret me,
Have stoop'd my neck under your injuries,
And sigh'd my English breath in foreign clouds, Eating the bitter bread of banishment, 21
Whilst you have fed upon my signories, Dispar'd my parks, and felled my forest woods,
From mine own windows torn my household
coat, 24

Raz'd out my impress, leaving me no sign,
Save men's opinions and my living blood,
To show the world I am a gentleman.
Thus and much more, much more than twice all this, 28
Condemns you to the death. See them deliver'd over

To execution and the hand of death Busby More welcome is the stroke of death
to me
Than Bolingbroke to England. Lords, farewell.

SCENE II — The Coast of Wales A Castle in view

Flourish drums and trumpets Enter KING RICHARD, the BISHOP of CARLISLE, AUMERLE,
and Soldiers

K Rich Barkloughly Castle call they this at hand?

Aum Yea, my lord How brooks your Grace
the air,

After your late tossing on the breaking seas?
K Rich Needs must I like it well I weep for joy 4

To stand upon my kingdom once again.
Dear earth, I do salute thee with my hand, Though rebels wound thee with their horses' hoofs

As a long-parted mother with her child 8
Plays fondly with her tears and smiles in meeting,
So, weeping, smiling, greet I thee, my earth,
And do thee favour with my royal hands
Feed not thy sovereign's foe, my gentle earth, 12
Nor with thy sweets comfort his ravenous sense,
But let thy spiders, that suck up thy venom,
And heavy-gated toads he in their way,
Doing annoyance to the treacherous feet 16

Which with usurping steps do trample thee
Yield stinging nettles to mine enemies,
And when they from thy bosom pluck a flower,
Guard it, I pray thee, with a lurking adder 20
Whose double tongue may with a mortal touch Throw death upon thy sovereign's enemies
Mock not my senseless conjuration, lords
This earth shall have a feeling and these stones Prove armed soldiers, ere her native king 25 Shall falter under foul rebellion's arms

Car Fear not, my lord that power that made you king
Hath power to keep you king in spite of all 28
The means that heaven yields must be embrac'd,
And not neglected, else, if heaven would,
And we will not, heaven's offer we refuse,
The proffer'd means of succour and redress 32

Aum He means, my lord, that we are too remiss,
Whilst Bolingbroke, through our security, Grows strong and great in substance and in friends.

K Rich Discomfortable cousin! know'st thou not 36

That when the searching eye of heaven is hid Behind the globe, and lights the lower world, Then thieves and robbers range abroad unseen,

In murders and in outrage bloody here, 40
But when, from under this terrestrial ball
He fires the proud tops of the eastern pines
And darts his light through every guilty hole
Then murders, treasons, and detested sins 44
The cloak of night being pluck'd from off their backs,

Stand bare and naked, trembling at themselves?
So when this thief, this traitor, Bolingbroke,
Who all this while hath revell'd in the night 48
Whilst we were wandering with the antipodes,
Shall see us rising in our throne, the east,
His treasons will sit blushing in his face,
Not able to endure the sight of day, 52
But self-affrighted tremble at his sin

Not all the water in the rough rude sea
Can wash the balm from an anointed king,
The breath of worldly men cannot depose 56
The deputy elected by the Lord
For every man that Bolingbroke hath press'd
To lift shrewd steel against our golden crown, God for his Richard hath in heavenly pay 60
A glorious angel; then, if angels fight, Weak men must fall, for heaven still guards the right

Enter SALISBURY

Welcome, my lord: how far off lies your power?
Sal Nor near nor further off, my gracious
lord, 64

Than this weak arm discomfort guides my tongue

And bids me speak of nothing but despair
One day too late, I fear me, noble lord, Hath clouded all thy happy days on earth. 68
O! call back yesterday, bid time return,
And thou shalt have twelve thousand fighting
men

To-day, to-day, unhappy day too late, O'erthrows thy joys, friends, fortune, and thy state, 72

For all the Welshmen, hearing thou wert dead,
Are gone to Bolingbroke, dispers'd, and fled.

Aum Comfort, my liege! why looks your Grace so pale?

K Rich But now, the blood of twenty thousand men 76

Did triumph in my face, and they are fled;
And till so much blood thither come again

Have I not reason to look pale and dead?
All souls that will be safe, fly from my side, 80
For time hath set a blot upon my pride

Aum Comfort, my liege! remember who you are

K Rich I had forgot myself: Am I not king?
Awake, thou sluggard majesty! thou sleepest. 84

Is not the king's name twenty thousand names?
Arm, arm, my name! a puny subject strikes
At thy great glory: Look not to the ground,
Ye favourites of a king: are we not high? 88

High be our thoughts: I know my uncle York Hath power enough to serve our turn: But who comes here?

Enter SIR STEPHEN SCROOP

Scroop More health and happiness betide
my liege

Than can my care-tun'd tongue deliver him! 92

K Rich Mine ear is open and my heart pre-par'd

The worst is worldly loss thou canst unfold
Say, is my kingdom lost? why, 'twas my care,
And what loss is it to be rid of care? 96

Strives Bolingbroke to be as great as we?
Greater he shall not be: if he serve God

We'll serve him too, and be his fellow so Revolt our subjects? that we cannot mend, 100

They break their faith to God as well as us Cry woe, destruction, ruin, loss, decay,

The worst is death, and death will have his day

Scroop Glad am I that your highness is so
arm'd 104

To bear the tidings of calamity
Like an unseasonable stormy day

Which makes the silver rivers drown their shores,
As if the world were all dissolv'd to tears, 108

So high above his limits swells the rage
Of Bolingbroke, covering your fearful land

With hard bright steel and hearts harder than steel

White-beards have arm'd their thin and hairless scalps 112

Against thy majesty, and boys, with women's voices,

Strive to speak big, and clap their female joints
In stiff unwieldy arms against thy crown,

Thy very beadsmen learn to bend their bows
Of double-fatal yew against thy state, 117

Yea, distaff-women manage rusty bills
Against thy seat: both young and old rebel,

And all goes worse than I have power to tell 120 K Rich Too well, too well thou tell'st a tale
so ill.

Where is the Earl of Wiltshire? where is Bagot?
What is become of Bushy? where is Green?

That they have let the dangerous enemy 124
Measure our confines with such peaceful steps?

If we prevail, their heads shall pay for it.
I warrant they have made peace with Boling-broke

Scroop Peace have they made with him, indeed, my lord - 128

K Rich O villains, vipers, damn'd without redemption!

Dogs, easily won to fawn on any man!
Snakes, in my heart-blood warm'd, that sting my heart!

Three Judases, each one thrice worse than Judas!
Would they make peace? terrible hell make war

Upon their spotted souls for this offence!
Scroop Sweet love, I see, changing his property,

Turns to the sourest and most deadly hate, 136
Again uncurses their souls, their peace is made

With heads and not with hands: those whom you curse

Have felt the worst of death's destroying wound
And he full low, grav'd in the hollow ground 140

Aum Is Bushy, Green, and the Earl of Wiltshire dead?

Scroop Yea, all of them at Bristol lost their heads

Aum Where is the duke my father with his power?

K Rich. No matter where Of comfort no man speak 144

Let's talk of graves, of worms, and epitaphs,
Make dust our paper, and with rainy eyes

Write sorrow on the bosom of the earth,
Let's choose executors and talk of wills 148

And yet not so—for what can we bequeath
Save our deposed bodies to the ground?

Our lands, our lives, and all are Bolingbroke's,
And nothing can we call our own but death, 152

And that small model of the barren earth
Which serves as paste and cover to our bones

For God's sake, let us sit upon the ground
And tell sad stories of the death of kings 156

How some have been depos'd, some slain in war,
Some haunted by the ghosts they have depos'd,

Some poison'd by their wives, some sleeping kill'd,

All murder'd for within the hollow crown 160
That rounds the mortal temples of a king

Keeps Death his court, and there the antick sits, Scoffing his state and grinning at his pomp,

Allowing him a breath, a little scene, 164
To monarchize, be fear'd, and kill with looks,

Infusing him with self and vain conceit
As if this flesh which walls about our life

Were brass impregnable, and humour'd thus Comes at the last, and with a little pin 169

Bore through his castle wall, and farewell king!
Cover your heads, and mock not flesh and blood

With solemn reverence throw away respect, 172
Tradition, form, and ceremonious duty,

For you have but mistook me all this while I live with bread like you, feel want,

Taste grief, need friends subjected thus, 176
How can you say to me I am a king?

Car My lord, wise men ne'er sit and wail their woes,

But presently prevent the ways to wail.
To fear the foe, since fear oppresseth strength,

Gives in your weakness strength unto your foe,
And so your follies fight against yourself

Fear and be slain, no worse can come to fight
And fight and die is death destroying death, 184

Where fearing dying pays death servile breath.
Aum My father hath a power; inquire of him

And learn to make a body of a limb.

K Rich. Though I'd stme well. Proud Bolingbroke, I come 188

To change blows with thee for our day of doom.
This ague-fit of fear is over-blown;

An easy task it is, to win our own.—
Say, Scroop, where lies our uncle with his power?

Speak sweetly, man, although thy looks be sour Scroop Men judge by the complexion of the sky

The state and inclination of the day;

So may you by my dull and heavy eye, 196

My tongue hath but a heavier tale to say
I play the torturer, by small and small

To lengthen out the worst that must be spoken
Your uncle York is join'd with Bolingbroke, 200

And all your northern castles yielded up,
And all your southern gentlemen in arms

Upon his party
K Rich Thou hast said enough

[To Aumerle] Beshrew thee, cousin, which didst lead me forth 204

Of that sweet way I was in to despair!
What say you now? What comfort have we

now?
By heaven, I'll hate him everlastingly

That bids me be of comfort any more 208
Go to Flint Castle there I'll pine away,

A king, woe's slave, shall kingly woe obey
That power I have, discharge, and let them go

To ear the land that hath some hope to grow,
For I have none let no man speak again 213

To alter this, for counsel is but vain Aum My liege, one word

K Rich He does me double wrong,
That wounds me with the flatteries of his tongue

Discharge my followers let them hence away,
From Richard's night to Bolingbroke's fair day

[Exeunt]

SCENE III — Wales Before Flint Castle

Enter, with drum and colours, BOLINGBROKE and Forces, YORK, NORTHUMBERLAND, and Others

Boling So that by this intelligence we learn
The Welshmen are dispers'd and Salisbury

Is gone to meet the king, who lately landed
With some few private friends upon this coast. 4

North The news is very fair and good, my lord

Richard not far from hence hath hid his head.
York It would besem the Lord Northumberland

To say, 'King Richard' alack the heavy day 8
When such a sacred king should hide his head!

North Your Grace mistakes, only to be brief Left I his title out.

York The time hath been,
Would you have been so brief with him, he would 12

Have been so brief with you, to shorten you,

Fortaking so the head, your whole head's length Boling Mistake not, uncle, further than you should.

York Take not, good cousin, further than you should, 16

Lest you mistake the heavens are o'er our heads Boling I know it, uncle, and oppose not myself

Against their will. But who comes here?

Enter HENRY PERCY.

Welcome, Harry what, will not this castle
yield? 20

H Percy The castle royally is mann'd, my
lord,

Against thy entrance.

Boling Royally!

Why, it contains no king?

H Percy Yes, my good lord, 24
It doth contain a king King Richard lies Within the limits of yon lime and stone,
And with him are the Lord Aumerle, Lord Salisbury,

Sir Stephen Scroop, besides a clergyman 28
Of holy reverence, who, I cannot learn

North O! belike it is the Bishop of Carlisle

Boling [To NORTH] Noble lord,

Go to the rude ribs of that ancient castle, 32

Through brazen trumpet send the breath of parley

Into his ruin'd ears, and thus deliver

Henry Bolingbroke

On both his knees doth kiss King Richard's

hand, 36

And sends allegiance and true faith of heart

To his most royal person, hither come

Even at his feet to lay my arms and power,

Provided that my banishment repeal'd, 40

And lands restor'd again be freely granted

If not, I'll use the advantage of my power,

And lay the summer's dust with showers of blood

Rain'd from the wounds of slaughter'd Englishmen 44

The which, how far off from the mind of Bol-ingbroke

It is, such crimson tempest should bedrench

The fresh green lap of fair King Richard's land,

My stooping duty tenderly shall show 48

Go, signify as much, while here we march

Upon the grassy carpet of this plain

Let's march without the noise of threat'ning drum,

That from the castle's totter'd battlements 52

Our fair appointments may be well perus'd

Methinks King Richard and myself should meet

With no less terror than the elements

Of fire and water, when their thundering shock

At meeting tears the cloudy cheeks of heaven

Be he the fire, I'll be the yielding water

The rage be his, while on the earth I rain

My waters, on the earth, and not on him 60

March on, and mark King Richard how he looks

A Parley sounded, and answered by a Trumpet within Flourish Enter on the Walls KING

RICHARD, the BISHOP OF CARLISLE, AUMERLE,

SCROOP, and SALISBURY

H Percy See, see, King Richard doth himself appear,

As doth the blushing discontented sun

From out the fiery portal of the east, 64

When he perceives the envious clouds are bent

To dim his glory and to stain the track

Of his bright passage to the occident.

York Yet looks he like a king behold, his

eye, 68

As bright as is the eagle's, lightens forth

Controlling majesty alack, alack, for woe,

That any harm should stain so fair a show!

K Rich. [To NORTHUMBERLAND] We are

amaz'd, and thus long have we stood 72

To watch the fearful bending of thy knee,

Because we thought ourself thy lawful king

And if we be, how dare thy joints forget

To pay their awful duty to our presence? 76

If we be not, show us the hand of God

That hath dismiss'd us from our stewardship,

For well we know, no hand of blood and bone

Can gripe the sacred handle of our sceptre, 80

Unless he do profane, steal, or usurp

And though you think that all, as you have done,

Have torn their souls by turning them from us,

And we are barren and bereft of friends, 84

Yet know, my master, God omnipotent,

Is mustering in his clouds on our behalf

Armies of pestilence, and they shall strike 88

Your children yet unborn and unbegot,

That lift your vassal hands against my head

And threaten the glory of my precious crown

Tell Bolingbroke,—for yond methinks he is,—

That every stride he makes upon my land 92

Is dangerous treason he is come to open

The purple testament of bleeding war,

But ere the crown he looks for live in peace,

Ten thousand bloody crowns of mothers' 96

sons

Shall ill become the flower of England's face,

Change the complexion of her maid-pale peace

To scarlet indignation, and bedew

Her pastures' grass with faithful English blood

North The king of heaven forbid our lord

the king 102

Should so with civil and uncivil arms

Be rush'd upon! Thy thrice-noble cousin,

Harry Bolingbroke, doth humbly kiss thy hand,

And by the honourable tomb he swears, 106

That stands upon your royal grandsire's bones,

And by the royalties of both your bloods,

Currents that spring from one most gracious

head, 108

And by the bured hand of war-like Gaunt,

And by the worth and honour of himself,

Comprising all that may be sworn or said,

His coming hither hath no further scope 112

Than for his lineal royalties and to beg

Enfranchisement immediate on his knees

Which on thy royal party granted once,

His glittering arms he will commend to rust, 116

His barbed steeds to stables, and his heart

To faithful service of your majesty

Thus swears he, as he is a prince, is just;

And, as I am a gentleman, I credit him 120

K Rich. Northumberland, say, thus the king returns

His noble cousin is right welcome hither,

And all the number of his fair demands

Shall be accomplish'd without contradiction

With all the gracious utterance thou hast 125

Speak to his gentle hearing kind commands.

[NORTHUMBERLAND retires to BOLINGBROKE.

[To AUMERLE.] We do debase ourself, cousin, do we not,

To look so poorly and to speak so fair? 128

Shall we call back Northumberland and send Defiance to the traitor and so die?

Aum. No, good my lord, let's fight with gentle words,

Till time lend friends and friends their helpful

swords, 132

K Rich O God! O God! that e'er this tongue
of mine,
That laid the sentence of dread banishment
On yond proud man, should take it off again
With words of sooth O! that I were as great As is my grief, or lesser than my name, 137 Or that I could forget what I have been,
Or not remember what I must be now Swell'st thou, proud heart? I'll give thee scope to beat, 140

Since foes have scope to beat both thee and me Aum Northumberland comes back from Bolingbroke

K Rich What must the king do now? Must he submit?

The king shall do it must he be depos'd? 144
The king shall be contented must he lose
The name of king? o' God's name, let it go I'll give my jewels for a set of beads,
My gorgeous palace for a hermitage, 148
My gay apparel for an almsman's gown,
My figur'd goblets for a dish of wood,
My sceptre for a palmer's walking-staff,
My subjects for a pair of carved saints, 152
And my large kingdom for a little grave,
A little little grave, an obscure grave,
Or I'll be buried in the king's highway,
Some way of common trade, where subjects' feet

May hourly trample on their sovereign's head,
For on my heart they tread now whilst I live,
And buried once, why not upon my head? 159 Aumerle, thou weep'st, my tender-hearted cousin!

We'll make foul weather with despised tears,
Our sighs and they shall lodge the summer corn,
And make a dearth in this revolting land
Or shall we play the wantons with our woes, 164
And make some pretty match with shedding tears?

As thus, to drop them still upon one place,
Till they have fretted us a pair of graves Within the earth, and, there inlaid There lies Two kinsmen digg'd their graves with weeping
eyes? 169

Would not this ill do well? Well, well, I see I talk but idly and you laugh at me
Most mighty prince, my Lord Northumberland,
What says King Bolingbroke? will his majesty Give Richard leave to live till Richard die?
You make a leg, and Bolingbroke says ay

North My lord, in the base court he doth attend 176
To speak with you, may't please you to come
down?

K Rich Down, down, I come, like glistering Phaethon,
Wanting the manage of unruly jades
In the base court? Base court, where kings grow base, 180
To come at traitors' calls and do them grace
In the base court? Come down? Down, court!
down, king!

For night-owls shriek where mounting larks should sing [Exeunt from above Boling What says his majesty?

North Sorrow and grief of heart 184 Makes him speak fondly, like a frantic man
Yet he is come

Enter KING RICHARD, and his Attendants
Boling Stand all apart,
And show fair duty to his majesty [Kneeling My gracious lord,— 189 K Rich Fair cousin, you debase your princely knee

To make the base earth proud with kissing it Me rather had my heart might feel your love 192
Than my unpleas'd eye see your courtesy
Up, cousin, up, your heart is up, I know, Thus high at least, although your knee be low

Boling My gracious lord, I come but for mine own 196

K Rich Your own is yours, and I am yours,
and all

Boling So far be mine, my most redoubted
lord,

As my true service shall deserve your love

K Rich Well you deserve they well deserve
to have 200

That know the strong'st and surest way to get Uncle, give me your hand nay, dry your eyes, Tears show their love, but want their remedies Cousin, I am too young to be your father, 204
Though you are old enough to be my heir
What you will have I'll give, and willing too,
For do we must what force will have us do Set on towards London Cousin, is it so? 208

Boling Yea, my good lord

K. Rich Then I must not say no
[Flourish Exeunt

SCENE IV —Langley The DUKE OF YORK'S Garden

Enter the QUEEN and two Ladies

Queen What sport shall we devise here in this garden,

To drive away the heavy thought of care?

First Lady Madam, we'll play at bowls

Queen 'Twill make me think the world is full of rubs, 4

And that my fortune runs against the bias

First Lady Madam, we'll dance

Queen My legs can keep no measure in delight

When my poor heart no measure keeps in grief
Therefore, no dancing, girl, some other sport 9

First Lady Madam, we'll tell tales

Queen Of sorrow or of joy?

First Lady Of either, madam

Queen Of neither, girl 12

For if of joy, being altogether wanting,
It doth remember me the more of sorrow,

Or if of grief, being altogether had,
It adds more sorrow to my want of joy 16

For what I have I need not to repeat,
And what I want it boots not to complain.

First Lady Madam, I'll sing

Queen 'Tis well that thou hast cause, But thou shouldst please me better wouldst thou weep 20

First Lady I could weep, madam, would it do you good.

Queen And I could sing would weeping do me good,

And never borrow any tear of thee
But stay, here come the gardeners
Let's step into the shadow of these trees,
My wretchedness unto a row of pins,
They'll talk of state, for every one doth so Against a change woe is forerun with woe 28

[QUEEN and Ladies retire]

Enter a Gardener and two Servants

Gard Go, bind thou up yon dangling apricocks,

Which, like unruly children, make their sire Stoop with oppression of their prodigal weight Give some supportance to the bending twigs 32
Go thou, and like an executioner,
Cut off the heads of too fast growing sprays,
That look too lofty in our commonwealth
All must be even in our government 36
You thus employ'd, I will go root away
The noisome weeds, that without profit suck
The soil's fertility from wholesome flowers

First Serv Why should we in the compass of a pale 40

Keep law and form and due proportion,
Showing, as in a model, our firm estate,
When our sea-walled garden, the whole land,
Is full of weeds, her fairest flowers chok'd up, 44
Her fruit-trees all unprun'd, her hedges run'd,
Her knots disorder'd, and her wholesome herbs Swarming with caterpillars?

Gard Hold thy peace
He that hath suffer'd this disorder'd spring 48
Hath now himself met with the fall of leaf,
The weeds that his broad-spreading leaves did shelter,

That seem'd in eating him to hold him up,
Are pluck'd up root and all by Bolingbroke, 52
I mean the Earl of Wiltshire, Bushy, Green

First Serv What! are they dead?

Gard They are, and Bolingbroke Hath seiz'd the wasteful king O! what pity 56 is it

That he hath not so trimm'd and dress'd his land
As we this garden We at time of year 57

Do wound the bark, the skin of our fruit-trees, Lest, being over-proud with sap and blood,

With too much riches it confound itself 60
Had he done so to great and growing men,
They might have liv'd to bear and he to taste

Their fruits of duty superfluous branches
We lop away that bearing boughs may live 64

Had he done so, himself had borne the crown, Which waste of idle hours hath quite thrown 66
down

First Serv What! think you then the king shall be depos'd?

Gard Depress'd he is already, and depos'd
'Tis doubt he will be letters came last night 69

To a dear friend of the good Duke of York's,
That tell black tidings

Queen O! I am press'd to death through want of speaking [Coming forward

Thou, old Adam's likeness, set to dress this garden, 73

How dares thy harsh rude tongue sound this unpleasing news?

What Eve, what serpent, hath suggested thee
To make a second fall of cursed man? 76

Why dost thou say King Richard is depos'd?
Dar'st thou, thou little better thing than earth,

Drive him down-fall? Say, where, when, and how

Can'st thou by these ill tidings? speak, thou wretch 80

Gard Pardon me, madam little joy have I
To breathe these news, yet what I say is true

King Richard, he is in the mighty hold Of Bolingbroke, their fortunes both are weigh'd

In your lord's scale is nothing but himself, 85
And some few vanities that make him light,
But in the balance of great Bolingbroke,

Besides himself, are all the English peers, 88
And with that odds he weighs King Richard
down

Post you to London and you'll find it so;
I speak no more than every one doth know

Queen Numbless mischance, that art so light of foot, 92

Doth not thy embassy belong to me,
And am I last that knows it? O! thou think'st

To serve me last, that I may longest keep Thy sorrow in my breast. Come, ladies, go, 96

To meet at London London's king in woe
What! was I born to this, that my sad look

Should grace the triumph of great Boling-broke?

Gardener, for telling me these news of woe, 100 Pray God the plants thou graft'st may never grow [Exit QUEEN and Ladies

Gard Poor queen! so that thy state might be no worse,

I would my skill were subject to thy curse
Here did she fall a tear, here, in this place, 104

I'll set a bank of rue, sour herb of grace, Rue, even for ruth, here shortly shall be seen,

In the remembrance of a weeping queen.
[Exit

ACT IV

SCENE I.—London Westminster Hall

The Lords spiritual on the right side of the throne the Lords temporal on the left, the Commons below Enter BOLINGBROKE, AUMERLE, SUR-REY, NORTHUMBERLAND, HENRY PERCY, FITZ-WATER, another Lord, the BISHOP OF CARLISLE, the ABBOT OF WESTMINSTER, and Attendants.
Officers behind with BAGOT

Boling Call forth Bagot.
Now, Bagot, freely speak thy mind,

What thou dost know of noble Gloucester's
death,

Who wrought it with the king, and who perform'd 4

The bloody office of his timeless end.

Bagot Then set before my face the Lord
Aumerle
Boling Cousin, stand forth, and look upon that man
Bagot My Lord Aumerle, I know your daring tongue 8
Scorns to unsay what once it hath deliver'd In that dead time when Gloucester's death was plotted,
 I heard you say, 'Is not my arm of length,
 That reacheth from the restful English court 12
 As far as Calais, to my uncle's head?'
 Amongst much other talk, that very time,
 I heard you say that you had rather refuse
 The offer of a hundred thousand crowns 16
 Than Bolingbroke's return to England, Adding withal, how blest this land would be In this your cousin's death
Aum Princes and noble lords,
 What answer shall I make to this base man? 20
 Shall I so much dishonour my fair stars,
 On equal terms to give him chastisement?
 Either I must, or have mine honour soil'd
 With the attainder of his slanderous lips 24
 There is my gage, the manual seal of death,
 That marks thee out for hell I say thou hest,
 And will maintain what thou hast said is false
 In thy heart-blood, though being all too base 28
 To stain the temper of my knightly sword Boling Bagot, forbear, thou shalt not take it up Aum Excepting one, I would he were the best
 In all this presence that hath mov'd me so 32
Fitz If that thy valour stand on sympathies,
 There is my gage, Aumerle, in gage to thine
 By that fair sun which shows me where thou stand'st,
 I heard thee say, and vauntingly thou spak'st it,
 That thou wert cause of noble Gloucester's
 death 37
 If thou deny'st it twent' times, thou hest,
 And I will turn thy falsehood to thy heart,
 Where it was forged, with my rapier's point 40 Aum Thou dar'st not, coward, live to see that day
Fitz Now, by my soul, I would it were this hour
Aum Fitzwater, thou art damn'd to hell for
 this H Percy Aumerle, thou hest, his honour is as true 44
 In this appeal as thou art all unjust,
 And that thou art so, there I throw my gage,
 To prove it on thee to the extremest point
 Of mortal breathing seize it if thou dar'st 48
Aum And if I do not may my hands rot off
 And never brandish more revengful steel
 Over the glittering helmet of my foe!
Lord I task the earth to the like, forsworn
 Aumerle, 52
 And spur thee on with full as many lies
 As may be holla'd in thy treacherous ear
 From sun to sun there is my honour's pawn,
 Engage it to the trial if thou dar'st. 56

Aum Who sets me else? by heaven, I'll throw
 at all
 I have a thousand spirits in one breast,
 To answer twenty thousand such as you Surrey My Lord Fitzwater, I do remember
 well 60
 The very time Aumerle and you did talk Fitz 'Tis very true you were in presence
 then,
 And you can witness with me this is true Surrey As false, by heaven, as heaven itself is true 64
Fitz Surrey, thou hest Surrey Dishonourable boy!
 That he shall lie so heavy on my sword
 That it shall render vengeance and revenge,
 Till thou the lie-giver and that he do lie 68
 In earth as quiet as thy father's skull
 In proof whereof, there is my honour's pawn
 Engage it to the trial if thou dar'st Fitz How fondly dost thou spur a forward horse! 72
 If I dare eat or drink, or breathe, or live,
 I dare meet Surrey in a wilderness,
 And spit upon him, whilst I say he lies,
 And lies, and lies there is my bond of faith 76
 To tie thee to my strong correction.
 As I intend to thrive in this new world,
 Aumerle is guilty of my true appeal
 Besides, I heard the banish'd Norfolk say— 80
 That thou, Aumerle, didst send two of thy men
 To execute the noble duke at Calais Aum Some honest Christian trust me with a gage
 That Norfolk lies, here do I throw down this, 84
 If he may be repeal'd to try his honour Boling These differences shall all rest under gage
 Till Norfolk be repeal'd repeal'd he shall be,
 And though mine enemy, restor'd again 88
 To all his lands and signories, when he's re-turn'd,
 Against Aumerle we will enforce his trial Car That honourable day shall ne'er be seen Many a time hath banish'd Norfolk fought 92
 For Jesu Christ in glorious Christian field, Streaming the ensign of the Christian cross Against black pagans, Turks, and Saracens,
 And toil'd with works of war, retr'd himself 96
 To Italy, and there at Venice gave His body to that pleasant country's earth,
 And his pure soul unto his captain Christ,
 Under whose colours he had fought so long 100
Boling Why, bishop, is Norfolk dead?
Car As surely as I live, my lord Boling Sweet peace conduct his sweet soul to the bosom
 Of good old Abraham! Lords appellants, 104
 Your differences shall all rest under gage Till we assign you to your days of trial.

Enter YORK, attended York Great Duke of Lancaster, I come to
 thee
 From plume-pluck'd Richard, who with willing soul 108

Adopts thee heir, and his high sceptre yields
To the possession of thy royal hand
Ascend his throne, descending now from him,
And long live Henry, of that name the fourth!
Boling In God's name, I'll ascend the regal throne 113

Car Marry, God forbid!
Worst in this royal presence may I speak,
Yet best beseeching me to speak the truth 116
Would God that any in this noble presence
Were enough noble to be upright judge Of noble Richard! then, true noblesse would Learn him forbearance from so foul a wrong 120
What subject can give sentence on his king?
And who sits here that is not Richard's subject?
Thieves are not judg'd but they are by to hear,
Although apparent guilt be seen in them, 124
And shall the figure of God's majesty,
His captain, steward, deputy elect,
Anointed, crowned, planted many years,
Be judg'd by subject and inferior breath, 128
And he himself not present? O! forfend it, God,
That in a Christian climate souls refin'd Should show so heinous, black, obscene a deed
I speak to subjects, and a subject speaks, 132
Stirr'd up by God thus boldly for his king
My Lord of Hereford here, whom you call king,
Is a foul traitor to proud Hereford's king,
And if you crown him, let me prophesy, 136
The blood of English shall manure the ground
And future ages groan for this foul act,
Peace shall go sleep with Turks and infidels,
And in this seat of peace tumultuous wars 140
Shall kin with kin and kind with kind confound, Disorder, horror, fear and mutiny
Shall here inhabit, and this land be call'd
The field of Golgotha and dead men's skulls 144
O! if you rear this house against this house,
It will the woofullest division prove That ever fell upon this cursed earth.
Prevent it, resist it, let it not be so, 148 Lest child, child's children, cry against you woe!

York Well have you argu'd, sir, and, for
your pains,
Of capital treason we arrest you here
My Lord of Westminster be it your charge 152
To keep him safely till his day of trial May it please you, lords, to grant the commons'
suit?

Boling Fetch hither Richard, that in common view
He may surrender so we shall proceed 156
Without suspicion

York I will be his conduct [Exit] Boling Lords you that here are under our arrest,
Procure your sureties for your days of answer [To CARLISLE] Little are we beholding to your
love, 160
And little look'd for at your helping hands

Re-enter YORK, with KING RICHARD, and Officers bearing the Crown, &c

K Rich Alack! why am I sent for to a king
Before I have shook off the regal thoughts

Wherewith I reign'd? I hardly yet have learn'd
To insinuate, flatter, bow, and bend my limbs.
Give sorrow leave awhile to tutor me
To this submission Yet I well remember The favours of these men were they not
mine? 168

Did they not sometime cry, 'All hail!' to me?
So Judas did to Christ but he, in twelve, Found truth in all but one, I, in twelve thousand, none

God save the king! Will no man say, amen? 172
Am I both priest and clerk? well then, amen
God save the king! although I be not he,
And yet, amen, if heaven do think him me
To do what service am I sent for hither? 176

York To do that office of thine own good will

Which tired majesty did make thee offer,
The resignation of thy state and crown
To Henry Bolingbroke 180

K Rich Give me the crown Here, cousin, seize the crown,

Here cousin,
On this side my hand and on that side thine.
Now is this golden crown like a deep well 184
That owes two buckets filling one another,
The emptier ever dancing in the air,
The other down, unseen and full of water
That bucket down and full of tears am I, 188 Drinking my griefs, whilst you mount up on high

Boling I thought you had been willing to resign

K Rich My crown, I am, but still my griefs are mine

You may my glories and my state depose, 192
But not my griefs, still am I king of those Boling Part of your cares you give me with your crown

K Rich Your cares set up do not pluck my cares down

My care is loss of care, by old care done, 196
Your care is gain of care by new care won

The cares I give I have, though given away
They tend the crown, yet still with me they stay

Boling Are you contented to resign the crown? 200

K Rich Ay, no, no, ay, for I must nothing
be

Therefore no no, for I resign to thee
Now mark me how I will undo myself

I give this heavy weight from off my head, 204
And this unwieldy sceptre from my hand,

The pride of king's sway from out my heart,
With mine own tears I wash away my balm,

With mine own hands I give away my crown 208
With mine own tongue deny my sacred state,

With mine own breath release all duteous rites
All pomp and majesty I do forswear

My manors, rents, revenues, I forego, 212
My acts, decrees, and statutes I deny

God pardon all oaths that are broke to me!
God keep all vows unbroke are made to thee!

Make me, that nothing have, with nothing griev'd, 216

And thou with all pleas'd, that hast all achiev'd!

Long mayst thou live in Richard's seat to sit,
And soon lie Richard in an earthy pit!
God save King Henry, unking'd Richard says,
And send him many years of sunshine days! 221
What more remains?

North [Offering a paper] No more, but that you read

These accusations and these grievous crimes Committed by your person and your followers Against the state and profit of this land, 225
That, by confessing them, the souls of men May deem that you are worthily depos'd

K Rich Must I do so? and must I ravel out My weav'd-up follies? Gentle Northumberland, If thy offences were upon record,
Would it not shame thee in so fair a troop
To read a lecture of them? If thou wouldst, 232
There shouldst thou find one heinous article, Containing the deposing of a king,
And cracking the strong warrant of an oath, Mark'd with a blot, damn'd in the book of heaven 236

Nay, all of you that stand and look upon me,
Whilst that my wretchedness doth bait myself, Though some of you with Pilate wash your hands,

Showing an outward pity, yet you Pilates 240
Have here deliver'd me to my sour cross,
And water cannot wash away your sin

North My lord, dispatch, read o'er these articles.

K Rich Mine eyes are full of tears, I cannot
see 244

And yet salt water blinds them not so much
But they can see a sort of traitors here
Nay if I turn mine eyes upon myself,
I find myself a traitor with the rest, 248
For I have given here my soul's consent
To undeck the pompous body of a king,
Made glory base and sovereignty a slave,
Proud majesty a subject, state a peasant 252

North My lord,—

K Rich No lord of thine, thou haught insulting man,

Nor no man's lord, I have no name, no title
No, not that name was given me at the font, 256
But 'tis usurp'd alack the heavy day!
That I have worn so many winters out,
And know not now what name to call myself
O! that I were a mockery king of snow, 260
Standing before the sun of Bolingbroke,
To melt myself away in water-drops Good king, great king,—and yet not greatly
good,

An if my word be sterling yet in England, 264
Let it command a mirror hither straight,
That it may show me what a face I have,
Since it is bankrupt of his majesty

Boling Go some of you and fetch a lookingglass [Exit an Attendant.]

North Read o'er this paper while the glass doth come 269

K Rich Fiend! thou torment'st me ere I come to hell

Boling Urge it no more, my Lord Northumberland.

North The commons will not then be satisfied. 272

K Rich They shall be satisfied I'll read
enough

When I do see the very book indeed
Where all my sins are writ, and that's myself

Re-enter Attendant, with a glass

Give me the glass, and therein will I read 276
No deeper wrinkles yet? Hath sorrow struck
So many blows upon this face of mine And made no deeper wounds? O, flattering glass!

Like to my followers in prosperity, 280
Thou dost beguile me Was this face the face
That every day under his household roof
Did keep ten thousand men? Was this the face
That like the sun did make beholders wink? 284
Was this the face that fac'd so many follies,
And was at last out-fac'd by Bolingbroke?
A brittle glory shineth in this face
As brittle as the glory is the face, 288

[Dashes the glass against the ground]
For there it is, crack'd in a hundred shivers
Mark, silent king, the moral of this sport,
How soon my sorrow hath destroy'd my face Boling The shadow of your sorrow hath destroy'd 292

The shadow of your face

K Rich Say that again
The shadow of my sorrow! Ha! let's see
'Tis very true, my grief lies all within,
And these external manners of laments 296
Are merely shadows to the unseen grief
That swells with silence in the tortur'd soul,
There lies the substance and I thank thee, king,
For thy great bounty, that not only giv'st 300
Me cause to wail, but teachest me the way
How to lament the cause I'll beg one boon,
And then be gone and trouble you no more Shall I obtain it?

Boling Name it, fair cousin 304

K Rich 'Fair cousin!' I am greater than a king,

For when I was a king, my flatterers
Were then but subjects, being now a subject,
I have a king here to my flatterer 308
Being so great, I have no need to beg

Boling Yet ask

K Rich And shall I have?

Boling You shall 312

K Rich Then give me leave to go

Boling Whither?

K Rich Whither you will, so I were from your sights

Boling Go, some of you convey him to the Tower 316

K Rich O, good! convey? conveyers are you all,

That rise thus mimby by a true king's fall

[Exeunt KING RICHARD and Guard]

Boling On Wednesday next we solemnly set
down

Our coronation lords, prepare yourselves. 320 [Exeunt all except the BISHOP OF CARLISLE, the ABBOT OF WESTMINSTER, and AUMERLE]

Abbot A woeful pageant have we here beheld

Bishop The woe's to come, the children yet unborn

Shall feel this day as sharp to them as thorn.

Aum You holy clergymen, is there no plot
To rid the realm of this pernicious blot? 325

Abbot My lord,
Before I freely speak my mind herein,
You shall not only take the sacrament 328
To bury mine intents, but also to effect Whatever I shall happen to devise
I see your brows are full of discontent,
Your hearts of sorrow, and your eyes of tears
Come home with me to supper, I will lay 333
A plot shall show us all a merry day [Exeunt]

ACT V

SCENE I—London. A Street leading to the Tower

Enter the QUEEN and LADIES

Queen Thus way the king will come, this is the way

To Julius Caesar's ill-erected tower,
To whose fume bosom my condemned lord
Is doom'd a prisoner by proud Bolingbroke 4
Here let us rest, if this rebellious earth
Have any resting for her true king's queen

Enter KING RICHARD and Guard.

But soft, but see, or rather do not see,
My fair rose wither yet look up, behold, 8
That you in pity may dissolve to dew,
And wash him fresh again with true-love tears
Ah! thou, the model where old Troy did stand, Thou map of honour, thou King Richard's 12 tomb,
And not King Richard, thou most beauteous inn,
Why should hard-favour'd grief be lodg'd in
thee,

When triumph is become an alehouse guest?

K. Rich Join not with grief, fair woman, do not so, 16
To make my end too sudden learn, good soul,
To think our former state a happy dream,
From which awak'd, the truth of what we are Shows us but thus I am sworn brother, sweet,
To grim Necessity, and he and I 21
Will keep a league till death. Hie thee to France,
And cloister thee in some religious house
Our holy lives must win a new world's crown, 24
Which our profane hours here have stricken
down.

Queen. What! is my Richard both in shape and mind Transform'd and weaken'd! Hath Bolingbroke depos'd

Thine intellect? hath he been in thy heart? 28
The lion dying thrusteth forth his paw
And wounds the earth, if nothing else, with rage
To be o'erpower'd, and wilt thou, pupil-like,
Take thy correction mildly, kiss the rod, 32

And fawn on rage with base humility,
Which art a lion and a king of beasts?

K. Rich A king of beasts indeed, if aught but beasts,

I had been still a happy king of men 36
Good sometime queen, prepare thee hence for France,

Think I am dead, and that even here thou tak'st,
As from my death-bed, my last living leave
In winter's tedious nights sit by the fire 40
With good old folks, and let them tell thee tales Of woeful ages, long ago betid,
And ere thou bid good night, to quit their grief,
Tell thou the lamentable tale of me, 44
And send the hearers weeping to their beds
For why the senseless brands will sympathize
The heavy accent of thy moving tongue,
And in compassion weep the fire out, 48
And some will mourn in ashes, some coal-black,
For the deposing of a rightful king

Enter NORTHUMBERLAND, attended

North My lord, the mind of Bolingbroke is chang'd,

You must to Pomfret, not unto the Tower 52
And, madam, there is order ta'en for you,
With all swift speed you must away to France

K. Rich Northumberland, thou ladder wherewithal

The mounting Bolingbroke ascends my throne,
The time shall not be many hours of age 57
More than it is, ere foul sin gathering head Shall break into corruption Thou shalt think,
Though he divide the realm and give thee half,
It is too little, helping him to all, 61
And he shall think that thou, which know'st
the way

To plant unrightful kings, wilt know again,
Being ne'er so little urg'd, another way 64
To pluck him headlong from the usurped throne
The love of wicked friends converts to fear,
That fear to hate, and hate turns one or both
To worthy danger and deserved death. 68

North. My guilt be on my head, and there an end.

Take leave and part, for you must part forthwith

K. Rich Doubly divorc'd! Bad men, ye violate

A two-fold marriage, 'twixt my crown and me,
And then, betwixt me and my married wife. 73
Let me unkiss the oath 'twixt thee and me,
And yet not so, for with a kiss 'twas made Part us, Northumberland I towards the north, Where shivering cold and sickness pines the clime, 77

My wife to France from whence, set forth in pomp,

She came adorned hither like sweet May,
Sent back like Hallowmas or short'st of day 80

Queen. And must we be divided? must we part?

K. Rich. Ay, hand from hand, my love, and heart from heart.

Queen. Banish us both and send the king
with me.

North That were some love but little policy 84
Queen Then whither he goes, thither let me go K Rich So two, together weeping, make one woe Weep thou for me in France, I for thee here, Better far off, than near, be ne'er the near 88
 Go, count thy way with sighs, I mine with groans Queen So longest way shall have the longest moans K Rich Twice for one step I'll groan, the way being short,
 And piece the way out with a heavy heart 92
 Come, come, in wooing sorrow let's be brief,
 Since, wedding it, there is such length in grief
 One kiss shall stop our mouths, and dumbly part,
 Thus give I mine, and thus take I thy heart 96
 [They kiss]
Queen Give me mine own again, 'twere no good part
 To take on me to keep and kill thy heart [They kiss again]
 So, now I have mine own again, be gone,
 That I may strive to kill it with a groan 100
K Rich We make woe wanton with this fond delay
 Once more, adieu, the rest let sorrow say
 [Exeunt]

Duch Welcome, my son who are the violets now
 That strew the green lap of the new-come spring?
Aum Madam, I know not, nor I greatly care not 48
 God knows I had as lief be none as one York Well, bear you well in this new spring of time Lest you be cropp'd before you come to prime What news from Oxford? hold those justs and triumphs?
Aum For aught I know, my lord, they do 52
York You will be there, I know Aum If God prevent it not, I purpose so York What seal is that that hangs without thy bosom?
 Yea, look'st thou pale? let me see the writing Aum My lord, 'tis nothing York No matter then, who sees it
 I will be satisfied, let me see the writing Aum I do beseech your Grace to pardon me 60
 It is a matter of small consequence,
 Which for some reasons I would not have seen York Which for some reasons, sir, I mean to see I fear, I fear,—
Duch What should you fear? 64
 'Tis nothing but some bond he's enter'd into For gay apparel 'gainst the triumph day
York Bound to himself! what doth he with a bond That he is bound to? Wife, thou art a fool 68
 Boy, let me see the writing
Aum I do beseech you, pardon me, I may not show it.

SCENE II — The Same A Room in the DUKE OF YORK'S Palace

Enter YORK and his DUCHESS

Duch My lord, you told me you would tell the rest,
 When weeping made you break the story off,
 Of our two cousins coming into London
York Where did I leave?
Duch At that sad stop, my lord, 4
 Where rude misgovern'd hands, from windows' tops, Threw dust and rubbish on King Richard's head York Then, as I said, the duke, great Bolingbroke, Mounted upon a hot and fiery steed, 8
 Which his aspiring rider seem'd to know,
 With slow but stately pace kept on his course,
 While all tongues cried, 'God save thee, Bolingbroke!'
 You would have thought the very windows spake, 12
 So many greedy looks of young and old
 Through casements darted their desiring eyes Upon his visage, and that all the walls
 With painted imagery had said at once 16
 'Jesu preserve thee! welcome, Bolingbroke!'
 Whilst he, from one side to the other turning,
 Bare-headed, lower than his proud steed's neck, Bespake them thus, 'I thank you, countrymen
 And thus still doing, thus he pass'd along 21 Duch Alack, poor Richard! where rode he the whilst?
York As in a theatre, the eyes of men,

York I will be satisfied, let me see it I say [Snatches it, and reads]
 Treason! foul treason! villain! traitor! slave! 72
Duch What is the matter, my lord?
York Ho! who is within there?

Enter a Servant

Saddle my horse
 God for his mercy! what treachery is here!
Duch Why, what is it, my lord? 76
York Give me my boots, I say, saddle my horse
 Now, by mine honour, by my life, my troth,
 I will appeach the villain [Exit Servant]
Duch What is the matter?
York Peace, foolish woman 80
Duch I will not peace What is the matter, Aumerle?
Aum Good mother, be content, it is no more Than my poor life must answer Duch Thy life answer!
York Bring me my boots I will unto the
 king 84

Re-enter Servant with boots

Duch Strike him, Aumerle Poor boy, thou art amazed
 [To Servant] Hence, villain! never more come in my sight [Exit Servant]
York Give me my boots, I say Duch Why, York, what wilt thou do? 88
 Wilt thou not hide the trespass of thine own?
 Have we more sons, or are we like to have?
 Is not my teeming date drunk up with time?
 And wilt thou pluck my fair son from mine age,
 And rob me of a happy mother's name? 93
 Is he not like thee? is he not thine own?
York Thou fond, mad woman,
 Wilt thou conceal this dark conspiracy? 96
 A dozen of them here have ta'en the sacrament,
 And interchangeably set down their hands,
 To kill the king at Oxford
Duch He shall be none,
 We'll keep him here then, what is that to him?
York Away, fond woman! were he twenty times 100
 My son, I would appeach him.
Duch Hadst thou groan'd for him
 As I have done, thou'dst be more pitiful
 But now I know thy mind thou dost suspect
 That I have been disloyal to thy bed, 105
 And that he is a bastard, not thy son Sweet York, sweet husband, be not of that mind
 He is as like thee as a man may be, 108
 Not like to me, nor any of my kin,
 And yet I love him
York Make way, unruly woman! [Exit Duch After, Aumerle! Mount thee upon his horse,
 Spur post, and get before him to the king, 112
 And beg thy pardon ere he do accuse thee
 I'll not be long behind, though I be old,
 I doubt not but to ride as fast as York
 And never will I rise up from the ground 116 Till Bolingbroke have pardon'd thee. Away!
 be gone. [Exeunt.]

SCENE III — Windsor A Room in the Castle

Enter BOLINGBROKE as King HENRY PERCY, and other Lords

Boling Can no man tell of my unthrifty son?
 'Tis full three months since I did see him last If any plague hang over us, 'tis he
 I would to God, my lords he might be found Inquire at London amongst the taverns there,
 For there, they say, he daily doth frequent,
 With unrestrained loose companions,
 Even such, they say as stand in narrow lanes 8
 And beat our watch and rob our passengers,
 While he young wanton and effeminate boy,
 Takes on the point of honour to support
 So dissolute a crew 12
H Percy My lord, some two days since I saw the prince,
 And told him of these triumphs held at Oxford Boling And what said the gallant?
H Percy His answer was he would unto the stewes, 16
 And from the common'st creature pluck a glove,
 And wear it as a favour and with that He would unhorse the lustiest challenger Boling As dissolute as desperate, yet, through both, 20
 I see some sparkles of a better hope,
 Which elder days may happily bring forth.
 But who comes here?

Enter AUMERLE

Aum Where is the king?
Boling What means
 Our cousin that he stares and looks so wildly?
Aum God save your Grace! I do beseech
 your majesty, 25
 To have some conference with your Grace alone
Boling Withdraw yourselves, and leave us here alone [Exeunt H. PERCY and Lords.
 What is the matter with our cousin now?
Aum [Kneels] For ever may my knees grow to the earth, 29
 My tongue cleave to my roof within my mouth, Unless a pardon ere I rise or speak.
Boling Intended or committed was this fault?
 If on the first, how heinous e'er it be, 33
 To win thy after-love I pardon thee Aum Then give me leave that I may turn the key,
 That no man enter till my tale be done. 36
Boling Have thy desire [AUMERLE locks the door York [Within.] My liege, beware! look to thyself
 Thou hast a traitor in thy presence there 39
Boling [Drawing] Villain, I'll make thee safe.
Aum Stay thy revengeful hand, thou hast no cause to fear York [Within] Open the door, secure, foolhardy king
 Shall I for love speak treason to thy face?
 Open the door, or I will break it open. 44 [BOLINGBROKE unlocks the door and afterwards relocks it.]

Enter YORK

Boling What is the matter, uncle? speak, Recover breath tell us how near is danger,
That we may arm us to encounter it

York Peruse this writing here, and thou shalt know

The treason that my haste forbids me show
Aum Remember, as thou read st, thy promise pass'd

I do repent me, read not my name there, 51
My heart is not confederate with my hand

York 'Twas, villain, ere thy hand did set it
down

I tore it from the traitor's bosom king,
Fear, and not love, begets his penitence
Forget to pity him, lest thy pity prove 56
A serpent that will sting thee to the heart

Boling O heinous, strong, and bold conspiracy!

O loyal father of a treacherous son! 59
Thou sheer, immaculate, and silver fountain,
From whence this stream through muddy passages

Hath held his current and defil'd himself!
Thy overflow of good converts to bad,
And thy abundant goodness shall excuse 64
This deadly blot in thy digressing son.

York So shall my virtue be his vice's bawd,
And he shall spend mine honour with his shame,
As thriftless sons their scraping fathers' gold Mine honour lives when his dishonour dies,
Or my sham'd life in his dishonour lies 70
Thou kill'st me in his life, giving him breath,

The traitor lives, the true man's put to death Duch [Within] What ho, my liege! for God's sake let me in

Boling What shrill-voic'd suppliant makes this eager cry?

Duch [Within] A woman, and thine aunt, great king, 'tis I

Speak with me, pity me, open the door 76
A beggar begs, that never begg'd before

Boling Our scene is alter'd from a serious
thing,

And now chang'd to 'The Beggar and the King'
My dangerous cousin, let your mother in 80
I know she's come to pray for your foul sin

[AUMERLE unlocks the door]
York If thou do pardon, whosoever pray,
More sins, for this forgiveness, prosper may
This fester'd joint cut off, the rest rests sound, Thus, let alone, will all the rest confound. 85

Enter DUCHESS.

Duch O king! believe not this hard-hearted
man

Love, loving not itself, none other can York Thou frantic woman, what dost thou make here? 88

Shall thy old dugs once more a traitor rear?

Duch Sweet York, be patient [Kneels]
Hear me, gentle liege

Boling Rise up, good aunt Duch Not yet, I thee beseech.

For ever will I walk upon my knees, 92
And never see day that the happy sees,

Till thou give joy, until thou bid me joy,
By pardoning Rutland, my transgressing boy 95

Aum Unto my mother's prayers I bend my knee [Kneels]

York Against them both my true joints bended be [Kneels]

Ill mayst thou thrive if thou grant any grace!
Duch Pleads he in earnest? look upon his face, 99

His eyes do drop no tears, his prayers are in jest, His words come from his mouth, ours from our breast

He prays but faintly and would be denied,
We pray with heart and soul and all beside

His weary joints would gladly rise, I know, Our knees shall kneel till to the ground they grow 105

His prayers are full of false hypocrisy, Ours of true zeal and deep integrity

Our prayers do out-pray his, then let them have 108

That mercy which true prayer ought to have Boling Good aunt, stand up

Duch Nay, do not say 'stand up',
But 'pardon' first, and afterwards 'stand up',

An if I were thy nurse, thy tongue to teach, 112
'Pardon' should be the first word of thy speech.

I never long'd to hear a word till now, Say 'pardon, king, let pity teach thee how

The word is short, but not so short as sweet,
No word like 'pardon,' for kings' mouths so meet 117

York Speak it in French, king, say, 'par-donnez moy',

Duch Dost thou teach pardon pardon to destroy? 119

Ah! my sour husband, my hard-hearted lord,
That sett'st the word itself against the word

Speak 'pardon' as 'tis current in our land,
The chopping French we do not understand

Thine eye begins to speak, set thy tongue there,
Or in thy piteous heart plant thou thine ear,

That hearing how our plaints and prayers do pierce, 126

Pity may move thee pardon to rehearse
Boling Good aunt, stand up

Duch I do not sue to stand,
Pardon is all the suit I have in hand

Boling I pardon him, as God shall pardon
me 130

Duch O happy vantage of a kneeling knee!
Yet am I sick for fear speak it again,

Twice saying 'pardon' doth not pardon twain,
But makes one pardon strong

Boling With all my heart
I pardon him.

Duch A god on earth thou art Boling But for our trusty brother-in-law and the abbot, 136

With all the rest of that consorted crew, Destruction straight shall dog them at the heels

Good uncle, help to order several powers To Oxford, or where'er these traitors are

They shall not live within this world, I swear, But I will have them, if I once know where.

Uncle, farewell and cousin too, adieu

Your mother well hath pray'd, and prove you Duch Come, my old son I pray God make thee new [Exeunt]

SCENE IV — Another Room in the Castle.

Enter EXTON and a Servant

Exton Didst thou not mark the king, what words he spake?
 'Have I no friend will rid me of this living fear?'
 Was it not so?

Serv Those were his very words

Exton 'Have I no friend' quoth he he spake it twice,

And urg'd it twice together, did he not?

Serv He did

Exton And speaking it, he wistly looked on me,

As who should say, 'I would thou wert the man That would divorce this terror from my heart Meaning the king at Pomfret Come, let's go I am 'the king's friend, and will rid his foe'

[Exeunt]

SCENE V Pomfret The Dungeon of the Castle

Enter KING RICHARD

K Rich I have been studying how I may compare

This prison where I live unto the world And for because the world is populous, And here is not a creature but myself, I cannot do it, yet I'll hammer it out My brain I'll prove the female to my soul, My soul the father and these two beget A generation of sul-breeding thoughts, And these same thoughts people this little world In humours like the people of this world For no thought is contented The better sort, As thoughts of things divine, are intermix'd With scruples, and do set the word itself Against the word

As thus, 'Come, little ones' and then again, 'It is as hard to come as for a camel To thread the postern of a needle's eye' Thoughts tending to ambition, they do plot Unlikely wonders, how these vain weak nails May tear a passage through the flinty ribs Of this hard world, my ragged prison walls, And, for they cannot, die in their own pride. Thoughts tending to content flatter themselves That they are not the first of fortune's slaves, Nor shall not be the last like silly beggars Who sitting in the stocks refuge their shame, That many have and others must sit there. And in this thought they find a kind of ease, Bearing their own misfortune on the back Of such as have before endur'd the like. Thus play I in one person many people, And none contented sometimes am I king, Then treason makes me wish myself a beggar, And so I am then crushing penury Persuades me I was better when a king, Then am I king'd again and by and by

Think that I am unking'd by Bolingbroke, And straight am nothing but what ere I be, Nor I nor any man that but man is With nothing shall be pleas'd, till he be eas'd 40 With being nothing Music do I hear? [Music] Ha, ha! keep time How sour sweet music is When time is broke and no proportion kept! So is it in the music of men's lives 44 And here have I the daintiness of ear To check time broke in a disorder'd string, But for the concord of my state and time Had not an ear to hear my true time broke 48 I wasted time, and now doth time waste me, For now hath time made me his numbering clock

My thoughts are minutes and with sighs they jar Their watches on unto mine eyes, the outward watch,

Whereof my finger, like a dial's point, Is pointing still, in cleansing them from tears Now sur, the sound that tells what hour it is A clamorous groans that strike upon my heart Which is the bell so sighs and tears and groans Show minutes, times, and hours, but my time Runs posting on in Bolingbroke's proud joy, While I stand fooling here his Jack o' the clock This music mads me let it sound no more, 61 For though it have help madmen to their wits, In me it seems it will make wise men mad Yet blessing on his heart that gives it me! 64 For 'tis a sign of love, and love to Richard Is a strange brooch in this all-hating world

Enter Groom of the Stable

Groom Hail, royal prince!

K Rich Thanks, noble peer, The cheapest of us is ten groats too dear 68 What art thou? and how comest thou hither, man,

Where no man never comes but that sad dog That brings me food to make misfortune live?

Groom I was a poor groom of thy stable, king, When thou wert king, who, travelling towards York,

With much ado at length have gotten leave To look upon my sometimes royal master's face O! how it yearn'd my heart when I beheld 76 In London streets, that coronation day When Bolingbroke rode on roan Barbary, That horse that thou so often hast bestrid, That horse that I so carefully have dress'd 80

K Rich Rode he on Barbary? Tell me, gentle friend,

How went he under him?

Groom So proudly as if he disdain'd the ground

K Rich So proud that Bolingbroke was on his back!

That jade hath eat bread from my royal hand, This hand hath made him proud with clapping him

Would he not stumble? Would he not fall down,—

Since pride must have a fall,—and break the neck

Of that proud man that did usurp his back? 88

Forgiveness, horse! whv do I rail on thee, Since thou, created to be aw d by man,
Wast born to bear? I was not made a horse, 92
And yet I bear a burden like an ass, Spur-gall'd and tir'd by jauncing Bolingbroke

Enter Keeper, with a dish

Keeper [To the Groom] Fellow, give place, here is no longer stay

K Rich If thou love me, 'tis time thou wert
away 96

Groom What my tongue dares not, that my heart shall say [Exit]

Keeper My lord, will't please you to fall to?
K Rich Taste of it first, as thou art wont
to do

Keeper My lord I dare not Sir Pierce of Exton, who lately came from the king, commands the contrary

K Rich The devil take Henry of Lancaster, and thee!

Patience is stale, and I am weary of it 104 [Strikes the Keeper]

Keeper Help, help, help!

Enter EXTON and Servants, armed

K Rich How now! what means death in this rude assault?

Villain, thine own hand yields thy death's instrument

[Snatching a weapon and killing one]
Go thou and fill another room in hell. 108

[He kills another then EXTON strikes him down]

That hand shall burn in never-quenching fire That staggers thus my person. Exton, thy fierce hand

Hath with the king's blood stain'd the king's own land 111

Mount, mount, my soul! thy seat is up on high, Whilst my gross flesh sinks downward, here to die [Dies]

Exton As full of valour as of royal blood Both have I spilt, O! would the deed were good,

For now the devil, that told me I did well, 116
Says that this deed is chronicled in hell.

This dead king to the living king I'll bear Take hence the rest and give them burial here

[Exeunt]

SCENE VI — Windsor An Apartment in the Castle

Flourish Enter BOLINGBROKE and YORK, with Lords and Attendants.

Boling Kind uncle York, the latest news we hear

Is that the rebels have consum'd with fire
Our town of Cicester in Gloucestershire,
But whether they be ta'en or slain we hear not. 4

Enter NORTHUMBERLAND

Welcome, my lord. What is the news?

North First, to thy sacred state wish I all happiness

The next news is I have to London sent The heads of Salisbury, Spencer, Blunt, and Kent 8

The manner of their taking may appear

At large discoursed in this paper here Boling We thank thee, gentle Percy, for thy pains,

And 'o thy worth will add right worthy gains 12

Enter FITZWATER

Fitz My lord, I have from Oxford sent to London

The heads of Brocas and Sir Bennet Seely,
Two of the dangerous consorted traitors

That sought at Oxford thy dire overthrow 16 Boling Thy pains, Fitzwater, shall not be forgot,

Right noble is thy merit, well I wot.

Enter HENRY PERCY, with the BISHOP OF CARLISLE

H Percy The grand conspirator, Abbot of Westminster,

With clog of conscience and sour melancholy, 20
Hath yielded up his body to the grave,

But here is Carlisle living, to abide Thy kingly doom and sentence of his pride

Boling Carlisle, this is your doom 24 Choose out some secret place, some reverend room

More than thou hast, and with it joy thy life,
So, as thou livest in peace, die free from strife

For though mine enemy thou hast ever been, 28
High sparks of honour in thee have I seen.

Enter EXTON, with Attendants bearing a coffin

Exton Great king, within this coffin I present Thy buried fear herein all breathless lies

The mightiest of thy greatest enemies, 32
Richard of Bordeaux, by me hither brought.

Boling Exton, I thank thee not, for thou hast wrought

A deed of slander with thy fatal hand
Upon my head and all this famous land 36

Exton From your own mouth, my lord, did I this deed

Boling They love not poison that do poison need,

Nor do I thee though I did wish him dead,
I hate the murderer, love him murdered 40

The guilt of conscience take thou for thy labour,
But neither my good word nor princely favour

With Cam go wander through the shade of night,
And never show thy head by day nor light. 44

Lords, I protest, my soul is full of woe,
That blood should sprinkle me to make me grow

Come, mourn with me for that I do lament,
And put on sullen black incontinent. 48

I'll make a voyage to the Holy Land,
To wash this blood off from my guilty hand.

March sadly after, grace my mournings here,
In weeping after this untimely bier [Exeunt.

ACT I

SCENE I.—London The palace

Enter KING HENRY, WESTMORELAND, and Others

K Hen. So shaken as we are, so wan with care,
Find we a time for frightened peace to pant,
And breathe short-winded accents of new broils
To be commenc'd in stronds afar remote 4
No more the thirsty entrance of this soil Shall daub her lips with her own children's
blood,
No more shall trenching war channel her fields,
Nor bruise her flowerets with the armed hoofs 8
Of hostile paces those opposed eyes,
Which, like the meteors of a troubled heaven,
All of one nature, of one substance bred,
Did lately meet in the intestine shock 12
And furious close of civil butchery,
Shall now, in mutual well-beseeming ranks,
March all one way, and be no more oppos'd Against acquaintance, kindred, and allies 16
The edge of war, like an ill-sheathed knife, No more shall cut his master. Therefore,
friends,
As far as to the sepulchre of Christ,—
Whose soldier now, under whose blessed cross
We are impress'd and engag'd to fight,— 21
Forthwith a power of English shall we levy, Whose arms were moulded in their mother's womb
To chase these pagans in those holy fields 24
Over whose acres walk'd those blessed feet
Which fourteen hundred years ago were nail'd
For our advantage on the bitter cross.
But this our purpose is a twelvemonth old, 28
And bootless 'tis to tell you we will go Therefore we meet not now Then let me hear

Of you, my gentle cousin Westmoreland,
What yesternight our council did decree 32
In forwarding this dear expedience West My liege, this haste was hot in question,

And many limits of the charge set down
But yesternight, when all athwart there came A post from Wales loaden with heavy news, 37
Whose worst was, that the noble Mortimer, Leading the men of Herefordshire to fight Against the irregular and wild Glendower, 40
Was by the rude hands of that Welshman taken,
And a thousand of his people butchered,
Upon whose dead corpse there was such misuse,
Such beastly shameless transformation 44
By those Welshwomen done, as may not be Without much shame re-told or spoken of K Hen. It seems then that the tidings of this broil

Brake off our business for the Holy Land. 48 West This match'd with other like, my gracious lord,
For more uneven and unwelcome news
Came from the north and thus it did import.
On Holy-rood day, the gallant Hotspur there, 52
Young Harry Percy and brave Archibald,
That ever-vaillant and approved Scot,
At Holmedon met,
Where they did spend a sad and bloody hour,
As by discharge of their artillery, 57
And shape of likelihood, the news was told,
For he that brought them, in the very heat
And pride of their contention did take horse, 60
Uncertain of the issue any way

K Hen. Here is a dear and true industrious friend,
Sir Walter Blunt, new lighted from his horse, 64
Stam'd with the variation of each soil
Betwixt that Holmedon and this seat of ours,

And he hath brought us smooth and welcome
news

The Earl of Douglas is discomfited, Ten thousand bold Scots, two and twenty knights,

Balk'd in their own blood did Sir Walter see On Holmedon's plains of prisoners Hotspur took

Mordake the Earl of Fife, and eldest son
To beateen Douglas, and the Earls of Athol, 72
Of Murray, Angus, and Menteith
And is not this an honourable spoil?

A gallant prize? ha, cousin, is it not?

West In faith, 76

It is a conquest for a prince to boast of K Hen Yea, there thou mak'st me sad and mak'st me sin

In envy that my Lord Northumberland
Should be the father to so blest a son, 80

A son who is the theme of honour's tongue,
Amongst a grove the very straightest plant,

Who is sweet Fortune's minion and her pride

Whilst I, by looking on the praise of him, 84

See not and dishonour stain the brow
Of my young Harry O! that it could be prov'd

That some night-tripping fairy had exchang'd
In cradle-clothes our children where they lay, 88

And call'd mine Percy his Plantagenet
Then would I have his Harry, and he mine

But let him from my thoughts What think you, coz,

Of this young Percy's pride? the prisoners, 92

Which he in this adventure hath surpris'd,
To his own use he keeps, and sends me word

I shall have none but Mordake Earl of Fife

West This is his uncle's teaching, this is 96

Worcester,

Malevolent to you in all aspects,
Which makes him prune himself, and bristle up

The crest of youth against your dignity

K Hen. But I have sent for him to answer
this, 100

And for this cause a while we must neglect
Our holy purpose to Jerusalem

Cousin, on Wednesday next our council we Will hold at Windsor, so inform the lords 104

But come yourself with speed to us again,
For more is to be said and to be done

Than out of anger can be uttered.

West I will, my hege

[Exeunt

SCENE II—The Same An Apartment of the PRINCE'S.

Enter the PRINCE and FALSTAFF

Fal Now, Hal, what time of day is it, lad?

Prince Thou art so fat-witted, with drinking of old sack, and unbuttoning thee after supper, and sleeping upon benches after noon, that thou hast forgotten to demand that truly which thou wouldst truly know What a devil hast thou to do with the time of the day? unless hours were cups of sack, and minutes capons, and clocks

the tongues of bawds, and dials the signs of leaping-houses, and the blessed sun himself a fair hot wench in flame-colour'd taffeta, I see no reason why thou shouldst be so superfluous to demand the time of the day 13

Fal Indeed, you come near me now, Hal, for we that take purses go by the moon and the seven stars, and not by Phœbus, he, 'that wandering knight so fair' And, I prithee, sweet wag, when thou art king,—as, God save thy

Grace,—majesty, I should say, for grace thou wilt have none,— 20

Prince What? none?

Fal No, by my troth, not so much as will serve to be prologue to an egg and butter

Prince Well, how then? come, roundly, 25

roundly

Fal Marry, then sweet wag, when thou art king, let not us that are squires of the night's body be called thieves of the day's beauty let us be Diana's foresters, gentlemen of the shade, munions of the moon, and let men say, we be men of good government, being governed as the sea is, by our noble and chaste mistress the moon, under whose countenance we steal 33

Prince Thou sayest well, and it holds well too, for the fortune of us that are the moon's men doth ebb and flow like the sea, being govern'd as the sea is, by the moon As for proof now a purse of gold most resolutely snatched on Monday night and most dissolutely spent on Tuesday morning, got with swearing 'Lay by,'

and spent with crying 'Bring in' now in as low an ebb as the foot of the ladder, and by and by in as high a flow as the ridge of the gallows

Fal By the Lord, thou sayest true, lad And is not my hostess of the tavern a most sweet

wench? 46

Prince As the honey of Hybla, my old lad of the castle And is not a buff jerkin a most sweet robe of durance? 49

Fal How now, how now, mad wag! what,

in thy quips and thy quiddities? what a plague have I to do with a buff jerkin? 52

Prince Why, what a pox have I to do with my hostess of the tavern?

Fal Well, thou hast called her to a reckoning many a time and oft 56

Prince Did I ever call for thee to pay thy

part?

Fal No, I'll give thee thy due, thou hast paid all there 60

Prince Yea, and elsewhere, so far as my coin would stretch, and where it would not, I have used my credit

Fal Yea, and so used it that, were it not here apparent that thou art heir apparent—But, I prithee sweet wag, shall there be gallows standing in England when thou art king, and resolution thus fobbed as it is with the rusty curb of old father antick the law? Do not thou, when thou art king, hang a thief 70

Prince No, thou shalt

Fal Shall I? O rare! By the Lord, I'll be a brave judge 73

Prince Thou judgest false already I mean, thou shalt have the hanging of the thieves and so become a rare hangman 76

Fal Well, Hal, well, and in some sort it jumps with my humour as well as waiting in the court, I can tell you

Prince For obtaining of suits? 80

Fal Yea, for obtaining of suits, whereof the hangman hath no lean wardrobe "Sblood, I am as melancholy as a gib cat, or a lugged bear

Prince Or an old lion, or a lover's lute 84

Fal Yea, or the drone of a Lincolnshire bagpipe

Prince What sayest thou to a hare, or the melancholy of Moor-ditch? 88

Fal Thou hast the most unsavory smiles, and art, indeed, the most comparative, rascal-liest, sweet young prince, but, Hal, I prithee, trouble me no more with vanity I would to God thou and I knew where a commodity of good names were to be bought. An old lord of the council rated me the other day in the street about you, sir, but I marked him not, and yet he talked very wisely, but I regarded him not, and yet he talked wisely, and in the street too 98

Prince Thou didst well, for wisdom cries out in the streets, and no man regards it. 100

Fal O! thou hast damnable iteration, and art indeed able to corrupt a saint Thou hast done much harm upon me, Hal, God forgive thee for it! Before I knew thee, Hal, I knew nothing, and now am I, if a man should speak truly, little better than one of the wicked I must give over this life, and I will give it over, by the Lord, an I do not, I am a villain I'll be damned for never a king's son in Christendom.

Prince Where shall we take a purse to-morrow, Jack? 111

Fal Zounds! where thou wilt, lad, I'll make one, an I do not, call me a villain and baffle me

Prince I see a good amendment of life in thee, from praying to purse-taking 115

Enter POINS, at a distance

Fal Why, Hal, 'tis my vocation, Hal, 'tis no sin for a man to labour in his vocation. Poins! Now shall we know if Gadshill have set a match O! if men were to be saved by merit, what hole in hell were hot enough for him? This is the most omnipotent villain that ever cried 'Stand!' to a true man. 122

Prince Good morrow, Ned.

Poins Good morrow, sweet Hal What says Monsieur Remorse? What says Sir John Sack-and-Sugar? Jack! how agrees the devil and thee about thy soul, that thou soldst him on Good-Friday last for a cup of Madeira and a cold capon's leg? 129

Prince Sir John stands to his word, the devil shall have his bargain, for he was never yet a breaker of proverbs he will give the devil his due.

Poins Then art thou damned for keeping thy word with the devil.

Prince Else he had been damned for cozening the devil 136

Poins But my lads, my lads, to-morrow morning, by four o'clock, early at Gadshill! There are pilgrims going to Canterbury with rich offerings, and traders riding to London with fat purses I have vizards for you all, you have horses for yourselves Gadshill lies to-night in Rochester, I have bespoke supper to-morrow night in Eastcheap we may do it as secure as sleep If you will go I will stuff your purses full of crowns, if you will not, tarry at home and be hanged 147

Fal Hear ye, Yedward if I tarry at home and go not, I'll hang you for going Poins You will, chops?

Fal Hal, wilt thou make one?

Prince Who, I rob? I a thief? not I, by my faith. 153

Fal There's neither honesty, manhood, nor good fellowship in thee, nor thou camest not of the blood royal, if thou dardest not stand for ten shillings 157

Prince Well, then, once in my days I'll be a madcap

Fal Why, that's well said 160

Prince Well, come what will, I'll tarry at home

Fal By the Lord, I'll be a traitor then, when thou art king 164

Prince I care not.

Poins Sir John, I prithee, leave the prince and me alone I will lay him down such reasons for this adventure that he shall go 168

Fal Well, God give thee the spirit of persuasion and him the ears of profiting, that what thou speakest may move, and what he hears may be believed, that the true prince may, for recreation sake, prove a false thief, for the poor abuses of the time want countenance. Farewell you shall find me in Eastcheap 175

Prince Farewell, thou latter spring! Farewell, All-hallow summer! [Exit FALSTAFF

Poins Now, my good sweet honey lord, ride with us to-morrow I have a jest to execute that I cannot manage alone Falstaff, Bardolph, Peto, and Gadshill shall rob those men that we have already waylaid, yourself and I will not be there, and when they have the booty, if you and I do not rob them, cut this head from my shoulders 185

Prince But how shall we part with them in setting forth?

Poins Why, we will set forth before or after them, and appoint them a place of meeting, wherein it is at our pleasure to fail, and then will they adventure upon the exploit themselves, which they shall have no sooner achieved but we'll set upon them. 193

Prince Yea, but 'tis like that they will know us by our horses, by our habits, and by every other appointment, to be ourselves 196

Poins Tut! our horses they shall not see, I'll tie them in the wood, our vizards we will change after we leave them, and, surrah, I have cases of buckram for the nonce, to mask our noted outward garments. 201

Prince Yea, but I doubt they will be too hard for us.

Poins Well, for two of them, I know them to be as true-bred cowards as ever turned back, and for the third, if he fight longer than he sees reason, I'll forswear arms. The virtue of this jest will be, the incomprehensible lies that this same fat rogue will tell us when we meet at supper how thurt, at least, he fought with, what wards, what blows, what extremities he endured, and in the reproof of this lies the jest.

Prince Well, I'll go with thee provide us all things necessary and meet me to-morrow night in Eastcheap, there I'll sup Farewell.

Poins Farewell, my lord.

Prince I know you all, and will awhile uphold

The unyok'd humour of your idleness
Yet herein will I imitate the sun,
Who doth permit the base contagious clouds
To smother up his beauty from the world, 221
That when he please again to be himself, Being wanted, he may be more wonder'd at,
By breaking through the foul and ugly mists
Of vapours that did seem to strangle him. 225

If all the year were playing holidays,
To sport would be as tedious as to work,
But when they seldom come, they wish'd for come,

And nothing pleaseth but rare accidents 229
So, when this loose behaviour I throw off,
And pay the debt I never promised,
By how much better than my word I am 232
By so much shall I falsify men's hopes,
And like bright metal on a sullen ground,
My reformation, glittering o'er my fault,
Shall show more goodly and attract more eyes
Than that which hath no foil to set it off. 237
I'll so offend to make offence a skill, Redeeming time when men think least I will.

[Exit

SCENE III.—The Same The Palace

Enter KING HENRY, NORTHUMBERLAND, WORCESTER, HOTSPUR, SIR WALTER BLUNT, and Others

K Hen. My blood hath been too cold and temperate,

Unapt to stir at these indignities,
And you have found me, for accordingly
You tread upon my patience but, be sure, 4
I will from henceforth rather be myself,
Mighty, and to be fear'd, than my condition,
Which hath been smooth as oil, soft as young down,

And therefore lost that title of respect 8
Which the proud soul ne'er pays but to the proud

Wor Our house, my sovereign hege, little deserves

The scourge of greatness to be us'd on it,
And that same greatness too which our own hands

Have help to make so portly 12
North My lord,—

K Hen Worcester, get thee gone, for I do see Danger and disobedience in thine eye. 16
O, sir, your presence is too bold and presumptuous,
And majesty might never yet endure
The moody frontier of a servant brow

You have good leave to leave us, when we need Your use and counsel we shall send for you. 21

[Exit WORCESTER.

[To NORTHUMBERLAND] You were about to speak.

North Yea, my good lord
Those prisoners in your highness' name demanded,

Which Harry Percy here at Holmedon took, 24
Were, as he says, not with such strength denied
As is deliver'd to your majesty

Either envy, therefore, or misprision
Is guilty of this fault and not my son. 28

Hot My liege, I did deny no prisoners
But I remember, when the fight was done,
When I was dry with rage and extreme toil, Breathless and faint, leaning upon my sword, 32
Came there a certain lord, neat, and trimly dress'd,

Fresh as a bridegroom, and his chin, new reap'd, Show'd like a stubble-land at harvest-home
He was perfum'd like a milliner, 36

And 'twixt his finger and his thumb he held
A pouncet-box, which ever and anon
He gave his nose and took't away again,
Who therewith angry, when it next came there,

Took it in snuff and still he smil'd and talk'd,
And as the soldiers bore dead bodies by,
He call'd them untaught knaves, unmannerly,
To bring a slovenly unhandsome corpse 44

Betwixt the wind and his nobility
With many holiday and lady terms
He question'd me, among the rest, demanded
My prisoners in your majesty's behalf 48

I then all smarting with my wounds being cold,
To be so pester'd with a popinjay,
Out of my grief and my impatience
Answer'd neglectingly, I know not what, 52

Heshould, or he should not, for he made me mad
To see him shine so brisk and smell so sweet
And talk so like a waiting-gentlewoman Of guns, and drums, and wounds,—God save the mark!— 56

And telling me the sovereign'st thing on earth
Was parmaceti for an inward bruise,
And that it was great pity, so it was,
This villanous saltpetre should be digg'd 60

Out of the bowels of the harmless earth,
Which many a good tall fellow had destroy'd
So cowardly, and but for these vile guns,
He would himself have been a soldier 64

This bald unjointed chat of his, my lord,
I answer'd indirectly, as I said,
And I beseech you, let not his report
Come current for an accusation 68

Betwixt my love and your high majesty Blunt The circumstance consider'd, good
my lord,

Whatever Harry Percy then had said
To such a person and in such a place, 72
At such a time, with all the rest re-told,
May reasonably die and never rise

To do him wrong, or any way impeach
What then he said, so he unsay it now 76
K Hen. Why, yet he doth deny his prisoners,
But with proviso and exception,

That we at our own charge shall ransom straight
His brother-in-law, the foolish Mortimer, 80
Who, on my soul, hath wilfully betray'd
The lives of those that he did lead to fight Against the great magician, damn'd Glendower, Whose daughter, as we hear, the Earl of March Hath lately married. Shall our coffers then 85
Be emptied to redeem a traitor home?
Shall we buy treason, and indent with fears,
When they have lost and forfeited themselves?
No, on the barren mountains let him starve, 89
For I shall never hold that man my friend Whose tongue shall ask me for one penny cost
To ransom home revolted Mortimer 92

Hot Revolted Mortimer!
He never did fall off, my sovereign hege,
But by the chance of war to prove that true Needs no more but one tongue for all those 96
wounds,
Those mouthed wounds, which valiantly he took,

When on the gentle Severn's sedgy bank,
In single opposition, hand to hand,
He did confound the best part of an hour 100
In changing hardiment with great Glendower Three times they breath'd and three times did they drink,

Upon agreement, of swift Severn's flood,
Who then, affrighted with their bloody looks, 104
Ran fearfully among the trembling reeds,
And hid his crisp head in the hollow bank
Blood-stained with these valiant combatants
Never did base and rotten policy 108
Colour her working with such deadly wounds, Nor never could the noble Mortimer Receive so many, and all willingly
Then let him not be slander'd with revolt 112

K Hen Thou dost belie him, Percy, thou dost belie him

He never did encounter with Glendower
I tell thee,
He durst as well have met the devil alone 116
As Owen Glendower for an enemy
Art thou not asham'd? But, surrah, henceforth Let me not hear you speak of Mortimer Send me your prisoners with the speediest 120
means,
Or you shall hear in such a kind from me As will displease you. My Lord Northumber-
land,

We license your departure with your son
Send us your prisoners, or you'll hear of it. 124 [Exeunt KING HENRY, BLUNT, and Train]

Hot An if the devil come and roar for them,
I will not send them. I will after straight
And tell him so, for I will ease my heart, Albert I make a hazard of my head 128

North. What! drunk with choler? stay, and pause awhile
Here comes your uncle

Re-enter WORCESTER

Hot Speak of Mortimer!
'Zounds! I will speak of him, and let my soul Want mercy if I do not join with him 132
In his behalf I'll empty all these veins,

And shed my dear blood drop by drop! the dust,
But I will lift the down-trod Mortimer
As high 'r' the air as this unthankful king, 136
As this ingrate and canker'd Bolingbroke North Brother, the king hath made your nephew mad.

Wor Who struck this heat up after I was gone?

Hot He will, forsooth, have all my prisoners,
And when I urg'd the ransom once again 141
Of my wife's brother, then his cheek look'd pale,
And on my face he turn'd an eye of death,
Trembling even at the name of Mortimer 144

Wor I cannot blame him was he not proclaim'd

By Richard that dead is the next of blood?

North He was, I heard the proclamation
And then it was when the unhappy king,— 148
Whose wrongs in us God pardon!—did set forth Upon his Irish expedition,

From whence he, intercepted, did return
To be depos'd, and shortly murdered 152

Wor And for whose death we in the world's wide mouth

Live scandaliz'd and foully spoken of Hot But, soft! I pray you, did King Richard

then

Proclaim my brother Edmund Mortimer 156
Heir to the crown?

North He did, myself did hear it Hot Nay, then I cannot blame his cousin
king,

That wish'd him on the barren mountains starve
But shall it be that you, that set the crown 160
Upon the head of this forgetful man,
And for his sake wear the detested blot
Of murd'rous subornation, shall it be,
That you a world of curses undergo, 164

Being the agents, or base second means,
The cords, the ladder, or the hangman rather?

O! pardon me that I descend so low,
To show the line and the predicament 168

Wherein you range under this subtle king Shall it for shame be spoken in these days,
Or fill up chronicles in time to come,

That men of your nobility and power, 172
Did gage them both in an unjust behalf,
As both of you—God pardon it!—have done,
To put down Richard, that sweet lovely rose,

And plant this thorn, this canker, Bolingbroke?
And shall it in more shame be further spoken,
That you are fool'd, discarded, and shook off
By him for whom these shames ye underwent?

No, yet time serves wherein you may redeem 180
Your banish'd honours, and restore yourselves
Into the good thoughts of the world again, Revenge the jeering and disdain'd contempt
Of this proud king, who studies day and night
To answer all the debt he owes to you, 185
Even with the bloody payment of your deaths.

Therefore, I say,—

Wor Peace, cousin! say no more
And now I will unclasp a secret book, 188

And to your quick-conceiving discontents
I'll read you matter deep and dangerous,
As full of peril and adventurous spirit

As to o'er-walk a current roaring loud, 192
On the unsteadfast footing of a spear

Hot If he fall in, good night! or sink or swim

Send danger from the east unto the west,
So honour cross it from the north to south, 196
And let them grapple O! the blood more stirs
To rouse a lion than to start a hare

North Imagination of some great exploit

Drives him beyond the bounds of patience 200

Hot By heaven methinks it were an easy leap

To pluck bright honour from the pale-fac'd moon,

Or dive into the bottom of the deep,
Where fathom-line could never touch the ground, 204

And pluck up drowned honour by the locks,
So he that doth redeem her thence might wear Without carnal all her dignities

But out upon this half-fac'd fellowship! 208

Wor He apprehends a world of figures here,

But not the form of what he should attend Good cousin, give me audience for a while

Hot I cry you mercy

Wor Those same noble Scots 212
That are your prisoners,—

Hot I'll keep them all,

By God, he shall not have a Scot of them
No, if a Scot would save his soul, he shall not

I'll keep them, by this hand

Wor You start away, 216
And lend no ear unto my purposes Those prisoners you shall keep

Hot Nay, I will, that's flat

He said he would not ransom Mortimer, Forbade my tongue to speak of Mortimer, 220

But I will find him when he lies asleep,
And in his ear I'll holla 'Mortimer!'

Nay,
I'll have a starling shall be taught to speak 224
Nothing but 'Mortimer,' and give it him,
To keep his anger still in motion.

Wor Hear you, cousin, a word

Hot All studies here I solemnly defy, 228
Save how to gall and pinch this Bolingbroke
And that same sword-and-buckler Prince of Wales,

But that I think his father loves him not,
And would be glad he met with some mischance,
I would have him poison'd with a pot of ale 233

Wor Farewell, kinsman I will talk to you

When you are better temper'd to attend

North Why, what a wasp-stung and impatient fool 236

Art thou to break into this woman's mood, Tying thine ear to no tongue but thine own!

Hot Whv, look you, I am whipp'd and scourg'd with rods,

Nettled, and stung with pismires, when I hear

Of this vile politician, Bolingbroke. 241

In Richard's time,—what do ye call the place?—
A plague upon't—it is in Gloucestershire,—

'Twas where the madcap duke his uncle kept,

His uncle York where I first bow'd my knee

Unto this king of smiles, this Bolingbroke, 'Sblood!

When you and he came back from Ravens-purgh 248

North At Berkeley Castle

Hot You say true

Why, what a candy deal of courtesy
This fawning greyhound then did proffer me!

Look, 'when his infant fortune came to age,' 253

And 'gentle Harry Percy,' and 'kind cousin', O! the devil take such cozeners God forgive me!

Good uncle, tell your tale, for I have done 256

Wor Nay, if you have not, to't again, We'll stay your leisure

Hot I have done, I' faith

Wor Then once more to your Scottish prisoners

Deliver them up without their ransom straight,
And make the Douglas' son your only mean 261

For powers in Scotland, which, for divers reasons

Which I shall send you written, be assur'd, Will easily be granted. [To NORTHUMBERLAND]

You, my lord, 264

Your son in Scotland being thus employ'd, Shall secretly into the bosom creep

Of that same noble prelate well belov'd,

The Archbishop 268

Hot Of York, is it not?

Wor True, who bears hard
His brother's death at Bristol, the Lord Scroop

I speak not this in estimation, 272

As what I think might be, but what I know
Is ruminated, plotted and set down,

And only stays but to behold the face

Of that occasion that shall bring it on 276

Hot I smell it

Upon my life it will do wondrous well North Before the game's afoot thou still lett'st slip

Hot Why, it cannot choose but be a noble
plot 280

And then the power of Scotland and of York,
To join with Mortimer, ha?

Wor And so they shall

Hot In faith, it is exceedingly well aim'd

Wor And 'tis no little reason bids us speed,

To save our heads by raising of a head, 285

For, bear ourselves as even as we can,

The king will always think him in our debt,
And think we think ourselves unsatisfied, 288

Till he hath found a time to pay us home

And see already how he doth begin
To make us strangers to his looks of love

Hot He does, he does we'll be reveng'd on
him 292

Wor Cousin, farewell no further go in this,
Than I by letters shall direct your course.

When time is ripe,—which will be suddenly,—

I'll steal to Glendower and Lord Mortimer, 296

Where you and Douglas and our powers at once —

As I will fashion it,—shall happily meet,
To bear our fortunes in our own strong arms,
Which now we hold at much uncertainty 300

North Farewell, good brother we shall thrive, I trust Hot Uncle, adieu O! let the hours be short, Till fields and blows and groans applaud our sport!
[Exeunt]

ACT II

SCENE I—Rochester An Inn-Yard

Enter a Carrier, with a lanthorn in his hand
First Car Heigh-ho! An't be not four by the day I'll be hanged Charles' Wain is over the new chimney, and yet our horse not packed What, ostler!

Ost [Within] Anon, anon.
First Car I prithee, Tom, beat Cut's saddle, put a few flocks in the point, the poor jade is wrung in the withers out of all cess

Enter another Carrier

Sec Car Peas and beans are as dank here as a dog, and that is the next way to give poor jades the bots, this house is turned upside down since Robin Ostler died

First Car Poor fellow! never joyed since the price of oats rose, it was the death of him

Sec Car I think this be the most villanous house in all London road for fleas I am stung like a tench

First Car Like a tench! by the mass, there is ne'er a king christen could be better bit than I have been since the first cock.

Sec Car Why, they will allow us ne'er a jordan, and then we leak in the chimney, and your chamber-lie breeds fleas like a loach

First Car What, ostler! come away and be hanged, come away

Sec Car I have a gammon of bacon and two razes of ginger, to be delivered as far as Charing cross

First Car Godsbod! the turkeys in my pannier are quite starved What, ostler! A plague on thee! hast thou never an eye in thy head? canst not hear? An 'twere not as good a deed as drink to break the pate on thee I am a very villain. Come, and be hanged! hast no faith in thee?

Enter GADSHILL

Gads Good morrow, carriers. What's o'clock?
First Car I think it be two o'clock.

Gads I prithee, lend me thy lanthorn, to see my gelding in the stable

First Car Nay, by God, soft I know a trick worth two of that, I' faith

Gads I prithee, lend me thine

Sec Car Ay, when? canst tell? Lend me thy lanthorn, quoth a? marry, I'll see thee hanged first Gads Sirrah carrier, what time do you mean to come to London?

Sec Car Time enough to go to bed with a candle, I warrant thee Come, neighbour Mugs, we'll call up the gentlemen they will along with company, for they have great charge [Exeunt Carriers.]

Gads What, ho! chamberlain!
Cham [Within] 'At hand, quoth pick-purse' Gads That's even as fair as, 'at hand, quoth the chamberlain', for thou varnest no more from picking of purses than giving direction doth from labouring, thou layest the plot how

Enter CHAMBERLAIN

Cham Good morrow, Master Gadshill It holds current that I told you yesternight there's a franklin in the wild of Kent hath brought three hundred marks with him in gold I heard him tell it to one of his company last night at supper, a kind of auditor, one that hath abundance of charge too, God knows what They are up already and call for eggs and butter they will away presently

Gads Sirrah, if they meet not with Saint Nicholas' clerks, I'll give thee this neck

Cham No, I'll none of it I prithee, keep that for the hangman, for I know thou worship'st Saint Nicholas as truly as a man of falsehood may

Gads What talkest thou to me of the hangman? If I hang I'll make a fat pair of gallows, for if I hang, old Sir John hangs with me, and thou knowest he's no starveling Tut! there are other Troyans that thou darest not of, the which for sport sake are content to do the profession some grace, that would, if matters should be looked into, for their own credit sake make all whole I am joined with no foot-land-rakers, no long-staff sixpenny strikers, none of these mad mustachio-purple-hued malt worms, but with nobility and tranquility, burgomasters and great oneyers such as can hold in, such as will strike sooner than speak, and speak sooner than drink, and drink sooner than pray and yet I lie, for they pray continually to their saint, the commonwealth, or, rather, not pray to her, but prey on her, for they ride up and down on her and make her their boots Cham What! the commonwealth their boots? will she hold out water in foul way?

Gads She will, she will, justice hath hquored her We steal as in a castle, cock-sure, we have the receipt of fern-seed, we walk invisible

Cham Nay, by my faith, I think you are more beholding to the night than to fern-seed for your walking invisible

Gads Give me thy hand thou shalt have a share in our purchase, as I am a true man.

Cham Nay, rather let me have it, as you are a false thief

Gads Go to, homo is a common name to all men Bid the ostler bring my gelding out of the stable. Farewell, you muddy knave

[Exeunt.]

SCENE II.—The Road by Gadshill

Enter the PRINCE and POINS.

Poins Come, shelter, shelter I have removed Falstaff's horse, and he frets like a gummed velvet.

Prince Stand close.

Enter FALSTAFFFal Poin! Poin, and be hanged! Poin!Prince Peace, ye fat-kidneyed rascal! What a brawling dost thou keep!Fal Where's Poin, Hal? 8*Prince* He is walked up to the top of the hill I'll go seek him*[Pretends to seek POINS, and retires]*

Fal I am accused to rob in that thief's company, the rascal hath removed my horse and tied him I know not where. If I travel but four foot by the squire further afoot I shall break my wind. Well, I doubt not but to die a fair death for all this, if I 'scape hanging for killing that rogue. I have forsworn his company hourly any time this two-and-twenty years and yet I am bewitched with the rogue's company. If the rascal have not given me medicines to make me love him I'll be hanged it could not be else. I have drunk medicines. Poin! Hal! a plague upon you both! Bardolph! Peto! I'll starve ere I'll rob a foot further. An 'twere not as good a deed as drink to turn true man and leave these rogues, I am the veriest varlet that ever chewed with a tooth. Eight yards of uneven ground is threescore and ten miles afoot with me, and the stony-hearted villains know it well enough. A plague upon t' when thieves cannot be true one to another! [They whistle] Whew! A plague upon you all! Give me my horse, you rogues give me my horse and be hanged 34

Prince [Coming forward] Peace, ye fat-guts! lie down lay thine ear close to the ground, and list if thou canst hear the tread of travellers 38

Fal Have you any levers to lift me up again, being down? Sblood! I'll not bear mine own flesh so far afoot again for all the coin in thy father's exchequer. What a plague mean ye to colt me thus?

Prince Thou liest thou art not colted, thou art uncolted. 45

Fal I prithee, good Prince Hal, help me to my horse, good king's son.

Prince Out, you rogue! shall I be your ostler?

Fal Go, hang thyself in thine own heir apparent garters! If I be ta'en I'll peach for this. An I have not ballads made on you all, and sung to filthy tunes, let a cup of sack be my poison when a jest is so forward, and afoot too! I hate it. 53

Enter GADSHILL.Gads Stand*Fal* So I do, against my will*Poin* O! 'tis our setter I know his voice.Enter BARDOLPH and PETOBard What news? 57

Gads Case ye, case ye, on with your vizards there's money of the king's coming down the hill, 'tis going to the king's exchequer 60

Fal You lie, you rogue, 'tis going to the king's tavern.

Gads There's enough to make us all.

Fal To be hanged 64

Prince Sirs, you four shall front them in the narrow lane, Ned Poin and I will walk lower if they 'scape from your encounter then they light on us 68

Peto How many be there of them?

Gads Some eight or ten.

Fal 'Zounds! will they not rob us?

Prince What! a coward, Sir John Paunch?

Fal Indeed, I am not John of Gaunt, your grandfather, but yet no coward, Hal 74

Prince Well, we leave that to the proof

Poin Sirrah Jack, thy horse stands behind the hedge when thou needst him there thou shalt find him. Farewell, and stand fast

Fal Now cannot I strike him if I should be hanged 80

Prince [Aside to POINS] Ned where are our disguises?

Poin Here, hard by, stand close

[Exeunt PRINCE and POINS]

Fal Now my masters, happy man be his dole, say I every man to his business 85

Enter Travellers

First Trav Come neighbour, the boy shall lead our horses down the hill, we'll walk afoot awhile, and ease our legs 88

Thieves Stand!

Travellers Jesu b'less us!

Fal Strike, down with them, cut the villains' throats ah! whoreson caterpillars! bacon-fed knaves! they hate us youth down with them, fleece them

Travellers O! we are undone, both we and ours for ever 96

Fal Hang ye, gorballed knaves, are ye undone? No, ye fat chuffs, I would your store were here! On, bacons, on! What! ye knaves, young men must live. You are grand-jurors are ye? We'll jure ye i' faith 101

[Here they rob and bind them. Exeunt]

Re-enter the PRINCE and POINS

Prince The thieves have bound the true men. Now could thou and I rob the thieves and go merrily to London, it would be argument for a week, laughter for a month, and a good jest for ever 106

Poin Stand close, I hear them coming

Re-enter Thieves

Fal Come, my masters, let us share, and then to horse before day. An the Prince and Poin be not two arrant cowards, there's no equity stirring there's no more valour in that Poin than in a wild duck. 112

Prince Your money!

Poin Villains!

[As they are sharing, the PRINCE and POINS set upon them. They all run away, and FALSTAFF, after a blow or two, runs away too, leaving the booty behind]

Prince Got with much ease. Now merrily to horse 115

The thieves are scatter'd and possess'd with fear

So strongly that they dare not meet each other,
Each takes his fellow for an officer Away, good Ned Falstaff sweats to death
And lards the lean earth as he walks along 120
Were't not for laughing I should pity him.

Poins How the rogue roar'd! [Exeunt]

SCENE III — Warkworth A Room in the Castle

Enter HOTSPUR, reading a letter

But for mine own part, my lord I could be well contented to be there in respect of the love I bear your house

He could be contented, why is he not then? In respect of the love he bears our house he shows in this he loves his own barn better than he loves our house Let me see some more

The purpose you undertake is dangerous — 8

Why, that's certain 'tis dangerous to take a cold, to sleep, to drink, but I tell you, my lord fool, out of this nettle, danger, we pluck this flower, safety 12

The purpose you undertake is dangerous the friends you have named uncertain the time itself unsorted and your whole plot too light for the counterpoise of so great an opposition 15

Say you so, say you so? I say unto you again, you are a shallow cowardly hind, and you lie What a lack-brain is this! By the Lord our plot is a good plot as ever was laid our friends true and constant a good plot, good friends, and full of expectation, an excellent plot, very good friends What a frosty-spirited rogue is this!
Why, my Lord of York commends the plot and the general course of the action Zounds! an I were now by this rascal, I could brain him with his lad's fan Is there not my father, my uncle, and myself? Lord Edmund Mortimer, my Lord of York, and Owen Glendower? Is there not besides the Douglas? Have I not all their letters to meet me in arms by the ninth of the next month, and are they not some of them set forward already? What a pagan rascal is this! an infidel! Ha! you shall see now in very sincerity of fear and cold heart, will he to the king and lay open all our proceedings O! I could divide myself and go to buffets, for moving such a dish of skim milk with so honourable an action Hang him! let him tell the king, we are prepared I will set forward to-night. 40

Enter LADY PERCY

How now Kate! I must leave you within these two hours

Lady P O, my good lord! why are you thus alone?

For what offence have I this fortnight been A banish'd woman from my Harry's bed? 44 Tell me, sweet lord, what is't that takes from
thee

Thy stomach, pleasure, and thy golden sleep?
Why dost thou bend thine eyes upon the earth,
And start so often when thou sit'st alone? 48 Why hast thou lost the fresh blood in thy cheeks,

And given my treasures and my rights of thee

To thick-eyed musing and curst melancholy?
In thy faint slumbers I by thee have watch'd, 52
And heard thee murmur tales of iron wars,
Speak terms of manage to thy bounding steed, Cry, 'Courage! to the field!' And thou hast talk'd

Of sallies and retires, of trenches, tents. 56
Of palisades, frontiers, parapets,
Of basilisks, of cannon, culverin,
Of prisoners' ransom, and of soldiers slain,
And all the currents of a heady fight 60
Thy spirit within thee hath been so at war,
And thus hath so bestir'd thee in thy sleep,
That beads of sweat have stood upon thy brow,

Like bubbles in a late-disturbed stream 64
And in thy face strange motions have appear'd,
Such as we see when men restrain their breath On some great sudden hest. O! what portents are these? 67

Some heavy business hath my lord in hand,
And I must know it, else he loves me not.

Hot What, ho!

Enter Servant.

Is Gilliams with the packet gone?

Serv He is, my lord, an hour ago

Hot Hath Butler brought those horses from the sheriff? 72

Serv One horse, my lord, he brought even
now

Hot What horse? a roan, a crop-ear, is it
not?

Serv It is, my lord.

Hot That roan shall be my throne
Well, I will back him straight O, Esperance!
Bid Butler lead him forth into the park. 77

[Exit Servant.]

Lady P But hear you, my lord.

Hot What sayst thou, my lady?

Lady P What is it carries you away? 80

Hot Why, my horse, my love, my horse.

Lady P Out, you mad-headed ape!

A weasel hath not such a deal of spleen

As you are toss'd with. In faith, 84

I'll know your business, Harry, that I will.

I fear my brother Mortimer doth stir

About his title, and hath sent for you

To line his enterprise But if you go— 88

Hot So far afoot, I shall be weary, love

Lady P Come, come, you paraquito, answer
me

Directly unto this question that I ask.

In faith, I'll break thy little finger, Harry, 92

As if thou wilt not tell me all things true.

Hot Away,

Away, you trifter! Love! I love thee not,
I care not for thee, Kate this is no world. 96

To play with mamnets and to tilt with lips

We must have bloody noses and crack'd crowns,

And pass them current too God's me, my horse!

What sayst thou, Kate? what wouldst thou have with me? 100

Lady P Do you not love me? do you not,
indeed?

Well, do not, then, for since you love me not,
I will not love myself. Do you not love me?
Nay, tell me if you speak in jest or no 104

Hot. Come, wilt thou see me ride?

And when I am o' horseback, I will swear
I love thee infinitely. But hark you, Kate,
I must not have you henceforth question me 108
Whither I go, nor reason whereabouts Whither I must, I must, and, to conclude,
This evening must I leave you, gentle Kate.
I know you wise, but yet no further wise 112 Than Harry Percy's wife constant you are,
But yet a woman and for secrecy,
No lady closer, for I well believe Thou wilt not utter what thou dost not know,
And so far will I trust thee, gentle Kate 117

Lady P. How! so far?

Hot. Not an inch further. But, hark you,
Kate,

Whither I go, thither shall you go too, 120
To-day will I set forth, to-morrow you Will this content you, Kate?

Lady P. It must, of force
[Exeunt]

SCENE IV.—Eastcheap. A Room in the Boar's Head Tavern.

Enter the PRINCE and POINS.

Prince. Ned, prithee, come out of that fat room, and lend me thy hand to laugh a little

Poins. Where hast been, Hal? 3

Prince. With three or four loggerheads amongst three or four score hogsheads. I have sounded the very base string of humility. Sir-rah, I am sworn brother to a leash of drawers, and can call them all by their christen names, as Tom, Dick, and Francis. They take it already upon their salvation, that though I be but Prince of Wales, yet I am the king of courtesy, and tell me flatly I am no proud Jack, like Falstaff, but a Corinthian, a lad of mettle, a good boy,—by the Lord, so they call me,—and when I am king of England, I shall command all the good lads in Eastcheap. They call drinking deep, dyeing scarlet, and when you breathe in your watering, they cry 'hem!' and bid you play it off. To conclude, I am so good a proficient in one quarter of an hour, that I can drink with any tinker in his own language during my life. I tell thee, Ned, thou hast lost much honour that thou wert not with me in this action. But, sweet Ned,—to sweeten which name of Ned, I give thee this pennyworth of sugar, clapped even now into my hand by an undersinker, one that never spake other English in his life than—'Eight shillings and sixpence,' and—'You are welcome,' with this shrill addition,—'Anon, anon, sir!
Score a pint of bastard in the Half-moon,' or so. But, Ned, to drive away the time till Falstaff come, I prithee do thou stand in some by-room, while I question my puny drawer to what end he gave me the sugar, and do thou never leave calling 'Francis!' that his tale to me may be nothing but 'Anon.' Step aside, and I'll show thee a precedent. 37

Poins. Francis!

Prince. Thou art perfect

Poins. Francis!

[Exit POINS]

Enter FRANCIS

Fran. Anon, anon, sir. Look down into the Pomgarret, Ralph

Prince. Come hither, Francis

Fran. My lord

Prince. How long hast thou to serve Francis? 44

Fran. Forsooth, five years, and as much as to—

Poins. [Within] Francis!

Fran. Anon, anon, sir

Prince. Five years! by'r lady a long lease for the clinking of pewter. But, Francis, darest thou be so valiant as to play the coward with thy indenture and show it a fair pair of heels and run from it? 53

Fran. O Lord, sir! I'll be sworn upon all the books in England, I could find in my heart—

Poins. [Within] Francis!

Fran. Anon, sir

Prince. How old art thou, Francis?

Fran. Let me see—about Michaelmas next I shall be— 60

Poins. [Within] Francis!

Fran. Anon, sir. Pray you, stay a little, my
lord

Prince. Nay, but hark you, Francis. For the sugar thou gavest me, 'twas a pennyworth, was't not? 66

Fran. O Lord, sir! I would it had been two Prince. I will give thee for it a thousand pound, ask me when thou wilt and thou shalt have it

Poins. [Within] Francis!

Fran. Anon, anon

Prince. Anon, Francis? No, Francis, but to-morrow, Francis, or, Francis, o' Thursday, or, indeed, Francis, when thou wilt. But, Francis!

Fran. My lord?

Prince. Wilt thou rob this leathern-jerkin, crystal-button, knot-pated, agate-ring, pukestocking, caddis-garter, smooth-tongue, Spanish-pouch,— 81

Fran. O Lord, sir, who do you mean?

Prince. Why then, your brown bastard is your only drunk, for, look you, Francis, your white canvas doublet will sully. In Barbary, sir, it cannot come to so much

Fran. What, sir?

Poins. [Within] Francis!

Prince. Away, you rogue! Dost thou not hear them call?

[Here they both call him, the Drawer stands amazed, not knowing which way to go]

Enter VINTNER

Vint. What! standest thou still, and hearest such a calling? Look to the guests within [Exit FRANCIS]. My lord, old Sir John, with half a dozen more, are at the door. Shall I let them in?

Prince. Let them alone awhile, and then open the door. [Exit VINTNER.] Poins! 97

Re-enter POINS

POINS Anon, anon, sir

PRINCE Sirrah, Falstaff and the rest of the thieves are at the door shall we be merry? 100

POINS As merry as crickets, my lad But hark ye, what cunning match have you made with this jest of the drawer? come, what's the issue? 104

PRINCE I am now of all humours that have show'd themselves humours since the old days of Goodman Adam to the pupil age of this present twelve o'clock at midnight [FRANCIS crosses the stage, with wine] What's o'clock, Francis? 110

FRANCIS Anon, anon, sir

[Exit]

PRINCE That ever this fellow should have fewer words than a parrot, and yet the son of a woman! His industry is up-stairs and down-stairs, his eloquence the parcel of a reckoning I am not yet of Percy's mind, the Hotspur of the North, he that kills me some six or seven dozen of Scots at a breakfast, washes his hands, and says to his wife, 'Fie upon this quiet life! I want work.' O my sweet Harry, says she, 'how many hast thou killed to-day?' 'Give my roan horse a drench,' says he, and answers, 'Some fourteen,' an hour after, 'a trifle, a trifle.' I prithee call in Falstaff I'll play Percy, and that damned brawn shall play Dame Mortimer his wife 'Rivo' says the drunkard. Call in nbs, call in tallow 127

Enter FALSTAFF, GADSHILL, BARDOLPH, PETO, and FRANCIS

POINS Welcome, Jack where hast thou been?

FAL A plague of all cowards, I say, and a vengeance too! marry, and amen! Give me a cup of sack, boy Ere I lead this life long, I'll sew nether-stocks and mend them and foot them too A plague of all cowards! Give me a cup of sack, rogue — Is there no virtue extant? 138

[He drinks]

PRINCE Didst thou never see Titan kiss a dish of butter — pitiful-hearted Titan, that melted at the sweet tale of the sun? if thou didst then behold that compound. 138

FAL You rogue, here's lime in this sack too there is nothing but roguery to be found in villanous man yet a coward is worse than a cup of sack with lime in it, a villanous coward! Go thy ways, old Jack, die when thou wilt. If manhood, good manhood, be not forgot upon the face of the earth, then am I a shotten herring. There live not three good men unbanged in England, and one of them is fat and grows old. God help the while! a bad world, I say I would I were a weaver, I could sing psalms or anything A plague of all cowards, I say still. 152

PRINCE How now, wool-sack! what mutter you? 152

FAL A king's son! If I do not beat thee out of thy kingdom with a dagger of lath, and drive all thy subjects afore thee like a flock of wild geese, I'll never wear hair on my face more You Prince of Wales! 157

PRINCE Why, you whoreson round man, what's the matter?

FAL Are you not a coward? answer me to that, and Poins there? 161

POINS 'Zounds! ye fat paunch, an ye call me coward, I'll stab thee

FAL I call thee coward! I'll see thee damned ere I call thee coward, but I would give a thousand pound I could run as fast as thou canst You are straight enough in the shoulders, you care not who sees your back call you that backing of your friends? A plague upon such backing! give me them that will face me Give me a cup of sack I am a rogue if I drunk to-day 172

PRINCE O villain! thy lips are scarce wiped since thou drunkenest last.

FAL All's one for that. [He drinks] A plague of all cowards, still say I 176

PRINCE What's the matter?

FAL What's the matter? there be four of us here have ta'en a thousand pound this day morning 180

PRINCE Where is it, Jack? where is it?

FAL Where is it? taken from us it is a hundred upon poor four of us

PRINCE What, a hundred, man? 184

FAL I am a rogue, if I were not at half-sword with a dozen of them two hours together I have 'scap'd by miracle I am eight times thrust through the doublet, four through the hose, my buckler cut through and through, my sword hacked like a hand-saw ecce signum! I never dealt better since I was a man all would not do A plague of all cowards! Let them speak if they speak more or less than truth, they are villains and the sons of darkness

PRINCE Speak, sirs, how was it?

GADS We four set upon some dozen, — 196

FAL Sixteen, at least, my lord.

GADS And bound them

PETO No, no, they were not bound

FAL You rogue, they were bound, every man of them, or I am a Jew else, an Ebrew Jew

GADS As we were sharing, some six or seven fresh men set upon us, — 204

FAL And unbound the rest, and then come in the other

PRINCE What, fought ye with them all?

FAL All! I know not what ye call all, but if I fought not with fifty of them, I am a bunch of radish if there were not two or three and fifty upon poor old Jack, then am I no two-legged creature 212

PRINCE Pray God you have not murdered some of them

FAL Nay, that's past praying for. I have peppered two of them two I am sure I have paid, two rogues in buckram suits. I tell thee what, Hal, if I tell thee a lie, spit in my face, call me horse Thou knowest my old ward, here I lay, and thus I bore my point. Four rogues in buckram let drive at me, — 221

PRINCE What, four? thou saidst but two even now.

Fal Four, Hal, I told thee four Poins Ay, ay, he said four Fal These four came all a-front, and mainly thrust at me I made me no more ado but took all their seven points in my target, thus Prince Seven? why, there were but four even now

Fal In buckram
Poins Ay, four, in buckram suits.
Fal Seven, by these huits, or I am a villain else

Prince Prithce, let him alone, we shall have more anon

Fal Dost thou hear me, Hal?

Prince Ay, and mark thee too, Jack

Fal Do so, for it is worth the listening to These nine in buckram that I told thee of,— Prince So, two more already Fal Their points being broken,—

Poins Down fell their hose

Fal Began to give me ground, but I followed me close, came in foot and hand and with a thought seven of the eleven I paid.

Prince O monstrous! eleven buckram men grown out of two Fal But, as the devil would have it, three misbegotten knaves in Kendal-green came at my back and let drive at me, for it was so dark, Hal, that thou couldst not see thy hand.

Prince These lies are like the father that begets them, gross as a mountain, open, palpable
 Why, thou clay-brained guts, thou knotty-pated fool, thou whoreson, obscene, greasy tallow-ketch,— Fal What, art thou mad? art thou mad? is not the truth the truth?

Prince Why, how couldst thou know these men in Kendal-green, when it was so dark thou couldst not see thy hand? come, tell us your reason what sayest thou to this?

Poins Come, your reason, Jack, your reason.

Fal What, upon compulsion? 'Zounds! an I were at the strappado, or all the racks in the world, I would not tell you on compulsion. Give you a reason on compulsion! if reasons were as plenty as blackberries I would give no man a reason upon compulsion, I.

Prince I'll be no longer guilty of this sin this sanguine coward, this bed-presser, this horseback-breaker this huge hill of flesh,—

Fal 'Sblood, you starveling, you elf-skin, you dried neat's-tongue, you bull's pizzle, you stock-fish! O! for breath to utter what is like thee, you tailor's yard, you sheath, you bow-case, you vile standing-tuck,—

Prince Well, breathe awhile, and then to it again and when thou hast tured thyself in base comparisons, hear me speak but this.

Poins Mark, Jack

Prince We two saw you four set on four and you bound them, and were masters of their wealth. Mark now, how a plain tale shall put you down Then did we two set on you four, and, with a word, out-faced you from your prize, and have it, yea, and can show it you here in the house And, Falstaff, you earned your guts away as nimbly, with as quick dexterity, and roared for mercy, and still ran and roared, as ever I heard bull-calf What a slave art thou, to hack thy sword as thou hast done, and then say it was in fight! What trick, what device, what starting-hole canst thou now find out to hide thee from this open and apparent shame?

Poins Come, let's hear, Jack, what trick hast thou now?

Fal By the Lord, I knew ye as well as he that made ye Why, hear you, my masters was it for me to kill the heir-apparent? Should I turn upon the true prince? Why, thou knowest I am as valiant as Hercules, but beware instinct, the lion will not touch the true prince Instinct is a great matter, I was a coward on instinct I shall think the better of myself and thee during my life, I for a valiant lion, and thou for a true prince But, by the Lord, lads, I am glad you have the money Hostess, clap to the doors watch to-night, pray to-morrow Gallants, lads, boys, hearts of gold, all the titles of good fellowship come to you! What! shall we be merry? shall we have a play extempore?

Prince Content, and the argument shall be thy running away

Fal Ah! no more of that, Hal, an thou lovest me!

Enter MISTRESS QUICKLY

Quick O Jesu! my lord the prince!

Prince How now, my lady the hostess! what sayest thou to me?

Quick Marry, my lord, there is a nobleman of the court at door would speak with you he says he comes from your father

Prince Give him as much as will make him a royal man and send him back again to my mother

Fal What manner of man is he?

Quick An old man

Fal What doth gravity out of his bed at midnight? Shall I give him his answer?

Prince Prithce, do, Jack.

Fal Faith, and I'll send him packing [Exit]

Prince Now, sirs by'r lady, you fought fair, so did you, Peto, so did you, Bardolph you are lions too, you ran away upon instinct, you will not touch the true prince, no, fie!

Bard. Faith, I ran when I saw others run Prince Faith, tell me now in earnest, how came Falstaff's sword so hacked?

Peto Why, he hacked it with his dagger, and said he would swear truth out of England but he would make you believe it was done in fight, and persuaded us to do the like.

Bard Yea, and to tackle our noses with spear-grass to make them bleed, and then to beslobber our garments with it and swear it was the blood of true men. I did that I did not this seven year before, I blushed to hear his monstrous devices.

Prince O villain! thou stolest a cup of sack eighteen years ago, and wert taken with the manner, and ever since thou hast blushed extempore. Thou hadst fire and sword on thy side, and yet thou rannest away What instinct hadst thou for it?

Bard [Pointing to his face] My lord, do you see these meteors? do you behold these exhalations? 357

Prince I do

Bard What think you they portend?

Prince Hot livers and cold purses 360

Bard Choler, my lord, if rightly taken.

Prince No, if rightly taken, halter —

Re-enter FALSTAFF

Here comes lean Jack, here comes bare-bone — How now, my sweet creature of bombast! How long is't ago, Jack, since thou sawest thine own knee? 366

Fal My own knee! when I was about thy years, Hal, I was not an eagle's talon in the waist, I could have crept into any alderman's thumb-ring. A plague of sighing and grief! it blows a man up like a bladder. There's villainous news abroad here was Sir John Bracy from your father you must to the court in the morning. That same mad fellow of the north, Percy, and he of Wales, that gave Amaumon the bastinado and made Lucifer cuckold, and swore the devil his true liegeman upon the cross of a Welsh hook—what a plague call you him? 378

Poins Owen Glendower

Fal Owen, Owen, the same, and his son-in-law Mortimer and old Northumberland, and that sprightly Scot of Scots, Douglas, that runs o' horseback up a hill perpendicular

Prince He that rides at high speed and with his pistol kills a sparrow flying 385

Fal You have hit it

Prince So did he never the sparrow

Fal Well, that rascal hath good mettle in him, he will not run 389

Prince Why, what a rascal art thou then to praise him so for running!

Fal O' horseback, ye cuckoo! but, afoot he will not budge a foot. 393

Prince Yes, Jack, upon instinct

Fal I grant ye, upon instinct. Well, he is there too, and one Mordake, and a thousand blue-caps more. Worcester is stolen away to-night, thy father's beard is turned white with the news you may buy land now as cheap as stinking mackerel. 400

Prince Why then, it is like, if there come a hot June and this civil buffeting hold, we shall buy maidenheads as they buy hob-nails, by the hundreds 404

Fal By the mass, lad, thou sayest true, it is like we shall have good trading that way. But tell me, Hal, art thou not horribly afeard? thou being heir apparent, could the world pick thee out three such enemies again as that fiend Douglas, that spirit Percy, and that devil Glendower? Art thou not horribly afraid? doth not thy blood thrill at it? 412

Prince Not a whit, I' faith, I lack some of thy instinct.

Fal Well, thou wilt be horribly chid tomorrow when thou comest to thy father if thou love me, practise an answer 417

Prince Do thou stand for my father, and examine me upon the particulars of my life

Fal Shall I? content this chair shall be my state, this dagger my sceptre, and this cushion my crown. 422

Prince Thy state is taken for a joint-stool, thy golden sceptre for a leaden dagger, and thy precious rich crown for a pitiful bald crown! 425

Fal Well, an the fire of grace be not quite out of thee, now shalt thou be moved. Give me a cup of sack to make mine eyes look red, that it may be thought I have wept, for I must speak in passion, and I will do it in King Cambyse's vein [Drinks]

Prince Well, here is my leg [Makes a bow] Fal And here is my speech. Stand aside, nobility 434

Quick O Jesu! This is excellent sport, I' faith!
Fal Weep not, sweet queen, for trickling tears are vain 436

Quick O, the father! how he holds his countenance

Fal For God's sake, lords, convey my trustful queen,

For tears do stop the flood-gates of her eyes. 440
Quick O Jesu! he doth it as like one of these harlotry players as ever I see!

Fal Peace, good pmt-pot! peace, good tickle-brain! Harry, I do not only marvel where thou spendest thy time, but also how thou art accompanied for though the camomile, the more it is trodden on the faster it grows, yet youth, the more it is wasted the sooner it wears. That thou art my son, I have partly thymother's word, partly my own opinion, but chiefly, a villainous trick of thine eye and a foolish hanging of thy nether lip, that doth warrant me. If then thou be son to me, here lies the point, why, being son to me, art thou so pointed at? Shall the blessed sun of heaven prove a mcher and eat blackberries? a question not to be asked. Shall the son of England prove a thief and take purses? a question to be asked. There is a thing, Harry, which thou hast often heard of, and it is known to many in our land by the name of pitch. This pitch, as ancient writers do report, doth defile, so doth the company thou keepest, for, Harry, now I do not speak to thee in drink, but in tears, not in pleasure but in passion, not in words only, but in woes also. And yet there is a virtuous man whom I have often noted in thy company, but I know not his name. 467

Prince What manner of man, an it like your majesty?

Fal A goodly portly man, I' faith, and a corpulent, of a cheerful look, a pleasing eye, and a most noble carriage, and, as I think, his age some fifty, or by'r lady, inclining to threescore, and now I remember me, his name is Falstaff. If that man should be lewdly given, he deceiveth me, for, Harry, I see virtue in his looks. If then the tree may be known by the fruit, as the fruit by the tree, then, peremptorily I speak it, there is virtue in that Falstaff. him keep with, the rest banish. And tell me now, thou naughty varlet, tell me, where hast thou been this month?

Prince Dost thou speak like a king? Do thou stand for me, and I'll play my father 483

Fal Depose me? if thou dost it half so gravely, so majestically, both in word and matter, hang me up by the heels for a rabbit-sucker or a poulter's hare

Prince Well, here I am set. 488

Fal And here I stand. Judge, my masters

Prince Now, Harry! whence come you?

Fal My noble lord, from Eastcheap

Prince The complaints I hear of thee are grievous 493

Fal 'Sblood, my lord, they are false nay, I'll tickle ye for a young prince, I' faith

Prince Swearst thou, ungracious boy? henceforth ne'er look on me Thou art violently carried away from grace there is a devil haunts thee in the likeness of a fat old man, a tun of man is thy companion Why dost thou converse with that trunk of humours, that bolting-hutch of beastiness, that swollen parcel of dropsies, that huge bombard of sack, that stuffed cloak-bag of guts, that roasted Manningtree ox with the pudding in his belly, that reverend vice, that grey iniquity, that father ruffian, that vanity in years? Wherein is he good but to taste sack and drink it? wherein neat and cleanly but to carve a capon and eat it? wherein cunning but in craft? wherein crafty but in villany? wherein villanous but in all things? wherein worthy but in nothing? 512

Fal I would your Grace would take me with you whom means your Grace?

Prince That villanous abominable misleader of youth, Falstaff, that old white-bearded Satan

Fal My lord, the man I know 517

Prince I know thou dost.

Fal But to say I know more harm in him than in myself were to say more than I know That he is old, the more the pity, his white hairs do witness it, but that he is, saving your reverence, a whoremaster, that I utterly deny If sack and sugar be a fault, God help the wicked! If to be old and merry be a sin, then many an old host that I know is damned if to be fat be to be hated, then Pharaoh's lean kine are to be beloved No, my good lord, banish Peto, banish Bardolph, banish Poins, but for sweet Jack Falstaff, kind Jack Falstaff, true Jack Falstaff, valiant Jack Falstaff, and therefore more valiant, being, as he is, old Jack Falstaff, banish not him thy Harry's company banish not him thy Harry's company banish plump Jack, and banish all the world. 535

Prince I do, I will [A knocking heard]

[Exeunt MISTRESS QUICKLY, FRANCIS, and BARDOLPH]

Re-enter BARDOLPH, running

Bard O! my lord, my lord, the sheriff with a most monstrous watch is at the door

Fal Out, ye rogue! Play out the play I have much to say in the behalf of that Falstaff

Re-enter MISTRESS QUICKLY

Quick O Jesu! my lord, my lord! 541

Prince Heigh, heigh! the devil rides upon a fiddle-stick what's the matter?

Quick The sheriff and all the watch are at the door they are come to search the house Shall I let them in? 546

Fal Dost thou hear, Hal? never call a true piece of gold a counterfeit thou art essentially mad without seeming so 549

Prince And thou a natural coward without instinct

Fal I deny your major If you will deny the sheriff, so, if not, let him enter if I become not a cart as well as another man, a plague on my bringing up! I hope I shall as soon be strangled with a halter as another 556

Prince Go, hide thee behind the arras the rest walk up above. Now, my masters, for a true face and good conscience

Fal Both which I have had, but their date is out, and therefore I'll hide me 561

[Exeunt all but the PRINCE and PETO]

Prince Call in the sheriff

Enter Sheriff and Carrier

Now, master sheriff, what's your will with me?

Sher First, pardon me, my lord A hue and cry 564

Hath follow'd certain men unto this house

Prince What men?

Sher One of them is well known, my gracious lord,

A gross fat man

Car As fat as butter 568

Prince The man, I do assure you, is not here, For I myself at this time have employ'd him And, sheriff, I will engage my word to thee, That I will, by to-morrow dinner-time, 572 Send him to answer thee, or any man, For anything he shall be charg'd withal - And so let me entreat you leave the house

Sher I will, my lord. There are two gentlemen 576

Have in this robbery lost three hundred marks

Prince It may be so if he have robb'd these men,

He shall be answerable, and so farewell.

Sher Good night, my noble lord 580

Prince I think it is good morrow, is it not?

Sher Indeed, my lord, I think it be two o'clock [Exeunt Sheriff and Carrier]

Prince This oily rascal is known as well as Paul's

Go, call him forth 584

Peto Falstaff! fast asleep behind the arras, and snoring like a horse

Prince Hark, how hard he fetches breath Search his pockets [He searcheth his pockets, and findeth certain papers] What hast thou found? 590

Peto Nothing but papers, my lord.

Prince Let's see what they be read them.

Peto Item A capon 2s 2d Item Sauce 4d
 Item Sack two gallons 5s 8d
 Item Anchovies and sack after supper 2s 6d
 Item Bread ob

Prince O monstrous! but one half-penny-worth of bread to this intolerable deal of sack! What there is ease, keep close we'll read it at more advantage. There let him sleep till day I'll to the court in the morning. We must all to the wars, and thy place shall be honourable. I'll procure this fat rogue a charge of foot and, I know, his death will be a march of twelve-score. The money shall be paid back again with advantage. Be with me betimes in the morning, and so good morrow, Peto 608

Peto Good morrow, good my lord [Exeunt]

ACT III

SCENE I — Bangor A Room in the Archdeacon's House

Enter HOTSPUR, WORCESTER, MORTIMER, and GLENDOWER

Mort These promises are fair, the parties sure,

And our induction full of prosperous hope

Hot Lord Mortimer, and cousin Glendower,
Will you sit down? 4

And uncle Worcester a plague upon it!

I have forgot the map

Glend No, here it is Sit, cousin Percy, sit, good cousin Hotspur,
 For by that name as oft as Lancaster 8 Doth speak of you his cheek looks pale and with A rising sigh he wishes you in heaven.

Hot And you in hell, as often as he hears

Owen Glendower spoke of 12

Glend I cannot blame him at my nativity

The front of heaven was full of fiery shapes,

Of burning cressets, and at my birth

The frame and huge foundation of the earth 16

Shak'd like a coward

Hot Why, so it would have done at the same season, if your mother's cat had but kitten'd, though yourself had never been born 20

Glend I say the earth did snake when I was
 born

Hot And I say the earth was not of my mind,
 If you suppose as fearing you it shook

Glend The heavens were all on fire, the earth did tremble 24

Hot O! then the earth shook to see the heavens on fire,

And not in fear of your nativity

Diseased nature oftentimes breaks forth

In strange eruptions: oft the teeming earth 28

Is with a kind of colic pinch'd and vex'd

By the imprisoning of unruly wind Within her womb, which, for enlargement striving,

Shakes the old beldam earth, and topples down

Steeple and moss-grown towers At your birth 33

Our grandam earth, having this distemperature, In passion shook

Glend Cousin, of many men

I do not bear these crossings Give me leave 36

To tell you once again that at my birth

The front of heaven was full of fiery shapes,

The goats ran from the mountains, and the herds

Were strangely clamorous to the frightened fields

These signs have mark'd me extraordinary, 41

And all the courses of my life do show

I am not in the roll of common men

Where is he living, clipp'd in with the sea 44

That chides the banks of England, Scotland,

Wales,

Which calls me pupil or hath read to me?

And bring him out that is but woman's son

Can trace me in the tedious ways of art 48

And hold me pace in deep experiments

Hot I think there's no man speaks better

Welsh

I'll to dinner

Mort Peace, cousin Percy! you will make him mad 52

Glend I can call spirits from the vasty deep

Hot Why, so can I or so can any man,

But will they come when you do call for them?

Glend Why, I can teach thee, cousin, to command 56

The devil

Hot And I can teach thee, coz, to shame the devil

By telling truth tell truth and shame the devil

If thou have power to raise him, bring him
 hither, 60

And I'll be sworn I have power to shame him
 hence

O! while you live, tell truth and shame the devil!

Mort Come, come,

No more of this unprofitable chat 64

Glend Three times hath Henry Bolingbroke made head

Against my power, thrice from the banks of Wye

And sandy-bottom'd Severn have I sent him

Bootless home and weather-beaten back 68

Hot Home without boots, and in foul weather too!

How 'scapes he agues, in the devil's name?

Glend Come, here's the map shall we divide our right

According to our threefold order ta'en? 72

Mort The archdeacon hath divided it

Into three lumps very equally

England, from Trent and Severn hitherto,

By south and east is to my part assign'd 76

All westward Wales beyond the Severn shore,

And all the fertile land within that bound,

Then Owen Glendower and, dear coz, to you

The remnant northward, lying off from Trent 80

And our adventures tripartite are drawn,

Which being sealed interchangeably,

A business that this night may execute,

To-morrow, cousin Percy, you and I 84

And my good Lord of Worcester will set forth
To meet your father and the Scottish power,
As is appointed us, at Shrewsbury
My father Glendower is not ready yet, 88
Nor shall we need his help these fourteen days [To GLENDOWER] Within that space you may have drawn together

Your tenants, friends, and neighbouring gentlemen.

Glend. A shorter time shall send me to you,
lords, 92

And in my conduct shall your ladies come,
From whom you now must steal and take no
leave,

For there will be a world of water shed
Upon the parting of your wives and you 96

Hot Methinks my moiety, north from Burton
here,

In quantity equals not one of yours.

See how this river comes me cranking in,
And cuts me from the best of all my land 100

A huge half moon, a monstrous cantle out.
I'll have the current in this place damm'd up,

And here the smug and silver Trent shall run
In a new channel, fair and evenly 104

It shall not wind with such a deep indent,
To rob me of so rich a bottom here

Glend. Not wind! it shall, it must, you see it doth.

Mort. Yea, but 108

Mark how he bears his course, and runs me up
With like advantage on the other side,

Gelding the opposed contentment as much,
As on the other side it takes from you. 112

Wor. Yea, but a little charge will trench him
here,

And on this north side win this cape of land,
And then he runs straight and even.

Hot I'll have it so, a little charge will do it.

Glend. I will not have it alter'd.

Hot Will not you? 117

Glend. No, nor you shall not.

Hot Who shall say me nay?

Glend. Why, that will I

Hot Let me not understand you then

Speak it in Welsh. 120

Glend. I can speak English, lord, as well as
you,

For I was train'd up in the English court,
Where, being but young, I framed to the harp

Many an English ditty lovely well, 124

And gave the tongue an helpful ornament,
A virtue that was never seen in you.

Hot Marry, and I'm glad of it with all my heart.

I had rather be a kitten, and cry mew 128

Than one of these same metre ballad-mongers,
I had rather hear a brazen canstick turn'd,

Or a dry wheel grate on the axle-tree,
And that would set my teeth nothing on edge,

Nothing so much as muzzling poetry 133

'Tis like the forc'd gait of a shuffling nag.

Glend. Come, you shall have Trent turn'd.

Hot I do not care I'll give thrice so much
land 136

To any well-deserving friend

But in the way of bargain, mark you me,
I'll cavil on the ninth part of a hair

Are the indentures drawn? shall we be gone?

Glend. The moon shines fair, you may away by night 141

I'll haste the writer and withal

Break with your wives of your departure hence

I am afraid my daughter will run mad, 144

So much she doteth on her Mortimer [Exit

Mort. Fie, cousin Percy! how you cross my father!

Hot I cannot choose sometimes he angers
me

With telling me of the moldwarp and the ant,

Of the dreamer Merlin and his prophecies, 149

And of a dragon, and a finless fish,

A chip-wing'd griffin, and a moulten raven,

A couching lion, and a ramping cat, 152

And such a deal of skumble skamble stuff

As puts me from my faith. I'll tell thee what,

He held me last night at least nine hours

In reckoning up the several devils' names 156

That were his lackeys I cried 'hum!' and 'well, go to'

But mark'd him not a word O! he's as tedious

As a tired horse a railing wife,

Worse than a smoky house I had rather live

With cheese and garlick in a windmill, far, 161

Than feed on cates and have him talk to me

In any summer-house in Christendom.

Mort. In faith, he is a worthy gentleman, 164

Exceedingly well read, and profited

In strange concealments, valiant as a lion

And wondrous affable, and as bountiful

As mines of India. Shall I tell you, cousin? 168

He holds your temper in a high respect,

And curbs himself even of his natural scope

When you do cross his humour, faith, he does

I warrant you, that man is not alive 172

Might so have tempted him as you have done,

Without the taste of danger and reproof

But do not use it oft, let me entreat you

Wor. In faith, my lord, you are too wilfulblame, 176

And since your coming hither have done enough

To put him quite beside his patience

You must needs learn, lord, to amend this fault

Though sometimes it show greatness, courage,
blood,— 180

And that's the dearest grace it renders you,—

Yet oftentimes it doth present harsh rage,

Defect of manners, want of government,

Pride, haughtiness, opinion, and disdain 184

The least of which haunting a nobleman

Loseth men's hearts and leaves behind a stain

Upon the beauty of all parts besides,

Beguiling them of commendation. 188

Hot Well, I am school'd, good manners be your speed!

Here come our wives, and let us take our leave

Re-enter GLENDOWER, with the Ladies

Mort. This is the deadly spute that angers me,

My wife can speak no English, I no Welsh. 192

Glend. My daughter weeps, she will not part
with you

She'll be a soldier too she'll to the wars Mort Good father, tell her that she and my aunt Percy,

Shall follow in your conduct speedily 196

[GLENDOWER speaks to LADY MORTIMER in Welsh, and she answers him in the same]

Glend She's desperate here, a peevish self-will'd harlotry, one that no persuasion can do good upon [She speaks to MORTIMER in Welsh]

Mort I understand thy looks that pretty Welsh 200

Which thou pour'st down from these swelling heavens

I am too perfect in, and, but for shame,
 In such a parley would I answer thee

[She speaks again.]

I understand thy kisses and thou mine, 204

And that's a feeling disputation

But I will never be a truant, love,

Till I have learn'd thy language, for thy tongue

Makes Welsh as sweet as ditties highly penn'd,

Sung by a fair queen in a summer's bower, 209

With ravishing division, to her lute

Glend Nay, if you melt, then will she run mad.

[She speaks again.]

Mort O! I am ignorance itself in this. 212

Glend She bids you

Upon the wanton rushes lay you down

And rest your gentle head upon her lap,

And she will sing the song that pleaseth you,

And on your eye-lids crown the god of sleep, 217

Charming your blood with pleasing heaviness,

Making such difference 'twixt wake and sleep

As is the difference between day and night 220

The hour before the heavenly-harness'd team

Begins his golden progress in the east.

Mort With all my heart I'll sit and hear her sing

By that time will our book, I think, be drawn.

Glend Do so 225

And those musicians that shall play to you

Hang in the air a thousand leagues from hence,

And straight they shall be here sit, and attend. 228

Hot Come, Kate, thou art perfect in lying down come, quick, quick, that I may lay my head in thy lap

Lady P Go, ye giddy goose 232

[GLENDOWER speaks some Welsh words, and music is heard]

Hot Now I perceive the devil understands
 Welsh,

And 'tis no marvel he is so humorous

By'r lady, he's a good musician.

Lady P Then should you be nothing but musical for you are altogether governed by humours Lie still, ye thief, and hear the lady sing in Welsh.

Hot I had rather hear Lady, my brach, howl in Irish 240

Lady P Wouldst thou have thy head broken?

Hot No.

Lady P Then be still

Hot Neither, 'tis a woman's fault. 244

Lady P Now, God! help thee!

Hot To the Welsh lady's bed.

Lady P What's that?

Hot Peace! she sings 248

[A Welsh song sung by LADY MORTIMER.]

Hot Come, Kate, I'll have your song too

Lady P Not mine, in good sooth.

Hot Not yours, 'in good sooth!' Heart!

you swear like a comfit-maker's wife! Not you,

'in good sooth,' and, 'as true as I live,' and,

'as God shall mend me,' and, 'as sure as day'

And giv'st such sarcent surety for thy oaths,

As if thou never walk'dst further than Finsbury 256

Swear me, Kate, like a lady as thou art,

A good mouth-filling oath, and leave 'in sooth,'

And such protest of pepper gingerbread,

To velvet-guards and Sunday-citizens 260

Come, sing

Lady P I will not sing.

Hot 'Tis the next way to turn tailor or be red-breast teacher An the indentures be drawn,

I'll away within these two hours, and so, come in when ye will. [Exit]

Glend Come, come, Lord Mortimer, you are as slow

As hot Lord Percy is on fire to go 268

By this our book is drawn, we will but seal,

And then to horse immediately

Mort With all my heart. [Exeunt]

SCENE II — London A Room in the Palace

Enter KING HENRY, the PRINCE, and Lords.

K Hen Lords, give us leave, the Prince of Wales and I

Must have some private conference but be near

at hand,

For we shall presently have need of you.

[Exeunt Lords.]

I know not whether God will have it so, 4

For some displeasing service I have done,

That, in his secret doom, out of my blood

He'll breed revengement and a scourge for me,

But thou dost in thy passages of life 8

Make me believe that thou art only mark'd

For the hot vengeance and the rod of heaven

To punish my mistreadings Tell me else,

Could such inordinate and low desires, 12

Such poor, such bare, such lewd, such mean attempts,

Such barren pleasures, rude society,

As thou art match'd withal and grafted to,

Accompany the greatness of thy blood 16

And hold their level with thy princely heart?

Prince So please your majesty, I would I could

Quit all offences with as clear excuse

As well as I am doubtless I can purge 20

Myself of many I am charg'd withal

Yet such extenuation let me beg,

As, in reproof of many takes devis'd,

Which oft the ear of greatness needs must hear,

By smiling pick-thanks and base newsmongers,

I may, for some things true, wherein my youth

Hath faulty wander'd and irregular,

Find pardon on my true submission. 28

K Hen. God pardon thee! yet let me wonder, Harry,

At thy affections, which do hold a wing
Quite from the flight of all thy ancestors Thy place in council thou hast rudely lost,
Which by thy younger brother is supplied,
And art almost an alien to the hearts
Of all the court and princes of my blood
The hope and expectation of thy time
Is ruin'd, and the soul of every man Prophetically do forethink thy fall Had I so lavish of my presence been,
So common-hackney'd in the eyes of men,
So stale and cheap to vulgar company,
Opinion, that did help me to the crown,
Had still kept loyal to possession
And left me in reputeless banishment, A fellow of no mark nor likelihood
By being seldom seen, I could not stir, But like a comet I was wonder'd at That men would tell their children, 'This is he' Others would say, 'Where' which is Boling-broke?'

And then I stole all courtesy from heaven,
And dress'd myself in such humility
That I did pluck allegiance from men's hearts, Loud shouts and salutations from their mouths,
Even in the presence of the crowned king Thus did I keep my person fresh and new,
My presence, like a robe pontifical,
Ne'er seen but wonder'd at and so my state,
Seldom but sumptuous, showed like a feast,
And won by rareness such solemnity
The skipping king, he ambled up and down
With shallow jesters and rash bavin wits,
Soon kindled and soon burnt, carded his state,
Mingled his royalty with capering fools,
Had his great name profaned with their scorns,
And gave his countenance, against his name,
To laugh at gibing boys and stand the push
Of every beardless vain comparative,
Grew a companion to the common streets,
Enfeoff'd himself to popularity,
That, being daily swallow'd by men's eyes,
They surfeited with honey and began To loathe the taste of sweetness, whereof a little More than a little is by much too much.

So, when he had occasion to be seen,
He was but as the cuckoo is in June,
Heard, not regarded, seen, but with such eyes
As, sick and blunted with community,
Afford no extraordinary gaze,
Such as is bent on sun-like majesty
When it shines seldom in admiring eyes,
But rather drows'd and hung their eyelids down, Slept in his face, and render'd such aspect
As cloudy men use to their adversaries, Being with his presence glutted, gorg'd, and full

And in that very line, Harry, stand'st thou,
For thou hast lost thy princely privilege
With vile participation not an eye
But is weary of thy common sight,
Save mine, which hath desir'd to see thee more,
Which now doth that I would not have it do,
Make blind itself with foolish tenderness

Prince I shall hereafter, my thrice gracious
lord,

Be more myself 92

K Hen. For all the world,
As thou art to this hour was Richard then
When I from France set foot at Ravenspurgh,
And even as I was then is Percy now 96
Now, by my sceptre and my soul to boot,
He hath more worthy interest to the state
Than thou the shadow of succession,
For of no right, nor colour like to right, 100
He doth fill fields with harness in the realm, Turns head against the lion's armed jaws,
And, being no more in debt to years than thou, Leads ancient lords and reverend bishops on To bloody battles and to bruising arms 105
What never-dying honour hath he got Against renowned Douglas' whose high deeds, Whose hot incursions and great name in arms,
Holds from all soldiers chief majority, 109
And military title capital,
Through all the kingdoms that acknowledge Christ,

Thine hath this Hotspur, Mars in swathing clothes, 112

This infant warrior, in his enterprises
Discomfited great Douglas, ta'en him once, Enlarged him and made a friend of him,
To fill the mouth of deep defiance up 116
And shake the peace and safety of our throne
And what say you to this? Percy, Northumberland,

The Archbishop's Grace of York, Douglas, Mortimer,

Capitulate against us and are up 120
But wherefore do I tell these news to thee?
Why, Harry, do I tell thee of my foes,
Which art my near'st and dearest enemy?
Thou that art like enough, through vassal fear, Base inclination, and the start of spleen, 125
To fight against me under Percy's pay,
To dog his heels, and curtsy at his frowns,
To show how much thou art degenerate 128

Prince Do not think so, you shall not find
it so
And God forgive them, that so much have sway'd

Your majesty's good thoughts away from me!
I will redeem all this on Percy's head, 132
And in the closing of some glorious day
Be bold to tell you that I am your son,
When I will wear a garment all of blood
And stain my favours in a bloody mask, 136 Which, wash'd away, shall scour my shame with
it

And that shall be the day, whene'er it lights,
That this same child of honour and renown,
This gallant Hotspur, this all-praised knight,
And your unthought-of Harry chance to meet.
For every honour sitting on his helm,— 142
Would they were multitudes, and on my head
My shames redoubled!—for the time will come
That I shall make this northern youth exchange
His glorious deeds for my indignities.
Percy is but my factor, good my lord, 147
To engross up glorious deeds on my behalf,

And I will call him to so strict account
That he shall render every glory up,
Yea, even the slightest worship of his time,
Or I will tear the reckoning from his heart 152 Thus, in the name of God, I promise here
The which, if he oe pleas'd I shall perform, I do beseech your majesty may save
The long-grown wounds of my intemperance
If not, the end of life cancels all bands, 157
And I will die a hundred thousand deaths
Ere break the smallest parcel of this vow

K Hen A hundred thousand rebels die in
this 160
Thou shalt have charge and sovereign trust herein

Enter SIR WALTER BLUNT

How now, good Blunt! thy looks are full of speed.

Blunt So hath the business that I come to speak of Lord Mortimer of Scotland hath sent word 164
That Douglas and the English rebels met,
The eleventh of this month at Shrewsbury A mighty and a fearful head they are,—
If promises be kept on every hand,— 168
As ever offer'd foul play in a state

K Hen The Earl of Westmoreland set forth
to-day,
With him my son, Lord John of Lancaster,
For this advertisement is five days old. 172
On Wednesday next, Harry, you shall set forward,

On Thursday we ourselves will march: our meeting
Is Bridgenorth, and Harry, you shall march Through Gloucestershire, by which account, 176
Our business valued, some twelve days hence
Our general forces at Bridgenorth shall meet.
Our hands are full of business let's away,
Advantage feeds him fat while men delay 180

[Exeunt]

went to a bawdy-house not above once in a quarter—of an hour, paid money that I borrowed three or four times, lived well and in good compass, and now I live out of all order, out of all compass. 23

Bard Why, you are so fat, Sir John, that you must needs be out of all compass, out of all reasonable compass, Sir John. 26

Fal Do thou amend thy face, and I'll amend my life thou art our admiral, thou bearest the lanthorn in the poop, but 'tis in the nose of thee thou art the Knight of the Burning Lamp

Bard Why, Sir John, my face does you no
harm 32

Fal No, I'll be sworn, I make as good use of it as many a man doth of a Death's head, or a memento mori I never see thy face but I think upon hell-fire and Dives that lived in purple, for there he is in his robes, burning, burning If thou wert any way given to virtue, I would swear by thy face, my oath should be, 'By this fire, that's God's angel' but thou art altogether given over, and wert indeed, but for the light in thy face, the son of utter darkness When thou rannest up Gadshill in the night to catch my horse, if I did not think thou hadst been an ignis fatuus or a ball of wildfire, there's no purchase in money O! thou art a perpetual triumph, an everlasting bonfire-light Thou hast saved me a thousand marks in links and torches, walking with thee in the night betwixt tavern and tavern but the sack that thou hast drunk me would have bought me lights as good cheap at the dearest chandler's in Europe I have maintained that salamander of yours with fire any time this two-and-thirty years, God reward me for it! 55

Bard 'Sblood, I would my face were in your belly

Fal God-a-mercy! so should I be sure to be heart-burned.

Enter MISTRESS QUICKLY

How now, Dame Partlet the hen! have you inquired yet who picked my pocket? 61

Quick Why, Sir John, what do you think, Sir John? Do you think I keep thieves in my house? I have searched, I have inquired, so has my husband, man by man, boy by boy, servant by servant the title of a hair was never lost in my house before. 67

Fal You lie, hostess Bardolph was shaved and lost many a hair, and I'll be sworn my pocket was picked. Go to, you are a woman, go

Quick Who, I? No, I defy thee God's light!
I was never called so in my own house before. 72

Fal Go to, I know you well enough.

Quick. No, Sir John, you do not know me, Sir John I know you, Sir John you owe me money, Sir John, and now you pick a quarrel to beguile me of it I bought you a dozen of shirts to your back. 78

Fal Dowlas, filthy dowlas I have given them away to bakers' wives, and they have made bolters of them. 81

Quick Now, as I am true woman, holland of SCENE III.—Eastcheap A Room in the Boar's Head Tavern

Enter FALSTAFF and BARDOLPH.

Fal Bardolph, am I not fallen away vilely since this last action? do I not bate? do I not dwindle? Why, my skin hangs about me like an old lady's loose gown, I am withered like an old apple-john. Well, I'll repent, and that suddenly, while I am in some liking, I shall be out of heart shortly, and then I shall have no strength to repent An I have not forgotten what the inside of a church is made of, I am a peppercorn, a brewer's horse the inside of a church! Company, villainous company, hath been the spoil
of me 12

Bard Sir John, you are so fretful, you cannot live long.

Fal. Why, there is it come, sing me a bawdy song, make me merry I was as virtuously given as a gentleman need to be, virtuous enough swore little, dined not above seven times a week, eight shillings an ell You owe money here besides, Sir John, for your diet and by-drinkings, and money lent you, four-and-twenty pound. 85

Fal He had his part of it, let him pay

Quick He! alas! he is poor, he hath nothing Fal How! poor? look upon his face, what call you rich? let them coin his nose, let them coin his cheeks I'll not pay a denier What! will you make a younker of me? shall I not take mine ease in mine inn but I shall have my pocket picked? I have lost a seal-ring of my grandfather's worth forty mark

Quick O Jesu I have heard the prince tell him, I know not how oft, that that ring was copper 97

Fal How! the prince is a Jack, a sneak-cup, 'sblood! an he were here, I would cudgel him like a dog, if he would say so 100

Enter the PRINCE and POINS marching FALSTAFF meets them, playing on his truncheon like a fife

Fal How now, lad! is the wind in that door, i' faith? must we all march?

Bard Yea, two and two, Newgate fashion

Quick My lord, I pray you, hear me 104

Prince What sayest thou, Mistress Quickly? How does thy husband? I love him well, he is an honest man

Quick Good my lord, hear me 108

Fal Prithce, let her alone, and list to me

Prince What sayest thou, Jack?

Fal The other night I fell asleep here behind the arras and had my pocket picked this house is turned bawdy-house they pick pockets 113

Prince What didst thou lose, Jack?

Fal Wilt thou believe me, Hal? three or four bonds of forty pound a-piece, and a seal-ring of my grandfather's 117

Prince A trifle, some eight-penny matter

Quick So I told him, my lord, and I said I heard your Grace say so and, my lord, he speaks most vilely of you, like a foul-mouthed man as he is, and said he would cudgel you 122

Prince What! he did not?

Quick There's neither faith, truth, nor womanhood in me else 125

Fal There's no more faith in thee than in a stewed prune nor no more truth in thee than in a drawn fox, and for womanhood, Maid Marian may be the deputy's wife of the ward to thee Go, you thing, go

Quick Say, what thing? what thing?

Fal What thing! why, a thing to thank God on 133

Quick I am no thing to thank God on, I would thou shouldst know it, I am an honest man's wife and setting thy knighthood aside, thou art a knave to call me so 137

Fal Setting thy womanhood aside, thou art a beast to say otherwise

Quick Say what beast, thou knave thou? 140

Fal What beast! why, an otter

Prince An otter, Sir John! why, an otter?

Fal Why? she's neither fish nor flesh, a man knows not where to have her 144

Quick Thou art an unjust man in saying so thou or any man knows where to have me, thou knave thou!

Prince Thou sayest true, hostess, and he slanders thee most grossly 149

Quick So he doth you, my lord, and said this other day you ought him a thousand pound.

Prince Sirrah! do I owe you a thousand pound? 153

Fal A thousand pound, Hal! a million thy love is worth a million, thou owest me thy love

Quick Nay, my lord, he called you Jack, and said he would cudgel you 157

Fal Did I, Bardoiph?

Bard Indeed, Sir John, you said so

Fal Yea, if he said my ring was copper 160

Prince I say 'tis copper darest thou be as good as thy word now?

Fal Why, Hal, thou knowest, as thou art but man, I dare, but as thou art prince, I fear thee as I fear the roaring of the lion's whelp 165

Prince And why not as the lion?

Fal The king himself is to be feared as the lion dost thou think I'll fear thee as I fear thy father? nay, an I do, I pray God my girdle break! 170

Prince O! if it should, how would thy guts fall about thy knees But, sirrah, there's no room for faith, truth, or honesty in this bosom of thine, it is all filled up with guts and midriff Charge an honest woman with picking thy pocket! Why, thou whoreson, impudent, emooosed rascal, if there were any thing in thy pocket but tavern reckonings, memorandums of bawdy-houses, and one poor pennyworth of sugar-candy to make thee long-winded, if thy pocket were enriched with any other injuries but these, I am a villain And yet you will stand to it, you will not pocket up wrong Art thou not ashamed? 183

Fal Dost thou hear, Hal? thou knowest in the state of innocency Adam fell, and what should poor Jack Falstaff do in the days of villany? Thou seest I have more flesh than another man, and therefore more frailty You confess then, you picked my pocket? 189

Prince It appears so by the story

Fal Hostess I forgive thee Go make ready breakfast, lo thy husband, look to thy servants, cherish thy guests thou shalt find me tractable to any honest reason thou seest I am pacified Still! Nay prithce, be gone [Exit MISTRESS QUICKLY] Now, Hal, to the news at court for the robbery, lad, how is that answered? 197

Prince O! my sweet beef, I must still be good angel to thee: the money is paid back again

Fal O! I do not like that paying back, 'tis a double labour 201

Prince I am good friends with my father and may do anything

Fal Rob me the exchequer the first thing thou dost, and do it with unwashed hands too

Bard Do, my lord

Prince I have procured thee, Jack, a charge of foot 208

Fal I would it had been of horse Where shall I find one that can steal well? O! for a fine thief, of the age of two-and-twenty, or thereabouts, I am heinously unprovided. Well, God be thanked for these rebels, they offend none but the virtuous I laud them, I praise them.

Prince Bardolph!

Bard My lord?

Prince Go bear this letter to Lord John of Lancaster,

To my brother John, this to my Lord of Westmoreland

Go, Poms, to horse, to horse! for thou and I Have thirty miles to ride ere dinner-time 220

Jack, meet me to-morrow in the Temple-hall

At two o'clock in the afternoon

There shalt thou know thy charge, and there receive

Money and order for their furniture 224

The land is burning, Percy stands on high,

And either we or they must lower lie

[Exeunt the PRINCE, POMS, and BARDOLPH.]

Fal Rare words! brave world! Hostess, my breakfast, come!

O! I could wish this tavern were my drum 228

[Exit]

ACT IV

SCENE I.—The Rebel Camp near Shrewsbury

Enter HOTSPUR, WORCESTER, and DOUGLAS

Hot Well said, my noble Scot if speaking truth

In this fine age were not thought flattery,

Such attribution should the Douglas have,

As not a soldier of this season's stamp 4

Should go so general current through the world.

By God, I cannot flatter, do defy

The tongues of soothers, but a braver place

In my heart's love hath no man than yourself 8

Nay, task me to my word, approve me, lord.

Doug Thou art the king of honour.

No man so potent breathes upon the ground

But I will beard him.

Hot Do so, and 'tis well. 12

Enter a Messenger, with letters

What letters hast thou there? [To DOUGLAS.]

I can but thank you.

Mess These letters come from your father

Hot Letters from him! why comes he not himself?

Mess He cannot come, my lord: he's grievous

sick. 16

Hot 'Zounds! how has he the leisure to be

sick

In such a justling time? Who leads his power?

Under whose government come they along?

Mess His letters bear his mind, not I, my

lord. 20

Wor I prithee, tell me, doth he keep his bed?

Mess He did, my lord, four days ere I set

forth,

And at the time of my departure thence

He was much fear'd by his physicians. 24

Wor I would the state of time had first been whole

Ere he by sickness had been visited

His health was never better worth than now

Hot Sick now! droop now! this sickness doth infect 28

The very life-blood of our enterprise,

'Tis catching hither, even to our camp

He writes me here, that inward sickness—

And that his friends by deputation could not 32

So soon be drawn, nor did he think it meet

To lay so dangerous and dear a trust

On any soul remov'd but on his own.

Yet doth he give us bold advertisement, 36

That with our small conjunction we should on,

To see how fortune is dispos'd to us,

For, as he writes, there is no quailing now,

Because the king is certainly possess'd 40

Of all our purposes. What say you to it?

Wor Your father's sickness is a main to us.

Hot A perilous gash, a very limb lopp'd off

And yet, in faith, 'tis not, his present want 44

Seems more than we shall find it. Were it good

To set the exact wealth of all our states

All at one cast? to set so rich a main

On the nice hazard of one doubtful hour? 48

It were not good, for therein should we read

The very bottom and the soul of hope,

The very list, the very utmost bound

Of all our fortunes

Doug Faith, and so we should, 52

Where now remains a sweet reversion

We may boldly spend upon the hope of what

Is to come in

A comfort of retirement lives in this. 56

Hot A rendezvous, a home to fly unto,

If that the devil and mischance look big

Upon the maidenhead of our affairs

Wor But yet, I would your father had been

here 60

The quality and hair of our attempt

Brooks no division. It will be thought

By some, that know not why he is away,

That wisdom, loyalty, and mere dislike 64

Of our proceedings, kept the earl from hence.

And think how such an apprehension

May turn the tide of fearful faction

And breed a kind of question in our cause, 68

For well you know we of the offering side

Must keep aloof from strict arbitrement,

And stop all sight-holes, every loop from whence

The eye of reason may pry in upon us 72

This absence of your father's draws a curtain,

That shows the ignorant a kind of fear

Before not dreamt of Hot You strain too far.

I rather of his absence make this use: 76

It lends a lustre and more great opinion,

A larger dare to our great enterprise,

Than if the earl were here, for men must think, 80

If we without his help, can make a head

To push against the kingdom, with his help

We shall o'erturn it topsy-turvy down.

Yet all goes well, yet all our joints are whole.

Doug As heart can think there is not such a word 84

Spoke of in Scotland as this term of fear.

Enter SIR RICHARD VERNON

Hot My cousin Vernon! welcome, by my soul

Ver Pray God my news be worth a welcome, lord

The Earl of Westmoreland, seven thousand strong,

Is marching hitherwards, with him Prince John Hot No harm what more?

Ver And further, I have learn'd, the king himself in person is set forth,

Or hitherwards intended speedily, 92

With strong and mighty preparation

Hot He shall be welcome too Where is his son,

The numble-footed madcap Prince of Wales,

And his comrades, that daff'd the world aside, 96

And bid it pass?

Ver All furnish'd, all in arms, All plum'd like estridges that wing the wind,

Bated like eagles having lately bath'd, Glittering in golden coats, like images, 100

As full of spirit as the month of May, And gorgeous as the sun at midsummer, Wanton as youthful goats, wild as young bulls. I saw young Harry, with his beaver on, 104

His cushes on his thighs, gallantly arm'd, Rise from the ground like feather'd Mercury,

And vaulted with such ease into his seat, As if an angel dropp'd down from the clouds,

To turn and wind a fiery Pegasus 109

And witch the world with noble horsemanship

Hot No more, no more worse than the sun in March

This praise doth nourish agues Let them come They come like sacrifices in their trim, 113

And to the fire-ey'd maid of smoky war All hot and bleeding will we offer them

The mailed Mars shall on his altar sit Up to the ears in blood I am on fire 116

To hear this rich reprisal is so nigh And yet not ours Come, let me taste my horse,

Who is to bear me like a thunderbolt Against the bosom of the Prince of Wales

Harry to Harry shall, hot horse to horse, Meet and ne'er part till one drop down a corse

O! that Glendower were come

Ver There is more news 124

I learn'd in Worcester, as I rode along, He cannot draw his power these fourteen days.

Doug That's the worst tidings that I hear of yet

Wor Ay, by my faith, that bears a frosty sound 128

Hot What may the king's whole battle reach unto?

Ver To thirty thousand.

Hot Forty let it be My father and Glendower being both away,

The powers of us may serve so great a day 132

Come, let us take a muster speedily

Doomsday is near, die all, die merrily

Doug Talk not of dying I am out of fear Of death or death's hand for this one half year

[Exeunt]

SCENE II — A public Road near Coventry

Enter FALSTAFF and BARDOLPH

Fal Bardolph, get thee before to Coventry, fill me a bottle of sack our soldiers shall march through we'll to Sutton-Co'fil' to-night

Bard Will you give me money, captain? 4

Fal Lay out, lay out

Bard This bottle makes an angel

Fal An if it do, take it for thy labour, and if it make twenty, take them all, I'll answer the coinage

Did my Lieutenant Peto meet me at the town's end 10

Bard I will, captain farewell [Exit]

Fal If I be not ashamed of my soldiers, I am a soused gurnet. I have misused the king's press damnably

I have got, in exchange of a hundred and fifty soldiers, three hundred and odd pounds

I press me none but good householders, yeomen's sons, inquire me out contracted bachelors, such as had been asked twice on the banns, such a commodity of warm slaves, as had as lief hear the devil as a drum, such as fear the report of a caliver worse than a struck fowl or a hurt wild-duck

I pressed me none but such toasts-and-butter, with hearts in their bellies no bigger than pins' heads, and they have bought out their services, and now my whole charge consists of ancients, corporals, lieutenants, gentlemen of companies, slaves as ragged as Lazarus in the painted cloth, where the glutton's dogs licked his sores, and such as indeed were never soldiers, but discarded unjust serving-men, younger sons to younger brothers, revolted tapsters and ostlers trade fallen, the cankers of a calm world and a longpeace, ten times more dishonourable ragged than an old faced ancient and such have I, to fill up the rooms of them that have bought out their services, that you would think that I had a hundred and fifty tattered prodigals, lately come from swine-keeping, from eating draff and husks

A mad fellow met me on the way and told me I had unloaded all the gibbets and pressed the dead bodies

No eye hath seen such scarecrows I'll not march through Coventry with them, that's flat nay, and the villains march wide betwixt the legs, as if they had gyves on, for, indeed I had the most of them out of prison

There's but a shirt and a half in all my company, and the half shirt is two napkins tacked together and thrown over the shoulders like a herald's coat without sleeves, and the shirt, to say the truth, stolen from my host at Saint Alban's, or thered-nose inn-keeper of Daventry

But that's all one, they'll find linen enough on every hedge. 53

Enter the PRINCE and WESTMORELAND

Prince How now, blown Jack! how now, quilt!

Fal What, Hal! How now, mad wag! what a devil dost thou in Warwickshire? My good Lord of Westmoreland, I cry you mercy I thought your honour had already been at Shrewsbury

West Faith, Sir John, 'tis more than time that I were there, and you too, but my powers are there already The king, I can tell you, looks for us all we must away all night. 63

Fal Tut, never fear me I am as vigilant as a cat to steal cream

Prince I think to steal cream indeed, for thy theft hath already made thee butter But tell me, Jack, whose fellows are these that come after?

Fal Mine, Hal, mine 70

Prince I did never see such pitiful rascals

Fal Tut, tut, good enough to toss, food for powder, food for powder, they'll fill a pit as well as better tush, man, mortal men, mortal men.

West Ay, but, Sir John, methinks they are exceeding poor and bare, too beggarly 76

Fal Faith, for their poverty, I know not where they had that, and for their bareness, I am sure they never learned that of me 79

Prince No, I'll be sworn, unless you call three fingers on the ribs bare But sirrah, make haste Percy is already in the field

Fal What, is the king encamped?

West He is, Sir John I fear we shall stay too long 84

Fal Well,

To the latter end of a fray and the beginning of a feast

Fits a dull fighter and a keen guest [Exeunt

SCENE III—The Rebel Camp near Shrewsbury

Enter HOTSPUR WORCESTER, DOUGLAS, and VERNON

Hot We'll fight with him to-night

Wor It may not be

Doug You give him then advantage

Ver Not a whit

Hot Why say you so? looks he not for supply?

Ver So do we Hot His is certain, ours is doubtful 4

Wor Good cousin, be advis'd stir not to-night

Ver Do not, my lord

Doug You do not counsel well You speak it out of fear and cold heart

Ver Domesday, Douglas by my life,— And I dare well maintain it with my life,— 9

If well-respected honour bid me on, I hold as little counsel with weak fear

As you, my lord, or any Scot that this day lives Let it be seen to-morrow in the battle 13

Which of us fears.

Doug Yea, or to-night.

Ver Content.

Hot To-night, say I.

Ver Come, come, it may not be. I wonder much, 16

Being men of such great leading as you are, That you foresee not what impediments

Drag back our expedition certain horse

Of my cousin Vernon's are not yet come up 20

Your uncle Worcester's horse came but to-day,

And now their pride and mettle is asleep,

Their courage with hard labour tame and dull,

That not a horse is half the half of himself. 24

Hot So are the horses of the enemy

In general, journey-bated and brought low

The better part of ours are full of rest.

Wor The number of the king exceeds hours

For God's sake, cousin, stay till all come in, 29

[The trumpet sounds a parley

Enter SIR WALTER BLUNT

Blunt I come with gracious offers from the king,

If you vouchsafe me hearing and respect

Hot Welcome, Sir Walter Blunt, and would to God 32

You were of our determination!

Some of us love you well, and even those some Envy your great deservings and good name,

Because you are not of our quality, 36

But stand against us like an enemy

Blunt And God defend but still I should stand so,

So long as out of limit and true rule

You stand against appointed majesty 40

But, to my charge The king hath sent to know

The nature of your griefs, and whereupon

You conjure from the breast of civil peace

Such bold hostility, teaching his dutiful land 44

Audacious cruelty If that the king

Have any way your good deserts forgot,—

Which he confesseth to be manifold,—

He bids you name your griefs, and with all

speed. 48

You shall have your desires with interest,

And pardon absolute for yourself and these

Herein misled by your suggestion.

Hot The king is kind, and well we know the 52

king

Knows at what time to promise, when to pay

My father and my uncle and myself

Did give him that same royalty he wears,

And when he was not six-and-twenty strong, 56

Sick in the world's regard, wretched and low,

A poor unmindful outlaw sneaking home,

My father gave him welcome to the shore,

And when he heard him swear and vow to God

He came but to be Duke of Lancaster, 61

To sue his livery and beg his peace,

With tears of innocency and terms of zeal,

My father, in kind heart and pity mov'd, 64

Swore him assistance and perform'd it too

Now when the lords and barons of the realm

Perceiv'd Northumberland did lean to him,

The more and less came in with cap and knee,

Met him in boroughs, cities, villages, 69

Attended him on bridges, stood in lanes,

Laid gifts before him, proffer'd him their oaths,

Gave him their heirs as pages, follow'd him 72

Even at the heels in golden multitudes.

He presently, as greatness knows itself,

Steps me a little higher than his vow

Made to my father, while his blood was poor, 76

Upon the naked shore at Ravenspurn,

And now, forsooth, takes on him to reform

Some certain edicts and some strait decrees

That he too heavy on the commonwealth, 80

Cries out upon abuses, seems to weep

Over his country's wrongs, and by this face,
This seeming brow of justice, did he win
The hearts of all that he did angle for,
Proceeded further, cut me off the heads
Of all the favourites that the absent king
In deputation left behind him here,
When he was personal in the Irish war

Blunt Tut, I came not to hear this Hot Then to the point
In short time after, he depos'd the king, Soon after that, depriv'd him of his life
And, in the neck of that, task'd the whole state,
To make that worse, suffer'd his kinsman
March—

Who is, if every owner were well plac'd,
Indeed his king—to be engag'd in Wales,
There without ransom to be forfeited,
Disgrac'd me in my happy victories,
Sought to entrap me by intelligence,
Rated my uncle from the council-board,
In rage dismiss'd my father from the court, 100
Broke oath on oath, committed wrong on wrong,
And in conclusion drove us to seek out
This head of safety and withal to pry
Into his title, the which we find 104 Too indirect for long continuance

Blunt Shall I return this answer to the king?
Hot Not so, Sir Walter well withdraw awhile

Go to the king, and let there be impawn'd 108
Some surety for a safe return again,
And in the morning early shall my uncle
Bring him our purposes, and so farewell Blunt I would you would accept of grace and

love 112

Hot And may be so we shall Blunt Pray God, you do!

[Exeunt]

SCENE IV—York A Room in the ARCH- BISHOP'S Palace

Enter the ARCHBISHOP OF YORK and SIR MICHAEL

Arch. Hie, good Sir Michael, bear this sealed brief

With winged haste to the lord marshal,
This to my cousin Scroop, and all the rest
To whom they are directed If you knew 4 How much they do import, you would make haste

Sir M My good lord,
I guess their tenour

Arch Like enough you do To-morrow, good Sir Michael, is a day 8
Wherein the fortune of ten thousand men Must bide the touch, for, sir, at Shrewsbury,
As I am truly given to understand, 11
The king with mighty and quick-raised power Meets with Lord Harry and, I fear, Sir Michael,
What with the sickness of Northumberland,— Whose power was in the first proportion,— And what with Owen Glendower's absence thence, 16
Who with them was a rated snaw too,
And comes not in, o'er-rul'd by prophecies,—

I fear the power of Percy is too weak
To wage an instant trial with the king 20 Sir M Why, my good lord, you need not fear

There is the Douglas and Lord Mortimer

Arch No, Mortimer is not there Sir M But there is Mordake, Vernon, Lord
Harry Percy, 24

And there's my Lord of Worcester, and a head
Of gallant warriors, noble gentlemen Arch And so there is, but yet the king hath drawn

The special head of all the land together 28
The Prince of Wales, Lord John of Lancaster,
The noble Westmoreland, and war-like Blunt,
And many more courials and dear men

Of estimation and command in arms 32 Sir M Doubt not, my lord, they shall be well oppos'd

Arch I hope no less, yet needful 'tis to fear,
And, to prevent the worse, Sir Michael, speed
For if Lord Percy thrive not, ere the king 36 Dismiss his power, he means to visit us,
For he hath heard of our confederacy,
And 'tis but wisdom to make strong against
him

Therefore make haste I must go write again 40
To other friends, and so farewell, Sir Michael [Exeunt]

ACT V

SCENE I—The KING'S Camp near Shrewsbury

Enter KING HENRY, the PRINCE, JOHN OF LAN-CASTER, SIR WALTER BLUNT, and SIR JOHN FALSTAFF

K Hen How bloodily the sun begins to peer Above yon busky hill! the day looks pale
At his distemperature

Prince The southern wind
Doth play the trumpet to his purposes, 4
And by his hollow whistling in the leaves Foretells a tempest and a blustering day

K Hen Then with the losers let it sympathize,
For nothing can seem foul to those that win 8 [Trumpet sounds]

Enter WORCESTER and VERNON

How now, my Lord of Worcester! 'tis not well
That you and I should meet upon such terms
As now we meet You have deceiv'd our trust,
And made us doff our easy robes of peace, 12
To crush our old limbs in ungentle steel
This is not well, my lord this is not well
What say you to it? will you again unknit 16
This churlish knot of all-abhorred war,
And move in that obedient orb again
Where you did give a fair and natural light,
And be no more an exhal'd meteor,
A prodigy of fear and a portent 20
Of broached mischief to the unborn times?

Wor Hear me, my hege
For mine own part, I could be well content

To entertain the lag-end of my life
With quiet hours, for I do protest
I have not sought the day of this dislike.

K Hen You have not sought it! how comes it then?

Fal Rebellion lay in his way, and he found it.
Prince Peace, chewet, peace!

Wor It pleas'd your majesty to turn your looks

Of favour from myself and all our house,
And yet I must remember you, my lord,
We were the first and dearest of your friends
For you my staff of office did I break
In Richard's time, and posted day and night
To meet you on the way, and kiss your hand,
When yet you were in place and in account Nothing so strong and fortunate as I.

It was myself, my brother, and his son,
That brought you home and boldly did outdare
The dangers of the time You swore to us,
And you did swear that oath at Doncaster,
That you did nothing purpose 'gainst the state,
Nor claim no further than your new-fall'n right,
The seat of Gaunt, dukedom of Lancaster

To thus we swore our aid but, in short space
It rain'd down fortune showering on your head,
And such a flood of greatness fell on you,

What with our help, what with the absent king,
What with the injuries of a wanton time,
The seeming sufferances that you had borne,
And the contrarious winds that held the king
So long in his unlucky Irish wars,

That all in England did repute him dead
And from this swarm of fair advantages
You took occasion to be quickly woo'd
To gripe the general sway into your hand, Forgot your oath to us at Doncaster,
And being fed by us you us'd us so

As that ungentle gull, the cuckoo's bird
Useth the sparrow did oppress our nest,
Grew by our feeding to so great a bulk That even our love durst not come near your sight

For fear of swallowing, but with numble wing
We were enforc'd, for safety's sake, to fly
Out of your sight and raise this present head, Whereby we stand opposed by such means
As you yourself have forg'd against yourself
By unkind usage, dangerous countenance,
And violation of all faith and troth
Sworn to us in your younger enterprise

K Hen These things indeed, you have articulate,

Proclaim'd at market-crosses, read in churches,
To face the garment of rebellion
With some fine colour that may please the eye
Of fickle changelings and poor discontents,
Which gape and rub the elbow at the news
Of hurlyburly innovation

And never yet did insurrection want Such water-colours to impaint his cause, Nor moody beggars, starving for a time
Of pell-mell havoc and confusion.

Prince In both our armies there is many a soul

Shall pay full dearly for this encounter,

24 If once they join in trial Tell your nephew, The Prince of Wales doth join with all the world

In praise of Henry Percy by his hopes,
This present enterprise set off his head,

I do not think a braver gentleman,
More active-valiant or more valiant-young,

More daring or more bold, is now alive
To grace this latter age with noble deeds

For my part, I may speak it to my shame,
I have a truant been to chivalry,

And so I hear he doth account me too,
Yet thus before my father's majesty—

I am content that he shall take the odds
Of his great name and estimation,

And will, to save the blood on either side,
Try fortune with him in a single fight

K Hen And, Prince of Wales, so dare we venture thee,

Albeit considerations infinite
Do make against it No, good Worcester, no,

We love our people well, even those we love
That are misled upon your cousin's part,

And, will they take the offer of our grace,
Both he and they and you, yea, every man

Shall be my friend again, and I'll be his So tell your cousin, and bring me word

What he will do, but if he will not yield, Rebuke and dread correction wait on us,

And they shall do their office So, be gone
We will not now be troubled with reply

We offer fair, take it advicedly [Exeunt WORCESTER and VERNON]

Prince It will not be accepted on my life
The Douglas and the Hotspur both together

Are confident against the world in arms K Hen Hence, therefore, every leader to his charge,

For, on their answer, will we set on them,
And God befriend us, as our cause is just!

[Exeunt KING HENRY, BLUNT, and JOHN OF LANCASTER]

Fal Hal, if thou see me down in the battle, and bestride me, so, 'tis a point of friendship

Prince Nothing but a colossus can do thee that friendship Say thy prayers, and farewell.

Fal I would it were bed-time, Hal, and all
well.

Prince Why, thou owest God a death [Exit].
Fal 'Tis not due yet I would be loath to pay him before his day What need I be so forward with him that calls not on me? Well,

'tis no matter, honour pricks me on. Yea, but how if honour prick me off when I come on?

how then? Can honour set to a leg? No Or an arm? No. Or take away the grief of a wound?

No Honour hath no skill in surgery then? No
What is honour? a word. What is that word, honour? Arr A trim reckoning! Who hath it?

he that died o' Wednesday Doth he feel it?

No. Doth he hear it? No. It is insensible then? Yea, to the dead. But will it not live with the living? No. Why? Detraction will not suffer it. Therefore I'll none of it honour is a mere scutcheon, and so ends my catechism.

[Exit].

SCENE II—The Rebel Camp near ShrewsburyEnter WORCESTER and VERNON

Wor O, no! my nephew must not know, Sir Richard,
 The liberal kind offer of the king
Ver 'Twere best he did Wor Then are we all undone
 It is not possible it cannot be,
 The king should keep his word in loving us,
 He will suspect us still, and find a time
 To punish this offence in other faults Suspicion all our lives shall be stuck full of eyes,
 For treason is but trusted like the fox,
 Who, ne'er so tame, so cherish'd, and lock'd up,
 Will have a wild trick of his ancestors
 Look how we can, or sad or merrily, Interpretation will misquote our looks,
 And we shall feed like oxen at a stall,
 The better cherish'd, still the nearer death
 My nephew's trespass may be well forgot,
 It hath the excuse of youth and heat of blood,
 And an adopted name of privilege,
 A hare-brain'd Hotspur, govern'd by a spleen
 All his offences live upon my head
 And on his father's we did train him on,
 And, his corruption being ta'en from us,
 We, as the spring of all, shall pay for all Therefore, good cousin, let not Harry know
 In any case the offer of the king Ver Deliver what you will, I'll say 'tis so Here comes your cousin

Enter HOTSPUR and DOUGLAS, Officers and Soldiers behind

Hot My uncle is return'd deliver up My Lord of Westmoreland Uncle, what news?
Wor The king will bid you battle presently Doug Defy him by the Lord of Westmoreland Hot Lord Douglas, go you and tell him so Doug Marry, and shall, and very willingly
[Exit]
Wor There is no seeming mercy in the king Hot Did you beg any? God forbid!
Wor I told him gently of our grievances,
 Of his oath-breaking, which he mended thus,
 By now forswearing that he is forsworn
 He calls us rebels, traitors, and will scourge
 With haughty arms this hateful name in us

Re-enter DOUGLAS.

Doug Arm, gentlemen! to arms! for I have thrown
 A brave defiance in King Henry's teeth,
 And Westmoreland, that was engag'd, did bear it,
 Which cannot choose but bring him quickly on.
Wor The Prince of Wales stepp'd forth before the king,
 And, nephew, challeng'd you to single fight.
Hot O! would the quarrel lay upon our heads,
 And that no man might draw short breath today
 But I and Harry Monmouth Tell me, tell me, How show'd his tasking? seem'd it in contempt?
Ver No, by my soul, I never in my life
 Did hear a challenge urg'd more modestly,

Unless a brother dare
 To gentle exercise and proof of arms
 He gave you all the duties of a man,
 I'mm'd up your praises with a princely tongue,
 Spoke your deservings like a chronicle,
 Making you ever better than his praise,
 By still dispraising praise valu'd with you,
 And, which became him like a prince indeed,
 He made a blushing cital of himself,
 And chid his truant youth with such a grace
 As if he master'd there a double spirit
 Of teaching and of learning instantly
 There did he pause But let me tell the world,
 If he outlive the envy of this day,
 England did never owe so sweet a hope,
 So much misconstru'd in his wantonness Hot Cousin, I think thou art enamour'd
 On his follies never did I hear
 Of any prince so wild a libertine
 But be he as he will, yet once ere night
 I will embrace him with a soldier's arm,
 That he shall shrink under my courtesy Arm, arm, with speed! And, fellows, soldiers, friends,
 Better consider what you have to do,
 Than I, that have not well the gift of tongue,
 Can lift your blood up with persuasion

Enter a Messenger

Mess My lord, here are letters for you Hot I cannot read them now
 O gentlemen! the time of life is short,
 To spend that shortness basely were too long,
 If life did ride upon a dial's point,
 Still ending, at the arrival of an hour
 An if we live, we live to tread on kings,
 If die, brave death, when princes die with us!
 Now, for our consciences, the arms are fair,
 When the intent of bearing them is just

Enter another Messenger

Mess My lord, prepare, the king comes on apace
Hot I thank him that he cuts me from my tale, For I profess not talking Only this,— Let each man do his best and here draw I
 A sword, whose temper I intend to stain
 With the best blood that I can meet withal
 In the adventure of this perilous day Now, Esperance! Percy! and set on Sound all the lofty instruments of war,
 And by that music let us all embrace,
 For, heaven to earth, some of us never shall
 A second time do such a courtesy [The trumpets sound They embrace, and exeunt]

SCENE III.—Between the Camps.

Excursions and Parties fighting Alarum to the Battle Then enter DOUGLAS and SIR WALTER BLUNT, meeting

Blunt What is thy name, that in the battle
 thus Thou crossest me? what honour dost thou seek Upon my head?

Doug Know then, my name is Douglas,
And I do haunt thee in the battle thus

Because some tell me that thou art a king

Blunt They tell thee true

Doug The Lord of Stafford dear to-day hath bought

Thy likeness for, instead of thee King Harry, 8

Thus sword hath ended him so shall it thee, Unless thou yield thee as my prisoner

Blunt I was not born a yelder, thou proud Scot,

And thou shalt find a king that will revenge 12
Lord Stafford's death

[They fight, and BLUNT is slain]

Enter HOTSPUR

Hot O, Douglas! hadst thou fought at Holmedon thus,

I never had triumph'd upon a Scot.

Doug All's done, all's won here breathless lies the king 16

Hot Where?

Doug Here

Hot This, Douglas! no, I know this face full
well,

A gallant knight he was, his name was Blunt, Sensibly furnish'd like the king himself 21

Doug A fool go with thy soul, whither it goes!

A borrow'd title hast thou bought too dear

Why didst thou tell me that thou wert a
king? 24

Hot The king hath many marching in his coats

Doug Now, by my sword, I will kill all his coats,

I'll murder all his wardrobe, piece by piece,
Until I meet the king

Hot Up, and away! 28

Our soldiers stand full fairly for the day
[Exeunt]

Alarums Enter FALSTAFF

Fal Though I could 'scape shot-free at London, I fear the shot here, here's no scoring but upon the pate. Soft! who art thou? Sir Walter Blunt there's honour for you! here's no vanity! I am as hot as molten lead, and as heavy too God keep lead out of me! I need no more weight than mine own bowels I have led my ragamuffins where they are peppered there's not three of my hundred and fifty left alive, and they are for the town's end, to beg during life But who comes here? 40

Enter the PRINCE

Prince What! stand'st thou idle here? lend me thy sword

Many a nobleman lies stark and stiff
Under the hoofs of vaunting enemies,

Whose deaths are unreveng'd prithee, lend
me thy sword 44

Fal O Hal! I prithee, give me leave to breathe awhile. Turk Gregory never did such deeds in arms as I have done this day I have paid Percy, I have made him sure. 48

Prince He is, indeed, and living to kill thee
I prithee, lend me thy sword.

Fal Nay, before God, Hal, if Percy be alive, thou gett'st not my sword, but take my pistol,

if thou wilt 53

Prince Give it me What! is it in the case?

Fal Ay, Hal, 'tis hot, 'tis hot there's that will sack a city 56

[The PRINCE draws out a bottle of sack]

Prince What! is't a time to jest and dally now? [Throws it at him, and exits]

Fal Well, if Percy be alive, I'll pierce him.

If he do come in my way, so if he do not, if I come in his, willingly, let him make a carbado of me I like not such grinning honour as Sir Walter hath give me life, which if I can save, so if not, honour comes unlooked for, and there's an end [Exit]

SCENE IV — Another Part of the Field

Alarums Excursions Enter KING HENRY, the PRINCE, JOHN OF LANCASTER, and WESTMORE-

LAND

K Hen I prithee,
Harry, withdraw thyself, thou bleed'st too

much

Lord John of Lancaster, go you with him

Lanc Not I, my lord unless I did bleed too 4

Prince I beseech your majesty, make up, Lest your retirement do amaze your friends

K Hen I will do so

My Lord of Westmoreland, lead him to his tent 8

West Come, my lord, I'll lead you to your tent

Prince Lead me, my lord? I do not need your help

And God forbid a shallow scratch should drive
The Prince of Wales from such a field as this, 12

Where stain'd nobility lies trodden on,
And rebels' arms triumph in massacres!

Lanc We breathe too long come, cousin
Westmoreland,

Our duty this way lies for God's sake, come 16 [Exeunt JOHN OF LANCASTER and

WESTMORELAND

Prince By God, thou hast deceiv'd me, Lancaster,

I did not think thee lord of such a spirit

Before, I lov'd thee as a brother, John,

But now, I do respect thee as my soul 20

K Hen I saw him hold Lord Percy at the point

With lustier maintenance than I did look for
Of such an ungrown warrior

Prince O! this boy
Lends mettle to us all. [Exit]

Alarums Enter DOUGLAS.

Doug Another king! they grow like Hydra's heads 25

I am the Douglas, fatal to all those That wear those colours on them what art
thou,

That counterfeit'st the person of a king? 28

K Hen The long himself, who, Douglas, grieves at heart
So many of his shadows thou hast met
And not the very king I have two boys Seek Percy and thyself about the field
But, seeing thou fall'st on me so luckily,
I will assay thee, so defend thyself

Doug I fear thou art another counterfeit,
And yet, in faith, thou bear'st thee like a king But mine I am sure thou art, whose'er thou be,
And thus I win thee

[They fight KING HENRY being in danger, re-enter the PRINCE.

Prince Hold up thy head, vile Scot, or thou art like
Never to hold it up again! the spirits Of valiant Shurley, Stafford, Blunt, are in my arms

It is the Prince of Wales that threatens thee,
Who never promiseth but he means to pay

[They fight DOUGLAS flies
Cheerly, my lord how fares your Grace?
Sir Nicholas Gawsey hath for succour sent,
And so hath Clifton I'll to Clifton straight

K Hen Stay, and breathe awhile.
Thou hast redeem'd thy lost opinion,
And show'd thou mak'st some tender of my
life,

In this fair rescue thou hast brought to me.
Prince O God! they did me too much injury

That ever said I hearken'd for your death.
If it were so, I might have let alone
The insulting hand of Douglas over you, Which would have been as speedy in your end

As all the poisonous potions in the world, And sav'd the treacherous labour of your son

K Hen. Make up to Clifton I'll to Sir
Nicholas Gawsey [Exit

Enter HOTSPUR.

Hot If I mistake not, thou art Harry Monmouth.

Prince Thou speak'st as if I would deny my name.

Hot My name is Harry Percy Prince Why, then, I see

A very valiant rebel of that name
I am the Prince of Wales, and think not, Percy,
To share with me in glory any more

Two stars keep not their motion in one sphere, Nor can one England brook a double reign,
Of Harry Percy and the Prince of Wales

Hot Nor shall it, Harry, for the hour is come

To end the one of us, and would to God
Thy name in arms were now as great as mine!

Prince I'll make it greater ere I part from
thee,

And all the budding honours on thy crest
I'll crop, to make a garland for my head

Hot I can no longer brook thy vanities [They fight.

Enter FALSTAFF

Fal Well said, Hal! to it, Hal! Nay, you shall find no boy's play here, I can tell you.

Re-enter DOUGLAS, he fights with FALSTAFF, who falls down as if he were dead, and exit DOUGLAS HOTSPUR is wounded, and falls

Hot O, Harry! thou hast robb'd me of my youth.

I better brook the loss of brittle life
Than those proud titles thou hast won of me, They wound my thoughts worse than thy sword my flesh

But thought's the slave of life, and life time's fool,

And time, that takes survey of all the world,
Must have a stop O! I could prophesy,
But that the earthy and cold hand of death Lies on my tongue No, Percy, thou art dust,
And food for—

Prince For worms, brave Percy Fare thee well, great heart!

All-weav'd ambition, how much art thou shrunk!

When that this body did contain a spirit,
A kingdom for it was too small a bound,

But now, two paces of the vilest earth Is room enough this earth, that bears thee
dead,

Bears not alive so stout a gentleman.
If thou wert sensible of courtesy,
I should not make so dear a show of zeal
But let my favours hide thy mangled face,

And, even in thy behalf, I'll thank myself
For doing these fair rites of tenderness
Adieu, and take thy praise with thee to heaven!

Thy ignomy sleep with thee in the grave,
But not remember'd in thy epitaph!

[He spies FALSTAFF on the ground
What! old acquaintance! could not all this flesh

Keep in a little life? Poor Jack, farewell!
I could have better spar'd a better man

O! I should have a heavy miss of thee
If I were much in love with vanity
Death hath not struck so fat a deer to-day, Though many dearer, in this bloody fray

Embowl'd will I see thee by and by Till then in blood by noble Percy lie

[Exit
Fal [Rising] Embowelled! if thou embowel me to-day, I'll give you leave to powder me and eat me too, to-morrow 'Sblood! 'twas time to counterfeit, or that hot termagant Scot had paid me scot and lot too. Counterfeit? I lie, I am no counterfeit to die, is to be a counterfeit, for he is but the counterfeit of a man, who hath not the life of a man, but to counterfeit dying, when a man thereby liveth, is to be no counterfeit, but the true and perfect image of life indeed. The better part of valour is discretion, in the which better part, I have saved my life. 'Zounds, I am afraid of this gunpowder Percy though he be dead how, if he should counterfeit too and rise? By my faith I am afraid he would prove the better counterfeit. Therefore I'll make him sure, yea, and I'll swear I killed him. Why may not he rise as well as I? Nothing confutes me but eyes, and nobody sees me therefore, sirrah [stabbing him], with a new wound in your thigh come you along with me

[He takes HOTSPUR on his back]

Re-enter the PRINCE and JOHN OF LANCASTER.

Prince Come, brother John full bravely hast thou flesh'd 132
Thy maiden sword

Lanc But, soft! whom have we here? Did you not tell me this fat man was dead?

Prince I did I saw him dead, Breathless and bleeding on the ground 136

Art thou alive? or is it fantasy That plays upon our eyesight? I prithee, speak,

We will not trust our eyes without our ears Thou art not what thou seem'st 140

Fal No, that's certain I am not a double man but if I be not Jack Falstaff, then am I a Jack There is Percy [throwing the body down] if your father will do me any honour, so, if not, let him kill the next Percy himself I look to be either earl or duke, I can assure you

Prince Why, Percy I killed myself, and saw thee dead 147

Fal Didst thou? Lord, Lord! how this world is given to lying I grant you I was down and out of breath, and so was he but we rose both at an instant and fought a long hour by Shrewsbury clock If I may be believed, so, if not, let them that should reward valour bear the sin upon their own heads I'll take it upon my death I gave him this wound in the thigh if the man were alive and would deny it, 'zounds, I would make him eat a piece of my sword 157

Lanc This is the strangest tale that e'er I heard

Prince This is the strangest fellow brother John

Come, bring your luggage nobly on your back 160

For my part if a he may do thee grace, I'll gild it with the happiest terms I have [A retreat is sounded.]

The trumpet sounds retreat, the day is ours

Come, brother, let us to the highest of the field 164

To see what friends are living, who are dead

[Exeunt the PRINCE and JOHN OF LANCASTER.]

Fal I'll follow, as they say for reward He that rewards me, God reward him! If I do grow great I'll grow less for I'll purge and leave sack, and live cleanly, as a nobleman should do

[Exit]

SCENE V — Another Part of the Field
The trumpets sound Enter KING HENRY, the PRINCE, JOHN OF LANCASTER, WESTMORELAND, and Others, with WORCESTER and VERNON prisoners

K Hen Thus ever did rebellion find rebuke Ill-spirited Worcester! did we not send grace, Pardon, and terms of love to all of you? And wouldst thou turn our offers contrary? 4 Misuse the tenour of thy kinsman's trust? Three knights upon our party slain to-day
A noble earl and many a creature else Had been alive this hour, 8
If like a Christian, thou hadst truly borne Betwixt our armies true intelligence

Wor What I have done my safety urg'd me to, And I embrace this fortune patiently, 12
Since not to be avoided it falls on me

K Hen Bear Worcester to the death and Vernon too
Other offenders we will pause upon

[Exeunt WORCESTER and VERNON, guarded]
How goes the field? 16

Prince The noble Scot, Lord Douglas, when he saw

The fortune of the day quite turn'd from him, The noble Percy slain, and all his men Upon the foot of fear, fled with the rest, 20
And falling from a hill he was so bruised That the pursuers took him At my tent The Douglas is and I beseech your Grace I may dispose of him

K Hen With all my heart 24

Prince Then, brother John of Lancaster, to you

This honourable bounty shall belong Go to the Douglas, and deliver him Up to his pleasure, ransomless, and free 28
His valour shown upon our crests to-day Hath taught us how to cherish such high deeds, Even in the bosom of our adversaries

Lanc I thank your Grace for this high courtesy, 32

Which I shall give away immediately
K Hen Then this remains, that we divide our power

You, son John and my cousin Westmoreland Towards York shall bend you with your dearest speed, 36

To meet Northumberland and the prelate Scroop, Who, as we hear, are busily in arms Myself and you, son Harry, will towards Wales, To fight with Glendower and the Earl of March.
Rebellion in this land shall lose his sway, 41
Meeting the check of such another day
And since this business so far is done, Let us not leave till all our own be won. [Exeunt.]

SCENE.—England.

INDUCTION

Warkworth. Before NORTHUMBERLAND'S Castle

Enter RUMOUR, painted full of tongues

Rum. Open your ears, for which of you will stop

The vent of hearing when loud Rumour speaks?

I, from the orient to the drooping west,

Making the wind my post-horse, still unfold 4

The acts commenced on this ball of earth:

Upon my tongues continual slanders ride,

The which in every language I pronounce,

Stuffing the ears of men with false reports. 8

I speak of peace, while covert enmity

Under the smile of safety wounds the world.

And who but Rumour, who but only I,

Make fearful musters and prepar'd defence, 12

Whilst the big year, swollen with some other grief,

Is thought with child by the stern tyrant war,

And no such matter? Rumour is a pipe

Blown by surmises, jealousies, conjectures, 16

And of so easy and so plain a stop

That the blunt monster with uncounted heads,

The still-discordant wavering multitude,

Can play upon it But what need I thus 20

My well-known body to anatomize

Among my household? Why is Rumour here?

I run before King Harry's victory

Who in a bloody field by Shrewsbury 24

Hath beaten down young Hotspur and his troops,

Quenching the flame of bold rebellion

Even with the rebels' blood But what mean I

To speak so true at first? my office is 28

To noise abroad that Harry Monmouth fell

Under the wrath of noble Hotspur's sword,

And that the king before the Douglas' rage

Stoop'd his anointed head as low as death 32

This have I rumour'd through the peasant towns

Between the royal field of Shrewsbury

And this worm-eaten hold of ragged stone,

Where Hotspur's father, old Northumberland,

Lies crafty-sick The posts come tiring on, 37

And not a man of them brings other news

Than they have learn'd of me from Rumour's

tongues

They bring smooth comforts false, worse than true wrongs [Exit.

ACT I

SCENE I.—Warkworth Before NORTHUMBERLAND'S Castle

Enter LORD BARDOLPH.

L. Bard. Who keeps the gate here? ho!

[The Porter opens the gate

Where is the earl?

Port. What shall I say you are?

L. Bard. Tell thou the earl

That the Lord Bardolph doth attend him here

Port. His Lordship is walk'd forth into the orchard 4

Please it your honour knock but at the gate,

And he himself will answer

L Bard Here comes the earl [Exit Porter]
North What news, Lord Bardolph? every minute now

Should be the father of some stratagem. 8
 The times are wild contention, like a horse
 Full of high feeding, madly hath broke loose
 And bears down all before him.

L Bard Noble earl,
